Cox, James M., journalist and politician, was born at Jacksonburg, Ohio, 1870. In early days was newspaper reporter and country school teacher, bought Dayton Daily News and Springfield Press. Congressman 1909-13, three times governor of Ohio. Democratic nominee for President, 1920.

Cox, Kenyon, painter; born in Warren, Ohio, 1856; studied in Cincinnati and Philadelphia; in Paris under Carolus Duran and Gerome, 1877-82; returned to New York. Has contributed to leading magazines on art subjects. Author: Mixed Beasts, Old Masters and New. Died, 1919.

Cox, Palmer, artist; born in Granby, Quebec, Canada, 1840; graduate of Granby Academy; lived in San Francisco, 1863-75. He specialized in original humorous pictures illustrating his own books. Author: The Brownies at Home. Died, 1924.

Cox, Samuel Sullivan, American politician and diplomat, was born in Ohio in 1824, and died in New York, 1889. Graduate of Brown University; 1856-62 represented an Ohio district in congress. In 1866 he moved to New York, and was returned to congress almost continuously from 1868, except while he was minister to Turkey, 1885-86. The present arrangements for taking the national census were largely of his conception.

Coxe (Koks), Arthur Cleveland, 1818-1896, an American Episcopal bishop, born at Mendham, New Jersey. He became rector of Grace Church in New York City, 1859, and bishop of Western New York in 1865.

Crabbe (krab), George, English poet, born 1754, died 1832. He was a surgeon, but abandoned his profession for literary adventure, and went to London in 1780. He was ordained a priest in 1782, and became chaplain to the duke of Rutland at Belvoir castle. In 1783 he published The Village, and in 1807 The Parish Register, his best works.

Craddock, Charles Egbert. See Murfree, Mary Noailles.

Craigie (krāg'i), Mrs. Pearl Mary Theresa. See Hobbes, John Oliver.

Craik (krāk), Mrs. Dinah Maria. See Mulock.

Craik, George Lillie, Scottish writer and educator, born at Kennoway, Fife, 1798; studied for the church at St. Andrews, but settled in London in 1826. In 1849 he became professor of history and English literature in Queen's College, Belfast. Died at Belfast, 1866.

Cranach (krä'näкн), Lucas, German painter, was born near Bamberg, Germany, 1472. In 1520 he bought an apothecary's business at Wittenberg, where he was also a book-seller and paper-maker, became councilor and chamberlain, and was twice chosen burgomaster of the town. He was an intimate friend of Luther, whose picture he several times painted. Cranach died at Weimar, 1553.

Cranch (kränch), Christopher Pearse, American painter, was born at Alexandria, Va., 1813; studied in France and Italy in 1846-63; returned to New York and became a member of the National Academy in 1864. Died, 1892.

Crane, Walter, English painter, decorator, designer, book-illustrator, writer, lecturer, socialist, born at Liverpool, 1845. Apprenticed to W. J. Linton; first illustrated book, The New Forest, 1863; principal of the Royal College of Art, South Kensington, 1898-99; awarded Albert gold medal, society of arts, 1904. Publications: Baby's Opera; Baby's Bouquet; Mrs. Mundi; Pan-Pipes; illustrations to Shakespeare's Tempest, Two Gentlemen of Verona, Merry Wives of Windsor; Decorative Illustration of Books; Spencer's Faerie Queen; etc. Died, 1915.

Crane, William H., actor; born at Leicester, Mass., 1845, debut Utica, N. Y., 1863; appeared with Stuart Robson, Park theater, New York, in Our Boarding House, 1877, followed by numerous successes, including the two Dromios in Shakespeare's Comedy of Errors, ending with The Henrietta. Died, 1928.

Crane, Winthrop Murray, manufacturer, United States senator, was born at Dalton, Mass., 1853; A.M., Williams, 1897. Lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts, 1897-99; governor of Massachusetts 1900-02; United States senator from Massachusetts, appointed by governor, 1904; elected, 1905, to fill term expiring 1907, and reëlected that year for the term 1907-13. Died, 1920.

Cranmer, Thomas, archbishop of Canterbury, was born 1489, and educated at Cambridge University. He obtained the favor of Henry VIII. by furthering his divorce from Catharine of Aragon, and was appointed primate in 1533. He favored the reformed doctrines during the reign of Henry VIII., and in that of Edward VI. Protestanism was thoroughly established, and the Book of Common Prayer compiled, 1549, under his guidance. He was committed to the Tower on the accession of Mary, condemned at Oxford for heresy in 1554, and, after two years' imprisonment, burned there, openly rejecting the recantation of Protestantism which he had been induced to sign. Died, 1556.

Crassus (kras'us), Lucius Licinius, Roman orator and statesman, was born 140 B. C. He was consul in 95 B. C. and censor in 92 B. C. Died 91 B. C.

Crassus, Marcus Licinius, Roman general and statesman, was born about 105 B. C. Plutarch estimates the wealth of Crassus at more than 7,000 talents, and Pliny states that the lands of Crassus were worth 8,000 talents. About 60 B. C. Cæsar, Pompey, and Crassus became members of the first triumvirate. Killed 53 B. C.

Crawford, Francis Marion, American novelist, was born at Bagni di Lucca, Italy, 1854. From 1881 to 1883 he was in America, and subsequently resided at Sorrento, Italy. He published over forty novels, including Mr. Isaacs; An American Politician; Zoroaster; Saracinesca; With the Immortals; The Rulers of the South (hist.); Marietta, a Maid of Venice; Cecilia, a Story of Modern Rome; The Heart of Rome; A Lady of Rome; and the play, Fransesca da Rimini, produced by Sarah Bernhardt in Paris, 1902. Died, 1909.

Crawford, Thomas, American sculptor, was born in New York in 1814. His principal works are the bronze statue of Beethoven, executed for the Boston music hall the colossal equestrian statue of Washington at the capitol, Richmond, and the marble and bronze statuary for the capitol, Washington. Died in London in 1857.

Crawford, William Harris, American statesman, born in Virginia, 1772. In 1783 he settled in Columbia county, Georgia, was admitted to the bar 1798, and began his practice in Lexington. He was elected to the state senate in 1802, and to the United States senate to fill a vacancy in 1807, reëlected for a full term 1811, and was chosen president of the senate pro tem. 1812. He received the nomination for president, 1824, and in the election had forty-one electoral votes. He died in 1834.

Creasy (krē'si), Sir Edward Shepherd, English historian, born at Bexley, Kent, in 1812; from Eton passed to King's College, Cambridge, and in 1834 was elected a fellow; in 1840 was appointed professor of history at London University, in 1860 chief-justice of Ceylon, and knighted; died at Hampton Wick, 1878. He was author of The Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World, Invasions of England, History of the Ottoman Turks, etc.

Creel, Enrique C., Mexican diplomatist and statesman, was born at Chihuahua, Mexico, 1854; member of Mexican national congress, 1898-1904; speaker of house, 1892; governor of state of Chihuahua, 1903-06; ambassador extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of Mexico to United States, 1906-09.

Creelman, James, author, journalist; associate editor of Pearson's Magazine, was born at Montreal, 1859. Editorial writer and correspondent New York Herald, 1877-89; was aide on General Lawton's staff, Philippines, captured Spanish flag, and was shot after he received surrender of Spanish commandant at El Caney, 1898. Author: On the Great Highway, Eagle Blood, etc. Died, 1915.

Creighton (krī'tun), James Edwin, educator, professor of logic and metaphysics, Cornell, was born at Pictou, Nova Scotia, 1861; Ph.D., Cornell, 1892; LL.D., Queen's University. Editor of Philosophical Review; American editor of Kant Studien. Author: An Introductory Logic. Died, 1924.

Creighton, Mandell, English historian, born at Carlisle, 1843; graduated at Merton College, Oxford, and was elected a fellow in 1866. He became vicar of Embleton, Northumberland, in 1875, first professor of ecclesiastical history at Cambridge in 1884, bishop of Peterborough in 1891, and of London, 1896. Died, 1901.

Crillon (krē'yôN'), Louis des Balbes de Berton de, French soldier, surnamed "le brave," was born at Murs in Provence, 1541. Wounded at Lepanto, 1571, he was yet sent to carry the news of the victory to the pope and the French king. He abhorred the massacre of St. Bartholomew, but took part in the siege of La Rochelle in 1573. When the peace with Savoy was concluded, Crillon retired to Avignon, and ended his days in the exercise of piety and penance. Died, 1615.

Crispi (krēs'pē), Francesco, Italian statesman, was born at Ribera in Sicily, 1819; was admitted to the bar at Palermo, but, joining the revolutionary movement of 1848, had to flee to France; in 1894 became premier of Italy. In 1895 strenuous efforts were made to discredit him by connecting him with a series of bank scandals; in 1896 the Abyssinian disaster of Adowa compelled his resignation. Died, 1901.

Critias (krish'i-as), a pupil of Socrates, but a hearer rather than a doer of his word. He had a high reputation as an orator, and also wrote poetry.

Crittenden (krit"n-den), John Jordan, American statesman, born in Kentucky in 1786. After having studied and engaged in the practice of the law, he, in 1816, became a member of the Kentucky house of representatives, and was elected to the United States senate in 1817, 1835, and 1855. In 1841 he became attorney-general in President Harrison's administration; and in 1848 was elected governor of Kentucky. He opposed the secession movement in 1860-61. Died, 1863.

Crocker, Francis, Bacon, electrician, physicist, professor of electrical engineering, Columbia, since 1889; born at New York, 1861; graduated at Columbia, M.E., 1882; Ph.D., 1895. President American Institute of Electrical Engineers, 1897-98. Died in 1921.

Crockett, David, American pioneer and politician, was born in Tennessee, 1786. He was chiefly noted for his adventures and eccentric habits, and was a member of congress from 1827 to 1831, and from 1833 to 1835. He joined the Texans in their revolt against Mexico, was taken prisoner at Ft. Alamo in 1836, and was killed in that celebrated massacre.

Crockett, Samuel Rutherford, British novelist; born in Duchrae, Galloway, 1860. Educated at Edinburgh, Heidelberg, and New College, Oxford. Entered Free church of Scotland, 1886; minister of Penicuik for some years, then became a writer and journalist. Died, 1914.

Croesus (krē'sus), last of the kings of Lydia, in the sixth century B. C.; celebrated for his wealth, so that his name became a synonym for a man overwhelmed by the favors of fortune.

Crofts, Ernest, British painter, keeper of the Royal Academy; born in Yorkshire, 1847; educated at Rugby and Berlin. Studied art at London and Dusseldorf. Pupil of A. B. Clay and Professor Hunten. Died, 1911.

Cromer (krō'mĕr), Evelyn Baring, first Earl, British statesman, and diplomat, was born at Cromerhall, Norfolk, 1841. Educated at ordnance school, Carshalton; Royal Military Academy, Woolwich. Hon. D.C.L., Oxford; LL.D., Cambridge; financial member of council of governor general of India, 1880; financial assistant at conference in London on Egyptian finance, 1884; agent and consul-general in Egypt, 1883-1907. Author The War Game, and other military works; Modern Egypt (2 volumes); etc. Died, 1917.

Crompton, Samuel, inventor of the spinning-mule, born near Bolton, England, 1753; for five years he worked at his project, and at last sold it for 60 pounds. It revolutionized the manufacture of British muslin, and brought wealth to all save the inventor, who died in comparative poverty, 1827.

Cromwell, Oliver, the great Protector, born at Huntington, in 1599, of Welsh descent—one of his ancestors, called Williams, having adopted the surname of his patron, Thomas Cromwell, whose agent he was in the suppression of the monasteries. Early experiencing a "saving change," he emerged from his period of gloom and anxiety a stern and convinced Puritan and Calvinist, and a determined foe of Laud's absolutist pretensions in church and state. He sat as a member for Huntington in the Parliament of 1628. When the Scottish revolt compelled Charles to summon the Short Parliament (1640), Cromwell sat for Cambridge; and again in the Long Parliament as an active supporter of the popular and Puritan cause. He was never a parliamentarian in the ordinary sense of the word.

When the English Civil War began, his opportunity came. He fought at Edgehill (1642), and there perceived the weakness of the parliamentary levies against the spirit and dash of the royalist cavaliers. He saw that a counter-motive was required to meet the gallant traditions inspiring the king's soldiers, and this he found in the stern godliness of the English yeoman. He organized his famous cavalry regiments from this class, and at Marston Moor (1644) demonstrated the superiority of his troops, and stood forth as the greatest English military leader of the time—a fact which he showed again at Newbury (1644), Naseby (1645), Preston (1648), Dunbar (1650), Worcester (1651)—though the Scots, general Leslie excelled him in strategy.

Cromwell attached himself early to the extreme and independent party in the army and the state, and was their representative in their struggles with the Presbyterian Parliament, which, after Naseby, wished to disband the army. It is probable that Cromwell was moulded by circumstances rather than that he was himself the moulder of them. The execution of the king shocked all the moderate men; and after Cromwell's return from a ruthless expedition against the royalists in Ireland, he was summoned to Scotland, where Charles II. had been declared king by the whole nation. The "crowning mercy" at Worcester (1651) followed his victory over the Scots at Dunbar, and the three kingdoms were at his feet.

His first troubles were with Parliament. The "Rump," the remnant of the Long Parliament, being recalcitrant and determined to prolong its own existence, Cromwell summarily dissolved it. In September, 1656, he called a new parliament, which undertook the revival of the constitution and offered Cromwell the title of king. On his refusal he was again installed as Lord-protector, but with his powers now legally defined. Early in the following year, however, he peremptorily dissolved the house, which had rejected the authority of the second chamber. Abroad his influence still increased, reaching its full height after the victory of Dunkirk in June, 1658.

But his masterly administration was not effected without severe strain, and upon the death of his favorite daughter, Elizabeth Claypole, in the beginning of August, 1658, his health began to fail him. Towards the end of the month he was confined to his room from a tertian fever, and on Sept. 3, 1658, died at Whitehall, in the sixtieth year of his age. He was buried in King Henry VII.'s Chapel, in Westminster Abbey, but after the Restoration his body was taken up and hanged at Tyburn, the head being fixed on a pole at Westminster Abbey, and the remains buried under the gallows.

Great as a general, Cromwell was still greater as a civil ruler. He lived in a simple and retired way, like a private man, and was abstemious, temperate, indefatigably industrious, and exact in his official duties. He possessed extraordinary penetration and knowledge of human nature; and devised the boldest plans with a quickness equaled only by the decision with which he executed them. No obstacle deterred him; and he was never at a loss for expedients. Cool and reserved, he patiently waited for the favorable moment, and never failed to make use of it. In his religious views he was a tolerant Calvinist.

References.—Carlyle's Cromwell's Letters and Speeches; Harrison's Cromwell; Morley's Cromwell; Gardiner's History of the Great Civil War; and History of the Commonwealth and Protectorate; Cromwell's Army, and Roosevelt's Oliver Cromwell.

Cromwell, Richard, born in 1626, was the third son of Oliver, but by the deaths of two elder brothers, Robert and Oliver, became his father's heir. When the protector had been empowered to nominate his successor, an effort was made to train Richard to the work of government, but in vain. Scarcely had he entered on the protectorship when the forces of anarchy, both parliamentary and military, broke loose; finding himself unable to restrain them, and deep in debt, he abdicated in 1659. Died, 1712.

Cromwell, Thomas, earl of Essex, English statesman, born about 1485. He was in the service of Wolsey for several years before the cardinal's ruin in 1529, and remained his steady friend in adversity. His fidelity to his patron and his talents commended him to Henry VIII., who appointed him his secretary and spokesman in the house of commons. This made him the leader of the English reformation. He was created earl of Essex, received valuable estates from the spoils of the monasteries, and was the king's most powerful subject. But he had enemies on all sides, and, having lost the king's favor by his promotion of the marriage with Anne of Cleves, with whom Henry was disgusted, he was beheaded in 1540.

Cromwell, William Nelson, born 1854, lawyer; now senior member of law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell; officer, director, or counsel of more than twenty of the largest corporations in the United States, including United States Steel Corporation. He perfected the details of the transfer of Panama canal to United States government.

Cronje (krŏn'ye), Pietrus Arnoldus, Boer general, was born, 1835, of Huguenot descent; commanded the western army of the South African republics; frustrated the Jameson raid at Krugersdorp, 1895. Surrendered at Paardeberg to Field Marshal Lord Roberts, 1900; member of the executive council of the Transvaal republic; chief native commissioner. Died, 1911.

Crookes (krooks), Sir William, British chemist and physicist; proprietor and editor of Chemical News; president of the British association for the advancement of science, 1898; editor of Quarterly Journal of Science; born in 1832. Discoverer of thallium, a new element, 1861, radiant matter, 1879; radiant matter spectroscopy, 1881; new elements in gadolinite, etc., 1886. Died, 1919.

Crosby, Howard, American clergyman and scholar, was born at New York, 1826; graduate of the University of New York, 1844; professor of Greek there, 1851-59, and at Rutgers College, New Jersey, 1859-63; chancellor of the University of New York, 1870-81. In 1877 he was the leading organizer of the society for the prevention of crime, and its first president. Died, 1891.

Crothers (kruth'ĕrz), Samuel McChord, Unitarian clergyman, author, was born at Oswego, Ill., 1857; graduated at Princeton, 1874; studied theology at Union Theological Seminary; D.D.; Litt.D.; since 1894 at First Parish, Unitarian church, Cambridge, Mass.; preacher to Harvard University. Author: The Gentle Reader; The Understanding Heart; The Pardoner's Wallet; The Endless Life.

Crozier, William, army officer, was born at Carrollton, Ohio, 1855; graduated from United States Military Academy, 1876. Began his service in the United States army as an artillery officer, 1876; brigadier-general and chief of ordnance of United States army since 1901. With General Buffington invented the Buffington-Crozier disappearing gun carriage; invented the wire gun.

Cruikshank (krook'shangk), George, English artist, was born in London, 1792. His father and elder brother were both caricaturists. Like Hogarth, he was a moralist as well as an artist, and as a total abstainer he consecrated his art at length to dramatize the fearful downward career of the drunkard. He died, 1878.

Crumpacker, Edgar Dean, lawyer, congressman, was born in Laporte county, Indiana; was admitted to the bar in 1876, practiced law at Valparaiso, Ind.; was member of the lower house of Congress, 10th Indiana district.

Cruttwell, Charles Thomas, English clergyman and scholar, rector of Ewelme, Oxfordshire, canon of Peterborough cathedral; born in London, 1847; graduate of St. John's College, Oxford. Ordained to the ministry, 1875; dean of Gartree, diocese of Peterborough, 1892-1901; preacher to the University of Oxford, 1896-98 and 1903-05; proctor in convocation for the clergy of Peterborough diocese, 1900-06.

Cujas (kū'-zhäs'), Jacques, eminent French jurist, born in 1520, studied under Arnaud Ferrier at the University of Toulouse; became professor of the Roman law at Bourges and Valence. Among his numerous works are Commentaries on Justinian's Institutes, and on the Pandects and Decretals. Cujas has been styled by Hallam the greatest of all civil lawyers. Died at Bourges, 1590.

Culberson, Charles A., lawyer, United States senator, was born in Dadeville, Ala., 1855; studied law under his father and at the University of Virginia in 1876-77; elected attorney-general of Texas in 1890 and 1892; elected governor of Texas in 1894 and 1896; chosen United States senator, 1899, 1905 and 1911. Died, 1925.

Cullom, Shelby Moore, lawyer, United States senator, born in Kentucky in 1829, studied law, 1853, was admitted to the bar, and began to practice law at Springfield, Ill; was governor of Illinois in 1877-83; elected United States senator in 1883; and reëlected in 1888, 1894, 1899, 1905. He retired, 1911. Died, 1914.

Cummins, Albert Baird, lawyer, United States senator, was born near Carmichaels, Pa., 1850; LL.D.; Waynesburg Coll., 1903; studied law in office of McClellan & Hodges, Chicago. Admitted to Illinois bar, 1874; member of Iowa legislature, 1888; governor of Iowa, 1902-04, 1904-06, 1906-08; elected 1908 to United States senate to serve out term of Hon. W. B. Allison, deceased; reelected 1909 for the term 1909-15. Died, 1926.

Cunard (kū-närd'), Sir Samuel, civil engineer, founder of the Cunard steamship line, was born at Halifax, Nova Scotia, 1787; succeeded early as a merchant and shipowner, and removed to England in 1838; joined with George Burns, Glasgow, and David M'Iver, Liverpool, in founding, 1839, the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, and obtained a contract for the mail service between Liverpool and Halifax, Boston, and Quebec. The first passage, 1840, was the Britannia's in fourteen days eight hours. Iron steamers were introduced in 1855, and paddle-wheels gave way entirely to the screw after 1862. Since then the Cunard line has been known as one of the leaders in transatlantic travel. Died, 1865.

Cunningham, Daniel John, British physician, scientist, professor of anatomy in the University of Edinburgh since 1903, and dean of the medical faculty; born at Crieff, Scotland, 1850. M.D., D.Sc., D.C.L., LL.D., F.R.S.; was examiner on anatomy in the Universities of Edinburgh, London, Cambridge, Oxford, and Victoria. Author: Manual of Practical Anatomy; The Microcephalic Brain; The Anatomy of Hernia.

Cunningham, William, English clergyman, educator, archdeacon of Ely, was born at Edinburgh, 1849; lecturer on economic history, Harvard University, 1899; chaplain of Trinity College, 1880-91; Hulsean lecturer, 1885; vicar of Great St. Mary's Cambridge, 1887-1908. Author: Growth of English Industry and Commerce (2 vols.); Outlines of English Industrial History; Cure of Souls, etc.

Curie (kūūr-ē'), Madame, nee Marie Sklodowska, Polish chemist and physicist, was born at Warsaw, Russia, 1867; educated at Warsaw, and at the Sorbonne, Paris; Sc.D., Paris; she discovered the element polonium, and with her husband, Pierre Curie, the element radium. Died 1934.

Curie, Pierre, French chemist, was born in Paris, 1859. Educated at the Sorbonne, he became professor of physics and chemistry at Paris, 1895, and at the Sorbonne, 1900. In conjunction with his wife he discovered the element radium; member of the French Academy of Sciences, 1905. He was killed by an accident, 1906.

Curran, Henry H., born 1877, graduate Yale University, 1898; journalist; president borough of Manhattan, 1917-1921; candidate Mayor of Greater New York, 1921.

Curran (kur'an), John Philpot, Irish legal and parliamentary orator, was born in County Cork, Ireland, 1750. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and in 1773 went to London, and entered the Middle Temple. In 1782 he obtained a seat in the Irish parliament as member for Kilbeggan. Died, 1817.

Curtin, Jeremiah, American author, ethnologist, and linguist, was born at Milwaukee, Wis., 1840; graduated from Harvard, 1863; was secretary of legation at St. Petersburg, 1864-70; connected with the United States bureau of ethnology, 1883-91. Died, 1906.

Curtis, Benjamin Robbins, American jurist, born in Massachusetts, 1809; graduated at Harvard. On the impeachment of Andrew Johnson, he appeared as one of the counsel for the defendant. Died at Newport, R. I., 1874.

Curtis, Charles, lawyer, United States senator, was born at Topeka, Kan., 1860; member of congress from Kansas, 1893-1907; U. S. senator 1907-13, '15-'27. Vice president, 1929-1936. Died, 1936.

Curtis, Cyrus H. K., publisher, was born in 1850, and was educated in the public schools of New England. He became head of the Curtis publishing company, publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal and the Saturday Evening Post. Died, 1933.

Curtis, George Ticknor, American lawyer and writer, was born in Massachusetts, 1812, graduated at Harvard, and began law practice in Boston, afterward removing to New York. He was several times in the Massachusetts legislature, and was for a time United States commissioner. Among his many books are Rights and Duties of Merchant Seamen; Treatise on the Law of Copyright. Died, 1894.

Curtis, George William, American journalist, author, publicist, was born at Providence, R. I., 1824. He commenced the Editor's Easy Chair papers in Harper's Monthly in 1853, and became editor of Harper's Weekly on its establishment in 1857. He died at New York, 1892. He wrote Lotus-Eating; Potiphar Papers: Prue and I; Trumps; etc.

Curtis, William Eleroy, journalist, born in Akron, Ohio, 1850; graduate of Western Reserve College, 1871; Chicago Record-Herald, 1901-1911; commissioner of Columbian exposition to Madrid, and special envoy to the queen regent of Spain and Pope Leo XIII., 1892. Author: The Life of Zachariah Chandler; Egypt, Burma, and the British East Indies; etc. Died, 1911.

Curtiss, Glen Hammond, aviator and inventor, was born at Hammondsport, N. Y., 1876. He won many prizes, both in France and The United States, for aerial flights. President Curtiss Engineering Company; Director Curtiss Airplane & Motor Corp. Invented hydroplane and biplane. Author (with Augustus Post) of the Curtiss Aviation Book, and articles in popular and technical magazines. He died in 1930.

Curwood, James Oliver, American writer, was born at Owosso, Michigan, 1878. After graduation from the University of Michigan, he did newspaper work for several years. Later he was employed by the Canadian government to write up his travels in the "frozen north." These journeys gave him material for his books, which include The Danger Trail, The Flaming Forest. Died, 1927.

Curzon (kûr'zon) of Kedleston, first Baron, George Nathanial, English statesman, author, was born in Kedleston, 1859; graduate of Balliol college, Oxford; D.C.L., LL.D. Member of parliament, Lancashire, 1886-98; viceroy and governor-general of India, 1899-1905; lord warden of the Cinque ports, 1904-05. Author: Russia in Central Asia. Died, 1925.

Cushing (kōōsh'ing), Caleb, American lawyer and diplomatist, was born in 1843. He was a member of Congress, 1835-43; negotiated the first treaty of the United States with China; in 1872 he was one of the counsel for the settlement of the "Alabama claims," before the Geneva tribunal; and 1874-77 was minister to Spain. Died, 1879.

Cushing, Frank Hamilton, American ethnologist, was born at Northeast, Pa., 1857. He entered the national museum at Washington, and in 1875 began making collections of Indian relics for the department of ethnology. Author: Zuni Fetiches, etc. Died at Washington, 1900.

Cushman (kōōsh'man), Charlotte Saunders, American actress, was born and died at Boston Mass., 1816-1876.

Custer (kus'tĕr), George Armstrong, American soldier, born in Ohio in 1839, graduated at West Point in 1861, and served with distinction through the Civil War. As a cavalry commander in the west, he several times defeated the hostile Indians; but on June 25th, 1876, he attacked 5,000 Sioux on the Little Big Horn, in Montana, and he and his 264 men were all destroyed.

Cuvier, Georges Chretien Leopold Dagobert Baron, (koo've-ai), one of the greatest naturalists the world has produced, was born at Montbeliard, France, 1769. After finishing his education at Stuttgart, young Cuvier accepted the situation of tutor in a Protestant family in Normandy. The Abbe Texier, whom the troubles of the time had driven into exile from the capital, introduced him by letter to Jussieu and Geoffrey. Several memoirs, written about this time, and transmitted to the latter, established his reputation, and procured his admission to two or three of the learned societies in Paris.

In 1800 he was appointed successor to Daubenton as professor of natural history at the college of France, and in 1802 he succeeded Mertrud in the chair of comparative anatomy at the Garden of Plants. From that time he devoted himself steadily to the studies which have immortalized his name. His Lecons d'Anatomie Comparee, and the Regne Animal, in which the whole animal kingdom is arranged according to the organization of the beings of which it consists, have raised him to the pinnacle of scientific fame, and established him as perhaps the first naturalist in the world after Linnaeus. His numerous works upon these subjects show a master mind in the study of zoology; and extending the principles laid down in his comparative anatomy to the study of paleontology, he has been enabled to render immense service to geology.

Starting from the law that there is a correlation of forms in organized beings,—that all the parts of each individual have mutual relations with each other, tending to produce one end, that of the existence of the being—that each living being has in its nature its own proper functions, and ought therefore to have forms appropriated for that function and that consequently the analogous parts of all animals have received modifications of form which enable them to be recognized—he was able to ascertain from the inspection of a single fossil bone, not only the family to which it ought to belong, but the genus to which it must be referred. Even the very species of animal was thus to be made out, and the restoration of its external form as it might have lived and died, became in his hands an object of certainty and precision. His Regne Animal has been frequently translated, and forms the basis of all arrangements followed at the present time. Cuvier filled many offices of great importance in the state; particularly those connected with educational institutions. Napoleon treated him with much consideration; Louis XVIII. and Charles X. advanced him to honor; and Louis Philippe raised him to the rank of a peer of the realm. He died, 1832.

References.—Lee's Memoirs of Baron Cuvier; Carus's History of zoology; Thomson's Science of Life; Day's Naturalists; Duncan's Heroes of Science.

Cyrus the Great, founder of the Persian monarchy, commonly called Cyrus the Elder, was born about 590 B. C. Putting himself at the head of his Persian troops, Cyrus advanced into Media and overthrew the forces of Astyages, 559 B. C. After consolidating his dominions, which was a work of some time, Cyrus proceeded to conquer the surrounding nations. The kingdom of Lydia first yielded, 546 B. C., and its king, the famous Crœsus, fell into his hands. Ultimately, the whole of Asia Minor was subdued. But the crowning triumph of Cyrus was his capture of the city of Babylon, the metropolis of Assyria, 538 B. C., whose king was Labynetus, the Belshazzar of Daniel. Cyrus was defeated and slain, 529 B. C.

Cyrus the Younger, was born in 424 B. C., son of Darius, and governor of the western provinces of Asia Minor. After unsuccessfully plotting against his elder brother, Artaxerxes, he raised a large army, including about 12,000 Greek soldiers, with which he marched against him, but was defeated and slain at Cunaxa. Xenophon then conducted the retreat of the 10,000 surviving Greeks. Died, 401 B. C.

Dabney, Charles William, educator, president of University of Cincinnati since 1904, was born in Hampden-Sidney, Va., 1855; graduated from Hampden-Sidney College, 1873; Ph.D., LL.D.; was first to discover the phosphate deposits in tin ore in western North Carolina, took prominent part in establishing an industrial school at Raleigh, president of University of Tennessee, 1887-1904; assistant secretary agriculture, United States, 1893-97; member of many scientific and educational societies.

Da Costa (dă-kos'tă), John Chalmers, American surgeon, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1863; graduated from University of Pennsylvania scientific department, 1882; assistant surgeon, Jefferson hospital, 1887; demonstrator of surgery, Jefferson medical college, 1891; clinical professor of surgery, same, 1898; professor of surgery, 1900. Was appointed Surgeon to Philadelphia hospital in 1895, to St. Joseph's hospital in 1896. Author: A Manual of Modern Surgery. Edited English edition of Zuckerkandl's Operative Surgery, and Gray's Anatomy. Died, 1910.

Daendels (dăn'dels), Herman Willem, Dutch general, was born in 1762, died in 1818. He became colonel of a corps of volunteers in the French army in 1793, and afterward brigadier-general. After the fall of Napoleon he was intrusted with the organization of the East African colonies.

Daguerre (dă-gâr), Louis Jacques Mande, French inventor, was born in 1789. He discovered the daguerreotype process of photography. He was also celebrated as a dioramic painter; was named by the French government as an officer of legion of honor. Died, 1851.

Dahlgren (dal'gren), John Adolf, American admiral, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1809. He became a midshipman, 1826, and a lieutenant, 1837. Ten years afterward he began to experiment in the casting of heavy cannon for naval warfare, and finally devised the Dahlgren gun. He died in Washington, when in command of the navy yard, 1870.

Dahlmann (dal'măn), Friedrich Christoph, German historian, was born at Wismar, 1785; studied at Copenhagen and Halle, and in 1813 became a professor of history at Kiel, and in 1829 of political science at Göttingen, where he published his invaluable Quellenkunde der deutschen Geschichte. In 1842 he became professor of history at Bonn, and in the movement of 1848 headed the constitutional liberals. Died, 1860.

Dahn (dăn), Julius Sophus Felix, German publicist historian, poet, was born at Hamburg, 1834, the son of the actor, Friedrich Dahn. He studied at Munich and Berlin, and in 1872 became professor of German jurisprudence at Königsberg, and in 1888 at Breslau. Died, 1912.

Dalngerfield, Eliott, artist, was born at Harper's Ferry, Va., 1859; studied drawing and painting in New York with private teacher and at art student's league. First exhibited at National academy of design, 1880; studied in Europe, 1897; commissioned to paint the Lady chapel of the church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York, 1902.

Dalberg-Acton (dăl'bern-ak'tun), Sir John Emerich Edward, first Baron Acton, English historian, was born at Naples, Italy, 1834. In 1895, was made professor of modern history at Cambridge University, and as a liberal Catholic exerted a profound influence. He died, 1902.

D'Albert (dal'bar'), Eugene Francis Charles pianist and composer; born in Glasgow, 1864; studied first in London, afterward under Franz Liszt in Weimar. Visited the United States several times, and was court pianist in Weimar.

Dale, Alan, pseudonym of Alfred J. Cohen, dramatic critic, author, was born in Birmingham, England, 1861; educated at King Edward's school there, and Oxford University. Came to United States, and engaged in journalism in New York; dramatic critic of New York Evening World, 1887-95; dramatic critic of New York Journal and later with New York American. Died, 1928.

D'Alembert. See Alembert.

Dalhousie (dal-hou'zi), James Andrew Broun Ramsay, Marquis of, British statesman, was born at Midlothian, Scotland, 1812. He distinguished himself in parliament, holding with credit many important posts, and in 1847 proceeded to India as the youngest governor-general ever appointed to that country. He died in 1860.

Dallas, George Mifflin, American statesman and diplomatist, was born at Philadelphia, Pa., 1792. During 1831-33 he represented Pennsylvania in the United States senate; and minister to England, 1856-61. He died in 1864.

Dalton (dôl'tun), John, British chemist and physicist, was born near Cockermouth in 1766. He was famous for his experiments on the elastic force of steam. Died, 1844.

D'Alviella (dăl-vē-el'la), Count Goblet, member and secretary of the Belgian senate; professor at the University of Brussels; was born in Brussels, 1846; educated at Brussels and Paris. Director of the Revue de Belgique, 1874-1890.

Dalzell (dal-zel'), John, congressman, lawyer; born in New York, 1845; removed to Pittsburgh, 1847; graduate of Yale, 1865; admitted to bar, 1867; member of congress, 1887-1913. Died, 1927.

Damien de Veuster (dă'myăN'de vē'stâr'), Joseph, Roman Catholic missionary, was born near Louvain, Belgium, 1840. He long worked single handed for the lepers of Hawaii, but was ultimately joined by other priests. For twelve years he escaped the contagion; but in 1885 the malady appeared in him, yet he continued his labors until his death in 1889.

Damrosch (dăm'rosh), Walter Johannes, composer and musical director, was born in Breslau, Prussia, 1862; received his musical education under his father and Rischbieter, Urspruch, and Hans von Bülow; came to United States with his father, 1871. Succeeded his father as conductor of the New York symphony society, 1885; founded the Damrosch opera company, 1894; director of New York Symphony Orchestra, since 1903. He wrote The Scarlet Letter, opera in three acts; Cyrano, opera in four acts; songs, etc.

Dana (dă'nă), Charles Anderson, American journalis , was born at Hinsdale, N. H., 1819. From 1848 to 1862 he was managing editor of the New York Tribune, and from 1863 to the close of the Civil War was assistant secretary of war. In 1867 took hold of the New York Sun, and began the successful management of that paper on democratic lines. He died on Long Island, 1897.

Dana, Edward Salisbury, mineralogist, educator, was born in New Haven, Conn., 1849; graduated from Yale, 1870; Ph.D., 1876; professor of physics, Yale, since 1890; trustee of Peabody museum since 1885; editor American Journal of Science since 1875. Author: Text-book of Mineralogy; Text-book of Elementary Mechanics; Dana's System of Mineralogy; Minerals and How to Study Them, etc. Died, 1935.

Dana, Francis, American jurist and diplomat, was born in Massachusetts, 1743; graduated at Harvard, and admitted to the bar in 1767; was a member of the congress of 1777, which formulated the articles of confederation; judge and chief justice Mass. supreme court, 1785-1806. Died, 1811.

Dana, James Dwight, scientist, geologist, educator, was born at Utica, N. Y., 1813; graduated at Yale, 1833; professor of natural history and geology at Yale College, 1845-95. Died at New Haven, Conn., 1895.

Dana, John Cotton, librarian, was born at Woodstock, Vt., 1856, and graduated from Dartmouth, 1878; studied law, Woodstock, Vt., 1878-80; land surveyor, Colorado, 1880-81; admitted to New York bar, 1883; President of American library association, 1896; director of Newark Free Public Library. Died, 1929.

Dana, Richard Henry, Jr., lawyer and author, son of Richard Henry Dana, was born at Cambridge, Mass., 1815. He entered Harvard college in 1832, but suspended his studies on account of the weakness of his eyes in 1834. He then shipped as a common sailor on a voyage to California, of which he wrote a narrative entitled Two Years Before the Mast. He was one of the founders of the free soil party in 1848. Died in Rome, Italy, 1882.

Dandolo (dăn'dō-lō), Enrico, doge of Venice, was born about 1105 or 1108 A. D. When the emperor Alexius, who had been raised to the throne by the exertions of Dandolo, was murdered by his own subjects, Dandolo laid seige to Constantinople, and took it by storm, 1204. He died in 1205 in Constantinople, and was buried in the church of St. Sophia.

Dane (dān), Nathan, American lawyer, was born in Massachusetts in 1752. He served in the continental congress, 1785-88; framed the ordinance for the Northwest territory, in which he prohibited slavery, and was United States senator, 1794-98. Died at Beverly, Mass., 1835.

Daniel, John Warwick, lawyer, United States senator, was born in Lynchburg, Va., 1842; educated at Lynchburg College and Dr. Gessner Harrison's university school; LL.D., studied law, University of Virginia, 1865-66, admitted to bar, 1866. Member of Virginia house of delegates, 1869-72; of state senate, 1875-81; member of congress, 1885-87; United States senator, 1887-1910. Died, 1910.

Daniels, Josephus, secretary of navy, journalist, was born in Washington, D. C., May 18, 1862. After an academic education at Wilson Collegiate Institute, N. C., he edited the Wilson (N. C.) Advance, studied law and was admitted to the bar, 1885. In the same year he became editor of the Raleigh State Chronicle; was state printer for North Carolina, 1887-93; chief clerk, department of the interior, 1893-95, and editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, since 1894. He was Secretary of the Navy, under President Wilson, 1913-1921. On May 2, 1888, he married Addie W. Bagley, of North Carolina.

D'Annunzio (dän-nōō'dzē-o), Gabriele (1864——), Italian poet, novelist, dramatist, and soldier, displayed remarkable literary talent at the age of 15. He studied widely, often working eighteen hours a day. He is essentially a poet, excelling in command of rhythm, in richness, splendor, and accuracy of language. His chief works are: The Child of Pleasure; The Virgins of the Rocks; The Triumph of Death; The Flame of Life; The Dead City, etc. As an aviator in the Great War, he won distinction for his bravery, and aroused Europe by his pen and voice. At the head of a band of insurgents, he took possession of Fiume for Italy, 1919, presenting a diplomatic problem yet unsolved.

Dante, Alighieri, foremost among Italian poets, and one of the greatest that the world has ever produced, was born at Florence in 1265. He was educated at the Universities of Bologna and Padua, and at a later period, while in Paris, applied himself to the study of theology. He fought in the victorious battle of Campaldino against the Aretines, 1289, and took an active part in storming the fortress of Caprona, 1290.

Having been twice entrusted with an embassy, he was chosen one of the priori, or chief-magistrates, of Florence, in 1300, when the struggle between the Guelphs and the Ghibellines was at its height. Dante espoused the cause of the Ghibellines or Imperialists, who, being the weakest numerically, were overcome in the struggle by the Guelphs or adherents of the Pope. All the Ghibelline leaders were banished and their property confiscated. Dante shared their fate and left his native city, never to return. For many years he was doomed to bear the sorrows and hardships of an exile. In 1304 he left Verona, and went to Paris.

When the Emperor Henry VII. invaded Italy, Dante returned to Verona, and employed his powerful pen to further the imperial cause. It was probably at this time 1310 that he wrote the work De Monarchia. The fruitless siege of Florence, and the sudden death of the Emperor, 1313, demolished his last hope, and he spent the remaining years of his life under the kind protection of Guido Novello da Volenta, in the city of Ravenna, where he died, 1321. Many cities of northern and central Italy claim the honor of having harbored Dante within their walls. His remains were buried in a chapel of the Frati Minori, in Ravenna. They were, however, subsequently removed, and in 1865 were discovered in the Braccioforte Sepulchral Chapel of the same city. In 1830 a marble cenotaph was consecrated to his memory in the church of Santa Croce at Florence.

When about 9 years old, Dante beheld for the first time Beatrice Portinari, then 8 years of age, and the love then enkindled in the heart of the tender boy remained forever the inspiration of his life. How pure and chaste this passion was may be seen from the poet's first work, Vita Nuova, which consists of a collection of poems referring to his early love; each of these poems is accompanied by a history of its origin and accurate analysis. Beatrice was married to the cavaliere Simone de Bardi, but died at an early age. A few years after her death Dante married the daughter of an old and noble family, by whom he had six or seven children.

In his work De Monarchia he advocated the supremacy of the emperor in temporal, and that of the Pope in spiritual affairs. He wrote several other works in Latin, besides many canzones, sonnets, and lyrics in Italian; most of the latter were collected in his Convito. But his greatest work is the Divine Comedy. The best English translations of the complete poem are those of Cary and of Longfellow.

References.—Symonds's Introduction to the Study of Dante; Rossetti's A Shadow of Dante; Gardner's Dante Primer; Butler's Dante, His Times and His Works; Federn's Dante and His Times; Toynbee's Dictionary of Proper Names and Notable Matters in the Works of Dante; Fay's Concordance for the Comedia.

Danton (dăn'tŏn'), Georges Jacques, French revolutionist, was born at Arcis-sur-Aube, France, 1759. As a member of the national convention, he used all his influence to hasten the execution of the king; and subsequently, as the president of the committee of public safety, he united with the other revolutionary leaders to establish that fatal tribunal under whose authority so many sanguinary judicial murders were committed. He quarreled, however, with Robespierre, and by that very tribunal which he himself had established, he was condemned and guillotined in 1794.

D'Arblay (dăr'blā), Frances Burney, English novelist; born at Lynn Regis, England, 1752. From the age of eighteen to twenty-six she worked at Evelina, which appeared anonymously in 1788, and won her fame. In 1793 she married General D'Arblay, a French refugee. Her later works are Camille, The Wanderer, and the Memoirs of her father. Died at Bath, England, 1840.

Darius (dă-ri'us), king of Persia, was born in 558 B. C., son of Hystaspes; dethroned Smerdis the usurper, and became king of Persia in 521, in succession to Cambyses. He captured Babylon after a siege of twenty months, conquered Thrace, and defeated the Scythians. He died in 486 B. C.

Darius III., Codomannus, the last ruler of the Persian empire, 336-330 B. C. At the battle of Arbela, 331 B.C., the Persian army, said to have consisted of more than 1,000,000 men, was completely routed. Darius fled to Ecbatana, where he collected a new force. Alexander pursued him thither, but before he came up with him Darius was assassinated by Bessus, satrap of Bactria, 330 B. C.

Darley (dăr'li), Felix O. C., American artist, was born at Philadelphia, Pa., 1822. Though a painter of merit, he is especially known for his work as an illustrator. Some of the finest figures and scenes on the government bonds and legal tender notes were designed by him. Died, 1888.

Darling, Grace, born, 1815; died, 1842. With the assistance of her father, who was keeper of the Longstone lighthouse on one of the Farne islands, she rescued nine of the survivors of the wreck of the Forfareshire steamer, September 7, 1838.

Darnley (dărn'li), Lord, Henry Stuart, husband of Mary, queen of Scots, the eldest son of the earl of Lennox, by Lady Margaret Douglass, was born in England, 1545, where also he was educated. He is interesting chiefly on account of the position which he occupied with respect to his wife, and his tragic end in 1567. He was father of James I. of England.

Darrow, Clarence S., lawyer and socialist, was born in Kinsman, Ohio, 1857; studied law, and was admitted to bar, 1875. Elected to Illinois legislature, 1902. Active in political campaigns as independent democrat. Counsel in Debs strike case and large number of labor injunction and labor conspiracy cases on side of labor.

Darwin, Charles Robert, English naturalist, was born at Shrewsbury in 1809, died at Down, near Beckenham, in Kent, 1882. He was educated at the Universities of Edinburgh and Cambridge.

He early devoted himself to the study of natural history, and in 1831 was appointed naturalist to the surveying voyage of H.M.S. Beagle. The vessel sailed in 1831, and did not return till 1836, after having circumnavigated the globe. Mr. Darwin came home with rich stores of knowledge, part of which he soon gave to the public in various works. In 1839 he married his cousin Emma Wedgwood, and henceforth spent the life of a quiet country gentleman, engrossed in scientific pursuits—experimenting, observing, recording, reflecting, and generalizing.

In 1839 he published his Journal of Researches During a Voyage Round the World; in 1844 Structure and Distribution of Coral Reefs; Geological Observations on Volcanic Islands, etc., in 1846 Geological Observations in South America; in 1851 and 1854 his Monograph of the Cirripedia, and soon after the Fossil Lepadridae and Balaenidae of Great Britain. In 1859 his name attained its great celebrity by the publication of The Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection. This work, scouted and derided though it was at first in certain quarters, may be said to have worked nothing less than a revolution in biological science. In it for the first time was given a full exposition of the theory of evolution as applied to plants and animals, the origin of species being explained on the hypothesis of natural selection.

The rest of his works are largely based on the material he had accumulated for the elaboration of this great theory. The principal are a treatise on the Fertilization of Orchids (1862); Domesticated Animals and Cultivated Plants; Descent of Man and Variation in Relation to Sex (1871); The Expression of the Emotions in Man and Animals (1872); Movements and Habits of Climbing Plants (1875); Insectivorous Plants (1875); Cross and Self Fertilization (1876); The Power of Movement in Plants (1880); The Formation of Vegetable Mould (1881); the last containing a vast amount of information in regard to the common earth-worm. Mr. Darwin was buried in Westminster Abbey.

References.—Wallace's Darwinism; critical expositions by T. H. Huxley, Asa Gray, J. G. Romanes, St. G. Mivart and E. D. Cope; and Life and Letters of Charles Darwin, by Francis Darwin.

Darwin, Erasmus, English poet and physician; born in Eltham near Newark, England, 1731. He studied at Cambridge, obtained a degree in medicine at Edinburg in 1755 and settled at Lichfield as a physician. He died in 1802.

D'Aubigne, Jean-Henri Merle. See Merle d'Aubigne.

Daubigny (dō'bēn'yē'), Charles Francois, French landscape painter, was born in Paris, 1817. He was made chevalier of the legion of honor, 1857. Died, 1878.

Daudet (dō'de), Alphonse, French novelist, was born at Nimes, France, 1840; obtained appointment as private secretary in the office of the Duc de Morny. Alphonse's poem Les Amoureuses, published in 1858, was followed by the theatrical pieces (written partly in collaboration), La Derniere Idole; L'Œillet Blanc; Lise Tavernier. In the journals appeared some of his best work, Robert Helmont; Contes du Lundi, and the charming extravaganza of Tartarin de Tarascon, carried further in Tartarin sur les Alpes. He died in 1897.

Daun (doun), Leopold Joseph, Graf von, Austrian general, was born at Vienna, 1705; served against the Turks and through the war of the Austrian succession, and in 1754 was made a field-marshal. In 1758 he gained another victory at Hochkirch, and came near to annihilating the Prussian army. In 1759 at Maxen he forced Fink to surrender with 11,000 men. After this, however, he gained no important successes. Died, 1766.

Davenport, Homer Calvin, cartoonist, was born in Silverton, Ore., 1867. In 1892 was employed on San Francisco Examiner, and taken to New York by W. R. Hearst, 1895, and placed on New York Journal; organized the $-mark suit of clothes and the giant figure of the trusts in 1899. Died, 1912.

David, king of Israel, was the son of Jesse, of the tribe of Judah; was born in Bethlehem, and flourished in the eleventh century B. C. War having broken out between the Israelites and the Philistines, he fought and vanquished the giant Goliath. Saul gave him the command of a body of men, but having conceived a great hatred of him, David was exposed to imminent danger and compelled to seek a refuge among the Philistines. After the death of Saul he was recognized as king of Israel. Many acts of weakness were committed by him, but he obtained forgiveness from Jehovah by exemplary penitence. He is the reputed author of many of the psalms.

David, Felicien, French composer, was born at Cadenet, France, 1810. He became an ardent disciple of St. Simon and of Enfantin. In 1835 he returned to Paris, and published his Mélodies Orientales for the pianoforte. They were unsuccessful; and David remained in obscurity until his Désert made him known. In 1862 he was made an officer of the legion of honor, and in 1869 librarian to the Paris conservatory. Died, 1876.

David, Jacques Louis, founder of the modern French school of painting, was born at Paris, 1748; studied at Paris and Rome, and during the revolution was artistic superintendent of national fetes and solemnities. In 1804 Napoleon appointed him his first painter and gave him a number of commissions, and among his most celebrated works are several historic portraits of the emperor, such as Napoleon Crossing the Alps. As one of the judges of Louis XVI. he was banished in 1816 from France, and died at Brussels, 1825.

David, Pierre Jean, French sculptor, known as David d'Angers, was born at Angers, France, 1789. A statue of Condé established his reputation; and in 1826 he was elected to the institute and appointed a professor in the school of the fine arts. In 1835-37 he executed the pediment of the Pantheon in Paris. Among his other works are busts of Washington and Lafayette in the capitol at Washington. He died in Paris, 1856.

Davids, T. W. Rhys, English orientalist, professor of comparative religion, Manchester, 1904-1922, was born at Colchester, 1843. He was educated at Brighton school and Breslau University; LL.D., Ph.D. Author: Buddhism; Buddhist Birth Stories; Early Buddhism, etc. Died 1922.

Davidson, Most Rev. Randall Thomas, archbishop of Canterbury since 1903, was born at Edinburgh, 1848; graduated at Trinity college, Oxford; D.D., LL.D., D.C.L. Curate of Dartford, Kent, 1874-77; sub-almoner to Queen Victoria, 1882; one of the six preachers of Canterbury cathedral, 1880-83; clerk of the closet to Queen Victoria, 1891-1901, to his majesty the king, 1901-03; bishop of Rochester, 1891-95; bishop of Winchester, 1895-1903. Author: Life of Archbishop Tait, Charges, Sermons, etc. Died, 1930.

Davidson, Samuel, biblical critic, was born near Ballymena, Ireland, 1807, and educated at the Royal College, Belfast; was professor Belfast, resigned in 1857. His works include Sacred Hermeneutics; Treatise on Biblical Criticism. He died 1898.

Davis, Henry Winter, American lawyer, legislator, and orator, was born at Annapolis, Md., 1817. He was elected member of congress by the voters of Baltimore in 1855 and 1857. He strenuously advocated the emancipation of the slaves and the extension to them of the rights of suffrage. Died, 1865.

Davis, Jefferson, American statesman and soldier, born in Kentucky, 1808; was graduated from West Point, 1828. At the commencement of the Mexican war he left congress, engaged actively in the contest and soon acquired distinction. When Pierce was elected president in 1853, Davis was appointed secretary of war. When Buchanan became president, Davis left the cabinet, but was returned to the senate by the legislature of Mississippi, which position he retained until the secession of his state. In February, 1861, Davis was chosen president of the Confederate States and reëlected for six years in 1862. After the fall of Richmond, in 1865, he was captured when endeavoring to escape, and was imprisoned in Fortress Monroe for two years. He was released on bail in 1867, and finally set at liberty by the general amnesty of 1868. Published The Rise and Fall of the Confederate Government, 1881. Died at New Orleans, 1889.

Davis, Jefferson, lawyer, United States senator, was born in Little River county, Arkansas, 1862; graduated from the law department of Vanderbilt University, 1884; admitted to bar the same year. Governor of Arkansas in 1901, 1903 and 1905. Was elected to the United States senate, 1907, for term 1907-1913. Died, 1913.

Davis, John, English navigator, was born at Sandridge, near Dartmouth, about 1550, and undertook in 1585-87 three Arctic voyages in search of a northwest passage. In his last voyage as pilot of an English ship he was killed by Japanese pirates in the strait of Malacca, 1605.

Davis, John William, statesman, was born in West Virginia and was educated at Washington and Lee University. He practiced law for many years and was elected to Congress in 1911. He became solicitor general in 1913; and ambassador to England in 1918. He was president of the American Bar Association in 1922 and two years later was unsuccessful Democratic candidate for the presidency, against Coolidge.

Davis, Richard Harding, novelist, journalist, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1864. He graduated from Lehigh University, subsequently studied at Johns Hopkins. He served as war correspondent for the London Times and New York Herald. Author: Soldiers of Fortune; Our English Cousins; Van Bibber and Others; The Rulers of the Mediterranean; Dr. Jameson's Raiders; Exiles; With Both Armies in South Africa; Ranson's Folly; Captain Macklin. Plays: Taming of Helen; The Dictator, etc. Died in 1916.

Davis, William Morris, geographer, geologist, professor of geology, Harvard University, since 1899; was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1850; graduated from Lawrence scientific school, Harvard; 1869, M.E., Sc.D., Ph.D.; acting dean of Harvard graduate school of arts and sciences, 1906-07; member of Pumpelly's Carnegie institution expedition to Turkestan, 1903; visited South Africa, 1905. Author: Elementary Meteorology; Physical Geography. Died in 1921.

Davison, Alvin, educator, biologist, was born in Ohio, and educated at the National Normal University, and Princeton University; M.A., Ph.D., Princeton; instructor in biology, Lafayette College, 1896; associate professor, 1897; and professor, since 1898. Author: Mammalian Anatomy; Practical Zoölogy; The Human Body and Health; Health Lessons, etc. Fellow of the American association for the advancement of science and other scientific associations.

Davitt (dav'it), Michael, Irish journalist and political leader, was born at Straid, Ireland, in 1846. A strong home ruler, but socialistic on the question of land nationalization; after the split in the party he opposed Parnell, and was elected to parliament in 1892 as an anti-Parnellite, but unseated on the ground of intimidation. He died in 1906.

Davout (da'vōō'), Louis Nicolas, French marshal, was born in 1770, at Annoux, France; was educated with Bonaparte at the military school of Brienne. A marshal of the empire, 1804, he acted a brilliant part at Austerlitz, 1805, and Auerstadt, and was made duke of Auerstadt, 1808. At Eckmühl and at Wagram he checked the Austrian attack, and in 1811 was created prince of Eckmühl; after Waterloo he received the command of the remnant of the French army under the walls of Paris. In 1819 he was made a peer of France. He died in 1823.

Davy, Sir Humphry, noted English chemist was born at Penzance, in Cornwall, 1778. In 1803 he became a fellow, and in 1807 secretary of the Royal society. In 1815 he invented the miner's safety lamp. He was knighted in 1812, made a baronet and elected a president of the royal society in 1820. His chief works are Elements of Chemical Philosophy, and Elements of Agricultural Chemistry. He died at Geneva in 1829, of paralysis.

Dawes, Charles Gates, was born in Marietta, Ohio, August 27th, 1865. Son of Civil War General and graduated from Marietta College and Cincinnati Law School. Practiced law for seven years in Lincoln, Nebraska, then took up business and politics, with Chicago as headquarters and was a McKinley leader in campaign of 1896. Five years Controller of Currency of Washington, then President of Central Trust Company of Illinois at Chicago. Brigadier-General in Great War and head of the American Army Purchasing Board in France. President Harding made him first Director of Federal Budget System and allies made him head of the Expert Commission on German Finances and Reparation. He has written books on finance and has published "Journal of the Great War." Elected Vice President of United States of America, March, 1925. His home is at Evanston, Ill.

Dawson, Samuel Edward, president of Royal Society of Canada, 1907, king's printer for Dominion of Canada and deputy minister of department of public printing and stationery, Ottawa, was born at Halifax, Nova Scotia, 1833. Died, 1916.

Day, James Roscoe, clergyman, educator; chancellor of Syracuse University; was born at Whitneyville, Maine, 1845; graduated at Bowdoin College, 1874, S.T.D.; D.D.; LL.D.; D.C.L. Elected bishop of Methodist Episcopal church, 1904, but resigned. Died, 1923.

Day, Mrs. S. A. See Gardener, Helen Hamilton.

Day, William, Rufus, jurist; born in Ravenna, Ohio, 1849; graduate of University of Michigan, 1870; judge of court of common pleas, 1886-90; appointed assistant secretary of state by President McKinley, 1897; succeeded John Sherman as secretary of state, 1898, but in September, 1898, was succeeded by John Hay, becoming chairman of United States peace commissioners at Paris at close of war with Spain; became associate justice of United States supreme court in 1903. Died, 1923.

Deak (dā'ăk), Franz, Hungarian statesman, who did more than anyone else to establish in 1866 the Austro-Hungarian empire, was born at Kehida in Szalad district, 1803; entered the national diet in 1832, played the part of a moderate in the revolution of 1848, and died at Budapest, 1876.

Deakin (dē'kin), Hon. Alfred, Australian statesman, prime minister of commonwealth of Australia, 1903-05; born in Melbourne, Australia, 1856; graduated from Melbourne University; member of federal council, 1889-95-97-99; of national Australian convention, 1891; Australian delegate from Victoria to London to secure passing of the commonwealth bill, 1900; first attorney-general of the commonwealth of Australia, 1901-03; prime minister of the commonwealth of Australia, 1903-04, and a second time, 1905. Died, 1919.

Deane, Silas, American statesman and diplomat, was born in Connecticut, 1737; graduated from Yale, and was a member of the first continental congress. In 1776 he was sent to Paris as political and financial agent of the colonies. Benjamin Franklin and Arthur Lee joined him afterward, and he was on the committee which negotiated the treaty with France. Died in poverty, 1789.

Debs (debz), Eugene Victor, socialist, was born in Terre Haute, Ind., 1855; and became locomotive fireman on Terre Haute & Indianapolis railroad; grand secretary and treasurer of brotherhood of locomotive firemen, 1880-93; president of American railway union, 1893-97. As president of American railway union he won a large strike on the Great Northern railway; while managing the still larger strike of western roads in 1894 he was charged with conspiracy, but acquitted; then he was charged with violation of an injunction and sent to jail for six months for contempt of court. Candidate of Socialist party for president of United States, 1904, 1912 and 1920. Died, 1926.

DeBussy, Claude Achille, French composer, was born at Saint Germain, 1862, and entered the Paris Conservatoire when very young. In 1884 he won the Grand Prix de Rome and soon submitted Printemps and La Demoiselle elue, which were considered very unorthodox. After a Russian period, influenced by the music of Moussorgsky, he returned to Paris and rose to high prominence as a modern composer. His great triumph was in Pelleas and Melisande, produced at the Opera Comique in 1902. He died in 1918.

Decamps (dē-kăN'), Alexandre Gabriel, French painter, was born at Paris in 1803. In 1824 he was in Switzerland, in 1827-28 in Italy and the Levant. He was made a chevalier of the legion of honor in 1839, and in 1851 an officer. He died at Fontainebleau from a hunting accident, 1860.

De Candolle (dē kăN'dōl'), Augustin Pyrame, Swiss botanist, was born at Geneva, 1778; studied there and in Paris; in 1816 he retired to Geneva, where a professorship of botany was founded for him. He died in 1841.

Decatur (dē-kā'tur), Stephen, United States naval officer, was born at Sinepuxent, Md., 1779, and entered the navy in 1798. In 1804 he led a small party which burned, in the harbor of Tripoli, the American frigate Philadelphia after its capture by the Tripolitans. Having taken command of the frigate United States, he captured the British frigate Macedonian, 1812. In 1815 he captured two Algerine vessels of war, and compelled the dey of Algiers to sue for peace. He was killed in a duel by Commodore James Barron, 1820.

Deffand (de'făN'), Marie de Vichy-Chamrond, Marquise du, Parisian literary leader, was born at the Chateau de Chamrond, France, 1697. In 1718 she married the Marquis du Deffand, and for a number of years she led a life of gallantry and became a conspicuous figure in Paris literary society. Died in Paris, 1780.

De Foe (dē fō'), Daniel, English novelist and political writer, was born in London, 1661. He began his career as author in 1682, by publishing a pamphlet which contained strictures upon the clergy of that day. In 1701 he published his famous satirical poem, The True-born Englishman, which was written in vindication of King William, and in answer to a poem in which he had been attacked, called The Foreigners. In 1719 appeared the famous Robinson Crusoe, the most popular of all his works. De Foe, in rapid succession, produced his other notable works of fiction, Moll Flanders; Journal of the Plague; Colonel Jack; Adventures of Roxana, and the Memoirs of a Cavalier. He died in 1731.

Defregger (dā'freg-ĕr), Franz von, Austrian genre painter, was born at Stronach, Tyrol, 1835. In 1878 he was made professor of painting at the Munich Academy. The subjects of almost all his pictures are drawn from the Tyrolese peasant-life. Died in 1921.

De Kalb (dē kalb'), John, Baron, general, in the American revolution, was born about 1721, in Alsace, France; he accompanied Lafayette to America in 1777. He was then appointed a major-general by congress, served in the field in New Jersey and Maryland, and was second in command to General Gates. He was killed in the battle of Camden, 1780.

De Koven (dē kō'ven), Henry Louis Reginald, American composer, was born in Middletown, Conn., 1861; graduated at Oxford, 1880. Has served as musical critic on various New York publications. His operas are: The Begum; Don Quixote; Robin Hood; The Mandarin; The Highwayman; Student King; The Snowman; etc. He has written also a large number of songs and various music for piano and orchestra. Died, 1920.

Delacroix (dē-lă'krwă'), Ferdinand Victor Eugene, French painter, chief of the romantic school, was born near Paris, 1799. At the age of eighteen he entered the atelier of Pierre Guérin. In 1822 his first work, Dante and Virgil, attracted much attention. In 1857 he was chosen by the institute to fill the place of Paul Delaroche. He died in 1863.

Delambre (dē-lăN'br'), Jean Baptiste Joseph, eminent French astronomer, was born at Amiens, 1749, and studied first under Delisle, and afterward under Lalande. After the discovery of the planet Uranus in 1781, he computed tables of its motion. In 1802 he was appointed inspector-general of education, and in 1803 perpetual secretary of the mathematical section of the institute. In 1807 he obtained the chair at the Collège de France rendered vacant by the death of Lalande, his master and friend. He died at Paris, 1822.

Deland (dē'land'), Margaretta Wade, née Campbell, American writer, was born at Allegheny, Pa., 1857; educated at private schools, and married, 1880, Lorin F. Deland, Boston. Author: John Ward, Preacher; The Old Garden and Other Verses; Dr. Lavendar's People; The Common Way; The Awakening of Helena Richie; etc.

De la Ramee (dē lärä' mā) Louise (better known by her pen name "Ouida"), English novelist of French extraction, was born at Bury St. Edmunds, England, in 1840. Her first novel, Granville de Vigne, appeared in book form in 1863, and was followed by numerous others dealing with many phases of European society. Among her stories are: Under Two Flags; Held in Bondage, Chandos; Two Little Wooden Shoes; Wanda; Tricotrin, and Santa Barbara. She died in Italy, 1908.

Delaroche (dē-lä'rōsh'), Paul, French historical painter, was born at Paris in 1797, died in 1856. He studied under Watelet and Gros. Many of his subjects are drawn from English and French history, and they are usually of a somber character.

Delcasse (del'kä'sā'), Theophile, French statesman, was born in Pamiers, France, 1852, educated in Paris, and began his career as a journalist. He was elected to the chamber of deputies in 1889, for Foix. He has always been a consistent advocate of colonial expansion; foreign minister when M. Waldeck-Rousseau succeeded M. Dupuy, and and when M. Combes, in 1902, succeeded M. Waldeck-Rousseau; visited England with the president in 1903, and with Lord Lansdowne prepared the Anglo-French agreement, signed in 1904. The difficulty with Germany about Morocco caused his retirement in 1905. Died, 1923.

Delille (dē-lēl'), Jacques, French poet, was born in Auvergne, France, 1738. He was educated at the College de Lisieux in Paris, and obtained a professorship in Amiens. The revolution compelled Delille to leave France, and he traveled in Switzerland and Germany, and then in London occupied eighteen months in translating Paradise Lost. Blind in his old age. He died in 1813.

De Martens. See Martens, Frederic de.

De' Medici, Catharine. See Catharine de Medici.

De Mille (de-mil'), James, Canadian novelist, was born at St. John, New Brunswick, in 1837. He was professor of history and rhetoric in Dalhousie College for a number of years. Died at Halifax, Nova Scotia, 1880.

Democritus (de-mok'ri-tus), Greek philosopher, was born at Adbera, in Thrace, about 470 or 460 B. C. Only a few fragments of his numerous physical, mathematical, ethical, and musical works are extant. Died about 357 or 360 B. C.

DeMorgan, William Frend, English novelist, was born in London in 1839. He studied art at the Royal Academy, and for several years devoted himself to pottery. His creations were much sought after on account of their beautiful design and lustre, becoming known as the "DeMorgan" pottery. When he was sixty-five years old he wrote a novel, Joseph Vance, which immediately made him famous as an author, and he soon followed it with another called Alice-For-Short. These two volumes placed him among the foremost English novelists. He also wrote Somehow Good; It Can Never Happen Again; and An Affair of Dishonor. Died in 1917.

Demosthenes, famous ancient Greek orator, was the son of a sword-cutler at Athens, where he was born in 382 (according to some in 385) B. C. His father left him a considerable fortune, of which his guardians attempted to defraud him. Demosthenes, at the age of seventeen years, conducted a suit against them himself, and gained his cause. He then set himself to study eloquence, and though his lungs were weak, his articulation defective, and his gestures awkward, by perseverance he at length surpassed all other orators in power and grace.

He thundered against Philip of Macedon in his orations known as the Philippics, and endeavored to instill into his fellow-citizens the hatred which animated his own bosom. He labored to get all the Greeks to combine against the encroachments of Philip, but their want of patriotism and Macedonian gold frustrated his efforts. He was present at the battle of Chaeroneia (338 B. C.), in which the Athenians and Boeotians were defeated by Philip, and Greek liberty crushed.

On the accession of Alexander, in 336 B. C. Demosthenes tried to stir up a general rising against the Macedonians, but Alexander at once adopted measures of extreme severity, and Athens sued for mercy. It was with difficulty that Demosthenes escaped being delivered up to the conqueror. In 324 B. C., he was imprisoned on a false charge of having received a bribe from one of Alexander's generals, but managed to escape into exile. On the death of Alexander next year he was recalled, but the defeat of the Greeks by Antipater caused him to seek refuge in the temple of Poseidon, in the island of Calauria, on the coast of Greece, where he poisoned himself to escape from the emissaries of Antipater (322 B. C.).

The character of Demosthenes is by most modern scholars considered almost spotless. His fame as an orator is equal to that of Homer as a poet. Cicero pronounces him to be the most perfect of all orators. He carried Greek prose to a degree of perfection which it never before had reached. Everything in his speeches is natural, vigorous, concise, symmetrical. We have under his name sixty-one orations, some of which are not genuine. The great opponent—and indeed enemy—of Demosthenes as an orator was Aeschines.

References.—Plutarch's Life of Demosthenes; Jebb's Attic Orators; Schaefer's Demosthenes and His Time; Blass's Demosthenes; and Butcher's Demosthenes.

Dempsey, William Harrison (Jack), was born in 1896. For several years he was world champion heavy-weight boxer, defeating Jess Willard, Georges Carpentier, Tom Gibbons, and Louis Firpo. In 1926, however, he himself met defeat at the hands of Gene Tunney, an ex-marine.

Deneen, Charles Samuel, lawyer, public official, was born in Edwardsville, Ill., 1863; graduated from McKendree College, 1882; studied law, and was admitted to the Illinois bar. Elected to Illinois house of representatives, 1892; served one term as attorney for sanitary district of Chicago, 1895-96; state's attorney of Cook county, Ill., 1896-1904; governor of Illinois, 1904-13.

Denby, Edwin, born Evansville, Ind., 1870; graduate University of Michigan Law School, 1896. Sergt. U. S. Marine Corps, 1917. Member fifty-ninth to sixty-first Congresses. Secretary of the Navy in Harding Cabinet. Died, 1929.

Depew, Chauncey Mitchell, lawyer, United States senator, was born in Peekskill, N. Y., 1834; was graduated at Yale College in 1856; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1858; LL.D., Yale, 1887. Died, 1928.

De Quincey, Thomas, English essayist, born in Manchester, England, in 1785. In 1803 he entered Worcester College, Oxford, which he left without a degree, and soon after became acquainted with Coleridge and Wordsworth, took a cottage at Grasmere, and became a member of the famous "lake school." He had acquired the habit of taking opium by using it to cure an attack of neuralgia, and so greatly did it grow upon him that he was known to take as many as 12,000 drops, equal to ten wineglasses, in a day. He was engaged in preparing fourteen volumes of his works for the press within a few days of his death. Died, 1859.

De Reszke (dā resh'ke), Edouard, Polish singer, born in Warsaw, Poland, 1856; studied under Ciaffei and Coletti, at Milan and Naples, where he developed a splendid bass voice; made his début, Theatre des Italiens, Paris, as the king in Aida, 1876. Later appeared in grand opera in Europe and United States, taking basso rôles. Died, 1917.

De Reszke, Jean, Polish tenor, brother of Edouard, was born in Warsaw, Poland, 1853; studied music under Ciaffei, Cotogni, and Sbriglia; début as baritone singer in La Favorita, Venice, 1874; tenor début, Madrid, 1879. He made his début in Paris, 1885, and has appeared in leading rôles in grand opera in Europe and United States. Died, 1925.

Derby, Edward George Geoffrey Smith-Stanley, fourteenth Earl of, British statesman, was born in 1799. He entered parliament in 1821, and in 1827-28 was under-secretary for the colonies. In 1844 he was called to the house of lords as Baron Stanley of Bickerstaffe. On the death of his father, in 1851, he succeeded to the earldom and the vast estates in England and Ireland. He declined the premiership in 1845 and in 1851, but accepted it in 1852, and resigned it the same year. He became prime minister a third time in 1866, and resigned in 1868. Died, 1869.

De Ruyter. See Ruyter.

Derzhaven (dyer-zhä'vēn), Gabriel, a Russian lyric poet and statesman, was born at Kasan, 1743. He rose from the ranks as a common soldier to high offices in the state under the empress Catharine II., and was made minister of justice by Alexander I. In 1803 he retired to private life and gave himself up to poetry. Died, 1816.

Descartes (dā-kärt), Rene, great French philosopher and mathematician, was born, 1596, at La Haye, in Touraine. He was educated at the Jesuit College of La Fleche, where he showed great talent. He entered the military profession and served in Holland and in Bavaria. In 1621 he left the army, and after a variety of travels finally settled in Holland, and devoted himself to philosophical inquiries.

Descartes, seeing the errors and inconsistencies in which other philosophers had involved themselves, determined to build up a system anew for himself, divesting himself first of all from the beliefs he had acquired by education or otherwise, and resolving to accept as true only what could stand the test of reason. Proceeding in this way he wrote Meditationes de Prima Philosophia in which he first enunciated that he could not doubt or divest himself of belief in himself as a thinking being, and this ultimate certainty he expressed in the celebrated phrase Cogito, ergo sum "I think, therefore, I am."

Here, then, he believed he discerned the test of truth. Starting from this point Descartes found the same kind of certainty in such propositions as these; that the thinking being or soul differs from the body (whose existence consists in space and extension) by its simplicity and immateriality and by the freedom that pertains to it; that every perception of the soul is not distinct; that it is so far an imperfect finite being; that this imperfection of its own leads it to the idea of an absolutely perfect being; and from this last idea he deduces all further knowledge of the truth.

Descartes also contributed greatly to the advancement of mathematics and physics. The higher departments of geometry were greatly extended by him. His system of the universe attracted great attention in his time, though long since exploded. It rested on the hypothesis of celestial vortices, immense currents of ethereal matter, by which he accounted for the motion of the planets (Principia Philosophiae, 1644). His works effected a great revolution in the principles and methods of philosophizing. In 1647 the French court granted him a pension of 3000 livres, and two years later, on the invitation of Christina of Sweden, he went to Stockholm, where he died, 1650.

References.—Fisher's Descartes and His School; Mahaffy's Descartes; Smith's Studies in the Cartesian Philosophy; Descartes' Discourse on Method and the Meditations are translated by Veitch.

Deschanel, Paul Eugene Louis, member of the French Academy, author, President of France, was born in 1856. His entire life was devoted to public work. President of the Commitee of Foreign and Colonial Affairs, Reporter of Budget of Foreign Affairs, etc. Died, 1922.

De Soto (dā sō'tō), Hernando, Spanish explorer, born about 1500, followed the path of Cortez and Pizarro, served under the latter in Peru. About 1536 he was made governor of Cuba; he conducted an expedition from Florida, which resulted in the discovery of the Mississippi. Died of fever in Louisiana about 1542.

Dessalines (dā'sä'lēn'), Jean Jacques, Haytien ruler, was born in Africa about 1758, and was originally a slave to a free black in St. Domingo. He became second in command to Toussaint l'Ouverture, and, after the imprisonment of that chief, he displayed so much talent and courage that in 1804 he was chosen emperor of Hayti, under the title of Jacques I. He fell the victim of a conspiracy in 1806.

De Stael, Mme. See Stael.

D'Estaing. See Estaing.

Detaille (dē-tä'y'), Edouard Jean Baptiste, French painter, was born in Paris in 1848. His pictures are chiefly of soldiers and battle-scenes, and have gained him much fame. Member of the French Institute, member of the Academie des Beaux Arts, etc. Died, 1912.

De Tocqueville. See Tocqueville.

De Vere (dē vēr'), Aubrey Thomas, Irish poet and political writer, was born in 1814. He first published, in 1842, The Waldenses. In 1872 he produced the Legends of St. Patrick; in 1879, Legends of the Saxon Saints, and in 1882, The Foray of Queen Meave, and Other Legends of Ireland's Heroic Age. He died in 1902.

De Vigny. See Vigny.

Devine (dē-vīn'), Edward Thomas, sociologist, educator, was born in Union, Iowa, 1877; graduated, Cornell College, Iowa, 1887; Ph.D.; LL.D. General Secretary of charity organization society, New York, since 1896; Schiff professor of social economy, Columbia University, since 1905. Author: Economics; The Practice of Charity; The Principles of Relief; Efficiency and Relief.

De Vinne (dē vin'ē), Theodore Low, printer, and writer, was born at Stamford, Conn., 1828; learned printer's trade. Was a leader in the improvement of typography, and received an honorary M.A., from both Columbia and Yale Universities. Died, 1914.

Dewar (dū'ĕr), Sir James, British scientist, Fullerian professor of chemistry, Royal Institution, London; was born in Kincardine, Scotland, 1842; D.Sc., Oxford. With Sir Frederick Abel, he invented cordite. He was the first to liquefy and solidify hydrogen. Received French Academy's Lavoisier gold medal, in 1894. Died, 1923.

De Wet (dē vet'), Christian Rudolf, Boer general, was born in 1853. He had acquired fame as a hunter before he became conspicuous in the Transvaal war of 1880-81; and in the Boer war of 1899-1902 he was of all the Boer commanders the most audacious, swift in movement, and fertile in expedients. Died, 1922.

De Wette (dē vet'ē), Wilhelm Martin Leberecht, German biblical critic, born at Ulla, near Weimar, 1780. He studied from 1799 at Jena, and became professor at Heidelberg in 1807, in 1810 at Berlin, and in 1822 at Basel, Switzerland, where he died, 1849. His reputation rests on his Introduction to the Old Testament.

Dewey, George, admiral in United States navy; born in Montpelier, Vt., 1837; appointed to naval academy, September 23, 1854; graduated in 1858, as passed midshipman; LL.D., 1898; in Farragut's squadron which forced the passage of Fort St. Philip and Fort Jackson, April, 1862. Was afterward on several vessels in North Atlantic blockading squadron, then in European squadron, and later on various duties and at different stations, being promoted to commander, 1872; captain, 1884; commodore, 1896. In January, 1898, assumed command of Asiatic squadron. On May 1, 1898, in Manila bay, destroyed the Spanish Asiatic squadron under Admiral Montojo, destroying eleven and capturing all other vessels and all the land batteries, without the loss of a man on the American side. Immediately upon receipt of official news of victory he was promoted to rear admiral, and thanked by resolution of congress; promoted to admiral, 1899. Died, 1917.

Dewey, John, educator, professor of philosophy, Columbia University, since 1904; was born at Burlington, Vt., 1859; graduated, University of Vermont, 1879; Ph.D., Johns Hopkins, 1884. Was professor of University of Minnesota, 1888-89; University of Michigan, 1889-94; and professor of philosophy, University of Chicago, 1894-1904; professor of philosophy, Columbia, 1904—. Author: Psychology Leibnitz; Critical Theory of Ethics; Ethics; etc.

Dewey, Melvil, librarian, was born in Adams Center, N. Y., 1851; graduated, Amherst, 1874; LL.D., 1902. Acting librarian Amherst, 1873-76; chief librarian and professor of library economy, Columbia College, 1883-88. Founder and director, New York state library school, 1887-1906; state director of libraries, New York, 1904-06. Author: Library School Rules; Decimal Classification and Relative Index. Died, 1931.

De Witt (dē vit'), Jan, Dutch statesman, was born at Dort, 1625, son of Jacob De Witt, a vehement opponent of William II., prince of Orange. In 1654, on the conclusion of the war with England, a secret article was inserted in the treaty drawn up between De Witt and Cromwell, in virtue of which the house of Orange was to be deprived of all state offices. The Orange party carried their point in the elevation of William to the dignity of stadtholder. Subsequently his brother, Cornelius, accused of conspiracy against the life of the stadtholder, was imprisoned and tortured. De Witt went to see him on his release. As they were coming out of prison they were attacked and murdered, 1672.

De Young, Michael Harry, journalist, was born in St. Louis, Mo., 1848; removed to California with parents when five years old; with brother Charles he established, 1865, The Dramatic Chronicle, later changing it to the San Francisco Chronicle, projector and director-general of California mid-winter exposition, 1893-94; member of executive committee for relief and red cross funds. Died in 1925.

Diaz (dē'ăs), or Dias, Bartolomeu, Portuguese navigator, flourished in the fifteenth century. Driven by a violent storm, he sailed round the southern extremity of Africa, the cape of Good Hope, without immediately realizing the fact, and discovered Algoa bay. Was lost in a storm, May, 1500.

Diaz, Porfirio, Mexican statesman, president of Mexico, was born at Oaxaca in 1830. He studied law, and was an officer in the war between Mexico and the United States. In 1876 he rebelled and overthrew the president, Lerdo de Tejado, and was himself made president in the same year. He was elected again in 1884, 1888, 1892, 1896, 1900, 1904 and 1908. Mexico prospered under his administration and his career gave him a high place among the world's statesmen. Forced to resign by Madero, 1911. Died, 1915.

Diaz de la Pena (dē'ăz' dē là pen'yà), Narcisse Virgile, French painter, was born at Bordeaux of Spanish parentage, 1807. Left dependent, he was educated by a Protestant pastor at Bellevue, near Paris. In 1831 he began to exhibit in the salon. He died at Mentone, 1876.

Dicey (di'si), Albert Venn, British lawyer and writer, Vinerian professor of English law at Oxford since 1882, was born in 1835; graduated from Balliol College, Oxford; M.A., hon. D.C.L. Oxford; hon. LL.D., Cambridge, Glasgow, and Edinburgh; studied law and was made a barrister of the Inner Temple, 1863. Died 1922.

Dickens, Charles, English novelist and humorist, was born at Landport, England, 1812. After a literary apprenticeship on The True Sun, he attached himself to the staff of the London Chronicle. After a visit to the United States he published, in 1842, his American Notes for General Circulation but a much more admirable result of his visit was Martin Chuzzlewit. This was certainly the greatest of his humorous works since the Pickwick Papers; Bleak House; Hard Times; Little Dorrit; The Tale of Two Cities; Great Expectations; Our Mutual Friend, and other novels, equally celebrated, succeeded one another with almost periodical punctuality, and an audience larger than any English author ever had awaited each. In 1850 he commenced a weekly periodical entitled, Household Words, afterward merged in All the Year Round. In 1867 he again visited the United States, gave numerous readings, and met with a brilliant reception. He was until the last engaged in writing a new novel The Mystery of Edwin Drood, which was left unfinished at his death in 1870.

Dickinson, Don M., lawyer, was born at Port Ontario, N. Y., 1846, removed to Michigan in 1848. Graduated from the law department of the University of Michigan in 1866, and in 1867 became a practicing lawyer in the West. He later practised in New York, and Washington. He was postmaster-general of the United States, 1887-89. Member of many legal, municipal, financial, historical, and other associations. Died, 1917.

Dickinson, Jacob McGavock, lawyer, secretary of war, was born in Columbus, Miss., in 1851; graduated from the University of Nashville and studied law at Columbia College, New York, in Paris, and at the University of Leipzig; LL.D., Columbia University of New York and University of Illinois; was assistant attorney-general of the United States, 1895-97. He was secretary of war 1909-11. Died, 1929.

Dicksee, Francis Bernard, English painter and royal academician, was born in London in 1853. He was educated at Rev. G. Henslow's school, London. First exhibited at academy, 1876. Died, 1928.

Diderot (dēd'rō), Denis, celebrated French encyclopedist and philosophical writer, was born at Langres, France, 1713. His great work was the Encyclopedie, begun in 1749, of which he and D'Alembert were the joint editors. He died in 1784.

Dielman (dēl'man), Frederick, American artist, was born in Hanover, Germany, 1847, and came to United States in childhood; graduated at Calvert College. He was president of the National Academy of Design in 1899; member of art commission, New York, 1901-03. Professor of Art, C. C. N. Y., 1903-1918; Cooper Union 1903-1931. A modernist in art. Died, 1935.

Dilke (dilk), Rt. Hon. Sir Charles Wentworth, English statesman and writer, was born at Chelsea, near London, 1843. He was graduated at Cambridge, studied law and is a barrister of the Middle Temple. Was under-secretary of state for foreign affairs, 1880-82; chairman of royal commission for housing of the working-class, 1884-85; chairman of select committee on income tax, 1906. Died, 1911.

Dillmann (dil'măn), Christian Friedrich August, German orientalist and theologian, was born in Würtemberg, 1823. He studied at Tübingen. In 1854 he accepted a call to Kiel, where he became professor of oriental languages in 1860, but was transferred in 1864 to the chair of old testament exegesis at Giessen, which in 1869 he resigned to become Hengstenberg's successor at Berlin. Died in 1894.

Dinwiddie (din-wid'i or din'wid-i), Robert, governor of Virginia from 1752 to 1758, was born in Scotland about 1690. His rule as governor was not successful, his ill-temper and avarice making him very disagreeable to his subjects. He was the first to suggest to the British board of trade the taxing of the colonies. He discerned Washington's military ability, and made him adjutant-general of one of the four military districts of Virginia. He died in England in 1770.

Diocletian (di'ō-klē'shan), Valerius Diocletianus, Roman emperor, was born in Dalmatia in 245, and reigned from 284 to 305. After the death of Numerianus, he was chosen to succeed him by the troops at Chalcedon. In the year 305, Diocletian, being worn out by work, resigned his position as emperor and went to Salona, in Dalmatia, where he died eight years later. His reign has become memorable for the persecution of the Christians.

Diogenes (dī-oj'ē-nēz), philosopher of the school of cynics, was born in Asia Minor about 412 B. C. Becoming a citizen of Athens, he made himself notorious by his abnegation of all social laws and customs, lived upon alms, and took up his abode in a tub. Died at Corinth, 323 B. C.

Dionysius (di'ō-nish'i-us), the Elder, tyrant of Syracuse, in Sicily, was born about 430 B. C. Not content with his military renown, he wrote poems and tragedies, and at one time gained a prize at Athens for the tragedy The Ransom of Hector. He died at Syracuse in 367 B. C.

Dionysius of Halicarnassus, critic, historian, and rhetorician, was born about 66 B. C., went to Rome in 29 B. C., and died there about 7 B. C. His Greek Archæologia, a history of Rome down to 264 B. C., is a mine of information about the constitution, religion, history, laws and private life of the Romans.

Disraeli (diz-rā'li or diz-rē'li), Benjamin, earl of Beaconsfield, eminent statesman and novelist, was born in London in 1804. He entered the house of commons in 1837, and remained a member until his elevation to the house of lords in 1876. In 1852, and again in 1858 and 1866, he was chancellor of the exchequer under the earl of Derby, and carried the reform act of 1867. In 1868, on the retirement of Lord Derby, he became premier, but resigned the same year. In 1874 he was again in office, which he held until defeated by Gladstone in 1880. Lord Beaconsfield's career as an author was even longer than his political career. His first novel, Vivian Grey, appeared in 1826, when he was little more than twenty-one years of age; his last, Endymion, appeared in 1880, only a few months before his death. He died at London in 1881.

Dix, John Adams, American statesman and general, was born at Boscawen, N. H., 1798; entered the army in 1812, and rose to the rank of adjutant-general in 1830. From 1833 he was successively secretary of state, United States senator, and secretary of the treasury. He became minister to France, 1866-69, and became governor of New York in 1872. He died in 1879.

Dix, Morgan, Protestant Episcopal clergyman, was born in New York in 1827; graduated from Columbia, 1848; B.D., General Theological Seminary, 1852; S.T.D., D.C.L., D.D. Author: Sermons, Doctrinal and Practical; Lectures on the Authority of the Church; Good Friday Addresses; etc. Died, 1908.

Dixon, Joseph M., lawyer, United States senator, was born at Snow Camp, N. C., 1867; graduated from Guilford College, North Carolina, 1889; was admitted to the bar in 1892; member of the fifty-eighth and fifty-ninth congresses, and elected to the United States senate, to succeed Hon. W. A. Clark, for the term 1907-13.

Dixon, Thomas, Jr., lecturer and author, was born in Shelby, N. C., 1864; graduated at Wake Forest College, N. C., 1883; Greensboro, N. C., Law School, 1886; admitted to bar, 1886; member of North Carolina legislature, 1883-86; resigned to enter Baptist ministry, 1886; pastor at Raleigh, N. C., 1887; Boston, 1888-89; New York, 1889-99.

Doane (dōn), Rt. Rev. William Croswell, Protestant Episcopal clergyman, bishop of Albany, was born at Boston, Mass., 1832; graduate at Burlington College, N. J., 1850; D.D., LL.D., D.C.L.; established the sisterhood of the Holy Child Jesus. Author: Mosaics of the Harmony of the Collects, Epistles, and Gospels; two volumes of Addresses to the graduates of St. Agnes' school. Died, 1913.

Dobson, Henry Austin, English poet and man of letters, was born in 1840; educated at Coventry and Strassburg, and early turned his attention to literature. He contributed largely to the Biographies of Great Artists. Author: Thomas Bewick and His Pupils; Four Frenchwomen; Eighteenth Century Vignettes; A Paladin of Philanthrophy; Sidewalk Studies; etc. Died, 1921.

Dodge, Grenville Mellon, soldier, railway official, was born at Danvers, Mass., 1831; graduated C.E., Norwich University, Vermont, 1851; LL.D., 1892. Was engineer on Illinois Central and Rock Island roads; brigadier-general of volunteers, 1862, and major-general of volunteers, 1864, resigning in 1866; chief engineer of Texas and Pacific railway, 1871-81. Member of congress, second Iowa district, 1867-69. Succeeded General Sherman as president of society of army of Tennessee; commander-in-chief of military order of loyal legion, 1907-08. Died, 1916.

Dodge, Mary Abigail, American writer, was born in Massachusetts, 1830; wrote several books of merit, and contributed largely to the periodical press under the nom de plume of "Gail Hamilton." Died, 1896.

Dohme, Alfred Robert Louis, manufacturing chemist, was born in Baltimore, Md., 1867; graduated from Johns Hopkins University, 1886 Ph.D., 1889. Elected lecturer of pharmacy at Johns Hopkins University, medical department, 1901. In business as manufacturing chemist since 1891; member of numerous chemical and other scientific societies.

Dolci (dōl'chē), or Dolce, Carlo, or Carlino, Florentine painter, was born in 1616, died in 1686. He devoted himself chiefly to sacred subjects, and excelled in small pictures.

Dole, Nathan Haskell, American author, was born at Chelsea, Mass., 1852; graduated from Harvard, 1874; became literary and musical editor of Philadelphia Press; literary adviser of T. Y. Crowell & Co. Author: Young Folk's History of Russia; Famous Composers (2 volumes); Not Angels Quite; Six Italian Essays; etc. Died, 1935.

Dole, Sanford Ballard, statesman and jurist, was born in Hawaiian islands, 1844; educated at Oahu College, Hawaii, and Williams College, Mass.; studied law in Boston; became president of Hawaii by provision of constitution of 1894 that he should hold that office until 1901; was strong advocate of annexation of Hawaii to United States, and in 1898 visited the United States in that behalf. He was appointed governor of the territory in 1900, after its annexation to the United States; resigned the governorship in 1903, and has since been United States district judge of the territory. Died, 1926.

Dollinger (dūl'ing-ĕr), Johann Joseph Ignaz, eminent German theologian, was born at Bamberg in 1799. In 1826 he was appointed professor of ecclesiastical history and canon law at the University of Munich. He was very prominent in the struggle which took place in the Roman Catholic church over the dogma of the infallibility of the pope. Died at Munich, 1890.

Dolliver, Jonathan Prentiss, lawyer, orator, United States senator, was born near Kingwood, Preston county, W. Va., 1858; graduated from West Virginia University, 1875; LL.D. Admitted to bar, 1878; established practice at Ft. Dodge, Iowa. Member of congress from the tenth Iowa district, 1889-1901; appointed United States senator to succeed late Hon. J. H. Gear; elected in 1902, and reëlected in 1907. Died, 1910.

Dollond (dol'und), John, English optician, was born in London in 1706. He was originally a silk weaver of Spitalfields, London, but studied science, and with his son established a manufactory of optical instruments. Died, 1761.

Domenichino (dō-mā'nē-kē'nō), or Domenico Zampieri, Italian painter of the Bolognese school, was born in Bologna in 1581 and died at Naples in 1641.

Dominic (dom'i-nik), founder of the order of monks called Dominicans, was born in Castile, Spain, 1170. He studied at the University of Palencia, and in 1194 became canon of the cathedral at Osma. In 1204 he went to Languedoc, France, and preached with much vehemence against the Albigenses. As a result of this crusade against heresy he founded the order of the Dominicans, which was confirmed by papal order in 1216. He died in Bologna in 1221.

Donaldson, Henry Herbert, neurologist; graduated from Yale, 1879; Sheffield scientific school; fellow of Johns Hopkins, 1881-83; Ph.D., 1885; D.Sc.; professor and head of department of neurology, University of Chicago, 1892-1906; professor of neurology, Wistar Institution of Anatomy, Philadelphia.

Donatello (don'ä-tel'lō), properly Donaro di Betto di Bardi, one of the evivers of sculpture in Italy, was born in Florence in 1386. The "St. Peter" and "St. Mark" in the church of St. Michael in Florence were his first great works. Died in Florence, 1466.

Donizetti (dō'nē-dzet'tē), Gaetano, celebrated Italian composer, was born at Bergamo, Lombardy, 1797, and studied at Bologna. He devoted himself chiefly to dramatic music and produced over sixty operas; among the number Lucia di Lammermoor. He died in 1848.

"Dooley, Mr." See Dunne, Finley Peter.

Dora d'Istria (dō'rä dēs'trē-ä). See Ghika, Helene.

Dore (dō'rā'), Paul Gustave, French painter and book illustrator, was born in Strassburg in 1833, and educated at a Parisian lycée. He became known by his illustrations of Rabelais and Don Quixote, and for some years was a constant contributor to the Journal pour Rire. He afterward devoted himself to the production of large pictures on religious subjects. Died, 1883.

Doria (dō'rē-ä), Andrea, Genoese naval commander and admiral, who distinguished himself in the service of several states, but chiefly in that of the Genoese republic, was born in 1468. Died 1560.

Dorion (dō'rē'ôN'), Sir Antoine Aime, Canadian statesman and jurist, was born in the province of Quebec in 1818. He was educated at Nicolet College, early studied law and in 1842 was admitted to the bar; member of the Dominion parliament, 1862-67. From 1867 he served on the judiciary of the province of Quebec, first as associate and latterly as chief-justice. He was a member of the British privy council, and was knighted in 1877. Died at Montreal, 1891.

Dorr, Thomas Wilson, American politician, was born in Providence, R. I., 1805; graduated from Harvard, 1823. He died in 1854.

Dorsey, George, American anthropologist and journalist, was born in Ohio in 1868. He received his education at Harvard. In 1891-92 he conducted anthropological investigations in South America; was curator of the Field Museum of Natural History at Chicago from 1898-1915; was Associate Professor of Anthropology in Chicago University from 1908-15. Since 1925 he has been lecturer for the New School for Social Research, New York City. He is the author of Why We Behave Like Human Beings, a popular treatment of biology that has had a very wide circulation. Died, 1931.

Dostoevsky, Fyodor, Russian writer, born in a hospital at Moscow, 1822, the son of a poor doctor. In 1837 he began the study of engineering, but early turned to literature. After an absorption in the French and German romanticists, he immersed himself in the writings of Pushkin and Gogol. In 1846, he suddenly produced Poor Folk, and became recognized as one of those geniuses whose field lay between the old culture and the new. April 23, 1848, on the scaffold with other revolutionists, he was pardoned and banished to Siberia. Out of his prison sufferings, he wrote with keen psychological penetration and spiritual vision The Idiot, Crime and Punishment, The Brothers Karamazof, The Possessed, and a great number of short stories. He died in 1881, one of the lasting writers of all times.

Dougherty, Denis, Cardinal. Born in Girardville, Pa., 1865. Ordained priest in 1890. Bishop of Neura Segoria in 1903. Transferred to Buffalo, N. Y., in 1915. In 1918 made Archbishop of Phil., Pa. Created Cardinal in 1921.

Douglas, Stephen Arnold, American statesman, styled the "little giant," was born at Brandon, Vermont, 1813. In 1833 he went West and settled in Jacksonville, Ill., where he entered on the practice of law. He soon after was elected to the legislature, and in 1840 became secretary of state for Illinois. He was judge of the Illinois supreme court from 1841 to 1843. Douglas was elected to the senate in 1847, and it was as a member of the senate that he introduced, in 1854, the Kansas-Nebraska bill. In 1858 he was a candidate for the United States senate, and held a series of joint debates with Abraham Lincoln, his opponent. In 1860 the democratic party split into two divisions, one of which nominated Douglas for president, and the other John C. Breckenridge. He died in 1861.

Douglas, William Lewis, manufacturer, ex-governor of Massachusetts, was born in Plymouth, Mass., 1845; at age of seven he went to work for an uncle, who set him to pegging shoes; worked in cotton mill at Plymouth at fifteen, and later in factory at Chiltonville, Mass.; afterward went to Hopkinton and South Braintree, Mass., where he learned bootmaking; at Brockton, 1876, began with small shop, from which he built up a business with combined capacity of over 15,000 pairs of shoes daily, and owned seventy-five retail shoe stores in large cities selling the "Douglas" shoe. Member of Massachusetts house of representatives, 1883-84, and of Massachusetts senate, 1886-87; elected governor of Massachusetts, 1904. Died, 1924.

Douglass, Frederick, American orator, a mulatto slave, was born at Tuckahoe, near Easton, Maryland, in 1817. In 1838 he escaped from a Baltimore shipyard to the Northern states, and changed his name from Lloyd or Bailey to Douglass. In 1847 he started Frederick Douglass's Paper, a weekly abolition newspaper, at Rochester, New York, United States marshal for the District of Columbia 1876-81; recorder of deeds there, 1881-86; and United States minister to Hayti, 1889-91. He died at his home near Washington, 1895.

Dow, or Dou, Gerard, Dutch painter, was born at Leyden in 1613. He studied under Rembrandt, 1628-31, and at first mainly occupied himself with portraiture, but soon turned to genre. He died in 1675.

Dow, Neal, temperance reformer, was born in Portland, Me., 1804, of Quaker parentage. In 1851, while a member of the state legislature, he secured the passage of what is called the "Maine law," which, under severe penalties, prohibited the sale of intoxicating liquors. He was twice chosen mayor of Portland, and during the Civil War served as brigadier-general of volunteers, holding at different times three separate commands. Died, 1897.

Dowden (dou'den), Edward, British critic and editor, professor of English literature, University of Dublin, since 1867, was born in Cork, 1843; graduate of Dublin University; M.A., LL.D., D.C.L., Litt.D. Clark lecturer in English literature, Trinity College, Cambridge, 1893-96. He has written: Shakespeare: His Mind and Art; Studies in Literature; Life of Shelley; A History of French Literature; Puritan and Anglican; Wordsworth's Poetical Works, etc. Died, 1913.

Doyle, Sir A. Conan, Scottish novelist and physician, was born in Edinburgh, 1859, educated at Stonyhurst and in Germany. From 1882 until 1890 he practiced medicine at Southsea, writing all the while various short stories, some of which have been since published. After A Study in Scarlet, Micah Clarke, and The Sign of Four came The White Company, which led to the final abandonment of medicine for literature. The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes and The Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes formed a brilliant series of detective stories. He volunteered for service in the Boer war and was in the medical service. He wrote The Great Boer War. During his last ten years he lectured and wrote on spirit communication. Died, 1930.

Draco (drā'kō), archon of Athens and celebrated lawgiver, lived in the last half of the seventh century. He first gave stability to the state by committing the laws to writing and establishing the ephetae, or court of appeal, 621 B. C. Draco is said to have justified the severity of his code by maintaining that the smallest crime deserved death, and he knew no severer punishment for greater crimes.

Drake, Sir Francis, eminent English navigator, was born of obscure parentage in 1540, at Tavistock, England, and first served at sea under Sir John Hawkins, his relative. With five small vessels he sailed in 1577 to attack the Spaniards in the South seas. In this expedition he ravaged the Spanish settlements, coasted the North American shore as far as latitude forty-eight degrees north, and took possession of the country under the name of New Albion. Elizabeth dined on board his ship at Deptford, and knighted him in 1580. In 1585 he successfully attacked the Spaniards in the West Indies; in 1587 he destroyed many ships at Cadiz; and in 1588 as vice admiral, he participated in the destruction of the armada. He died at Nombre de Dios in 1596.

Drake, Joseph Rodman, American poet, was born in New York in 1795; graduated from Columbia College, 1815, and became an intimate friend of Fitz-Greene Halleck. He died in New York in 1820.

Drake, Samuel Gardner, American antiquarian and writer, was born in Pittsfield, N. H., 1798. He opened an antiquarian book-store in Boston in 1828, and wrote and published various works, including Indian Biography, History and Antiquity of Boston. Died, 1875.

Draper, Andrew Sloan, educator, commissioner of education, state of New York, 1904-13; was born in Westford, N. Y., 1848. Member of board of education, Albany, N. Y., 1878-80, 1890-92; member of state normal college board, 1882-86; judge of United States court of Alabama claims, 1885-86; superintendent of instruction, Cleveland, Ohio, 1892-94; president of University of Illinois, 1894-1904. Died, 1913.

Draper, Eben Sumner, manufacturer, governor of Massachusetts, was born in Hopedale, Mass. 1858. He became an active officer in the operations of the Draper company. Chairman of republican state committee, 1892. Director of Boston and Albany railroad, National Shawmut bank. Member of corporation of Massachusetts Institute of technology, Home Market club, etc. In 1898, through Massachusetts volunteer aid association, raised $200,000 for hospital ship Bay State for Spanish-American war. In 1907 he became lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts, and in 1909, governor. Died, 1912.

Dreiser, Theodore, American novelist and writer, born at Terre Haute, Ind., 1871. With little schooling, Mr. Dreiser began newspaper work on the Chicago Globe in 1892, subsequently serving as correspondent, dramatic critic and special editor for many publications. He was early impressed by the realistic attitude in letters, and toward this ideal he labored through stupendous obstacles of public prejudice and popular misunderstanding to a leading place among modern novelists. Although hampered by a loose and cumbersome style, the best of his books are already recognized as American classics, such as Sister Carrie, 1900; Jennie Gerhardt, 1911, and An American Tragedy. He also wrote The Financier, The Genius, A Hoosier Holiday, Twelve Men and the Color of a Great City (New York).

Drew, John, actor, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1853. First appearance, 1873, Arch Street theater, Philadelphia, as Plumper in Cool as a Cucumber; starred, 1892, playing Dr. Paul Blondet in The Masked Ball, and Frederick Ossian in The Butterflies with Maude Adams; starred in The Bauble Shop, Rosemary, The Squire of Dames, The Tyranny of Tears, etc. Died, 1927.

Dreyfus (drā'fus'), Alfred, French army officer, was born about 1859 at Mulhausen in Alsace, the son of a rich Jewish manufacturer; was taken in 1874 to Paris. He was an artillery captain, attached to the general army staff, when in 1893-94, he was accused of delivering to a foreign government documents connected with the national defense, he was court-martialed, degraded, and transported to Devil's island, French Guiana. The efforts of his wife and friends to prove him an innocent victim of malice, injustice, and forgery plunged France into a chaos of militarism and anti-Semitism. He was reinstated 1906. Died, 1935.

Dreyse (drī'zē), Johann Nikolaus von, German inventor, was born at Sommerda near Erfurt, Prussia, 1787. He founded ironworks in Sömmerda, and from 1824 manufactured percussion caps. In 1827 he invented a muzzle-loading and in 1836 a breech-loading needle gun—adopted in the Prussian army in 1841. He was ennobled in 1864, and died in 1867.

Drinkwater, John, English poet and playwright, was born in 1882. After graduation from Oxford University, he devoted the early part of his life to business. He gave this up, to found the Pilgrim Players in Birmingham, which developed into the Birmingham Repertory Theatre Company, of which he is now manager. He is best known through his play, Abraham Lincoln.

Driver, Samuel Rolles, biblical scholar, regius professor of Hebrew, and canon of Christ Church, Oxford, since 1883, was born in Southampton, England, 1846. He was educated at Winchester College, and New College, Oxford; Litt.D., D.D.; member of Old Testament Revision company, 1876-84; examining chaplain to bishop of Southwell, 1884-1904. Author: A Treatise on the Use of the Tenses in Hebrew; Isaiah; His Life and Times. Died, 1914.

Droysen (droi'zen), Johann Gustav, German historian, was born at Treptow, Prussia, 1808, and became lecturer on history in the University of Berlin in 1833. He published, History of Alexander the Great, History of Hellenism. Died, 1884.

Drummond, Hon. Sir George Alexander, Canadian legislator and financier, was born in 1829. He became a member of the upper house of the Dominion parliament in 1888. Died 1910.

Drummond, Sir George Gordon, British soldier, was born in 1772, died in 1854. He entered the British army as ensign, 1789; planned and effected the capture of Fort Niagara, and planned the successful attack on Black Rock and Buffalo; led a combined military and naval force against Oswego and destroyed the American works and stores, 1814; was in command of the British forces at the battle of Lundy's Lane, July 25. In 1815 he was appointed governor-general of Canada, resigned and returned to England.

Drummond, Henry, Scottish clergyman and author was born in Stirling, Scotland, 1851; educated at Edinburgh and Tübingen. He wrote The Greatest Thing in the World, intended to expound and commend the first principles of the Christian faith. His last work except one, published posthumously, entitled The Ideal Life, was The Ascent of Man, in which he places an altruistic element in the process of evolution. Died, 1897.

Drummond, James, British biblical scholar, principal of Manchester College, Oxford, 1885-1906, was born in Dublin, 1835. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and Manchester New College, London; LL.D., Litt.D., M.A., D.D. professor of theology in Manchester New College, London, 1869; succeeded Dr. Martineau as principal, 1885; removed with the college to Oxford, 1889; retired, 1906. Author: Spiritual Religion; Sermons on Christian Faith and Life; The Jewish Messiah; Introduction to the Study of Theology; Via; Veritas, Vita, etc. Died, 1918.

Drusus (drōō'sus), Nero Claudius, commonly called Drusus Senior, stepson of the emperor Augustus, and younger brother of the emperor Tiberius, was born in 38 B. C. In 13 B. C. he was sent into Gaul, then in revolt, and, after crushing the rebels there, pushed across the Rhine in pursuit of their German allies. From this time he made the business of his life to establish the Roman supremacy in Germany, partly by conquest and partly by the execution of great military works. A fall from his horse cut short his brilliant career in 9 B. C.

Dryden, John, English poet, was born in Northamptonshire, 1631. After graduating at Cambridge he entered upon a literary career and succeeded Sir William Davenant as poet laureate in 1670. His essay on Dramatic Poesy, according to Dr. Johnson, created the school of English criticism. Dryden, by his dramas and political satires—especially his Absalom and Achitophel—occupies a high place among English poets. He made numerous translations from the classics—especially Vergil, Juvenal, and Ovid—and his dramatic work almost equals his verse. Died, 1700.

Du Barry (dü-bà'rē'), Marie Jeanne Gomard de Vaubernier, Comtesse, favorite of Louis XV., was born in 1746, at Vaucouleurs, the daughter of a dressmaker. Her influence reigned supreme until the death of Louis in 1774, when she was dismissed from court. She was tried before the revolutionary tribunal for having wasted the treasures of the state and having worn mourning for the late king, and was guillotined, 1793.

Du Bois-Reymond (dü-bwà'rā'mōn'), Emil, German physiologist, was born in Berlin in 1818. His name is chiefly identified with animal electricity, the subject of his chief work, which has given him a commanding place among modern scientists. Two volumes of his collected memoirs and addresses appeared in 1885-87. Died, 1896.

Du Bose, William Porcher, Protestant Episcopal clergyman, was born in South Carolina, 1836. He was educated at the military academy of South Carolina and the University of Virginia; S.T.D., D.C.L., D.D. While a student for the ministry he entered the military service of the confederacy, 1861; became chaplain and professor, University of the South, 1871; after continuous service in this university for over thirty-six years he resigned active duties, in the summer of 1908.

Du Chaillu (dü-shà'yü'), Paul Belloni, American traveler, was born in Louisiana, 1835. In 1855 he sailed to West Africa, where he spent four years. His Explorations in Equatorial Africa gave important contributions to geographical, ethnological, and zoölogical science, but was received at first with much distrust. Died, 1903.

Dudevant (düd'vän'), Aurore. See Sand, George.

Dufferin (duf'ĕr-in), Frederick Temple Hamilton Blackwood, Marquis of, British statesman, was born in Florence, Italy, 1826. He graduated from Christ Church, Oxford, and in 1841 succeeded to his father's title. In 1860 he became British commissioner in Syria, and served as under-secretary of state for India from 1864 until 1866, and later, for a short time, was under-secretary of war. From 1868 until 1872 he was chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster; governor-general of Canada, 1872-79; ambassador to Russia, 1879-81; governor-general of India, 1884-88; ambassador to Italy, 1888-91; and ambassador to France, 1891-96. He was made an earl in 1871. Died, 1902.

Du Guesclin (dü ge'klan'), Bertrand. See Guesclin.

Dumas (dü'mä'), Alexandre, the Elder, French novelist and dramatist, was born in Villers-Cotterets, 1802, son of General Dumas, a Creole. His romances are numerous, but he reached the climax of his fame in Monte Cristo, in 1844, and the Three Musketeers the year after. Latterly he lived at Dieppe, broken in health and impaired in intellect, ministered to by his son and daughter. Died, 1870.

Dumas, Alexandre, the Younger, was born in 1824. He was a son of the preceding, and, like him, a novelist and dramatist. He accompanied his father on a voyage to the Mediterranean in 1846, and in 1848 produced the work which made his reputation La Dame aux Camélias. Subsequently his work was chiefly dramatic, and includes such plays as Le Demi-Monde, La Princesse Georges, Monsieur Alphonse, and Denise. In 1874 he was admitted to the French Academy. Died, 1895.

Dumas, Jean Baptiste, distinguished French chemist, was born at Alais, in the department of Gard, 1800. In 1821 he was appointed tutor in the polytechnic school at Paris and then professor of chemistry in the Ecole de Medicine. His researches in organic chemistry, on atomic weights, sulphuric ether, and the law of "substitutions" attracted the attention of all Europe. In 1848 he was a member of the legislative assembly; and in 1849-51 held the portfolio of agriculture and commerce. Died, 1884.

Du Maurier (dü-mō'ryā'), George Louis Palmella Busson, artist and draughtsman, was born in Paris in 1834; educated in London, Belgium and the Netherlands. For many years a valuable art contributor to Punch. In 1891 he published a novel, Peter Ibbetson, followed by Trilby, in 1894. Died, 1896.

Dumouriez (dü'mōō'ryā'), Charles Francois, French general, was born at Cambria, 1739; entered the army in 1757, and served in Germany during the Seven Years' War. In 1792 he overthrew the Austrians under the duke of Sachsen-Teschen and Clairfait at Jemappes; but at Neerwinden he sustained a severe defeat from the Austrians under Coburg, with whom he entered into a plot to restore the monarchy. Reports of his meditated treason, however, reached the government at Paris, and an order of arrest was issued against him. This he succeeded in evading and escaped across the border. He died an exile at Turville Park, near Henley-upon-Thames, 1823.

Duncker (dōōng'kĕr), Maximilian Wolfgang, German historical writer, was born at Berlin, 1811. He became professor of history at Halle in 1842; sat in the national assembly, 1848, and as a liberal in the Prussian chamber, 1849-52; was called to a Tübingen chair in 1857, and thence recalled in 1859 to Berlin to fill a post in the ministry of state. Died, 1886.

Dundonald (dun-don'ald), Thomas Cochrane, tenth Earl of, English seaman, was born in 1775. Entering the navy when a boy, he early distinguished himself by the destruction of the French fleet in Basque roads by fireships, 1809. In 1823, having offered his services to Brazil in her war against Portugal, he swept the Portuguese fleet from Brazilian waters. In 1827 he commanded the Greek navy in the war of independence. He died in 1860.

Dunglison (dung'gli-sun), Robley, medical professor and author, was born in England in 1798. Was professor of materia medica and therapeutics in the University of Maryland, 1833-36, and of the institutes of medicine in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, 1836-68. He translated and edited a number of foreign medical works, published about twenty original volumes. Died, 1869.

Dunne (dun), Finley Peter, journalist, author, was born in Chicago, 1867; educated in Chicago public schools; entered newspaper life as reporter on editorial staff of Chicago Evening Post and Times-Herald, 1892-97; editor of Chicago Journal, 1897-1900. Author: Mr. Dooley in Peace and in War; Mr. Dooley in the Hearts of His Countrymen; Mr. Dooley's Philosophy; Mr. Dooley's Opinions; Observations by Mr. Dooley. Died, 1936.

Dunning, William Archibald, historian, educator, professor of history, Columbia University, 1891-1922, was born in Plainfield, N. J.; graduated from Columbia, Ph.D., LL.D.; was managing editor of Political Science Quarterly, 1894-1903. Died in 1922.

Dunois (dü'nwä', Jean, Count of Dunois and Longueville, was born in Paris, 1402, the natural son of Louis, duke of Orleans, brother of Charles VI. His first great achievement was the defeat of the English at Montargis, 1427. In 1429 Dunois and the maid of Orleans won the battle of Patay. Shortly after Joan's tragical death, Dunois took Chartres, the key of Paris, forced Bedford to raise the siege of Lagny, chased the enemy from Paris, and soon deprived them of all their conquests except Norandy and Guienne. He died in 1468. No French hero is more popular than Dunois.

Duns Scotus (dunz skō'tus), John, famous Franciscan monk and divine, was born about 1265. He appears to have been educated at Oxford, where in 1301 he became professor of theology. Duns Scotus, as one of the most eminent of the Franciscans, was a chief opponent of the teachings of the Dominicans, the two parties representing at that time two different schools of theology.

Dunstan (dun'stan), Saint, English prelate, was born in 925, died in 988. Under several kings he wielded great influence. He was made archbishop of Canterbury in 959 by Edgar, whom he absolutely ruled. On Edgar's death he raised Edward to the throne, but on the accession of Ethelred his power was broken.

Du Pont, Henry Algernon, United States senator, soldier, was born near Wilmington, Del., 1838; graduated at West Point, 1861, at head of class, and served throughout the Civil War, in which he gained the rank of colonel. Elected United States senator, 1906, for one term. Died, 1926.

Dupont, Samuel Francis, American rear-admiral, was born at Bergen Point, N. J., 1803. In the summer of 1861 he was given command of the Atlantic blockading squadron. He also commanded the expedition which captured Port Royal harbor in the same year. He resigned his command in 1863, and died at Philadelphia in 1865.

Dupre (dü'prā), Jules, celebrated French painter, was born in 1812. He excels as a landscape painter, and his work is noted for its refined poetic taste as well as for its bold and vigorous drawing. He died in 1889.

Duquesne (dü'kān'), Abraham, Marquis, French naval officer, was born at Dieppe, France, 1610, and first distinguished himself in 1637-43 in the war with Spain. He defeated De Ruyter and Van Tromp several times in 1672-73, and the united fleets of Spain and Holland off Sicily in 1676. Died, 1688.

Durant, Will, American philosopher, was born at North Adams, Mass., 1885. He obtained his earlier education from the Jesuits at St. Peter's College, later taking graduate work at Columbia University, in philosophy, psychology, and biology. He received the degree of Ph.D. in 1917. Four years later he became director of the Labor Temple School, New York, an institution for adult education. His fame as a writer came through The Story of Philosophy, as popular and surprisingly readable as a novel.

Durer (dü'rĕr), Albrecht, German artist, was born at Nuremberg in 1471. He was apprenticed to a painter in this native town, and some years later began designing on wood and engraving on copper. In 1505 he proceeded to Venice, and after his return painted his Adam and Eve, and Assumption of the Virgin, one of his finest works. He died at Nüremberg in 1528. Besides being the founder of the German school of art, Dürer ranks even higher as an engraver on metal and designer of woodcuts.

Duse (dōō'zā), Elenora Italian actress, was born in Vigevano, 1859. She appeared about 1880 on the Italian, chiefly the Roman stage, as leading lady in the plays of Dumas and Sardou, but afterward played parts of greater depth. Her latest successes are D'Annunzio's Gioconda and Francesca da Rimini. Died, 1924.

Dvorak (dvōr'zhăk), Antonin, composer, was born at Muhlhausen, Bohemia, 1841. Brahms introduced his compositions to Vienna; but the work which won for him the ear of all Europe was his Stabat Mater, which was first performed in London in 1883. In 1892-95 he was director of the conservatory at New York, where he wrote an American symphony. He subsequently lived at Prague, where he died in 1904.

Dwight, Theodore William, jurist, professor and editor, was born in 1822 at Catskill, N. Y.; graduated at Hamilton College, 1840, and studied at Yale Law School. In 1858 he was chosen professor of municipal law in Columbia College. In 1874 he was appointed by Governor Dix, of New York, a judge of the commission of appeals. Died, 1892.

Dwight, Timothy, educator, theologian, was born at Northampton, Mass., 1752; graduated from Yale College. He was minister of Greenfield Hill, Conn., 1783, where he also successfully conducted an academy. In 1795 he was elected president of Yale College, which position he held until his death. Died, 1817.

Dwight, Timothy, educator, theologian, was born at Norwich, Conn., 1828; grandson of the above; graduated from Yale, 1849; D.D., LL.D.; studied theology at Yale, 1859-53; tutor at Yale, 1851-55; president of Yale University, 1886-99. Member of American committee for revision of English version of the Bible. Author: Thoughts of and for the Inner Life. Died, 1916.

Eadie (ē-dĭ), John, British clergyman and writer, was born at Alva, Scotland, 1810; studied at Glasgow, and in 1835 became minister of a Glasgow United Presbyterian congregation; from 1843 he also lectured on exegesis in the college of his church. Died at Glasgow, 1876.

Eads (ēdz), James Buchanan, American engineer, was born at Lawrenceburg, Ind., 1830. He constructed the steel bridge over the Mississippi river at St. Louis, completed in 1874; partly carried out a plan of deepening the Mississippi by means of jetties. Died, 1887.

Eames (āmz), Emma, American prima donna soprano, was born at Shanghai, China, of American parentage, 1867. Made her début at the Paris grand opera, 1889; Covent Garden, London, in rôle of Marguerite in Faust, 1891. She resides chiefly at Torre de Campiglioni Vallombrosa, Italy.

Earle, George H., Jr., banker, lawyer, manufacturer, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1856; graduated from Harvard, 1879, A.M., 1904; was admitted to the bar, 1879. He is president of the Finance Company of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; is active in a number of other financial institutions.

Earle, John, English scholar, was born at Elston, South Devon, 1824; was educated at Magdalen hall, Oxford, and became professor of Anglo-Saxon at Oxford, 1849-54, and again permanently from 1876. Among his books are: The Philology of the English Tongue; Anglo-Saxon Literature, etc. Died at Oxford, 1903.

Early, Jubal Anderson, soldier and lawyer, was born in Virginia, 1816; was graduated at the United States Military Academy, 1837. At the opening of the civil war he was appointed a colonel in the confederate army; was promoted brigadier-general, 1863; commanded a division at Fredericksburg and Gettysburg; was defeated by Sheridan near Winchester and at Fisher's Hill, Va., 1864, and was completely routed by General Custer at Waynesborough, 1865, after which he was relieved of his command. He subsequently practiced law in Richmond. Died, 1894.

East, Alfred, English landscape painter and etcher, was born at Kettering, 1849. He received his art education at the government school art, Glasgow, afterward at Ecole des Beaux Arts; exhibited at the Royal academy after 1882; became an associate in 1884, and later president of the Royal Society of artists. Died, 1913.

Eastlake, Sir Charles Lock, English painter, was born at Plymouth, 1793. From 1809 he studied under Haydon, in the Royal academy schools, and in Paris. When the Bellerophon put into Plymouth, Eastlake took a number of rapid sketches from a shore-boat, and produced two full-length portraits of Napoleon. He died at Pisa, 1865.

Eastman, George, inventor, was born in Waterville, N. Y., 1854; was educated in Rochester and New York, and first became an amateur photographer; began to manufacture dry plates on small scale, 1880; inventor of the kodak. Formed and managed Eastman Kodak Co. Gave laboratories and large endowment to Rochester College. Died, 1932.

Eaton, Wyatt, American artist, was born at Phillipsburg, Canada, 1849. He studied in New York, and in Paris with Gérome. After spending some years in study, sketching and traveling in France and England, he opened a studio in New York; was one of the founders and the first secretary of the society of American artists. Died at Newport, R. I., 1896.

Ebers (ā'bĕrs), Georg Moritz, German novelist and Egyptologist, was born at Berlin, 1837; studied jurisprudence at Göttingen, and oriental languages and archæology at Berlin. In 1870 he was made professor of Egyptology at Leipzig. He died at Tutzing, Bavaria, 1898.

Ebert, Friedrich, first president of the German Federated Republic, was born at Heidelberg, 1871. After an elementary school education, he prepared for the saddler's trade and settled at Bremen. He became interested in socialism, obtained a position on the Bremer Volkszeitung, and was ultimately elected to the citizen's committee as the Social Democratic representative. During the war he tried to bring about understandings between Germany and other countries, but his successful work was after the revolution, to help form the first provisional government and to act as its joint president, restoring peace and order. He was elected president of the Reich by the National Assembly, Nov. 12, 1919.

Eck (ek), Johann Maier von, German monk and theologian, was born at Eck, in Swabia, 1486. He was the son of a peasant, but raised himself by his abilities to the professorship of theology in the University of Ingoldstadt. He took a prominent part in opposition to Luther in the diet at Augsburg, 1530, and in the conferences of Worms and Ratisbon, 1540 and 1541. Died 1543.

Eckermann (ek'ĕr-măn), Johann Peter, German writer and literary executor of Goethe, was born in Winsen, Germany, 1792. The publication of his Beiträge zur Poesie in 1823 led to his removal to Weimar, where he assisted Goethe in preparing the final edition of his works. Died, 1854.

Eddy, Mary Baker, religious leader, founder of Christian Science, was born at Bow, N. H., 1821. She received an education from public schools and tutors and was connected with the Congregational Church until 1866, when she formulated the Principle of Christian Science. In 1867 she began to teach her religion, and in 1879 founded the Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. She established The Christian Science Journal in 1883; the Christian Science Quarterly in 1890; the Christian Science Sentinel in 1898; The Christian Science Monitor in 1908. She is the author of the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, besides the Manual of The Mother Church, a biographical sketch of herself entitled "Retrospection and Introspection" and other works on Christian Science. Died 1910, Boston.

Edeson, Robert, actor, was born at Baltimore, Md., 1868. He was educated in the public schools at Brooklyn, N. Y., and made his first appearance on the stage in Fascination, at the Park theater, New York, 1887. Later he appeared in A Night Off; The Dark Secret; Incog., and Under the Red Robe. He has also starred in The Climbers; Soldiers of Fortune; Strongheart, and Classmates. Died, 1931.

Edgeworth, Maria, English novelist, was born in Oxfordshire, 1767. She began to write fiction early in the nineteenth century, though she had previously taken an interest in educational topics. Her chief books treat mainly of the virtues and vices of humanity, with a high moral aim. Died in Ireland, 1849.

Edison, Thomas Alva, celebrated American inventor and electrican, was born at Milan, Ohio, 1847; invented many telegraphic appliances, including automatic repeater, quadruplex telegraph, etc. Established workshop at Newark, N. J., removing to Menlo Park, N. J., 1876, and later to West Orange, N. J. Was made chevalier, officer, and afterward commander of legion of honor, by French government; was given the honorary degree of Ph.D. by Union University, 1878, and has been variously honored by numerous scientific, educational, and other bodies. Died, 1931.

Edmund, or Eadmund, king of the English, known as Ironside, was born about 981. He was the son of Ethelred "the unready," and was chosen king by the Londoners on his father's death, 1016. By a compromise with Canute, the latter retained Mercia and Northumbria, Edmund all the South and the headship, the survivor to succeed to the whole. A few weeks afterward Edmund died, 1016.

Edmunds, George Franklin, American lawyer and statesman, was born at Richmond, Vt., 1828; removed to Burlington, 1851; was a member of the state legislature 1854-60; took his seat in the United States senate as a republican from Vermont, 1866. He was returned 1869, 1875, 1881, and 1887, and succeeded Vice-president Arthur as president pro tem. of the senate after the death of President Garfield, 1881. Declined the appointment of associate justice of the United States supreme court, 1882; elected president pro tem. of the senate, 1883, and was author of the act prescribing the manner in which electoral votes for president shall be counted, 1886. He resigned the senatorship in 1891, and practiced law in Philadelphia. Died, 1919.

Edward, or Eadward, "the confessor," king of the English, was born about 1004, son of Ethelred "the unready" was brought up at the Norman court, and after his accession, on the death of Hardicanute, in 1042, showed a preference for Norman customs and ideas. Edward codified the customary law of the Anglo-Saxons, which thus became known as the "laws of King Edward." Died, 1066.

Edward I., king of England, was born in 1239, succeeded his father, Henry III., in 1272. Imbued with high notions of feudal sovereignty, he sought to establish his supremacy throughout the island of Britain. A man of strictly legal, but somewhat narrow mind, he secured order and good government by the statutes of Winchester and Westminster and other enactments, and carried on Simon de Montfort's work of molding the English parliament, 1295, though, at the same time, somewhat inclined to strain the royal prerogative. His personal character was extremely high. Died, 1307.

Edward II., king of England from 1307 to 1327, son of Edward I., was born at Carnarvon, 1284. In 1301 he was created prince of Wales, being the first heir apparent to the English throne who bore that title. His reign was a succession of disputes with the nobles and with Charles IV. of France. Finally his queen and the nobles revolted against him successfully in 1327 and Edward was murdered in Berkeley castle, having been deposed by parliament several months previous. He was succeeded by his son, who had already been named as Edward III. by parliament.

Edward III., king of England, eldest son of Edward II. and Isabella of France, was born in 1312. He was proclaimed king, 1327, during his father's captivity, and soon after marched with more than 40,000 men against the invading Scots, but concluded an inglorious campaign by a treaty in which the entire independence of Scotland was recognized. In 1346 Edward gained over Philip the decisive battle of Crécy, which was followed by the siege and surrender of Calais and a truce which lasted until 1355. The war was renewed in France under his son Edward the Black Prince, who, in 1356, gained the memorable victory of Poitiers, in which he took King John of France prisoner. Edward was succeeded by his grandson Richard II. Died, 1377.

Edward IV., king of England, was born in Rouen in 1441 or 1442. He was the son of Richard, duke of York, led a force into London during the war of the Roses, 1461, and was proclaimed king by parliament while Henry VI. was still alive. In 1474 Edward formed an alliance with the duke of Burgundy, and made preparations for a war in support of his claim to the throne of France. He passed over to Calais, but the expedition proved fruitless through the dereliction of his ally Charles the Bold of Burgundy, with whom the kingdom was to have been divided. During the latter part of his life Edward was sunk in indolence and pleasure. He left five daughters, one of whom, Elizabeth, was afterward married to Henry VII., and two sons, the ill-fated princes, Edward and Richard. Died, 1483.

Edward VI., king of England, son of Henry VIII. by his third wife, Jane Seymour, was born in 1537. He succeeded to the throne at his father's death in 1547, his uncle, the earl of Hertford, being chosen protector and created duke of Somerset. Henry's famous six articles were repealed, and a new book of common prayer was issued. His reign was marked by the restoration of many of the grammar schools suppressed by Henry VIII.

Edward VII., king of the united kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of all the British dominions beyond the seas, emperor of India, eldest son of Queen Victoria, was born at Buckingham Palace, 1841. He studied at Edinburgh, and subsequently at Oxford and Cambridge. As prince of Wales he bore his full name, Albert Edward. In 1860 he visited the United States and Canada; and in 1863 married the princess Alexandra. He made a visit to India in 1875-76. He constantly manifested a lively interest in exhibitions, charitable institutions, the housing of the poor, and agriculture. He assisted in promoting the Royal College of Music; and the Imperial Institute was due to his suggestion. On January 22, 1901, he succeeded his mother as Edward VII. By visits to continental capitals the king did much to allay international animosities and promote peace and goodwill, especially between Britain and France. Died, 1910, and was succeeded by his son George V.

Edward VIII. (1894—), king of England, eldest son of George V and Queen Mary, born June 24, 1894, at White Lodge, Sheen, 1907, entered Osborne College and trained as Naval Cadet. Later assigned to training ship Britannia at Dartmouth. Attended Magdalen College, Oxford, 1912 to 1914. 1914, appointed aide-de-camp to Sir John French. World War service on French, Egyptian and Italian fronts. After Armistice, returned to England and resumed his public duties. He has visited all parts of British Empire, also the United States, South America and Japan. Proclaimed king, January 23, 1936.

Edwards, Jonathan, celebrated American divine and metaphysician, was born at Windsor, Conn., 1703. He was graduated from Yale in 1720, and toward the close of 1723 was appointed tutor in Yale College. In 1726 he accepted an invitation to become colleague to his maternal grandfather, Mr. Stoddard, in a church at Northampton, Mass., and was ordained in 1727. Here he labored with intense zeal for more than twenty-three years, at the end of which period he was dismissed by his congregation. Edwards was a powerful and impressive preacher, somber, and even gloomy in his religious opinions and sentiments, but earnest, unaffected and nobly conscientious. After his dismissal in 1750 he became a missionary among the Indians of Massachusetts. While residing at Stockbridge, in that state, he composed his famous treatise on the Freedom of the Will and Original Sin. In 1757 he was chosen president of Princeton College, New Jersey, but died in 1758.

Egan (ē'gan), Maurice Francis, educator, author, diplomat, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1852; graduated at La Salle College; entered Georgetown College, 1875; LL.D., Georgetown, 1879; J.U.D., Ottawa University, 1891; was on the editorial staff of McGee's Illustrated Weekly, Catholic Review and Freeman's Journal; professor of English literature, University of Notre Dame, Ind., 1888-95; and at Catholic University of America, 1895-1907. In 1907 appointed, United States minister to Denmark. Died, 1924.

Eggleston (eg'lz-tun), Edward, American author, was born at Vevay, Ind., 1837. He became a Methodist preacher in 1856, and subsequently edited for various periods the New York Independent, Hearth and Home, etc. In 1879 he retired from the ministry, and devoted himself entirely to literature. Among his best known books are The Hoosier Schoolmaster; The Graysons; and History of United States. Died, 1902.

Egmont (eg'mŏn'; Eng. eg'mont), Lamoral, Count of, Dutch general, descended from the duke of Guilders, was born in 1522. As commander of the Spanish cavalry of Charles V., he defeated the French, 1557-58, but incurring the enmity of Philip II., through his lenient treatment of the Flemish protestants, he was put to death, 1568.

Ehrlich, Paul, German bacteriologist, was born in Silesia, 1854. He studied medicine at Strassburg, Frieburg, and Leipzig and eventually became director of the royal institute for experimental therapeutics at Frankfort. He improved laboratory methods of testing toxins, investigated immunities and the cancer problem, and discovered salarsan, an arsenical compound for the cure of syphilis. He received many honors from his government and from universities and scientific societies in other countries. He died in 1915.

Eichelberger (ĭk'el-bĕr-ĸ'ĕr), William Snyder, astronomer, was born in Baltimore, Md., 1865; graduated from Johns Hopkins, 1886; Ph.D., 1891. Professor of mathematics, United States navy, since 1900; head of division of meridian instruments, United States naval observatory, 1902-1907; director Nautical Almanac since 1910. Member of numerous scientific societies, and a frequent contributor to government publications.

Eichhorn (ĭk'hôrn), Johann Gottfried, German scholar, was born at Dörinzimmern, Germany, 1752, and studied at Göttingen. His scholarship was almost universal, and he left numerous treastises on a multitude of subjects, both ancient and modern, classical and oriental, but he is chiefly known in this country as a biblical critic, and a chief of what is called the rational school. His chief works are a Universal Library of Biblical Literature. Died, 1827.

Eiffel (e'fel'), Gustave, French engineer, was born at Dijon, 1832, and early gained a reputation for bridge construction; in the huge framework erected for Bartholdi's statue of Liberty may be seen the germ of the iron Eiffel tower, 984 feet high, erected in 1887-89. Died in 1923.

Einstein, Albert (1879). German of Jewish parents. Astronomer and physicist. Born in Ulm, Germany. Educated in Munich, Bavaria and Zurich, Switzerland. Professor in the Universities of Zurich and Prague, 1909-1914. Einstein built a new theory of light, gravitation, and general physics. His theory of relativity boldly challenged some of Newton's conclusions regarding gravitation, and brought the fourth dimension into physics. It has received wide acceptance from scientific thinkers of the first rank.

Eldon, John Scott, Lord, celebrated lawyer and jurist, was born at Newcastle, of humble parentage, 1751. He was noted for the shrewd equity of his judgments and his delay in delivering them. Died, 1838.

Eleanor of Aquitaine, queen of France and of England, was born about 1122, and died in 1204. She was so called because she was a daughter of the duke of Aquitaine. She first married Louis VII. of France, who divorced her in 1152, and she then married Henry II. of England. It was through her that the English kings claimed the duchy of Aquitaine.

Elgar, Sir Edward, composer, was born near Worcester, England, 1857. His father was an organist. He early learned to play several instruments, became conductor of the Worcester instrumental society and, in 1885, successor to his father as organist at St. George's church. Among his best known compositions are The Dream of Gerontius, The Apostles, his popular march Pomp and Circumstance, and a symphony produced in 1908. Died, 1934.

Elgin (el'gin) and Kincardine (kin-kär'din), James Bruce, Earl of, was born in London, 1811, and succeeded his father, the seventh earl, who in 1812 brought from Athens the Elgin marbles, and himself was first Baron Elgin in the United Kingdom peerage. He died, 1863.

Elijah, greatest of the prophets of Israel, was born at Tishbe, in Gilead, on the borders of the desert. He comes upon the scene at the same time as Ahab, in the ninth century B. C. After the death of Ahab he rebuked the idolatries of his son Ahaziah in a solemn fashion and also denounced the evil doings of his successor. The closing scene of his life on earth is vividly narrated. A chariot of fire and horses of fire appeared after Elisha and he had crossed the Jordan, and "Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven."

Eliot, Charles William, educator, ex-president of Harvard University, was born in 1834, and graduated from Harvard in 1853. He taught mathematics and chemistry at Harvard, and in 1865, he was chosen professor of analytical chemistry in the Massachusetts Institute of technology. In 1869 Dr. Eliot succeeded Dr. Thomas Hill as president of Harvard College, and continued at its head until 1909. During his administration many notable changes in the government of the college occurred, its scope was broadened and there was a great increase in the number of its professors and students, while its wealth by gifts and benefactions was greatly increased, so that now it more than successfully competes with the great European universities. Eliot was given the degree of LL.D. by Williams and Princeton Colleges in 1869, by Yale in 1870 and by Johns Hopkins in 1902. He was also an officer of the legion of honor of France, and member of many scientific and literary bodies; he published American Contributions to Civilization; Educational Reform; Charles Eliot; Landscape Architect; More Money for the Public Schools; John Gilley; The Happy Life; and Four American Leaders. Died, 1926.

Eliot, George, is the nom de plume of Mary Ann Evans, a distinguished English novelist, born at Arbury, in Warwickshire, 1819. She began her literary career by a translation of Strauss 'Life of Jesus, and became, in 1851, a contributor to the Westminster Review. During this time she formed the acquaintance of George Henry Lewes, with whom she lived as his wife, though unmarried. Her first work was Scenes from Clerical Life, contributed to Blackwood's in 1856. The stories proved a signal success, and were followed by a series of seven novels, beginning in 1858 with Adam Bede, which attained an immense success, and at once secured for the writer almost undisputed rank with the most eminent novelists of the day. This was followed in 1859 by The Mill on the Floss, and in 1861 by Silas Marner, the Weaver of Raveloe. In 1861 the Scenes of Clerical Life were republished from Blackwood's Magazine. In 1863 Romola appeared; Felix Holt was published in 1866, and Middlemarch in 1872; Daniel Deronda and Impressions of Theophrastus Such appeared later. These, with two volumes of poems, make up her works. Lewes died in 1878, and two years later George Eliot formally married an old friend, John Cross, and after a few months of wedded life died of inflammation of the heart.

Eliot, John, the "Indian apostle," was born probably at Widford, Herts, England, in 1604; graduated from Jesus College, Cambridge, in 1622, and after taking orders quitted England for conscience' sake, and landed at Boston in 1631. In England a corporation was founded in 1649 for propagating the gospel among the Indians of New England. In 1674 the number of "praying Indians" was estimated at 36,000, but the decay of the "praying towns" was rapid after King Philip's war in 1675. Eliot died at Roxbury in 1690. His greatest work was the translation of the Bible into the Indian tongue.

Eliot, Samuel Atkins, clergyman, was born at Cambridge, Mass., 1862; graduated from Harvard, 1884; D.D., Bowdoin, 1900. Entered Unitarian ministry, 1889; minister Unity Church, Denver, Colo., 1889-93, Church of the Savior, Brooklyn N. Y., 1893-8; secretary 1898-1900, president since 1900, of the American Unitarian Association.

Elizabeth, queen of England from 1558 to 1603, was born at Greenwich in 1533. She was the daughter of Henry VIII. and Anne Boleyn. She was in her twenty-fifth year when she obtained the crown. Her first act was to release the imprisoned Protestants, and to reëstablish Protestantism. Very early in her reign she was troubled by the pretensions of the friends of Mary, queen of Scots who was now the next heir to the throne. As Mary was a most zealous Catholic, the counsellors of Elizabeth were anxious that she should marry in order to secure the Protestant succession, but while she negotiated and coquetted with one person after another, she yet finally refused to marry, though it is believed that she would have accepted her favorite, the earl of Leicester, for a husband, if she had not been prevented by her other counsellors, and especially by Cecil, Lord Burleigh, the greatest of them all. Twelve years after her accession, in 1570, Elizabeth was excommunicated by Pope Pius V. Sixteen years later, in 1586, the Babington conspiracy was formed, the object of which was to reëstablish the papacy, and to set Mary, queen of Scots, on the throne of England, but which led only to the loss of her life by Mary, after she had been imprisoned in England for nineteen years. Two years after this conspiracy, in 1588, Elizabeth had to contend with a more formidable enemy in Philip II. of Spain, who avowed his resolution to annihilate Protestantism, but whose threatened invasion of the country was prevented by the defeat and destruction of the armada. But the firmness and sagacity of Elizabeth's advisers, and especially of Burleigh, protected her against these dangers; and at the close of her reign, which lasted for forty-five years, England was stronger and greater than it had ever been before. Elizabeth was great mainly through her counsellors, among whom were some of the most eminent statesmen that England has produced. She died 1603, and was buried in Westminster abbey.

Elizabeth Petrovna (pā-trôv'nà), empress of Russia, was born in 1709, and died in 1762. She was a daughter of Peter the Great, and became empress through the deposition of Ivan in 1741. During her reign, in which throughout she was guided by favorites, a war with Sweden was brought to a successful conclusion by the peace of Abo.

Elliot, Daniel Giraud, naturalist, curator of zoölogy, Field Musuem, of Natural History, was born in New York, 1835. Led expedition into interior of East Africa in interest of Field Columbian museum, 1896, and into the recesses of the Olympic mountains, 1898, being first naturalist to penetrate that little-known range. Sc.D., Columbia, 1906. Author: Monograph of the Pittidae, or Ant-Thrushes; The Grouse, etc. Contributor of many papers to scientific publications in America and Europe. Died, 1915.

Elliott, Maxine, actress, was born in Rockland, Me., 1873, daughter of Thomas Dermot. Made début with E. S. Willard in small parts, 1890; soon after played leading parts in Rose Coglan's company; was under Augustin Daly's management playing leading rôles two seasons; starred in Her Own Way, 1903-04; Her Great Match, 1905-06.

Ellsworth, Oliver, American statesman and jurist, was born in Windsor, Conn., 1745. He became prominent in state affairs and in the continental congress, and was a member of the federal convention of 1787, which prepared the constitution of the United States. He led the federalist party in the senate, and was an earnest advocate of Jay's treaty with England in 1794. From 1796 to 1799 he was chief-justice of the United States supreme court, and in 1800 negotiated, with Patrick Henry and Governor Davie, a treaty with France. Died, 1807.

Elman, Mischa, violinist, born Stalnoje, Russia, Jan. 30, 1891. Pupil of Auer. Début, New York, 1908.

Elphinstone (el'fin-stun), Mountstuart, English statesman and historian, was born in 1779, educated at Edinburgh and Kensington, and entered the Bengal civil service in 1795. In 1803 he served with distinction on Wellesley's staff, and was appointed resident at Nagpur. He returned to England in 1829, and, declining the governor-generalship of India, lived in comparative retirement until his death at Hookwood, in Limpsfield parish, Surrey, 1859.

Elphinstone, William, Scottish prelate and statesman, was born in 1431. He took his M.A. at Glasgow in 1452, was ordained priest. He was engaged in embassies, and for four months before the death of James III., in 1488, was chancellor. It was chiefly through his influence that the first printing press—that of Chepman and Myllar—was established in Scotland. The University of Aberdeen (King's College) was founded by him in 1500. He died at Edinburgh in 1514.

Ely, Richard Theodore, educator, author, was born in Ripley, N. Y., 1854. He was graduated from Columbia, 1876; Ph.D., Heidelberg University, 1879; LL.D., Hobart College, 1892; president, 1899-1901, American economic association. Member of Baltimore tax commission, 1885-86; Maryland tax commission, 1886-88; founder, 1904, and director of American bureau of industrial research.

Emanuel I. (e-man'ū-el), king of Portugal, called "the great" or "the fortunate," was born in 1469, and became king in 1495. His reign is known as the golden age of Portugal. It was he who made Portugal the first naval power of the world, as well as its great commercial center. He died at Lisbon, 1521.

Emanuel, Filibert, duke of Savoy, son of Charles III., was born in 1528; was commander-in-chief of the imperial troops in Italy against the French. He applied himself to the administrative and military organization of his country, and is considered the founder of the Sardinian monarchy. Died, 1580.

Emerson, Ralph Waldo, celebrated American poet and essayist, was born in Boston, 1803 and graduated at Harvard College, 1821. Having turned his attention to theology, he was ordained minister of the Second Unitarian Church of Boston; but soon after formed peculiar views with regard to forms of worship, abandoned his profession, and, retiring to the quiet village of Concord, devoted himself to his favorite study—the nature of man and his relation to the universe.

In 1838 Emerson published Literary Ethics, an Oration; and in 1839, Nature, an Essay. In 1841, he published The Method of Nature, Man the Reformer, several lectures, and the first series of his Essays, the second series of which appeared in 1844. In 1846 he published a volume of poems. In 1848 he traveled in England, where he delivered lectures on The Mind and Manners of the 19th Century, and in 1849 delivered the series entitled Representative Men. In 1852, in connection with Mr. W. H. Channing, he published the Memoir of Margaret Fuller, Marchioness d' Ossoli. Emerson, in 1856, published a work entitled English Traits, and in 1860 The Conduct of Life. He delivered at Concord an oration on the death of President Lincoln in 1865, and received the degree of LL.D. from Harvard University in 1866. He also contributed largely to periodicals. Some of his works were translated into French and excited marked admiration among the Parisian transcendentalists. He is by common consent one of the most eminent modern philosophers of the Pantheistic school and one of the most remarkable personifications of American literary genius. He died 1882.

References.—Cabot's Memoir; Emerson at Home and Abroad, by Moncure D. Conway; Ralph Waldo Emerson Biographical Sketch, by A. Ireland; Emerson, by O. W. Holmes; Emerson in Concord, by E. W. Emerson, his son; and Emerson, by Richard Garnett. See also Stedman's Poets of America; Arnold's Discourses in America and Richardson's American Literature.

Emerton, Ephraim, educator, historian, professor of ecclesiastical history, Harvard 1882-1918, was born in Salem, Mass., 1851. He was graduated from Harvard in 1871; Ph.D., Leipzig, 1876. Member of Massachusetts historical society, American Academy of arts and sciences. Author: Introduction to the Study of the Middle Ages; Synopsis of the History of Continental Europe; Mediaeval Europe, 814-1300.

Emin Pasha (ā'mēn pà-shà'), or Bey, proper name Edward Schnitzer, was born at Oppeln, Silesia, in 1840. He studied medicine and in 1864 went to Turkey, where he became a well-known physician. In 1876 he joined the Egyptian service and proceeded as chief physician to the equatorial province, of which he was made governor in 1878 by "Chinese" Gordon. Here on the sudden uprising of the Madhi, his rescue reached him in May, 1888. He was killed, however, in 1892 by Arabs near Nyangwe.

Emmett, Robert, Irish enthusiast and revolutionist, was born at Dublin in 1778, the son of a Dublin doctor. He was expelled from Dublin University in 1798. His impulsive patriotism in 1803 led him to make an unsuccessful attack on Dublin castle, but he escaped into Wicklow. He was subsequently captured and was executed on Sept. 20, 1803.

Encke (eng'kē), Johann Franz, German astronomer, was born at Hamburg in 1791. In 1825, chiefly at the instigation of Bessel, he was called to Berlin as director of the observatory. In 1819 he showed that the comet discovered by Pons in 1818 revolved round the sun in the remarkably short time of 3.3 years. He was an indefatigable computer and did great service by developing and putting into convenient shape for use the new method of least squares discovered by Gauss. Died. 1865.

Endicott (en'di-kot), or Endecott, John, Puritan governor of Massachusetts, was born at Dorchester, England, about 1588. He landed as manager of a plantation near Salem in 1628; headed a sanguinary expedition against the Indians in 1636; was deputy-governor in 1641-44, 1650, and 1654, and governor six times from 1644 to 1665. He died at Boston, 1665.

Endlicher (ent'liĸ-ĕr), Stephan Ladislaus, Hungarian botanist and linguist, was born in Pressburg in 1804. In 1836 he was appointed keeper of the court cabinet of natural history, Vienna, and in 1840 professor of botany and director of the botanic garden of the University. He was a chief founder of the Vienna Academy and of the Annalen des Wiener Museums. Died, 1849.

Ennius (en'i-us), Quintus, Roman poet, the father of Roman literature, was born in 239 B. C. Cato "the elder" took him to Rome, where he taught Greek and Latin, and gained the friendship of the noblest Romans of his day. He died in Rome, 169 B. C.

Eotvos (ât'vûsh), Jozsef, distinguished Hungarian author, was born at Buda, 1813. In 1867 he was appointed minister of religion and education and in that capacity engaged actively in the work of reform. Died at Pesth, 1871.

Epaminondas (ē-pam'i-non'das), greatest of Theban generals and statesmen, was born about 418 B. C. and led a retired life until his fortieth year. After the stratagem by which his fellow citizens expelled the Spartans in 379, B.C. he joined the patriots; and, when sent to Sparta in 371 B. C. to negotiate peace, displayed as much firmness as eloquence. In 368 B. C. war was renewed, and Epaminondas made a somewhat unsuccessful invasion into the Peloponnesus. To atone for this he advanced with 33,000 men into Arcadia and near Mantinea broke the Spartan phalanx, but was mortally wounded. Died, 362 B. C.

Epee, de l' (dē lā'pā'), Charles Michel Abbe, one of the founders of the system of instruction for the deaf and dumb, was born at Versailles, France, 1712. At his own expense he founded an institution for the deaf and dumb and labored with unwearied zeal for its prosperity. Died, 1789.

Epictetus (ep'ik-tē'tus), celebrated stoic philosopher, who flourished in the first century, was born at Hierapolis, in Phrygia. Having obtained his freedom, he retired to a hut and gave himself up wholly to the study of philosophy. Being banished from Rome, with the other philosophers, by Domitiank he settled at Nicopolis, in Epirus.

Epicurus (ep'i-kū'rus), Greek philosopher, was born about 342 B. C. He taught at Colophon, Mitylene, and Lampsacus. He returned to Athens about 306, B.C. and remained there until his death. He was founder of the Epicurean school, who hold that the summum bonum consists in pleasure—chiefly mental pleasure. Died, 270 B. C.

Epinay, d' (dā' pē'ne'), Madame, French writer, was born about 1725. In 1745 she formed a close intimacy with Rousseau. An unfortunate jealousy, however, which Rousseau conceived for Grimm, another friend of Madame d'Épinay, was followed by an open rupture with his benefactress. Died, 1783.

Erasistratus (er-a-sis'tra-tus), one of the most famous physicians and anatomists of ancient times, flourished in the third century B. C. He founded a school of medicine, wrote several works on anatomy, practical medicine and pharmacy.

Erasmus (ē-raz'mus), Desiderius, one of the greatest scholars of the renaissance, was born in Rotterdam about 1467; on his parents' death he entered a monastery, which he left to become a teacher at Paris, and at the invitation of his pupil, Lord Mountjoy, came to England. He settled at Oxford. In 1506 he visited Italy, staying at Bologna and Rome, where he was warmly received, but returned to England, and was made Margaret professor of divinity and professor of Greek at Cambridge. He returned to the continent, and after a journey to the low countries, settled at Basel, where he published his edition of the new testament. Erasmus was in favor of moderate reform in the church. Died, 1536.

Eratosthenes (er'â-tos'thē-nēz), eminent Greek writer, called the philologist, was born at Cyrene about 276 B. C. By Ptolemy Euergetes he was called to Alexandria to superintend his great library. Here he died of voluntary starvation, at the age of eighty. As an astronomer he holds an eminent rank among ancient astronomers. A letter to Ptolemy, king of Egypt, on the duplication of the cube, is the only complete writing of his that we possess.

Erckmann-Chatrian (erk'mân-shâ'trē'ăN') (Emile Erckmann and Alexandre Chatrian), two French men of letters, the first of whom was born at Phalsbourg, 1822; the second in the village of Soldatenthal, 1826. The two friends employed their pens in the same works, which they signed with the two names united in one; and it was only about 1863 that the authors informed their readers that the numerous works of fiction, which had obtained a widespread popularity and were supposed by the general public to be the work of a single writer, were the fruits of their friendly collaboration. Erckmann died in 1899; Chatrian 1890.

Eric (er'ik) The Red, Norwegian navigator, was born about 950. In 982 he located on the island of Iceland, and in 983 sailed from Bredifiord to reach some western shore said to have been visited by one of his countrymen in former times. Some of the ships were lost in a storm and others were driven home; but he succeeded in reaching the Greenland coast. About twelve years later his son Lief is said to have discovered the continent of North America.

Ericsson (er'iĸ-sun), John, Swedish-American engineer, was born in Lanzbanshyttan, Sweden, 1803. At the age of twelve he became cadet of engineers, and at seventeen entered the Swedish army. He produced in succession an instrument for sea-sounding, a hydrostatic weighing machine and a tubular steam boiler, besides other important devices. In 1853 the ship Ericsson, of 2,000 tons, was propelled by his motor. In 1839 he came to the United States, where, in 1841, he designed for the government the screw-propelled war ship Princeton. In 1861 he built for the United States government, in 100 days, the iron-clad Monitor, which, on March 9, 1862, in Hampton roads, defeated the confederate iron-clad ram Merrimac. Died, 1889.

Erigena (ē-rij'ē-nâ), Joannes Scotus, famous philosopher and scholar of the middle ages, was born probably in Ireland during the ninth century, and died about 897. In the controversies of his time regarding predestination and transubstantiation he took part. His philosophic opinions were those of a neo-Platonist rather than a scholastic. His chief work was De Vivisione Naturae.

Ernesti (er-nes'tē), Johann August, German biblical critic, was born at Tennstedt in Thüringia, 1707. He became professor of ancient literature at Leipzig in 1742, of rhetoric in 1756 and of theology in 1759. Ernesti was the chief founder of a correct exegesis of scripture by the laws of grammar and history. In his Anti-Muratorius he argues that a thorough investigation of the history of doctrines is the best polemic against Roman Catholicism. Died, 1781.

Erskine (ûr'skin), Ebenezer, founder of the secession church in Scotland, was born at Chirnside, Berwickshire, 1680. The popular preacher of Portmoak in Kinross-shire from 1703 on the rise of the Marrow controversy he took a prominent part on the evangelical side. He died in 1754.

Erskine, Thomas Lord, British jurist and orator, was born in Edinburgh, 1750. He purchased a commission in the first royals, and was stationed at Minorca, where he employed his leisure time in the study of English literature. An accidental interview which he had with Lord Mansfield influenced him to prosecute the study of law. He was admitted a student of Lincoln's Inn, 1775. After his first speech the attorneys actually flocked round him with their retainers. In 1786 he was made attorney-general to the prince of Wales. He was regarded as the defender of popular liberties and constitutional rights. Died, 1823.

Espartero (es'pär-tā'rō), Baldomero, Spanish general and statesman, was born at Granatula, Spain, 1792. He was destined for the priesthood, but in 1808, on the French invasion of Spain, joined a volunteer battalion. As captain-general of the Basque provinces, in 1836, he twice defeated the Carlists and drove Don Carlos into France; for this he was created duke of Vittoria; in 1856 he was supplanted by O'Donnell. Died, 1879.

Espy (es'pi), James Pollard, meteorologist, was born in Pennsylvania in 1785. His Philosophy of Storms, published in 1841, was commended by the Academie des Sciences. Appointed in 1842 to the Washington observatory, Espy laid the basis of the weather bureau. He died in 1860.

Esquirol (es'kwē'rōl'), Jean Etienne Dominique, French physician, was born at Toulouse, 1772. He served in the military lazaretto at Narbonne, 1794, and was appointed physician to the Salpetriere at Paris, 1811. In 1825 he became first physician to the Maison des Alienes, while managing his private asylum at Charenton. Died, 1840.

Essex (es'eks), Robert Devereux, Earl of, was born in 1567. His first service was in the Netherlands. At court he became a favorite of Queen Elizabeth, and was put in command of the forces sent to help Henry IV. against the league in 1591. To him was largely due the capture of Cadiz in 1596. After failing as lord-lieutenant of Ireland, he formed a wild scheme to get rid of Elizabeth's councilors, who were opposed to him. He entered London at the head of 300 men, expecting the people to rise in his favor, but was disappointed and forced to surrender. He was tried for treason, condemned, and beheaded in 1601.

Estaing (es'taN'), Charles Hector, Count d,' French admiral, was born in 1729. After serving in the army in India, under the Marquis de Bussy, he entered the navy and led an expedition to Sumatra, capturing several English forts. He was then placed in command of a squadron sent to aid the United States against England. He was guillotined in 1794 during the revolution.

Esterhazy (es'tēr-hā'zē), Nicholas de, Hungarian patron of arts and sciences, was born in 1765. He founded the splendid collection of pictures at Vienna. When Napoleon, in 1809, entertained the notion of weakening Austria by the separation of Hungary, he made overtures to Prince Esterhazy respecting the crown of Hungary, which; however, were declined. Haydn composed most of his works at the court of Prince Nicholas. Died, 1833.

Esterhazy, Prince Paul Anton, Austrian diplomat, was born in 1786. After the peace of Vienna he went as ambassador to the court of Westphalia. In March, 1848, he became minister of foreign affairs; but when the struggle between Austria and Hungary broke out he exhibited more prudence than heroism by retiring from public life altogether. He died in 1866.

Esther, the Persian name of Hadassah, daughter of Abihail, a Benjamite. She was an orphan, and brought up by her cousin Mordecai, an officer in the household of the Persian monarch, Ahasuerus. When the misconduct of Vashti had cost her her "royal estate," all "the fair virgins" of the kingdom were gathered together, that Ahasuerus might choose a successor. He selected Hadassah, who received the name of Esther on account of her loveliness.

Ethelbert (eth'el-bĕrt), first Christian king of Kent, England, was born about 552. He was converted by his wife, Bertha, of France, and by St. Augustine. He gave the English the first written code of laws. Reigned from 560 to 616.

Eucken (oik'en), Rudolph Christoph, German philosopher, was born at Aurich, Prussia, in 1846. He was educated at the University of Gottingen and at Berlin; Ph.D., Gottingen; D.D., Giessen, 1903; Glasgow, 1910. He was professor of Basel, Switzerland, 1871-4, and at the University at Jena. In 1908 he received the Nobel Prize for literature. His best known works in English translations are Life's Basis and Ideal, and The Truth of Religion. Exchange professor at Harvard University, 1912-13. Died, 1926.

Euclid (u'klid), eminent geometrician, is said by Pappus and Proclus to have been a native of Alexandria, in which city he taught mathematics, during the reign of Ptolemy Lagus, about 300 B. C. His most famous work is the Elements of Geometry, in thirteen books, six of which are still in use.

Eugene, Francois, usually called Prince Eugene of Savoy, celebrated Austrian general, was born in Paris, 1663. He was a son of Eugene Maurice, count of Soissons, but his application for a commission in the army of France having been refused, in consequence of a difference between Louis XIV. and Eugene's mother, he left France for Vienna, and offered his services to the emperor of Austria, in whose court and army he spent the whole of his remaining life. Died in Vienna, 1736.

Eugenie-Marie de Montijo (û'zhā'nē mā'rē' de mōn-tē'hō), ex-empress of the French, was born in Spain, 1826. Her mother, the Comtesse Teba, took her to Paris, where she attracted great attention at the balls given at the Tuileries by Louis Napoleon, who proposed to the charming young Spaniard, whom he married in 1853. She forced on the war with Germany, which she spoke of as "my war," and in many ways her influence was bad for France. She was appointed regent when Napoleon III. went to fight the Germans, and was in Paris when the revolution broke out after Sedan. In 1870 she escaped from the Tuileries and sought refuge in England. Died, 1920.

Euler (oi'lēr), Leonard, distinguished mathematician, was born at Basel, Switzerland, 1707, and at the time of his death in 1783 was director of the mathematical department of the Academy of St. Petersburg, having been previously professor of mathematics in the Academy of Sciences in Berlin.

Euripides (û-rip'i-dēz), the latest of the three Greek tragedians, was born at Salamis, 480 B. C., on the very day of the great victory gained by the Greeks over the Persians. In 441 B. C. he gained the first prize for tragedy, and continued to write for the Athenian stage until 408 B. C., when he accepted an invitation to the court of Archelaus, king of Macedonia. Among his works are the Alcestis, Hecuba and Medea.

Eusebius (û-sē'bi-us) of Caesarea, father of ecclesiastical history, was born in Palestine about 264 and died about 340. In 313 he succeeded Agapius as bishop of Cæsarea and took a prominent part in the council of Nice.

Eustachio (â'ōōs-tā'kyō), or Eustachius, Bartolommeo, Italian anatomist, was born in 1510. He was professor of medicine at the Collegio della Sapienza at Rome. Died, 1574.

Evans, Mary Ann or Marian. See Eliot, George.

Evans, Robley Dunglison, American admiral, was born in Floyd county, Va., 1846. He was appointed to the United States navy for Utah, and graduated from the United States naval academy in 1863; rear-admiral 1901. In war with Spain, commander of Iowa in Sampson's fleet off Santiago, taking active part in battle with Cervera's fleet, July 3, 1898; was president of board of inspection and survey; commander-in-chief at Asiatic station, October, 1902, and in command of the Asiatic expedition, 1908. Died, 1912.

Evarts, William Maxwell, American lawyer and statesman, was born at Boston, Mass., 1818, and died at New York City, 1901. He graduated at Yale, and was admitted to the New York bar in 1841, where he built up a notable practice.

He was United States counsel before the Alabama tribunal in 1872, and senior counsel for Henry Ward Beecher in 1875. In 1877-81 he was secretary of state, and United States senator from New York for the term 1885-91.

Evelyn, John, English author, was born at Wotton, in Surrey, 1620. He took part in political affairs during the reigns of Charles I., Charles II., and James II. He is now chiefly remembered for his Diary, which he kept during the greater part of his life, and which forms one of the most valuable collections of historical materials for the latter half of the seventeenth century. Died, 1706.

Everett, Charles Carroll, Unitarian theologian, was born at Brunswick, Me., 1829. He graduated at Bowdoin College, 1850, and continued his studies at the University of Berlin; dean of the Harvard Divinity School after 1878. Died, 1900.

Everett, Edward, American author, orator and statesman, was born at Dorchester, Mass., 1794. He was graduated from Harvard, 1811. He became professor of Greek at Harvard in 1815; became editor of the North American Review, and was a member of congress from 1824 to 1834; governor of Massachusetts from 1835 to 1839; and from 1840 to 1845, minister-plenipotentiary to England. He became secretary of state in 1852, and was elected to the United States senate in 1853. He was made D.C.L. by Oxford, and LL.D., by Cambridge and Dublin universities. Died, 1865.

Ewald (ā'vălt), Georg Heinrich August von, German orientalist and theologian, was born at Göttingen, 1803. He was dismissed with six others in 1837 for remonstrating against the unconstitutional proceedings of the king of Hanover and was professor at Tübingen from 1838 to 1848, when he was reinstated at Göttingen. Died, 1875.

Ewell (ū'el), Richard Stoddard, American soldier, was born in the District of Columbia in 1817. He graduated at West Point in 1840, and served in the Mexican war. In April, 1865, he surrendered to General Sheridan at Sailor's Creek, Va. Died, 1872.

Ewing (ū'ing), Thomas, American politician, was born in Ohio county, Va., 1789. He was admitted to the Ohio bar in 1816, and from 1831 to 1837 was United States senator from Ohio; in March, 1849, became the first secretary of the interior, which office he held until September 12, 1850. Died, 1871.

Eyck (īk), Hubert, and Jan van, two illustrious painters of the old Flemish school. Their birthplace was Maas-Eyck, and they chiefly resided at Bruges and Ghent, and became the founders of the Flemish school of painting. Hubert died in 1426, and Jan in 1440.

Ezekiel, one of the four great Hebrew prophets, was the son of Buzi, and one of the sacerdotal race. He was carried to Babylon as a captive by Nebuchadnezzar, 598 B. C. Favored by the Lord with the gift of prophecy, he soothed, comforted and admonished his countrymen, until at length he was stoned to death by order of the Babylonian authorities.

Ezekiel, Moses, American sculptor, was born at Richmond, Va., 1844; visited Berlin, Germany, 1869, where he studied at Royal academy of art; admitted into Society of Artists, Berlin. He executed the marble group representing religious liberty for the Centennial exhibition, now in Fairmount park, Philadelphia; monument to Jessie Seligmann for orphan asylum, New York. After 1886 his work became chiefly ideal. Died, 1917.

Ezra, the scribe, was living in Babylon during the reign of Artaxerxes Longimanus, who commissioned him to lead a band of his fellow countrymen from Babylon to Jerusalem in 458 B. C., there to reörganize the returned Jews. The book which bears his name was anciently and justly regarded as forming one book with Nehemiah; and in their present shape Ezra and Nehemiah are simply the continuation of Chronicles.

Faber (fā'bĕr), Frederick William, English hymn writer, was born at Calverley in Yorkshire, 1814; graduated from Balliol College, Oxford, and in 1834 was elected a scholar of University College, in 1837 a fellow. He founded a community of converts at Birmingham—"the Wilfridians"—he himself being Brother Wilfrid, from his Life of St. Wilfrid. He died in 1863. Faber wrote many theological works; but his fame will rest upon his hymns The Pilgrims of the Night; The Land Beyond the Sea, etc.

Fabius (fā'bi-us), Maximus Quintus, Roman general, was born about 275 B. C. He was surnamed Cunctator because, in 217 having been appointed dictator for the second time and intrusted with the defense of Italy against the victorious Hannibal, he pursued a course of cautious and patient generalship, never risking a general engagement with his opponent, but cutting off his supplies, and gradually wearing him out, and meeting with signal success. Died 203 B. C.

Fabricius (fă-brish'i-us), or Fabrizio (fă-brēt'syō) Girolamo, celebrated anatomist and surgeon, was born in 1537, and died in 1619. He graduated from the University of Padua, where, in addition to the usual instruction in the classics, he studied anatomy and surgery under the celebrated Fallopius. On the death of the latter in 1562, Fabricius was appointed to fill the vacant professorship. His chief work was his Opera Chirurgica.

Faed (fād), John, Scottish painter, was born in 1819. In 1841 he settled in Edinburgh, where his talents won him a high reputation. Died, 1902.

Faed, Thomas, brother of the preceding, and also an artist, was born in 1826. In 1849 he executed a work, entitled Scott and His Friends at Abbotsford. He was made an R.A. in 1864. Died, 1900.

Fahrenheit (fä'ren-hīt), Gabriel Daniel, physicist improver of the thermometer, was born at Dantzic, Germany, 1686. In 1720 he first conceived the idea of using quicksilver instead of spirits of wine in the construction of thermometers, by means of which the accuracy of the instrument was very much improved. Died, 1736.

Faidherbe (fe-derb'), Louis Leon Cesar, French general, was born at Lille, France, 1818, and entered the French army in 1842. His earliest service was in Algeria. During the Franco-Prussian war he was in command of the army of the North and fought several battles. He was the author of a number of works on military and archæological subjects. Died, 1889.

Fairbairn (fâr'bârn), Andrew Martin, Scottish theologian and principal of Mansfield College, Oxford, was born near Edinburgh, Scotland, 1838. In 1886 he was elected principal, on its foundation, of Mansfield College, Oxford, where his labors as a metaphysician and theologian have made him famous. His books embrace: Studies in the Philosophy of Religion and History; Studies in the Life of Christ; The City of God. Died, 1912.

Fairbairn, Sir William, Scottish engineer, was born at Kelso, Scotland, 1789. He was the first to use iron instead of wood in the shafting of cotton mills. Fairbairn built the tubular bridge across the Menai strait and more than a thousand other bridges. He also devised improvements for steam boilers and other steam machinery. In 1869 he was made a baronet. He died at Moor Park, Surrey, England, 1874.

Fairbanks, Arthur, educator, author, was born in Hanover, N. H., 1864; graduated from Dartmouth College, 1886; Yale Divinity School, 1887-88; professor of Greek and Greek archæology, University of Michigan, 1906-07; director of Boston museum of fine arts. Editor of The Classical Journal, 1905-1907.

Fairbanks, Charles Warren, lawyer, was born on a farm near Unionville Center, Union county, Ohio, 1852; graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University, 1872; admitted to Ohio bar, 1874, and established practice at Indianapolis. Elected United States senator from Indiana, 1897, and reëlected in 1903, vice-president of the Uni ed States, 1904-08. Died, 1918.

Fairbanks, Douglas (1883——), studied at Colorado School of Mines, but turned to motion picture drama, appearing with great success in He Comes Up Smiling, Frenzied Finance, All For a Girl, Reaching for the Moon, His Majesty, The American. His smile, his personality and his acrobatic feats make him one of the most popular movie actors. Address: Hollywood, Calif.

Falconio (făl-kō'ni-ō), Diomede, R. C. cardinal and former apostolic delegate to the United States, was born in Pesocostanzo, in the Abruzzi, Italy. He entered the Franciscan order, 1860; became citizen of United States, 1868; returned to Italy, 1883, and elected provincial of Franciscans in the Abruzzi; procurator-general Franciscan order and visitor-general in various provinces of the order, 1889-92. Consecrated, 1892, bishop of Lacedonia, and was raised in 1895 to be archbishop of Acerenza and Matera; apostolic delegate to United States, 1902-11; cardinal, 1911. Died, 1917.

Falkenhayn, Eric von, German general, born at Burg Belchau, 1853. Entered army in his youth; became lieutenant general in 1906; retired, 1910; recalled to actual service, 1914; succeeded Moltke as chief of general staff, 1914; supplanted by von Hindenburg, 1916. Died, 1922.

Fall, Albert Bacon, born Frankfort, Ky., 1861. School teacher, lawyer, farmer, ranchman, and miner. U. S. Senator from New Mexico, 1912-1921. Secretary of Interior in Harding Cabinet. Leader of U. S. Senate in Mexican affairs.

Fallieres (făl'yâr'), Clement Armand, French statesman, president of the French republic 1906-1913, was born near Agen, South France, 1841. Settled at Nérac as a barrister, and became mayor; has been minister of the interior, of justice, and of education, and prime minister, and was eight times reëlected president of the senate. He was elected president of France in 1906, in succession to M. Loubet. He is a lover of books and has written verse both in French and in the Languedocien dialect. Died, 1931.

Faneuil (fan''l or fan'yel), Peter, founder of Faneuil hall, Boston, Mass., was born in New Rochelle, N. Y., 1700. He was a rich merchant in Boston, and gave to the city a building for a market and town-hall. So many important patriotic meetings were held in Faneuil hall during the revolution that it has been called the "cradle of American liberty." Died, 1743.

Faraday (far'a-dā), Michael, distinguished English chemist and natural philosopher, was born in 1791 near London; in 1833 became professor of chemistry in the Royal Institution, London, where his lectures attracted the admiration of both Europe and America. Besides two sets on chemical subjects, we have his Lectures on the Physical Forces. But the great work of his life is the series of Experimental Researches in Electricity, published in the Philosophical Transactions. Died, 1867.

Farel (fä'rel'), Guillaume, Swiss reformer, was born in Dauphiné, in 1489, and studied at Paris. A convert to Protestantism, he, in 1524, put forth at Basel many Protestant theses. In 1557, together with Beza, Farel was sent to the Protestant princes of Germany to implore their aid for the Waldenses. In 1560 he was in Dauphiné preaching against Catholicism; and in 1561 was thrown into prison. He died at Neuchatel, 1565.

Farley, John Murphy, R. C. cardinal, was born in County Armagh, Ireland, 1842; was educated at St. John's College, Fordham, and St. Joseph's Seminary, Troy, N. Y., and at the American College, Rome; ordained priest at Rome, 1870. He was assistant rector of St. Peter's, New Brighton, Staten Island, 1870-2; secretary to Archbishop McCloskey, 1872-84; private chamberlain to Pope Leo XIII., 1884; domestic prelate of Pope Leo XIII., 1892; prothonotary apostolic, 1895; auxiliary bishop of New York, 1895; on death of Archbishop Corrigan, May 5, 1902, was appointed administrator of New York; fourth Archbishop of New York, 1902-1911. He was raised to the cardinalate, 1911. Died, 1918.

Farlow, Alfred, writer, was born at Orange, Ill., and graduated from the Mass. Metaphysical College, 1888; Christian Science teacher and lecturer, since 1888; located Christian Science Institution at Topeka, 1889, removed to Kansas City, 1894; pastor and reader Christian Science Church; member committee on publication Christian Science Church, Boston. Contributor to newspapers and magazines on Christian Science subjects.

Farnese (fär-nā'sā), Alessandro. See Paul III., Pope.

Farnum, William, actor, was born in Boston in the late seventies. Made his début at Richmond, Va., in Julius Caesar. In 1907 he starred in Ben Hur and The Prince of India, and appeared with his brother Dustin in The Littlest Rebel in 1911.

Farragut (far'a-gut), David Glasgoe, American admiral, was born near Knoxville Tenn., 1801. At the age of twenty-five he was made lieutenant and appointed to the Norfolk navy-yard. In 1862 he was appointed to the command of a naval expedition to act against the confederates in the gulf of Mexico. On April 24th, after a heavy cannonade, his squadron passed the forts at the mouth of the Mississippi, and on the 28th he received the surrender of New Orleans. Ascending the Mississippi he took Natchez. Raised to the rank of vice-admiral in March, 1863, he once more passed up the Mississippi, successfully ran past the confederate batteries of Fort Hudson, and aided General Grant in the combined attack on Vicksburg, which resulted in its capitulation, July 4th. In August, 1864, after a furious engagement between his fleet and the confederate forts and vessels at Mobile, in which the monitor Tecumseh was sunk by a torpedo, with the loss of all on board, he succeeded in capturing the forts, which led to the fall of the city. In 1866 he attained the rank of admiral. He died in 1870.

Farrar (far'ar), Frederick William, English clergyman and author, was born in Bombay, India, 1831; educated at London and Cambridge. In 1876 he became canon of Westminster, in 1883 archdeacon, and in 1895 dean of Canterbury. He ranks among the most eloquent of English pulpit orators, and published many works on educational, theological, and other subjects. Chief of these are: Seekers After God; Witness of History to Christ; The Silence and Voices of God; and the Life of Christ. Died, 1903.

Farrar, Geraldine, grand opera singer, was born at Melrose, Mass., 1882, daughter of Sydney and Henrietta (Barnes) Farrar; graduated at Melrose, Mass., public school, and received her musical education at Paris and Berlin. Made début, Royal opera house, Berlin; member Berlin Royal Opera since 1901; with Metropolitan opera 1906-1922, and has appeared frequently both in Europe and United States in concert.

Faunce (fôns), William Herbert Perry, educator, president of Brown University, was born at Worcester, Mass., 1859. He was graduated from Brown University, 1880; pastor of Fifth Avenue Baptist church, New York city, 1889-99; lecturer in University of Chicago, 1896-97; Lyman Beecher lecturer, Yale University, 1907-08. Died, 1930.

Faure (fōr), Francois Felix, former president of France, was born in Paris, 1841. He served as a volunteer in the Franco-German war, in 1881 became deputy for Havre, and after holding posts in several administrations, in January, 1895, succeeded Casimir-Perier as president. He died of apoplexy in 1899.

Favart (fä-vär'), Charles Simon, French dramatist, was born at Paris, 1710. After spending some time in Flanders in the army under Marshal Saxe, Favart returned to Paris and continued to write operas. His most celebrated pieces are Le Coq du Village; Bastien et Bastienne; Ninette à la Cour. Died, 1792.

Favre (fä-vr'), Jules Claude Gabriel, French statesman and orator, was born at Lyons, 1809, studied for the bar, and was engaged in the July revolution of 1830; he became one of the leaders of the republicans against Napoleon III. In September, 1870, after the fall of the empire, he was appointed minister of foreign affairs, and in 1871 settled the terms for the capitulation of the capital. He resigned office in July, 1871, resumed practice at the bar, and died in 1880.

Fawcett, Henry, English statesman, born at Salisbury, 1833. Graduated from Cambridge, 1856, and elected to the chair of political economy at this school in 1863, a post which he held until his death. Totally blinded while hunting in 1858. He was elected to Parliament in 1865 and again in 1868. He strongly opposed Gladstone's Irish University Bill in 1873. Gladstone offered him the postmaster-generalship, which he accepted. Here he instituted several reforms. He died in 1884.

Fawcett, Millicent Garrett, wife of the preceding from 1867, was born at Aldeburgh, Suffolk, 1847. She has taken a keen interest in the higher education of women and the extension of the franchise to women, and received the degree of LL.D. from St. Andrews University. Died, 1929.

Fechner (fek'nĕr), Gustav Theodor, physicist and psychophysicist, was born at Gross-Sarchen, in lower Lusatia, 1801; devoted himself to psychology; laid the foundations of the science of psychophysics in his Elements of Psychophysics. Died, 1887.

Felix (fē'liks), Antonius, or Claudius, Roman governor of Judea at the time of the apostle Paul. He was an energetic ruler, clearing the country of the robber bands that abounded and holding the seditious Jews in check.

Fenelon (fā'ne'lôn'), Francois de Salignac de La Mothe, eminent French preacher and author, archbishop of Cambray from 1695 to the time of his death, was born 1651, and died at Cambray, 1715. Before his elevation to the archbishopric, he was tutor to the grandsons of Louis XIV., for whom he composed several works, among them his best-known work, Telemachus.

Fenn, William Wallace, theologian, Bussey professor of theology at Harvard University, was born in Boston, Mass., 1862; graduated from Harvard, 1884; A.M., 1887; Harvard D.D., 1908. Entered the Unitarian ministry, 1887; Shaw lecturer biblical literature, Meadville theological school, 1892-1901, 1905-07; preacher to Harvard, 1896-98, 1902-05; dean of Harvard divinity school.

Ferber, Edna, American short story writer, was born at Kalamazoo, Mich., 1887. She began writing as reporter for various newspapers, including the Chicago Tribune, but later devoted herself to short stories which have appeared in foremost magazines. Her stories include: Buttered Side Down, Roast Beef Medium, So Big, and the famous McChesney stories.

Ferdinand I., emperor of Germany, son of Philip I. of Spain and younger brother of Charles V. of Germany, was born in 1503. In 1531 Ferdinand was elected king of the Romans, and in 1556 he succeeded Charles V. as emperor. He was tolerant to the Protestants, whom he tried to reconcile with Rome. Died, 1564.

Ferdinand I., the Great, king of Castile and Leon, was the second son of Sancho III., king of Navarre and Castile, and succeeded to the latter kingdom in 1035. He was one of the most powerful monarchs of his age. In 1056 he assumed the title of emperor of Spain. Died, 1065.

Ferdinand II., emperor of Germany and king of Hungary and Bohemia, was born in 1578. After the overthrow of Frederick in 1620, Ferdinand abolished the charter of Bohemia, oppressed the Protestants, and prosecuted the war under Tilly, Wallenstein and others. Died, 1637.

Ferdinand II., king of the Two Sicilies, grandson of the preceding, was born in 1810. He succeeded his father Francis I. in 1830, and at first introduced reforms and liberal measures, but soon adopted the principles of absolutism. His harsh treatment of political prisoners led in 1857 to a diplomatic rupture with Sardinia, France, and England. Died, 1859.

Ferdinand IV., king of Naples and afterward king of the Two Sicilies as Ferdinand I., was born in 1751. In 1812 he granted his Sicilian subjects a constitution, in 1815 was restored to his former throne, and in 1816 united Sicily and Naples into a single state. His despotism provoked the revolution of 1820, which was suppressed by Austrian intervention. Died, 1825.

Ferdinand V. of Castile, III. of Naples, and II. of Aragon and Sicily, surnamed the Catholic, son of John II., was born in 1452, and succeeded his father on the throne of Aragon and Sicily in 1466. In 1469 he was married to Isabella, sister of Henry IV. of Castile, and in 1479 became, through her, king of Castile. Ferdinand died in 1516, Isabella having died twelve years before him.

Ferguson (fĕr'gu-sun), John, senior physician, Toronto Western hospital, editor of The Canada Lancet, was born at Glasgow, Scotland, 1854. He was graduated from the University of Toronto, and later studied at Edinburgh and London; Besides editing The Canada Lancet, he has published numerous articles and addresses.

Fergusson, James, Scottish historian of architecture, was born at Ayr, Scotland, 1808. After ten years as an indigo planter in Bengal, he explored nearly every corner of India, studying the rock-temples, which were illustrated in his earliest works. His History of Architecture appeared first as a handbook in 1855. He died in 1886.

Ferrari (fer-rä'rē), Giuseppe, Italian philosopher, was born in Milan, 1812; studied law at Pavia, but afterward devoted himself to literature. He died at Rome in 1876.

Ferreira (fer-re'ē-rä), Antonio, Portuguese poet, was born at Lisbon in 1528. He is considered the reformer of the national poetry of Portugal, and as the Portuguese Horace. He obtained an important situation at court, and his Inez de Castro gave him great celebrity. He died in 1569.

Ferrero (fer-rā'rō), Guglielmo, Italian historian, was born in 1872. He lectured at Milan on militarism, and in the Collège de France, Paris, on Roman history, and while there received the cross of the legion of honor. Author: Symbols, The Greatness and Decline of Rome.

Ferry, Jules Francois Camille, distinguished French statesman, was born at Saint Dié, in the Vosges, 1832. Admitted to the Paris bar in 1854, he speedily plunged into the politics of the time, and offered uncompromising opposition to the party of Louis Napoleon; as prime minister in 1880 and again in 1883-85 he inaugurated a spirited colonial policy, which involved France in war in Madagascar, and brought about his own downfall. He was elected to the senate in 1890, and became its president one month before his death. Died, 1893.

Fesch (fesh), Joseph, cardinal archbishop of Lyons, was born in Ajaccio, 1763. He took holy orders, but became commissary to the revolutionary army of the Alps in Italy. In 1804 he was French ambassador to Rome, and two years later he was appointed successor of Dalberg, prince primate of the confederation of the Rhine. At the approach of the Austrians in 1814, he fled to Rome, where he died in 1839.

Fessenden (fes'en-den), William Pitt, American statesman, was born in New Hampshire in 1806. He graduated at Bowdoin College in 1823, and was admitted to the bar in 1827. United States senator, 1854-64; secretary of the treasury, 1864-65; and again United States senator, 1865-69. He ranked among the first lawyers of his time, and made a notable reputation before the United States supreme court. Died, 1869.

Fetter, Frank Albert, educator, economist, was born in Peru, Ind., 1863; graduated at Indiana University, 1891; Ph.M., Cornell, 1892; Ph.D.; LL.D.; professor of political economy and finance, Cornell. Author: Relations Between Rent and Interest; The Principles of Economics.

Feuerbach (foi'ĕr-bäk), Ludwig Andreas, German philosopher, was born at Landshut, 1804, and studied at Heidelberg. The leading principle of his philosophy, a naturalistic development of Hegelianism, is that there is no God distinct from nature and man. Died, 1872.

Feuerbach, Paul Johann Anselm von, jurist, father of the preceding, was born at Jena, 1775, where he studied law. He had made a brilliant reputation by his Kritik des naturlichen Rechts, and his Anti-Hobbes. In 1808-11 he published a great collection of criminal cases. Appointed a judge at Bamberg, 1814, and at Anspach, 1817. He died at Frankfort, 1833.

Feuillet (fä'ye'), Octave, French novelist, was born at Saint-Lo, in La Manche, 1821. He started his literary career as one of Dumas' assistants, but made his first independent success in the Revue des Deux Mondes by a series of tales and romances begun in 1848. In 1862 he was elected a member of the academy, and later became librarian to Louis Napoleon. Died, 1890.

Fichte (fik'tē), Johann Gottlieb, German philosopher, was born at Rammeau, in upper Lusatia, 1762. In 1794 he was appointed to the chair of philosophy at Jena, where he commenced to expound with extraordinary zeal his system of transcendental idealism. In 1805 he obtained the chair of philosophy at Erlangen, with the privilege of residing at Berlin in the winter. Here he delivered his celebrated lectures On the Nature of the Scholar. In 1810 the University was opened with a host of brilliant names, Fichte, Wolff, Muller, Humboldt, De Wette, Schleiermacher, Neander, Klaproth, and Savigny. By the votes of his colleagues Fichte was unanimously elected rector. He died in 1814.

Field, Cyrus West, founder of the Atlantic cable company, was born at Stockbridge, Mass., 1819. Devoting himself entirely to the work of uniting the old and new worlds, he crossed the ocean nearly thirty times in its prosecution; and on the laying of the first cable, 1858, was received by his countrymen with enthusiastic plaudits. He continued his exertions, and on the success of the cable of 1865 received a gold medal at Liverpool and a vote of thanks from the American congress. Died, 1892.

Field, David Dudley, American jurist, was born at Haddam, Conn., 1805, entered Williams College, 1821, studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1828. He settled in New York, and soon made his way into the front rank of his profession. In 1867 he brought before the British association for social science a proposition to frame an international code. This led to the preparation by him of what was really a complete work on international law, though entitled Draft Outlines of an International Code. Died, 1894.

Field, Eugene, American poet and journalist, was born at St. Louis, Mo., 1850. He moved to New England, but was educated later in Missouri. He entered journalism at the age of twenty-three, ten years later becoming editor of the Sharps and Flats column of the Chicago Daily News. Among his works are: Culture's Garden; Little Book of Western Verse; With Trumpet and Drum, etc. He died in 1895.

Field, Marshall, merchant, philanthropist, was born at Conway, Mass., 1835. He was junior partner, 1860-65, then senior partner in house, which became, 1865, Field, Palmer & Leiter. Potter Palmer retired, 1867, and Levi Z. Leiter, 1881, Field becoming head of Marshall Field & Company, now having the largest wholesale and retail dry goods business in the world. Founded, with gift of $1,000,000, the Field Columbian museum of Chicago. Died in 1906, leaving an immense fortune.

Field, Stephen Johnson, American jurist, was born at Haddam, Conn., 1816, son of David Dudley Field. He studied law and took up its practice in California. Chief-justice of California, 1859-63; associate justice of the United States supreme court, 1863-97. Died at Washington, 1899.

Fielding, Henry, famous English novelist, was born near Glastonbury, England, 1707. He was early sent to school at Eton, and afterward to the University of Leyden. On his return from Leyden he commenced writing for the stage, and for ten years was a prolific play-writer. In 1737 he entered as a student of the Middle Temple, and in 1740 was admitted to the bar; but his new profession not proving remunerative he returned to literature, and in his remaining years produced the works with which his name is now principally associated. Chief of these are Joseph Andrews; The History of Jonathan Wild; Tom Jones; and Amelia. He died in 1754.

Fielding, William Stevens, Canadian statesman and journalist, minister of finance in the Canadian cabinet, was born at Halifax, Nova Scotia, 1848. He was educated at Halifax; D.C.L.; LL.D.; represented city and county of Halifax in the provincial legislature, 1882-96; member of the provincial cabinet a few months after his election, and prime minister, 1884-96. He was a representative of Canada at the colonial conference, London, 1902; one of his majesty's plenipotentiaries for the negotiation of the Franco-Canadian commercial treaty, Paris, 1907. Died, 1929.

Fiesole, Fra Giovanni Da. See Angelico, Fra.

Figueras (fē-gā'rās), Estanislao, Spanish statesman, was born at Barcelona, 1819. On the abdication of King Amadeus in 1873 he became president of the Spanish republic, but resigned soon after. He died in Madrid, 1882.

Fillmore, Millard, American statesman, thirteenth president of the United States, was born in Summerville, N. Y., 1800. Removed to Buffalo, N. Y., 1823, and there found entrance to the bar. He entered congress in 1832. He became comptroller of the state of New York, in 1844, was elected vice-president of the United States in 1848, and succeeded to the presidency on the death of General Taylor in 1850. By signing the act for the surrender of fugitive slaves he brought about the utter defeat of the whig party in 1853. In 1856 he was nominated for the presidency, but received only scanty support. Died, 1874.

Finch, Francis Miles, jurist and poet, was born at Ithaca, N. Y., 1827. He was graduated at Yale, 1849; studied law and entered upon its practice at Ithaca. He assisted materially in the organization of Cornell University, of which he was an original trustee. In 1892 he became dean of the Cornell Law School. Died, 1907.

Finck, Henry Theophilus, author, musical critic of New York Evening Post, was born at Bethel, Mo., 1854. He was graduated at Harvard in 1876. Author: Romantic Love and Personal Beauty; Primitive Love and Love Stories; Songs and Song Writers; Fifty Mastersongs; Edward Grieg, etc. Died, 1926.

Finegan, Thomas Edward, born West Fulton, New York, 1866; graduate New York State College for Teachers, 1889. Admitted N. Y. bar, 1894; Hamilton, M.A., 1894; Pd.D. State College for Teachers, 1909; Deputy Commissioner of Education of New York, 1917-1919; Supt. of Public Instruction of Pennsylvania, 1919-1923. Reorganized the Pennsylvania school system.

Finlay, George, distinguished English historian, was born at Faversham, Kent, 1799, of Scotch parents. He received a university training at Glasgow and Göttingen; his valuable history, published in various parts, traces the national life of Greece from 146 B. C. to A. D. 1864. Died at Athens, 1875.

Finley, John Huston, educator, was born at Grand Ridge, Ill.; 1863. He was graduated at Knox College, 1887; Ph.D., LL.D. He was secretary of State, Charities aid Organization, New York, 1889-92; president of Knox College, 1892-99; professor of politics, Princeton, 1900-03; president of college of the city of New York 1903. University of State of New York, 1913-1921; editor N. Y. Times since 1921.

Finley, William Wilson, president of Southern railway, was born at Pass Christian, Miss., 1853; chairman of Trans-Missouri traffic association, at Kansas City, 1889-90; chairman of Western passenger association, 1890-92; general traffic manager of Great Northern and Montana Central railroad, 1892-95; second vice-president of Southern railway, 1896-1906; president of same 1906-1913. Died, 1913.

Finney, Charles Grandison, American clergyman and educator, was born in Connecticut, 1792. He began to preach in the Presbyterian church in 1824. In 1835 he became professor of theology at Oberlin College, and from 1851 to 1866 was president of that institution. Died at Oberlin, Ohio, 1875.

Firdausi (fĕr-dou'sē), or Firdusi (fĕr-dōō'sē), pseudonym of Abul Kasim Mansur, the great poet of Persia, born near Tüs, in Khorassan, about 940. He spent thirty years in writing the Shah Namah, or Book of Kings, a national epic. He died about 1020.

Fischer, Emil, a noted German chemist, was born at Euskirchen, 1852. Educated at Strassburg. Professor at Munich, Erlangen, Würzburg and Berlin respectively. Died, 1919.

Fischer, Ernst Kuno Berthold, German historian of philosophy, was born at Sandewalde, Silesia, 1824. As a student of Erdmann at Halle he was smitten with the love of philosophy, and gave his life to the study of it. In 1856 he was elected to the chair of philosophy in Jena, and sixteen years later was called to Heidelberg as Zeller's successor. His chief work is a History of Modern Philosophy. Died, 1907.

Fischer, Louis Albert, physicist, was born at Washington, 1865; B.Sc., Columbian (now George Washington) University, 1884. In office of Weights and Measures, United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, 1891-1901; chief of weights and measures division, Bureau of Standards, with title of association physicist, 1901-1921. Author: Recomparison of United States Prototype Meter; History of Weights and Measures; etc. Compiler: Laws Relating to Weights and Measures in United States; etc. Died, 1921.

Fish, Hamilton, American diplomat, was born at New York in 1808. He graduated at Columbia in 1827. As secretary of state under Grant from 1869 to 1877, he signed the Washington treaty of 1871, and completed the settlement of the Alabama question. Died, 1893.

Fish, Stuyvesant, banker, railway official, was born in New York, 1851; graduated at Columbia, 1871, A.M., 1874; treasurer and purchasing agent of New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad, 1877-82; president Illinois Central Railroad Company, May, 1887, to November, 1906; trustee of New York life insurance and trust company, vice-president and director of National Park bank, and director in other corporations; president of American railway association, 1904-06. Died, 1923.

Fisher, George Park, historian, theologian, professor of divinity, 1854-61, and professor of ecclesiastical history, Yale, 1861-1909, was born at Wrentham, Mass., 1827; graduated from Brown, 1847; LL.D., Yale. He was the author of a number of books on universal and church history. Died, 1909.

Fisher, Harrison, American illustrator, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 1875. He was educated in San Francisco, and soon evinced fine capabilities in drawing and illustration. Author: The Harrison Fisher Book. Died, 1934.

Fisher, Irving, economist, professor of political economy at Yale since 1898, was born at Saugerties, N. Y., 1867. Studied at Berlin and Paris, 1893-94. Member of many economic and other learned societies. Editor of Yale Review 1896-1910; contributor to economic journals. Author: The Nature of Capital and Income; The Rate of Interest.

Fisher, John, bishop of Rochester, was born about 1457 at Beverley, Yorkshire, England. In 1483 he entered Michælhouse, now part of Trinity College, Cambridge, of which he became a fellow in 1491, and master in 1497. In 1527 he pronounced firmly against the divorce of Henry VIII.; and, for refusing the oath of succession, was sent with More to the Tower. In May, 1535, Pope Paul III. made him a cardinal; on June 17th the old man, worn by sickness and ill-usage, was tried for denial of the king's supremacy; on the 22d he was beheaded on Tower hill.

Fisher, Sir John Arbuthnot, admiral of the British navy, was born in 1841; commander-in-chief of North American and West Indies station, 1897; commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean, 1899-1902; Portsmouth, 1903; first sea lord, 1904; and admiral of the fleet, 1905. He was a member of the Esher war office committee, 1903. He received the degree LL.D. from Cambridge University. Died, 1920.

Fisher, Sydney Arthur, minister of agriculture, Canada, was born at Montreal, Canada, 1850; graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge, and adopted farming at Knowlton, in eastern townships, province of Quebec; entered parliament of Canada as M. P. for County Brome, 1882.

Fiske, Harrison Grey, editor and proprietor New York Dramatic Mirror, was born at Harrison, N. Y., 1861. Was editorial writer and dramatic critic, Jersey City Argus, and later on New York Star; became contributor to New York Dramatic Mirror, 1879, 1883, and became sole proprietor, 1888. He was manager of Mrs. Fiske, Bertha Kalich, and the Manhattan stock company.

Fiske, John, whose original name was Edmund Fiske Green, was born at Hartford, Conn., 1842. He was graduated from Harvard in 1863, and from Harvard law school in 1865. His Discovery of America was but one of a long series of important works on American history. His chief works are: Myths and Mythmakers; Outlines of Cosmic Philosophy; The Destiny of Man; The Idea of God; American Political Ideas, and The Critical Period of American History. Died, 1901.

Fiske, Minnie Maddern, American actress, was born in New Orleans, La., 1865, daughter of Thomas W. and Elizabeth (Maddern) Davey. At fifteen became a star, under the name of Minnie Maddern. Married, 1890, Harrison Grey Fiske, journalist and playright in whose Hester Crewe, she returned to the stage; she has starredin various plays. Died, 1932.

Fitch, John, American inventor, was born in Connecticut, 1743. In 1793 he went to France, to find his projects frustrated by the revolution; but it is said that his plans of a steamboat were shown to Robert Fulton. Penniless, Fitch worked his passage back to America, and there poisoned himself, 1798.

Fitch, William Clyde, author and playwright, was born in New York in 1865. He was graduated at Amherst, 1886; A.M., 1902. Author: The Smart Set; Nathan Hale; Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines; The Cowboy and the Lady; The Climbers; Lover's Lane; The Way of the World; The Girl With the Green Eyes; Her Own Way; The Woman in the Case; Girls, etc. Died, 1909.

Fitzgerald, Edward, English scholar, was born at Bredfield house in Suffolk, 1809. He entered Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took his degree in 1830. About this time he took up Persian, and in 1856 published an anonymous version of Jami's Salaman and Absal. The quatrains of Omar Khayyam were then little known, but Fitzgerald at once recognized their beauty, and his and Omar's names will remain indissolubly linked together through his rendering of them. Died, 1883.

Fitzgerald, Lord Edward, Irish revolutionist, was born in 1763, son of the duke of Leinster. In 1791-92 he visited France, fraternized with the leading republicans, and married the reputed daughter of the Duc d'Orleans and Mme. de Genlis. In 1796 he joined the "society of united Irishmen." Arrested on a charge of high treason, he died in prison, 1798.

Fitzgerald, John Joseph, lawyer, congressman, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 1872. He was graduated from Manhattan College, New York; studied law at the New York law school, LL.B., and was admitted to the bar, 1893; member of Congress, 1899. An able and resourceful debater; resigned from Congress to resume practice of law in New York.

Fitzpatrick, Sir Charles, Canadian jurist, chief-justice of Canada and deputy of the governor-general since 1906, was born at Quebec in 1853. He was educated at Quebec seminary; crown-prosecutor for city and district of Quebec, 1879; resigned as provincial member for Quebec county, 1896; and was elected to sit as member for Quebec county in Dominion parliament; solicitor-general, 1901; minister of justice, Dominion of Canada, 1901-06.

Flagg, James Montgomery, American illustrator, was born 1877, at Pelham Manor, N. Y. He studied at the Art Students' League in New York and in Paris. His first accepted drawing appeared in Life when he was only fourteen. He is a very fine portrait painter as well as illustrator. His best known work is in charcoal and pen and ink, though he uses all mediums. He has also written and illustrated several volumes of prose and verse.

Flagler, Henry M., capitalist, was born at Canandaigua, N. Y., 1830. Owned Ponce de Leon and Alcazar hotels, Florida, also owned about 600 miles of railroad in Florida. Vice-president and director of Standard Oil Company; director Western Union Telegraph company, Morton Trust company and other corporations. Died, 1913.

Flammarion (flà-mà-rē-'ôN), Camille, French astronomer, was born at Montigny-le-Roi, 1842. He was educated at Langres, the Paris observatory, and at the Sorbonne, Paris; entered the Paris observatory in 1858. Died, 1925.

Flamsteed (flam'stēd), John, first astronomer-royal of England, was born at Denby near Derby, 1646. His success in mathematics and astronomy procured for him the appointment of astronomer to the king in 1675. Next year Greenwich observatory was built, and Flamsteed began the observations that mark the rise of modern practical astronomy. Died, 1719.

Flandrin (flän'dran'), Jean Hippolyte, French painter, was born at Lyons, 1809. In 1832 he won the prix de Rome, and during his five years' residence in Italy produced St. Clare Healing the Blind, now in Nantes cathedral. In 1842 he began his great frescoes in the church of St. Germain-des-Près, Paris. After this he was mainly engaged in fresco painting, although he executed many fine portraits. He died at Rome, 1864.

Flaubert (flō'bâr'), Gustave, French novelist, was born at Rouen, 1821. Flaubert's life was extremely uneventful; in his youth some obscure form of brain-disease to some extent arrested his intellectual development. He was a very late producer, and his works, when they did appear, were marked by a strong and morbid idiosyncrasy. Died, 1880.

Flaxman, John, greatest of English sculptors, was born at York, 1755. At the age of fifteen he became a student in the Royal academy, but never worked in the studio of any master. He was elected an associate of the Royal academy in 1797, royal academician in 1800, and in 1810 was appointed professor of sculpture to that institution. Died, 1826.

Fleming, Sir Sanford, chancellor of Queen's University, Canada, 1880, was born in Scotland in 1827. Moved to Canada in 1845; president of royal society of Canada, 1880-89. Author: The Intercolonial, a History, 1832-76; England and Canada; The New Time Reckoning. Died in 1915.

Fletcher, Andrew, Scotch patriot and publicist was born in Saltoun, East Lothian, 1655. After some years of travel he sat in the Scottish parliament in 1681, and offered so determined an opposition to the measures of the duke of York that he had to flee to England, and thence to Holland. After the union of Scotland, with England, he retired in disgust from public life, devoting himself to promoting agriculture. He died at London in 1716.

Fletcher, Horace, author, lecturer, was born at Lawrence, Mass., 1849. He devoted his attention to sociology, and especially to scientific research in human nutrition, in chemical-physiological laboratories of University of Cambridge, England and Yale University. Died, 1919.

Fletcher, John, English dramatist, whose name is inseparably associated with that of his friend and co-worker, Francis Beaumont, was born in Northamptonshire, in 1576. The chief piece of his own unaided composition is a dramatic pastoral entitled The Faithful Shepherdess. The collaborated plays, such as The Scornful Lady, and Rule a Wife and Have a Wife, were during two centuries the delight of the stage. Died, 1625.

Fleury (flû'rē'), Andre Hercule de, Cardinal, French statesman and prelate, was born at Lodève, 1653. He became almoner to Louis XIV., in 1698 bishop of Fréjus, and preceptor to Louis XV., who in 1726 made him prime minister. In the same year he received the cardinal's hat. Died, 1743.

Fleury, Claude, French historian and ecclesiastic, was born at Paris, 1640; was tutor to various princes, prior of Argenteuil, and confessor to young Louis XV. Died, 1723.

Flexner, Simon, American physician, was born at Louisville, Ky., 1863. He graduated at the University of Louisville, M.D., 1889; D.Sc., Harvard, 1906; director of Ayer clinical laboratory, Pennsylvania hospital, 1901; pathologist, University hospital and Philadelphia hospital, 1900, and director of laboratories of Rockefeller Institute for medical research, New York.

Flint, Austin, American physician and medical writer, was born at Petersham, Mass., 1812. After graduation from the medical department of Harvard, he settled to practice in his native state. He was president of the New York academy of medicine, 1872-85. He is the author of a treatise on the diseases of the heart, Principles and Practice of Medicine, and Manual of Auscultation and Percussion. Died, at New York, 1886.

Flint, Austin, American physician and physiologist, son of preceding, was born in Northampton, Mass., 1836. Graduate of Jefferson medical college, 1857; LL.D., 1885. One of founders and professor of physiology, 1861-98, Bellevue hospital medical college; professor of physiology, Long Island college hospital, 1862-68; Cornell University medical college. Author: Physiology of Man, five vols.; Chemical Examination of the Urine in Disease; Physiological Effects of Severe and Prolonged Muscular Strain. Died in 1915.

Flint, Robert, British educator and philosophical writer, was born in Dumfriesshire, Scotland, 1838. He was educated at Glasgow University, and became parish minister. Professor of divinity Edinburgh University, 1876-1903. Author: Christ's Kingdom on Earth; Philosophy of History in Europe; Theism; Anti-Theistic Theories; Historical Philosophy in France; Socialism; Sermons and Addresses; Agnosticism. Died, 1910.

Flotow (flō'tō), Friedrich, Freiherr von, German composer, was born at Teutendorf in Mecklenburg, 1812. He studied music under Reicha, in Paris, and made his reputation by Le Naufrage de la Méduse, Stradella, and Martha, the last two characterized by pleasing melody. From 1856 to 1863 he was director of the theater at Schwerin. He died at Darmstadt, Germany, 1883.

Flourens (flōō'ràns'), Marie Jean Pierre, French physiologist, was born at Maureilhan, France, 1794. He attracted attention by works on the nervous system, and, after lecturing for Cuvier, 1828-30, became perpetual secretary of the academy of sciences, 1833, professor at the Collège de France, 1855, and member of the academy, 1840. Died, 1867.

Foch, Ferdinand, b. 1851 at Tarbies in the Pyrenees. Educ. Rodez, Saint Etienne, Metz. At St. Etienne he formed religious habits which he has since retained; received military training at Ecole Polytechnique and Ecole de Guerre, afterwards as a teacher in Ecole de Guerre he emphasized the study of handling large bodies of men. Is given credit for a large part in defeating the Germans at the Marne in 1914 by a counter attack, and later holding the important line from Soissons to the coast. In 1918 his appointment to supreme command of allied armies turned the tide for victory for the allies. Died, 1929.

Folk, Joseph Wingate, lawyer, former governor of Missouri, was born in Brownsville, Tenn., 1869. He was graduated at Vanderbilt University, and was admitted to the bar in 1890. He was circuit attorney, St. Louis, 1900-04, and prosecuted numerous bribery cases. From 1905 to 1909 he was governor of Missouri. Died, 1923.

Fontana (fŏn-tä'nä), Domenicho, celebrated Italian architect, was born on the borders of Lake Como in 1543. He erected the obelisk near St. Peter's, Rome, in 1586, and built the Lateran palace and Vatican library. Other important works were also confided to him by the pope. He died in 1607.

Fontenelle (fŏNt-nel'), Bernard le Bovier de, eminent French writer, was born at Rouen, 1657. He was a nephew of Corneille, the great tragic poet, and in 1699 was appointed perpetual secretary of the Academy of Sciences. His long life, extending over nearly one hundred years, was filled with literary activities, and, as a man of the world, his brilliant, though somewhat cynical wit, gave him a great reputation among his contemporaries. Died, 1757.

Foote, Andrew Hull, American naval officer, was born in New Haven, Conn., 1806. After the outbreak of the Civil War, he acted with signal credit in the reduction of Forts Henry and Donelson, 1862. In the same year he was promoted to rear-admiral. Died, 1863.

Foraker (fôr'ä-kẽr), Joseph Benson, lawyer, jurist, United States senator, 1897-1909, was born in 1846, on farm near Rainsboro, Highland county, Ohio. Enlisted July 14, 1862, in the 39th Ohio volunteer infantry, and served to end of war; graduated at Cornell, 1869; admitted to bar and began practice at Cincinnati, 1869; elected governor in 1885 and 1887; delegate-at-large from Ohio to national republican conventions, 1884-1904; in conventions of 1892 and 1896, served as chairman of committee on resolutions, presented name of William McKinley to the conventions of 1896 and 1900. He was elected to the United States senate in 1896, reëlected in 1902, and served until 1909. Died, 1917.

Forbes, Archibald, British war correspondent, special correspondent of the London Daily News, was born at Boharm, Manse, Keith, Scotland, 1838. He was for some years in the royal dragoons but in 1870-71 went through the Franco-German war as war correspondent. He lectured in Great Britain, America and Australia, and wrote Drawn From Life; Glimpses Through the Cannon Smoke; Chinese Gordon; Studi s of War and Peace; Napoleon III., etc. Died, 1900.

Forbes-Robertson, Johnston, English actor, was born in London in 1853. He was educated at Charterhouse, London, at Rouen, and at the Royal Academy of Arts. He has been theatrical manager since 1896. He played Romeo, Hamlet, and Macbeth, in a most impressive manner. He was the chief support of Mrs. Patrick Campbell in her tour of the United States.

Ford, Henry (1863—), auto manufacturer, has only a district school education, learned machinist's trade in Detroit. Designed practical automobile and organized Ford Motor Company, 1903, which grew phenomenally, and is now the largest plant in the world. Organized peace expedition, to end world war, 1915; expedition failed. Builder Ford Hospital, Detroit.

Ford, John, English dramatist, was born in Devon, 1586, studied at Exeter College, Oxford, and entered in 1602 the Middle Temple. His first work was an elegy on the earl of Devonshire entitled Fame's Memorial. Among those following were: The Lover's Melancholy; The Fancies Chaste and Noble, and The Lady's Trial. His two great tragedies, 'Tis Pity and the Broken Heart, are not far inferior to Webster's masterpieces. Died, 1639.

Ford, Paul Leicester, American author, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 1865. He was educated privately, and early devoted himself to literature. Author: The Honorable Peter Stirling; The True George Washington; The Many Sided Franklin; Janice Meredith; Wanted: A Chaperon, etc. Died at New York, 1902.

Forgan, James Berwick, financier, late president of First national bank, Chicago, was born at St. Andrews, Scotland, 1852. He was educated at Madras College and Forres academy, Scotland. About 1888 he became cashier and manager of the Northwestern national bank; came to First national bank, Chicago, as vice-president, 1892. He succeeded Lyman J. Gage as president of the latter. Died in 1924.

Forrest, Edwin, celebrated American acter, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1806. He went on the stage at fourteen, and finally made his way to New York, where his rendering of Othello, at the age of twenty raised him to the front rank among actors. After his final appearance on the stage in 1871 he continued for a short time to give Shakespearean readings. He left a splendid library exceedingly rich in Shakespearean literature, which was destroyed by fire in 1873. Died 1872.

Forster, John, English political and historical writer, was born at Newcastle, 1812. He was educated for the bar, but in 1832 became the dramatic critic of the True Sun. He edited successively the Foreign Quarterly Review, the Daily News and the Examiner. He was the author of many admirable biographical and historical essays. He died in 1876.

Forster, William Edward, English statesman, was born of Quaker parentage at Bradpole, Dorsetshire, 1818. In 1861 he entered parliament for Bradford. In 1870 he accepted a seat in the cabinet, and carried the elementary education bill; in 1872 he piloted the ballot bill through the commons. Under the Gladstone administration of 1880 Forster was chief-secretary for Ireland in troublous times. He was attacked unceasingly in parliament by the Irish members, and his life was threatened by the "invincibles." A strong opponent of home rule, he died in London, 1886.

Forsyth (fôr-sĭth'), John, American statesman, was born in Virginia, 1780. He practiced law in Georgia, was elected attorney-general of that state in 1808, and sat in congress from 1813 to 1818, when he became United States senator. In 1834 he resigned and served as secretary of state under Jackson and his successor, Van Buren, until he died in 1841.

Fortescue (fôr'tes-kū), Sir John, English jurist, was born in Somerset about 1394, and educated at Exeter College, Oxford. He accompanied Margaret of Anjou and her son into Scotland, and there was probably appointed lord chancellor by Henry VI. In 1463 he embarked with them for Holland, and during his exile wrote his celebrated De Laudibus Legum Angliae for the instruction of Prince Edward. Died, 1476.

Fortier, Alcee, university professor, was born at St. James Parish, La., 1856; was educated at the University of Virginia and in Paris; Litt.D., Washington and Lee, and Laval University. Professor of romance languages, Tulane University of Louisiana, since 1880. Author: Le Chateau de Chambord; Bits of Louisiana Folk-Lore; Histoire de la Littérature Française; Louisiana Studies; Louisiana Folk Tales; History of Louisiana; History of Mexico; etc. Editor of a number of French texts for colleges. Died, 1914.

Fortuny (fôr-tōō'nē), Mariano, Spanish painter, was born at Reus in Tarragona, 1839. When Spain declared war against Morocco, Fortuny followed the army, and filled his portfolios with studies of eastern life. He died at Rome in 1874.

Foscari (fos'kä-rē), Francesco, was born about 1372. He was named procurator to St. Mark's at Venice in 1415, and became doge of that city in 1423. He was forced to abdicate in 1457. He survived his loss of power but two days. Died, 1457.

Fosdick, Harry Emerson, clergyman and religious writer, was born at Buffalo, N. Y., 1878. Educated at Colgate University and Union Theological Seminary. Became Baptist minister at Montclair. In 1908 removed to New York to be pastor of the First Presbyterian Church and to teach practical theology at the Seminary. Among his writings are The Meaning of Faith, The Meaning of Prayer, and Twelve Tests of Character.

Foster, George Eulas, member of the privy council of Canada; general manager of the Union Trust company, ltd., was born in New Brunswick, Canada, 1847; educated at the University of New Brunswick, Edinburgh University, and Heidelberg; became minister of marine in Sir John A. Macdonald's government, 1885; finance minister, 1888, in same ministry.

Foster, John Watson, lawyer, diplomat, was born in Pike county, Ind., 1836. He was graduated from Indiana University, 1855; student one year at Harvard Law School; LL.D., Princeton. Entered the Union army in 1861 as major of the 25th Indiana volunteers, and was promoted to lieutenant-colonel and colonel in Indiana regiments, and brevetted brigadier-general. Established, 1881, in practice in international cases in Washington, representing foreign legations before commissions, arbitration boards, etc. Minister to Spain, 1883-85; invited by emperor of China and participated in peace negotiations with Japan; agent for United States Alaskan boundary tribunal, London, 1903. Author: A Century of American Diplomacy, American Diplomacy in the Orient; Arbitration and the Hague. Died, 1917.

Foster, Sir Michael, English physiologist, was born at Huntington, 1836; practiced there, 1860-66; in 1870 became lecturer on physiology at Trinity College, Cambridge, and was professor of physiology in the university, 1883-1903. His best known work is his Text-Book of Physiology. He died in 1907.

Foster, Stephen Collins, American song writer, was born in Pittsburg, Pa., 1826. He first wrote negro melodies, Old Uncle Ned, and Oh, Susanna, which immediately gained a wide popularity. Nelly Bly, My Old Kentucky Home, and O Boys, Carry me 'Long, were just as popular. He died in New York, 1864.

Foucault (fōō'kō), Jean Bernard Leon, French physicist, was born at Paris, 1819. He demonstrated the rotation of the earth by means of a graduated disk, invented the gyroscope and introduced physics into the study of astronomy. Died, 1868.

Fouche (fōō'shā'), Joseph, duke of Otranto, French revolutionist and statesman, was born at Nantes in 1763. In 1792 he obtained a seat in the national convention, and on the trial of Louis XVI. voted for death without appeal. At a later period he became Napoleon Bonaparte's minister of police, and in 1809 was created duke of Otranto. Subsequently, Bonaparte having returned from Elba, Fouché again became minister of police. He advised Bonaparte to abdicate after the battle of Waterloo, was placed at the head of the provisional government by the chambers and negotiated with the allies. Died, 1820.

Foulke (fōlk), William Dudley, author, publicist, was born in New York, 1848. He was graduated from Columbia, 1869, and Columbia Law School, 1871. Removed to Indiana, 1876. United States civil service commissioner, 1901-03. Author: Slav or Saxon; Life of Oliver P. Morton; Maya, a Story of Yucatan; Protean Papers; frequent contributor to magazines on history and other subjects. Died, 1935.

Fouque (fōō'kā'), Friedrich Heinrich Karl de la Motte, famous German novelist and poet, was born in Brandenburg, 1777. He died in Berlin, 1843.

Fourier (fōō'rē-ā'), Francois Charles Marie, famous French socialist, was born in Besancon, 1772. In 1808 he disseminated his peculiar views on socialism by the publication of a work entitled A Theory of Four Movements and General Destinies, which in 1822 was reproduced in a completed form under the name of A Treatise on Domestic and Agricultural Association. Died, 1837.

Fourier, Jean Baptiste Joseph, baron, celebrated French geometrician, was born at Auxerre in 1768. In 1802 he was appointed prefect of the Isère, and in 1815 of the Rhône. Being afterward displaced, he gave himself up entirely to scientific studies; was admitted in 1817 a member of the academy of sciences. His chief works are Annales de Physique, theorie de la Chaleur, and the 'Analyse des Equations Déterminées. He died in 1830.

Fox, Charles James, English statesman, was born in Westminster, 1749. He was educated at Eton and at Hertford College, Oxford, entered parliament at the age of nineteen as member for Midhurst. In 1782 he became secretary of state under Lord Rockingham, but on the latter's death, in the same year, refused to serve under Lord Shelburne. When his great rival, Pitt, formed his last administration, he wished Fox to join it, but the king gave a steady refusal. On Pitt's death, in 1806, the king was at last obliged to admit him to office, and Fox became foreign secretary in Grenville's ministry. His last motion in parliament was directed against the slave trade, and he died at Chiswick in 1806, a few months before the measure founded upon it passed into law. He was the first orator of his time.

Fox, George, founder of the society of Friends, was born in County Leicester, England, 1624. Early adopting the peculiar tenets and manners known as Quakerism, he suffered for many years continual persecution. His leading doctrines or convictions were the futility of learning for the work of the ministry, the presence of Christ in the heart as the "inner light" and the necessity of trying men's opinions and religious by the Holy Spirit, and not by the scriptures. He died in London, 1691.

Fox, John, English martyrologist, was born at Boston, in Lincolnshire, 1517. At sixteen he entered Brasenose College, Oxford, and was a fellow of Magdalen, 1538-45. On Queen Elizabeth's accession he was pensioned by his old pupil the duke of Norfolk, and received a prebend of Salisbury cathedral, 1563. He published numerous books, but the one upon which his fame rests is popularly known as Foxe's Book of Martyrs. Died, 1587.

Fox, John, Jr., American novelist, was born in Kentucky, 1863, and was graduated from Harvard in 1883. After some experience in journalism, he traveled in Southern states and California, and afterward engaged in business at Cumberland Gap, where he had ample opportunity for the study of mountain life. Died, 1919.

Fragonard (frä-gō-närʹ), Jean Honore, French painter, was born at Grasse, 1732, and gained the prix de Rome in 1752. In 1765 he received 2,400 francs, from Louis XV. for his Callirrhoe, commissioned for reproduction in Gobelins tapestry. Died, 1806.

France (frăns), Jacques Anatole Thibault, French author, member of French academy, was born in Paris, 1844, and educated at Collège Stanislaus. Author: Le Crime de Sylvester Bonnard; L'Etus de Nacre; La Vie Littéraire; Le Mannequin d'Osier; Vie de Jeanne d'Arc, etc. Died, 1924.

Francia (frän'se-ä), Jose Gaspar Rodriguez, dictator of Paraguay, was born near Asuncion, about 1757. Though politically despotic, he improved agriculture, promoted education, repressed superstition and enforced strict justice in his law courts, however little he regarded it for himself. Died, 1840.

Francis I., king of France, was born at Cognac, France, 1494, and became king in 1515. His first act was to reconquer Milan. His reign is marked by the French renaissance, the beginning of the Protestant reformation, and the strengthening of the power of the monarchy. He fostered learning and art, invited painters and scholars to his kingdom, founded libraries, opened schools and built several of the finest palaces in France; but his persecution of the Vaudois has left a stain on his memory. He died in 1547.

Francis I., emperor of Germany, was born in 1708, eldest son of Leopold, duke of Lorraine. On the death of his father, 1729, Francis succeeded him in the dukedom, which in 1735, he ceded to Stanislaus Leszcynski, father-in-law of Louis XV., to revert after his death to the crown of France. Francis died at Innsbruck, 1765. His son Joseph succeeded him.

Francis II., emperor of Germany, and I. of Austria, was born at Florence, Italy, 1768, and succeeded his father, Leopold II., in 1792. His reign was a series of wars against Napoleon, in which, with the exception of the last, he was beaten. In 1806 he formally abdicated the crown of the holy Roman empire. He died at Vienna, 1835.

Francis Ferdinand of Austria, archduke, son of the late Archduke Charles Louis, by his second marriage with the Princess Maria Annonciata, daughter of Ferdinand II., king of the Two Sicilies, was born at Gratz, 1863. His murder in Bosnia, June, 1914, was the signal for the opening of the European war. The heirship of the thrones of Austria and Hungary then fell to Charles Francis Joseph.

Francis Joseph Charles, emperor of Austria and king of Hungary, was born in 1830, son of the Archduke Francis Charles, and grandson of the Emperor Francis I., and nephew of the Emperor Ferdinand I. He took part in the campaign against the Hungarians, and was present at the capture of Raab in June, 1849. Restored to the mastery of his dominions, he proceeded to undo the work of 1848. A dispute between Austria and Prussia as to Schleswig-Holstein led to war between the two nations in 1866. In this war the Austrians were completely defeated, and were compelled to accept the North German confederation under the leadership of Prussia, and to give up Venice to Italy. After these disasters the emperor restored national self-government to Hungary, and in June, 1877, was declared king of that country. By the suicide of Crown Prince Rudolph in 1889, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, the emperor's nephew, became heir. The murder of the archduke and his wife in Bosnia, June 28, 1914, precipitated the great European war. Francis Joseph died November, 1916, after reigning 68 years. The crown fell to his grand-nephew, Charles Francis Joseph, of Austria.

Francis, Charles Spencer, journalist, diplomat, was born in Troy, N. Y., 1853; graduated from Cornell University, 1877. On his father's death, 1897, succeeded to editorial direction and sole ownership of Troy Times; regent of University of the State of New York, 1903-06. United States minister to Greece, Roumania, and Servia, 1900-02; ambassador to Austria-Hungary. Died, 1911.

Francis, David Rowland, merchant, ex-governor of Missouri, was born at Richmond, Ky., 1850. He was graduated at Washington University 1870; LL.D.; in 1877 established what became Francis, Brother and Co., and D. R. Francis and Brother Commission company, grain merchants, of which he is president. Mayor of St. Louis, 1885-89; governor of Missouri, 1889-93; secretary of the interior, United States, 1896-97. Died, 1927.

Francis, Sir Phillip, reputed author of the Junius Letters, was born in Dublin, 1740. Leaving Ireland at twelve, he entered St. Paul's school in London, and at sixteen became a junior clerk in the secretary of state's office. In 1816 John Taylor wrote a book identifying Francis with Junius, but Francis never acknowledged having written the seventy letters, which appeared in the Public Advertiser, 1772. He died in 1818.

Francis de Sales (frăn'sis de sāl), Saint, an eminent theologian, orator, and writer, bishop of Geneva, was born at Sales, near Geneva, 1567, died in 1622, and was canonized in 1665. He was a Savoyard, coadjutor bishop, 1599; bishop of Geneva, 1602; and cofounder of the order of the Visitation, 1610.

Francis of Assisi, founder of the Franciscan order, one of the most extraordinary men of his age, was born 1182. His baptismal name was John; but from his familiarity with the Romance, or language of the troubadours, in his youth, he acquired the name of Il Francesco, "The little Frenchman."

He engaged eagerly in exercises of chivalry and of arms; and in one of the petty feuds of the time he was taken prisoner and detained for a year in captivity at Perugia. An illness which he there contracted turned his thoughts from earth; and although he again engaged in military pursuits, a second illness, at Spoleto, decided his career for life. He resolved to fulfill literally the counsels of the gospel, and he especially devoted himself to poverty. His father having in vain confined him in a dark room of his own house, cited him before magistrates, and, on Francis' declining all civil jurisdiction in such a case, before the bishop, in order to compel him to renounce his inheritance. Francis abandoned all, even to the very clothes he wore. This was in his 26th year, in 1208.

His enthusiasm by degrees excited emulation. Two of his fellow-townsmen, Bernard Quintavelle and Peter Cattano, were his first associates. They were followed, although slowly, by others; and it was not until 1210 that, for his brotherhood, now increased to eleven in number, he drew up a rule, selected in the true spirit of religious enthusiasm, by thrice opening at random the gospels upon the altar, and taking the passages thus indicated as the basis of the young institute. In common with the older forms of monastic life, the Franciscan institute is founded on the three vows of chastity, poverty, and obedience; but of these the second was, in the eyes of Francis, the first in importance and in spiritual efficacy.

Numbers now crowded to the standard of Francis and he sent them off in parties to different provinces of Italy. Five of the brotherhood repaired to Morocco to preach to the Moors, and, as the first martyrs of the order, fell victims to their holy daring. Success removed all the hesitation with which the institute at first was regarded, and in 1216 the order was solemnly approved by Pope Innocent. From this date it increased with extraordinary rapidity. At the first general assembly, held in 1219, 5,000 members were present. Francis himself inaugurated the future missionary character of his brotherhood by going (1223) to the East, and preaching the gospel in the presence of the sultan himself. It is after his return to Italy that his biographers place the celebrated legend, which, to friends or to enemies, has so long been a subject of veneration or of ridicule—his receiving, while in an ecstasy of prayer, the marks (stigmata) upon his own person of the wounds of our divine redeemer. Francis died in 1226.

References.—Lives by St. Bonaventura, Hase, Paul Sabatier, Mrs. Oliphant, Alemany, and Chérancé. Also Butler's Lives of the Saints; Milman's History of Latin Christianity; Francis and Dominic, by Professor Herkless; and Carmichael's The Lady of Poverty.

Francis of Paola (pou'lä), Saint, founder of the Minims, was born in 1416 at Paola in Calabria. At thirteen he was a Franciscan; and at nineteen he retired to a cave and inflicted on himself every species of self-mortification. He died at Plessis on Good Friday, 1507; and was canonized in 1519.

Francis Xavier, Saint. See Xavier.

Francke (frăng'kē), Kuno, educator, literary critic, curator of Germanic museum, Harvard University, was born at Kiel, Germany, 1855; graduated gymnasium, Kiel, 1873; Ph.D., University of Munich, 1878; LL.D., University of Wisconsin, 1904.

Frank, Glenn, university president, writer, lecturer, was born in Queens City, Mo., 1887. Graduated from Northwestern University, 1912; LL.D., 1926. Associate editor, Century Magazine, 1919-21, editor-in-chief, 1921-25. President of University of Wisconsin 1925——.

Frank, Henry, lecturer, author, was born at Lafayette, Ind., 1854; graduated from Phillips academy, Andover, Mass., 1874; founded, 1897, and since pastor of Metropolitan Independent church, Carnegie lyceum, New York. Actively engaged in social reform, and ethical forward movements. Associate editor of Metaphysical Magazine, 1901-02. Author: Skeleton and the Rose; His Bold Experiment (a sociological novel).

Frankland, Percy Faraday, English chemist, professor of chemistry, the university, Birmingham, since 1900, was born at London, 1858. He was educated at University college school, London, president of the institute of chemistry, 1906; member of council of Royal society, 1903.

Franklin, Benjamin, American writer and statesman, was born at Boston, 1706, died at Philadelphia, 1790. He was placed with his brother, a printer, to serve an apprenticeship to that trade, and his brother having started the New England Courant, Franklin secretly wrote some pieces for it and had the satisfaction to find them well received. But, on this coming to the knowledge of his brother, he was severely lectured for his presumption, and treated with great harshness. Soon after he quitted his brother's employment, and at the age of seventeen started for Philadelphia, where he obtained employment as a compositor.

Here he attracted the notice of Sir William Keith, the governor of Pennsylvania, who induced him to go to England for the purpose of purchasing types to establish himself in business. He got work in a printing office, and after a residence of eighteen months in London returned to Philadelphia. He again returned to his trade, and in a short time formed a partnership for the publication of a newspaper, which was managed with such ability that Franklin acquired much reputation. By his exertions, a public library, improved systems of education, a scheme of insurance, etc., were established in Philadelphia.

In 1732 he published his Poor Richard's Almanack, which continued to be issued till 1757. In 1746 he saw, for the first time, some experiments in electricity, which led him to begin those investigations which resulted in the identification of lightning and electricity, and the invention of the lightning conductor. As member of the provincial assembly of Pennsylvania he showed himself very active, and in 1757 he was sent to England as the agent of the province. His reputation was now such, both at home and abroad, that he was appointed agent of the provinces of Massachusetts, Maryland, and Georgia. Oxford and Edinburgh conferred on him their highest academical degrees, and the Royal society elected him a fellow.

In 1762 he returned to America; but was again appointed agent in 1764, and brought to England a remonstrance against the project of taxing the colonies. He opposed the stamp act, and in 1774 presented to the king the petition of the first American Congress. On his return he was elected member of the Congress, and exerted all his influence in favor of the Declaration of Independence. In 1776 he was sent to France as commissioner plenipotentiary, to obtain supplies from that court. After the surrender of Burgoyne he concluded with France the first treaty of the United States with a foreign power (1778), and was subsequently named one of the commissioners for negotiating peace with the mother country. On his return to his native country he filled the office of governor of Pennsylvania, served as a delegate in the Federal convention of 1787, and approved the constitution then formed. His works include his unfinished Autobiography and a great number of political, anti-slavery, financial, economic, and scientific papers.

References.—See Lives of Franklin by Sparks, Parton, and Morse. Also McMaster's Benjamin Franklin as a Man of Letters; Ford, The Many-Sided Franklin; Fisher, The True Benjamin Franklin; Hale, Franklin in France; and MacDonald, Some Account of Franklin's Later Life, Principally in Relation to the History of His Times.

Franklin, Sir John (1786-1847), arctic explorer, commanded expedition in 1845 for discovery of northwest passage. Expedition searching for the missing boats found only relics and skeletons, the men having perished by starvation and exposure in 1847.

Franklin, William Suddards, educator, electrician, was born in Geary City, Kan., 1863. He was graduated at the University of Kansas, 1887; M.S., 1888; professor of physics and electrical engineering, Iowa State College, 1892-97; Lehigh University, 1897-1903; professor of physics, Lehigh, 1903-1915; Died, 1930.

Franz (frănts), Robert, German composer, was born, lived, and died at Halle, 1815-92. Franz's best songs rank with those of Schubert and Schumann. His published works first appeared in 1843.

Franzen (frăn-sān'), Frans Michael, Swedish poet, was born in Uleaborg, Finland, 1772. After the conquest of Finland, he settled in Sweden as a clergyman, finally removing to Stockholm where he was made bishop. He wrote: Emili, or an Evening in Lapland; Columbus; Gustav Adolf in Germany. Died, 1847.

Franzos (frăn'tsōs), Karl Emil, Austrian novelist, was born in Russian Podolia of Jewish parentage, 1848. Among his principal works are Aus Halbasien, sketches of South Russia and Roumania, and the novel Junge Liebe. Died, 1904.

Fraser, Alexander Campbell, British author and educator, professor emeritus of logic and metaphysics in Edinburgh University, was born at Ardchattan manse, County Argyll, 1819. D.C.L., Oxford; LL.D., Princeton; Litt.D., Dublin. Author: Essays in Philosophy; Essays, Philosophical and Miscellaneous; Collected Works of Bishop Berkeley, annotated. Died, 1914.

Fraunhofer (froun'hō-fĕr), Joseph von, German optician, was born at Straubing in Bavaria, 1787. In 1807 he was employed to found an optical institute at Benediktbeuern, which, under his management, was in 1819 removed to Munich. He is most celebrated for his improvements in telescope prisms and in the mechanism for manipulating large telescopes, and above all for his discovery of the dark lines in the sun's spectrum. Died, 1826.

Frederick I., called Barbarossa or Redbeard, was born about 1121, and became emperor of Germany in 1152. At home he managed his vassals by a system of conciliation, and by keeping the balance of power among them equal. He asserted his power, moreover, over Poland, Hungary, Denmark, and Burgundy. At the height of his fame and influence, he took the cross to fight against Saladin. He defeated the Mohammedans in two battles, but was himself drowned in Pisidia, 1190.

Frederick II., of Germany, son of Emperor Henry VI., was born at Jesi near Ancona, 1194. In his fourth year his father died, leaving him king of Sicily. When eighteen he wrested the imperial crown from Otto IV., and was crowned in 1215. During his reign he was engaged in a harassing contest with the pope, whose hands were strengthened by the accession of the revolted Lombard cities and of several princes and towns of Germany, headed by his son, Henry. Disaster and misfortune were gathering around him, when he died at Fiorentino in 1250.

Frederick II. of Prussia, commonly called Frederick the Great, was born, 1712, and began to reign in 1740. He found himself in possession of a full treasury and a powerful army, which he soon employed in attacking Austria, and conquering the province of Silesia (1740-1742). In 1744 he engaged in a second war with Austria, which was terminated in 1745, and left him in possession of Silesia, but with no augmentation of power, though his military renown was raised throughout Europe.

The great struggle of the Seven Years' War began in 1756. Prussia was now attacked by the Austrians, the Russians, the French, the Saxons, and the Swedes, and its destruction and dismemberment seemed inevitable. England was Prussia's only ally; but the country went through the struggle and came out triumphant. When the peace of Hubertsburg was concluded in 1763, Prussia did not cede an inch of land or pay a dollar of money; and from that time forth was recognized as one of the five great powers of Europe. For this glorious result it was indebted to Frederick.

It is not merely the military genius of Frederick, as displayed during the sanguinary campaigns of the Seven Years' War, that demands our attention, but we must also admire his moral courage and his indomitable energy under reverses which would have crushed almost any other spirit. Though victorious at Prague, at Rosbach, and Lissa (1757), at Zorndorf (1758), at Liegnitz and Torgau (1760), he suffered heavy defeats at Collin (1757), at Hochkirchen (1758), at Kunnersdorf (1759); and his lieutenants, with the exception of Prince Ferdinand of Brunswick, were generally unsuccessful. But Frederick's firmness never failed him, even when all hope seemed lost. In a period of extreme danger, he wrote to Voltaire (who had advised him to beg mercy from his enemies), "I am a man, and therefore born to suffer. To the rigor of destiny I oppose my own constancy. Menaced with shipwreck, I will bear the storm; I will be king in spirit; and I will die, as I have lived, a king."

After the conclusion of the war Frederick exerted himself earnestly in relieving the suffering which so many years of carnage and devastation had brought upon Prussia. He died in 1786. He was fond of the society of literary men, and was himself an author of many works of considerable merit. During his struggles against Austria and France Frederick was regarded in England and America as the champion of Protestantism, and he was called a second Gustavus Adolphus. He ill deserved the title. The disciple of Voltaire, he is supposed to have had no religious faith whatever.

References.—Carlyle's History of Frederick II. Droysen's Friedrich der Grosse; Kugler's Hist. of Frederick the Great; Longman's Frederick the Great and the Seven Years' War; and Reddaway's Frederick the Great.

Frederick III., eighth king of Prussia and emperor of Germany, son of William I., was born near Potsdam, 1831. After arousing the world's best expectations by his goodness and wisdom no less than by his bravery, he ascended the throne in 1888, during his last illness, in which he suffered as heroically as he had fought. He died when fifty-seven years old, 1888. He was succeeded by his son, William II.

Frederick VI., king of Denmark, son of Christian VII. and the princess Caroline Matilda, was born in 1768. Frederick ascended the throne on the death of his father in 1808. In 1814 he was robbed of Norway, and was at last compelled to send a contingent of 10,000 men against the French. The country had become bankrupt in 1813, but by his wise measures financial order was finally restored. Died, 1839.

Frederick Charles, prince and field-marshal of Germany, was born in Berlin, 1828. He was the eldest son of Prince Charles, brother of Emperor William I. He was known as "the red prince" from the fact that he always wore a red hussar uniform. His daughter, Louise Margaret, married the duke of Connaught, son of Queen Victoria, in 1879. Died, 1885.

Frederick William, the great elector of Brandenburg, was born in 1620. On his accession in 1640 he found the state disorganized, exhausted and devastated by the Thirty Years' war. He strenuously regulated the finances, made a treaty of neutrality with Sweden, organized his army, and strove to repeople his deserted towns and villages. By the treaty of Westphalia, 1648, he recovered eastern Pomerania, Halberstadt, and Minden, with the reversion of the archbishopric of Magdeburg; and out of a quarrel between Sweden and Poland he contrived to secure the independence of the duchy of Prussia from Poland, 1657. He founded the royal library at Berlin, reörganized the universities, opened canals, established posts and greatly enlarged Berlin. He left a well-filled exchequer and a highly organized army. He made Brandenburg virtually an absolute monarchy, only less powerful than Austria. He died at Potsdam in 1688, and his son became King Frederick I. of Prussia.

Frederick William I., king of Prussia, son of Frederick I., was born 1688, and on his accession in 1713 became embroiled in the war waged by Sweden against Russia, Poland, and Denmark, at the end of which he acquired Pomerania with Stettin. The remainder of his reign was devoted to improving the internal condition of Prussia. He was sternly practical, blunt, and determined; he despised the arts and sciences, was rigidly economical and strict in his ideas of justice. At his death in 1740 he left a treasure of $5,750,000, and an army of more than 80,000 men, the best disciplined force in Europe, which made Prussia fourth in military power.

Frederick William II., king of Prussia, nephew of Frederick the Great, was born in 1744. The abolition of some of his predecessor's oppressive measures made him very popular at his accession in 1786. He acquired large areas of Polish Prussia and Silesia by the partitions of Poland in 1793 and 1795, as also Ansbach and Baireuth. He died in 1797.

Frederick William III., of Prussia, son of Frederick William II., was born in 1770. He was more than once embroiled with the pope on account of his violation of the concordat. He concluded the great German commercial league known as the Zollverein, which organized the German customs and duties in accordance with one uniform system. Died, 1840.

Freeman, Edward Augustus, eminent English historian, was born at Harborne, England, 1823. He was educated at Trinity College, Oxford. He wrote histories of the Saracens and of the Ottoman power in Europe; General Sketch of European History; Growth of the English Constitution; Comparative Politics; Historical Geography of Europe; William the Conqueror; and various other works. In 1884 he was appointed regius professor of modern history at Oxford. Died, 1892.

Freeman, John Ripley, civil and mechanical engineer, was born in West Bridgeton, Me., 1855; graduated at the Massachusetts institute of technology, 1876; honorary Sc.D.; chief engineer investigations Charles river dam, Boston harbor, 1903; engineer member of Massachusetts metropolitan water board, 1895-96. Consulting engineer to New York board of water supply since 1905; consulting engineer isthmian canal locks and dams, 1907.

Freeman, Mary E. Wilkins, author, was born at Randolph, Mass., 1862. She was educated there and at Mt. Holyoke seminary, 1874; came into prominence as a writer for magazines, poems, short stories, etc.; married Dr. Charles M. Freeman, 1902. Author: A Humble Romance; Evelina's Garden; The Love of Parson Lord; By the Light of the Soul; Yates Pride. Died, 1930.

Freiligrath (frī'lĭg-rät), Ferdinand, German poet, was born at Detmold, 1810, and was led by the success of a volume of poems published in 1838 to desert commerce for literature. Chief among his political poems are Ca Ira, and Neuere Politische und Soziale Gedichte. He translated Longfellow, Shakespeare, etc. His collected works appeared in 1870. Died 1876.

Frelinghuysen (frĕ'ling-hī-zen), Frederick, American statesman, was born in New Jersey, 1753. He raised a corps of artillery, fought in the Revolutionary war, was a member of the continental congress in 1778 and 1782-83, and a United States senator in 1793-96. He died in 1804.

Frelinghuysen, Frederick Theodore, nephew of above, was born in New Jersey, 1817. From 1866 to 1869 he served as United States senator. He was a member of the Hayes-Tilden electoral commission. In 1881 he became secretary of state in President Arthur's cabinet, and held office until his death in 1885.

Frelinghuysen, Theodore, son of Frederick, was born in New Jersey in 1787. He studied law, practiced in New Jersey. In 1829 he was chosen United States senator, and served until 1835. Afterward he was mayor of Newark, and in 1839 became chancellor of the University of New York. In 1850 he became president of Rutgers College, which position he held until his death in 1862.

Fremiet (frā-mye'), Emmanuel, noted French sculptor, was born at Paris, 1824. He studied at La Petite Ecole, and under Rude; made drawings at the Jardin des Plantes, and later drew plates for medical works. Died, 1910.

Fremont (frē-mont'), John Charles, explorer of the Rocky mountains, was born at Savannah, Ga., 1813. In 1842 he crossed the Rocky mountains, and demonstrated the feasibility of an overland route across the continent. During the Mexican war he cleared northern California of Mexican troops. In 1849 he settled in California; was United States Senator, 1850-1; and first Republican candidate for President in 1856. In 1861-62 he served in the regular army as major-general. He was governor of Arizona in 1878-82 and died in New York, 1890.

French, Alice, author, better known as Octave Thanet, was born at Andover, Mass., 1850, daughter of Hon. George Henry French. She was educated at Abbot academy there, but her life since then has been spent in the South and West. Author of Man of the Hour, The Heart of Toil, etc.

French, Daniel Chester, American sculptor, was born at Exeter, N. H., 1850. He was educated in Exeter, N. H., and Massachusetts institute of technology, Boston, one year; A.M., Dartmouth College; studied art with William Rimmer in Boston, and with Thomas Ball in Florence, Italy; occupied a studio in Washington, 1876-78; in Boston and Concord, Mass., 1878-87; and in New York, 1887-1900. Among his best-known works are: The Minute Man of Concord, at Concord, Mass. John Harvard. Died, 1931.

Freneau (frē-nō'), Philip, American poet, was born in New York City, 1752. After the return of peace Freneau became in succession editor of a newspaper, and captain of a ship. In 1790 he edited the New York Daily Advertiser. From that time until his death he rarely came before the public. Died, 1832.

Frere (frâr), Pierre Edouard, French painter, was born at Paris, 1819. He studied under Delaroche. His paintings are mostly figures and scenes from domestic life. He died at Ecouen, 1886.

Fresenius (frā-zā'nē-ŏŏs), Karl Remigius, noted German chemist, was born in 1818. He studied at Bonn and Giessen under Liebig, and in 1845 became professor of chemistry at Wiesbaden. Died, 1897.

Fresnel (frā-nel'), Jean Augustin, eminent French physicist, was born at Broglie, Eure, France, 1788. He was educated at the polytechnic school in Paris, and in 1816 received a permanent appointment there through the celebrated Arago. He invented the compound lighthouse lens. He died in 1827.

Freud, Sigmund, Austrian psychiatrist and founder of psychoanalysis, was born at Freiberg in 1856. He was educated at the University of Vienna and became assistant professor of neuropathology at that institution. He became widely celebrated for his method of treating nervous diseases through the "sub-conscious," formulating a unique theory of the significance of dreams. He visited the United States in 1909. His books include Studies on Hysteria, Interpretation of Dreams, and The Introduction to Psychoanalysis.

Freund (froint), Wilhelm, German philologist, was born of Jewish parents at Kempen in Posen, 1806. On his Wörterbuch der lateinischen Sprache most English-Latin dictionaries are based. Died, 1894.

Freycinet (frā'sē'nē'), Charles Louis de Saulces de, French statesman, was born at Foix, France, 1828. He was graduated at the Polytechnic school in Paris, 1848, and was originally an engineer. Elected to the senate in 1876, he became minister of public works in 1877, premier in 1879, 1882, 1886 and 1890, and in 1892 remained war minister under his successor, M. Loubet. Admitted to the academy of sciences in 1887, and to the French academy in 1890. Died 1923.

Freytag (frī'täg), Gustav, German novelist and dramatic writer, was born in Silesia, 1816. He studied at Breslau and Berlin, and lectured on German literature in the University at Breslau. He wrote poems, successful plays and novels. His best-known work is Debit and Credit, which has appeared in several English translations. He died at Wiesbaden, 1895.

Frick, Henry Clay, manufacturer, philanthropist, was born in West Overton, Pa., 1849. Was president, and chairman of board of directors of the H. C. Frick coke company, now the largest coke producer in the world, operating nearly 40,000 acres of coal and 12,000 coke ovens, with daily capacity of 25,000 tons. Died, 1919.

Frobisher (frob'ish-ẽr or frō'bish-ẽr), Sir Martin, famous English navigator, was born near Doncaster about 1535, and brought up to the sea. Persuaded that there was a northwest passage to the Indies, and after many fruitless efforts to enlist the merchants in his cause, he obtained in 1576 from the government of Queen Elizabeth three vessels, explored portions of the Arctic coast, and, passing through the strait which has since borne his name, he returned to England and was knighted. Died, 1594.

Froebel (frū'bel), Friedrich Wilhelm, founder of the famous kindergarten system, was born at Oberweissbach Germany, 1782. He founded a kindergarten at Blankenburg in 1837. His system was founded on that of Pestalozzi—under whom he worked from 1807 to 1809—which combined physical, moral, and intellectual training, commencing with the years of childhood. Died, 1852.

Frohman, Charles, theatrical manager, was born at Sandusky, Ohio, 1860. He was educated in the public schools of New York. In 1881 he saw Shenandoah at a Boston museum; organized a company and bought rights to that play, outside of Boston; made a great success with that and succeeding ventures; organized Charles Frohman stock company, 1890. Lost at sea, 1915.

Frohman, Daniel, theatrical manager, was born at Sandusky, Ohio, 1853. Manager of Fifth Avenue theater and Madison Square theater New York, 1879-85; manager of Lyceum theater, manager of Daly's theater, New York, and Daniel Frohman stock company. President of actors' fund of America.

Fromentin (frō'mäN'tan'), Eugene, French painter and author, was born at La Rochelle, France, 1820. He was a pupil of Rémond and Cabat; traveled in 1842-46 in Algeria, Egypt, and the East, and was made an officier of the legion of honor, 1859. Died, 1876.

Frontenac (Fr. frôN'tē-nāk'; Eng., fron'tē-nak), Louis de Buade, Comte de, French colonial officer, governor of Canada, was born in 1621. He served in the French army, and in 1672 was appointed governor of the French possessions in North America. He died at Quebec, 1698.

Frost, Arthur Burdett, illustrator, author, was born at Philadelphia, Pa., 1851. He was self-taught in art, and exhibited at the Paris exposition, 1900. Author: Bull Calf and Other Tales; Golfers, Alphabet; etc. Died, 1928.

Frost, Robert, American poet, was born at San Francisco in 1875. At the age of ten he came to the New England hills where his ancestors had lived. The routine of school was not to his liking, so he worked at various trades for several years, meanwhile writing verses, but receiving no recognition. In 1912 he went with his family to England, and in 1913 his first volume, A Boy's Will, was published, followed by North of Boston, both of which secured for Frost a high place among modern poets. In 1915 he published Mountain Interval. He taught in Amherst College for three years, then in the University of Michigan, but returned to Amherst in 1923.

Frothingham, Arthur Lincoln, Jr., university professor, was born at Boston, 1859. Educated at the Royal University, Rome, 1875-81; M.A., Ph.D., University of Leipzig, 1883. Professor of archæology and history of art, 1887-98, ancient history and archæology, since 1898, Princeton University. Author: A History of Sculpture; Mediæval Art Inventories of the Vatican. Author and reviewer of the departments of architecture, art and archæology in the New International Encyclopædia and many contributions to American, English, French and Italian periodicals. Died in 1923.

Frothingham (froth'ing-am), Octavius Brooks, clergyman and author, was born at Boston, Mass., 1822. He was graduated at Harvard in 1843, and became pastor of a Unitarian church in Salem, Mass. In 1855 he removed to New Jersey, and in 1859 to New York, where he acted as minister of an independent religious organization for twenty years. Died, 1895.

Frothingham, Paul Revere, clergyman, author, was born at Jamaica Plain, Mass., 1864. He was graduated from Harvard, 1886, Harvard divinity school, A.M., S.T.B., 1889; preacher to Harvard University, 1899-1902; minister of Arlington Street church, Boston, 1900. Author: William Ellery Channing; The Temple of Virtue, etc.

Froude (frōōd), James Anthony, eminent English historian and general writer, professor of history at Oxford from 1892 to his death, was born at Dartington, England, 1818. He was educated at Oriel College, Oxford. In literature his best-known works are those on the Carlyle family, and Erasmus. His accuracy has been greatly criticised in detail, but his brilliant yet simple style and power of presenting broad effects have secured for his histories great influence and popularity. Died, 1894.

Fry, Elizabeth, English philanthropist, was born near Norfolk, 1780, daughter of John Gurney, a banker. Mrs. Fry visited prisons in different parts of Great Britain and on the continent, everywhere effecting ameliorations. She died at Ramsgate, 1845.

Frye, William Pierce, lawyer, United States senator from Maine, was born in Lewiston, Me., 1831. He was graduated at Bowdoin college, 1850; LL.D., 1889; LL.D., Bates, 1881; member of congress, 1871-81; elected United States senator in 1881, reëlected for the period 1883-1913. President pro tem. during Roosevelt's administration, and reëlected in 1907. Died, 1911.

Fryer, John, Agassiz professor of oriental languages and literature, University of California; was born at Hythe, Kent, England, 1839; graduated from Highbury College, London, 1860; LL.D.; general editor and chairman of executive committee of educational association of China, 1887-96; hon. secretary of Chinese Polytechnic institution, Shanghai. Author: Educational Directory for China; Translator's Vade-Mecum, or Vocabulary of Scientific Terms in Chinese and English, etc. Died, 1920.

Fuhrich (fōō'rix), Joseph von, Austrian painter, was born at Kratzau, Bohemia, 1800. He became professor of painting in the academy of Vienna, and painted many scriptural subjects. Died, 1876.

Fukushima (fōō'kōō-shē'mä), Baron, Japanese general, was born at Matsumoto, 1853. General staff officer, 5th division, first army; then chief of administrative bureau of territory occupied by Japan during war with China; in command of Japanese contingent until fall of Tientsin, then attached to General Yamaguchi, then to Field-Marshal Waldersee as general staff officer during Boxer troubles, 1900-01; attended King Edward's coronation; general staff officer headquarters Manchurian army, Russo-Japanese war, 1904-05; succeeded General Kodama as vice-chief of general staff of the army, 1906. Died, 1919.

Fuller, George, American figure, portrait, and landscape painter, was born at Deerfield, Mass., 1822. He studied in Boston, New York, London and on the continent, and achieved his first success in 1857. Had notable exhibits at Boston and New York, 1876 and 1879, respectively. Died, 1884.

Fuller, Melville Weston, chief-justice of the United States supreme court, was born in Augusta, Me., 1833. He was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1853, and attended a course of lectures at Harvard law schools; LL.D. He became chief-justice of the United States on October 8, 1888; was chancellor of Smithsonian institution; chairman of trustees of Peabody education fund; member of permanent court of arbitration, The Hague; member of arbitral tribunal in the matter of the Muscat Dowhs, at The Hague, 1905. Died, 1910.

Fuller, Sarah Margaret, Marchioness Ossoli, transcendentalist, was born at Cambridgeport, Mass., 1810. In 1844 she published Woman in the Nineteenth Century. In 1847 at Rome she met the Marquis Ossoli and married him. In 1849, during the siege of Rome, she took charge of a hospital; and after the capture of the city by the French she and her husband sailed with their infant for America, 1850. On July 16th the vessel was wrecked on Fire island near New York.

Fulton, Robert, celebrated American inventor and engineer, was born at Little Britain, Pa., 1765. He was received as a civil engineer in 1795, and wrote a work on canals in which he developed his system. Accepting an invitation from the United State minister at Paris, he proceeded to that city in 1796, and remained there for seven years, devoting himself to new projects and inventions. In 1803 he constructed a small steamboat, and his experiments with it on the Seine were attended with great success. He returned in 1806 to New York and pursued his experiments there. In 1807 he launched his steam-vessel, the Clermont, upon the Hudson, which made a successful start, in the presence of thousands of astonished spectators. In 1815 he launched the war-steamer Fulton, and died the same year.

Funk, Isaac Kaufman, author, publisher, clergyman, was born at Clifton, Ohio, 1839. He was graduated at Wittenberg College: D.D., 1860; LL.D., 1896; editor-in-chief of Standard Dictionary; entered into partnership with A. W. Wagnalls in 1878, merging into the Funk and Wagnalls company, 1890. Author: The Next Step in Evolution; The Widow's Mite, etc. Died, 1912.

Funston, Fred, brigadier-general of United States army, was born in Ohio, 1865. He studied in Kansas State University; was captain, major, and lieutenant-colonel in the insurgent army in Cuba, 1896; served eighteen months; was wounded; returned to United States, commissioned colonel of 20th Kansas volunteers, 1898; went to Philippines; took part in several battles; for crossing the Rio Grande at Calumpit on small bamboo raft in face of heavy fire and establishing rope ferry, by means of which the United States troops were enabled to cross and win the battle, he was promoted to brigadier-general of United States volunteers, 1899. Continued in active service in Philippines. Organized and commanded expedition resulting in capture of Aguinaldo, head of Filipino insurrection, and was appointed brigadier-general of United States army, 1901; commanded Mexican punitive expedition, 1916. Died, 1917.

Furness (fûr'nes), Horace Howard, author, editor, Shakespearean scholar, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1833; graduated from Harvard, 1854; Ph.D., University of Halle; Litt.D., Columbia College and Cambridge (England); LL.D., University of Pennsylvania, Harvard, Yale, 1901. Died, 1912.

Furniss (fûr'nis), Harry, English caricature artist, author, and lecturer, was born at Wexford, 1854. Settled in London at nineteen; many years contributor to Illustrated London News; The Graphic; Black and White; Illustrated Sporting and Dramatic News and the principal magazines in England and America. Died, 1925.

Furnivall (fûr'ni-val), Frederick James, English philologist, was born at Egham, Surrey, England, 1825. He was educated at University College, London, and Trinity hall, Cambridge, where he took his degree, 1846; M.A., Ph.D., Litt.D. He devoted himself to English philology, and founded the Early English text society, 1864; the Chaucer society, 1868; the ballad society, 1868; and the New Shakespeare society, 1874; was active in starting the Browning society, 1881, and the Wycliffe society, 1882. He personally edited many works, chiefly through the medium of some one of the above societies; the most important being Saint Graal; Roberde of Brunne's Handlyng Synne; Walter Map's Queste del Saint Graal; Political, Religious, and Love Poems; Bishop Percy's Folio MS. of Ballads and Romances. His most valuable works are his splendid edition of Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, and the Century Shakespeare in 39 volumes. Died, 1910.

Fuseli (fū'zē-li), John Henry, Swiss painter, was born at Zürich in 1741. He was at first a clergyman and writer of Zürich, visited England, afterward studied art in Italy, returned to London in 1778, and executed pictures for Boydell's Shakespeare gallery. Died, 1825.

Fustel de Coulanges (fus-tel' dē kōō-länzh'), Nuam Denis, French historian, was born at Paris, 1830. He filled chairs at Amiens, Paris, Strassburg, and from 1875 at the Ecole Normale at Paris. After the war of 1870 he turned his attention to history, though he had written previously Chic and Polybe. His first historical work, La Cité antique, made its author famous. Member of the French institute. Died, 1889.

Fyffe (fif), Charles Alan, English historian, was born at Blackheath, England, 1845. In 1867 he took classical honors at Balliol College, Oxford, and was elected a fellow of University College. During the Franco-German war he was war correspondnet for the London Daily News, and was in Paris during the commune. Died, 1892.

Gabrilowitsch, Ossip, pianist and orchestra conductor, was born at Petrograd, 1878. He studied under Rubenstein, winning the Rubenstein prize in 1894, and under Leschetizky. After extended concert tours in Europe, he came to the United States, 1900. In 1918 he became conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. He married Clara Clemens, daughter of "Mark Twain." Died, 1936.

Gade (gä'de), Niels Wilhelm, Danish composer, was born, lived and died at Copenhagen, 1817-90. He was court organist at Copenhagen, and wrote several symphonies, overtures, and cantatas, as well as many choral and solo productions.

Gadsden (gadz'den), Christopher, American patriot was born in Charleston, S. C., 1724. He was a member of the first continental congress, 1774, became brigadier-general during the revolution and was lieutenant governor of South Caroiina at the time of the surrender of Charleston to Sir Henry Clinton in 1780. He died in 1805.

Gadsden, James, grandson of above, was born at Charleston, S. C., 1788. He served in the war of 1812 and against the Seminoles. In 1853 he was appointed minister to Mexico, and negotiated the purchase of part of Arizona and New Mexico, known as the "Gadsden purchase." He died in 1858.

Gadski (Gahds'kee), Johanna, one of the greatest sopranos, was born in 1871 at Anclam, Russia. She made her début in Kroll's Theatre, Berlin, as Undine in Lortzing's Opera. Her success was immediate, and has grown greater each succeeding year. Died, 1932.

Gage, Simon Henry, biologist, educator, was born in Otsego county, N. Y., 1851. He was graduated at Cornell; instructor, assistant professor and full professor of Cornell from 1878; studied in Europe, 1889, and is now one of the editors of American Journal of Anatomy.

Gage, Thomas, English general, last royal governor of Massachusetts, was born in 1721. In 1763 he was made commander-in-chief of the British forces in America. In 1774 he was nominated governor of Massachusetts, a post of peculiar difficulties. On June 17th the battle of Bunker Hill was fought, which resulted in a dearly bought victory to the English; but numerous complaints being lodged against Gage, he was recalled by the British government in October, 1775. Died, 1787.

Gagern (gä'gern), Heinrich Wilhelm August, German statesman, was born at Baireuth, Germany, 1799. He was educated at the military school at Munich. In 1821 he entered political life under the government of Hesse-Darmstadt. In 1832 he vigorously opposed the policies of the state governments and of the federal diet. In 1846 he published a work against the government of Hesse. Died, 1880.

Gailor, Thomas Frank, prelate, bishop of Tennessee since 1893, was born at Jackson, Miss., 1856. He graduated at Racine College, and the General theological seminary, New York; D.D., S.T.D. He became professor of ecclesiastical history, University of the South, 1882, and chaplain 1883; vice-chancellor of Univ. of South, '90-93. Died, 1935.

Gainsborough (gānz'bŭ'rō), Thomas, eminent English painter, was born at Sudbury, England, 1727. He excelled as a portrait painter, and more than two-thirds of his 300 pictures were portraits. His later years were devoted to landscape painting, especially after settling in London in 1774. At the creation of the Royal Academy he was chosen one of the first members. He died in 1788.

Gaius (gā'yus), or Caius, Roman jurist, flourished in the second century of our era. He was the author of more than fifteen works, of which the Institutes was the most important.

Galba (gal'bà), Servius Sulpicius, Roman emperor, was born B. C. 3. He was commander of the army in Spain when the emperor Nero died, in 68 A. D., and was so popular with the soldiers that they made him emperor when seventy-one years old. He was murdered after a reign of only seven months, in 69 A. D.

Galdos (gäl-dōs'), Benito Perez, Spanish novelist and dramatist, was born in the Canary islands, 1845, but was brought up at Madrid. His Gloria Dona Perfecta, Trafalgar, Léon Roch, Marianela, etc., have been translated into English, and entitle him to be classed among the most noted modern writers. Died, 1920.

Galen (gā'len), or Claudius Galenus, celebrated Greek physician, was born at Pergamus, in Mysia, 130 A. D., He first studied medicine at Pergamus, afterward at Smyrna, Corinth, and Alexandria. In his thirty-fourth year he went to Rome, where he stayed for about four years, and gained such a reputation that he was offered, but declined, the post of physician to the emperor. The place and time of his death are alike unknown, though the latter is believed to have been 201.

Galilei, Galileo (gā'lle-lā'ō), celebrated Italian astronomer and physicist, born at Pisa, 1564. While a student he had enunciated the law of vibrations or swings of a pendulum—i. e., its isochronism. In 1588 he was provided with a lectureship at Pisa University. At this period he invented the hydrostatic balance. Owing to veiled suspicion and hostility and the loss of court favor, he quitted Pisa and obtained the professorship of mathematics in Padua University in 1592.

In 1609 he constructed a telescope on the model of that of Hans Lippershey of Middleburg, Holland, and with it discovered four satellites of Jupiter, as well as the fact that they were not stationary, but actually revolved around the bright planet. The uneven configuration of the surface of the moon was demonstrated; and he detected sun-spots. The astronomer was invited to Florence, in 1610, by his patron, Cosimo, Grand Duke of Tuscany, and established as his philosopher and mathematician. Continued advocacy of Copernican principles and their Scriptural significance brought him under the ban of the church.

In 1632 appeared his Dialogues on the Systems of the World, after which he was peremptorily summoned to Rome by Pope Urban VIII. Stricken in years, and dreading imprisonment, Galileo publicly abjured his own philosophy. Accused of heresy, he was, among other penalties, to suffer detention, while his book was prohibited. At the close of 1633 he was permitted to return to Arcetri, Florence, where he thereafter lived in seclusion. An edition of Galileo's works and correspondence, including what is perhaps his most important production, Dialogues of the New Sciences, was undertaken by the Italian government in 1890. Died in 1642.

References.—See Lives by Viviani; T. Henri Martin; Favaro; and Fahie. Also Lodge's Pioneers of Science; Shelley's Literary and Scientific Men of Italy; Ball's Great Astronomers.

Gall (gŏl; Ger., gäl), Franz Joseph, German physician, founder of phrenology, was born at Tiefenbronn, on the borders of Baden and Würtemberg, 1758. In 1785 he established himself as a physician in Vienna, where for many years he carried on a series of elaborate investigations on the nature of the brain and its relation to the outer cranium. Died, 1828.

Gallait (gäl-lā'), Louis, Belgian historical painter, was born at Tournay, 1810, became famous by pictures on subjects from the history of the low countries. He died in 1887.

Galland (gà-lăn'), Antoine, French orientalist, was born at Rollot in Picardy, 1646. Attached in 1670 to the French embassy at Constantinople, he traveled in Syria and the Levant, 1673-79. In 1709 he became Arabic professor in the College de France. Is best known by his translation of the Arabian Nights. Died, 1715.

Gallatin (gal'ā-tin), Albert, American financier and statesman, was born at Geneva, Switzerland, 1761. He graduated there in 1779, came to the United States in 1780, taught French at Harvard, bought land in Virginia and Pennsylvania, and entered political life in 1789. In 1795 he entered congress from Pennsylvania, and in 1801-14 was secretary of the treasury. From 1827 he devoted his time to historical and ethnological researches, writing on finance, politics and the Indian tribes. He was one of the founders, and the first president, of the ethnological society of America. Died, 1849.

Galaudet, Thomas Hopkins, educator, philanthropist, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1787. He was graduated at Yale College, 1805; tutor there, 1808-10; founded and became superintendent of the American asylum for deaf mutes at Hartford. Died, 1851.

Galle (gäl'lĕ), Johann Gottfried, German astronomer, was born in Prussian Saxony in 1812. He studied at Berlin, 1830-33, became director of the Berlin observatory, and shares with Leverrier the honor of discovering the planet Neptune. He afterward became professor of astronomy at Breslau. Died in 1910.

Galli-Curci, Amelita, noted soprano, was born and trained in Italy. Fresh from her triumphs in Madrid and South America, where she sang with Caruso, she came to the United States, and made her debut in New York in 1918, where her singing created the wildest enthusiasm. Her voice is wonderfully pure, and amazingly flexible.

Galsworthy, John, English novelist and playwright, was born in Surrey, 1867. He was educated at Oxford, practiced law for a time, then turned to literature. His writings are of realistic nature and deal with social problems. Among them are The Island Pharisees, The White Monkey, The Silver Spoon, novels, and The Silver Box, Justice, The Fugitive, plays. Died, 1933.

Galt (gŏlt), Sir Alexander Tillock, Canadian statesman, was born at Chelsea, England, 1817, and emigrated to Canada when a boy. From July to November, 1867, he was finance minister of the Dominion. After 1857 he allied himself with the liberal-conservative party, and was considered one of the leading authorities on finances in the Dominion. He became grand commander of the order of St. Michael and St. George in 1878. He wrote Canada from 1849 to 1859. Died, 1893.

Galt, Sir Thomas, Canadian jurist, brother of the foregoing, was born in England in 1815, and educated in Scotland. He removed to Canada in 1832, and was admitted to the bar in 1845. In 1858 he became queen's counsel, in 1869 judge of the common pleas, and in 1887 chief justice of the court of common pleas. He was knighted in 1888. Died, 1901.

Galton (gŏl'tun), Francis, English scientist and traveler, was born near Birmingham, England, 1822; cousin of Charles Darwin. He was educated at King Edward's school, Birmingham, and King's College, London, studied medicine, and was graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge, 1844; D.C.L., Oxford; Sc.D., Cambridge. He was an officer and member of many scientific societies, and for his Narrative of an Explorer in Tropical South Africa received the gold medal of the Royal Geographical society. Died, 1911.

Galvani (gäl-vä'nē), Luigi, Italian physician and physicist, from whom "galvanism" derived its name, was born in Bologna, 1737. He made those discoveries, partly by means of experiments on the muscles of frogs, which he published to the world in 1791 in his treatise, entitled De Viribus Electricitatis in Motu Musculari Commentarius. The now fully-established doctrine of animal electricity owes its origin to the patient and laborious investigations of the Bologna professor. Died, 1798.

Gama (gä'mà), Vasco da, Portuguese navigator, was born about 1469 at Sines at Alemtejo. He early distinguished himself as an intrepid mariner and was selected by King Emanuel to discover the route to India around the cape. After rounding the cape, despite hurricane and mutinies, he made Melinda early in the following year. For twenty years Da Gama lived inactive at Evora, while the extended Portuguese conquests were presided over by five viceroys. The fifth was so unfortunate that John III. in 1524 despatched Da Gama to India, where he succeeded in making Portugal once more respected, but soon after his arrival he died at Cochin, 1524.

Gamaliel (gà-mā'lĭ-el), St. Paul's teacher, was a prominent Pharisee, and taught "the law" early in the first century. Tolerant and peaceful, he seems to have placed Christianity on a par with other sects; and he exhorts to long-suffering on all sides.

Gandhi (gahn'dē), Mohandas Karamchand (born 1869), the great Hindu leader of the Nationalist movement in India, called Mahatma ("Great Soul"), by his followers. Born in Porbandar, Western India, of middle-class well-to-do family. His father a native government employee. Gandhi studied at Gray's Inn, London, admitted to the bar, returned to India in 1893, ready for practice. Spent about 20 years in South Africa handling legal affairs of Asiatics unjustly treated by the whites. After many mental and physical hardships Gandhi won social and legal rights for his countrymen. In World War he raised volunteer ambulance corps in London. In 1919 Gandhi became outstanding leader of strong Nationalist movement in India. He lead millions of Mohammedans and Hindus in campaign of passive resistance to laws, and noncooperation, including a boycott on British goods. Sentenced to six years' imprisonment for sedition in 1922. Gandhi, ill, released in 1924. In 1930 he inaugurated a campaign of civil disobedience of salt tax, and was jailed at Yerrodo. He urged nonviolence. Released, Gandhi at London Round Table Conference demanded complete independence for India. Re-arrested in India in 1931. His life saintly and of extreme simplicity; his diet, fruit and goat's milk; his dress, a loin cloth, sandals and a shawl; his religious views, "There is only one God for us all." In 1933, undertook 21 day fast for untouchables.

Garcilaso de la Vega (gär'thē-lä'sō dā là vä'gà), Spanish soldier and poet, was born at Toledo about 1503. He wrote a number of sonnets and other poems, several eclogues, and is sometimes called the "Spanish Petrarch." Died at Nice, 1536.

Garcilaso de la Vega, Peruvian historian, known as "the Inca," was born at Cuzco, in Peru, about 1540. At the age of twenty he proceeded to Spain, and never again visited America. His first work was a History of Florida, containing an account of the conquest of the country by Hernando de Soto. Died, 1616.

Garden, Mary, soprano and opera director, was born, 1877, at Aberdeen, Scotland. She came to America at the age of six; studied violin and piano in Chicago; left for Paris in 1896. She appeared first in opera as a substitute; was enthusiastically received, and continued in this field as a member of the Chicago Opera Company, of which she became general director in 1921.

Gardiner, Samuel Rawson, English historian, was born in 1829; was educated at Winchester and Christ Church, Oxford. In 1884 he was elected fellow of All Souls', and was for some years professor of modern history at King's College, London. His historical works include England Under the Duke of Buckingham and Charles I. The Personal Government of Charles I. and the Fall of the Monarchy of Charles I. Died, 1902.

Garfield, Harry Augustus, educator, was born at Hiram, Ohio, 1863, the son of James Abram Garfield. He was graduated at Williams College, 1885; studied law at Columbia Law School one year, and at Oxford, England, and Inns of Court, London. He practiced law as a member of the firm of Garfield, Garfield, and Howe, Cleveland, 1888-1903; professor of politics, Princeton, 1903-08; elected president of Williams College, 1907, and assumed duties in June, 1908.

Garfield, James Abram, twentieth president of the United States, was born in Orange, Cuyahoga county, Ohio, 1831. He entered Williams College, Mass., and was graduated in 1856. He studied and practiced law, and was a member of the Ohio senate, 1859-60; entered the army in 1861 as colonel of the 42d Ohio volunteers; served in southeastern Kentucky, and was promoted to be brigadier-general of volunteers, 1862; promoted to major-general of volunteers. He resigned to occupy a seat in the thirty-eighth congress; elected United States senator in the spring of 1880. He was elected to the presidency at the close of 1880, and entered upon office in the spring of the following year; but on the 2d of July he was shot by the assassin Guiteau, while at the Washington station of the Baltimore and Potomac railway, and died at Elberon, N. J., after lingering for nearly three months. His untimely death was mourned, not only by his own countrymen, but by the whole civilized world. Died, 1881.

Garfield, James Rudolph, lawyer, former secretary of the interior, and son of James Abram Garfield, was born in Hiram, Ohio, 1865. He was graduated at Williams College, Mass., 1885; studied at Columbia Law School; was admitted to the bar in 1888; practiced law in Ohio, 1888, 1902; was member of Ohio senate, 1896 to 1900; was secretary of the interior, 1907-09.

Garibaldi (gä-rē-bäl'dē), Guiseppe, Italian patriot, was born at Nice, France, 1807. He associated himself enthusiastically with Mazzini for the liberation of his country. He took part in the defense of Rome against France, but, being defeated, fled to New York, to return to the isle of Caprera, biding his time. He joined the Piedmontese against Austria, and in 1860 set himself to assist in the overthrow of the kingdom of Naples and the union of Italy under Victor Emmanuel. Landing in Calabria, he entered Naples and drove the royal forces before him, after which he returned to his retreat at Caprera. In 1870-71 he commanded a French force in the Franco-German war. Died, 1882.

Garland, Hamlin, American novelist and short-story writer, was born of Scotch descent at West Salem, Wis., 1860. Since 1890 he has devoted himself to lecturing and writing. Besides a collection of verse, entitled Prairie Songs, he has published the following books: Rose of Dutcher's

Cooly; A Little Norsk; Jason Edwards; A Member of the Third House; Crumbling Idols; Wayside Courtships; Prairie Folks; Hesper; The Tyranny of the Dark; The Shadow World, etc.

Garnier (gär'nyā), Jean Louis Charles, French architect, was born at Paris, France, 1825. He studied at the school of fine arts, and began to exhibit water colors in 1853, after considerable travel in Italy and Greece. In 1854 he set up as an architect in Paris, and in 1861 competed for the design of the new opera house in Paris. Died, 1898.

Garrett, R. W., Canadian physician; professor of obstetrics, Queen's University, Kingston, Canada, was born in the county of North Ontario, 1853. He was educated at Ontario College, Picton; M.A., M.D.; appointed demonstrator of anatomy in the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, and later filled the chair of professor of anatomy. Senior surgeon in the Kingston general hospital, and surgeon-major in the 14th battalion princess of Wales' own rifles.

Garrick, David, English actor, son of a captain in the army, was born in Hereford in 1717. He made his first appearance, under the name of Lyddal, at Ipswich, in 1741, and soon after played Richard III. in the theater of Goodman's Fields. In 1743 he went to Dublin; in 1747 he became joint patentee of Drury Lane, two years later marrying Mademoiselle Violette. He acted at Drury Lane until 1776. He died in 1779 and was buried in Westminster abbey.

Garrison, Lindley M., lawyer, jurist, was born at Camden, N. J., Nov. 28, 1864. He received his academic education at Phillips Exeter Academy and Harvard, and was graduated in law from the University of Pennsylvania, 1886. He was admitted to the New Jersey bar, 1888, practised in Camden for ten years, from 1899-1904, was a member of the law firm of Garrison, McManus & Enright, Jersey City. He was vice-chancellor of the New Jersey supreme court, 1904-13, when he was appointed secretary of war by President Wilson. Resigned from Cabinet, 1916.

Garrison, William Lloyd, American abolitionist, was born at Newburyport, Mass., 1805. In 1831 he founded The Liberator, which he published at Boston during thirty-five years. His whole course was attended by the most malignant opposition from the pro-slavery party; his life was frequently threatened, and more than once he was assaulted and publicly handled; but his courage, energy, and ability were inexhaustible, and he lived to see the complete success of the movement which he had done so much to promote. Died, 1879.

Gary, Elbert H., chairman of board of directors and chairman of finance committee of United States steel corporation, was born at Wheaton, Ill., 1846; educated at Wheaton College and Chicago University; graduated from law school University of Chicago, 1867. Admitted to Illinois bar, 1867; bar of United States supreme court, 1878; practiced law in Chicago twenty-five years; president of Chicago bar association, 1893-94; Trustee of Northwestern University. Died, 1927.

Gaskell, Elizabeth Cleghorn Stevenson, English novelist, was born at Cheyne Row, Chelsea, 1810. She married in 1832 William Gaskell. In 1848 she published anonymously Mary Barton, followed by the Moorland Cottage; and Cranford. She died suddenly at Holybourne, Alton, in Hampshire, 1865.

Gassendi (gä'sȧn'dē'), or Gassend, Pierre, French philosopher and mathematician, was born at Champtercier in Provence, 1592. In 1645 appointed professor of mathematics in the Collège Royal at Paris, where he died, 1655.

Gates, Horatio, famous American general, was born in England, 1728. Sent to America in 1755, as captain of infantry; he served under General Braddock. In 1755 was made adjutant-general in the colonial army. He accompanied Washington to Massachusetts in July of the same year, where he remained until June, 1776, when he received the chief command of the army, which had just retreated from Canada. A brilliant success gained at Saratoga won him a great military reputation. In 1780 he was called by congress to the command of the army of the south. He was superseded, and was not acquitted of blame until 1782. He then retired to Virginia until 1790, when he emancipated all his slaves and settled in New York. Died, 1806.

Gates, Merrill Edwards, educator, author, was born at Warsaw, N. Y., 1848; graduated from University of Rochester, 1870; Ph.D., LL.D., L.H.D., president of Amherst College, 1890-99. He is a member of the American philosophical society, American history association, etc. Author: Sidney Lanier, Poet and Artist; Land and Law as Agents in Educating the Indians, etc. Died, 1922.

Gatling, Richard Jordan, American inventor, was born in North Carolina, 1818. He took his degree in medicine about 1849, but did not practice. His most celebrated invention was that of the revolving gun, which bears his name, the conception of which came to him in 1861. Among Dr. Gatling's later inventions were an improved method of casting steel cannon and a pneumatic gun for discharging explosives. Died, 1903.

Gauss (gous), Karl Friedrich, noted German mathematician, was born in Brunswick, Germany, 1777. He was graduated at the Collegium Carolinum in his native city in 1795, at the University of Göttingen in 1798. In 1807 he was called to the chair of mathematics and the directorship of the observatory in the University of Göttingen, positions which he held until his death. Died, 1855.

Gautama (gô'tä-mä), Buddha. See Buddha.

Gautier (gō'tyā), Theophile, French poet and novelist, was born at Tarbes, 1811. From painting he turned to literature, and became a "romanticist" of extreme type. His poetry reached its highest point in Emaux et Camées, 1856. In 1835 appeared his celebrated novel, Mademoisell de Maupin. Other works were an enlarged edition of his Emaux et Camées; Les Grotesque, on the writers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries; Honoré de Balzac; Ménagerie Intime, a kind of informal autobiography. He died at Neuilly, 1872.

Gay, John, English poet, was born in 1685. He wrote a large number of poems and ballads, besides several operas; but little of his poetry is now read. His greatest success was The Beggar's Opera, which ran sixty-two nights. Died, 1732.

Gay, Sydney Howard, American journalist and author, was born at Hingham, Mass., 1814. He became connected with the New York Tribune and was its managing editor from 1862 to 1866. In 1881, in conjunction with William Cullen Bryant, he wrote a History of the United States. Died, 1888.

Gay, Walter, American artist, was born at Hingham, Mass., 1856. He was educated in Boston public schools and Roxbury Latin school. Went to Paris, 1876, to study art, where he was a pupil of Bonnat. He received gold medals at Antwerp, Vienna, Berlin, Munich, Paris, and Hors Concours, Paris. Life fellow of the Metropolitan museum of fine arts, New York.

Gayarre (gä'a'rā'), Charles Etienne Arthur, American historian, was born in New Orleans, 1805. He was admitted to the Philadelphia bar in 1829. In 1835 he was elected to the United States senate, but on account of ill health resigned his seat. During the Civil War he supported the confederacy, and after its close became reporter of the state supreme court. Died, 1895.

Gay-Lussac (gā'lü'sȧk'), Joseph Louis, French chemist and physicist, was born at St. Leonard in Haute Vienne, 1778. He was educated at the Paris Polytechnic School, passed in 1801 to the department of ponts et chaussées, and began a series of researches on vapor, temperature and terrestrial magnetism. In 1808 he made the important discovery of the law of volumes. He was the first to form synthetically the hydriodic and iodic acids; and in 1815 he succeeded in isolating cyanogen. In 1818 he received the appointment of superintendent of the government gunpowder factories, and in 1829 was made chief assayer of the mint. In 1839 he was made a peer of France. Died, 1850.

Gaynor, William Jay, jurist, was born at Whitestown, Oneida county, N. Y., 1851; educated there and in Boston; worked on New York and Brooklyn newspapers, 1873-75, while studying law; admitted to bar and began practice, 1875. Justice of appellate division of supreme court; received democratic nomination for mayor of New York city, 1909, and was the only Democratic candidate on the ticket elected. Died, 1913.

Geddes (ged'is), Patrick, British biologist and botanist, was born at Perth, 1854. He was educated at the Normal school of science, London, and at several foreign universities; became professor of botany at Dundee. Died, 1932.

Geibel (gī'bel), Emanuel von, German poet, was born at Lübeck, 1815. He studied at Bonn and Berlin. His Voices of the Time appeared in 1841, a book of Sonnets in 1846, and Songs of Junius, 1848. He obtained a professorship at Munich, 1852, which he resigned, 1868. Died, 1884.

Geikie (gē'ki), Sir Archibald, British geologist, was born at Edinburgh, 1835. He was educated at the Edinburgh high school and university. Was director-general of the survey of the United Kingdom, and head of the geological museum, London, 1882-1901. Knighted, 1891. Died, 1924.

Geikie, James, British geologist, brother of preceding, professor of geology and mineralogy since 1882 and dean of the faculty of science, Edinburgh University, was born at Edinburgh, 1839. He was graduated at Edinburgh University; LL.D., D.C.L. one of the founders and president of the royal Scottish geological society, and editor of Scottish Geographical Magazine. Author: The Great Ice Age; Prehistoric Europe. Died, 1915.

Gelee, (zhe'lā), Claude. See Claude of Lorrain.

Gellert (gel'ĕrt), Christian Furchtegott, German poet and moralist, was born at Hainichen, Saxony, 1715. He was educated at Leipzig, and in 1751 became a professor there. He died in 1769.

Gellius (jel'i-us), Aulus, Latin author, supposed to have been born at Rome about 117 A. D. He practiced law there. He died about 180 A. D.

Gelon (jē'lon), tyrant of Gela and Syracuse, was the son of Deinomenes, and a native of the former city. In 485 B. C. made himself master of Syracuse. His influence soon extended itself over the half of Sicily. His clemency and the wisdom of his measures rendered him so generally beloved that when he appeared unarmed in an assembly of the people, and declared himself ready to resign his power, he was unanimously hailed as the deliverer and sovereign of Syracuse. Died, 478 B.C.

Genet, or Genest (zhē-ne'), Edmond Charles Edouard, French diplomat, was born in France in 1765. He entered the French diplomatic service as chargé d'affaires at St. Petersburg in 1789. He settled in New York, and married a daughter of Governor Clinton. He was the author of some historical works, and translated a Swedish history. Died at Schodak, N. Y., 1834.

Genevieve (zhen'vyev'), Saint, patroness of Paris, was born at Nanterre near Paris, about 422. She took the veil, and acquired an extraordinary reputation for sanctity, increased by her assurance that Attila and his Huns would not touch Paris, and by an expedition for the relief of the starving city during Childeric's Frankish invasion. Died, 512.

Genghis Khan (jen'giz kȧn'), celebrated Mongol conqueror, was born near Lake Baikal, 1162, the son of a Mongol chief. By his military skill and daring example he gradually raised his people to a position of supremacy in Asia, and established by means of them a kingdom which, at his death, stretched from the Volga to the Pacific, and from Siberia to the Persian gulf. Died, 1227.

Genseric (jen'sĕr-ik), king of the Vandals, son of Godigisdus, founder of the Vandal kingdom in Spain, and natural brother of Gunderic, whom he succeeded in 429, was born in 406 A. D. He continued master of the seas until his death in 477, despite strenuous efforts of the Roman emperors to crush his power.

Gentz, von (fŏn gents'), Frederick, German diplomat and publicist, was born at Breslau, 1764. In 1786 he entered the public service of Prussia, but in 1802 exchanged into that of Austria. He wrote bitterly against Napoleon. Died, 1832.

Genung (jē-nung'), John Franklin, educator, professor of rhetoric, Amherst College, was born at Willseyville, N. Y., 1850. He graduated at Union College, 1870, Rochester Theological Seminary, 1875; Ph.D., 1881; D.D., Yale. Author: Tennyson's in Memoriam; The Working Principles of Rhetoric; Stevenson's Attitude to Life; The Hebrew Literature of Wisdom in the Light of Today. Died, 1919.

Geoffroy Saint-Hilaire (zhō'frwȧ' saN'tē'lâr') Etienne, French naturalist, was born at Etampes, 1772, became a pupil of Haüy at the College of Navarre, Paris, and in 1793 professor of zoölogy in the museum of natural history. He was the author of several valuable works illustrative of the science. Died, 1844.

George, Grace, actress, was born in New York, 1880. She received a convent education, and married William A. Brady, 1899. Made her début in The New Boy, New York, 1894; appeared in leading parts in The Girl I Left Behind Me; Charley's Aunt; starred in The Princess Chiffon, 1899.

George, Henry, American economist and sociologist, was born in Philadelphia, 1839. In 1876 he was state inspector of gas meters, but in 1880 removed to New York, and the next year visited Ireland, on his way to England. He wrote Progress and Poverty in 1879, and undertook lecturing tours in 1883 and 1889 in support of his principles. Besides this book he published The Irish Land Question, Social Problems, Protection and Free Trade and The Science of Political Economy. In 1886 and again in 1897 he was a candidate for the mayoralty of New York. Died, 1897.

George I., king of Great Britain from 1714 to 1727, was born in 1660. He was the son of Ernest Augustus, elector of Hanover, and of Sophia, the granddaughter of James I. of England; and on the death of Anne, he ascended the throne, being the first monarch of the house of Hanover. In 1727 the king set out on a visit to his Hanoverian dominions, but had only reached Osnabrück when he was struck down by apoplexy. By his marriage with Sophia Dorothea, a daughter of the duke of Zell, he left one son, George Augustus, who succeeded him.

George II., son and successor of George I., and king of Great Britain from 1727 to 1760, was born in 1683. Ascending the throne when forty five years of age, he had the advantage over his father of being able to speak English, which George I. could never do. In 1756 the Seven Years' War broke out, in which England sided with Prussia and the last years of the king's reign saw the British victors in India, Canada, and on the seas. He died in London, 1760.

George III., king of Great Britain from 1760 to 1820, and king of Hanover (elector from 1760 to 1815), eldest son of Frederick Louis, prince of Wales, was born in London, 1738. In 1761 he married Princess Charlotte Sophia of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, by whom he had fifteen children. More English in sentiment and education than his two predecessors, George's main interest was centered in his English kingdom, and never during his long life did he once set foot in his Hanoverian possessions. At his accession he found the Seven Years' war in progress, and he was later involved in the war of the American revolution and the Napoleonic wars. Died at Windsor, 1820.

George V., King of England, born 1865; married, 1893, Princess Victoria Mary of Tech. Acceded to the throne, 1910, on death of his father, Edward VII. A much loved king. Died, 1936.

George, Saint, the patron saint of England. His true history is not clearly known. Some say the real Saint George was a soldier in the army of Diocletian, 300 A. D., and that he suffered death for the Christian faith. English crusaders brought home his fame from the East, and Edward III. made him patron of his new order of the garter.

Gerard (zhā'rar'), Etienne Maurice, Count, marshal of France, was born in Lorraine, 1773. He specially distinguished himself at Austerlitz, Halle, Jena, Erfurt, Lintz and Wagram. On the morning after this last battle he received the title of baron of the empire. In 1835 he was made grand chancellor of the legion of honor. Died, 1852.

Gerard, Francois Pascal, Baron, French painter, was born in Rome, 1770. Nearly the whole of his life was spent in Paris. Famous portraits were those of Napoleon, Talleyrand, Talma and Mme. Récamier. Died in Paris, 1837.

Gerhardt (ger'härt), Karl Friedrich, German chemist, was born at Strassburg in 1816. At the time of his death he was professor of chemistry in the University of Strassburg. Gerhardt and Laurent were the joint authors of the system of chemical notation now in use. All his suggestions and discoveries are embodied in his Traité de Chimie Organique. Died, 1856.

Gerhardt, Paul, Lutheran hymn-writer, was born at Grafenhainichen in Saxony, 1607. He became assistant pastor at St. Nicholas in Berlin in 1657, but for opposing the elector's attempted union of the Lutheran and Reformed churches was banished in 1666. Died, 1676.

Germanicus, Cæsar (jẽr-man'i-kus), son of Nero Claudius Drusus, and of Antonio, daughter of Mark Antony and niece of Augustus. In 12 A. D. he was consul, in 13 was appointed to the command of the eight legions on the Rhine, and in 14 quelled a great mutiny. Died, 19 A. D.

Gerome (zhā-rōm'), Jean, Leon, distinguished French painter, was born at Vesoul, Haute-Saone, France, 1824. After studying at Paris and traveling in the East he was appointed professor of painting in the school of the fine arts at Paris. Among the best known of his works are Phryne Before Her Judges; Cleopatra and Cæsar. Died, 1904.

Gerry, Elbridge, American statesman, fifth vice-president of the United States, was born in Marblehead, Mass., 1744. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1762. In 1776 he was elected a delegate to the continental congress, signed the declaration of independence, and was placed on the most important committees. He was a member of congress, 1789-93, and in 1797-98 special envoy to France, with Pinckney and Marshall. In 1812 he was elected vice-president of the United States. Died, 1814.

Gerson (zher'sōn'), Jean Charlier de, French theologian, was born at Gerson, in the diocese of Rheims, 1363. He became chancellor of the University of Paris, 1395, and used his great influence for church unity and ecclesiastical reform. Died at Lyons, 1429.

Gervais (zher'vā'), Honore Hippolyte Achille, member of Canadian house of commons for city of Montreal since 1904, was born at Richelieu, Quebec, 1864. Promoter of technical schools of Montreal and Quebec and high school of agriculture of Oklahoma; administrator of Laval University; corresponding member of La société de législation comparée de France; member of council of Montreal bar; Batonnier of the bar of Montreal, 1908, batonnier of the bar of the province of Quebec, 1908.

Gervinus (ger-vē'nōōs), Georg Gottfried, German critic and publicist, was born at Darmstadt, 1805, became in 1836 professor of history at Göttingen. In 1844 he was appointed honorary professor in Heidelberg, and from this period wrote in behalf of constitutional liberty. His great commentaries on Shakespeare were translated into English in 1862. He died in 1871.

Gesenius (gẽ-sē'ni-us), Friedrich Heinrich Wilhelm, German Hebraist and oriental scholar, was born at Nordhausen, 1786. He became professor of theology at Halle in 1811. His greatest work is his Hebrew and Chaldee Lexicon, left unfinished at his death. He died in 1842.

Gessner (ges' nẽr), Salomon, German pastoral poet, who also painted and engraved landscapes, was born at Zürich, 1730, where he was a bookseller. His landscape-paintings are all in the conventional classic style, but his engravings are of real merit. Died, 1788.

Ghiberti (gē-ber'tē), Lorenzo, Italian sculptor, was born in Florence about 1378. He was the sculptor of the bronze doors of the baptistry of San Giovanni, Florence. He died in Florence in 1455.

Ghika (gē'kä), Helena, or "Dora d'Istria," daughter of Prince Michael Ghika, was born at Bucharest, 1828. Her works include La Vie Monastique dans l'Eglise Orientale; La Suisse Allemande Les Femmes en Orient. She wrote much for the Revue des Deux Mondes. Died, 1888.

Ghirlandajo (gēr'län-dä'yō), otherwise called Corradi, or Bigordi, Domenico del, Florentine painter, was born in 1449. He assisted in the decoration of the Sistine chapel in Rome, and executed a series of frescoes in the Sassetti chapel in Santissima Trinita, Florence. Died, 1494.

Gibbon, Edward, celebrated English historian, was born at Putney in 1737. He was sent to Magdalen College, Oxford, where he became a convert to the Roman Catholic Church; and finally to Lausanne, where he renounced the Catholic faith, without embracing any other, and became a skeptic.

On returning to England he entered upon the duties of active life, but read much, and prepared himself for authorship. In 1763 he went to Italy; and while sitting, amidst the ruins of the Capitol at Rome, he conceived the idea of writing the history of the decline and fall of that city. In the meantime, he joined M. Deyverdun, a Swiss scholar, in publishing a journal called, Memoires Litteraires de la Grand Bretagne, which met with no success.

In 1770 he began his celebrated history of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, the first volume of which appeared in 1776, the second and third in 1781, and the three concluding volumes in 1788. Previous to this undertaking, Gibbon was chosen member of Parliament for Liskeard; and when hostilities commenced between England and France, in 1778, he was employed to draw up the manifesto on that occasion, after which he was made commissioner of the board of trade, but lost his place on the change of administration, in 1783. He then went to reside at Lausanne, where he remained till the French Revolution obliged him to return to England; and died in 1794.

Gibbon's great history abounds with proofs of immense learning, of a mind penetrating and sagacious and of almost unrivalled talents for ridicule. No other proof of the substantial trustworthiness of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire is needed than the fact, perhaps unparalleled, that, notwithstanding the very great advance made in historical studies and criticism during the present century, it still holds its place as preeminently the history of the period it embraces.

References.—Milman's Life and Correspondence of Gibbon; the Memoirs, ed. by Emerson, and Morison's Gibbon in English Men of Letters Series.

Gibbons, Grinling, English sculptor and wood-carver, was born at Rotterdam, 1648. Died in London, 1720.

Gibbons, James, Roman Catholic cardinal, was born in Baltimore, Md., 1834. Entered St. Charles College, Maryland, 1855; transferred, 1857, to St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore; ordained priest, 1861; later private secretary to Archbishop Spalding and chancellor of the arch-diocese; assistant chancellor, second plenary council of American Roman Catholic church, Baltimore, 1866; vicar apostolic of North Carolina; coadjutor archbishop of Baltimore, 1877; succeeded to the see, 1877; was nominated as cardinal; invested with the princely insignia, 1886. Died, 1921.

Gibbs, Josiah Willard, American physicist, was born at New Haven, Conn., 1839. Educated at Yale University and in Europe. Became professor of mathematical physics at Yale in 1869 where he remained till his death in 1903. In 1876-8 he published his paper On the Equilibrium of Heterogeneous Substances, which won him the name of "the founder of chemical energetics." It contained the famous Phase Rule. For this and other researches he was awarded the Copley medal in London, 1901, the Rumford medal of the American academy, and numerous honorary degrees.

Gibson, Charles Dana, illustrator, was born in Roxbury, Mass., 1867. He was educated at Flushing, L. I., and at the art students' league, New York, 1884-85. He has done much illustrating in principal magazines; also illustrated numerous books.

Gibson, John, British sculptor, was born a market-gardener's son, at Gyffin near Conway, North Wales, 1790. The innovation of tinting his figures he defended by a reference to Grecian precedents. He died at Rome in 1866.

Gibson, John Morison, lieutenant governor of Ontario since 1908, was born in 1842. He was graduated at the University of Toronto; LL.D., queen's counsel, 1890; bencher of law society of upper Canada, 1899; president of Dominion power and transmission company. Died, 1929.

Giddings, Franklin Henry, sociological writer, professor of sociology, Columbia, since 1894, was born at Sherman, Conn., 1855. He graduated at Union College, 1877; Ph.D., LL.D., professor of Bryn Mawr College, 1888-94. Member of Authors' and Century club.

Giers (gērs), Nikolai Karlovitch de, Russian diplomat and statesman, was born in Russia, of Swedish origin, 1820. He entered the diplomatic corps at eighteen years of age. In 1876, and again in 1877, during the war with Turkey, M. de Giers directed the affairs of the foreign office. He became a privy councillor, and when Prince Gortchakoff attended the Berlin congress M. de Giers for a third time took his place. Died, 1895.

Giesebrecht (gē'zē-brekt), Friedrich Wilhelm Benjamin von. German historian, was born in Berlin, 1814. He became professor of history at Königsberg in 1857, and in 1862 at Munich. Died, 1889.

Gifford, Robert Swain, American painter, was born in Massachusetts, 1840. He studied painting under Albert van Beest, and opened a studio in Boston, 1864. In 1866 he settled permanently in New York City and became an academician in 1878. Died in New York, 1905.

Gifford, Sandford Robinson, American painter, was born in Greenfield, N. Y., 1823. In 1854 he became a member of the National Academy, New York. Died, 1880.

Gifford, William, English critic and poet, was born at Ashburton, 1756. Gifford's editorship of the Anti Jacobin procuring him favor with the tory magnates, he was appointed to offices that brought him 900 pounds a year. He died in 1826.

Gigli, Beniamino, Italian tenor, was born in 1890. He studied under Rosati at Rome, began his operatic career in Italy in 1915 and after touring Spain and South America came to the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, in 1920. He has sung roles in Lucia, Lohengrin, Tosca, Boheme, etc.

Gil, Emilio Portes. See Portes Gil, Emilio.

Gilbert, Grove Karl, geologist, was born in Rochester, N. Y., 1843. He was graduated at the University of Rochester, 1862; LL.D. United States geological survey, 1879. Past president of American association for the advancement of science. Author: Geology of the Henry Mountains. Died, '18.

Gilbert, William Schwenck, English dramatist, was born in London, 1836. In conjunction with Sir Arthur Sullivan, besides Thespis and Trial by Jury, he has produced The Sorcerer; H. M. S. Pinafore; The Mikado; Ruddigore; The Yeoman of the Guard; The Gondoliers. Died, 1911.

Gilder, Jeannette Leonard, journalist, critic, was born at Flushing, N. Y., 1849. With brother, Joseph B. Gilder, started, 1881, The Critic, which she edited; was for eighteen years, over the pen-name "Brunswick," New York correspondent for Boston Saturday Evening Gazette and Boston Evening Transcript; later regular correspondent of Chicago Tribune. Died, 1916.

Gilder, Richard Watson, author, editor, was born in Bodentown, N. J., 1844 and educated at his father's seminary at Flushing, L.I.; LL.D., A.M. L.H.D., Yale, LL.D.; managing editor of Scribner's Monthly, 1870; editor-in-chief, 1881, under its present name, The Century Magazine. President of public art league of United States; member of council of national civil service reform league. Author: The New Day; The Celestial Passion; Lyrics; In Palestine. Died, 1909.

Gildersleeve, Basil Lanneau, professor of Greek in Johns Hopkins, 1876, was born in Charleston, S. C., 1831. He was graduated from Princeton, 1849; Ph.D., LL.D., 1869; Harvard, 1896, D.C.L., L.H.D. Editor of American Journal of Philology since it was founded, 1880. Author: Latin Grammar. Died, 1924.

Gill, Theodore Nicholas, zoölogist, educator, was born in New York, 1837. Assistant librarian, library of congress, 1866-75; LL.D., 1895, Columbian University. Adjunct professor of physics and natural history, 1860-61; head department zoölogy, Columbian (now George Washington) University. President of American association for the advancement of science, 1897. Author: Principles of Zoögraphy: Scientific and Popular Views of Nature Contrasted, etc. Died in 1919.

Gillette, William Hooker, actor, playright, was born at Hartford, Conn., 1855. Began theatrical work, 1877. Author of the following plays (unpublished): The Professor; The Private Secretary; Held by the Enemy; Because She Loved Him So; Settled Out of Court; Secret Service, and Sherlock Holmes.

Gillray, James, English caricaturist, was born a Lanark trooper's son, at Chelsea in 1757. He died in 1815.

Gilman, Daniel Colt, educator, was born in Norwich, Conn., 1831. He was graduated at Yale, 1852; LL.D., professor of physical and political geography, Yale, 1856-72; president of University of California, 1872-75; first president of Johns Hopkins University, 1875-1902; first president of Carnegie Institution, 1901-04; editor-in-chief, New International Encyclopædia. Died, 1908.

Gilman, Nicholas Paine, sociologist, professor of sociology and ethics of Meadville Theological School, 1895-1912, was born at Quincy, Ill., 1849. He graduated at Harvard Divinity School, 1871. Settled as Unitarian clergyman over three parishes in Massachusetts, 1872-84. Author: Profit Sharing Between Employer and Employee; Methods of Industrial Peace. Died, 1912.

Ginn, Edwin, publisher, was born at Orland, Me., 1838. Graduated at Tufts College, 1862. Head of the firm of Ginn and Company, publishers of school and college text-books. His first book was Allen's Latin Grammar, 1868. Died, 1914.

Giorgione (jōr-jō'nā), or Giorgio Barbarelli, Italian painter, was born at Castelfranco about 1478. Several early portraits by him have disappeared, but his Enthroned Madonna is an altar-piece at Castelfranco. Died, 1511.

Giotto (jōt'tō), or Ambrogio (or Ambrogiotto, shortened to Giotto), di Bondone, Italian painter and architect, was born in 1276. He was a pupil of Cimabue and friend of Dante, whose portrait he painted at Ravenna. Was employed at Padua and Florence, where his frescoes in the Peruzzi chapel of Santa Croce were discovered in 1863. He also painted the Miracle of the Loaves and Fishes, at Naples, and designed the campanile of Florence. He died in 1336.

Girard (ji-ärd'), Stephen, American philanthropist, was born near Bordeaux, France, 1750. He was very eccentric in his habits, a freethinker, a liberal benefactor of public charities. During several yellow fever seasons in Philadelphia no citizen was more active in relieving distress; and at his death nearly all his estate was bequeathed to various charitable and municipal institutions. Died, 1831.

Gish, Dorothy (1896—), movie star was discovered by D. W. Griffith, and was first featured in The Little Disturber and Hearts of the World. Her piquancy and unique charm have made her a leading comedienne. Her best film, perhaps, is Turning the Tables.

Gissing, George Robert, English writer, born at Wakefield, 1857, was educated at Owens College, Manchester. Spent the early part of his life in poverty. He was among the first novelists to undertake realism in England. Of his early writings New Grub Street is his best. Dealing with the lower middle classes, he wrote painstakingly of life as he saw it, but, as he admitted before his death in 1903, his heart was in the Greek and Latin poets. Poverty forced him to more lucrative writing. By the Ionian Sea and The Private Papers of Henry Ryecroft are other works.

Gladden, Washington, author, Congregational clergyman, was born in Pottsgrove, Pa., 1836. He was graduated at Williams College, 1859. D.D., LL.D., University of Wisconsin and Notre Dame University, Ind. In 1882, pastor of First Congregationalist church, Columbus, Ohio. Author: Plain Thoughts on the Art of Living; From the Hub to the Hudson; Parish Problems; Burning Questions; Santa Claus on a Lark; Christian Pastor; How Much Is Left. Died 1918.

Gladstone (glad'stun), William Ewart, English statesman, orator, and man of letters, was born in Liverpool, 1809. He was graduated at Oxford, and entered the house of commons in 1832 for the borough of Newark. In 1838 he published his first work, The State in Its Relations With the Church. In 1847 he was elected a member of parliament for the University of Oxford, which he represented for eighteen years. In 1858 he accepted a special mission to the Ionian islands. In the same year he published an elaborate work on Homer and the Homeric Age. In 1866, now leader of the house of commons, he brought in a reform bill, the defeat of which caused Earl Russell to resign. Gladstone, in 1869, disestablished the Irish church; in 1870 carried his Irish land bill; and in 1872 carried the ballot bill. In 1874 he dissolved parliament, and on the unfavorable result of the ensuing election the Gladstone ministry resigned. On the defeat of the Disraeli administration at the polls, 1880, he became premier, but resigned in 1885. Early in 1886 after the shortlived administration of Lord Salisbury, Gladstone again came into power, and signalized his return to office by presenting in 1886 a dual scheme of Irish government—a land bill and a home rule bill. Intense and bitter opposition from liberals and conservatives alike greeted the measure, and the bill was rejected on its second reading, in 1886. In consequence parliament was dissolved, and Gladstone and his colleagues appealed to the country, but were defeated. During the succeeding years, 1887-91, Gladstone was in opposition, the chief incident in his career being his outspoken advocacy of home rule in Ireland and his consequent alliance with the Irish party. At the general election of 1892 his supporters obtained a slight majority in parliament, and he became prime minister for the fourth time. He resigned in 1894 on account of increasing years, and spent his last days chiefly in literary work. He died at Hawarden, 1898, and was buried in Westminster abbey.

Glanville, Ranulf de, chief-justiciary of England in 1180-89, and reputed author of the earliest treatise on the laws of England, the Tractatus de Legibus et Consuetudinibus Angliæ, was born at Stratford St. Andrew, near Saxmundham, about 1130. In 1174 he raised a body of knights to fight against William the Lion of Scotland. He died at the siege of Acre, 1190.

Glasgow, Ellen Anderson Gholson, American novelist, was born at Richmond, Va., 1874. Author: The Descendant; Phases of an Inferior Planet; The Voice of the People, etc.

Glauber (glou'bĕr), Johann Rudolph, German chemist and physician, was born at Karlstadt in Franconia, 1604. In 1648 he discovered hydrochloric acid. Died, 1668.

Glazebrook (glāz'brŏŏk), Richard Tetley, British educator and physicist, principal of University College, Liverpool, 1898-99, was born in 1854. He was educated at Liverpool College, and at Trinity College, Cambridge; Sc.D., Victoria and Heidelberg. Author: Text-books of Physical Optics, and of Practical Physics; Cambridge Natural Science Manuals. President of the Institute of Electrical Engineers, 1906. Died, 1935.

Glendower (glen'dŏŏr), or Glendwr, Owen, Welsh chief, claimed descent from Llewelyn, the last prince of Wales, and was born in Montgomeryshire about 1359. In 1402 he captured Lord Grey and Sir Edmund Mortimer, both of whom married daughters of the Welsh chieftain. In 1404 Glendower entered into a treaty with Charles VI. of France, who in 1405 sent a force to Wales; and the Welsh prince, though often defeated, kept up a desultory warfare until his death, about 1416.

Glinka (gling'kä), Michael Ivanovitch, composer, "The Russian Beethoven," was born near Novospaskoi, 1804. He studied under John Field in St. Petersburg. He died at Berlin in 1857.

Gluck (glook), Alma, a recognized soprano of wonderful talent, was born in Roumania, and came to America at the age of six. She made her debut in New Theatre as Sophie in "Werther," and awoke to find herself a phenomenal success.

Gluck (glŏŏk), Christoph Willibald, German composer, was born at Weidenwang, in Bavaria, 1714. He studied music at Prague, Vienna, and Milan, and began his career at Vienna at the age of twenty-two. His last years were passed in Vienna, where he died, 1787.

Godfrey of Bouillon. See Bouillon.

Goethals, George Washington, Army engineer: born Brooklyn, N. Y., June 29, 1858, graduated West Point, 1880. Chief Engineer, Volunteers, Spanish War. Major-General, March 4, 1915; retired, Nov. 15, 1916. Chief Engineer, Panama Canal, 1907-1914; first civil governor, Panama Canal Zone, 1914-1916. General Manager, Emergency Fleet Corporation, 1917. Chief, Division of Purchase, Storage and Traffic, 1918; member War Industries Board. D. S. M., 1918; Commander Legion of Honor (France), 1919. Died, 1928.

Goethe, (gū'tĕ), Johann Wolfgang von German author, born in Frankfort, 1749, died 1832. Before he was 10 years of age he wrote several languages, and had a considerable familiarity with works of art. In 1765 he was sent to Leipsic to begin his collegiate studies. Here he wrote two dramas. He was transferred in 1770 to the University of Strasburg, where he studied jurisprudence and the natural sciences.

In 1772 he went to Wetzlar to practice law, and in 1773 published Götz von Berlichingen a dramatic version of the story of Götz of the Iron Hand. It excited the greatest enthusiasm in the literary world, and romantic dramas for a time became the fashion. An unrequited love romance of his own, and the suicide of a friend on account of a similar passion, suggested the incidents of his novel called Die Leiden des jungen Werther, "The Sorrows of Werther," which met with an extraordinary success. The same year he wrote Clavigo.

An invitation from Charles Augustus of Saxe-Weimar in 1775 to visit his court resulted in his making Weimar his permanent residence. He was created a privy councillor of legation, but his principal public occupation seems to have been to superintend the artistic pleasures of the court. His first years there were spent in wild and tumultuous enjoyments, but his intellectual activity was too great to be long beguiled by frivolities. In 1779 he produced Iphigenie auf Tauris, and, after a visit to Switzerland the same year, composed a little opera called Jery und Bätely. Many of his best small poems were produced at this period (1780-83), and he also studied natural science.

In 1786 he went to Italy, and spent nearly two years in study and in the composition of the drama Torquato Tasso. On his return to Weimar in 1788, he published Egmont, a romantic drama. In 1792 he accompanied the Prussian army into France, and soon after appeared his metrical version of Reinecke Fuchs. The results of his scientific studies appeared in his Beiträge zur Optik and his Farbenlehre. The first part of Wilhelm Meister (the Lehrjahre) appeared in 1795. Hermann und Dorothea, a pastoral poem in hexameters, the most perfect of his minor productions, was written in 1797, and the Achilleis the same year; and he engaged in friendly rivalry with Schiller in bringing forth a series of ballads, which are among the masterpieces of German literature.

In 1805 appeared the first part of Faust, a work which raised Goethe to the highest pinnacle of fame, and he was universally acknowledged to be the first poet of his age. When the French occupied Weimar, he took refuge in his books and scientific experiments, and exhibited such impassiveness amid the political disturbances as to incur the reproach of a want of patriotism. He afterward accepted Napoleon's invitation to visit Paris. In 1809 Goethe printed the most exceptionable of his novels, the Wahlverwandtschaften ("Elective Affinities"). Next appeared the ballads Der Todtenkranz, Der getreue Eckart, and Die wandelnde Glocke, the Dichtung und Wahrheit, an autobiography, and the Westöstlicher Divan, a collection of oriental songs and poems. In 1816 he published an art journal, to which he contributed largely; and in 1818 the second part of Wilhelm Meister.

In 1831 the second part of Faust appeared, a continuation of the first part, obscure and mystical, but full of passages of rare splendor, profound thought, grotesque humor, and bewitching melody. One year after the completion of Faust Goethe was taken ill of a cold, which turned into a fatal fever; but he continued to work. His last writing was an essay on the dispute between Geoffroy Saint-Hilaire and Cuvier, on the question of unity of composition in the animal kingdom and his last words were, "More light."

References.—Grimm's Goethe; Heinemann's Goethe; Carlyle in Miscellaneous Essays; G. H. Lewes's The Life of Goethe; J. R. Seeley's Goethe Reviewed After Sixty Years; Caro's La Philosophie de Goethe; E. Lichtenberger's Etudes sur les Poesies Lyrique de Goethe.

Goff, Nathan, jurist, United States circuit judge since 1892, was born at Clarksburg, W. Va., 1843. He was educated at the Northwestern Virginia Academy, Georgetown College, and New York University. Admitted to bar, 1866; member of West Virginia legislature, 1867; secretary of the Navy, United States, 1881; member of congress, 1883-89; U. S. Senator, 1913-19. Died, 1920.

Gogol (gō'gŏl-y'), Nikolai Vassilyevitch, Russian novelist, was born at Sorochintsi in Poltava, 1809. In 1828 he settled in St. Petersburg, and became famous through two series of stories of Little Russia. He was the first great master of the Russian novel. Died at Moscow, 1852.

Goldmark, Karl, Austrian composer, was born at Keszthely, Hungary, of Jewish parents, about 1832, but he chiefly resided in Vienna. His Landliche Hochzeit (Country Wedding) symphony is a great favorite. Died, 1915.

Goldoni (gōl-dō'nē), Carlo, Italian dramatist, was born at Venice, 1707. A tragedy, Belisario, proved successful, but he soon discovered that his forte was comedy, and set himself to effect a revolution in the Italian comic stage. In 1761 he undertook to write for the Italian theater in Paris, and was attached to the French court until the revolution. He died in 1793.

Goldsmith, Oliver, British poet and novelist, was born in Ireland, 1728. He was graduated at the University of Dublin, 1749, and then went to Italy, where he took his degree of M.D. at Padua or Louvain, and returned to England in 1756. His first publication of note, an Inquiry Into the Present State of Polite Learning in Europe, was published in 1759. In 1764 The Traveler appeared, and at once placed him in the front rank of English authors. Two years after this he published the Vicar of Wakefield, which may be said to have indicated his proper rank in the literary world. In rapid succession he produced his other works: the comedy of the Good-Natured Man, in 1768; the Roman History, in 1769; and The Deserted Village—the sweetest of all his poems—in 1770. In 1773 his comedy She Stoops to Conquer was produced at Covent Garden with great applause. Although now in receipt of large sums for his works, Goldsmith had not escaped from pecuniary embarrassment. In 1774 returned to London, ill in body and harassed in mind, and took to bed on March 25th. He died April 4th, more sincerely lamented than any other literary man of his time.

Gomez y Baez (gō'mās ē bä'ās), Maximo, Cuban patriot, was born in San Domingo, 1826. He served in the Spanish army in San Domingo and in Cuba. In the insurrection of 1868-78 he became a colonel and later commander. In 1895, on the breaking out of the second revolution, he returned to Cuba, became general-in-chief of the Cuban army, and later put his force at the disposal of the American troops when they landed in Cuba. Died, 1905.

Gompers (gom'pĕrz), Samuel, labor leader, president of the American federation of labor, was born in England, 1850. He was a cigar-maker by trade. He was one of the founders of the American federation of labor and editor of its official magazine. Died, December, 1924.

Goncourt (gôN'kōōr), Edmond and Jules de, French novelists, born, the former at Nancy in 1822, the latter at Paris in 1830. Artists primarily, in 1849 they set out to traverse France for water-color sketches. The important work of the De Goncourt brothers commenced when they took to novel-writing. The first of these novels, Les Hommes de Lettres, was followed by Soeur Philomene; Renée Mauperin; Germinie Lacerteux; Manette Salomon; and Madame Gervaisais. After Jules' death in 1870, Edmond, who lived until 1896, issued the extraordinarily popular La fille Elisa.

Gonsalvo de Cordova (gŏn-sāl'vō dā kôr'dō-vā), "the great captain," Spanish commander, was born at Montilla near Cordova, Spain, 1453. Sent to assist Ferdinand II. of Naples against the French, 1495, he conquered the greater part of the kingdom of Naples, and expelled the French. When the partition of Naples was determined upon in 1500, Gonsalvo again set out for Italy, but first took Zante and Cephalonia from the Turks, and restored them to the Venetians. He then landed in Sicily, occupied Naples and Calabria, and demanded from the French that they should keep the compact. Recalled in 1506, and treated by the king with neglect, he withdrew to his estates in Granada, and died in 1515.

Goodale (gōōd'āl), George Lincoln, botanist, professor of botany, 1878, and Fisher professor of natural history and director of botanic garden, Harvard, was born at Saco, Me., 1839. He graduated at Amherst, 1860; M.D., professor at Bowdoin and in medical school of Maine, 1867-72; assistant professor of vegetable physiology, Harvard, 1873-78. He is author of various works on plant physiology and economic botany, and associate editor of American Journal of Science. Died, 1923.

Goodnow, Frank Johnson, educator, author, was born at Brooklyn, N. Y., 1859. He was graduated at Amherst College, 1879, and at Columbia Law School, 1882. Lyall professor of administrative law and municipal science, Columbia, since 1883. Author: Comparative Administrative Law; Municipal Home Rule; Municipal Problems; Politics and Administration.

Goodwin, Nathaniel Carl, American actor, was born in Boston in 1857; studied under Wyzeman Marshall, then manager of Boston theater; went to New York and played in Law in New York, 1876, and later as Captain Crosstree in Black-eyed Susan, a burlesque. Died, 1919.

Goodwin, William Watson, educator, Greek scholar, was born in Concord, Mass., 1831. He was graduated at Harvard, 1851; Ph.D., Göttingen, LL.D., Cambridge, England, 1883; Harvard, 1891; D.C.L., Oxford, 1890. Knight of Greek order of the Redeemer; professor of Greek literature, Harvard, 1860-1901; professor emeritus since 1901; overseer of Harvard, 1903. Author, Greek Grammar. Died, 1912.

Goodyear, Charles, inventor of vulcanized rubber, was born in New Haven, Conn., 1800. In 1839 he produced his new method of hardening rubber by means of sulphur. His patents latterly amounted to sixty, and both medals and honors were awarded him in London and Paris. Died, 1860.

Gordon, Charles George, British soldier, familiarly known as "Chinese Gordon," was born in 1833. In 1884 he proceeded to the Soudan, in lower Egypt, as an emissary of England to quiet the insurgent tribes under El Mahdi, the "false prophet of the Soudan." He was killed when Khartoum was captured by El Mahdi, 1885.

Gordon, Charles William, Canadian novelist, Presbyterian clergyman, was born in Indian Lands, Glengarry, Ontario, Canada, 1860; was graduated at Toronto University, 1883. He was a missionary to Banff, etc., Rocky Mountains, 1890-94; minister of St. Stephen's church, Winnipeg, since 1894. Author: Black Rock; Beyond the Marshes; Gwen's Canyon; The Sky Pilot; The Prospector; The Doctor; all under the pseudonym of Ralph Conner.

Gordon, George Angier, Congregational clergyman, religious writer, was born in Scotland, 1853. He was educated in common schools, Insch, Scotland, and was graduated at Harvard in 1881; D.D., Bowdoin and Yale, 1893, Harvard, 1895. Minister of Old South church, Boston, since 1884. Author: The Witness to Immortality; The Christ of To-day; Immortality and the New Theodicy; The New Epoch for Faith; etc. University preacher to Harvard, Yale.

Gordon, John Brown, American soldier, was born in Georgia, 1832. He served with distinction in the confederate army, 1861-65, and rose to the rank of lieutenant-general. From 1873 to 1879 and 1891 to 1897 he was a member of the United States senate; governor of Georgia, 1886-90. Died, 1904.

Gore, Christopher, American statesman and diplomat, was born in Boston, Mass., 1758. He was a graduate of Harvard, a lawyer by profession and the first United States district attorney for Massachusetts. He was governor of his state in 1809, and United States senator, 1814-17. Died, 1829.

Gore, Thomas Pryor, lawyer, United States senator, was born in Webster county, Miss., 1870. He lost the sight of both eyes by accident when a boy. Graduated from the law department of Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn., 1892, moved to Texas in 1896 and to Oklahoma in 1901. After serving one term in the territorial senate, he was appointed United States senator by the governor, 1907; was elected by the legislature, 1909, and was reëlected in the same year for the full term 1909-15.

Gorgas, William Crawford (1854-1920), son of confederate brigadier general, was educated at Belvue Hospital Medical College, New York, Captain Medical Corps, U. S. A., 1885, promoted to Colonel, 1903, Surgeon General, 1914. He was Chief Health Officer of the Isthmian Canal Commission, 1907, and made the canal zone a model of sanitary conditions, completely ridding it of malaria. Died in 1920.

Gorki (gôr'kē), Maxim, pen name of Alexei Maximovitch Pyeshkoff, a self-educated Russian novelist, was born in Nizhni-Novgorod, 1868 or 1869, the son of an upholsterer. After the death of his parents he was engaged in various occupations until, through the influence of his friend Kalushni, his attention was turned to literary work, and his first story, Makar Chudra, appeared in 1892.

Gortchakoff (gôr'chä-kôf'), Prince Alexander Mikhailovitch, Russian statesman, was born at St. Petersburg, 1798. As ambassador at Vienna, 1854-56, he displayed great ability during the Crimean war. As chancellor of the empire, 1863, he was, until Bismarck's rise, the most powerful minister in Europe. After the conclusion of the Russo-Turkish war, the repudiation of the treaty of San Stefano and the signing of the treaty of Berlin, his influence began to wane. He died at Baden-Baden, 1883.

Gosnold (gos'nuld), Bartholomew, English navigator, was born in England about the middle of the sixteenth century. In 1602 he left Falmouth with a ship and twenty colonists, attempting to cross the ocean in a direct line. Contrary winds took his vessel to the Azores, whence, after a tedious voyage of seven weeks, he reached the coast of Maine. Following the land-line in a southwesterly direction, he discovered Cape Cod and Martha's Vineyard. In 1606 Gosnold united with Captain John Smith to locate in Virginia. Through their joint efforts the settlement at Jamestown was established in 1607. He died in Virginia, 1607.

Cosse (gos), Edmund, English poet and writer, librarian to the house of lords, was born at London, 1849; died, 1928. M.A., Trinity College, Cambridge; LL.D., St. Andrews, 1899; translator to board of trade, 1875-1904; Clark lecturer in English literature at Trinity College, Cambridge, 1884-90, and lectured in United States, 1884-85. Author: Collected Poems; Life of Gray; Seventeenth Century Studies; The Secret of Narcisse; Questions at Issue; History of Modern English Literature; etc.

Gosse, Phillip Henry, British naturalist, was born at Worcester, 1810. In 1827 he went to Newfoundland, as a clerk, and was afterward farmer in Canada, schoolmaster in Alabama, and naturalist in Jamaica. Author: The Birds of Jamaica; A Naturalist's Sojourn in Jamaica; and The Romance of Natural History, his best-known work. He died at St. Mary Church near Torquay, 1888.

Gottschalk (got'shälk), Louis Moreau, American pianist and musical composer, was born in New Orleans, 1829. He studied in Europe, and from 1845 to 1852 made successful tours of the continent, returning to America in 1853 to tour this country; met with wonderful success, playing and conducting his own compositions. Died at Rio Janeiro, 1869.

Gough (gof), John Bartholomew, temperance lecturer, was born at Sandgate, Kent, England, 1817. He came at twelve to America, and in 1831 found employment in New York, but lost it by dissipation, and was reduced to singing comic songs at grog-shops. In 1842 he was induced to take the pledge; and, devoting the rest of his life to the cause of temperance, he became a singularly effective lecturer. He published an Autobiography; Orations; Sunlight and Shadow, etc. Died, 1886.

Gouin, Sir Lomer, prime minister, and attorney-general of Quebec since 1905, was born at Grondines, Quebec, 1861. He was admitted to the Quebec bar, 1884; elected member provincial parliament for Montreal, 1897; appointed member of public instruction council, 1898; minister of colonization and public works, Quebec, 1900; re-elected for Montreal (St. James division), 1900, 1904-1905; elected for Portneuf, 1908. Died, 1929.

Goujon (gōō'zhôn'), Jean, French sculptor and architect, was born in Paris about 1515. He was employed on the church of St. Maclou, at Rouen, 1540, and on the cathedral there, 1541; worked with Pierre Lescot, architect of the Louvre, on the restorations of St. Germain l'Auxerrois, 1542-44; was employed with Bullant on the Chateau d'Écouen; and on the accession of Henry II. entered the royal service. In the Louvre he executed the reliefs of the Escalier Henri II., the carvings at the southwestern angle of the court, and the Tribune des Cariatides and was the author of what is considered the masterpiece of French sculpture, the Diane Chasseresse, now in the Louvre collection. His death is believed to have occurred in the St. Bartholomew massacre, 1572.

Gould, Benjamin Apthorp, American astronomer, was born at Boston, Mass., 1824. He was graduated at Harvard College in 1844, afterward studied at Göttingen, where he took a degree in 1848, and was for some time an assistant in the observatory at Altona, Germany. In 1856 he was appointed director of the Dudley observatory at Albany, N. Y. In 1866 he established an observatory at Valentia, Ireland, and made the first determination of transatlantic longitude by telegraph cable. His principal works are: Report on the Discovery of the Planet Neptune; On the Transatlantic Longitude, and several charts of stars of scarcely less importance than those already noted. Died, 1896.

Gould, Elgin R. L., economist, was born at Oshawa, Ontario, 1860. He was educated at Victoria University and at Johns Hopkins University, Ph.D., 1886. Formerly lecturer at Johns Hopkins and professor at Chicago University; chamberlain of city of New York, 1902-04. He was very active in public, religious and philanthropic affairs. Author: The Gothenburg System of Liquor Traffic; Housing of the Working People; Public Control of the Liquor Traffic; The Social Condition of Labor; Civic Reform and Social Progress, etc.

Gould, George Jay, American capitalist and man of affairs, was born in New York, 1864, and received a private education. As trustee of the Gould estate he was a director in numerous large railroads and other corporations. Died, 1923.

Gould, Helen Miller, American philanthropist, was born in New York, 1868, daughter of the late Jay Gould. She has been identified with philanthropic work for many years; gave a library building, costing $310,000 to university of city of New York; $100,000 for cyclone sufferers, St. Louis; $100,000 to United States government for war purposes, 1898; $50,000 to naval branch of Brooklyn Y.M.C.A., and numerous other donations for educational and charitable purposes. She also established and maintains a home for children. Married Finley J. Shepard, 1913.

Gould, Jay, American financier, was born at Roxbury, N. Y., 1836; was brought up on his father's farm; attended Hobart academy a short time, and began his railroad career shortly after the panic of 1857. He first invested in bonds of the Rutland and Washington railroad, and became president, treasurer and superintendent of the road. Soon afterward he removed to New York, opened a broker's office and began dealing in Erie stocks and bonds. In association with James Fisk, Jr., he entered the directory of the company and was elected president, with Fisk as vice president and treasurer. He subsequently invested heavily in the various Pacific railroads, secured control of a number of important lines, built branches and effected combinations which resulted in the establishment of what is known as the "Gould system." He died in 1892, worth some $100,000,000.

Gould, John, English ornithologist, was born at Lyme Regis, 1804. He became curator of the zoölogical society's museum in 1827. His eighteen works include A Century of Birds From the Himalaya Mountains; Icones Avium; The Birds of Europe; The Birds of Australia; The Mammals of Australia; The Family of Kangaroos; Humming Birds; The Birds of Great Britain, etc. Died, 1881.

Gounod (gōō'-nō'), Charles Francois, French operatic composer, was born in Paris in 1818. He studied music at the Paris conservatoire, and in 1839 gained the prize for composition. He then visited Rome and Vienna, and in 1849 became an organist in Paris. His first opera, Sappho, was written in 1851. This was followed by Sa Nonne Sanglante; le Médicine malgré lui; la Colombe; Philémon et Baucis; Mireille; la Reine de Saba; Roméo et Juliette, and Faust—the two latter being the best known of his works. He was a member of the Academy of Fine Arts, and was decorated with the legion of honor. Died, 1893.

Gowan, Sir James Robert, jurist, member of Canadian senate, was born in Ireland, 1815. He settled in Canada, 1832; admitted to the upper Canada bar, 1839; appointed judge, 1843; one of the three judges appointed to frame a new procedure in re probate administration and guardianship, 1858; engaged in revision and consolidation of the whole statute law of United Canada and the provinces of upper and lower Canada (afterward enacted), 1859; chairman of board of judges, Ontario, 1869 to 1889; retired from bench, 1883, and was appointed by the crown a life member of the senate, 1885. He introduced a new procedure on bills of divorce before parliament, which was adopted and now governs in Canada. He was admitted to Irish bar, 1890, and created C. M. G., 1893, "in recognition of his long and valuable services in the Dominion of Canada." In 1855 he founded the Canada Law Journal. Died in 1909.

Graaf (gräf), Regnier de, Dutch physician and anatomist, was born in Schoonhove, 1641. He was specially distinguished by his discovery that all animals are oviparous. The Graafian vesicles were also discovered and named after him, though he mistook their functions. He rendered great service to anatomy through his use of the injections into the blood-vessels which Swammerdam and Ruysen afterward brought to a state of comparative excellence. Died at Delft, 1673.

Gracchus (grak'us), name of a distinguished Roman family, to which belonged the two celebrated tribunes, Tiberius Sempronius Gracchus (163-133 B. C.) and Caius Sempronius Gracchus (159-121 B. C.). The former was tribune of the plebs, 133 B. C., and the latter, 123-122 B. C. They were both the sons of Tiberius Sempronius Gracchus (who had been tribune of the plebs in 187 B. C.), and of Cornelia, the daughter of Publius Scipio Africanus the elder. Both the brothers fell victims to their zeal in attempting to contend with the growing corruptions of the Roman state.

Grady, Henry Woodfin, journalist, orator, was born at Athens, Ga., 1851. He was educated at the state university at Athens, and took a post graduate course at the University of Virginia. He became editor of the Rome, (Ga.) Daily Commercial, and afterward of the Atlanta Herald, and in 1880 became part owner and managing editor of the Atlanta Constitution, which he conducted until his death. He was an eloquent speaker, a man of broad and liberal views; and, during his brief public life, did as much as any one man could to advance the interests of Georgia and the South. Died at Atlanta, Ga., 1889.

Grand, Sarah, assumed name of Frances Elizabeth Clarke, British novelist, was born in Ireland, of English parents; daughter of Edward John Bellenden Clarke, lieutenant, royal navy. She married at sixteen, brigade-surgeon Lieutenant-Colonel McFall, who died in 1898. She traveled for five years in the East, China and Japan, wrote Ideala at twenty-six, and has since interested herself in the woman's movement. She is vice president of the Central and Western society for woman's suffrage, vice-president of the Scottish association for the promotion of women's public work, vice-president of Garden City association, etc.

Grant, Frederick Dent, United States army officer, was born at St. Louis, Mo., 1850, son of President Ulysses Simpson Grant. He was graduated from the United States military academy, 1871; commissioned second lieutenant 4th cavalry, 1871, and served on the frontier, 1873-81. Appointed United States minister to Austria by President Harrison, 1885; police commissioner of New York, 1894-98; major-general of United States army, 1906. Served in Puerto Rico one year, and after war commanded military district of San Juan; in Philippine islands, 1899-1902; commanded department of Texas, 1902-04, department of the Lakes, January-September, 1904, department of the East, 1904-08. Died, 1912.

Grant, Robert, author, judge probate court and court of insolvency for Suffolk county, Mass., since 1893, was born at Boston, 1852. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1873; Ph.D., 1876; Harvard Law School, 1879; was water commissioner, Boston, 1888-93. Author: The Confessions of a Frivolous Girl; The Little Tin God on Wheels (verse); The Lambs (verse); Yankee Doodle (verse); The Oldest School in America (verse); An Average Man; The Art of Giving; Search-Light Letters; Unleavened Bread; The Undercurrent; The Orchid; The Law-Breakers, etc. He has been an overseer of Harvard College since 1895.

Grant (Hiram), Ulysses Simpson, eighteenth president of the United States, was born at Point Pleasant, Clermont county, Ohio, 1822; graduated at the military academy of West Point in 1843 and served under General Taylor in the war with Mexico, 1846, up to the capture of Monterey. In 1852 he served in Oregon; but in 1854 resigned his commission and settled in St. Louis, Mo., whence, in 1859, he moved to Galena, Ill., and engaged in the leather trade. At the beginning of the Civil War, in 1861, he volunteered his services, and was appointed colonel of an Illinois regiment. In August he was appointed brigadier-general, commanding the important post of Cairo, occupied Paducah, and led an expedition on the Mississippi. In February, 1862, he distinguished himself in the capture of Fort Donelson, on the Tennessee river, and was made major-general. On April 6th following, after a preliminary defeat, he won a great battle over the confederates at Pittsburg Landing, or Shiloh. Succeeding General Halleck in the West, he commanded the land forces which, in conjunction with the navy, reduced Vicksburg, July 4, 1863, soon followed by the fall of Fort Hudson, and the opening of the Mississippi. He then, in 1864, was appointed lieutenant-general and commander-in-chief, and personally directed the operations of the great final struggle in Virginia, in which the northern forces, though often repulsed with heavy losses, finally compelled the evacuation of Richmond, April 2, 1865, followed on the 9th by the surrender of the confederate army under General Lee, and soon after of the entire confederate forces. Congress, in recognition of his eminent services, passed an act reviving the grade of "general of the army of the United States," to which Grant was immediately appointed. In 1868 he was elected, on the republican platform, president of the United States; and having in 1872 been reëlected over a notable opponent, Horace Greeley of the New York Tribune, he retired in 1877, after his second term of office. In the latter year Grant visited Europe and toured the world. In England and France he received an enthusiastic welcome. Simple, reticent, earnest, and persevering in his character, he owed his military success not so much to strategy as to superior numbers and resources and hard fighting in which even a series of victories left his enemy less able to resist. Having lost his moderate fortune in an unfortunate speculation, Grant wrote an account of his life, which, being successful, to some extent relieved him. He died of cancer in 1885 after a year of severe suffering.

Grattan (grat'an), Henry, Irish orator and statesman, was born in Dublin in 1746. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin; in 1772 was admitted to the Irish bar, and in 1775 was returned to the Irish parliament. Mainly to him was owing, among other things, the partial abolition of the heavy restrictions on Irish commerce. As an orator he stands in the first rank. His style is full of point, rapidity, antithesis, and poetic suggestiveness. His eulogy on Chatham and his invective against Bonaparte are not surpassed in British eloquence. Died, 1820.

Graves, Frank Pierrepont, born New York city, 1869; graduate of Columbia, 1890, M.A. 1891, Ph.D. 1912. Professor of Greek in Tufts College, 1891-1896; president University of Wyoming, 1896-1898; president University of Washington, 1898-1903. Dean Dept. of Education, University of Pennsylvania, 1913-1921. Commissioner of Education, State of New York, 1921—. Author of textbooks in Greek and in History of Education. Member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Graves, John Temple, journalist and orator, was born at Willington Church, Abbeville county, S. C., 1856. He was graduated at the university of Georgia, 1875; was editor of Daily Florida Union, Jacksonville, 1881-83; Atlanta (Ga.) Daily Journal, 1887-88; Tribune of Rome (Ga.), 1888-90; editor-in-chief and co-proprietor of Atlanta Daily Georgian, 1905-07; editor-in-chief of New York American since 1907. Presidential elector-at-large, Florida, 1884; was colonel on staff of Governor Northern of Georgia. Author: History of Florida of To-Day; Twelve Standard Lectures; Platform of To-Day; Speeches and Selections for Schools; The Negro. Contributor to various American periodicals as advocate of separation of black and white races, etc. Died, 1925.

Gray, Asa, American botanist, was born at Paris, N. Y., 1810. He was graduated in medicine at Fairfield College, and in 1843 received the appointment of botanist of the United States exploring expedition. He was afterward appointed professor of botany in the university of Michigan, but before he had entered upon the duties of that office he was elected, in 1842, Fisher professor of natural history at Harvard University. In addition to his prelections at Cambridge he delivered some lectures at the Lowell Institute in Boston. He ranked among the leading botanists, not only of America, but of the age. He wrote: Elements of Botany; Flora of North America; How Plants Grow; Field, Forest and Garden Botany; Darwiniana; Synoptical Flora of North America; Natural Science and Religion, etc. Died, 1888.

Gray, George, jurist, was born at New Castle, Del., 1840. He was graduated at Princeton, 1859; LL.D., 1889. Studied law at Harvard and was admitted to the bar, 1863; attorney-general of Delaware, 1879-85; United States Senator, 1885-99; member of peace commission, Paris, 1898; appointed by the President a member of the joint high commission at Quebec, 1898, and member of the international permanent court of arbitration under The Hague convention, 1900; judge of United States Circuit Court, third judicial circuit, since 1899; chairman of anthracite coal strike commission, 1902. Died in 1925.

Gray, Horace, American jurist, was born at Boston, 1828; was graduated at Harvard, 1845, and its law school, 1849; was admitted to the bar, 1851; Associate-justice of the Massachusetts supreme court, 1864-73, and chief-justice, 1873-81, when he was appointed successor to Judge Clifford in the United States supreme court. He remained a member of this tribunal until shortly before his death in 1902.

Gray, Thomas, English poet, was born in London, 1716. He was educated at Cambridge and appointed professor of history and modern languages there in 1769. He had a just appreciation of the natural beauty of his native country, made notes wherever he went, and wrote copious descriptions of what he had seen to his literary friends. He published his Ode to Eton College in 1747, and his Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard, by which he is best known, several years afterward. On the death of Colley Cibber he was offered, but declined, the post of poet laureate. Died, 1771.

Greeley, Horace, American journalist, was born at Amherst, N. H., 1811. He entered a printing office as an apprentice at East Poultney, Vt., 1825. On the completion of his apprenticeship he worked for some time as a journeyman printer, and in 1834 founded the New Yorker, a literary weekly paper, for which he wrote essays, poetry and other articles. After one or two other attempts at editorship he founded, in 1841, the New York Tribune, and became the leading editor. The Tribune under his leadership was an earnest advocate of temperance, woman's rights, the abolition of slavery and capital punishment and other reforms, and was recognized as the organ of the extreme, or radical party. His aspirations to political position were defeated by the more conservative party leaders, and he, in turn, influenced the election of Lincoln instead of Seward, in 1860. On the secession of several of the southern states from the Union, Greeley at first admitted their right to secede, in accordance with the principles of the declaration of independence; but, when the war began, he became its most zealous advocate, and is supposed to have caused the premature advance that resulted in the defeat at Bull Run, 1861. In 1872 he was an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency. Died, 1872.

Greely, Adolphus Washington, American general, was born at Newburyport, Mass., 1844. Entering the volunteer service, he attained the rank of captain during the Civil War, and at its close was transferred to the regular army with the rank of lieutenant. In 1868 he was placed in the signal service and in 1881 was assigned to the command of the Lady Franklin bay expedition to northern Greenland. After suffering extreme and terrible hardships, Greely and a few surviving members of his command were rescued in 1884 by an expedition sent to his relief by the United States Government. He published an account of the expedition in 1886, under the title of Three Years of Arctic Service. In 1887 he became chief of the United States signal service, and was head of the weather bureau from that time until it passed under control of the department of agriculture. Became major-general in 1906 and retired, 1908. Died, 1935.

Green, Hetty Howland Robinson, American financier, was born in New Bedford, Mass., 1835, daughter of Edward Mott Robinson, who died in 1865, leaving her a large fortune. She was said to be the richest woman in America, and probably the greatest woman financier in the world. She personally managed her large property in stocks, bonds and real estate in Chicago, New York, and elsewhere. Died, 1916.

Green, John Richard, English historian, was born at Oxford, England, 1837, and educated at Magdalen College school and Jesus College. He took orders in 1860, and was for some time vicar of St. Philip's, Stepney, becoming in 1868 librarian at Lambeth. Author: A Short History of the English People; A History of the English People; The Making of England, and The Conquest of England. The latter was published after his death by his wife, who assisted him in various works, and herself wrote Henry II. in the Twelve English Statesmen series. Died, 1883.

Green, Thomas Hill, English philosopher, was born in Yorkshire, 1836. Educated at Rugby and Balliol College, Oxford, 1859, he in 1860 was elected to a Balliol fellowship, and reëlected in 1872, became in 1877 Whyte professor of moral philosophy, and died in 1882. Green's noble character, contagious enthusiasm, philosophical profundity and strong interest in social questions drew around him many of the best men at Oxford. His Prolegomena to Ethics, left incomplete at his death, was edited by A. C. Bradley, and two "lay-sermons" by Arnold Toynbee in the same year. His scattered essays in Mind and elsewhere were edited as The Works of T. H. Green, by R. L. Nettleship.

Green, William Henry, American Presbyterian theologian, was born at Groveville, N. J., 1825. He was graduated from Lafayette College, 1840, and at Princeton theological seminary, 1846. In 1851 he was made professor of biblical and oriental literature at Princeton, and was chairman of the committee which revised the old testament. He wrote: A Grammar of the Hebrew Language; Moses and the Prophets; The Hebrew Feasts, etc. Died at Princeton, N. J., 1900.

Greene, Nathanael, American general, was born in 1742, at Potowhommet, Rhode Island. In 1774 he enlisted as private, and in 1775 was appointed to the command of the Rhode Island contingent to the army at Boston, with the rank of brigadier-general. He was promoted to major-general in 1775, and distinguished himself at the engagements of Trenton and Princeton. At the battle of Brandywine, he commanded a division and by his skillful movements saved the American army from utter destruction; and at Germantown he commanded the left wing. In 1778 he became quartermaster-general. In 1780 he succeeded Gates in the command of the army of the south and found the army in a wretched state, without discipline, clothing, arms or spirit. By dint of great activity he got his army into better condition and remained on the defensive for the remainder of the year. In 1781, with 5,000 new recruits, he entered upon more active operations and finally defeated the English at Eutaw Springs, the hardest fought field of the revolution, which put an end to the war in South Carolina. Congress struck and presented to him a medal in honor of this battle, and the Carolinas and Georgia made him valuable grants of land. When peace was restored in 1783, Greene returned to Rhode Island, where he received numerous testimonials of the public admiration. In 1785 he retired with his family to his estate in Georgia, where he died of sunstroke in 1786. He was one of the very best generals of the war of independence, second, perhaps, only to Washington, whose intimate friend he was.

Greenough (grēn'ō), Horatio, American sculptor, was born in Boston, Mass., 1805. He graduated at Harvard in 1825, and from that year till 1851 lived chiefly in Italy. His principal work is the colossal statue of Washington formerly in front of the capitol. Others are "Medora," "Venus Victrix," and a group of four figures, "The Rescue." He died at Somerville, Mass., 1852.

Greer, David Hummell, Protestant Episcopal clergyman, bishop coadjutor, was born at Wheeling, W. Va., 1844. He was graduated at Washington College, Pa., 1862; studied theology at Protestant Episcopal seminary, Gambier, Ohio; D.D., Brown university, LL.D., Washington and Jefferson College; S.T.D., Columbia; was ordained deacon, 186 priest, 1868; rector Grace church, Providence, R. I., 1871-88, St. Bartholomew's church, New York, 1888-1904; bishop of the diocese of New York since 1908. Died, 1919.

Gregoire (grā'gwär'), Henri, French ecclesiastic and revolutionist, was born near Lunéville, 1750. He took orders and lectured at the Jesuit College of Pont-a-Mousson. Curé of Emberménil in Lorraine, and an ardent democrat, he was sent to the states-general of 1789 as a deputy of the clergy, attached himself to the tiers-état party, and acted a prominent part throughout the revolution. He was the first of his order to take the oaths, and was elected "constitutional bishop" of Loire-et-Cher. At the blasphemous feast of reason he refused, in the face of the infuriated rabble, to renounce Christianity. He became a member of the constituent assembly, 1789, but the concordat forced him to resign his bishopric. He died at Paris, unreconciled with the church, 1831.

Gregorovius (greg'ō-rō'vi-ŭs), Ferdinand, German historian, was born at Neidenburg in East Prussia, 1821. He studied theology, but devoted himself to poetry and literature. His great work—the standard work on the subject—is the History of the City of Rome in the Middle Ages. He wrote on Italian geography and history, also a tragedy on Tiberius, and Euphorion. Died, 1891.

Gregory I., Pope, called "the great," was born in Rome about 540. After being secretary to Pelagius II., he succeeded him as bishop of Rome; renounced communion with the eastern Christians because of the assumption of the title "universal bishop" by the patriarch of Constantinople; composed chants and established a musical school, in which he himself taught, and collected and arranged fragments of ancient hymns. He was the author of numerous sacred works, of which the chief was his Morals From the Book of Job. Died, 604.

Gregory VII., Pope, Hildebrand, son of a carpenter, was a native of Soano, Tuscany. He was the friend and counsellor of Leo IX. and the four succeeding popes, and on the death of Alexander II., 1073, succeeded him.

He obtained confirmation in his election from the Emperor Henry IV., and immediately applied himself zealously to reforms, ecclesiastical and political. He menaced the emperor and the king of France; the latter without effect. In 1074 he assembled a council, by which it was forbidden the prelates to receive investiture of a layman; and this was the first step in the quarrel with the emperor, which lasted so many years. Henry, disregarding the papal authority, was summoned to Rome; but he held a diet at Worms, and pronounced the deposition of the pope. To this Gregory replied by procuring the deposition of the emperor and the election of Rudolph of Suabia.

Henry now promised submission; and in the early winter of 1077 went with his wife and child to Italy. The pope was at the castle of Canossa, and there, after keeping the penitent king of Germany three days waiting at the gate he received and gave him absolution. The terms imposed on him were intolerable, and he soon broke them, made war on Rudolph, and defeated him, set up a rival pope in Guibert, archbishop of Ravenna, with the title of Clement III., and after several unsuccessful attempts entered Rome in 1084, had himself crowned emperor by his own pope, and besieged Gregory in San Angelo. The pope was delivered by Guiscard, and retiring to Salerno, died there in 1085.

Whatever may be said of the power in itself, or of the length to which it has at times extended, the occasion and the object of its exercise in the hands of Gregory were always such as to command the sympathy of the philosophical student of the history of the Middle Ages. By his firm and unbending efforts to suppress the unchristian vices which deformed society and to restrain the tyranny which oppressed the subject as much as it enslaved the Church, he taught his age "that there was a being on earth whose special duty it was to defend the defenceless, to succor the succorless, to afford a refuge to the widow and orphan and to be the guardian of the poor."

References.—See Lives by Gfrörer; W. R. W. Stephens, Delarc, and Vincent. Also, Neil's Epoch Men; and Villemain's Gregory VII.

Grenville, George, English statesman, was born in 1712. He entered parliament in 1741, in 1762 became secretary of state and first lord of the admiralty, and in 1763 succeeded Lord Bute as prime minister. In his administration befell the American stamp act, which excited the American colonies to resistance. He resigned in 1765. Died, 1770.

Gresham (gresh'am) Sir Thomas, English financier, philanthropist, was born at London in 1519. From Cambridge, in 1543, he became connected with the Mercers' company, and in 1551 was employed as King's agent at Antwerp. In two years he paid off a heavy loan and restored the king's credit. He was knighted by Queen Elizabeth in 1559, and was for a time ambassador at Brussels. In 1569, by his advice, the state borrowed money from London merchants instead of from foreigners. Having in 1564 lost his only son, Richard, in 1566-71 he devoted a portion of his great wealth to building an exchange, in imitation of that of Antwerp; he made provision for founding Gresham College, and left money for eight almshouses. Died, 1579.

Gresham, Walter Quinton, American politician and jurist, was born in Harrison county, Ind., 1832. He was admitted to the bar in 1853; was elected to the state legislature in 1860, but resigned to accept a commission in an Indiana regiment. He was severely wounded near Atlanta and received the brevet of major-general of volunteers for his gallantry. In 1869 he was appointed United States judge for the district of Indiana by President Grant, but in April, 1882, resigned from the bench to become postmaster-general under President Arthur. On the death of Secretary Folger, in 1884, he became secretary of the treasury. In October, 1884, he was appointed United States judge for the seventh circuit. In 1893 he became secretary of state in President Cleveland's cabinet. Died at Washington, 1895.

Greuze (grûz), Jean Baptiste, French painter, was born at Tournus near Macon, France, 1725. He studied under Gromdon at Lyons, and at the academy in Paris. His first notable works were historical; after a visit to Italy, 1775, he painted Italian subjects; but he is seen at his best in such studies of girls as "The Broken Pitcher," the "Girl with Doves," and "Girl with Dead Canary." His art, though full of delicacy and grace, is marred by its triviality and pursuit of mere prettiness. Died, 1805.

Grevy (grā'vē'), Francois Paul Jules, French statesman, was born at Mont-sous-Vaudry, in the Jura, near the boundary of Switzerland, 1807. When not yet twenty years of age he began his law studies at the capital, and, becoming interested in politics, took part in the revolution of 1830, which drove Charles X. from the French throne. The voters of his old department, the Jura, elected him to represent them in the constituent assembly of 1848, and he took a prominent part in the organization of the government. After Napoleon's downfall, he was chosen president of the national assembly, which met in 1871, and in 1873, when the young republic seemed to be headed toward another monarchy, Grévy earnestly advocated democracy as the only hope of France. In 1879 he was chosen president of the republic by an enormous majority. In 1886 he was re-elected, but on account of a scandal in which his son-in-law was implicated he was forced to resign, 1887. Died, 1891.

Grey, Albert Henry George, fourth Earl Grey. English statesman and administrator, governor-general of Canada beginning 1904, was born in 1851. He was the son of General Charles Grey; was educated at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge, and succeeded his uncle, the third Earl Grey, in 1894. He was a liberal member of the House of commons, 1880-86; administrator of Rhodesia, 1896-97; director of British South Africa company, 1898-1904; was lord-lieutenant of Northumberland, 1899-1904. He succeeded Lord Minto, as governor-general of Canada in 1904 and served until 1911. Died in 1917.

Grey, Charles, second Earl Grey, English statesman, was born at Falloden, Northumberland, 1764, and educated at Eton and King's College, Cambridge. In 1806 Grey (now Lord Howick), became first lord of the admiralty, and, on the death of Fox, foreign secretary and leader of the house of commons. In 1807 he succeeded his father as second Earl Grey. In 1830 he formed a government whose policy, he said, would be one of peace, retrenchment and reform. The first reform bill was produced in 1831; its defeat led to a dissolution and the return of a parliament still more devoted to reform. Early in 1832 another bill was carried in the commons, and it weathered the second reading in the house of lords, but when a motion to postpone the disfranchising clauses was adopted ministers resigned. The duke of Wellington failed to form an administration, and Grey returned to office with power to create a sufficient number of peers to carry the measure. Wellington now withdrew his opposition, and in June the reform bill passed the house of lords. He carried the act for the abolition of slavery in the colonies, as well as a number of minor reforms; but dissensions sprang up, and in consequence of his Irish difficulties he resigned in 1834. He died at Howick House, Alnwick, 1845.

Grey, Sir Edward, English statesman, secretary of state for foreign affairs in 1905; member of parliament for Berwick-on-Tweed after 1885; was born in 1862. He was graduated at Balliol College, Oxford, and succeeded to the baronetcy in 1882; was under-secretary for foreign affairs, 1892-95. He was a man of brilliant talents of whom Gladstone was alleged to have said: "I have never remembered so signal a capacity for parliamentary life and so small a disposition to it." Died, 1933.

Grey, Lady Jane, eldest daughter of Henry Grey, marquis of Dorset, afterward duke of Suffolk, and of Lady Frances Brandon, was born at Bradgate, Leicestershire, 1537. In 1553, Lady Jane Grey, now sixteen years old, was married to Lord Guilford Dudley, fourth son of the duke of Northumberland. The king, failing in body and weak in mind, and surrounded by selfish or fanatical advisers, was persuaded to make a deed of settlement, setting aside the right of succession of his sisters, Mary and Elizabeth, and Mary, queen of Scots, leaving the crown to Lady Jane, who was innocent of the conspiracy. After the king's death her ambitious relatives hailed her as "queen." The people of England resented the unscrupulous conduct of Suffolk and Northumberland, and, learned, brilliant and amiable as Lady Jane was, they rallied round Mary. Northumberland was defeated, sent to the Tower, and beheaded August 22, 1554; and in the following November Lady Jane and her husband were also condemned and she was executed in February, 1554.

Grey, Zane, American writer, was born at Zanesville, Ohio, 1875. He studied dentistry and practiced in New York City for several years, then devoted himself to literature. Among his best known works are The Lost Trail, The Call of the Canyon, The Mysterious Rider, and Tales of the Lonely Trails.

Grieg (grēg), Edvard Hagerup, Norwegian composer, was born at Bergen, Norway, 1843. His nationality became a strong element even in his earliest compositions. He spent the winter of 1865-66 and some months of 1870 in Rome, where he inaugurated a Norse music concert. In 1888 he went to London, where he both played and conducted, and this was followed by important engagements in Germany and elsewhere. Among his compositions are numerous pieces for the piano, songs, dances, and an opera. He died in 1907.

Griffis (grif'-is), William Eliot, lecturer, author, was born in Philadelphia, 1843. He served in the Civil War, graduated at Rutgers, Union Theological Seminary, Union College. In 1870 he went to Japan to organize schools; professor of physics in Imperial University, Tokio, 1873-4. Author of Brave Little Holland and several books on his Japanese experiences. Died, 1928.

Griffith, David Wark, motion picture director, on entering motion pictures was attracted to the technical side, in which he has won great distinction. He was the first to use "close-ups" and "cut-backs," and handles his players admirably. Noted for The Birth of a Nation.

Griggs, Edward Howard, lecturer, author, was born at Owatonna, Minn., 1868. He was graduated from Indiana University, 1889, A.M., 1890; special studies, university of Berlin; was instructor of English literature and professor of literature, Indiana University; professor of ethics and later head of combined departments of ethics and education Leland Stanford Jr., University; public lecturer. Author: The New Humanism; A Book of Meditations, Moral Education, Human Equipment, etc.

Griggs, John William, lawyer, United States attorney-general, 1898-1901, was born at Newton, N. J., 1849. He was graduated at Lafayette College, 1868; admitted to the bar, 1871; practiced at Paterson; member of New Jersey general assembly, 1876 and 1877; state senator, 1882-88; president of New Jersey senate, 1886; governor of New Jersey from January, 1896, until he resigned, January, 1898, to take office of attorney-general in President McKinley's cabinet; member of Hague permanent court. Died, 1927.

Grillparzer (gril'pär-sĕr), Franz, Austrian dramatic poet, was born at Vienna, 1791. He studied jurisprudence, and in 1813 entered the imperial civil service, in which he remained until 1856. He first attracted notice in 1817 by a tragedy, Die Ahnfrau, which was followed by Sappho; Das goldene Vlies; Des Meeres und der Liebe Wellen; Der Traum ein Leben, etc. He produced in lyric poetry much meritorious work, and one good prose novel, Der Arme Spielmann. Died at Vienna, 1872.

Grimm, Friedrich Melchior, Baron von, German-French critic and writer, was born at Ratisbon, 1723. He became acquainted with Rousseau in 1749, and through him with Diderot, Holbach, and Madame d'Epinay. His connection with the encyclopedists, added to his own acquirements, opened up a brilliant career. In 1776 he was made a baron by the duke of Gotha and appointed minister-plenipotentiary at the French court. At the revolution he withdrew to Gotha and afterward to the court of Catharine II., whence he was sent in 1795 as Russian minister to Hamburg. He died at Gotha, 1807.

Grimm, Jakob Ludwig Karl, German philologist and antiquary, was born at Hanau, in Hesse-Cassel, 1785. Though holding at various times important public offices, his life was devoted to philological and antiquarian studies. His German Grammar, in four volumes, is perhaps the greatest philological work of the age. After 1814, in company with his brother Wilhelm, he published numerous works of a more popular character, the best known of which is Kinder- und Hausmärchen, nursery and fireside stories. The greatest joint undertaking of the two brothers was the Deutsche Wörterbuch, begun in 1852. Jakob Grimm died in 1863. Wilhelm was born in 1786 and died at Berlin in 1859.

Grimston (grim-stun), Mrs. Margaret B. See Kendal, Mrs.

Grimston, William H. See Kendal, Mr.

Gros (grō), Antoine Jean, Baron, French historical painter, was born at Paris, 1771. He studied in the school of David, and acquired celebrity by his great pictures of Napoleon's battles, "Francis I. and Charles V. at Saint Denis," "Departure of Louis XVIII. for Ghent," "The Plague of Jaffa," and "Embarkation of the Duchess of Angouleme." He drowned himself in the Seine, 1835.

Gross, Samuel David, American surgeon, was born in Pennsylvania, 1805. He was graduated from Jefferson Medical College, 1828; was professor of pathological anatomy in Cincinnati Medical College, 1835-39; professor of surgery in university of Louisville, 1839-50, and at univeristy of New York, 1850-51; professor of surgery in Jefferson Medical College, 1856-84. He wrote: System of Surgery (2 vols.); American Medical Biography, etc. He was the founder and chief editor of the North American Medico-Chirurgical Review, and was president of the American Medical Association, 1867. Died, 1884.

Grosscup (grōs'kup), Peter Stenger, jurist, judge of United States circuit court of appeals, 7th circuit, since 1899, was born at Ashland, Ohio, 1852. He was graduated from Wittenberg College, 1872, Boston Law School, 1874; practiced law at Ashland, Ohio, 1874-83, where he was city solicitor for six years; practiced in Chicago, 1882-92; United States judge of northern district of Illinois 1892-99. He was president of the John Crerar library, Chicago. Died, 1921.

Grosvenor, Edwin Augustus, educator, historian, was born in Newburyport, Mass., 1845. He was graduated from Amherst, 1867, Andover theological seminary, 1872; LL.D., Wabash, 1903. Professor of modern governments and their administration, 1898-1901, modern government and international law since 1901, Amherst College. Author: The Hippodrome of Constantinople; Constantinople; The Permanence of the Greek Type; Contemporary History, etc.

Grote (grōt), George, English historian and politician, was born at Clay Hill, Kent, England, 1794. He published many pamphlets on reform, and contributed to the Westminster Review. In 1833 he was elected to parliament for the city of London, for which he continued to sit until 1841, as one of the "philosophical radicals." His History of Greece appeared between 1846 and 1856, and was followed by Plato and Other Companions of Socrates. He died in 1871, and is buried in Westminster abbey.

Grotius, or De Groot, Hugo, eminent Dutch scholar and statesman, was born at Delft, Holland, in 1583. He was descended from a noble family, received an excellent education and gave early manifestations of surprising talents.

In 1599 he commenced his career as advocate; and was successively appointed historiographer, advocate-general of Holland and Zerland, a member of the states-general and envoy to England. Hitherto his life had been marked by splendor, but now it began to be clouded by the part which he took in the Arminian controversy. In 1613 he became syndic, or pensionary, of Rotterdam, and declaring himself on the side of Barneveldt, he supported him and the cause of the Arminians by his pen and influence. For this he narrowly escaped the fate of Barneveldt (who suffered on the scaffold) and received sentence of imprisonment for life in the fortress of Loewestein. He remained in prison 18 months; while there wrote his celebrated Treatise on the Truth of the Christian Religion, and then succeeded in escaping. This was effected by the management of his wife, who contrived to have him carried out of the castle in a chest that had been used for the conveyance of books and linen.

Grotius at first sought an asylum in France and it was during his residence there that he composed his great work, De Jure Belli et Pacis "On the Law of War and Peace." After an absence of 12 years, he returned to his native country, relying on the favor of Frederick Henry, prince of Orange, who had written him a sympathizing letter. But by the influence of his enemies he was condemned to perpetual banishment. He passed the remnant of his life in the diplomatic service of Sweden, and died at Rostock, in 1645.

With the talents of the most able statesman, Grotius united deep and extensive learning. He was a profound theologian, a distinguished scholar, an acute philosopher, a learned jurist and an erudite historian. Among his works not mentioned above may be noticed De Antiquitate Reipublicae Batavicae; a History of the Goths, etc.

References.—Burigny's Life of Hugo Grotius; Buller's Life; and Grotius trans. by D. P. de Bruyn.

Grouchy (grōō-shē'), Emmanuel, Marquis de, distinguished French marshal, was born in Paris, 1766. He entered the French army, 1781; was a lieutenant in the royal body-guard, 1787-93; served with Lafayette, was promoted brigadier-general, commanded the cavalry in the army of the Alps, aided in the conquest of Savoy, and after fighting in La Vendee, 1794, was cashiered with all other officers of the nobility. He then enlisted as a private soldier, and after the fall of Robespierre was reinstated and promoted general of division by a special decree. Defeated the Prussian cavalry at Zendenik, 1806; was governor of Madrid, 1808; took part in the battle of Wagram, 1809; distinguished himself at Borodino, 1812; and commanded Napoleon's body-guard on the retreat from Moscow. When Napoleon reappeared from Elba, Grouchy was given a command and made a marshal of France for his successes in the north. He then marched into Belgium, defeated the allied English and Prussian armies at Fleurus and Ligny, and by following Napoleon's orders to the letter to pursue Blücher is believed to have caused the French defeat at Waterloo. He was again banished by the Bourbons, lived five years in Philadelphia, was recalled to France, 1819, and after the revolution of 1830 was restored to rank as marshal and created a peer. Died, 1847.

Grove, Sir George, British engineer and writer on music, was born at Clapham, 1820. He was trained as a civil engineer, erected in the West Indies the first two cast-iron lighthouses and assisted in the Britannia tubular bridge, which unites Anglesey and Wales. He was made D.C.L. by Durham, LL.D. by Glasgow, and was knighted in 1883 on the opening of the Royal College of music, of which he was director until 1895. He died in 1900.

Grove, Sir William Robert, English lawyer and physicist, was born at Swansea, 1811. He studied at Oxford, was admitted to the bar, raised to the bench, 1871, knighted, 1872, and in 1875-87 was a judge in the high court of justice. He greatly distinguished himself in the subjects of electricity and optics, and in 1839 he invented the powerful voltaic battery known by his name. He published very important lectures, in which he propounded the theory of the mutual convertibility of the natural forces; the Correlation of the Physical Forces; Voltaic Ignition, and the Continuity of Natural Phenomena. Died, 1896.

Grundtvig (grōnt'vēg), Nikolai Frederik Severin, Danish poet and theologian, was born at Udby in Zealand, 1783. He first became known by his Northern Mythology, published in 1808, and Decline of the Heroic Age in the North, in 1809. These were followed by the Rhyme of Roeskilde and the Roeskilde Saga, and by a collection of patriotic songs. In 1818 he had begun the translation of Snorri Sturluson and Saxo Grammaticus; in 1820 published a Danish translation of Beowulf. After 1861 he had the title of bishop, though he held no see. He died in 1872.

Grundy (grun'di), Felix, American jurist and statesman, was born in Berkeley county, Va., 1777. In 1799 he was chosen a member of the Kentucky constitutional convention, and from that time until 1806 served as a member of the legislature. He was appointed judge of the supreme court of errors and appeals in 1806; in 1807, became chief justice, in 1811 was sent to congress, and reëlected in 1813, and in 1829 became United States senator, to fill the unexpired term of John H. Eaton. Later he was elected to fill that place as a partisan of Andrew Jackson. In 1838 he served for a few months as United States attorney general during the administration of Martin Van Buren; resigning this office he was immediately reëlected to the United States senate. Died at Nashville, Tenn., 1840.

Grunsky, Carl Ewald, civil engineer, was born in San Joaquin county, Cal., 1855. His first professional work was as topographer with river surveying party of state engineering department of California, 1878; member of San Francisco sewerage commission, 1892-93; city engineer, San Francisco, 1900-04; member of isthmian canal commission, 1904-05; consulting engineer, United States reclamation service, Washington, 1905-07; and, since 1907, consulting engineer, New York.

Guarini (gwä-rē'nē), Giovanni Battista, Italian poet and diplomat, was born at Ferrara, 1537. He was intrusted by Duke Alfonso II. with diplomatic missions to the pope, the emperor, Venice, and Poland. His chief work was the famous pastoral play, Il Pastor Fido, really an imitation of Tasso's Aminta. Died, 1612.

Guericke (gā'ri-kē), Otto von, German physicist, was born at Magdeburg, in Prussian Saxony, 1602. As a physicist he is chiefly known by his discoveries relative to nature and effects of air. The experiments of Galileo and Pascal on the weight of air led Guericke to attempt the creation of a vacuum. This resulted in the first air pump, invented about 1650. Guericke's invention soon became famous, and in 1654 he was summoned to the presence of the emperor Ferdinand III. of Germany at Ratisbon, at which time he made the famous experiment commonly known as the "Magdeburg hemispheres," in demonstration of atmospheric pressure. Died at Hamburg, 1686.

Guesclin (ge'klaN'), Bertrand, French general and the most famous French soldier of the age, was born in 1320. Becoming a soldier of fortune under Charles, he gained great distinction at the siege of Vannes, 1342. He was knighted, and in 1351 went, with the lords of Britanny to England to secure the release of his captive master. He soon took service under the French king and, after several brilliant actions, was made marshal of Normandy and count of Longueville. At the battle of Auray, 1364, he was taken prisoner, but was ransomed for a large sum of money and led his soldiers into Spain. He was afterward taken prisoner by the Black Prince, then in alliance with Pedro "the cruel." Being again ransomed, he restored Henry to the throne in 1369. In 1370 he was made constable of France, and for ten years was active and successful in driving the English from the south and west of France. In 1373 he seized and held most of the strongholds in the duchy of Brittany. He died while besieging the fortress of Chateauneuf-Randon, 1380.

Guest, Edgar Albert, American writer, was born in Birmingham, England, 1881. He came to the United States when ten. Since 1895 he has been a writer for the Detroit Free Press and has had his verse in countless newspaper columns. Among his volumes of collected poems are A Heap o' Livin', When Day Is Done, The Passing Throng.

Guggenheim, Simon, capitalist, United States senator, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1867. He was graduated from public schools of Philadelphia, after which he studied languages in Europe two years. Went to Pueblo, Col., 1888, and engaged extensively in mining and smelting in the United States and Mexico. He was elected United States Senator from Colorado, 1907-13.

Guido Reni (gwē'dō rā'nē), Italian painter of the eclectic (Bolognese) school, was born near Bologna, 1575. He studied under Calvaert, but subsequently followed the more refined and ideal school of the Caracci, previous to finally striking out a style for himself. In 1608 he went to Rome, where he remained for twenty years, and was a rival of Caravaggio. The "Aurora" of Guido, on the ceiling of one of the halls of the Rospigliosi palace, a fresco of world-wide fame, is considered the greatest of his works. Died, 1642.

Guild, Curtis, Jr., journalist, ex-governor of Massachusetts, was born at Boston, 1860. He was graduated at Harvard, 1881; entered office of Commercial Bulletin, Boston, founded by his father; served from bill collector to editor, and, since 1902, sole owner of the paper. He was brigadier-general of state militia at outbreak of Spanish war; served as lieutenant-colonel, inspector-general on staff, 7th corps (General Fitzhugh Lee) until break-up of corps in Cuba; lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts, 1902-05; governor of Massachusetts, 1906-09. Died, 1915.

Guise (gū-ēz'), a ducal family of Lorraine, was so named from the town of Guise. The most prominent members historically are the following: Claude of Lorraine (1496-1550), fifth son of René II., duke of Lorraine, was born at the chateau of Condé, fought at Marignano in 1515, but after that campaign remained at home to defend France against the English and Germans. For suppressing the peasant revolt in Lorraine, 1527, Francis created him duke of Guise.

Mary of Lorraine (1515-60), his daughter, in 1534 married Louis of Orleans, duke of Longueville, and in 1538 James V. of Scotland, at whose death, in 1542, she was left with one child, Mary, Queen of Scots. During the troublous years that followed, the queen-mother acted with wisdom and moderation; but after her accession to the regency in 1554 she allowed the Guises so much influence that the Protestant nobles raised a rebellion, which continued to her death in Edinburgh castle.

Francis (1519-63), her brother, second duke, became one of the greatest generals of France. He and his brother Charles, the cardinal, afterward conspicuous at the council of Trent, managed to become all-powerful during the reign of Francis II. Heading the Roman Catholic party, they sternly repressed Protestantism. Guise and Montmorency won a victory over the Huguenots at Dreux, 1562, and Guise was besieging Orleans when he was assassinated by a Huguenot.

Henry (1550-88), third duke, fought fiercely against the Protestants at Jarnac and Moncontour, 1569, and forced Coligny to raise the siege of Poitiers. He was ambitious to succeed to the throne of France, when Henry III. procured his assassination at Blois.

Henry (1614-64), his grandson, fifth duke, at fifteen became archbishop of Rheims, but in 1640 succeeded to the dukedom. Having joined the league against Richelieu, he was condemned to death, but fled to Flanders. He put himself at the head of Masaniello's revolt in Naples as the representative of the Anjou family, but was taken by the Spanish, 1647, and carried to Madrid, where he remained five years. After another attempt to win Naples, 1654, he settled at Paris.

Guiteras, Juan, physician, professor of general pathology and tropical diseases, university of Havana, since 1900, was born at Matanzas, Cuba, 1852. He was educated at La Empresa, Matanzas; M.D., University of Pennsylvania, 1873; Ph.D. was professor of pathology, university of Pennsylvania; on staff of General Shafter as yellow fever expert in Santiago campaign, 1898. Editor of La Revista de Medicina Tropical, and member of many medical and scientific associations. Died, 1925.

Guizot (gē'zō'), François Pierre Guillaume, French statesman and historian, was born at Nimes, France, 1787. His first work, the Nouveau

Dictionnaire Universal des Synonymes de la Langue Francaise, appeared in 1809. He contributed to the dissolution of the Chambre Introuvable by writing a memorial which was placed in the hands of Louis XVIII. by Decazes. The latter committed to him the direction of the administration of the communes and departments in 1819. After the revolution of 1830 he became successively minister of public instruction, and minister of the interior, the latter office he held, with two interruptions, until 1836. In 1847 he became the official leader of the cabinet, which maintained its ground, as the organ of Louis Philippe's policy, until the revolution of 1848. Among his works are: History of the English Revolution; Life of Oliver Cromwell; History of Civilization in Europe; and History of Civilization in France. He died in 1874.

Gunsaulus (gŭn-sô'lŭs), Frank Wakeley, Congregational clergyman, educator, was born at Chesterville, Ohio, 1856. He was graduated at Ohio Wesleyan University, 1875; D.D., Beloit College, Wisconsin; Pastor of Memorial Congregational church, Baltimore, 1885-87; Plymouth church, Chicago, 1887-99; Central church, Chicago, 1899; president of Armour Institute of technology, since 1893; lecturer at Yale theological seminary, 1882; professorial lecturer of university of Chicago. Author: Phidias and Other Poems; Songs of Night and Day; Transfiguration of Christ; Monk and Knight; Life of William Ewart Gladstone; Metamorphosis of a Creed; November at Eastwood; Loose Leaves of Song; The Man of Galilee; Paths to Power; Paths to the City of God; Higher Ministeries of Recent English Poetry, etc. Died, 1921.

Gustavus Vasa (gŭs-tā'vŭs vā'sā), king of Sweden, was born of a noble house at Lindholmen in Upland, 1496, and in 1518, during the patriotic struggle with Christian II. of Denmark, was treacherously carried off to Denmark as a hostage. After a year he escaped to Lubeck, thence to Sweden, where he strove in vain to rouse a spirit of resistance against the Danes. Retreating to Delecarlia, he wandered for months with a price set on his head and worked on farms and in mines. At last the infamous "blood-bath" of Stockholm, 1520, roused the Swedes, and soon Gustavus had an army large enough to attack the enemy. His capture of Stockholm in 1523 drove the Danes from Sweden, and he was elected king. He found the whole country demoralized. Yet after a forty years' rule he left Sweden a peaceful and civilized realm with a full exchequer and a well-organized army. He died in 1560, and was succeeded by his eldest son, Eric.

Gustavus II., Adolphus, was born at Stockholm, 1594. He was the grandson of Gustavus Vasa by his youngest son, Charles IX., at whose death, in 1611, he succeeded to the throne of Sweden. He was acquainted with eight languages, five of which he spoke and wrote fluently, was well read in the classics and ancient history. He was proficient in music and excelled in all warlike and manly exercises. Having made various administrative reforms, and availed himself of the short interval of peace to promote the material prosperity of the country, he remitted the charge of the government to his chancellor, Oxenstiern, and set sail, in the summer of 1630, with an army of about 15,000 men, to aid the Protestants of Germany in their hard struggle against the Catholic league, which was backed by the power of the empire. With and for the Germans he fought until his death on the battlefield of Lützen, 1632. He made Sweden a power in northern Europe.

Gustavus III., king of Sweden, was born at Stockholm, 1746, and succeeded his father, Adolphus Frederick, in 1771. In 1792 he was mortally wounded by Ankarström at a masked ball in the opera house which he himself had built. Gustavus was a man of varied learning and the author of several dramatic works and poems of considerable merit.

Gustavus V., king of Sweden, was born in 1858, and married, in 1881, Princess Victoria of Baden, first cousin of the German emperor and a descendant of the old Swedish royal family of Vasa. He succeeded his father, King Oscar II., on December 8, 1907, having several times previously acted as regent. The king's eldest son, Prince Gustavus Adolphus, married Princess Margaret of Connaught, June, 1905. His majesty is a knight of the garter of Great Britain and received the royal Victorian chain in April, 1908.

Gutenberg, Johann, or Henne (goo'tenbûrg), the inventor of printing, was born in Mentz, Germany, about 1400, died 1468. His father's name was Gensfleisch or Gansfleisch, Gutenberg being the name of his mother, or of an estate belonging to his family, which was of noble lineage.

He became a citizen of Strasburg about 1420, where he appears to have devoted many years to mechanical experiments, and as early as 1438 he had a press, movable types, forms and other appliances for printing. After 1444 all trace of him is lost till 1448, when he was again in Mentz. In 1450 he entered into a partnership with Johann Faust of Mentz for the purpose of carrying on the business of printing, the latter undertaking to furnish the funds. The partnership terminated at the end of five years, most of the materials being taken by Faust for his advances and Gutenberg appears to have afterward carried on printing with considerable activity alone.

In 1465 he abandoned the business and entered the service of the archbishop-elector Adolphus of Nassau. In his own and in modern times he has been obliged to share with Faust and Peter Schöffer the credit of his invention; but in the preface to a German translation of Livy (Mentz, 1505) it is distinctly declared by Johann Schöffer that the "admirable art of printing was invented in Mentz in 1450 by the ingenious Johann Gutenberg." The opinion of most modern writers seems to be that Gutenberg not merely invented the art, but practiced it long before he became associated with Faust.

References.—Pearson's Gutenberg and the Art of Printing; Hessels's Gutenberg; Zatzman's Gutenberg; Lamartine's Celebrated Characters.

Gutzkow (gŏŏts'kō), Karl Ferdinand, German dramatist and author, was born in 1811. He started a newspaper in 1831; went to Stuttgart to assist in editing Menzel's Literaturblatt; was imprisoned three months and had all his writings suppressed for the atheistic and socialistic views expressed in his novel, Wally, die Zweiflerin, 1835, and in the same year elaborated his opinions in Nero, a dramatic work. To escape the surveillance of the Prussian government he went to Hamburg in 1837, thence to various German cities, and in 1870 made his permanent residence in Berlin. He was author of numerous comedies, tragedies, dramas and novels, which attained wide popularity. Died, 1878.

Guyot (gē'yō), Arnold Henry, Swiss geographer and geologist, was born at Neuchâtel, 1807. He came to America in 1848, and devoted his life to science; was professor of geology and physical geography at Princeton College, 1855-84. He formed an intimacy with Agassiz, and made numerous maps, mathematical tables and textbooks. His greatest works were The Meteorological and Physical Tables, issued by the Smithsonian Institution, and his Earth and Man. Died, 1884.

Haakon VII. (hô'kŏn), king of Norway, was born in 1872, and is the second son of King Frederik of Denmark and a nephew of Queen Alexandra of Great Britain. His baptismal name was Charles, but he assumed the above title on becoming king, November 18, 1905, on the separation of Norway and Sweden. King Haakon and Queen Maud made their formal entry into Christiania November 25, 1905, and the king took the oath before the Storthing on the 27th, and was crowned at Trondhjem on June 22, 1906. The king married Princess Maud Alexandra, daughter of King Edward VII., July 22, 1896. His son and heir-apparent is Prince Alexander, born July 2, 1903, and renamed Prince Olaf on his father's accession to the throne.

Hackett, James Keteltas, actor, was born at Wolfe island, Ont., 1869. He was graduated at the college of the city of New York, 1891, and studied at New York Law School. Made his début on stage in Palmer's stock company, 1892; was leading man at New York Lyceum at twenty-six. His most notable successes were Prisoner of Zenda, and its sequel, Rupert of Hentzau, and The Pride of Jennico, under the management of Daniel Frohman. Died in Paris, 1926.

Hading (â'dan'), Jane, stage name of Jeanne-Alfrédine Tréfouret, French actress, was born at Marseilles, France, 1859. At the age of three she played Blanche de Caylus in Le Bossu, her father at the same time playing the leading character. Some years later she was sent to the Marseilles conservatoiré, where she won considerable distinction. On leaving she entered upon an engagement at the Algiers theater, and when but fourteen played Zouella in Le Passant, Stefano in Chef d'œuvre in Connu, the blind girl in Les Deux Orphilines, and Pedro in Girofié-Girofla. At the Palais Royal she played La Chaste Susanna, and at the Renaissance she was the original Jolie Persane and Belle Lurette, and the heroine in Hélöise and Abelard. She again appeared in comedy as Paulette in Antour de Nariage, and as Claire de Beaulieu in La Maitre de Forges. She subsequently appeared in London at the Royalty theater, and in 1888 and 1894 made a successful tour of the United States, accompanied by M. Coquelin. One of her greatest successes was in The Second Mrs. Tanqueray.

Hadley, Arthur Twining, American educator and economist, president of Yale University, 1899-1921, was born in New Haven, Conn., 1856. He was graduated at Yale, 1876; was a student of University of Berlin; LL.D., Harvard, 1899; Columbia, 1900; Johns Hopkins, 1902. Tutor, 1879-83, lecturer, 1883-86, Yale; commissioner of labor statistics, Connecticut, 1885-87; professor of political science, Yale, 1886-99; president of American Economic Association, 1899-1900. Author: Railroad Transportation: Its History and Laws; Connecticut Labor Reports, 1885-86; Economics; An Account of the Relations Between Private Property and Public Welfare; The Education of the American Citizen; Freedom and Responsibility; Baccalaureate Addresses; Standards of Public Morality, etc. He was American editor of the tenth edition of Encyclopedia Britannica. Died, 1930.

Hadley, James, father of preceding, American classical scholar and writer, was born in Fairfield, N. Y., 1821. He was graduated at Yale College in 1842, became tutor in mathematics at Middlebury College, and in 1845 tutor of classical history at Yale. In 1848 he was appointed assistant professor, and in 1851 succeeded Theodore D. Woolsey as professor of Greek, which position he held until his death in 1872. He was a distinguished student of philology and civil law; was one of the American committee for the revision of the New Testament and a member of a number of learned societies.

Hadrian, or Publius Ælius Hadrianus, Roman emperor from 117 to 138, was born in 76 A. D. He was elected by the army successor of Trajan. His reign was one of the happiest periods in Roman history, the only important war which broke out during the reign being a rebellion of the Jews, which lasted for three years. After his death, which took place at Baiae, 138 A. D., he was succeeded by Antoninus Pius. The amusoleum which he built for himself in Rome forms the ground work of the present castle of St. Angelo.

Haeckel (hek'el), Ernst Heinrich, German naturalist and writer, was born at Potsdam, Prussia, 1834. He studied medicine and science at Würzburg, Berlin and Vienna, where he was appointed professor of zoölogy. Between 1866 and 1875 he traveled over the greater part of Europe, besides visiting Syria and Egypt. Later he visited India and Ceylon, and published a lively account of his travels. He is regarded in Germany as the foremost supporter of Darwin's theories. Among his works are The History of Creation; The Origin of the Human Race; Life in the Deep Seas; The History of Man's Development; Popular Lectures on Evolution; Voyage of H. M. S. Challenger, etc. Died in 1919.

Hafiz (hâ'fiz or hă-fēz'), Mohammed Shamsuddin, or Shams-ud-Din, better known by his poetical name of Hafiz, was the greatest of Persian lyrical poets. The name of Hafiz is a household word throughout Persia, and his songs are recited in every social assembly. The date of his birth is unknown, but he is said to have died at a good old age in 1388 A. D.

Haggard, Henry Rider, English novelist, barrister and social reformer, was born in England, 1856. He accompanied Sir Henry Bulwer, as secretary, to Natal in 1875, and formally hoisted the British flag over Transvaal territory, 1877. He retired from the colonial service in 1879; returned to England and became a barrister. His first book, published in 1882, of a political character, is named Cetywayo and His White Neighbors. Subsequently he published She, a novel of great power; Ayesha, or the Return of She; Jess; Cleopatra, etc. He also wrote Rural England and A Farmer's Year, and made extensive studies in socialistic settlements. Died, 1925.

Hague (hag), Arnold, American geologist, was born in Boston, Mass., 1840. He was graduated at the scientific school of Yale, 1863, and for several years studied in Germany. D.Sc., Columbia, 1901; LL.D., Aberdeen, 1906. He was assistant geologist of United States geological exploration of 40th parallel, 1867-77; secretary, national academy of sciences, since 1901, and member of many scientific societies. Author: Descriptive Geology; Geological Exploration of 40th Parallel; Geology, Yellowstone National Park; Geological Atlas of Yellowstone Park, etc. Died, 1917.

Hahnemann (hâ'nē-măn), Samuel Christian Friedrich, founder of the homeopathic system of medicine, born at Meissen, Saxony, in 1755. Degree of M.D. at Erlangen in 1779. In 1790, he noticed a similarity between the effects of cinchona upon a healthy person and the results of diseases for the cure of which that drug was used. He became convinced that the cure for a disease is the very drug that would in a healthy individual produce the symptoms of such disease. Further investigation caused him to conclude that the doses of his day were injurious, and to another principle, that of very minute doses, made by a process of "potentization," described by him at length in his Organon, 1810, which work was translated into many languages. He encountered opposition and was driven out of Leipzig, 1821. The grand duke of Anhalt, however, appointed him court physician, and he remained at Köthen, occupying that position until 1835, when he removed to Paris. He died in 1843.

Haig, Field-Marshal Sir Douglas, Commander in Chief British forces in Great War. b. 1861; m. 1905. Educ.: Clifton; Brasenose College, Oxford; served in Soudan, 1898; South Africa, 1899; inspector Gen. of cavalry India, 1903-6; Lt.-Gen. 1910; Gen., 1914, for distinguished service; field marshal, 1917, for distinguished service; stood the brunt of German Spring drive, 1918. Died, 1928.

Hakluyt (hak'lŏŏt), Richard, English author, was born about 1552. He was lecturer on cosmography at Oxford University, and was the first to teach the use of globes. He was afterward professor of divinity, and in 1584-89 was in Paris, where he published several works. On his return he joined Raleigh's company of gentlemen adventurers and merchants for colonizing Virginia. His chief work is The Principal Navigations, Voyages, and Discoveries of the English Nation, commonly called Hakluyt's Voyages. Died, 1616.

Haldane (hal'dān), Richard Burdon, British statesman and writer, was born in 1856. He was educated at Edinburgh academy and university and at Göttingen; in 1879 was called to the chancery bar, and in 1890 was made a queen's counsel; hon. D.D.L., Oxford; LL.D. Edinburgh. He entered parliament in 1885 as member for Haddingtonshire; and became secretary of state for war, 1905-12; Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, 1912-15 and 1924. In Education and Empire, 1902, he zealously insisted on educational reform as essential to national well-being. Died, 1928.

Haldeman (hôl'dē man), Samuel Stehman, American naturalist and philologist, was born near Columbia, Pa., 1812. He occupied the chair of natural history, and later of comparative philology, in the University of Pennsylvania, and was the author of numerous articles on philology, conchology, entomology, and paleontology. His work, Analytic Orthography, obtained in England the highest Trevelyan prize over eighteen competitors, 1858. Died, 1900.

Hale, Edward Everett, Unitarian clergyman, author, was born in Boston, Mass., 1822. He was graduated at Harvard University, 1839; S.T.D., 1879; LL.D., Dartmouth, 1901; Williams, 1904. Studied theology, and became minister of the church of the Unity, Worcester, Mass., 1846-56; minister of South Congregational (Unitarian) church, Boston, Mass., 1856-1909; chaplain United States Senate, 1902-09. He actively promoted the Chautauqua movement, assisted in the organization of "Lend-a-Hand" clubs, and was a prolific editor and writer. Author: (stories) The Man Without a Country; In His Name; His Level Best; The Ingham Papers; Christmas Eve and Christmas Day; Christmas in Narragansett; Our Christmas in a Palace, etc. Also: Sketches in Christian History; The Story of Massachusetts; Sybaris and Other Homes; Ralph Waldo Emerson; We, the People; New England Ballads, etc. Died, 1909.

Hale, Eugene, United States Senator from Maine, 1881-1911, was born in Turner, Oxford county, Me., 1836. He received an academic education; LL.D., Bates College, Colby University and Bowdoin College; was admitted to the bar, 1857; member of Congress, 1869-79; delegate to national Republican conventions, 1868, 1876, and 1880. He was elected to the United States senate to succeed Hannibal Hamlin in 1881, and continued in that until 1911. Died, 1918.

Hale, George Ellery, American astronomer, was born at Chicago, Ill., 1868. He was graduated at Massachusetts Institute of technology; studied at Harvard College Observatory, 1889-90, University of Berlin, 1893-94; Sc.D., Yale, 1905; LL.D., Beloit, 1904. Professor astrophysics, University of Chicago, 1897-1905, director Yerkes observatory, 1895-1905; director solar observatory of Carnegie Institution of Washington at Mt. Wilson, Cal. Joint editor Astronomy and Astrophysics; editor Astrophysical Journal since 1895. He has written many papers on the sun, stellar spectroscopy, etc.

Hale, Sir Matthew, English lawyer and jurist, was born at Alderley, England, 1609. He was graduated at Oxford, studied law at Lincoln's Inn, and was admitted to the bar in 1637. Became a judge of common pleas in 1653, and sat in parliament until the restoration, when he was made lord chief baron of the exchequer. In 1671 he became lord chief justice, and resigned shortly before his death, in 1676.

Hale, Nathan, American patriot, was born in Coventry, Conn., 1755. He was graduated at Yale College, in 1773, and devoted himself to the cause of the colonies in the contest with Great Britain. After the defeat of the patriot army of Long Island he endeavored to obtain knowledge of the enemy's plans and position for the information of Washington. He obtained the knowledge, but was arrested by the British before he could return, and, the papers containing the information being found on his person, he was hanged as a spy, by order of Sir William Howe, 1776. His sentence was carried into effect in the most unfeeling manner; he was refused the attendance of a clergyman, and the letters which he wrote to his mother a short time before his death were destroyed. His last words were, "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

Halevy (á'lā'vē'), Jacques Francois Fromental, French composer, was born at Paris, of Jewish parentage, 1799. The first work that brought him any considerable reputation was La Juive, produced at the Grand Opéra in 1835. The most important of his subsequent pieces were La Reine de Chypre; Charles VI.; La Juive Errant, and La Magicienne. Those executed for the Opera Comique are regarded as his most successful; the principal are: Les Mousquetaires, L'Eclair, and Le Val d'Andorre. He was a great favorite with his countrymen, but his style was so purely national that in spite of his great dramatic power he did not enjoy a great celebrity out of France until recently. Died, 1862.

Halevy, Ludovic, French novelist and dramatic author, was born at Paris, 1834, and received his education at the Lycée Louis le Grand. He was chief of the department for Algiers and the colonies, and in 1861 was appointed to edit the proceedings of the corps législatif. This position he resigned to devote himself to the drama. Under his own name, and with various collaborators, he produced Ba-La-Clan; Rose et Rosette; Orphée aux Enfers; La Belle Hélene, a burlesque of ancient Greek life, which had a great success; La Barbe Bleue; Froufrou; L'Abbé Constantin; Karikari, etc. In 1872 he published L'Invasion, personal recollections of the war; and in 1873, Madame et Monsieur Cardinal. He was a member of the French academy. Died, 1908.

Haliburton (hal'i-bûr't'n), Thomas Chandler, Canadian humorist, was born at Windsor, Nova Scotia, 1796. He was judge of the supreme court of Nova Scotia, but is best known as a satirical writer. In 1837 he published The Clockmaker; or the Sayings and Doings of Samuel Slick of Slickville, which became very popular. In 1856 he went to England to reside permanently, and in 1859 entered the house of commons as member for Launceston, which seat he held until within a few months of his death. Besides the works already mentioned, he wrote several other books. He died at Isleworth, Middlesex, England, 1865.

Halifax, Charles Montagu, Earl of, British poet and statesman, was born at Horton, England, 1661. He was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge. He was member of parliament for Maldon in 1689, and a lord of the treasury in 1692, and in that year proposed to raise a million sterling by way of loan—so the national debt was established. In 1694, Montagu founded the bank of England, as proposed by William Paterson three years earlier. His next work was the recoinage in 1695, appointing his friend, Newton, warden of the mint, and raising a tax on windows to pay the expense; and now he first introduced exchequer bills. In 1697 he became premier, but his arrogance and vanity soon made him unpopular, and he was impeached in 1701, but was protected by the lords and the proceedings fell to the ground. He was president of the royal society, 1695-98. Died, 1715.

Hall, Charles Cuthbert, American theologian, was born in New York city, 1852; graduated at Williams College, 1872; D.D., University of New York, 1890; Harvard, 1897; Yale, 1901; LL.D., Union, 1905. Studied theology at Union Theological seminary and in London and Edinburgh. Pastor of Union Presbyterian church, Newburgh N. Y., 1875-77; First Presbyterian church, Brooklyn, 1887-97. Barrows lecturer for the University of Chicago to the far East, 1902-03 and 1906-07; Cole lecturer, Vanderbilt University, 1905; Noble lecturer at Harvard, 1906. Was president of Union theological seminary from 1897 until his death. He did much to encourage higher criticism and to induce a more liberal and broadminded attitude on the part of the clergy. Author: Christian Belief Interpreted by Christian Experience; Redeemed Life After Death; Universal Elements of the Christian Religion; Christ and the Human Race; The Witness of Oriental Consciousness to Jesus Christ. Died, 1908.

Hall, Charles Martin, inventor, manufacturer, was born at Thompson, Ohio, 1863; graduated at Oberlin College, 1885, A.M., 1893. Invented the electrolytic process for the manufacture of aluminum, now universally used, 1886; commenced its commercial manufacture in 1888 with Pittsburg Reduction company, now the Aluminum Company of America. The Hall process has reduced the price of aluminum so as to make it a common metal of commerce, where it was formerly as costly as silver and little used. Member of many scientific societies; trustee of Oberlin College. Died in 1914.

Hall, Granville Stanley, American educator and psychologist, president of Clark University, 1888-1921, was born in Ashfield, Mass., 1846. He was graduated at Williams College, 1867; Ph.D., Harvard, 1878; LL.D., University of Michigan, 1888; Johns Hopkins, 1902; studied in Berlin, Bonn, Heidelberg and Leipzig; lecturer on psychology in Harvard and Williams, 1880-81; professor of psychology, Johns Hopkins, 1881-88. Author: Hints Toward a Select and Descriptive Bibliography of Education (with John M. Mansfield); Adolescence (2 vols.); etc. Editor and founder of The American Journal of Psychology; The Pedagogical Seminary, and American Journal of Religious Psychology and Education. Died, 1924.

Hall, Robert, British pulpit orator, was born at Arnsby near Leicester, England, 1764. He was appointed assistant minister and tutor in the Bristol Academy, where his eloquent preaching attracted overflowing audiences. He went in 1790 to Cambridge, where he rose to the highest rank of British pulpit orators. In 1807 he settled in Leicester, but returned in 1826 to Bristol. He died in 1831. Among his writings are Apology for the Freedom of the Press and on Terms of Communion.

Hallam, Henry, English historian and critic, was born at Windsor, England, 1777. He was graduated at Christ Church, Oxford, 1799, and subsequently called to the bar. LL.D., D.C.L., Cambridge and Oxford respectively. His first writings were published in periodicals; afterward he was distinguished among the literary men of Europe for his extensive and profound learning, powers of generalization, taste, judgment and conscientiousness, exhibited in a succession of great works, the principal of which are Europe During the Middle Ages, The Constitutional History of England, and Introduction to the Literature of Europe. Died, 1859.

Halleck, Fitz-Greene, American poet, was born in Guilford, Conn., 1790. He began life as a clerk in a store in Guilford, but when twenty-one years old he was employed in a banking-house in New York, where he remained many years. His earliest poem, Twilight, was printed in 1818. Five years after he visited Europe, and in 1827 a volume of his poetry, including Marco Bozzaris, appeared. He died in Guilford, 1867. A bronze statue of him has been erected in Central Park, New York.

Haller (hal'ĕr), Albrecht von, Swiss anatomist, botanist, physiologist and poet, was born at Bern, 1708. He started practice in 1729, but in 1736 was called to a chair at Göttingen. Here he organized a botanical garden, an anatomical museum and theater, and an obstetrical school; helped to found the academy of sciences; wrote anatomical and physiological works; and took an active part in the literary movement. His poems were descriptive, didactic, and (the best of them) lyrical. Died, 1777.

Halley, Edmund, English astronomer, was born in 1656. He went to St. Helena in 1676 to study the southern heavens, and in 1679 published his Catalogus Stellarum Australium, containing the positions of 360 stars, and numerous other observations. In 1681, near Paris, he discovered the comet known by his name; his prediction of its return was the first of the kind that proved correct. He prevailed on Sir Isaac Newton to complete his Principia, the first volume of which was printed by Halley at his own expense. In 1703 he was chosen Savilian professor of geometry at Oxford. In 1721, after the death of Flamsteed, he was appointed astronomer royal; and he continued for twenty years, without an assistant, to carry on the operations of the Greenwich observatory. In 1721 he published his method of finding the longitude at sea, and in 1725 drew up his tables for computing the places of the planets, which did not appear until 1749. Died, 1742.

Halliwell-Phillipps (hal'i-wĕl-fil'ips), James Orchard, English Shakespearean scholar and antiquary, was born at Chelsea, 1820. He studied at Jesus College, Cambridge. His studies embraced the whole field of our earlier literature, but gradually he concentrated himself upon Shakespeare alone, and more particularly upon the facts of his life, the successive editions of his Outlines of the Life of Shakespeare recording the growing results of his discoveries. In 1872 he added to Halliwell the surname of Phillipps, that of his first wife, a Worcestershire heiress. Besides his sumptuous folio edition of Shakespeare, he published Nursery Rhymes and Tales of England and Dictionary of Archaic and Provincial Words. Died, 1889.

Hals (hāls), Frans, the elder, portrait and genre painter, was born, probably at Antwerp, between 1580 and 1584. He settled in Haarlem about 1604, and is regarded as the founder of the Dutch school of genre-painting. His subjects of feasting and carousal are treated with marvelous vivacity and spirit. His works are distributed among the chief galleries of England and the continent. He died at Haarlem, 1666.

Hamerton (ham'ĕr-tun), Philip Gilbert, English writer on art, was born at Laneside, Oldham, the son of a solicitor at Shaw, 1834. He began as an art-critic by contributing to the Fine Arts Quarterly and Saturday Review. From 1869 he edited the Portfolio. The Intellectual Life, published in 1873, is a volume of letters of advice addressed to literary aspirants and others; Human Intercourse is a volume of essays on social subjects; The Graphic Arts, finely illustrated, is a treatise on drawing, painting and engraving. He died at Boulogne-sur-Seine, 1894.

Hamilcar Barca (hă-mil'kär bär'kă), Carthaginian general, was born shortly before the first Punic war. While very young he was appointed to the command of the Carthaginian forces in Sicily in 247 B. C., at which time the Romans had possession of almost all the land. His first care was to discipline his infantry thoroughly; he then established himself on Mount Ercte (now Pellegrino, near Palermo), and from this point made pillaging excursions in all directions, sending his privateers along the coast of Italy as far north as Cumae, thus obtaining abundant supplies for his troops. In 241 B. C., Hamilcar was compelled to abandon his fortress and evacuate Sicily. He was next appointed commander-in-chief of the Carthaginian army, and was engaged for some time in wars with the neighboring tribes, which were abruptly ended by his entering upon the Spanish campaign in (probably) 236 B. C. His great aim was to found a new empire in Spain, from which, as his basis, he might assail the Romans. He spent nine years in Spain, and at length, in 228 B. C., met his death on the field of battle while fighting against the Vettones. His military genius is considered scarcely inferior to that of his son Hannibal.

Hamilton, Alexander, celebrated American statesman, was born in the West India island of Nevis, 1757, son of a Scotch merchant who had married a young French widow. His father soon failed in business, and Alexander, at the age of twelve, had to enter the counting house of a rich American merchant. His extraordinary abilities, however, induced some of his friends to procure for him a better education than could be secured at home. He was accordingly sent to a grammar-school at Elizabethtown, N. J.; and shortly afterward entered Columbia College, New York. On the outbreak of the war he obtained a commission as captain of artillery, gained the confidence of Washington, was made his aide de-camp in 1777, and acquired the greatest influence with him as his friend and adviser. On the termination of the war he left the service with the rank of colonel, and, betaking himself to legal studies, soon became one of the most eminent lawyers in New York. In 1782 he was elected by the state of New York a representative to the continental congress; in 1786 he became a member of the New York legislature; and in 1787 he was appointed one of the delegates to the convention which met at Philadelphia for the purpose of revising the Articles of Confederation. In conjunction with Madison, he had the most important share in drawing up the constitution afterward adopted. He was a strong supporter of the federal, as opposed to the democratic party; and, along with Jay and Madison, defended the constitution against all attacks, by a series of letters in the New York Daily Advertiser, afterward collected and published under the title of The Federalist. On the establishment of the new government in 1789, with Washington as president, Hamilton was appointed secretary of the treasury. In order to re-establish public credit, he carried, in spite of much opposition, a measure for the funding of the domestic debt, founded a national bank, rearranged the system of duties, and altogether showed himself one of the greatest of American financiers. In 1795 he resigned his office, and resumed the practice of law in New York. When the war with France broke out in 1798, he was, according to the wish of Washington, made major-general of the United States army; and, on the death of Washington, he succeeded to the chief command. When peace was restored, he returned to his civil duties, but became involved in a political quarrel with Aaron Burr. This difference unhappily culminated in a duel, in which Hamilton received a wound from which he died the following day, 1804.

Hamilton, Allan McLane, American physician, great-grandson of General Philip Schuyler and grandson of Alexander Hamilton, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 1848. He was graduated at the college of physicians and surgeons, New York, 1870; became a health inspector, 1873; later was physician in charge of the New York state hospital for diseases of the nervous system, and visiting physician to the epileptic and paralytic hospital on Blackwell's island, N. Y.; professor of mental diseases in Cornell university medical college, New York. He was appointed health officer of the port of New York in 1889. Author: Clinical Electro-Therapeutics; Nervous Diseases; Medical Jurisprudence; A System of Legal Medicine; Railway and Other Accidents. Died, 1919.

Hamilton, Rt. Rev. Charles, bishop, 1896, was born at Hawkesbury, 1834. He was educated at Montreal high school and University College, Oxford; D.D., Bishop's College, 1885; D.C.L., Trinity College, Toronto, 1885; ordained, 1857; curate of Quebec cathedral, 1857-58; incumbent, St. Peters, Quebec, 1858-64; rector of St. Matthews, Quebec, 1864-85, and bishop of Niagara, 1885-96; first Bishop of Ottawa, 1896-1909; first Archbishop of Ottawa from 1909.

Hamilton, Sir William, Scottish metaphysician, was born at Glasgow, 1788. He studied at Glasgow and Oxford, was admitted to the bar, but rarely practiced. From 1836, he was widely known as a philosophical writer. His chief books were an edition of Reid's works, Discussions in Philosophy; Literature and Education; Metaphysics, Logic, and his Lectures, published after his death. He left his library to the University of Glasgow. Died, 1856.

Hamilton, Sir William Rowan, British mathematician, inventor of quaternions, was born in Dublin, 1805. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and in 1827 was appointed professor of astronomy at Dublin and Irish astronomer-royal; in 1835 he was knighted. He published many important treatises and papers, and his memoir on Algebra as the Science of Pure Time was one of the first steps to his great invention of quaternions. On this subject he published in 1853 a large volume of Lectures. Died, 1865.

Hamlin, Hannibal, American statesman, was born in Paris, Me., 1809. He practiced as a lawyer many years, and became a member of the state legislature. In 1842 he was elected to congress; was United States senator from 1848 to 1857, when he was elected governor on the republican ticket, but resigned immediately on again being elected senator. In 1861 he became vice-president under Lincoln, whose views he shared. He was again senator from 1869 to 1881, when he was named minister to Spain, 1881-83. Died, 1891.

Hammer, William Joseph, consulting engineer, was born in Schuykill county, Pa., 1858. He was assistant to Edward Weston in Weston malleable nickel company, Newark, N. J., 1878; in 1880 became an assistant to Thomas A. Edison in the laboratory at Menlo Park, N. J., and was sent to England the following year to become chief engineer of the English Edison company; installed in London the first central station in the world for incandescent electric lighting. Was manager of the Boston Edison electric illuminating company for a year. Since 1890 he engaged in practice as a consulting engineer. Member of many scientific societies.

Hammerstein (hăm'ĕr-shtin), Oscar, theater manager, was born in Berlin, Germany, 1847. He came to the United States in 1863; invented and patented several labor-saving devices, wrote three one-act comedies in German, 1868, which were produced in New York. He became lessee and manager of Stadt theater, New York, 1870; built Harlem opera house, 1880; later Columbus theater, Manhattan opera house, Olympia (now the New York) theater, Victoria theater, Belasco theater and New opera house. Died, 1919.

Hammond, James Bartlett, typewriter inventor, was born in Boston, 1839. He was graduated at the University of Vermont, 1861; was newspaper correspondent during Civil War; graduate of Union theological seminary, 1865; devoted many years to mechanical experiments; patented, 1880, a typewriting machine made on scientific principles; introduced "ideal" keyboard and true alignment in the Hammond typewriter; put machine on market, 1884, and won highest honors in competition. Died, 1913.

Hammond, John Hays, mining engineer, was born in San Francisco, 1855. He was graduated at the Sheffield scientific school, Yale, 1876; M.A., Yale; pursued a mining course at royal school of mines, Freiburg, Saxony. He examined properties in all parts of the world; become consulting engineer for Barnato Bros., 1893, and later for Cecil Rhodes, of whom he became a strong supporter. Was consulting engineer of consolidated gold fields of South Africa, British South Africa company, and the Randfontein Estates gold mining company. Was one of four leaders in reform movement in the Transvaal, 1895-96; after Jameson raid (with which he was not in sympathy), he was arrested and sentenced to death. Sentence was afterward commuted to fifteen years' imprisonment; and later he was released on payment of a fine of $125,000. He then went to London and became interested in many large mining companies. Returned to the United States and traveled extensively, examining mines in U. S. and Mexico. Died, 1936.

Hammond, William Alexander, American physician, was born in Annapolis, Md., 1828. He was graduated from the medical department of the University of the city of New York, and entered the United States army in 1848 as assistant surgeon. At the beginning of the Civil War he entered the army as an assistant surgeon. When the medical bureau was organized, in 1862, he was appointed surgeon-general of the army, with the rank of brigadier-general, and served as such until 1864. In that year he was court-martialed and dismissed from the army, but in 1878 was reinstated. He practiced his profession in New York, where he made a specialty of nervous diseases. He published Diseases of the Nervous System; Insanity in its Relation to Crime; On Certain Conditions of Nervous Derangement, etc. Died at Washington, D. C., 1900.

Hampden, John, celebrated English patriot, was born in London in 1594. He graduated at Oxford, studied law, and in 1621 entered the house of commons as member for the borough of Grampound. In 1627, for refusing to pay his proportion of the general loan which the king attempted to raise on his own authority, Hampden was committed to close imprisonment in the Gatehouse. After the dissolution of the parliament of 1628-29 he retired to his estate, and devoted himself to study and to country sport and occupations. In the short parliament of 1640 he took a prominent part in the great contest between the crown and the house of commons; to the long parliament he was returned both for Wendover and the county of Buckingham. For his resistance to the king's proceedings he was one of the five members whom Charles, in 1642, rashly attempted in person to seize in the house of commons; and on the breaking out of the civil war he raised and became colonel of a regiment in the parliamentary army under the Earl of Essex. Prince Rupert having attacked a parliamentary force at Chinnor, near Thame, Hampden put himself at the head of a few cavalry that were rallied in haste to oppose him, and in the fight that ensued at Chalgrove Field received in the first charge a wound, from which he died, 1643.

Hampden, Walter, American actor, was born at Brooklyn, N. Y., 1879. He was educated at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute and at Harvard University. From 1901 to 1907 he was in England, where he acted in many classic roles, including that of Hamlet. Upon his return to America he appeared in A Doll's House, The Servant in the House, and Comtesse Coquette. In 1923-24 he revived Cyrano de Bergerac at National Theatre, New York, which he leased for a year. His best known later roles are Cyrano de Bergerac and Othello.

Hampton, Wade, American politician and soldier, was born at Columbia, S. C., 1818. He was a grandson of General Wade Hampton, and, though opposed to secession, he joined the confederate army and raised a force called "Hampton's legion." These troops he led with distinction at the first battle of Bull Run. He attained the rank of lieutenant-general, and was thrice wounded. In 1877-79 he was governor of South Carolina; United States senator, 1879-91; and United States commissioner of railroads, 1893-97. He died in 1902.

Hancock, John, American patriot, was born in 1737. He was one of the leaders in the revolt in Massachusetts, the seizure of his sloop, Liberty, being the occasion of a riot in Boston. He was very active in denouncing the "Boston massacre," and was one of the persons whose seizure was attempted by the expedition which led to the battle of Lexington. He was president of the continental congress from 1775-77, and governor of Massachusetts, 1780-85, 1787-93, and the first signer of the declaration of independence. He presided at the constitutional convention of 1788, and favored the adoption of the proposed federal constitution. Died, 1793.

Hancock, Winfield Scott, American general, was born in Pennsylvania, 1824. After graduating at West Point in 1844, he served with great gallantry during the Mexican war. Appointed brigadier-general of volunteers in 1861, he took part in the campaign on the Potomac, fought at Antietam, and commanded a corps in the battle of Gettysburg, where he was wounded, 1863. In 1864 he became brigadier-general in the regular army, in 1866 a major-general. At his death, in 1886, he was in command of the department of the East.

Handel, Georg, Friedrich, noted German musician, was born at Halle, Saxony, 1685. At ten years of age he composed a set of sonnets. In 1703 he went to Hamburg, where he played a violin in the orchestra of the opera. He was soon its director, and composed his first opera, Almira, which was rapidly followed by Nero, Florinda, and Daphne. His violent temper involved him in a quarrel with a brother-composer, which resulted in a duel; the sword of his adversary was stopped by a button or a music score.

He next visited Italy. In Florence, he composed Rodrigo, 1709. His Agrippina, composed in Venice, had a run of 30 nights. At Rome he produced his Il Trionfo del Tempo. At Naples, he composed Acis and Galatea, and in 1710 returned to Germany, where he was appointed chapel-master to the Elector of Hanover, afterwards George I.

He afterwards went to England where he was patronized by Queen Anne and the nobility. He composed Rinaldo, Pastor Fido, Theseus, and in 1715, Amadis da Gaula, in which Nicolini and Valentini first sung in England. The opera was an exotic in England, and a plant of slow growth. A royal academy of music was formed, and after some competition was placed under Händel's management; but his overbearing temper could not cope with musical jealousies. An opposition house was started, and both soon failed, with a loss to Händel of $50,000. He now began the composition of his oratorios. Esther was produced in 1733; it was followed by Deborah, Alexander's Feast, and Israel in Egypt; and in 1740 appeared L'Allegro e Penseroso, and Saul. These were produced in the Lincoln's Inn Fields theatre, but with no profit. Even the Messiah, the most sublime of his compositions, was at first a failure. Tired of this titantic struggle, Händel went to Dublin, where he remained nine months, and received a generous support. On his return to London he composed his Samson, and produced his Messiah for the benefit of the Foundling Hospital. It was repeated annually for the same purpose, and from 1749 to 1777 brought to that charity $51,500.

Händel became blind, but he still composed, and played on the organ, being led to his seat, and forward to receive the plaudits of the audience. Died, 1759.

References:—Marshall's Händel; Rockstro, Life of G.F. Handel; and the German life by Chrysander.

Hanly, J. Frank, lawyer, ex-governor of Indiana, was born in St. Joseph, Ill., 1863. He was educated in common schools, Champaign county, Ill., taught school for nine years in Warren county, Ind., and was admitted to the bar in 1889. He practiced at Williamsport, Ind., 1889-96; was elected to the state senate, 1890; elected to congress, 1894, serving one term, and was a candidate for the United States senate, 1899. Governor of Indiana, 1905-09. Died, 1920.

Hanna, Marcus Alonzo, American politician and legislator, was born in New Lisbon, Columbiana county, Ohio, 1837. He began his career in his father's wholesale grocery house. In 1867 entered the firm of Rhodes and company, dealers in coal and iron, and ten years later the firm name was changed to M. A. Hanna and company. He was appointed to the United States senate as a republican by Governor Bushnell, 1897, to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of John Sherman, who resigned to accept the position of secretary of state in President McKinley's cabinet, and took his seat March 5, 1897. His term of service under the appointment expired in January, 1898, and he was elected for a full term. Died, 1904.

Hannibal, Carthaginian general, the famous son of Hamilcar Barca, was born in 247 B. C. At nine years he accompanied his father on his Spanish expedition, and before starting swore an oath of eternal hatred to the Roman name. He attacked Saguntum, a city in alliance with Rome, for making aggressions on the Torboletes, subjects of Carthage. After eight months' siege the city was taken, and the Romans, after unsuccessfully demanding the surrender of the general who had thus wantonly violated the treaty, declared war in 218 B. C. Hannibal started from New Carthage in 218 B. C. with 90,000 foot and 12,000 horse. From the Pyrenees he marched to the Rhone without opposition, since Scipio was at Massilia (Marseilles), four days' march from the point where Hannibal crossed the river in the face of the Celtic hordes who sided with the Romans. He effected the passage of the Alps in fifteen days, in spite of the attacks of the mountain tribes, the snow, storms, and other difficulties. Scipio, having returned from Massilia, took command of the army in the north of Italy, and first met Hannibal on the plain near the river Ticinus. The Romans were entirely routed, and Scipio, severely wounded, retreated across the Po. Hannibal next inflicted a severe defeat, near Lake Thrasymene, on the consul Flaminius. He wintered in Cannæ, and in June, or, according to others, in August, 216 B. C., almost annihilated a Roman army of 90,000 men under Terentius Varro and Æmilius Paulus. In this battle about 50,000 are said to have fallen, including Æmilius Paulus. Hannibal traversed Italy in all directions, surprised the Roman generals, defeated their armies, captured their towns. The defeat of Hasdrubal, his brother, at the river Metaurus, and the loss of his army, compelled Hannibal to confine himself to the mountainous peninsula of Brutium, where for four years he resisted all the efforts of the Romans to dislodge him. At length, after having maintained himself in Italy for upward of fifteen years, he was recalled to Africa, to defend his country against Scipio; but notwithstanding his utmost exertions and the bravery of his veteran troops he was defeated near Zama, with a loss of 20,000 men, 201 B. C. The surrender of Hannibal was one of the conditions of peace; but, foreseeing such a result, he fled to Bithynia, and, seeing no hope of escape he committed suicide by taking poison, 183 B. C.

Hapgood, Norman, editor, author, and critic, was born in Chicago, Ill., 1868. He was graduated at Harvard, 1890; LL.B., Harvard law school; A.M., 1893. Author: Literary Statesmen; Daniel Webster; Abraham Lincoln; The Etage in America, etc. He was dramatic critic of New York Commercial Advertiser, and Bookman. 1897-1902, and editor of Collier's Weekly, 1903-13; Harper's Weekly, 1913-16; Hearst's International Magazine, 1923-25.

Harahan, James Theodore, president of Illinois Central railroad company, 1906-1911, was born at Lowell, Mass., 1843. He rose step by step in the service of the Orange and Alexandria railroad, the Nashville and Decatur, and the Louisville and Nashville, from 1864 until he became general manager of the latter, 1885. He was then successively assistant general manager of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railway, general manager of the Chesapeake and Ohio, and later of the Louisville, New Orleans and Texas railway until 1890, when he became second vice-president of the Illinois Central railroad. Made president in 1906. Killed in railroad wreck, 1912.

Harben, William Nathaniel, American novelist, was born at Dalton, Ga., 1858. He was educated at high schools and privately. He has traveled extensively, and was associate editor of the Youth's Companion, Boston, 1891-93. Author: Whit Marie; Almost Persuaded; A Mute Confessor; The Land of the Changing Sun; From Clue to Climax; The Caruthers' Affair; Northern Georgia Sketches; The Woman Who Trusted; Westerfelt; Abner Daniel; The Substitute; The Georgians; Pole Baker; Ann Boyd; Mam' Lindy; Gilbert Neal, etc. Died, 1919.

Harden, Maximilian, German editor (1861-1927). His first writings were literary essays published in newspapers. Then came social and political essays written under the pen-name, Apostata. He founded a newspaper Die Jukunft in 1892 which influenced the public greatly and later caused him to be sentenced to six months' imprisonment for his criticism of the government. During the war he was very outspoken, especially in the case of the Lusitania, and often commended the Allies, for which his paper was suppressed more than once. He advocated a democratic form of government for Germany, but was not a revolutionist.

Hardenberg (här'den-berg), Karl August, Prince von, Prussian statesman, was born at Essenroda in Hanover, 1750. In 1791 he became a Prussian minister and in 1804 first Prussian minister. In 1810 he was appointed chancellor, and addressed himself to the task of completing the reforms begun by Stein. In the war of liberation he played a prominent part, and after the treaty of Paris, in 1814, was made a prince. He took part in the congress of Vienna and in the treaties of Paris. To Hardenberg Prussia is mainly indebted for the improvements in her army system, the abolition of serfdom and the privileges of the nobles, the encouragement of municipalities and the reform of education. Died, 1822.

Hardie, James Keir (1856-1915), British labor leader, member of parliament, editor of the Cumnock News, 1882-86, traveled widely in India and Australia, founded the Labor Leader, 1907, and was a frequent contributor to magazines and reviews.

Harding, Samuel Bannister, university professor, was born in Indianapolis, 1866; graduated from Indiana University, 1890; Ph.D., Harvard, 1898. Professor of history, Indiana University. Died, 1927.

Harding, Warren G., journalist, Senator, was born near Blooming Grove, Ohio, November 2, 1865. At 14 he entered Ohio Central College, from which he was graduated. As editor of the College paper he developed an exceptional talent for journalism. He learned the printers' trade and with the aid of his father bought "The Star" a diminutive daily paper, Marion, Ohio. He made "The Star" a brilliant success and because of his liberality and generosity, there never was a strike or threatened strike in "The Star" office. Within the last score of years Mr. Harding had been abroad three times studying the systems of government of the European countries and international economic problems with which the United States has to deal. He twice represented the Thirteenth Senatorial district of Ohio in the State Legislature; served one term as Lieut.-Gov., and elected United States Senator in 1915. November 2, 1920, he was elected President of the United States by an overwhelming majority. Died, Aug. 2, 1923.

Hardinge, Henry, Viscount (1785-1786), English General, Gov. General of India, was born in Wrotham, Kent. In 1844 he was appointed Gov.-General of India and after the peace of Labore was created Viscount and was granted a pension of 5,000 pounds by the East Indian Company and 3,000 pounds by Parliament. Returning to England, he succeeded Wellington as Commander-in-Chief in 1852 and in 1855 was made Field-Marshal.

Hardy, Arthur Sherburne, diplomat, author, was born at Andover, Mass., 1847. He was graduated at West Point, 1869; served one year in 3d United States artillery; was professor of civil engineering, Iowa college, 1871-73; was editor of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, 1893-95; United States minister and consul-general, Teheran, Persia, 1897-99; minister of United States to Greece, Roumania, and Servia, 1899-1901; to Switzerland, 1901-03, and to Spain, 1903-05. Author: Elements of Quaternions; Elements of Calculus; Elements of Analytic Geometry; New Methods in Topographical Surveying; Imaginary Quantities; also novels. Died, 1930.

Hardy, Thomas, English novelist, was born in Dorsetshire, 1840. He was educated as an architect. The scenes of his novels are chiefly laid in the south of England, the early Wessex. His chief works are: Under the Greenwood Tree; Far From the Madding Crowd; The Return of the Native; The Trumpet Major; The Woodlanders. Died, 1928.

Hare, Augustus John Cuthbert, English author, was born in Rome, 1834. He was educated at Harrow and at University College, Oxford. He wrote the famous and often reprinted Walks in Rome; Wanderings in Spain; Days Near Rome; Cities of Northern and Central Italy; Walks in London; Cities of Southern Italy and Sicily; Sussex, etc. Other works are his delightful biography of Maria Edgeworth; Memorials of a Quiet Life and Letters of Baroness Bunsen; Two Noble Lives, etc. Died, 1903.

Hare, John, English actor, was born in London, 1844. He was educated at Giggleswick grammar school, Yorkshire, and obtained an engagement at a London theater, 1865. In 1875 he became manager of the Court theater, and 1879-88 maintained a partnership with W. H. Kendal. From 1889 to 1895 his tenancy of the Garrick theater was important for his production of La Tosca and A Pair of Spectacles, the latter possibly his greatest success. He visited the United States, 1896-97 and again in 1900. Died, 1921.

Hargreaves (här'-grēvz), James, English mechanic and inventor, was born probably at Blackburn, England, about 1745. He was an illiterate weaver and carpenter of Stanhill near that town. In 1760 he invented a carding-machine, and about 1764 the spinning-jenny. He removed to Nottingham, where he erected a spinning-mill, but his patent proved invalid. He continued to carry on business as a yarn manufacturer until his death in 1778.

Harkness (härk'-nes), Albert, American classical scholar, was born at Mendon, Mass., 1822. He was graduated at Brown University in 1842, studied at Berlin, Bonn, and Göttingen, and became professor of Greek in Brown University in 1855. He published a series of Latin classics, and a standard Latin Grammar which has been widely used. Died, 1907.

Harlan (här'-lan), John Marshall, jurist, associate justice of the United States supreme court 1877-1911, was born in Boyle county, Ky., 1833. He was graduated at Centre College, Ky., 1850; LL.D., Bowdoin, 1883. Studied law at Kentucky University, practiced at Frankfort, Ky., removed to Louisville in 1867 and practiced law there. Colonel of 10th Kentucky regiment in Union army, 1861-63; attorney-general of Kentucky, 1863-67; his name was presented by republican convention of Kentucky for vice-president of United States in 1872; member of Louisiana commission, 1877; one of American arbitrators on Bering sea tribunal which met in Paris, 1893; was vice-moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in 1905; and had been for more than fifteen years, and was at time of his death, lecturer in George Washington University. Died, 1911.

Harley, Robert, earl of Oxford and Mortimer, British statesman, was born in 1661. He entered parliament which met under the chieftainship of Rochester and Godolphin in 1689, and in 1701, was, by a large majority, elected speaker. He retained this post until 1704, when he became secretary of state. The principal act of his administration was the treaty of Utrecht. When George I. was proclaimed, Oxford was sent to the Tower for conspiracy to restore the Stuarts and after two years' imprisonment brought to trial. The two houses quarreled as to the mode of procedure, and the commons having in anger refused to take any part in the trial, he was acquitted by peers and released. He spent the remainder of his life in retirement. Died, 1724.

Harmon, Judson, American lawyer and statesman, was born in Hamilton county, Ohio, 1846. He was graduated at Denison University, 1866, and from the Cincinnati law school, 1869; LL.D., Denison, 1892. He was judge of common pleas court, 1876-78; was attorney-general of the United States, 1895-97; president of Ohio bar association, 1897-98, and member of faculty law department, university of Cincinnati. In 1908 he was elected governor of Ohio, and re-elected 1910. Died, 1927.

Harmsworth (härmz'wûrth), Sir Alfred Charles William, Lord Northcliffe, first baron of the isle of Thanet, was born in Chapelizod, county of Dublin, 1865. He founded, 1888, the weekly periodical Answers, which had an immediate success. He bought the London News in 1894. Two years later founded the Daily Mail. He subsequently founded the Glasgow Daily Record, and acquired the Leeds Mercury and the Birmingham Gazette. He visited the United States in 1900 and 1909, and in 1906 was elevated to the peerage as Lord Northcliffe. Died in 1922.

Harnack (här'nák), Adolf, the foremost of living church historians, was born in Dorpat, Russia, 1851, educated at the University there, 1869-72; became privat-docent at Leipzig, 1874; professor extraordinary of church history there in 1876; ordinary professor of church history at Berlin in 1889. He is a man of strong and inspiring personality, and his lectures are attended by hundreds of students from Europe and America. Is the author of many standard works on theology, the most important of which are his What is Christianity and the History of Dogma. Since 1881 he has edited, with E. Schurer, the Theologische Litteraturzeitung. Died, 1930.

Harned (här'ned), Virginia, American actress, was born in Boston, Mass., 1868; joined George Clark's company at sixteen and appeared as Lady Despar in the Corsican Brothers. She made her début at Fourteenth street theater, 1890, in A Long Lane, or Green Meadows. She was engaged as leading woman for E. A. Sothern, under Daniel Frohman's management; subsequently played leading roles in A. M. Palmer's stock company. Created the title role in Trilby, Park theater, Boston, 1895, and starred in that play one season. She married E. H. Sothern in 1896, and subsequently appeared in leading parts in his company. The marriage was dissolved, 1910.

Haroun al Raschid (hä-rōōn' ăr-rä-shēd'), famous caliph of Bagdad, the fifth of the Abbasides dynasty, was born about 765. He invaded Greece, and obtained from the empress Irene 70,000 gold dinars; in 801 he sent presents to Charlemagne; he raised Bagdad to unprecedented eminence in learning, commerce and splendor, and it is around him that the tales of the Arabian Nights center. He died in 809, when on an expedition against Khorassan.

Harper, William Rainey, American educator and scholar, president of University of Chicago, 1891-1906, was born in New Concord, Ohio, 1856. He was graduated at Muskingum College, 1870; Ph.D., Yale, 1875; D.D., Colby, 1891; LL.D., Yale, 1901; Johns Hopkins, 1902. He was principal of Masonic College, Macon, Tenn., 1875-76; tutor, 1876-79; principal preparatory department Denison University, Granville, Ohio, 1879-80; professor of Hebrew, Baptist Union theological seminary, Chicago, 1879-86; professor of Semitic languages, Yale, 1886-91, and professor of biblical literature, 1889-91; principal Chatauqua college of liberal arts, 1885-91; head professor of Semitic languages and literature, University of Chicago, 1891-1906. Author of many textbooks. Died, 1906.

Harraden (har'-ä-den), Beatrice, English novelist, was born at Hampstead, 1864, youngest daughter of Samuel Harraden. She was educated at Dresden, Cheltenham College, Queen's College, Bedford College, and received a B.A. at London university. Author: Things Will Take a Turn (for children); Ships That Pass in the Night; In Varying Moods; Hilda Strafford; Untold Tales of the Past (for children); The Fowler; Katharine Frensham; The Scholar's Daughter. Died, 1936.

Harriman, Edward Henry, capitalist, railroad administrator, was born at Hempstead, L. I., N. Y., 1848. He was the son of a clergyman, received a common school education, became a broker's clerk in Wall street at fourteen, and later a stock broker on his own account. He was a member of the New York stock exchange from 1870 until his death. Was president and director of the Southern Pacific railway; director of Union Pacific railway company, Delaware and Hudson railroad, Central Pacific railway, Illinois Central railway, Western Union telegraph company, Pacific Mail steamship company, Oregon railroad and navigation company, Wells-Fargo and Company, Colorado fuel and iron company, National city bank, etc., trustee Equitable trust company, and director in many other corporations. He was considered the greatest genius in railroad organization and administration in modern times. Died, 1909.

Harrington, B. J., Canadian educator and scientist, Macdonald professor of chemistry, McGill University, Montreal, was born at St. Andrews, Quebec, Canada, 1848; died, 1907. He was graduated at McGill University, 1869; Ph.D., Yale University, 1871; LL.D. McGill, 1899. He was appointed lecturer in chemistry at McGill 1871, and the following year succeeded Dr. T. Sterry Hunt as chemist and mineralogist to the geological survey of Canada. Was appointed David Greenshields professor of chemistry and mineralogy in 1883, and for many years also lectured on both mining and metallurgy. He was president of the national historical society of Montreal, president of the chemical and physical section of the royal society of Canada; vice-president, chemical section of British association, etc. Author: Notes on Dawsonite, a New Carbonate; Notes on the Iron Ores of Canada and Their Development; The Sap of the Ashleaved Maple; Life of Sir William Logan, First Director of the Geological Survey of Canada, etc.

Harris, George, American educator, president Amherst College, 1899-1912, was born at East Machias, Me., 1844. He was graduated at Amherst, 1866; D.D., Amherst, 1883, Harvard, 1899, Yale, 1901; LL.D., Dartmouth, 1899; and graduated at Andover Theological Seminary, 1869. Professor Christian theology, Andover Theological Seminary, 1883-99. Preacher to Dartmouth College, 1894-99; to Harvard 1897-99. Author: Moral Evolution, Inequality and Progress, etc., and was one of the editors of Andover Review, 1884-93. Died, 1922.

Harris, James Rendel, English biblical scholar, director of studies at the Friends' settlement for social and religious study, Woolbrooke, near Birmingham, England, since 1903, was born at Plymouth. Was professor at Johns Hopkins University, 1882-85; professor at Haverford College, 1886-92; university lecturer in palæography, Cambridge, 1893-1903; professor of theology, University of Leyden, 1903-04; president Free church council, 1907-08. He has traveled extensively in the East in search of MSS. Author: The Teaching of the Apostles and the Sibylline Books; The Teaching of the Apostles; The Apology of Aristides; Union with God; The Gospel of the Twelve Apostles; Tract on Triune Nature of God; The Guiding Hand of God, etc.

Harris, Joel Chandler, American author, was born in Eatonton, Ga., 1848. He served apprenticeship t. printing trade, and was one of the editors of the Atlanta Constitution twenty-five years. Author: Uncle Remus: His Songs and His Sayings; Nights with Uncle Remus; Uncle Remus and His Friends; Mingo; Little Mr. Thimblefinger; On the Plantation; Daddy Jake, the Runaway; Balaam and His Master; Mr. Rabbit at Home; The Story of Aaron; Sister Jane; Free Joe; Stories of Georgia; Aaron in the Wild Woods; Tales of the Home Folks; Georgia, From the Invasion of De Soto to Recent Times; Evening Tales; Stories of Home Folks; Chronicles of Aunt Minerva Ann; On the Wings of Occasion; The Making of a Statesman; Gabriel Tolliver; Wally Wanderoon; a Little Union Scout; The Tar Baby Story and other Rhymes of Uncle Remus, etc. Died, 1908.

Harris, William Torrey, American educator and philosophical writer, United States commissioner of education, 1889-1906, was born at North Killingly, Conn., 1835. Ph.D., Brown, 1893; University of Jena, 1899; LL.D., University of Missouri, 1870, University of Pennsylvania, 1894; Yale, 1895; Princeton, 1896; settled at Concord, Mass., in 1880 and became lecturer at school of philosophy. Established, in St. Louis, 1867 Journal of Speculative Philosophy; was chief editor of the Appleton school readers. Edited department of philosophy in Johnson's Cyclopædia, writing many important articles, and was editor-in-chief of Webster's International Dictionary. Author: Introduction to the Study of Philosophy; The Spiritual Sense of Dante's Divina Commedia; Hegel's Logic, A Book on the Genesis of the Categories of the Mind, and Psychologic Foundation of Education. Died, 1909.

Harrison, Benjamin, lawyer, twenty-third president of the United States, was born in North Bend, Ohio, 1833. He was a great-grandson of Benjamin Harrison, signer of the declaration of independence, and grandson of William Henry Harrison, ninth president of the United States. He was graduated at Miami University, 1852; studied law in Cincinnati; removed to Indianapolis, Ind., in 1854, and laid the foundation of a fine legal practice; entered the Union army in 1862, serving with conspicuous gallantry in the Atlanta campaign, finally returning to civil life at the close of the war with the rank of brevet brigadier-general; entered the United States senate in 1881, and in 1888 was nominated for the presidency of the United States; elected in the ensuing November, and inaugurated, 1889. His administration was quiet, successful, and measurably popular. In 1892 he received again the nomination in the national republican convention, but by this time the able and persistent attacks of the democracy on the high tariff policy led to a general revulsion against it, and he was defeated at the election by Grover Cleveland. He thereupon pursued a private law practice, occasionally giving public addresses. He died in Indianapolis, Ind., 1901.

Harrison, Charles Custis, American educator, provost University of Pennsylvania, 1895-1910, was born at Philadelphia, Pa., 1844. He was graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, 1862, LL.D., Columbia, 1895; Princeton, 1896; Yale, 1901. Was in active business as a manufacturer, 1863-92. He was a trustee since 1876, University of Pennsylvania. Died, 1929.

Harrison, Elizabeth, principal of Chicago Kindergarten College, was born in Kentucky, and educated in Iowa and Chicago. From 1880 to 1883 her time was devoted to kindergarten teaching and special instruction in kindergarten work and philosophy, under Mrs. Alice H. Putnam, Miss Susan E. Blow, Professor John Kraus and Madam Kras-Boelte, together with observation work in England and France. Kindergarten teacher Loring School, Chicago, 1884-1890; studied in Germany with Frau Schrader and Baroness Maren Holtz von Bulow. 1890, founder and principal Chicago Kindergarten College, 1890——. She was, also for two years, head of kindergarten department, Chicago Normal School, and for fifteen years was prominent as public speaker and lecturer on kindergarten subjects. Author of A Study of Child Nature; In Storyland; Two Children of the Foothills; Christmas-tide; Kindergarten Building Gifts; Some Silent Teachers; Misunderstood Children. Died, 1927.

Harrison, Francis Burton, lawyer, congressman, was born in New York City, 1873. He was graduated from Yale, 1895, from New York law school, 1897, and was instructor at New York law school, 1897-99. During the war with Spain he was a private, troop A, New York volunteer cavalry, and captain and assistant adjutant-general, United States volunteers. Was elected to the fifty-eighth congress from the thirteenth New York district; was democratic candidate for lieutenant governor of New York, 1904. He was elected to the sixtieth congress, and reëlected to the sixty-first congress, from 16th district.

Harrison, Frederic, English essayist and philosophical writer, was born in London, 1831. He was educated at Wadham College, Oxford, became fellow and tutor of his college, and was called to the bar in 1858. A positivist and an advanced liberal, he has written The Meaning of History; Order and Progress; The Present and the Future; On the Choice of Books; Oliver Cromwell; Annals of an Old Manor House; William the Silent, etc. From 1889 to 1892 he was an alderman of the London county council. Died, 1923.

Harrison, James Albert, American philologist, educator, was born at Pass Christian, Miss., 1848. He was graduated at the university of Virginia, 1868; studied in Germany, 1871; L.H.D., Columbia, 1887; LL.D., Washington and Lee University; professor of English and modern languages, Washington and Lee, 1876-95; professor of English and romance languages, 1895; was professor of Teutonic languages, university of Virginia; lecturer on Anglo-Saxon poetry, Johns Hopkins. Author: Spain in Profile; French Syntax; History of Spain; Story of Greece. Was one of the editors of the Century Dictionary and Standard Dictionary. Died, 1911.

Harrison, John, British inventor of the chronometer, was born at Foulby near Fontefract, 1693. By 1726 he had constructed a time keeper with compensating apparatus for correcting errors due to variations of climate. In 1713 the government had offered three prizes for the discovery of a method to determine the longitude accurately. After long perseverance Harrison made a chronometer which, in a voyage to Jamaica in 1761-62, determined the longitude within eighteen geographical miles. After further trials, he was awarded the largest prize of 20,000 pounds. He wrote five works on his chronometer, etc. Died, 1776.

Harrison, William Henry, ninth president of the United States, was born in Virginia, 1773, son of Benjamin Harrison, who signed the declaration of independence. On the death of his father he joined, in 1792, as ensign, the army which Wayne was leading against the Indians of the Northwest. He left the army in 1798. In the war against the Indians in 1811, and which soon became also a war against the English in Canada, Harrison, as commander-in-chief of the American army, showed great military talent. He defeated the Indians in an important battle at Tippecanoe, and by the victory of Perry on Lake Erie was enabled to pursue the British invaders into Canada, where, in 1813, he totally routed them in the battle of the Thames. In 1824 became a member of the United States senate. In 1828 he went as ambassador to Colombia, but was recalled in 1829, and the following few years he spent in retirement as clerk in a county court in Ohio. The whig party tried in vain to make him president of the United States in 1835, and succeeded in 1840. He died suddenly in 1841, after serving one month.

Hart, Albert Bushnell, American educator and historian, was born in Clarksville, Pa., 1854. He was graduated at Harvard, 1880; Ph.D., Freiburg, Baden, 1883; LL.D., Richmond College, 1902. In 1897 he was made professor of history at Harvard University. Author: Introduction to the Study of Federal Government; Formation of the Union; Guide to the Study of American History (with Edward Channing); Foundations of American Foreign Policy; Actual Government; Essentials of American History. Editor: Epochs of American History (3 vols.); American History Told by Contemporaries (4 vols.); American Citizen Series; Source-Book of American History; Source Readers in American History (4 vols.); The American Nation, etc. Joint editor: American History Leaflets; Harvard Graduates' Magazine; American History Review.

Hart, James McDougal, American landscape painter, was born in Kilmarnock, Scotland, 1828. When a child he removed with his family to America, and lived at Albany, N. Y. He was made an academician in 1859. His pictures are admired for their harmony of color and quiet peacefulness of tone. The best known among them are: Woods in Autumn; Moonrise in the Adirondacks; Peaceful Homes; Coming Out of the Shade; Threatening Weather; Indian Summer. Died at Brooklyn, N. Y., 1901.

Hart, Joel T., American sculptor, was born in Kentucky, 1810. While working as a stonecutter at Lexington he began modeling busts in clay. He soon attained a phenomenal success in portrait busts, and on receiving a commission for marble statue of Henry Clay, 1849, went to Florence to study and work. He executed many busts and statues of eminent men during his twenty-eight years' residence in Florence. He died in 1877, and his remains were removed from Florence to Lexington, Ky., 1884, where the state erected a monument over them.

Hart, Sir Robert, British diplomat, was born at Milltown, County Armagh, Ireland, 1835. He was educated at Queen's college, Taunton, Wesley college, Dublin, and Queen's College, Belfast, graduating from the latter in 1853; M.A., 1871; hon. LL.D., 1882. Secretary to the allied commissioners for the government of the city of Canton, 1858; granted special permission to resign and accept an appointment in the Chinese imperial maritime customs, 1859; officiating inspector-general, 1861-63; commissioner at Shanghai, with charge of Yangtze ports and Ningpo, 1863; inspector-general, 1863; gazetted minister plenipotentiary, 1885, but declined. Author of These From the Land of Sinim, etc. Died, 1911.

Hart, William, American painter, brother of James McDougal Hart, was born in Scotland, 1823. He came to Albany, N. Y., 1831, and, like his brother, developed a taste for landscape painting; in 1848 exhibited a specimen of his work in the national academy of design in New York. For several years he was president of the Brooklyn academy of design. Some of his most notable works are: The Last Gleam; The Golden Hour; Sunset in Dark Harbor, New Brunswick; Opening in the Elands; Up in the Glen. He was one of the founders, and for some years, president, of the water-color society, and was himself eminent in that branch of art. Died, 1894.

Harte (härt), Francis Bret, American writer, was born in Albany, N. Y., 1839. He was at different times a miner, school teacher, printer, and editor. From 1864 to 1870 he was in San Francisco as secretary of the United States mint, and, in 1869, he published The Heathen Chinee. He was named American consul at Grefeld in 1878, at Glasgow in 1880, and after leaving the latter in 1885, lived in London. Chief among his works are Condensed Novels; The Luck of Roaring Camp and Other Sketches; Poetical Works; Tales of the Argonauts; The Twins of Table Mountains and Other Stories; By Shore and Sedge; A Millionaire of Rough and Ready and Devil's Ford; A Ward of the Golden Gate, etc. Died, 1902.

Hartly, Sir Charles Augustus, British engineer, engineer-in-chief and consulting engineer to the European commission of the Danube, 1856-1907, was born at Heworth, in Durham, 1825. He served in Crimea as captain in the Anglo-Turkish contingent, 1855-56, and in 1867 reported to foreign office on important questions of engineering connected with the river Scheldt. He was appointed member of a board of engineers to report on the improvement of the Mississippi, 1875; was nominated by the British government member of international technical commission of Suez canal, 1884, and served until 1907; has been consulted at various periods by the Indian, Austrian, Russian, Egyptian, Roumanian and Bulgarian governments. Author: Delta of the Danube; Public Works in the United States and Canada; Finland Navigations in Europe; History of the Engineering Works of the Suez Canal, etc. Died, 1915.

Hartley, David, British philosopher, was born near Halifax, 1705. A clergyman's son, at fifteen he entered Jesus College, Cambridge, and in 1727 became a fellow. He studied for the church, but dissenting from some points in the thirty-nine articles, abandoned his intention. As a medical practitioner he attained considerable eminence at Newark, Bury St. Edmunds, London, and Bath. His chief work is Observations on Man. Died, 1757.

Hartmann, Karl Robert Eduard von, German philosopher, was born at Berlin, 1842. His great work was The Philosophy of the Unconscious, followed by books on the ethical consciousness, the development of the religious consciousness, German æsthetics, Lotze, and Kant, besides a work on the self destruction of Christianity, criticisms of neo-Kantianism and contemporary philosophies, defenses of his own system and political and educational treatises. Died, 1906.

Harvard, John, founder of Harvard College, was born in Southwark, England, 1607. He was graduated at Emmanuel College, Cambridge, England, 1631; married and came to America, 1637; was made a freeman of Massachusetts, and given a tract of land in Charlestown, where he began preaching as a Congregational minister. In his will he bequeathed about 750 pounds and 320 volumes from his library for the establishment of a college. He died at Charlestown, Mass., 1638. A granite monument was erected over his remains in Charlestown, 1828, and a memorial statue on the delta at the university was unveiled in 1884.

Harvey, George Brinton McClellan, editor of the North American Review, and president of Harper and Brothers, publishers, was born in Peacham, Vt., 1864. He was educated at Peacham academy; was consecutively reporter on the Springfield Republican, Chicago News and the New York World; was later managing editor of the New York World, insurance commissioner, New Jersey, colonel and aide-de-camp of Governors Green and Abbett, New Jersey. He has been president of Harper and Brothers since 1900, and bought the Metropolitan Magazine, 1903. He was made honorary doctor of laws by Erskine College, South Carolina, 1905, and by the University of Nevada, 1908. Was Bromley lecturer on journalism at Yale, 1908. Ambassador to England. Died, 1928.

Harvey, William. English physician, and discoverer of the circulation of the blood, was born at Folkestone, 1578. He studied at the University of Cambridge, completing his medical studies and graduating M.D at Padua. After his return to England he became fellow of the Royal college of physicians, and physician to St. Bartholomew's Hospital. In 1623 he was named physician to James I., and held the same post under Charles I.

His great discovery, developed and completed by careful and laborious investigation, was published in 1628, in the treatise entitled Exercitatio de Motu Cordis et Sanguinis. It was at once generally accepted, and though controversy was excited and many opponents started up, many more books were written in favor of it than against it. No Englishman opposed it. The reputation of Harvey was European. The only reply he published to any of his opponents was that to Riolanus professor of anatomy, Paris. Harvey was author also of Exercitationes de Generatione Animalium. He wrote other works, the manuscripts of which were mostly burned during the English civil war; two only being preserved in the British museum. He died in 1657.

References.—Willis' Life of Harvey; Power's William Harvey, in Masters of Medicine.

Hase (hä'zē), Karl August von, German theologian, was born at Steinbach in Saxony, 1800. Became in 1823 tutor at Tübingen. From 1830 to 1883 he was professor of theology at Jena, after which he was ennobled. His chief writings are Desalten Pfarrers Testament; Handbook of Dogmatics; Gnosis; Life of Jesus; Church History; Francis of Assisi; Handbook of Protestant Polemical Theology; Life of St. Catharine of Siena; and lecture on church history. Died, 1890.

Haskell, Charles Nathaniel, ex-governor of Oklahoma, was born in Putnam county, Ohio, 1860. He was reared on a farm, taught school and read law, and was admitted to the bar in 1881. He began practice at Ottawa, Ohio; engaged in railway building and other construction work, 1888; went to Muskogee, I. T., 1901, and built many lines of railroad there. Was member of Oklahoma constitutional convention, and was elected first governor of the state of Oklahoma, 1907-1911.

Hassall (has'al), Arthur, British historical writer, was born at Bebington, Cheshire, 1853. He was graduated at Trinity College, Oxford; was lecturer and tutor of Keble College, 1880-83; student of Christ Church, 1884; censor of Christ Church, 1894-95, and student and tutor since 1895. Author: Life of Bolingbroke; Louis XIV.; A Handbook of European History; The Balance of Power; A Class Book of English History; History of France; The French People; Mazarin; The Tudor Dynasty; War and Reform; The Expansion of Great Britain, etc.

Hassam, Childe, American artist, was born in 1859. He was educated in Boston public schools and studied art in Boston and Paris, 1886-89. He exhibited widely in this country and in Europe, and follows generally the methods of the French impressionist school. His pictures are represented in the collections of the Pennsylvania academy of fine arts; Carnegie institute, Pittsburg; Cincinnati museum; Corcoran art gallery, Washington; Boston art club, etc.

Hastings, Warren, English statesman and administrator, in India, was born in 1732. He became a member of the council of Madras, and in 1772 governor of Bengal, a position, which, in 1774, became that of governor-general of India. He was now involved in quarrels with his council, and sent in his resignation, which, however, when accepted, he disavowed. The supreme court decided in his favor, and he was reappointed. During his first term of office he sold the vale of Rohilcund to Siraj-ud Dowlah and brought about the execution of Nucomar, his enemy. Three years after his return he was impeached before the lords for high crimes and misdemeanors, but, after a trial which proceeded at intervals for seven years, and in spite of the eloquence of Burke and Sheridan, he was acquitted in 1795. He was ruined by the expense, but was granted an annuity by the court of directors. To him the British government is largely indebted for its political and judicial organization in India and its method of Indian administration. Died, 1818.

Hauff (houf), Wilhelm, German novelist, was born at Stuttgart, 1802. He studied at Tübingen, was for two years a tutor, and had been editor of a paper for nearly a year when he died, 1827. His Märchen and his Novellen are admirable for their simplicity and playful fancy. His other works include: Die Bettlerin vom Pont des Arts; Das Bild des Kaisers; Lichtenstein, an imitation of Scott; and Mitteilungen aus den Memoiren des Satans, a a story rich in satiric humor.

Haupt (houpt), Lewis Muhlenberg, American civil engineer, was born at Gettysburg, Pa., 1844. He attended the Lawrence scientific school, Harvard, and graduated at the United States military academy, 1867. Member of the Nicaragua canal commission, 1897-99; Isthmian canal commission, since 1899; president Colombia Cauca arbitration, 1807; chief engineer survey for ship canal across New Jersey; consulting engineer of Lake Erie and Ohio River ship canal, etc. He edited The American Engineering Register, 1885-86. Author: Engineering Specifications and Contracts; Special Report on Railway Plant of Paris Exposition; Canals and Their Economic Relation to Transportation; A Move for Better Roads; and a number of pamphlets and other contributions to engineering.

Haupt, Paul, philologist, professor of Semitic languages, Johns Hopkins, since 1883, was born at Görlitz, Germany, 1858. He was graduated at Gymnasium Augustum, Görlitz, 1876; University of Leipzig, Ph.D., 1878; LL.D. University of Glasgow, 1902. Editor: The Polychrome Bible, New Critical Edition of Hebrew Text of the Old Testament. Co-editor: The Assyriological Library; The Johns Hopkins Contributions to Assyriology and Comparative Semitic Grammar. Author: The Sumerian Family Laws; The Babylonian Nimrod Epic; The Cuneiform Account of the Deluge; The Book of Canticles; The Book of Ecclesiastes; and numerous papers on biblical and Assyrian philology, history and archæology, comparative Semitic grammar, Sumeria, etc. Died, 1926.

Haussmann (ōs'män'), George Eugene, French magistrate, was born in Paris, 1809. He entered the public service, and under Napoleon III. became prefect of the Seine in 1853. He then began his task of improving Paris by widening streets, laying out boulevards and parks, building bridges, etc. For these services he was made baron and senator. In 1871 he was appointed director of the Crédit Mobilier, and in 1881 was elected to the chamber of deputies. He died in comparative poverty, 1891.

Havelock (hav'lok), Sir Henry, English general, was born at Bishop-Wearmouth, in Durham, 1795. He entered the army a month or two after the battle of Waterloo, went to India in 1823, and honorably distinguished himself in the Afghan and Sikh wars. In 1856 he commanded a division of the army that invaded Persia, and subsequently took an important part in quieting the Indian mutiny. After the relief of Lucknow Havelock was attacked by dysentery, and died in 1857.

Hawkins, Sir Anthony Hope, English novelist, born in London, 1863. He was graduated from Balliol College, Oxford; received his M.A. there, and was admitted as a barrister of the Middle Temple, 1887. Author: The Prisoner of Zenda; The King's Mirror; Tristram of Blent; The Intrusions of Peggy; Double Harness; A Servant of the Public; Sophie of Kravonia; The Great Miss Drivers, etc. Plays: The Adventure of Lady Ursula, Pilkerton's Peerage. He was knighted, 1918; died, 1932.

Hawkins, Sir John, English navigator, was born at Plymouth in 1532. He was one of the first Englishmen to carry on the slave trade, in which so little shame was seen in those days that Queen Elizabeth allowed him to use as the crest of his coat-of-arms a Moor bound. He afterward became noted in fighting the Spaniards, was a rear-admiral in the great struggle with the Spanish armada, and commanded expeditions with Frobisher and Drake. He died at sea in the West Indies, 1595.

Hawthorne, Nathaniel, celebrated American novelist, was born at Salem, Mass., 1804. He was graduated at Bowdoin College in 1825, and three years later published his first novel, Fanshawe. He then wrote a number of stories for the journals, which he afterward collected in 1837, and published under the title of Twice-told Tales, a second volume of which appeared in 1842. In 1843 he took up his residence at the charming village of Concord, in a manse which had formerly been the dwelling of Emerson, and which suggested the title of his next work, Mosses From an Old Manse, published in 1843. This sketch, in which he gives some interesting recollections of his boyhood, first made his name known in Europe. After a three years' residence at Concord he accepted a situation in the custom-house at Salem, and removed to that city. The Scarlet Letter appeared in 1850, and was received with universal approbation, as was likewise The House of the Seven Gables, published in 1851. His Blithedale Romance, published in 1852, may be regarded as a kind of autobiography so far as it goes and is founded on incidents in his own life. In 1853 he received the appointment of consul at Liverpool from his friend and classmate, President Pierce, whose biography he had written. He resided in Liverpool, discharging the duties of his office for five years, and afterward went to Italy to recruit his impaired health—a journey which furnished him with material for his fantastic romance, The Marble Faun, generally regarded as one of the best of his works. After his return to America he published a sketch of England and the English. He died suddenly at Plymouth, N. H., 1864. As a writer he combined a true poetic spirit with a charming style, and displayed a deep knowledge of human nature.

Hay, John, American statesman and writer, was born in Salem, Ind., 1838. He was graduated from Brown University, 1858, and settled in Illinois as a lawyer. He went to Washington in 1861, as one of Lincoln's private secretaries, acting also as his aide-de-camp. He was subsequently in the United States diplomatic service, stationed at Paris, Vienna, and Madrid. In 1897 he was made ambassador to England, and in 1898 secretary of state. In the latter capacity he inaugurated the important "open door" policy, for all nations, in China, and laid the foundation for subsequent diplomatic relations with the Orient. As secretary of state he gained a standing equal to that of the most eminent men who have held that high office. In coolness, foresight, and statesmanlike appreciation of current and coming events, he had no superior among contemporary diplomats. His literary reputation rests upon Pike County Ballads, Castilian Days, a volume of travel, and Life of Abraham Lincoln (with J. G. Nicolay). Died, 1905.

Haydn, Joseph, Austrian composer, was born at Rohrau, Austria, 1732. He was the son of a poor wheelwright, and, manifesting great musical talent, he was received, at the age of eight, into the choir of the cathedral of St. Stephen's at Vienna. In the latter part of 1750 he composed his first quartet for stringed instruments. In 1759 a certain Count Morzin engaged him as music director and composer, "with a salary of 200 florins, free lodging, and table with his secretaries and other officials." In 1760 Prince Esterhazy placed him at the head of his private chapel. For him Haydn composed his beautiful symphonies and the greater number of his magnificent quartets. He is often called "Father Haydn," as having been the inventor of the symphonic form as we now essentially know it. After the death of Prince Esterhazy, in 1790, Haydn accompanied Salomon, the violinist, to England, where, in 1791-92, he produced six of his "Twelve Grand Symphonies." In England he first obtained that recognition which afterward fell to his share in his own country. On his return to Austria he purchased a small house with a garden in one of the suburbs of Vienna. Here he composed his oratorios, the Creation and the Seasons. The former work, the harmonies of which are pervaded with the fire of youth, was written in his sixty-fifth year, and is considered by many to be equal to the finest productions of Handel; the Seasons was almost his last work. Died in Vienna, 1809.

Haydon, Benjamin Robert, English historical painter, was born at Plymouth, England, 1786. He exhibited his first picture at the academy in 1807, Joseph and Mary Resting With Our Savior After a Day's Journey on the Road to Egypt. "Christ's Entry Into Jerusalem," "Mock Election," and "Napoleon Musing at St. Helena," are his most famous paintings. He forsook the brush for the platform, and his lectures on art, in London and the provinces, brought him fame Died, 1846.

Hayes, Patrick Joseph, (1867). Prelate in Roman Catholic Church. Born in New York City, graduated from Manhattan College, 1888. Ordained priest, 1892. President Cathedral College, 1903-1914. Consecrated Bishop, 1914; Archbishop, 1919; Cardinal, 1924.

Hayes, Rutherford Birchard, nineteenth president of the United States, was born at Delaware, Ohio, 1822. He was graduated at Kenyon College and at Harvard Law School, and began the practice of law at Lower Sandusky in 1845. At the outbreak of the Civil War he was appointed major of the 23d Ohio infantry, and shortly afterward lieutenant-colonel. He distinguished himself in the campaigns of West Virginia and in the battles around Winchester, and was severely wounded at South Mountain. In 1864 he was made brigadier-general and in 1865 brevetted major-general. He was elected to congress from Ohio, 1864-66, and was governor of that state, 1868-72 and 1876-77. He was the republican candidate for the presidency in 1876, and, after the memorable contest with Samuel J. Tilden, was inaugurated in 1877. As chief magistrate his career was marked with moderation, wisdom and a sympathy with all true reforms. His independence of character, however, was strongly shown by his vetoes, his steady adherence to principle and his refusal to pander to mere party politics. Died, 1893.

Hayne, Robert Young, American statesman, was born in South Carolina, 1791. He was admitted to the bar in 1812. He sat in the United States senate from 1823 to 1832. He was a vigorous opponent of protection, and in 1832 boldly supported in congress the doctrine of nullification. The great debates between Daniel Webster and Hayne on the principles of the constitution, the authority of the general government and the rights of the individual states are of unusual historical value. He was mayor of Charleston, 1835-37. Died, 1840.

Hays, Will H., born Sullivan, Ind., 1879; graduate Wabash College, 1900. Member Indiana Bar. Chairman Republican National Committee, 1918-1921. In 1922 became President of Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America. Postmaster-General in Harding Cabinet.

Hazlitt (haz'lit), William, English essayist and miscellaneous writer, was born in Kent, England, 1778. In 1803 he went to London, and shortly after published his Essay on the Principles of Human Action. In 1813 he delivered a course of lectures on the history of English philosophy, and he subsequently delivered courses on the English poets. He wrote essays in the Examiner, in conjunction with Leigh Hunt, which were afterward republished in a volume entitled The Round Table. He also wrote Characters of Shakespeare's Plays; View of the Contemporary English Stage; Life of Napoleon, etc. Died, 1830.

Hearn, Lafcadio, writer, of Irish-Greek parentage, was born on the island of Leucadia, 1850. He came early to the United States and in Cincinnati, New York, and New Orleans lived by means of news reports and fine imaginative sketches, contributed to the city newspapers. His exquisitely beautiful tales, as in the volume Fantastics and Other Fancies, were created from Creole, French, and negro life of Louisiana. In 1902 he went to Japan to lecture at the University of Tokio. He became a naturalized Japanese and married a Japanese woman. Appreciations of English Literature and Talks to Writers contain the University lectures. On the manners and impressions of the Orient he wrote Glimpses of Unfamiliar Japan, Gleanings in Budda-Fields, and others. Died, 1904.

Hearst (hûrst), Phoebe Apperson, philanthropist, was born in 1840; became a teacher. In 1861 she married George Hearst, late United States senator from California, and a man of large wealth. Gave $200,000 to build National Cathedral school for girls; established working girls' clubs, San Francisco; erected and equipped a mining building at University of California as a memorial to her husband; built, endowed and gave thousands of volumes to free libraries at Lead City, South Dakota, and Anaconda, Mont. Her other charities extend to numerous objects and institutions. She was a regent of the University of California. Died, 1919.

Hearst, William Randolph, American newspaper publisher and politician, was born in San Francisco in 1863, son of late Senator George F. and Phoebe Apperson Hearst. He was educated in the public schools of San Francisco and at Harvard. He then became editor and proprietor of the San Francisco Examiner, 1886; bought New York Journal, 1895; later bought the New York Advertiser, to secure news franchise, and consolidated it with the Journal; started the Chicago American, 1900. In 1902 changed name of morning issue in Chicago to The Examiner, and morning issue in New York to The American. After 1904 he also acquired the Boston American and the Los Angeles Examiner. He was elected to the 58th and 59th congresses from the 11th New York district, as democrat. He was candidate for mayor of New York in 1905 and 1909.

Heber (hē'bēr), Reginald, English prelate and hymn writer, was born at Malpas, Cheshire, 1783. He entered Brasenose College, Oxford, 1800, and in 1803 wrote his prize poem Palestine. He was appointed a prebendary of St. Asaph in 1812. Bampton lecturer in 1815, and preacher of Lincoln's Inn in 1822. In 1823 he accepted the see of Calcutta; but an espicopate of apostolic zeal was terminated by his sudden death at Trichinopoly, 1826. He published sermons, A Journey Through India, etc., and edited Jeremy Taylor's Works. His fame rests upon hymns, which include Lord of Mercy and of Might; From Greenland's Icy Mountains; Holy, Holy, Holy, and The Son of God Goes Forth to War.

Hebert (ā'bâr), Louis Philippe, French-Canadian sculptor, was born in the province of Quebec, 1850. In early days he worked on a farm; obtained prize at provincial exhibition, Montreal, for wood-carving in 1873; afterward studied in Paris, and won prize given by Dominion government for full-length statue of George Cartier. His chief works consist of statues, among which are those to Maisonneuse and Chénier, in Montreal. Died, 1917.

Hecker, Isaac Thomas, founder and superior of the order of Paulist fathers, was born in New York in 1819. In 1843 he joined the Brook Farm community in West Roxbury, Mass. Later he established a similar society at Worcester, Mass., then took up the study for the Episcopal ministry, but in 1845 joined the Roman Catholic church, and became a Redemptorist father. Much of his time was devoted to literature. He founded the Catholic World, organized the Catholic publication society, and wrote Questions of the Soul; Aspirations of Nature; The Church and the Age, etc. Died, 1888.

Hedin (he-dēn), Sven Anders, Swedish traveler and geographer, was born in Stockholm, 1865. He was educated at Stockholm at Upsala, and in Germany; Ph.D., Halle. He began his explorations in Persia in 1885, and has traveled through Khorasan and Turkestan, several times through Tibet and other parts of central Asia. His books include: Through Asia; Central Asia and Tibet; Scientific Results of a Journey in Central Asia; The Tarim River, etc.

Hegan, Alice Caldwell. See Rice, Alice Hegan.

Hegel, Georg Wilhelm Friedrich, German thinker and founder of a new school of philosophy, was born at Stuttgart, 1770. He was professor successively at Jena, Heidelberg, and Berlin. He was at first the disciple of Schelling, with whom he was associated in the conduct of a philosophical journal in 1802-3. But his opinions gradually took a different turn. He rejected Schelling's intellectual intuition as an unwarrantable assumption, although he continued to maintain its leading idea—the unity of the subjective or ideal, and the objective or real—and in this idea endeavored to establish that absolute cognition and absolute truth, which alone, according to this school, can satisfy the demands of the philosophical spirit.

Hegel seems not to have perfected his system; and as he had no power of exposition or of lucid expression of his thoughts, it is impossible to give a clear view of his philosophy. Indeed, it would appear that he himself had the same notion; for he is said to have remarked, that, "of all his numerous disciples, only one had ever understood him, and even he had understood him falsely."

Be this as it may, his system has been the subject of much philosophical interest in the speculative world, chiefly from the widely discrepant deductions, political and religious, which his friends and enemies draw from it; some maintaining it to be favorable to the present order of things in church and state, others founding upon it conclusions at variance with all ordinary notions of religion or morality. Hegel died of cholera, at Berlin, 1831. A considerable portion of Hegel's system is accessible in translations; the Logic and Philosophy of Mind from the Encyclopaedia, translated by Wallace; the Philosophy of Right, by Dyde; part of the Philosophy of Fine Art, by Bosanquet; Philosophy of History, by Sibree; Philosophy of Religion, by Speirs and Sanderson; History of Philosophy, by Haldane.

References.—Caird's Hegel, in Phil. Classics; Wallace's Prolegomena to Hegel's Logic; Seth's Hegelianism and Personality; Ritchie's Darwin and Hegel; and Macintosh's Hegel and Hegelianism.

Hegenberger, Lieutenant Albert S., aviator, was born in Boston, Massachusetts, September 30th, 1895. Studied civil engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Was commissioned Second-Lieutenant on April 6th, 1918. Serving with the United States Army Air Corps, he was chosen to fly with Lieutenant Maitland on the first trans-Pacific flight from Oakland, California, to Hawaii. On June 29th, 1927, the two successfully completed this flight of 2,400 miles.

Heifetz (High'-fetz), Jascha, began playing the violin at three, completed the course at the Royal Music School in Vilna, Poland, at seven, and after finishing with Professor Leopold Auer in Petrograd was a mature artist at ten. His tour through Russia was a triumph. Coming to the U. S., he conquered America. Hardly twenty years old, he ranks with the greatest violinists of the day. His technique is flawless; the intonation perfect, the quality superb and individual.

Heine (Hi'ne), Heinrich, 1797-1856, German poet and wit, was born at Dusseldorf, of Jewish parents. Abandoning Judaism, he was baptized in the Lutheran Church. His Buch der Lieder was a brilliant success. Many of his songs are of the most exquisite and ethereal beauty, unmatched in German literature except by the lyrics of Goethe.

Helmholtz, Herman von, German scientist, was born at Potsdam, 1821. He was elected professor of physiology at Königsberg in 1849, at Bonn in 1855, and at Heidelberg in 1858. Although his earlier researches were mainly physiological, he took rank as a physicist and mathematician in 1847, when he published his striking tract on the Conservation of Energy.

Naturally gifted with a powerful mathematical mind and a profound physical intuition, he gave a new direction to physiological research in optics and sound. His Sensations of Tone and his Physiological Optics were epoch-making works. Meanwhile he had created a new field in hydrodynamics by his famous investigations on vortex motion; and his inquiry into the connection between sensation and knowledge led him to the study of the foundations of geometry.

He was called to Berlin in 1871, to fill the chair of physics. His contributions to the theory of electro-dynamics, in which he aimed at greater generality than was given by Maxwell's theory, are of great importance, and it was at his instigation that Hertz demonstrated the existence of Maxwellian electromagnetic waves. He enriched the theory of thermo-dynamics by his discussion of "monocyclic" systems, and in his later papers endeavored to get at the real essence of the principle of least action. Although the idea is tentatively put forth in Maxwell's writings, Helmholtz was the first to work out explicitly the notion of the electric atom or electron, as it is now called. From 1887 until his death in 1894, he was director of the technological institute at Charlottenberg, near Berlin.

References.—M'Kendrick's Life in Masters of Medicine Series; Life, in German by Konigsberger; and article by Prof. Rucker in the Fortnightly Review for Nov., 1894.

Helmont (hel'mont), Jan Baptista van, Belgian chemist, was born at Brussels, in 1577. In 1609 he settled at Vilvorde, near Brussels, where he practiced medicine gratuitously for thirty years. He was the first to point out the imperative necessity for employing the balance in chemistry. He paid much attention to the study of the gases, and is supposed by some authorities to have been the first to apply the term gases to elastic aëriform fluids. Of these gases he distinguished several kinds. His works were published under the title Ortus Medicinæ. Died, 1644.

Helps, Sir Arthur, English essayist and historian, was born at Streatham, 1813. He was graduated at Cambridge in 1835, and on leaving the university obtained a post in the civil service. He then resigned and retired to Bishop's Waltham, in Hampshire, where, in the possession of ample means, he enjoyed lettered ease. His first work of consequence was entitled Essays Written in the Intervals of Business. Died, 1875.

Helst (helst), Bartholomeus van der, Dutch painter, was born at Haarlem or Dordrecht, between 1611 and 1614. He was joint-founder in 1654 of the painters' guild of St. Luke at Amsterdam, where he attained great celebrity as a portrait-painter. His best-known work is The Banquet of the Civic Guard, now in the Amsterdam gallery. Died, 1670.

Helvetius (hel-vē'shi-us), Claude Adrien, French philosopher, was born at Paris, 1715. In 1758 appeared his celebrated work De l'Esprit, in which he endeavored to prove sensation to be the source of all intellectual activity, and that the grand lever of all human conduct is self-satisfaction. He visited England in 1764, and the year following was entertained by Frederick the Great at Potsdam. His complete works were published after his death. Died, 1771.

Hemans (hem'anz), Felicia Dorothea, English poet, was born in Liverpool, 1793, daughter of George Browne, a Liverpool merchant, and became the wife of Captain Hemans. Her best poem of any length is The Forest Sanctuary; but her shorter pieces, published under the title of Songs of the Affections, etc., are by far the most popular. Many of these shorter pieces have become standard English lyrics, and upon them, almost exclusively depends her claim to remembrance. She died in Dublin, 1835.

Henderson, Charles Richmond, American educator, sociologist, professor of sociology, University of Chicago, after 1892, was born at Covington, Ind., 1848. He was graduated at the University of Chicago, 1870; B.D., 1873; D.D., 1885, Baptist Union theological seminary; Ph.D., Leipzig, 1901. Associate editor of American Journal of Theology and American Journal of Sociology. Author: Introduction to Study of Dependents; Social Spirit in America; Social Settlements; Edited: The Christian and Civic Economy of Large Towns; Modern Methods of Charity. Died, 1915.

Henderson, William James, American writer, music critic, New York Sun, since 1902, was born at Newark, N. J., 1855. He was graduated at Princeton University, 1876. Was member of staff of New York Tribune, 1876; Times, 1883; music critic, 1887-1902. Author: Story of Music; Preludes and Studies; Elements of Navigation; What is Good Music? How Music Developed; The Orchestra and Orchestral Music; Richard Wagner; Modern Musical Drift; Pipes and Timbrels, Poems; The Art of the Singer, etc. Associate editor, Standard Dictionary.

Hendricks, Thomas Andrews, vice-president of the United States in 1885, was born in Muskingum county, Ohio, 1819. Graduated at Hanover College in 1841, and was admitted to the bar in 1843. He was a democratic member of the house of representatives, 1851-55, served as United States senator, 1863-69, and as governor of Indiana, 1873-77. In 1876 he was nominated for the office of vice-president of the United States by the democrats, but was defeated. In 1876, 1880, and 1884 he was a prominent candidate for the nomination for the presidency; and in 1884, when Cleveland was nominated, he consented to take the nomination for the vice-presidency and was elected. Died, 1885.

Heney, Francis Joseph, lawyer, was born in Lima, N. Y., 1859, and has been a resident of San Francisco practically since 1864. Was admitted to the bar, 1883. He engaged in cattle business in Arizona, 1885-89; practiced law, Tucson, Arizona, 1889-95; was attorney-general of Arizona, 1893-94; removed to San Francisco, 1895, and confined cases to civil business until urged by United States Attorney-General Knox to undertake land fraud cases at Portland, Ore.; discovered conspiracy of United States Attorney John H. Hall to protect guilty politicians in consideration of reappointment; secured removal and indictment of Hall, and indictment of Senator Mitchell, George C. Brownell, and others. He was then district attorney for San Francisco, but was defeated for reëlection in 1909. Special counsel for U. S. Senate committee investigating Internal Revenue Bureau, 1924.

Henley, William Ernest, English poet, playwright, critic, and editor, was born at Gloucester, 1849. Months of illness in Edinburgh infirmary, 1873-75, bore fruit in Hospital Rhymes, and A Book of Verses, which won much attention, and was followed by Views and Reviews; The Song of the Sword; For England's Sake; Hawthorn and Lavender, etc. He edited the Magazine of Art, the Scots Observer, and the New Review, besides an edition of Burns. He also collaborated with R. L. Stevenson in four plays, Deacon Brodie; Beau Austin; Robert Macaire, and Admiral Guinea. Died, 1903.

Hennepin (hen'ē-pin), Louis, French priest, missionary and traveler, was born in Belgium about 1640. When La Salle undertook his exploration of the Mississippi Valley, Father Hennepin was assigned to his command. They discovered Niagara Falls, travelling west as far as Mackinac, and thence to Peoria, on the Illinois river. Here La Salle was obliged to leave the party, and Father Hennepin and two men in a canoe went down the Illinois river to its mouth, and thence north up the Mississippi, a journey of some six weeks, when they fell into the hands of a party of Sioux Indians. Father Hennepin spent nearly a year among the Indians, and was finally rescued by Du Luth, after whom Duluth was named. Upon his return to Europe, Hennepin published a history of his travels, which is of the greatest value in dealing with the early explorations of the Mississippi valley. Died at Utrecht about 1706.

Henry I., king of England, youngest son of William the Conqueror, was born in 1068. He successfully held the crown against his brother Robert, at first negotiating with him, and granting him a pension to resign his pretensions, but finally making war against his badly governed duchy. Robert was defeated in a bloody battle before the walls of Tenchebray in 1106, taken prisoner, and shut up in Cardiff castle during the remaining twenty-eight years of his life. The acquisition of Normandy, the ancient patrimony of his family, had been a point of ambition with Henry, but he had some trouble in keeping it, as the French king, Louis VI., and the counts of Anjou and Flanders took part with William, Roberts' youthful son, whose virtues and misfortunes secured him friends. Henry, however, brought over to himself the count of Anjou; he rendered neutral, by his eloquence and fair promises, Pope Calixtus II. and defeated the French king and his mailed knights in the almost bloodless battle of Brenneville, 1119. Next year his successes in arms and intrigues were darkened for life by the death of his only son William, who was drowned at sea on his passage from Normandy to England. Henry was styled Beauclerc, or "the scholar," in honor of his learning, which, for a king in his age, was not undeserving of distinction. Died, 1135.

Henry II., king of England, grandson of Henry I., was born in 1133. He was crowned with his queen, Eleanor, who was countess of Poitou and duchess of Aquitane in her own right. Henry inherited from his father Anjou, Touraine and Maine, and his father and mother succeeded in keeping and taking possession of Normandy for themselves and him; so that, by one method and another he came to be possessed of a large portion of France as well as England. His chief rivals in power were the clergy. To aid him in reducing the church to subjection to the civil power he appointed his trusted chancellor, Thomas á Becket, to the see of Canterbury, and compelled him and the other ecclesiastics to agree to the constitutions of Clarendon. Becket, however, proved to be a true churchman, and the long and obstinate struggle between him and his monarch was only terminated by his murder. During his reign occurred the conquest of Ireland. This was a nominal conquest, for the majority of the Irish tribes and chieftains continued to be independent barbarians for centuries. Henry's sons, incited by their jealous mother, Queen Eleanor, rebelled against him, and their cause was espoused by the kings of France and Scotland. In the course of this filial rebellion Henry, the eldest, died of a fever, and Geoffrey was killed in a tournament at Paris. Richard, surnamed Cœur de Lion, with King Philip of France, obtained some advantages over his father. A treaty of peace was concluded between them, of which one of the stipulations was for an indemnity for all the followers of Richard. Died, 1189.

Henry III., king of England, grandson of Henry II., and eldest son of King John, was born in 1207. He came to the throne in 1216, when a minor, and in the course of a long reign provoked much hostility by his foreign favorites and his submission to papal exactions. This discontent culminated in the barons' war, 1262-65, in which he was defeated and compelled to submit to control of the government by De Montfort and his friends. During this reign the great charter (with important clauses omitted) was frequently renewed and Westminster abbey was almost entirely built. Died, 1272.

Henry IV., king of England, first king of the house of Lancaster, was born in 1367, and surnamed Bolingbroke, from his birthplace. About 1380 he was made earl of Derby, and married Mary de Bohun. In 1397 he supported Richard II. against Gloucester, and the following year was banished. Upon the death of his father, John of Gaunt, his estates were forfeited. In July, 1399, he landed in York with three small vessels, and on September 29th he obtained from Richard, then a prisoner in the Tower, an abandonment of his claims to the throne. On the next day, Henry arose in parliament and claimed kingdom and crown. In 1412 he sent two expeditions into France, but in his closing years he was afflicted with epileptic fits, in one of which he died at Westminster, 1413.

Henry V., king of England, was born at Monmouth, 1387, eldest son of Henry IV. by Mary de Bohun. He was crowned in 1413, and at the outset of his reign liberated the young earl of March, the true heir to the crown, restored Hotspur's son to his father's lands and honors, and had Richard II.'s body buried in Westminster. The great effort of his reign was an attempted conquest of France; and in 1414 he demanded the French crown, to which he seems to have believed that he had a valid claim through his great-grandfather, Edward III. In 1415 he sailed with an army of 30,000 men and in September took Harfleur. In October, at Agincourt, he gained a battle against such odd as to make his victory one of the most notable in history. In 1420 was concluded the "perpetual peace" of Troyes, under which Henry was recognized as regent and "heir of France," and married the French king's daughter, Catherine of Valois. In 1421 he took his young queen to England to be crowned; but in a month he was recalled by the news of the defeat at Beaugé of his brother, the duke of Clarence. Henry's wonted success was attending him, when he was seized with illness, and died at Vincennes, 1422, leaving an infant to succeed him.

Henry VII., king of England, was born about 1457, first of the Tudor dynasty. He was the son of Edmund Tudor and Margaret Beaufort, a descendant of John of Gaunt. He invaded England in 1485, and defeated Richard III. at Bosworth, after which he married Elizabeth, daughter of Edward IV. His reign was marked by three Yorkist risings, which he defeated, by the measures he enforced against the nobles, by his system of marriages with foreign princes, and the enactment of Poyning's law. Died, 1509.

Henry VIII., king of England, second son of Henry VII. and Elizabeth of York, was born in 1491. Betrothed at twelve, he was married in 1509, shortly after his succession, to Catharine of Aragon, his brother's widow, six years his senior. He chose his ministers wisely, and, leaving much to their discretion, nevertheless held the reins of government himself. Wolsey, archbishop of York, his chief minister, held almost unlimited power, dependent, however, on the king's will and favor. In 1521 Henry gained from the pope the title "defender of the faith," still borne by the English sovereign, for his Assertio Septum Sacramentorum against Luther. The appearance at court of Anne Boleyn, and the failure of a male heir, encouraged Henry to raise the old question as to the legality of the marriage with Catharine. Wolsey zealously aided him, seeing in a divorce the possibility of a breaking of ties with Charles V. and an alliance with France. The appeal to the pope in 1527 resulted only in the appointment of a commission. In 1533 Henry, impatient at the delay, was privately married to Anne, with whom he had long been living; three months later the marriage was announced, and Cranmer, calling a court, as the highest ecclesiastical authority in England, pronounced the divorce from Catharine and declared the marriage null and void from the beginning. A year later Clement decided in favor of Catharine, but not until Henry had severed all connections with Rome, by making it treason to deny his authority as head of the church of England. In quick succession came the translation of the Bible, its introduction into every church, the act of uniformity, and the ten articles of faith, later changed again to six articles, embodying substantially the old creed, with the penalty of death for denial. In 1536 Henry charged Anne Boleyn with infidelity, sent her to the block and married Jane Seymour, by whom he had a son, Edward VI. Jane died in 1537 and three years later he married Anne of Cleves, at Cromwell's suggestion. She proved far from handsome, was divorced, and Cromwell sent to the block. On the day of Cromwell's execution Henry married Catherine Howard, but she was soon found unfaithful and beheaded. In 1543 Henry married Catharine Parr, who survived him. He died, 1547.

Henry II., king of France, was born in 1519, son of Francis I., whom he succeeded in 1547. By his alliance with the German Protestants, he acquired Metz, Toul and Verdun, carried on his father's war with Spain, was defeated at St. Quentin in 1557, but in 1558 he regained Calais from the English. He died in 1559 of a wound inflicted in a tournament held to celebrate the conclusion of the war by the marriage of his daughter and Philip II. of Spain.

Henry III., king of France, third son of Henry II. and Catharine de' Medici, was born in 1551. In 1573 the intrigues of the queen-regent secured his election to the crown of Poland; but in 1575 he succeeded his brother, Charles IX., on the French throne. His reign was a period of almost incessant civil war between Huguenots and Catholics, the duke of Guise having formed the holy league to assert the supremacy of Catholicism and secure the reversion of the throne to the Guises. In 1588 the assassination of the duke of Guise roused the Catholics to the utmost pitch of exasperation; Henry threw himself into the arms of Henry of Navarre, and the two marched upon Paris at the head of a Huguenot army. But in August, 1589, Henry was stabbed by a fanatical Dominican named Jacques Clément; after nominating Henry of Navarre as his successor, he died, the last of the house of Valois, on the following day.

Henry IV., king of France, was born in 1553, son of Anthony of Navarre, a descendant of Louis IX. He was founder of the Bourbon dynasty, succeeding Henry III. in 1589. His marriage with Marguerite de Valois, in 1572, was the occasion of the Bartholomew massacres. In 1576 he quitted the court and became leader of the Huguenots and opponent of the league, being the rival of the Guises for the succession. He defeated them at Arques and Ivry, but was unable to conquer Paris without becoming a Roman Catholic, which he did in 1593. He concluded peace with Philip II. at Vervins, and issued the edict of Nantes. He was assassinated by Ravaillac, 1610.

Henry IV., emperor of the holy Roman empire, was born at Goslar, Prussia, 1050, son of Henry III. He was crowned emperor in 1084 by Clement III. The chief occurrence of his reign was the struggle with Gregory VII., with whom he began the investiture disputes. During this celebrated controversy he deposed Gregory, but was himself excommunicated and deposed, and was obliged to submit at Canossa in 1077. In 1084 he again invaded Italy and captured Rome. Died, 1106.

Henry, Joseph, American physicist, was born in Albany, N. Y., 1799; was appointed professor of natural philosophy in the college of New Jersey at Princeton, 1832, and, in 1846, was called to the office of secretary or director of the Smithsonian institution at Washington, to the organization and wide reputation of which he had mostly contributed. Henry made most important discoveries in electromagnetism, and disputed with Morse the invention of the electric telegraph. Died, 1878.

Henry, Patrick, American orator and statesman, was born in Virginia in 1736. After receiving a common school education and spending some time in trade and agriculture, he commenced the practice of law, after only six weeks of preparatory study. In spite of several years of poverty, he first rose to distinction in managing the popular cause in the controversy between the legislature and the clergy, touching the stipend which was claimed by the latter. In 1765 he was elected a member of the Virginia house of burgesses, with express reference to an opposition to the British stamp act. He was one of the delegates sent by Virginia to the first general congress of the colonies, in 1774, and in that body distinguished himself by his boldness and eloquence. In 1776 he was appointed the first governor of the commonwealth, and to this office was repeatedly reëlected. In 1788 he was a member of the convention which met in Virginia to consider the constitution of the United States, and he exerted himself strenuously against its adoption. Without extensive information upon legal or political topics, he was a natural orator of the highest order, possessing great powers of imagination, sarcasm and humor, united with great force and energy of manner and a deep knowledge of human nature. Died, 1799.

Henry, king of Navarre. See Henry IV., king of France.

Henry the Lion, duke of Saxony and Bavaria, was born in 1129. He was the son of Henry the Proud, a rebellious noble, who had been deprived of his estates by Conrad III. On his death these dukedoms were restored to the former's son, Henry the Lion, who became the greatest of all the German princes. Great improvements were made by him in his dominions and he became so powerful as to determine to be no longer a subject even to the emperor. Died, 1195.

Henry the Navigator, son of John I., king of Portugal, and the English Philippa, daughter of John of Gaunt, was born in 1394. He distinguished himself at the capture of Ceuta in 1415; took up his residence at Sagres, in Algarve; and during the war against the Moors his sailors reached part of the ocean before unknown. Henry's thoughts were now directed toward the gold-producing coasts of Guinea; and in 1434 one of his mariners sailed round Cape Nun, and touched Cape Bojador. Next year another expedition reached a point 120 miles beyond Cape Bojador. Up to this period the prince had borne the expense of these voyages himself; henceforth, societies for the purpose were formed under his guidance. In 1445 Henry's captain, Nuno Tristam, doubled Cape Verde, and in 1448 Gonzalez Vallo discovered three of the Azores. Henry died in 1460.

Henry, O.—See Sydney Porter.

Henson, Herbert Hensley, canon of Westminster abbey and rector of St. Margaret's since 1900 was born in London, England, 1863. He was educated privately and at Oxford; was a fellow of All Souls College, Oxford, 1884-91; reëlected 1896; B.D., 1898; hon. D.D., Glasgow, 1906. Author: Light and Leaven; Apostolic Christianity; Cross Bench Views of Current Church Questions; Preaching to the Times; English Religion in the 17th Century; Moral Discipline in the Christian Church; Religion in the Schools; Christ and the Nation, etc.

Hepburn, Alonzo Barton, banker, was born at Colton, N. Y., 1846. He was graduated at Middlebury College, Vermont, 1871; LL.D., St. Lawrence University, 1900; D.C.L., 1906. United States bank examiner for New York, 1888-92; comptroller of the currency, 1892-93; president Third National Bank, New York City, 1893-97; president Chase National Bank since 1899. He is also a trustee in the New York Life Insurance Company; director Bankers Trust Company, etc. Author of History of Coinage and Currency, and frequent contributor to magazines. Died, 1922.

Hepburn, James Curtis, American physician and medical missionary, was born at Milton, Pa., 1815. He graduated at Princeton College, 1832; University of Pennsylvania medical department, M.D., 1836; LL.D., Lafayette, 1872, Princeton, 1905. Went to China as medical missionary, 1840; went to Japan, 1859; lived in Yokohama until 1892; returned to United States, 1893, and retired. He compiled first English dictionary of Japanese language; published an English-Japanese Dictionary; wrote a grammar of the Japanese language; translated the Bible into the Japanese language, 1872-88, and published a Japanese Dictionary of the Bible, 1891. Died, 1911.

Hepburn, William Peters, lawyer, congressman, was born in Wellsville, Ohio, 1833. His parents removed to Iowa in 1841, where he was educated in local schools and in a printing office. He was admitted to the bar in 1854; in the Union army, 1861-65, as a captain, major, and lieutenant-colonel, 2d Iowa cavalry; was presidential elector, 1876 and 1888; member of congress, 1881-87, and 1893-1909 from the 8th Iowa district. While a member of congress he was chairman of committee on interstate and foreign commerce, and author of the Hepburn bill to regulate interstate commerce. He was regarded as one of the ablest debaters in lower house for many years. Died, 1916.

Heraclius (her-ā-klī'us), Byzantine emperor, was born in Cappadocia about 575. In 610 he headed a revolt against Phocas, slew him, and mounted his throne. After thirty years of almost incessant fighting, he died in 641.

Herbart (her'bärt), Johann Friedrich, German philosopher, was born at Oldenberg, Germany, 1776. He then studied at Jena, became the pupil of Fichté, and received his philosophy with enthusiasm; but after more reflection he found himself obliged to reject much of his system, and to form one of his own. In 1808 he was appointed professor at Göttingen, and in 1809 obtained the chair of philosophy at Königsberg. In 1833 he returned to Göttingen, where he remained until death. His collected works were published by his scholar, Hartenstein, 1850-52. Died, 1841.

Herbert, George, English poet, was born in Montgomery Castle, Wales, 1592. In 1609 he entered Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1615 was elected a fellow, and was public orator, 1619-37. He looked for advancement at court, but, by the gift of a prebend of Lincoln and the friendship of Nicholas Ferrar, he was drawn toward a religious life, and in 1630 was presented to the vicarage of Bemerton near Salisbury. He held it only three years, when he died in 1633. His Country Parson is generally considered to be a picture of himself; The Temple, or Sacred Poems, and Private Ejaculations contains some of the purest religious verse in the English language.

Herbert, Victor, conductor, composer, was born in Dublin, Ireland, 1859. He began his musical education in Germany at the age of seven, studying under leading masters, and gained his first position of prominence as principal violoncello player in court orchestra, Stuttgart. Subsequently he was connected with Theodore Thomas', Seidl's, and other orchestral organizations as soloist and conductor. Bandmaster of 22d regiment band, New York, since 1894; conductor of Pittsburg, Pa., orchestra, 1898-1904; Victor Herbert's New York orchestra, since 1904. Composer: The Captive, an oratorio; Prince Ananias; The Wizard of the Nile; The Serenade; Cyrano de Bergerac; The Ameer; The Viceroy; The Idol's Eye; The Fortune Teller; The Singing Girl; Babette; Babes in Toyland; It Happened in Nordland, etc., all comic operas. He also wrote several compositions for orchestra, songs, and a concert for violoncello and orchestra. Died, 1924.

Herder (her'dĕr), Johann Gottfried von, German critic and poet, was born at Mohrungen in East Prussia, 1744. He studied at Königsberg, and there became acquainted with Kant and Hamann. Between 1766 and 1769 he wrote two works, in which he maintained that the truest poetry is the poetry of the people. In 1769 he made the acquaintance of Goethe at Strassburg. In 1802 he was ennobled by the elector of Bavaria. He wrote many important works, among them: Fragments of the More Modern German Literature; Origin of Language; The Oldest Record of the Human Race; Folk-Songs; Voices of the Nations in Songs; Letters for the Advancement of Humanity, etc. He died at Weimar, 1803.

Herkomer (hûr'kō-mĕr), Hubert von, English artist, was born in Waal, Bavaria, 1849. His father, Lorenzo Herkomer, a skillful wood-carver, emigrated with his family to the United States, 1851, but in 1857 removed to England and settled in Southampton. At the age of thirteen Herkomer entered the art school at Southampton, and won a bronze medal there. He then studied at Munich, established himself in the village of Hythe, and there painted two pictures, which he exhibited at the Dudley gallery. He finally removed to London, where he occupied himself successfully with water-color painting and designing for wood engravings. Subsequently he turned his attention to etching and other branches of practice. He became a member of the royal academy, an honorary member of the imperial academy of Vienna, and succeeded Ruskin as Slade professor of art at Oxford, 1885-94. Died, 1914.

Hermes (her'mās), Georg, Roman Catholic philosopher, was born at Dreyerwalde in Westphalia, 1775. He sought to base the Catholic faith and doctrines on a critical theory of knowledge like Kant's. The Hermesian method departed widely from the old text-books of the schools; and although his substantial orthodoxy was not questioned, his doctrines were condemned by a papal brief in 1835 as heretical, and his followers were deprived of their chairs. Died, 1831.

Herne (hûrn), James A., American actor and dramatist, was born at Troy, N. Y., 1840. He appeared chiefly in his own plays, the best of which are: Hearts of Oak; Margaret Fleming; Shore Acres; Rev. Griffith Davenport; Sag Harbor. He was an actor of great ability and a skillful stage manager. Died, 1901.

Herod (her'ud) the Great, king of Judæ, was born at Askalon, 63 B. C., became governor of Galilee about 47 B.C., and through the influence of Mark Antony ascended the throne of Judæ in 40 B.C. During his reign occurred the birth of the Messiah, and the consequent massacre of the innocents. Herod was so cruel by nature that for deeds of blood and violence his name became a proverb. Died, 4 B. C.

Herodotus, Greek historian, styled the father of history, was born in Halicarnassus, Asia Minor, about 484 B. C., and died about 420 B. C. He belonged to an illustrious family, received a high education and engaged in frequent and distant travel. He visited Babylon, Arderica near Susa, the remoter parts of Egypt, Cyrene, Colchis, Scythia, Thrace, Zante, Dodona, and Magna Græcia, thus ranging over a space more than 1,700 miles from east to west and 1,600 miles from north to south.

It is related that in 446 B. C. the Athenian assembly decreed a reward to him for his History, which he had read publicly; and that he made known his work by recitation not only at Athens but in other cities, and also before the assembled Greeks at the great Olympian festival. He went about 440 B. C. to Thurii, a colony newly founded by the Athenians near the site of the former Sybaris, where he is said to have passed the remainder of his life, perfecting his History. The abruptness of its close and occasional traces of incompleteness indicate that it was not entirely finished at his death.

The main subject of Herodotus' History is the Persian war of invasion, yet he takes every opportunity of diverging from it in order to introduce his various historical, geographical and antiquarian knowledge. In Egypt the priests took advantage of his ignorance of the language to magnify the antiquity of their nation and to modify inglorious portions of their history. His accounts of Babylon are correct in outline, but lack the fullness and precision of the narrative of Berosus. His Persian history is based in the main on authentic national records, diversified especially in the earlier part by circumstances and adventures from romantic chroniclers.

His chief defect as a historian is an undue love of the marvelous; but he is truthful and accurate whenever he speaks from his own observation. The simple beauty of his style, the grandeur of his historical combinations and the entertainment which his narrative furnishes have never been questioned; and he is esteemed by scholars the earliest and best of romantic historians.

References.—His History, with commentary, has been translated into English, by Rawlinson, by Sayce, and by Macan. There is also a good translation by G. C. Macaulay. See also Wheeler's Life and Travels of Herodotus.

Herrera (er-rā'rā), Antonio de, Spanish historian, was born at Cuellar near Segovia, 1549. Philip II. made him chief chronicler of America, and historian of Castile, which offices he filled for many years. He wrote a history of Castilian Exploits in the Pacific, a description of the West Indies, a history of England and Scotland in the time of Mary Stuart, etc. Died, 1625.

Herrera, Fernando de, Spanish lyric poet, was born at Seville about 1534, and took orders in the church. Many of his love-poems are remarkable for tender feeling, while his odes display a lofty enthusiasm. He wrote a prose history of the war in Cyprus, and translated from the Latin of Stapleton a Life of Sir Thomas More. Died, 1597.

Herrera, Francisco, "the elder," Spanish painter, was born in Seville, 1576. He painted historical pieces, wine-shops, fairs, carnivals and scenes from the life of the people, and was one of the most eminent Spanish painters of the school of Seville. The cupola of the church at St. Bonaventure displays his skill in fresco-painting. Some of his best works are in the Louvre at Paris. Died 1656.

Herrick, Myron T., financier, ex-governor of Ohio, was born at Huntington, Ohio, 1854. He was educated in the district schools in Ohio, at Oberlin College and Ohio Wesleyan University; was admitted to the bar, Cleveland, 1878. He retired from law practice, 1886. From 1903 to 1906 he was governor of Ohio, and later was influential in the politics. Ambassador to France. Died, 1929.

Herrick, Robert, English poet, was born in Cheapside, London, 1591, son of a goldsmith. He was educated at St. John's College and at Trinity Hall, Cambridge. After taking orders as a clergyman of the church of England, he was presented by Charles I. to the vicarage of Dean Prior. In 1648 he published his celebrated Collection of lyrical poems, entitled Hesperides, or the Works Both Human and Divine of Robert Herrick, Esq. About the same time he published Noble Numbers, or Pious Pieces. His poems, not fewer than thirteen hundred in number, include, though they are very unequal, some of the finest lyrical pieces in the language. Died, 1674.

Herrick, Robert, educator, novelist, was born at Cambridge, Mass., 1868. He was graduated at Harvard, 1890; was instructor in rhetoric, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1890-93; professor of English, University of Chicago. Author: The Man Who Wins; Literary Love Letters and Other Stories; The Gospel of Freedom; Love's Dilemmas; Composition and Rhetoric (with Professor L. T. Damon); The Web of Life; The Real World; Their Child; The Common Lot; The Memoirs of an American Citizen, etc.

Herschel (hûr'shel), Caroline Lucretia, sister of the astronomer, Sir (Frederick) William Herschel, was born in Hanover, 1750. When William was appointed astronomer to George III. she acted as his assistant, and in that character received a small salary from the king. She discovered seven comets, for five of which she has the credit of priority of discovery. Several remarkable nebulæ and clusters of stars included in her brother's catalogues were described from her original observations. She was made an honorary member of the royal society. Died, 1848.

Herschel, Sir John Frederick William, English astronomer, son of Sir (Frederick) William Herschel, was born in 1792. About 1825 he began his observations in sidereal astronomy, to which he chiefly devoted himself. His great enterprise was his expedition toward the close of 1833 to the Cape of Good Hope to take observations of the southern firmament. In 1847 appeared his Results of Astronomical Observations at the Cape of Good Hope, one of the most notable works of our time. His residence at the cape gave not only valuable additions to astronomy, but also to meteorology. His observations on the milky way, on the brightness and the color of stars, on variable stars, on the sun's rays, on the atmospheric air, and on the Magellanic clouds, all possess great value. He also made noteworthy researches in light, sound and celestial physics. His best known work is Outlines of Astronomy. Died, 1871.

Herschel, Sir (Frederick) William, German-English astronomer, was born in Hanover, 1738. In 1757 he went to England. Here he turned his attention to astronomy. Wanting a telescope, and unable to afford a reflector, he made one for himself. In 1781 he discovered the planet Uranus, which discovery resulted in his appointment as private astronomer to George III., with a salary of 200 pounds a year. He was knighted by George III., and made a D.C.L. by the University of Oxford. He greatly added to our knowledge of the solar system; discovered six satellites of Uranus and two satellites of Saturn; detected the rotation of Saturn's ring, the period of rotation of Saturn itself and the existence of the motion of binary stars, the first revelation of systems besides our own. He threw new light on the milky way and the constitution of nebulæ, and, in fact, was the first to give the human mind a proper conception of the immensity of the universe. Died, 1822.

Hertz, Heinrich, German physicist, was born at Hamburg in 1857. He received his college training at the University of Berlin, but continued his researches as assistant to the great Helmholtz. In 1887 he invented an apparatus not only for the detection of electromagnetic waves but also for measuring their length and velocity. These radiations are now known as Hertzian waves. In 1889 he became professor of physics at the University of Bonn. Died, 1894.

Hertz (hĕrts), Henrik, Danish poet and dramatist, was born in Copenhagen, 1798. He was of Jewish descent, was educated at the University of Copenhagen, traveled abroad, and returned as a professor of the University. His first important work was Letters of a Ghost, a rhymed satirical poem. His subsequent works include: Svend Dyring's House; The Saving's Bank; Love and Politics; The Heirs, etc. Died, 1870.

Hervieu (er'vyû), Paul Ernest, French author and dramatist, was born at Neuilly-sur-Seine, 1857. He was educated at the Lycée Condorcet, Paris; and at the Ecole de Droit, and was admitted as an advocate, 1877. In 1900 he was elected to the French academy. He has written several novels, but his most notable achievements are his dramas, which are marked by keen observation of life and delicate fancy. Died, 1915.

Herzog (her'tsōĸ), Johann Jakob, German theologian, was born at Basel, 1805. He became professor at Lausanne, 1830, at Halle, 1847, and Erlangen, 1854. He wrote books on the Plymouth brethren and the Waldenses, lives of Calvin and Æcolampadius, a church-history, etc., and edited the great Realencyklopädie für Protestantische Theologie und Kirche (22 volumes). Died, 1882.

Hesiod (hē'si-ŏd), one of the earliest Greek poets, was born in Bœotia, lived in the eighth century B. C., chiefly at Orchomenos; probably of humble birth. Of the works ascribed to him the principal were the Works and Days, the Theogony and the Shields of Hercules. His poems treat of the quiet pursuits of ordinary life, the origin of the world, the gods and heroes, while those of Homer are occupied with the restless and active enterprises of the heroic age.

Hewlett, Maurice Henry, English historical writer and novelist, was born at London, 1861. He was educated at the London International College, at Spring Grove, Isleworth; was admitted as a barrister, 1891. Author: Earthwork Out of Tuscany; The Masque of Dead Florentines; Songs and Meditations; The Forest Lovers; Pan and the Young Shepherd; Little Novels of Italy; Richard Yea-and-Nay; New Canterbury Tales; The Queen's Quair; The Road in Tuscany; Fond Adventures; The Fool Errant; The Stooping Lady; Half-way House, etc. Died, 1923.

Heyne (hī'nĕ), Christian Gottlob, German classical scholar, was born in Saxony, 1729. In 1753 he obtained the situation of under-clerk in the Brühl library at Dresden. In 1756, unfortunately for Heyne, the Seven Years' war broke out. Frederick the Great marched against Dresden, and burned, among other things, the Brühl library, but not before Heyne had edited, from a codex there, the Enchiridion of Epictetus. In 1763, on the death of Gessner, professor of rhetoric at Göttingen, Heyne was appointed his successor. Died, 1812.

Heyse (hī'zĕ), Paul Johann, German poet, dramatist and novelist, was born in Berlin, 1830. He was educated at Berlin and Bonn, and settled at Munich in 1854. He published more than a score of collections of novelettes, good specimens of which are contained in Das Buch der Freundschaft. His poetic works include narrative poems, such as Urica, and epics, such as Die Braut von Cypern and Thekla. Died, 1914.

Hezekiah, king of Judah, son and successor of Ahaz, reigned from 726 to 696 B. C. There was "none like him among all the kings of Judah" is the praise bestowed upon him in the book of Kings. At the head of a repentant and united people Hezekiah returned to assume the aggressive against the Philistines, and in a series of victories not only re-won the cities his father had lost, but captured others. At length Sennacherib with a mighty host advanced against Jerusalem, but by some catastrophe 180,000 men in the Assyrian camp were killed in a single night, and Sennacherib was obliged to retreat. A second Assyrian invasion, however, under Moerdach-baladan, resulted in the capture and the end of Hezekiah's rule.

Hibben, John Grier, educator, president of Princeton University, was born at Peoria, Ill., 1861. He was graduated from Princeton, 1882; Princeton Theological Seminary, 1886; Ph.D. 1893; LL.D., LaFayette College, 1907. Pastor of Presbyterian church, 1887-91; instructor and professor of philosophy, Princeton, 1891-1912. President of Princeton after Jan. 1912. He was the author of several works on philosophy, chiefly logic, and also editor of Epochs of Philosophy, in twelve volumes, by English and American writers. Died, 1933.

Hick, Elias, American Quaker-preacher, was born at Hempstead, L. I., 1748. At twenty-seven he was a well-known and influential Quaker preacher, and for many years traveled through the United States and Canada. He exercised great influence among his co-religionists until his Unitarianism brought him into disfavor with orthodox Friends; but he defended his views with perseverance, and at eighty he still preached. The result was schism of the society into two divisions, known as orthodox and Hicksite Friends. He was a vigorous abolitionist. Died, 1830.

Higginson, Henry Lee, banker, was born in New York, 1834. He entered Harvard in 1851, but did not complete course. He served in United States volunteers in Civil War, becoming major and brevetted lieutenant-colonel of 1st Massachusetts cavalry, and was severely wounded at Aldie, Va., June, 1863. He later entered the firm of Lee, Higginson and Company, bankers, Boston. He devoted a considerable sum to organization of the symphony orchestra in Boston. Died, 1919.

Higginson, Thomas Wentworth, American writer, was born in Cambridge, Mass., 1823. He graduated at Harvard, 1841; LL.D., Harvard. After several years in the ministry he entered into the movement against slavery; took part in the Civil War as captain of the 51st Massachusetts volunteer militia, later colonel 1st South Carolina (Union) volunteers, and afterward of the 33d United States colored troops. Author: Outdoor Papers; Army Life in a Black Regiment; Life of Margaret Fuller Ossoli; Larger History of the United States; The Monarch of Dreams; The New World and the New Book; Concerning All of Us; Such As They Are, poems; English History for Americans; Old Cambridge; Contemporaries; Henry W. Longfellow, in American Men of Letters series; John G. Whittier, in English Men of Letters series; A Reader's History of American Literature; Part of a Man's Life, etc. Died, 1911.

Hildebrand (hil'dĕ-brand), Saint. See Gregory VII.

Hildreth (hil'dreth), Richard, American historian, was born in Deerfield, Mass., 1807. He was graduated at Harvard College in 1826; admitted to the bar in 1830, and became connected with the Boston Atlas and other newspapers. In 1861 he became United States consul at Trieste, Austria. Among his most notable works are the White Slave, an anti-slavery novel; History of the United States (6 volumes); Banks, Banking and Paper Currency; etc. He died at Florence, Italy, 1865.

Hilgard (hil'gärd), Eugene Woldemar, professor of agriculture, University of California, and director California agricultural experiment station since 1875, was born at Zweibrücken, Rhenish Bavaria, 1833. Was graduated at Heidelberg, Ph.D., 1853; LL.D., Columbia. He was state geologist, Mississippi, 1855-73; also professor of chemistry, University of Mississippi, and professor of geology and natural history, University of Michigan, 1873-75. Received the Liebig medal for distinguished achievements in agricultural sciences from academy of sciences, Munich; also gold medal, Paris exposition, 1900, as collaborator in agricultural science. Author: Report on the Geology and Agriculture of Mississippi; Report on the Agricultural Features of the Pacific Slope; Reports and Bulletins California Experiment Station, 1877-1903. Editor: Cotton Culture in the United States, 10th Census. Died, 1916.

Hill, Adams Sherman, educator, was born in Boston, Mass., 1833. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1853; Harvard Law School, 1855; LL.D., 1903. He was law reporter, correspondent, and editor, New York, Washington, and Chicago, 1856-68; assistant professor of rhetoric, 1872-76, Boylston professor of rhetoric and oratory, Harvard, 1876-1904, emeritus professor same until 1911. Author: Principles of Rhetoric; Our English; Foundations of Rhetoric; Beginnings of Rhetoric and Composition, etc. Died, 1911.

Hill, Albert Ross, educator, president University of Missouri, 1908-1922, was born in Nova Scotia, 1869; graduated at Dalhousie University, 1892; Ph.D., Cornell, 1895; LL.D., University of South Carolina, 1905, and director of psychological laboratories, University of Nebraska; professor educational psychology and dean of teachers' college, University of Missouri, 1903-07; professor philosophy of education, director of school of education and dean of college of arts and sciences, Cornell University, 1907-08. He was president of the Western philosophical association, 1904-05. director foreign operations, American Red Cross, 1921-23; gen. mgr. Ward Investment Co., Kansas City, Mo., since 1923.

Hill, Ambrose Powell, American soldier, was born in Virginia, 1825. He was graduated at West Point, 1847, served in the Mexican war, and entered the confederate army in 1861 as colonel. He served in Johnston's command at the first battle of Bull Run; became a major-general, 1862; commanded the right wing of Jackson's corps at Chancellorsville; was promoted to lieutenant-general, 1863; commanded a corps at Gettysburg; repelled, with Longstreet, the attack on Weldon railroad; was killed near Petersburg, Va., 1865, while reconnoitering.

Hill, David Bennett, American lawyer and politician, was born at Havana, N. Y., 1843. He was educated at the district schools and Havana Academy and was admitted to the bar in 1864. Delegate to national democratic conventions, 1876, 1884, 1896, 1900, 1904; seconded nomination of William J. Bryan for presidency, 1900; mayor, 1882, Elmira, N. Y., lieutenant-governor of New York, 1882-85; governor of New York, 1885-91; United States senator, 1891-97; prominent candidate for presidential nomination in national democratic convention, 1892; candidate for governor of New York, 1894; died, 1910.

Hill, David Jayne, American diplomat, scholar, was born in Plainfield, N. J., 1850. He was graduated at Bucknell University, Pa., 1874; LL.D., Colgate, University of Pennsylvania, President of Bucknell University, 1879-88; president of University of Rochester, 1888-96; resigned; spent nearly three years in study of public law of Europe; professor of European diplomacy in school of comparative jurisprudence and diplomacy, Washington. Assistant secretary of state of United States, 1898-1903, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of United States to Switzerland, 1903-05; to the Netherlands, 1905-07; ambassador to Germany, 1908-1911. Author: Life of Washington Irving; Principles and Fallacies of Socialism; Genetic Philosophy; International Justice; The Life and Work of Hugo Grotius; The Contemporary Development of Diplomacy; A History of Diplomacy in the International Development of Europe, etc. Died, 1932.

Hill, James J., railway official, capitalist, was born near Guelph, Ont., 1838. He was educated at Rockwood Academy; left his father's farm for business life in Minnesota. He established in 1870 the Red River transportation company, which was the first to open communication between St. Paul and Winnipeg; organized, 1875, the Northwestern fuel company, and three years later sold out his interest, in the meantime having organized a syndicate which secured control of the St. Paul and Pacific railroad, from the Dutch owners of the securities. He reörganized the system as the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company, and was its general manager, 1879-82; vice-president, 1882-83, and president after 1883. This railway became part of the Great Northern system, 1890. He became president of the entire Great Northern system, 1893; retired in 1907 and became chairman of the board of directors of same. He gave $500,000 toward establishing the Roman Catholic Theological Seminary at St. Paul, Minn. Died, 1916.

Hill, Sir Rowland, originator of penny postage, was born at Kidderminster, England, 1795, and was a teacher from an early age down to 1833. Sensible of the urgent need for reducing the high rates of postage, he advocated, in 1837, an adhesive postage stamp and a low and uniform rate between all places in the British isles in a pamphlet, Post-office Reform. Two years later Hill was attached to the treasury for the purpose of putting his projected reforms into execution; and in 1840 the present uniform penny rate came into force. In 1844 Hill became secretary to the postmaster-general, and in 1854 secretary to the post-office. In 1864 he resigned owing to ill-health, and was awarded a pension of 2,000 pounds for life, together with a parliamentary grant of 20,000 pounds. He died at Hampstead in 1879.

Hill, Thomas, American educator and writer, was born at New Brunswick, N. J., 1818. He graduated at Harvard, 1843, and from the divinity school, 1845. He was pastor of the Unitarian church at Waltham, Mass., 1845-59; president of Antioch College, 1859-62; president of Harvard, 1862-68, resigning on account of poor health. He then accompanied Agassiz to South America on a scientific expedition, and in 1873 became pastor of a Unitarian church at Portland, Me. He was an able mathematician, an authority on natural sciences, and a gifted classical scholar. Died at Waltham, Mass., 1891.

Hillel (hil'el), surnamed Hababli, "the Babylonian," and Hazaken, "the elder," one of the greatest doctors of the Jewish law, was born in Babylonia about 60 B. C. He was president of the sanhedrim in Jerusalem, through appointment of Herod I., 30 B. C. to 9 A. D., and was distinguished for his humility, gentleness and humane spirit. He founded the Talmudic Judaism, and wrote extensively on law and morals. Died, 10 A. D.

Hillis (hil'is), Newell Dwight, clergyman, author, was born in Magnolia, Ia., 1858. He was educated at Iowa College, Lake Forest University and McCormick theological seminary; M.A.; D.D., Northwestern University. He entered the Presbyterian ministry; was pastor at Peoria, Ill., 1887-90; at Evanston, Ill., 1890-94; succeeded the late Professor David Swing as pastor of Central church, Chicago, 1894; pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, since January, 1899. Author: The Investment of Influence; A Man's Value to Society; How the Inner Light Failed; Foretokens of Immortality; Great Books as Life Teachers; Influence of Christ in Modern Life. Died, 1929.

Hindenburg, Paul Ludwig Hans Anton von Beneckendorff und von, German general, born 1847; graduated from military academy at 16; lieutenant in Austro-Prussian war; received Iron Cross at Sedan in 1870; later, professor in the War Academy; retired, 1911; commander of Eastern armies in European War, 1914; chief of general staff, 1916. In 1925 he was elected President of the German Republic, reelected in 1932. Died 1934

Hipparchus (hi-pär'kus), first great Greek astronomer, was born at Nicæa in Bithynia, flourished between 160 and 125 B. C., and made observations at Rhodes. He discovered the precession of the equinoxes and the eccentricity of the sun's path, determined the length of the solar year, estimated the distances of the sun and moon from the earth, drew up a catalogue of 1,080 stars, and fixed the geographical position of places on the earth by giving their latitude and longitude.

Hippocrates (hi-pok'rä-tēz), Greek physician, the most celebrated of antiquity, was born in the island of Cos, probably about 460 B. C.; and thereafter visiting Athens, he settled in practice. He died at Larissa in Thessaly in 377 or 359 B.C. Seventy-two works bear his name. He seems to have gathered up all that was sound in the past history of medicine, was good in diagnosis and prognosis, and believed that the four fluids or humors of the body, blood, phlegm, yellow bile and black bile, are the primary seats of disease. His works were first printed in a Latin translation in 1525 A.D. The first Greek edition appeared in 1526 A.D

Hirsch (hürsh, Ger. hirsh), Emil Gustav, German American clergyman, educator, was born in Luxemburg, Germany, 1852. He received his education in Germany; was graduated at University of Pennsylvania, 1872; LL.D., Austin College, Ill., 1896; L.H.D., Western University of Pennsylvania, 1901. Minister of Sinai congregation, Chicago, since 1880. President and member of public library board, Chicago, 1888-97; professor of rabbinical literature and philosophy, University of Chicago, since 1892. Edited The Reform Advocate, Chicago. Edited biblical department, Jewish Encyclopedia. Author of various monographs on biblical and religious subjects, and was prominent as orator on public and patriotic occasions. Died, 1923.

Hitchcock, Charles Henry, American geologist, was born at Amherst, Mass., 1830. He was graduated at Amherst College, 1850; LL.D., 1896; Ph.D., Lafayette, 1870; professor of geology, Dartmouth College, since 1868. He headed the expedition occupying Mt. Washington, N. H., in winters of 1870-71, the first high mountain observatory in this country. Was one of the founders of the geological society of America. Author: Mt. Washington in Winter; Report on Geology of New Hampshire, etc. Died, 1919.

Hitchcock, Edward, American geologist, was born at Deerfield, Mass., 1793. He was educated at Yale and ordained to the Congregational ministry, 1821; professor of chemistry and natural history in Amherst College, 1825-45; president and professor of natural theology and geology, 1845-54, and subsequently held the chair of geology until his death. In 1824 he published The Geology of the Connecticut Valley. In 1850 he was appointed agricultural commissioner for his native state, visited and examined the chief agricultural schools of Europe, and subsequently published his Report on the Agricultural Schools of Europe. Died, 1864.

Hitchcock, Frank Harris, American politician, postmaster-general, was born at Amherst, Ohio, 1867. He was graduated at Harvard, 1891; the Columbian University Law School, 1894; LL.M. 1895; was admitted to bar of District of Columbia, 1894, and to that of the United States Supreme Court, 1897. He entered the government service in 1891; was chief of division of foreign markets, United States department of agriculture, and was first assistant postmaster-general, 1905-08. He was chosen chairman of the republican national committee in 1908, and conducted the presidential campaign of that year. He served as postmaster-general under President Taft, 1909-13. Resumed law practice, 1913. Died, 1935.

Hitler, Adolf (born 1889), a political leader, founder of the Fascist movement ("the Brown Shirts") in Germany. Of Austrian birth, Hitler became a naturalized citizen and aspired to the Presidency of the German republic. Organized the National Socialist party ("the Nazis"), the outgrowth of a military organization founded by him in 1919. In 1923 the Hitler volunteers engineered a revolt in Bavaria, for which their leader was sentenced to prison. Released after a few months, he began to build up his powerful Nazi party, the aims of which are not unlike those of the Italian Fascisti. Became Chancellor 1933, acquired tremendous power over army, labor unions, Reichstag, in fact, over all Germany. Suppressed Jews. Reichsfuehrer 1935

Hoar, George Frisbie, American statesman, lawyer, was born in Concord, Mass., 1826. He was graduated from Harvard College, 1846 and afterward from the Dane Law School, Harvard. He practiced law at Worcester, was member of congress, 1869-77, and United States senator from 1877 until his death. He was an able lawyer, a keen debater and a man of scholarly attainments. He left valuable Memoirs containing his observations during his long political career. In the senate he was a steadfast opponent of President McKinley's policy in the Philippines. Died in Worcester, Mass., 1904.

Hobart (hō'bart), Garret Augustus, American legislator and vice-president of the United States. He was educated in Rutgers College, studied law, member of the republican national committee. He was nominated and elected vice-president by the republican party in 1896, and to a greater extent, perhaps, than any of his predecessors made his office one of real influence and power. Died in office, 1899.

Hobbes (hobz), John Oliver, pseudonym of Mrs. Pearl Mary Teresa Craigie (nee Richards), novelist, was born at Boston, Mass., 1867, and died in 1903. She wrote Some Emotions and a Moral; The Sinner's Comedy; A Study in Temptations; The Gods, Some Mortals, and Lord Wickenham; The Herb-moon; The Ambassador, a play; The School for Saints; Robert Orange, etc.

Hobbes, Thomas, English philosopher, was born at Malmesbury, England, 1588. He was graduated at Oxford, and in 1610 went abroad with the earl of Devonshire as his pupil, and made a tour of France and Italy. His first original work, entitled Elementa Philosophica de Cive, was printed in Paris, 1642. After the meeting of the long parliament he went to Paris, because of his dread of the civil troubles. In 1647 he was appointed mathematical tutor to the prince of Wales, afterward Charles II. Then followed his Leviathan, embodying his famous "social compact" theory, and Liberty and Necessity. His last works were a translation of Homer and a history of the civil wars. Died, 1679.

Hobson, Richmond Pearson, congressman, lecturer, was born in Greensboro, Ala., 1870. He was graduated from the United States naval academy, 1889, studied at the Ecole National Superior des Mines and Ecole d'Application du Genie Maritime, Paris. Served on flagship New York in blockade duty, in bombardment of Matazas in expedition against San Juan de Puerto Rico, commanded collier Merrimac and sunk her in Santiago harbor to prevent the exit of the Spanish fleet. As a result was captured and made a prisoner in Spanish fortress, June 3 to July 6, 1898. He was then superintending naval construction of the Crescent shipyard, Elizabeth, N. J., May-June, 1902. He resigned from the United States navy, 1903, and was a member of congress from the sixth Alabama district, 1907-15; organizer, 1921, and general secretary American Alcohol Education Association organized 1923, and president International Narcotic Education Association. Author: A Study of the Situation and Outlook in Europe; The Disappearing Gun Afloat; The Yacht Defender, and the Use of Aluminum in Marine Construction; The Sinking of the Merrimac, etc.

Hodge, Charles, American theologian, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1797. He was graduated at Princeton College in 1815, and in 1822 became a professor in the Princeton Theological Seminary, where he remained until the close of his life. Author: Commentaries on Romans, Corinthians, and Ephesians; History of the Presbyterian Church in America; What is Darwinism? Died, 1878.

Hodges, George, American clergyman and writer, dean of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass., since 1894, was born in Rome, N. Y., 1856. He was graduated from Hamilton, 1877; D.D., Western University of Pennsylvania, 1892; D.C.L., Hobart, 1902. Was ordained priest, 1882. Author: The Episcopal Church; Christianity Between Sundays; Fountains Abbey; The Human Nature of the Saints; Three Hundred Years of the Episcopal Church in America; The Administration of an Institutional Church; The Happy Family; The Pursuit of Happiness; The Year of Grace; Holderness, etc. Died, 1919.

Hodgins (hoj'inz), John George, Canadian educator and writer, librarian and historiographer of the education department of Ontario since 1890, was born in Dublin, 1821. He removed to Canada, 1833, and was educated at Upper Canada academy, Victoria College, Coburg. He was graduated in law at Toronto University, 1860; LL.D., 1870; was admitted to the bar of Ontario, 1870. He was editor of the Upper Canada Journal of Education nearly thirty years; Lovell's General Geography; First Steps in General Geography; School Manual; Lectures on the School Law. Died, 1912.

Hodgins, Thomas, Canadian jurist, judge of the admiralty division of the exchequer court and master-in-ordinary, supreme court, Ontario, was born in Dublin, 1828. He emigrated to Canada, 1848, was graduated from Toronto University, 1856; LL.B., 1858; M.A., 1860; honorary LL.D., 1906; was admitted to the bar, 1858; queen's counsel for Dominion, 1873; member for West Elgin in the Ontario legislature, 1871-78; contested West Toronto, 1878, and West York, 1882, for the Dominion house of commons; declined the county judgeship of York, 1875. Author: Bills of Exchange, Notes and Cheques; British and American Diplomacy Affecting Canada, 1782-1899; etc. Died, 1910.

Hodgkin (hoj'kin), Thomas, English historian, was born at Tottenham, 1831. He was graduated at University College, London, and was a partner in the banking firm of Hodgkin, Barnett and Company, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Since 1874 he devoted his leisure time to historical writing, and retired from business. Author: Italy and Her Invaders; Life of George Fox; Life of Charles the Great, in Foreign Statesmen series; Political History of England, etc. Died, 1913.

Hodzumi, Nobushige, Japanese educator and law writer, professor of law in the Imperial University of Tokyo since 1881, was born in 1855. He was educated at Tokyo University, Middle Temple, London, England, and at Berlin University. He was a member of the house of peers, 1890-92, and with two colleagues drafted the present Japanese civil code. Author: Ancestor Worship and Japanese Law; The New Japanese Civil Codes as Material for the Study of Comparative Jurisprudence; Gonin-gumi, or the System of Mutual Help and Supervision among Five Families, etc.

Hoe, Robert, manufacturer, inventor, was born in New York, 1839. He was educated in the public schools, entered printing press factory of R. Hoe and Company, founded by his grandfather, Robert, and developed the printing press from the "Hoe cylinder" of the 1846 patent to the present double-sextuple Hoe. He was one of the founders of the Metropolitan museum of art. Died, 1909.

Hoeber, Arthur, painter; was born at New York. 1854; educated at the Art Student's League and at Ecole des Beaux Arts, Paris, under Gérôme, 1881-86. First exhibit at Salon, Sur la Grande Route, 1882; last exhibit Salon, Le Pain Quotidien, 1885, and contributor to most American exhibitions. Writer and lecturer on art; art critic New York Times, three years; associate editor of Illustrated America, one year; then art critic The Globe and Commercial Advertiser, New York. Member of American Newspaper Association. Author: Treasures of the Metropolitan Museum of Art; Painting in XIX. Century in France, Belgium, Spain and Italy; art contributor to the New Encyclopædia Britannica; etc. Died, 1915.

Hofer (hō'fer), Andreas, Tyrolese patriot, was born at St. Leonard, 1767. In 1796 he led a body of Tyrolese against the French on the lake of Garda; in 1808 secret deputies, among whom was Hofer, arrived at Vienna, to present to the archduke John the sufferings of the people, and their wish to be reunited to Austria. By the desire of the archduke, Baron von Hormayr sketched for them a plan of insurrection, which met with such success that, in three days, from the 11th to the 13th of April, 1809, nearly the whole country was liberated. Napoleon, however, at once marched three armies to the Tyrol, to subdue the rebellious peasantry. At first Hofer concealed himself in a cave, but when Spechbacher, Joachim Haspinger, a Capuchin, and Peter Mayer, at the head of the armed population, renewed the defense of the Tyrol, and repeatedly defeated the enemy, Hofer issued from his retreat, and took the leadership of the Tyrolese. At the battle fought August 12th on the Iselberg, Lefebyre was driven from the Tyrol. Hofer continued to conduct the civil and military administration until the peace of Vienna. The French and Bavarians poured into the country for the third or fourth time, and after a brief struggle Hofer was obliged to take refuge in concealment. After a lapse of two months he was betrayed into the hands of the French by a priest named Douay, conveyed to Mantua, tried and condemned to be shot. The sentence was carried into execution in 1810.

Hoff (hof), Jakobus Hendrikus van't, Dutch chemist, was born at Rotterdam, 1852. He was appointed professor of chemistry, mineralogy, and geology at Amsterdam, and in 1896 became professor of chemistry in the University of Berlin. He made notable researches in physical chemistry, and is the founder of stereo-chemistry. In 1901 he received the Nobel prize for the most important contribution to chemistry. Died, 1911.

Hoffding (hŭf'deng), Harold, Danish psychologist, philosopher and educator, professor of philosophy, University of Copenhagen, was born in 1843. He graduated from the University of Copenhagen, and received his Ph.D. in 1870; D.Sc., Oxford; LL.D., St. Andrews, Aberdeen. He is a member of the royal Danish society of letters and sciences; Author: Psychology; Ethics; History of Modern Philosophy; Philosophical Problems; Modern Philosophers; The Philosophy of Religion. Died, 1931.

Hoffmann, Ernst Theodor Wilhelm, German writer, composer, critic and caricaturist, was born at Königsberg, 1776. In 1797 he was appointed assessor at Posen; but his love of caricature got him into trouble, and he was degraded to an inferior post. In 1815 he resumed his career in the Prussian service, and from 1816 until his death held a position in the supreme court at Berlin. His shorter tales were mostly published in collections. Died, 1822.

Hofmann, August Wilhelm von, German chemist, was born at Giessen, 1818. He became assistant there to Liebig, and, when the royal college of chemistry was established in London in 1845, Hofmann was made superintendent. In 1865 he went to Berlin as professor of chemistry and, ennobled in 1888.] Died there in 1892.

Hofmann, Josef Casimir, pianist: born, Cracow, Poland, Austria-Hungary, Jan. 20, 1876. Pupil of Rubenstein and of Moszkowski. Composer and concert soloist.

Hogarth (hō'gärth), William, English painter, engraver and pictorial satirist, was born at London, 1697; about 1720 began business for himself, first employed in engraving coats of arms, crests, etc., and designing plates for booksellers. He made the illustrations for Gray's edition of Butler's Hudibras. He secretly married the daughter of Sir James Thornhill in 1729, and in 1730 began the painting of his satires, among them being: Harlot's Progress; A Midnight Modern Conversation; A Rake's Progress; The Distressed Poet; and his master-piece, the famous Marriage a la Mode. He died at London, 1764.

Holbein (hōl'bin), Hans, or Johann, called "the younger," German painter, was born at Grünstadt, 1497. About 1526 he contracted an intimacy with Erasmus, whose portrait he painted, and soon after visited England, where he passed the remainder of his life. Henry VIII. made him court painter. As an engraver he is chiefly known by the celebrated "Dance of Death," a series of fifty-three woodcuts engraved from his own designs, although it is seldom found with more than forty-six. Died, 1543.

Holberg (hol'berg), Ludvig, Baron, creator of modern Danish literature, was born at Bergen in Norway, 1684. His first notable works were satirical poems, among them Peder Paars, in which he ridicules the pedantic stiffness and stupidity of contemporary life and thought. In 1721 the first Danish theater was opened at Copenhagen, and Holberg began to write comedies with marvelous success. After 1724 he turned to history. In 1741 he produced the romance Niels Klim's Subterranean Journey; and lastly the serious reflective works, Moral Thoughts and Epistles and his own Autobiography. Died, 1754.

Holden (hōl-den), Edward Singleton, American astronomer, was born in St. Louis, Mo., 1846. He was graduated at the scientific school in Washington University in 1866, at West Point in 1870, and was appointed second lieutenant of artillery. In 1873 he became professor of mathematics in the United States navy, and was ordered to the naval observatory at Washington, D. C. In 1881 he became professor of astronomy in the University of Wisconsin and director of the Washburn observatory, where he remained with brief intermission until 1885, and published four volumes of observations. He was chosen president of the University of California, 1885-88; director of the Lick observatory on Mt. Hamilton, 1888-98; and librarian of the United States military academy after 1901. Died, 1914.

Holland, Sir Henry, English physician and writer, was born at Knutsford, Cheshire, 1788. He was graduated at Edinburgh, 1811, and in 1815 published Travels in Albania, Thessaly, etc. He settled in London in 1816; became one of the most eminent members of his profession, in 1840 was appointed physician to the prince consort, in 1852 to the queen; and in 1853 was created a baronet. He died in London, 1873.

Holland, Josiah Gilbert, American writer was born at Belchertown, Mass., 1819. He studied medicine and practiced for some three years, and then became superintendent of public schools at Vicksburg, Miss.; was one of the founders of Scribner's Magazine in 1870, and remained editor of it and of its successor, the Century Magazine, until his death. He was a prolific author and all his books were of a high moral tone. Some of the best known of them are Letters to Young People; Bitter-Sweet; Gold Foil; Arthur Bonnicastle; The Story of Seven Oaks. Died at New York, 1881.

Holland, Thomas Erskine, English law writer and educator, professor of international law and diplomacy at Oxford, was born in 1835. He was graduated at Oxford, D.C.L., Oxford; LL.D., Bologna, Glasgow, Dublin. A fellow of the British academy; associate of the Royal academy of Belgium. He was British plenipotentiary at the Geneva conference, 1906; bencher, Lincoln's Inn, 1907. Author: The Elements of Jurisprudence; The Institutes of Justinian; The Admiralty Manual of Naval Prize Law; Studies in International Law; The Laws and Customs of War on Land; Neutral Duties in a Maritime War, etc. Died. 1926.

Holland, William Jacob, educator, naturalist, was born in Jamaica, West Indies, 1848, of American parentage. He was graduated at Amherst, 1869, and Princeton theological seminary, 1874; Ph.D., 1886, Sc.D., 1902, Washington and Jefferson; LL.D., St. Andrews University, 1905. He was chancellor Western University of Pennsylvania, 1891-1901; director of Carnegie institute, Pittsburg, Pa., 1898 to 1922. Regarded as an authority on zoölogy and museum administration. Author: The Butterfly Book; The Moth Book, and of many scientific papers published by the United States government, the zoölogical society of London, etc. Editor of the Annals and Memoirs published by the Carnegie museum.

Holmes, Oliver Wendell, jurist, was born in Boston, Mass., 1841. He was graduated from Harvard, 1861, and from Harvard law school, 1868; LL.D., 1895; Yale, 1886. He served three years in the 20th Massachusetts volunteers; was wounded at Ball's Bluff, 1861, at Antietam, 1862, and at Marye's Hill, Fredericksburg, 1863, and received brevets as major, lieutenant-colonel, and colonel. After the war he engaged in practice at Boston, and was editor of the American Law Review, 1870-73; was professor of law, Harvard law school, 1882; associate justice, 1882-99; chief-justice, 1899-1902, supreme judicial court of Massachusetts; associate justice of supreme court of United States since December, 1902. Author: The Common Law, lectures at Lowell institute, Speeches, etc. Edited Kent's Commentaries. Died 1935.

Holmes, Oliver Wendell, American physician and poet, was born in Cambridge, Mass., 1809. He was graduated at Harvard in 1829, studied law for a period, but subsequently devoted himself to medicine, and, after attendance in the hospitals of Europe for several years, received his degree in medicine in 1836. In 1838 he became professor of anatomy and physiology in the Dartmouth College, and in 1847 was appointed to the same chair at Harvard. He gained some reputation as an anatomist, and was, besides, an able microscopist and a skillful auscultator; but his widest fame is as a poet, a wit, and a man of letters. His wit and humor are transcendent, and all his literary efforts of rare originality and excellence. He was also a fascinating and instructive lecturer, while his admirable social qualities endeared him to the large and intellectual circle he so adorned. The first collection of his poems appeared in 1836 and attracted marked attention. Then followed his Phi Beta Kappa poems, Poetry; Terpsichore; Urania; and Astræa, all of which added to his reputation. In 1857 he contributed his Autocrat of the Breakfast Table, a connected series of prose essays, to the Atlantic Monthly, which was followed by The Professor at the Breakfast Table; The Poet at the Breakfast Table; and Over the Teacups. This brilliant series, which was in his happiest vein, was interspersed with poems, and was fraught with humor, pathos, practical wisdom and a healthy sentiment grateful and refreshing. His other works include Currents and Counter-Currents in Medical Science; Elsie Venner, a romance; Songs in Many Keys; Soundings From the Atlantic; The Guardian Angel; and Mechanism in Thought and Morals. Died, 1894.

Holmes, William Henry, American anthropologist, archæologist, was born in Harrison county, Ohio, 1846. He was graduated at McNeely Normal College, 1870; curator department aboriginal pottery, United States national museum, 1882-93; archæologist United States bureau ethnology, in charge of explorations, 1889-98; curator anthropology, Field Columbian museum and professor anthropic geology, University of Chicago, 1894-97; head curator department anthropology, 1898-1902; chief bureau American ethnology since 1902; curator prehistoric archæology, 1903, and national gallery of art, 1907, United States national museum. Member of numerous scientific societies, foreign and domestic. Author: Archæological Studies Among the Cities of Mexico; Stone Implements of the Potomac-Chesapeake Tidewater Province, etc.

Holmested, George Smith, Canadian lawyer and legal writer, was born in England 1841; educated in English private schools, studied law in Canada, and was admitted to the bar in 1864; registrar in Chancery, 1881, and following; senior registrar of the High Court of Justice of Ontario. Kings Counsel, 1902. Author: annotated editions of the Ontario Mechanics' Lien Act; Workmen's Compensation Act; Ontario Judicature Act; Imperial Statutes Relating to Property and Civil Rights, etc. Died, 1928.

Holst (hōlst), Hermann Eduard von, German-American historian, was born in Fellin, Livonia, Russia, 1841. He came to the United States in 1867, engaged in literary work and lectured for several years, returned to Europe, and became professor in the University of Strassburg, 1872, and at Freiburg, 1874. He was appointed professor of history in the University of Chicago, 1892, which post he retained until 1900, when he returned to Freiburg and retired. Died, 1904.

Holyoake (hōl'yōk; hōl'i-ōk), George Jacob, English reformer, founder of "secularism," was born at Birmingham, 1817. He taught mathematics for several years; was secretary to Garibaldi's British contingent, edited the Reasoner and promoted the bill leagalizing secular affirmations. Holyoake was the last person imprisoned in England on a charge of atheism. He wrote The Rochdale Pioneers; Self-help a Hundred Years Ago; Trial of Theism; Sixty Years of an Agitator's Life, etc. Died, 1906.

Homer, was the greatest poet of Greece and of the ancient world; he lived about the ninth century B. C., and was an Asiatic Greek. Seven cities disputed for the honor of being his birthplace; he was blind and poor and went about reciting his verses for bread; the Iliad and the Odyssey were his works; such are the main items of the almost universal and unquestioned belief respecting Homer in the ancient world. To sum up all doubts and denial on the matter in one word—no one knows even so much as the fact of the existence of the great poet.

The Iliad and the Odyssey are facts beyond doubt; their high antiquity, their immense importance as sources not only of later poetic inspiration, but even of the popular religious faith of the Greeks, and their incalculable influence on all subsequent literature, are also unquestionable. It is, however, established by recent criticism that the Iliad is not one poem; but that this work, in common with the Odyssey, is made up of a series of antecedent lays of heroic and mythological character, bearing on one subject, and skillfully welded together, perhaps in great measure re-written, by the unknown person who gave these works to the world.

The origin of these remarkable poems has been critically studied by many learned authors within recent time, whose conclusions generally agree with the statements given above.

Among the numerous English or American translations of Homer we must name the earliest and very spirited version by Chapman, afterward republished; those by Pope in heroic verse, and by Cowper in blank verse and, more recently, the Iliad in blank verse by the Earl of Derby, and in the same meter by Wright; the Odyssey in blank verse, by Musgrave; the excellent translation of the Iliad in blank verse by W. C. Bryant, published in 1870, and which is still generally considered the best. The Odyssey has been translated by Worsley, Morris and Butcher and Lang.

References.—Lang's Homer and the Epic; Jebb's Introduction to Homer; Leaf's Companion to the Iliad; Gladstone's Studies on Homer; Autenrieth's Homeric Dictionary; and Ridgeway's Early Age of Greece.

Homer, Louise, an American contralto, was the daughter of a Pittsburg clergyman. Her musical education began in Philadelphia with Alice Groff and W. L. Whitney. After two years of devoted study in Paris she accomplished wonders for her voice, and in 1898 made her debut as Leona in Favorita. An immediate engagement at Covent Garden, London, followed. In 1899 she was secured by the Theatre de la Monnie, in Brusssel, where she remained two years. The next year she returned to Covent Garden, and achieved an old-world triumph.

Homer, Sidney, American composer, was born in Boston, December 9, 1864. He studied in this country with George W. Chadwick, then in Germany. His chief music is of interpretative nature for the works of noted poets: Thy Voice Is Heard (Tennyson), Requiem, and Sing Me a Song of a Lad That Is Gone (Stevenson's Underwoods), The Leaf (Oliver Wendell Holmes), and a number of ballad songs. Louise Dilworth Beatty, the wife of Sidney Homer, is a noted soprano.

Homer, Winslow, American artist, was born at Boston, 1836. While young he worked at lithography in Boston, and in 1859 went to New York and became a student of art at the academy of design. He pursued his studies in Paris and won recognition as an artist of originality. Among his pictures are Prisoners From the Front; Snap the Whip and the marine paintings: Northeaster; Stormbeater; The Maine Coast, his masterpiece; and Wood's Island by Moonlight. Died in 1910.

Honorius (hō-nō'ri-us), Flavius, emperor of the West, was born at Constantinople, 384 A. D. He was the second son of Theodosius the Great, at whose death the empire was divided between his sons Arcadius and Honorius. The latter, when only ten years old, received the western half. Stilicho was the de facto ruler of the western empire until 408; and after his death Alaric the Goth overran Italy, and took Rome in 410. Honorius died at Ravenna, which he had made his capital, in 423.

Hood, John Bell, American general, was born in Kentucky, 1831. He was graduated from the United States military academy in 1853, and appointed lieutenant of infantry in the same year. He was actively engaged on frontier duty until 1861, when he entered the confederate army, where he served in every position from first lieutenant to that of division commander, with the rank of lieutenant-general. He took a conspicuous part in the Virginia peninsular campaign, at the second battle of Bull Run, Antietam, Gettysburg and Chickamauga, where he lost a leg, and in 1864 succeeded Johnston in command of the army, resisting Sherman's invasion of Georgia. He died in 1879.

Hood, Samuel, Viscount, English admiral, was born at Thorncombe, Dorset, 1724. He entered the British navy in 1741, and became post-captain in 1756. In 1778 he was made commissioner of the Portsmouth dockyard. In 1780, promoted to flag rank, he was sent to reinforce Rodney on the North American and West Indian stations. In the West Indies in 1782 he showed himself a masterly tactician in the series of maneuvres by which he outwitted De Grasse off St. Kitts; and he had a conspicuous share in the decisive victory of Dominica. For his services he was made Baron Hood in the Irish peerage; and in 1788 became a lord of the admiralty. In 1793, appointed to the Mediterranean, he directed the occupation of Toulon and the operations in the gulf of Lyons. In 1796 he was made Viscount Hood, and died at Bath, 1816.

Hood, Thomas, English poet and humorist, was born in London, 1798. In 1821 he was offered the post of sub-editor of the London Magazine, at once entered upon its duties and acquired an extensive literary acquaintance. He published Whims and Oddities in 1826, of which a second and third series appeared during the following two years. In 1829 he commenced The Comic Annual, and continued it for nine years. In 1831 he wrote his novel of Tylney Hall. In 1838 he commenced the publication of Hood's Own, to which his portrait was attached. In 1844 he started Hood's Magazine, and contributed to its pages until within a month of his death. His Song of the Shirt and Bridge of Sighs are among the most perfect poems of their kind in the English language. He died in 1845.

Hooke, Robert, English natural philosopher, was born at Freshwater, Isle of Wight, 1635. He was educated at Westminster and Christ Church, Oxford. He has justly been considered one of the greatest philosophical mechanics. His theory of gravitation subsequently formed part of Newton's; he anticipated the invention of the steam-engine. His other discoveries were the law of the extension and compression of elastic bodies, the simplest theory of the arch, the balance-spring of watches and the anchor-escapement clocks. The quadrant, telescope and microscope are also materially indebted to him. He died in 1703.

Hooker, Joseph, American general, was born in Hadley, Mass., 1814. He was graduated at West Point in 1837, and fought in the Florida and Mexican wars, being three times promoted for gallant conduct. In 1853 he resigned, and became a farmer in California. When the Civil War began he entered the army again and soon became a major-general. He fought under McClellan on the march to Richmond, and afterward in northern Virginia and Maryland, receiving a wound at the battle of Antietam. His bravery in action brought him the nickname "Fighting Joe Hooker." In January, 1863, he was made commander of the army of the Potomac, and in May he fought the bloody battle of Chancellorsville. Owing to a difference between Hooker and his commander-in-chief, General Halleck, the former resigned his command, June 27, 1863, but he still served as a major-general, and fought under Sherman at Atlanta. After the war he commanded in different departments, and in 1868 retired from the army. He died at Garden City, N. Y., 1879.

Hooker, Sir Joseph Dalton, British botanist, was born at Glasgow in 1817. He graduated as an M.D., but always devoted his attention to botany. In 1871 he made an expedition to Morocco, ascended the Great Atlas, the summit of which had never before been reached by a European, and secured a valuable collection of plants. He was appointed assistant-director at Kew gardens in 1855, and, on the death of his father in 1865, succeeded him as director, retiring in 1885. He was president of the British Association in 1868, and was elected president of the Royal Society in 1873. His great work, which he undertook in conjunction with George Bentham, is the Genera Plantarum, the first part of which appeared in 1862; and the first part of the second volume, bringing down the work to the Compositae, was published in 1873. Died, 1911.

Hooker, Richard, English theologian and writer, was born in Exeter, England, 1554. He was graduated from Oxford, 1574, was a fellow of Corpus Christi College, Oxford, and deputy professor of Hebrew. The archbishop of York promoted him to the mastership of the Temple in London, 1585. The morning and afternoon services belonged respectively to him and to Walter Travers, the one inclining to the Arminian view and maintaining the Anglican form of worship, the other maintaining Calvinistic opinions and inclining to the Presbyterian form. A controversy arose, which was the occasion of Hooker's great work on Ecclesiastical Polity. Died, 1600.

Hooker, Thomas, English clergyman and American colonist, was born at Markfield, Leicester, about 1586. He became a fellow of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and was for three years a Puritan lecturer at Chelmsford. In 1630 he retired to Holland; in 1633 sailed for Massachusetts, and received a charge at Cambridge. In 1636 he removed with his congregation to Connecticut, and founded Hartford. Died, 1647.

Hoover, Herbert Clark, engineer, U. S. and World's Food Commissioner, was born at West Branch, Iowa, 1874. Graduated from Stanford University, 1895. Practiced mining engineering in the United States and the Far East and in London. Helped defend Tientsin during the Boxer uprising. During World War in charge of American relief in London and in Belgium. U. S. food administrator, 1917-18, and after armistice extended services to destitute European peoples. Secretary of Commerce, 1921-28. Prominent in radio broadcasting regulation, also in flood relief. President of United States, 1929-1933.

Hopkins, Mark, American educator, was born in Massachusetts, 1802. He was graduated at Williams College in 1824, and received the degree of M.D. in 1828; was professor of moral philosophy and rhetoric in Williams College from 1830 until his death in 1887; was president of the college, 1836-72; in 1857 became president of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions.

Hopkinson, Francis, American politician and author, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1737. He was a delegate to the continental congress from New Jersey, and was one of the signers of the declaration of independence. He wrote The Battle of the Kegs; A Pretty Story; The Political Catechism, and other works in prose and verse. His son, Joseph, judge of the United States district court, wrote Hail Columbia. Died, 1791.

Hopper, De Wolf, comedian, was born in New York, 1858. He made his first professional appearance in Our Boys, 1878; later with Daniel Frohman's Madison square company as Pittacus Green in Hazel Kirke and other rôles; studied vocal music and joined the McCaull opera company. For several years he starred in comedy rôles at the head of his own company; later with Weber and Fields company; then again starred at the head of his own company, playing Mr. Pickwick. He became famous. Died, 1935.

Horace, Quintus Horatius Flaccus, famous Roman poet, was born near Venusia, Italy, 65 B. C. Athens was at this time regarded as the university of the world, and thither Horace repaired in his nineteenth year to complete his education by a course of philosophy and science under Greek masters. But the civil wars which followed the death of Julius Cæsar, in 44 B. C., interrupted him in his studies. The arrival of Brutus at Athens roused the patriotic feelings of the youthful Romans, and along with others Horace ardently embraced the cause of the republic. Though entirely inexperienced in war, he was promoted to the rank of military tribune, with the command of a legion, and in this character shared in the defeat at Philippi, 42 B. C. After the battle he returned to Rome, and by acting as clerk in the quæstor's office he contrived to live until he found means of making himself known to the poets Varius and Vergil, by whom his name was first mentioned to Mæcenas. The friend of the prime minister found easy access to the emperor; Horace was soon on terms of familiarity with Augustus, and enjoyed his friendship and patronage during the remainder of his life. But the friendship of Mæcenas, who gave him an estate in the Savine territory, about thirty-four miles from Rome, made him independent for life. His works consist of two books of Satires, a book of Epodes, four books of Odes, two books of Epistles, and a treatise on the Art of Poetry. Died, 8 B. C.

Hornaday (hôr'nā-dā), William Temple, American naturalist, director of the New York zoölogical park since 1896, was born in Plainfield, Ind., 1854. He was educated at Iowa Agricultural College; studied zoölogy and museology. Chief taxidermist, U. S. National Museum, 1882-90. Director N. Y. Zoölogical Park, 1896-1926. Author Two Years in the Jungle; The Extermination of the American Bison; The American Natural History; Camp-Fires in Canadian Rockies, etc.

Hornblower, William Butler, American lawyer, was born in Paterson, N. J., 1851. He was graduated at Princeton University, 1871; LL.B., Columbia Law School, 1875; LL.D., Princeton, 1895, and was a member of the firm of Hornblower, Miller and Potter of New York; was appointed, 1893, by President Cleveland, associate justice of the United States supreme court, but was not confirmed by senate, owing to opposition by New York senators, for political reasons. He was a member of the board of commissioners of statutory consolidation which engaged in examining and consolidating all general statutes of New York from 1777. Died, 1914.

Horsford (hôrs'fẽrd), Eben Norton, American chemist, was born in Livingston county, N. Y., 1818. He studied engineering and was engaged on the geological survey of the state of New York. He studied in Germany, under Liebig, and, on his return to the United States in 1847, was elected Rumford professor of science at Harvard. After sixteen years' service there he resigned to engage in chemical manufactures. He wrote extensively on scientific subjects. Died, 1893.

Hoskin, John, Canadian lawyer, chairman of the board of governors of the University of Toronto, was born at Holsworthy, Devon, England, 1836. He was educated in London; went to Canada, 1854, and was admitted to the bar, 1863. He was made a queen's counsel in 1873; and was a member of the dominion senate for Toronto University; hon. LL.D., 1889; D.C.L., Trinity University. He was head of the firm of M'Carthy Osler, Hoskins and Harcourt; and director of many corporations.

Hosmer (hoz'mẽr), Harriet, American sculptor, was born in Watertown, Mass., 1830. She early showed a talent for sculpture by modeling figures in clay. To prepare herself for her chosen career she studied anatomy, first with her father, and afterward at the medical school at St. Louis. Returning to her home in 1851, she modeled her first work, Hesper, which had so decided a success that she was sent to Rome, where she became the pupil of Gibson. Her most ambitious work is a colossal statue of Zenobia in Chains. She devised a method for converting Italian limestone into marble. Died, 1908.

Hosmer, James Kendall, 1834-1927, American author, librarian of Minneapolis public library, 1892-1904, was born at Northfield, Mass. He was graduated at Harvard, 1855; Ph.D., University of Missouri; LL.D., Washington University. Served in Civil War as private in 52d Massachusetts volunteers; after the war was professor in Antioch College, in University of Missouri, and professor of English and German literature, Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., 1874-92. Author: Color Guard; Short History of German Literature; Story of the Jews; Life of Samuel Adams, in American Statesmen series; History of the Louisiana Purchase; History of the Civil War in America, etc.

Houdini, Harry (1874-1926), magician, was the son of a Wisconsin minister. He began trapeze performing at the age of eight, and made several tours of the world, appearing before many rulers and eminent people. In 1910 he made the first successful airplane flight in Australia. Was actively engaged in motion pictures of a most sensational and thrilling variety. Author: The Right Way To Do Wrong, Handcuff Secrets. Died, 1926.

Hough (huf), Emerson, American author, was born at Newton, Ia., 1857. He was graduated at the State University of Iowa, 1880. He traveled over the wildest portions of the West; explored Yellowstone park during the winter of 1895, and the act of congress protecting the park buffalo was due to this trip. He was for ten years writer of Chicago and The West department and western manager, beginning 1889, of Forest and Stream, New York. Author: The Singing Mouse Stories; The Story of the Cowboy; The Law of the Land; Heart's Desire; The Story of the Outlaw; etc. Died, 1923.

Houston, David Franklin, secretary of agriculture, educator, was born in Union county, N. C., Feb. 17, 1866. He was graduated from South Carolina College, 1887, and received the degree A.M. from Harvard, 1892; LL.D., Tulane, and University of Wisconsin. After his course at Harvard, he was professor of political science at the University of Texas, 1894-1902; president of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, 1902-05; president of the University of Texas, 1905-08; and chancellor, Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., 1908-13. Secretary of Agriculture and later Secretary of the Treasury in the Wilson Cabinet. He married Helen Beall, of Austin, Texas.

Houston (hū'stun), Edwin James, American electric engineer, was born at Alexandria, Va., 1844; emeritus professor of physical geography and natural philosophy, Central high school, Philadelphia, and of physics in Franklin institute, Philadelphia; for two terms president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and received the degree Ph.D. from Princeton University. Author: Outlines of Natural Philosophy; The Electric Transmission of Intelligence; Alternating Currents; Electric Railways; Electro-Dynamic Machinery; Telegraphy; Telephony; Electricity in Every Day Life, etc. Died, 1914.

Houston, Sam, American soldier, was born in Virginia, 1793. He enlisted in the war of 1812, was chosen ensign, and fought under Jackson with a courage that won his lasting friendship. In 1823 he became a member of congress, and in 1827 governor of Tennessee. In 1829 he married the daughter of ex-Governor Allen and in the following April, for reasons never made public, abandoned wife, country and civilization; was adopted as a son by the chief of the Cherokee nation and was formally admitted as a chief. In 1832 he went to Washington and procured the removal of several United States Indian agents on charges of fraud. The Texan war offered a new field to his ambition, and he was made commander-in-chief; fought the remarkable and decisive battle of San Jacinto, 1836; at one blow annihilated the Mexican army and achieved the independence of Texas. The "hero of San Jacinto" was elected first president of Texas, and reëlected in 1841, and on the annexation of Texas to the United States in 1845 was sent to the United States senate, where he remained until 1859, when he was elected governor of Texas. He opposed secession, but retired to private life when he found that opposition was fruitless. Died, 1863.

Howard, John, noted English philanthropist, was born at Enfield, near London, 1726. Appointed high sheriff of Bedford in 1773, his attention was called to the state of the prisons of the country. His sympathies once aroused, he extended his inquiries over the whole kingdom, bringing to light an amount of misery and degradation of which hitherto his countrymen had had no conception. In 1774 he was examined before a committee of the house of commons, and many reforms were the result. In 1777 after a tour through England, he published a volume entitled, The State of the Prisons in England and Wales, With Preliminary Observations, and an Account of Some Foreign Prisons. Died, 1790.

Howard, Leland Osslan, American entomologist, chief of bureau entomology, United States department of agriculture, since 1894, was born at Rockford, Ill., 1857. He was graduated at Cornell, 1877; Ph.D., Georgetown University, 1896; was assistant entomologist, United States department of agriculture, 1878-94. He was for some years editor of Insect Life, a journal of the department of agriculture; prepared definitions in entomology for Century and Standard dictionaries; is lecturer on insects at Swarthmore College, and in the graduate school Georgetown University. Author: Mosquitoes—How They Live, Etc.; The Insect Book, and many government publications.

Howard, Oliver Otis, American soldier, was born at Leeds, Me., 1830. He was graduated at Bowdoin College, 1850; at West Point, 1854; LL.D., Waterville College, 1865; Shurtleff College, 1865; Gettysburg Theological Seminary, 1866, and Bowdoin College. He served in the Civil War; lost an arm at the battle of Fair Oaks, 1862; was made major-general of volunteers, 1862; accompanied Sherman on his march to the sea. At the close of the Civil War he was placed at the head of the freedmen's bureau. From 1869-73 he was president of Howard University; became brigadier-general in the United States army, 1864; brevet major-general, 1865; superintendent of West Point military academy, 1881-82; commanded the department of the East, 1888. Founder, 1895, and president board of directors, Lincoln Memorial University, Cumberland Gap, Tenn.; chevalier legion of honor, France, 1884, commander's medal, legion of honor. 1904. Author: Donald's School Days; Nez Perces Joseph; Our Wild Indians; and Autobiography, 2 vols. Died, 1909.

Howe, Elias, inventor of the lock-stitch sewing-machine, was born at Spencer, Mass., 1819. He worked at Lowell and Boston as a mechanic. At the latter place he developed, constructed and patented the sewing-machine, 1846. By his royalties he in time obtained $200,000 per annum, and amassed a fortune of $2,000,000. During the Civil War he served as a private. Died, 1867.

Howe, Julia Ward, American author, was born in New York, 1819, daughter of Samuel Ward. She received a private education, and married in 1843 the eminent philanthropist, Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe. With him, she conducted the Boston Commonwealth, an anti-slavery paper, prior to the Civil War. After the slavery question was settled she became active in woman suffrage, prison reform, cause of peace, etc. She was a Unitarian preacher, lecturer and writer. Her Battle Hymn of the Republic is widely known. Author: Passion Flowers; Words for the Hour; Life of Margaret Fuller; Modern Society; Is Polite Society Polite? Sketches of Representative Women of New England, etc. Died, 1910.

Howe, Richard Earl, British admiral, was born in 1726. He was with Admiral Vernon in 1745, and took part in the siege of Fort William. He was commodore of the squadron which sailed in 1758 for St. Malo. In the same year he took Cherbourg. In 1578 he succeeded to the Irish title of viscount. He took part in the defeat of the fleet under the Marquis de Conflans, and captured the Hero. In 1756 he commanded a fleet on the American coast, and in 1778 defended the American coast against a superior naval force under D'Estaing. He received an English earldom in 1788. When war with France broke out in 1793 he took the command of the channel fleet, and next year gained a signal victory off Ushant. George III. visited him on board the Queen Charlotte, gave him a sword and made him knight of the Garter. Died, 1799.

Howe, Samuel Gridley, American philanthropist, was born in Boston, 1801. He was graduated from Brown University, 1821, and from Harvard Medical College, 1824. In 1831 he went to Paris to study the methods of educating the blind, and becoming involved in the Polish insurrection, spent five weeks in a Prussian prison. On his return to Boston he established schools for the blind and for idiots, and was the teacher of the famous Laura Bridgman. He was chairman of the Massachusetts state board of charities, 1865-74. Died, 1876.

Howe, Sir William, English general, was born in 1729. He served at Quebec under Wolfe and succeeded General Gage in command of the royal troops during the American revolution. In 1775 he was made commander-in-chief of the English army in North America; had command at the battles of Bunker Hill, Long Island, White Plains and Brandywine. He was superseded by Sir Henry Clinton in 1778, as he had failed to crush the rebellion. Died, 1814.

Howe, William Wirt, American jurist and law writer, was born at Canandaigua, N. Y., 1833; received an academic education, studied law and was admitted to the bar. He served in the Union army, 1861-65, becoming major. He was associate justice supreme court of Louisiana; president American bar association, 1898. Trustee Carnegie Institution, Washington; professor of Roman and civil law, George Washington and Tulane Universities, and United States district attorney of Louisiana, 1900-08. Author: Municipal History of New Orleans; Studies in the Civil Law; Comparative Jurisprudence, etc. Died, 1909.

Howell, William Henry, American physician and educator, dean of Johns Hopkins medical school since 1899, was born at Baltimore, Md., 1860. He was graduated at Johns Hopkins, 1881; Ph.D. 1884; M.D., University of Michigan, 1890; LL.D., Trinity 1901; was associate professor of physiology, Johns Hopkins University, 1888-89; professor of physiology and histology, University of Michigan, 1889-92; associate professor of physiology, Harvard University, 1892-93, and professor of physiology, Johns Hopkins University, 1893. Contributed widely to both American and foreign medical literature; is author of Text-Book of Physiology, etc.

Howells, William Dean, American novelist, was born at Martin's Ferry, Ohio, 1837. His early education was largely gained in newspaper offices, though he was given the degree A.M. by Harvard, 1877; Litt.D., Yale, 1901; Oxford, 1904; Columbia, 1905; LL.D., Adelbert College, 1904. He was United States consul to Venice, 1861-65; was editorial writer on New York Nation, 1865-66; editor, 1872-81, Atlantic Monthly; editorial contributor to Harper's Magazine, 1886-91; was writer of Editor's Easy Chair for Harper's. Author: Life of Abraham Lincoln; A Chance Acquaintance; A Foregone Conclusion; Dr. Breen's Practice; A Modern Instance; A Woman's Reason; April Hopes; A Hazard of New Fortunes; The Shadow of a Dream; The Quality of Mercy; The Day of Their Wedding; Their Silver Wedding Journey; Literary Friends and Acquaintances; Between the Dark and the Daylight, etc. Died, 1920.

Howlson (how'i-sun), George Holmes, American educator and writer, Mills professor of philosophy, University of California, beginning 1884, was born in Montgomery county, Md., 1834. He was graduated at Marietta College, 1852; Lane theological seminary, 1855; LL.D., 1883; professor of logic and philosophy of science, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1871-79; lecturer on ethics, Harvard, 1879-80; lecturer on philosophy, University of Michigan, 1883-84. Author: Treatise on Analytic Geometry; Limits of Evolution and Other Essays in Philosophy. Co-editor: Psychological Review, etc. Died in 1916.

Howitt (how'it), William and Mary, English authors, may properly be treated together. William Howitt was born in 1792, at Heanor, in Derbyshire. In 1823 he married Miss Mary Botham, a lady of literary acquirements, born 1799, and whose family, like his own, was attached to the principles of Quakerism. For three or four years they employed themselves in contributions to annuals and magazines, and in 1827 a selection from these fugitive pieces appeared under the title of The Desolation of Eyam. In 1837 they removed to Esher, in Surrey, and at that place William wrote Rural Life in England; Colonization and Christianity; Boy's Country Book, and Visits to Remarkable Places, first series. Mary at the same time employed herself in writing Tales for Children, many of which are popular. William died in 1879; Mary died in 1888.

Hoxie, Vinnie Ream, sculptor, was born in Madison, Wis., 1847. After modeling one year she received a commission from congress, in 1862, to execute a life-size statue of Abraham Lincoln. He sat for his bust at the White House, and his statue is now in the rotunda of the capitol. Later congress commissioned her to make the heroic statue of Admiral Farragut, which now stands in Farragut square, Washington. These are the only two statues ever ordered by the United States government from a woman. Married Colonel Hoxie, 1878. Died, 1914.

Hoyles, Newman Wright, Canadian lawyer and educator, principal of law school, Osgoode hall, Toronto, since 1894, was born at St. John's, Newfoundland, 1844. He was graduated from Trinity College, Cambridge, England, admitted to Ontario bar, 1872; queen's counsel, 1889. President of the corporation and chairman of the council of Wycliffe College, Toronto; member of the senate of the University of Toronto. Wrote numerous articles in legal magazines; prominent in the auxiliary work of the church of England.

Hubbard, Elbert, author, journalist, lecturer, was born in Bloomington, Ill., 1859, and received a common school education; hon. M.A., Tufts College. He was editor of The Philistine, and proprietor of The Roycroft Shop, devoted to making de luxe editions of the classics. Author: Little Journeys to the Homes of American Authors; Little Journeys to the Homes of Famous Women; Old John Burroughs; Contemplations; Consecrated Lives; The Man of Sorrows, etc. Lost at sea, 1915.

Huc (ūk; hūk), Evariste Regis, Roman Catholic missionary, was born at Toulouse, 1813. In 1839 he joined the mission of the Lazarist fathers to China. Huc's health having broken down, he returned to France in 1852. He wrote Souvenirs of his great journey; L'Empire Chinois; Le Christianisme en Chine, etc. Died, 1860.

Hudson, Henry, English navigator, of whose early life nothing is known. In 1607 he sailed in search of a short route to China and India by way of the northern ocean, but was stopped by the ice off the coast of Greenland and forced to return. In 1609; while in the service of the Dutch East India company, he discovered the Hudson river, and sailed up to where Albany now stands. On a fourth voyage, 1610, he discovered Hudson strait and bay, which are also named after him. Impeded by ice, he determined to spend the winter on the shores of the bay. Here he and his men suffered terribly from want of food and started to return in 1611. The men mutinied on the return voyage, got possession of the ship, put Hudson, his son John, and seven sailors into an open boat and turned them adrift. Nothing was ever known of their fate.

Hufeland (hōō'fē-lānt), Christoph Wilhelm, noted German physician, was born at Langensalza, in Thuringia, 1762. His Makrobiotik, or the art of prolonging life, has been translated into almost all the European languages; he also wrote a work on the physical education of the young, and an Enchiridion Medicum. Died, 1836.

Huggins (hug'inz), Sir William, English astronomer and spectroscopist, was born in London, 1824. Having in 1856 built an observatory near London, he began the study of the physical constitution of stars, planets, comets and nebulæ. He determined the amount of heat that reaches the earth from some of the fixed stars. He became a fellow of the royal society, 1865, and president of the royal society, 1900. Was president of the British and other associations, and received the order of merit in 1902. Died, 1910.

Hugh Capet (hū kā'pet), founder of the third, or Capetian dynasty of French monarchs, was born 939 and was king of France, 987-996. As count of Paris, on the death of Louis V., last of the Carlovingians, he usurped the throne and was confirmed in its possession by a confederacy of nobles. The race of Capet has given 118 sovereigns to Europe:—thirty-six kings to France, twenty-two to Portugal, five to Spain, eleven to Naples and Sicily, three to Hungary, and three to Navarre; three emperors to the East; seventeen dukes to Burgundy, thirteen to Brittany, two to Lorraine, and four to Parma. Died, 996.

Hughes, Charles Evans, jurist, was born in Glens Falls, N. Y., 1862. He was graduated from Brown University, 1881, LL.B., Columbia Law School, 1884; LL.D., Brown, 1906; admitted to New York bar, 1884; practiced in New York, 1884-91; prize fellow Columbia Law School, 1884-87. Professor of law Cornell University, 1891-93; active practice in New York, 1893-1906; Attorney for Armstrong Insurance Investigating Commission; associate justice United States supreme court, 1910. Resigned 1916 to accept republican nomination for president of the United States. He was defeated by a narrow margin by Woodrow Wilson. Returned to New York to take up practice of law, 1916. Secretary of State in Harding and Coolidge cabinets Appointed chief justice of the United States supreme court in January, 1930, after resignation of W. H. Taft.

Hughes, Rupert, author, was born at Lancaster, Mo., 1872; graduate of Western Reserve University, 1892; M.A., Yale, 1899. Was assistant editor Godey's Magazine, Current Literature and The Criterion. Author: American Composers; The Musical Guide; The Whirlwind; Love Affairs of Great Musicians; Songs by Thirty Americans; Colonel Crockett's Coöperative Christmas; etc., and numerous plays.

Hughes, Thomas, English author, was born at Uffington, Berks, 1823. He was educated at Rugby under the celebrated Dr. Arnold; entered Oriel College, Oxford, 1841; took his degree of B.A. in 1845. In 1856 he gave to the world Tom Brown's School Days. It was followed in 1858 by The Scouring of the White Horse, in 1861 by Tom Brown at Oxford, and in 1869 by Alfred the Great. He gained the confidence and goodwill of the working classes by endeavoring to promote a better understanding between masters and men, and by teaching the latter the value of coöperation as a means of social elevation. Died at Brighton, England, 1896.

Hugo, Victor Marie, Vicomte, distinguished French poet, politician, and man of letters was born at Besancon, 1802. He received a classical education in a religious house, and, in 1822, brought out the first volume of his Odes and Ballads; and his tales Hans of Iceland, and Bug Jargal, were also written about this time. In 1826 he published a second volume of the Odes and Ballads, which exhibited a change in his political and literary opinions, and, in 1827, he composed his drama Cromwell. In 1829 he published his Last Days of a Condemned Criminal, a work which, owing to its fearful interest, gained an immense success.

Hugo now prepared a further attack on the classical style of French dramatic literature in his Hernani, first played at the Théatre Français in 1830, when it caused a scene of riotous confusion. The French academy went so far as to complain to the king against Hugo's attempted innovations. Charles X. sensibly replied, that "in matters of art he was no more than a private person."

Shortly after the revolution of July, 1830, his Marion Delorme, which had been suppressed under the restoration, was performed with success. Le Roi's Amuse was also performed at the Théatre Francais in 1832, but interdicted by the government the day after. His lyrical poems, Les Orientales, published in 1828, and Les Feuilles d' Automne, which appeared in 1832, were received with enthusiasm. Hugo, who published afterward a number of dramatic pieces of various merit, was, after much opposition, admitted into the academy in 1841, and was created a peer of France by Louis Philippe. In 1849 he was chosen president of the peace congress, of which he had been a leading member.

On the coup d' etat of December 2, 1851, Hugo, then a member of the legislative assembly, was among those deputies who vainly attempted to assert the rights of the assembly and to propose the constitution. His conduct led to his proscription. He took refuge in the island of Jersey, and subsequently in that of Guernsey, having steadfastly refused to avail himself of the general amnesties issued in 1859 and in 1869.

He wrote much after he had left France. His very trenchant satire, Napolion le Petit (Napoleon the Little), appeared at Brussels in 1852, and was rigorously suppressed in France, into which country it had been smuggled. Les Châtiments was brought out in 1852 also in Brussels; and in 1856 he published, under the title Les Contemplations, a collection of lyrical and personal poems which are among his best performances. Hugo's admirable romance Notre-Dame de Paris has been translated into most European languages, and is known in English under the title of the Hunchback of Notre-Dame. His social romance, Les Miserables, appeared in 1862.

On the fall of the empire in 1870 he returned to France, was elected to the national assembly, but soon resigned and repaired to Brussels, whence he was expelled by the government on account of the violence of his political writings and his sympathy with the communists. Returning to Paris, he was (1876) elected a senator for six years. Of his later works may be mentioned The Man Who Laughs, The History of a Crime, and Les Quatre Vents de L'Esprit, a volume containing some of his most charming lyrics. Died in Paris, 1885, and was buried in the Pantheon.

References.—Swinburne's A Study of Victor Hugo; Renouvier's Victor Hugo, the Poet; Marzial's Life of Victor Hugo; King's French Political Leaders; Barbou's Victor Hugo and His Time.

Hull, Isaac, American naval officer, was born in Derby, Conn., 1773. In 1812 he commanded the frigate Constitution, which was pursued by a British squadron for three days, but escaped by skillful sailing. While cruising in the gulf of St. Lawrence he met the British frigate Guerēiere, which after a bloody fight of half an hour, surrendered, August 19, 1812. This was the first naval battle of the war of 1812, and congress gave Captain Hull a gold medal for his services. He died in Philadelphia, Pa., 1843.

Humbert I. (hum'bĕrt), king of Italy, eldest son of King Victor Emmanuel, was born in 1844. When the war between Prussia and Austria became imminent, Prince Humbert was dispatched to Paris to ascertain the sentiments of the French government in reference to the alliance between Italy and Prussia. On the outbreak of hostilities he obtained command of a division of General Cialdini's army, with the title of lieutenant-general; and was present at the disastrous battle of Custozza, 1866. He succeeded to the throne on the death of his father, 1878. The most notable event in his reign was the formation of the triple alliance, 1887. He was assassinated at Monza, near Milan, 1900.

Humboldt (hum'bōlt), Friedrich Heinrich Alexander, Baron von, eminent German scientist and traveler, was born in Berlin, 1769. He became director-general of the mines of Bayreuth and Anspach in 1792. In 1799 he started with Bonpland for South America, and occupied four years in the exploration of that continent. After his return to Europe in 1804, he passed a period of twenty years in Paris, and was there admitted to the institute. His chief works are: Journey to the Equinoctial Regions of the New Continent; Central Asia; Researches on the Chains of Mountains and the Comparative Climatology; Aspects of Nature; and what is commonly esteemed his masterpiece, Kosmos—Essay of a Physical Description of the Universe—begun in his seventy-fourth year. He died in Berlin, 1859.

Humboldt, Karl Wilhelm von, elder brother of the preceding, was born at Potsdam, 1767. In 1801 he became Prussian minister at Rome, and was a most generous patron of young artists and men of science. Berlin University owes its existence to him. In 1810 he went to Vienna as minister plenipotentiary, and from this time took part in all important Prussian political affairs. He was the first to study Basque scientifically; he also worked much on the languages of the East and of the South Sea Islands. Died, 1835.

Hume, David, Scottish philosopher and historian, born at Edinburgh, 1711. After a short experience with merchandizing and law he turned to the life of a student. In 1734 he went for a time to France, and there wrote the important Treatise of Human Nature (1739-40). Hume then turned his pen to subjects of more general interest, and in 1742 published Essays—Moral, Political, and Literary.

During 1747-9 he served as secretary to an embassy, after which he settled down to literary work in Edinburgh. Two other philosophical works, which were really popular abridgments of parts of the Treatise, were published about this time—the Inquiry Concerning Human Understanding, in 1748, and the Inquiry Concerning the Principles of Morals, in 1751; and another volume of essays, the Political Discourses, followed in 1752.

With the exception of his Natural History of Religion (1755), his literary activity for the next ten years was mainly concentrated on his History of England. In 1763 he was again abroad, attached to an embassy to France; and on his return he was, for a short time, under-secretary of state. In 1769 he returned to Edinburgh, where he remained till his death in 1776. His Dialogues Concerning Natural Religion were published in 1779.

The philosophy of Hume was an extreme and thoroughgoing development of the sensationalism that was latent in Locke's account of the origin of knowledge. Applying Locke's method of analysis in all its strictness he set up as a general test for all ideas that they must be capable of being referred to a definite source or original in impressions. Ideas which cannot confirm to this test have no real or objective meaning; they are illusions produced in the mind by the workings of imagination.

Thus, to take a single instance, Hume reduces the conception of causal connection to a mere blind belief engendered by custom, the constant conjunction of two impressions (e. g. flame and heat) suggesting the idea of the so-called cause. The outcome of such criticism applied to the fundamental concepts on which knowledge rests was naturally a total scepticism.

References.—Huxley's Hume in English Men of Letters; Seth's Scottish Philosophy; his Autobiography, edited by Adam Smith; and Burton's Life and Correspondence of David Hume.

Hume, Martin Andrew Sharp, English educator and writer, lecturer in Spanish history and literature, Pembroke College, Cambridge, was born at London, 1847. He was attached to the Turkish army during the campaign on the Lom, 1878-79; traveled much in South America and Africa; later was prominently identified with the universities at Cambridge. London and Birmingham. Author: Chronicle of Henry VIII.; Calendar of Spanish State Papers; Elizabeth, 4 vols.; The Love Affairs of Mary Queen of Scots; Cambridge Modern History, vols. iii. and iv., Queens of Old Spain; The Court of Philip IV., etc.; and many historical articles in the principal English and Spanish magazines and reviews. Died in 1910.

Humperdinck (hōom'pĕr-dingk), Engelbert, German composer, was born at Siegburg, near Bonn, Prussia, 1854. He studied music at Cologne, Frankfort, Munich and Berlin. In 1890-96 at Frankfort, he became famous as the composer of the musical fairy play, Hänsel und Gretel, which was phenomenally successful, compositions that have earned for him the title of the "modern Wagner." In 1900 he became professor of music at Berlin. Died in 1921.

Humphreys (hum'friz), Milton Wylie, American educator and scholar, professor of Greek, University of Virginia, beginning 1887, was born in Greenbrier county, Va. (now W. Va.), 1844. He was graduated at Washington and Lee, A.M., 1869; Ph.D., Leipzig, 1874; LL.D., Vanderbilt. He was professor of Greek, Vanderbilt University, 1875-83, and professor of Latin and Greek, University of Texas, 1883-87. President in 1882-83 of the American philological association, and was ten years American chief editor to Revue de Philologie, Paris. Edited, with notes: The Clouds of Aristophanes, The Antigone of Sophocles, etc. Died, 1928.

Huneker (hun'e-kĕr), James Gibbons, journalist, music critic, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1860. He was graduated at Roth's military academy, Philadelphia, 1873; studied law and conveyancing at law academy, Philadelphia, five years. Music and dramatic critic of New York Recorder, 1891-95, and of the Morning Advertiser, 1895-97. He was formerly music and dramatic; art editor, of the New York Sun. Author: Mezzo-tints in Modern Music; Visionaries, etc. He also wrote the article on music, New International Encyclopædia, and has been a contributor to leading magazines. Died in 1921.

Hunt, James Henry Leigh, English poet and essayist, was born at Southgate, near London, 1784. In 1813, as editor of The Examiner, he wrote some articles severely criticising the prince regent, afterward George IV., and for these he was prosecuted by order of the government, and sentenced to two years' imprisonment in the Surrey jail. While in jail he wrote The Descent of Liberty, a Masque; The Story of Rimini, an Italian tale in verse; and The Feast of the Poets. In 1828 he published Lord Byron and Some of his Contemporaries, in which, having quarreled with Byron during a visit to Italy, he indulged in some severe animadversions upon the character of that poet. Among his last works was his Autobiography. He died at Putney, England, 1859.

Hunt, Thomas Sterry, American chemist and geologist, was born in Connecticut, 1825. In 1845 he became assistant to Professor Silliman in his chemical laboratory at Yale College, and in 1847 was appointed chemist and mineralogist to the geographical survey of Canada. He held this post for more than twenty-five years, resigning in 1872 to accept the chair of geology in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He furnished many important articles in his specialty to Appleton's American Cyclopedia, and was a member of the leading societies of both continents. He died in New York, 1892.

Hunt, Walter, English painter, was born in Middlesex, England, 1861. He has been a constant exhibiter at the royal academy since 1881. The following are among his best pictures: A Rainy Day; A Foster-Mother; The Orphan; The Otter Hunt—the Find; Motherless; An Old Offender; Home from Work, etc.

Hunt, William Henry, creator of the English school of water-color painting, was born in London, 1790, the crippled child of a tinplate worker. He is ranked by Ruskin with the greatest colorists of that school. He generally chose very simple subjects for his pictures, such as: Peaches and Grapes; Old Pollard; Wild Flowers; Too Hot; Fast Asleep, etc., but they are conceived in a finely poetical spirit, and present the perfection of finish. Died, 1864.

Hunt, William Holman, English painter, was born in London, 1827. In 1845 he was admitted a student of the royal academy, and next year exhibited his first picture, Hark! He shared a studio with D. G. Rossetti, and the two, along with Millais and a few others, inaugurated the "pre-Raphaelite brotherhood," which aimed at detailed and uncompromising truth to nature. Among the first of his pre-Raphaelite works was Rienzi, in 1849. It was followed by A Converted British Family Sheltering a Christian Missionary and The Light of the World, now in Keble College, Oxford. In 1905 he was nominated to the order of merit, and was made a D.C.L. by Oxford. Died, 1910.

Hunt, William Morris, American genre and portrait painter, was born in Brattleboro, Vermont, 1824. He was educated at Düsseldorf, and under Couture at Paris; but made the technic of the French school subsidiary to his own original ideas, and was one of the first to introduce the characteristics of the French school into the United States. Among his productions are: The Lost Kid; The Choristers; Bugle Call, etc. He painted The Flight of Night and other decorations in the state capitol at Albany, N. Y. Died, 1879.

Hunter, John, noted British surgeon, anatomist, and physiologist, was born in Lanarkshire, Scotland, 1728. He spent five years at the University of Edinburgh, and went to London and studied at Chelsea hospital. His progress in anatomy and surgery was so rapid that in the second session he was able to undertake the directing of the pupils in their dissections. After ten years in the the dissecting room his health gave way, and in 1759 he applied for an appointment in the British army, was immediately made staff-surgeon, and sent out to Belle Isle, and afterward to the Peninsula. In 1767 he was elected a fellow of the royal society, and in the following year was appointed surgeon to St. George's hospital. In 1776 he was appointed surgeon-extraordinary to the king. His famous operation for the cure of aneurism, that of simply tying the artery at a distance from the tumor, and between it and the heart, has been more fruitful in important results than any since Ambrose Pare's application of ligatures to divided arteries. He died in 1793.

Huntingdon (hun'ting-dun), Selina, Countess of, daughter of Earl Ferrers, was born in 1707. She married the earl of Huntingdon, 1728, and became a widow in 1746. Joining the Methodists in 1739, she made Whitefield her chaplain in 1748, and assumed a leadership among his followers, who became known as "the countess of Huntingdon's connection." She died in London, 1791, bequeathing to four persons her sixty-four chapels, most of which became identical with the Congregational churches.

Huntington, Daniel, American painter, was born in New York, 1816, and was educated at Hamilton College. In 1835 he began to study art under Morse, and still later with Inman. In 1839 he visited Italy; returned the next year and commenced work. Thereafter he became a permanent resident of New York and painted the portraits of many notable people. He is probably best known by his picture, The Republican Court in the Time of Washington, in which there are more than sixty figures. Died, 1906.

Hunyadi (hōōn'yod-i), Janos, Hungarian general, was born at Hunyad, Transylvania, about 1387. He was governor of Transylvania in 1442, and distinguished himself against the Turks, who at that time were the terror of the whole of Christendom. The most splendid of his deeds was the storming of Belgrade, where the monk John Capistran, carrying the holy cross, raised the enthusiasm of the Christian warriors to such a height that a most complete victory brought that fortress again into the possession of the Hungarians. Shortly after dysentery broke out in the camp, and Hunyadi, after a short illness, fell a victim to the disease, 1456.

Hurd, Henry Mills, American physician, superintendent Johns Hopkins hospital since 1889, was born in Union City, Mich., 1843. He was graduated at the University of Michigan, 1863; M.D., 1866; A.M., 1871; LL.D., 1895. Was superintendent eastern Michigan asylum, Pontiac, 1878-89, and professor psychiatry, 1889-1906, Johns Hopkins. Editor American Journal of Insanity, beginning 1897; of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Bulletin and of Johns Hopkins Hospital Reports, beginning 1890. Author: Hints to Hospital Visitors, with Dr. John S. Billings; also editor, with same, Hospitals, Dispensaries and Nursing, etc. Died, 1927.

Hurlbut, Jesse Lyman, Methodist Episcopal clergyman, editor, was born in New York, 1843. He was graduated at Wesleyan University, Connecticut, 1880. Was pastor Methodist Episcopal churches, 1865-79; editor of Sunday school literature and secretary of Sunday school union and tract society, 1888-1900. Author: Outline Normal Lessons; Studies in the Four Gospels; Our Church; Hurlbut's Story of the Bible, etc.

Hurst (hûrst), John Fletcher, American clergyman and writer, was born in Maryland, 1834. He was graduated at Dickinson College, and became a Methodist Episcopal clergyman. In 1871 he became professor of theology in Drew seminary, Madison, N. J., and from 1873 until 1880 was president of that institution. At Cincinnati, in the last-named year, he was elected bishop. In 1891 he was made chancellor of the American University at Washington. He died at Washington, 1903.

Huss, or Hus (hus; Ger., hōōs), John, Bohemian religious reformer, was born at Hussinecz, in Bohemia, about 1370. He studied at the University of Prague, was appointed dean of the philosophical faculty in 1401, and rector of the university, 1402. As a preacher he was greatly esteemed both by the common people and by the students, while as confessor to Queen Sophia he obtained access to the court. At this time he became acquainted with the writings of Wycliffe, which exercised a great influence over him. In 1412 Pope John XXIII. having published a bull of indulgence in order to organize a crusade against Ladislaus, the excommunicated king of Naples, whose kingdom the pope claimed as a papal fief, Huss boldly raised his voice against the whole procedure as unchristian, while Jerome of Prague also stood forth to condemn, in the strongest manner, both the bull and the venders of indulgences. An interdict against Huss in 1412 was the consequence. Huss, however, appealed from the pope to a general council and to Christ, and wrote a book On the Church, in which he condemned the abuses of the papacy, and denied the unconditional supremacy of the Roman pontiff. In 1414 he went to Constance to the general council, under a safe-conduct from the emperor, but his opponents procured his imprisonment as a heretic, and, on refusal to retract, he was burned at the stake, 1415.

Hutchins (huch'inz), Harry Burns, American educator, president of the University of Michigan, since 1910, was born at Lisbon, N. H., 1847. He was graduated at the University of Michigan, Ph.B., 1871; LL.D., University of Wisconsin. He was professor of law, 1884-87; professor of law, Cornell, 1887-95; acting president of University of Michigan, 1897-98, and again, beginning 1909. He revised and annotated five volumes Michigan Supreme Court Reports, under appointment of the supreme court, 1882-83; edited American edition of Williams on Real Property, and contributed to legal periodicals. Died, 1930.

Hutchins, Robert Maynard, educator, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 1899; graduated from Yale, 1921; secretary of Yale, 1923-1927; degree of LL.B. 1925; dean of Yale Law School, 1928-1929; inaugurated president of the University of Chicago, November 19, 1929.

Hutchinson (huch'in-sun), Anne, religious enthusiast, was born about 1590, and emigrated from Lincolnshire, England, to Boston, Mass., 1634. Banished from the colony for heresy, she and her friends now obtained from the chief of the Narrangansetts liberty to reside in Rhode Island, where they set up a community on the highly commendable principle that no one was to be "accounted a delinquent for doctrine." Died, 1643.

Hutchinson, John, Scotch sculptor, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, 1832. He was apprenticed to a wood-carver in Edinburgh at the age of thirteen; executed wood carvings and other decorations in relief for the picture gallery at Hospitalfield, Arbroath, 1852, and studied in Edinburgh and in Rome. Principal works: King Robert Bruce; John Knox, a colossal bronze statue in Edinburgh, etc. Died, 1910.

Hutton (hoot'en), Ulrich von, German reformer and humorist, was born in 1488. When he was ten years of age he was placed in the monastery at Fulda; but, disliking this mode of life, he fled to Erfurt in 1506, where he associated with scholars and poets. In 1518 he accompanied Albert, archbishop of Mainz, to the diet of Augsburg, where Luther had his famous conference with Cajetan. He took sides with Luther, was persecuted by his enemies, and availed himself of the protection of Franz von Sickingen, but was soon forced to flee. From this time he was compelled to adopt a wandering life, and died in 1523 in the isle of Ufnau, in the lake of Zürich.

Hutton (hut'n), Maurice, Canadian educator, professor of Greek since 1887, and principal in 1901, University College, Toronto, was born at Manchester, England, 1856. He was educated at Magdalen College school and Worcester College, Oxford; M.A., Oxford; LL.D., Toronto and Queen's. He was fellow of Merton College, Oxford, 1879-86; lecturer on classics and ancient history at Firth College, Sheffield, 1880, and professor of classics in the University College, Toronto, 1880. Author of Hellenism, and various articles of a popular character on the classics and on Oxford.

Huxley (huks'li), Thomas Henry, noted English biologist and comparative anatomist, was born at Ealing, England, 1825. He was graduated at London University, 1845. Imbued with a passion for natural history, Huxley devoted himself with zeal and intelligence to the study of numerous marine animals collected from time to time and made them the subject of scientific papers. In 1851 papers on other branches of the same subject were printed in the Philosophical Transactions, and in the same year Huxley was elected a fellow of the royal society. In 1854 he was appointed professor of natural history in the royal school of mines, and among his lectures in that institution he delivered courses to workingmen with beneficial results. In 1874 he was made lord rector of Aberdeen University; was Rede lecturer at Cambridge in 1883, and president of the royal society, 1883-85. Among his many works, in addition to those mentioned, are: Oceanic Hydrozoa; Evidence as to Man's Place in Nature; Physiography; Science and Culture; Evolution and Ethics, etc. He died in Eastbourne, England, 1895.

Huygens (hī'genz; Dutch hoi'gens), or Huyghens, Christian, Dutch physicist and astronomer, was born at The Hague in 1629. He improved the telescope, and devised new methods for grinding and constructing lenses. He also invented the first pendulum clock; defined the rings of Saturn; and developed the wave theory of light. He was made a fellow of the royal society, 1663, and at the invitation of Louis XIV. lived for a number of years in Paris, where he produced many of his scientific works. Died, 1695.

Hyde, William De Witt, American educator and writer, president of Bowdoin College, beginning 1885, was born in Winchendon, Mass., 1858. He was graduated at Harvard, 1879; D.D., Harvard; LL.D., Syracuse. Author: Practical Ethics; Social Theology; Practical Idealism; The Evolution of a College Student; God's Education of Man; The Art of Optimism; School Speaker and Reader; The Cardinal Virtues; Jesus' Way; The New Ethics; From Epicurus to Christ, etc. Died, 1917.

Hypatia (hi-pā'shi-ā), Greek female philosopher, daughter of Theon, an astronomer of Alexandria. She was renowned for her knowledge of mathematics and of the Platonic philosophy, of which she was a teacher at Alexandria. Being accused by the clergy of undue influence over Orestes, prefect of Alexandria, against St. Cyril, then archbishop there, she was attacked by a mob led by priests, dragged into a church, stripped of her clothing and killed. This occurred about 415 A. D., when she was about sixty years of age. Hypatia has been made the subject of a romance by Charles Kingsley.

Hyrcanus (hēr-kā'nus), John, Jewish high priest, who lived about 135 B. C. He succeeded his father, Simon Maccabæus, in the high priesthood as one of the Asmonean rulers of Judea. His reign has been compared to that of Solomon. He was succeeded by his son, Aristobulus, a weak, irresolute character, who took the title of king of Judea. Died about 105 B. C.

Hyslop (hīs'lop), James, Hervey, American psychologist and psychic investigator, professor of logic and ethics, Columbia University, was born at Xenia, Ohio, 1854. He was graduated at Wooster University, 1877; Ph.D., Johns Hopkins, 1887. Author: Elements of Logic; Ethics of Hume; Science and a Future Life; Enigmas of Psychical Research; Borderland of Psychical Research. Editor of Proceedings and Journal of American Society for Psychical Research. Died in 1920.

Hyvernat, Eugene Xavier Louis Henry, French-American educator and orientalist, professor of oriental languages and archæology, Catholic University of America, since 1889, was born at St. Julien-en-Jarret, Loire, France, 1858. He was graduated at the University of France, Lyons, 1876; studied divinity, Séminaire de St. Sulpice, Issy, 1877-79, and at Paris, 1879-82; D.D., Pontifical University of Rome, 1882. He was chaplain at St. Louis of the French, Rome, 1882-85; professor interpreter of oriental languages for Propaganda, Rome, 1885-89; professor of Assyriology and Egyptology, Roman seminary, Rome, 1885-88; intrusted with scientific mission in Armenia by the French government, 1888-89; chief department Semitic and Egyptian literatures, Catholic University of America, since 1889. Author: Les Actes des Martyrs de l'Egypte; Album de Paléographie Copte; Du Caucase au Golfe Persique, with Dr. Paul Muller-Simonis; contributed to Vigouroux's Dictionnaire de la Bible, The Jewish Encyclopædia, and various American, French, and German reviews.

Ibanez, Vicente Blasco, Spanish writer and socialist, was born at Valencia, 1867. His revolutionary ideas made him several times a political prisoner, but this did not discourage him. He was at one time a Republican deputy in the Spanish parliament and wrote many novels in sympathy with the working classes. Perhaps his best known work is The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse. He visited the United States in 1920-21. Died, 1928.

Iberville d' (de'ber'vēl), Pierre le Moyne, Sieur, French-Canadian commander, was born at Montreal, Canada, 1661, and was distinguished in the French service. Sailing from Brest in 1698 with two frigates he reached the mouth of the Mississippi with his brother Bienville; fortified Biloxi, the first outpost in Mississippi, and in 1700 ascended the river. In 1701, on account of the unhealthiness of the climate, he transferred the colony from Louisiana to Mobile, and began the settlement of Alabama. In 1702 he fortified Dauphin island, in Mobile bay. Died at Havana, Cuba, 1706.

Ibrahim Pasha (ib'rà-hēm' pà-shà'), Egyptian general, adopted son of Mehemet Ali, viceroy of Egypt, was born in 1789. Mohammed Ali having conceived the design of adding Syria to his dominions, Ibrahim crossed the Egyptian border with an army in 1831, took Acre by storm, and quickly made himself master of the whole of Syria. In 1848, when the aged viceroy reached absolute dotage, Ibrahim went to Constantinople and was installed viceroy of Egypt. Died, 1848.

Ibsen (ib'sen; ip'sen), Henrik, Norwegian poet and dramatist, was born at Skien, in south Norway, 1828. He studied medicine, was a chemist's assistant at Grimstad, 1842-50, but soon devoted himself wholly to literature. His first drama, Katilina, was a failure. In 1857 he became director of the national theater in Christiana. His next dramas were The Warriors in Helgeland, The Pretenders, Love's Comedy. The first two, reproducing the spirit of the old sagas, placed Ibsen in the foremost rank of Scandinavian dramatists; the last was a precursor of his satirical social dramas. In 1862 the national theater became bankrupt, and Ibsen, enraged because Norway held aloof from the Danes in their struggle against the Germans, forsook his country, 1864-92, living in Rome, Dresden and Munich. The Norwegian parliament granted him a pension in 1866. In 1866-67 appeared the lyric drama Emperor and Galilean. There followed Pillars of Society; A Doll's House; Ghosts; Rosmersholm; Hedda Gabler; The Master Builder; Solness; When We Dead Awaken; and John Gabriel Borkman. These plays aroused a storm of controversy in the literary world from 1889, because of their author's passionate advocacy of individual liberty. The interest and method of his plays are almost exclusively psychological. Died, 1906.

Ide, Henry Clay, governor, jurist, was born a Barnet, Vt., 1844. He was graduated at Dartmouth College, 1866; LL.D., 1900, Tufts College, 1903. He was a member of Vermont state senate, 1882-85; United States commissioner to Samoa, 1891; chief-justice of Samoa under joint appointment of England, Germany, and the United, States, 1893-97; member Taft commission on establishment of civil government in Philippine islands, 1900; secretary of finance and justice for Philippine islands, 1901; vice-governor, 1904-05; acting governor, 1905-06; governor-general beginning 1906, Philippine islands. Author: Code of Procedure in Civil Actions and Special Proceedings in the Philippine Islands, etc. Died, 1921.

Ignatieff (ig-nä'tyef), Nikolai Pavlovitch, Russian diplomat, was born at St. Petersburg, 1832. In 1856 he entered the diplomatic service, and in 1858 induced China to give up the Amur province. In 1864 he was made ambassador at Constantinople. An ardent panslavist, he intrigued with the Balkan Slavs, and took a principal part in the diplomatic proceedings before and after the Russo-Turkish war of 1878. Under Alexander III. he was minister of the interior, 1881-82, and subsequently retired to private life. Died, 1908.

Ihmsen, Maximilian Frederick, journalist, was born at Pittsburg, Pa., 1868. He was educated in the public schools in Stuttgart, Germany, in Allegheny, Pa., and the Pittsburg Catholic College. He became clerk in the Pittsburg postoffice, 1887; reporter Pittsburg Post, 1889; was first newspaper man to reach the dam above South Fork, Pa., which, by bursting, caused the Johnstown flood; Albany correspondent, New York Journal, 1895; city editor, 1896-98, and 1901-02; Washington correspondent, 1898-1900, and later political editor New York American. Was fusion nominee for sheriff of New York county, 1907.

Ihne (ē'ne), Wilhelm, German historian, was born at Fürth in 1821, and was educated at Bonn. He was a private tutor in England, 1843-47, later had charge of a school at Liverpool, 1849-63, and in 1873 became a professor at Heidelberg. He published his great History of Rome, in 8 vols. 1868-90; Early Rome, 1876; and a number of other historical works. Died, 1902.

Illington, Margaret (Mrs. Bowes), former actress, was born at Bloomington, Ill., 1881, daughter of I. H. and Mary Ellen Light. She was educated at Illinois Wesleyan University and studied at Chicago Musical College. In 1903 she married Daniel Frohman, from whom she was divorced in 1909; married in the same year Edward J. Bowes. She made her debut in The Pride of Jennico at the Criterion theater, New York, 1900; played in Daniel Frohman's stock company, Lyceum theater, New York; created leading rôle in The Japanese Nightingale; The Two Orphans; Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots; The Lion and the Mouse; His House in Order; The Thief, etc. Died, 1934.

Ingalls, John James, American lawyer, essayist, and statesman, United States senator, was born at Middleton, Mass., 1833. He was graduated at Williams College, studied law, and was admitted to practice in Massachusetts in 1857, and in 1858 settled in Kansas. He was elected United States senator from Kansas in 1873, and was again elected in 1879 and 1885. During his last senatorial term he was president pro-tem of the senate. He was the author of the famous sonnet Opportunity. He died at Las Vegas, New Mexico, 1900.

Ingalls, Melville Ezra, railroad president, was born in Harrison, Me., 1842. He was educated at Bridgeton academy, studied at Bowdoin College, and graduated at Harvard Law School, 1863. He practiced first at Gray, Me., but soon removed to Boston. President in 1870, receiver in 1871, of the Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Lafayette railroad, and from a bankrupt condition, with the aid of reörganizations in 1873 and 1880, he put its successor, the Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Chicago, upon a sound footing, consolidating it with other roads into the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railroad, comprising the "Big Four" system, of which he became president. He was president of the Merchants' National Bank, Cincinnati. Died, 1914.

Ingelow (in'-jē-lō), Jean, English poetess and novelist, was born at Boston, Lincolnshire, England, 1820. A great part of her poetry is of a devotional type, sweet and simple, and filled with beautiful thoughts. Among her noted works is the ballad, The High Tide on the Coast of Lincolnshire, and the larger poem, A Story of Doom. Her works of fiction are Off the Skelligs; Fated to Be Free; Sarah de Berenger; Don John; and others. She died, 1897.

Ingersoll (ing'gĕr-sol), Robert Green, American lawyer, orator, and writer, was born at Dresden, N. Y., 1833. He settled to the practice of law at Peoria, Ill., 1857; became colonel of the 11th Illinois cavalry, 1862, was captured and exchanged; resigned and retired to private life, and, in 1868 was attorney-general of the state. He was a well-known orator, lecturer, and religious controversialist. He published The Gods, and Other Lectures; Some Mistakes of Moses; Great Speeches, etc. Died at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., 1899.

Ingraham (ing'grā-am), Joseph Holt, American clergyman and novelist, was born at Portland, Me., 1809. After some years spent at sea, he became a teacher of languages in Mississippi, and was ordained Episcopal clergyman in 1855; prior to his ordination he wrote stories of adventure, Captain Kyd, etc., but subsequently confined himself to biblical subjects. His best known work is The Prince of the House of David. He died at Holly Springs, Miss., 1860.

Ingram (ing'gram), Arthur Foley Winnington, bishop of London since 1901, dean of the Chapels Royal, was born in Worcestershire, 1858. He was educated at Marlborough College and Keble College, Oxford; chaplain to the archbishop of York and to the bishop of St. Albans, 1889; canon of St. Paul's cathedral, 1897-1901, and bishop of Stepney, 1897-1901. Author: Work in Great Cities; Messengers, Watchmen, Stewards; The Men Who Crucify Christ; Christ and His Friends; Banners of the Christian Faith, etc.

Ingres (aN'gr'), Jean Dominique Auguste, French painter, was born at Montauban, 1780. He studied under David, and after taking the grand prix in 1801, worked in Rome, 1806-20. To this period belong his best portraits, and his Œdipus and the Sphinx; Venus Anadyomene; Vergil Reading the Æneid; Raphael and the Fornarina, etc. Died, 1867.

Inman, Henry, American painter, was born in Utica, N. Y., 1801. He was noted for his skill as a portrait painter, and besides making portraits of Chief-Justice Marshall and many other distinguished Americans, he visited England and painted portraits of Wordsworth and Macaulay. In 1845 he began a series of historical paintings for the capitol at Washington, but before they were completed he died in New York, 1846.

Innes (in'is), Cosmo, Scottish historian and antiquarian, was born at Durris, Scotland, 1798. He was graduated both at Glasgow and Oxford, and in 1822 passed as an advocate. He became in 1846 professor of constitutional law and history in the University of Edinburgh. He is best known as the author of Scotland in the Middle Ages and Sketches of Early Scotch History. Died, 1874.

Inness (in'es), George, American artist, was born at Newburg, N. Y., 1825; studied in New York, France, and Italy. He excelled as a painter of American landscapes, and became a national academician in 1868; resided in Italy, 1871-75; died at Bridge of Allan, Scotland, 1894. Among his best paintings are: Delaware Valley; American Sunset; Pontine Marshes; Niagara Falls; Sunset—Montclair; Autumn Oaks, etc. Died, 1894.

Inness, George, Jr., artist painter, was born in Paris, France, 1854, son of the preceding. He was a pupil of his father in Rome, Italy, 1870-74; studied one year in Paris, 1875; after that lived in Boston and New York, where he occupied studio with his father, 1878. He resided with his family in Montclair, N. J., after 1880, but had his studio in Paris, 1895-99, and exhibited annually at the Paris salon. He received a gold medal at the 1899 Paris salon. Died in 1926.

Innocent III., one of the greatest of the popes, was born at Anagni, Italy, 1161, son of Count Trasimund, a Roman noble. He was educated at Paris, Rome and Bologna, and was elected pope in 1198. He aimed at making the papacy supreme in all European affairs; extended the territorial power of the church, and made nearly all Christendom subject to its sway; was zealous for the purity as well as supremacy of the church, and countenanced every movement that contributed to enhance its influence and stereotype its beliefs as well as its forms of worship. The papal power probably attained its greatest height during his pontificate. He died at Perugia, Italy, 1216.

Ireland, John, American prelate, Roman Catholic archbishop of St. Paul beginning 1888, was born in Ireland, 1838. He came to the United States in boyhood; was educated in the cathedral school, St. Paul; studied theology in France, and was ordained priest in 1861; LL.D., Yale, 1901. He was chaplain of the 5th Minnesota regiment in the Civil War; rector of the cathedral at St. Paul; secretary and later coadjutor to Bishop Grace, of St. Paul, and was consecrated archbishop in 1888. He had been active in establishing Roman Catholic colonies in the Northwest, and in the organization of total abstinence societies. Author The Church and Modern Society. Died, 1918.

Irene (Lat., ī-rē'nē; Eng., ē-rīn'), Byzantine empress, once a poor orphan girl of Athens, Greece, was born about 752. Her beauty and talents drew the attention and love of the emperor Leo IV., and he married her in 769. After his death she ruled as regent, during the minority of her son Constantine VI. She was banished to Lesbos in 802, where she died in the following year. The Greek church counts her among its saints.

Irving, Sir Henry (John Henry Brodribb), English actor, was born in Keinton, near Glastonbury, 1838. He acted at the Theater Royal, Edinburgh, 1856-59, and afterward for seven years at Manchester. He played in London, 1859, but attracted little notice until his appearance at St. James' theater, 1866. He soon established a connection with the Lyceum, of which he became manager in 1878. There he played his chief parts, in conjunction with Miss Ellen Terry, producing among other plays, Hamlet; The Merchant of Venice; Faust; Macbeth; Henry VIII.; The Bells, and other well-known productions. He first came to the United States in 1883, with Miss Terry and his Lyceum company, and made his début in New York, as Mathias, in The Bells. He died in England, 1905, and was buried in Westminster abbey.

Irving, Isabel, actress, was born at Bridgeport, Conn., 1871. She made her début as Gwendolyn Hawkins in The Schoolmistress, with Rosina Vokes company, 1887. She was selected by Charles Frohman to create the rôle of Lady Jocelyn Leigh in To Have and To Hold, at the Knickerbocker theater, New York; later starred under the management of James K. Hackett in The Crisis; was engaged by Clyde Fitch to play the comedy part in The Toast of the Town, 1906; and was starred by Liebler and Company in Susan in Search of a Husband, 1907. She married W. H. Thompson, 1899.

Irving, Washington, distinguished American author, was born in the city of New York, 1783. Irving, at the age of sixteen, entered a law office; but found greater profit from his father's well-stocked library, Chaucer and Spenser, being his favorite authors. New York, at this period, was a town of about 50,000 inhabitants, many of whom were descendants of the original Dutch settlers, having quaint manners and customs, of which Irving was a curious observer. In 1809 he wrote A History of New York, From the Beginning of the World to the End of the Dutch Dynasty, by Diedrich Knickerbocker, a burlesque chronicle written in so quiet a vein of humor that it has sometimes been taken for a veritable history. At the close of the war, in 1815, he visited England, where he was warmly welcomed by Campbell, whose biography he had formerly written, and was introduced by him to Walter Scott. In 1819 he published the well-known Sketch Book, containing The Legend of Sleepy Hollow and Rip Van Winkle. At the invitation of Edward Everett, American ambassador to Spain, he accompanied him to Madrid to tran late documents connected with the life of Columbus. With these materials he wrote his History of the Life and Voyages of Columbus; Voyages of the Companions of Columbus; The Conquest of Granada, and many Spanish works. In 1842 he was appointed United States minister to Spain. In 1846 was published his Life of Goldsmith, and his great work, the Life of Washington, was published in 1855-59. He spent the last years of his life with his nieces at Sunnyside, in his own "Sleepy Hollow," on the banks of the Hudson, near Tarrytown, where he died suddenly of disease of the heart, 1859.

Irwin, Wallace, author, was born at Oneida, N. Y., 1875. He studied at Stanford University, 1896-99, and was editor San Francisco News Letter, 1901; editor Overland Monthly, 1902. Burlesque writer, Republic theater, 1903; writer of topical verse, New York Globe, 1904-05, and on staff Collier's Weekly, 1906-07. Author: The Love Sonnets of a Hoodlum; At the Sign of the Dollar; Chinatown Ballads; Random Rhymes of Odd Numbers, etc. He is a prolific contributor to magazines and weeklies.

Isabella (iz'ä-bel'ä), queen of Castile, daughter of John II., was born in 1451, and united in 1469 to Ferdinand V., king of Aragon. When a union of the kingdoms of Aragon and Castile took place. Ferdinand and Isabella together assumed the royal title of Spain. She was a woman of fine intellect, a wise and humane ruler, was always present during the transaction of state business, and her name was placed beside that of the king in state ordinances. She proved also a stanch supporter of Columbus in his search for the western route to India. Died, 1504.

Isabey (ē'zä'bē), Jean Baptiste, court painter and favorite of Napoleon, was born at Nancy, 1767. He was a pupil of Girardet Claudet, Dumont, and David. He painted the portraits of Josephine, Napoleon, his marshals, and the chief personages of Europe. He visited the Russian court at the invitation of Alexander. Died at Paris, 1855.

Isaiah (ī-zā'yä, ī-zā'yä), one of the most eminent of the Hebrew prophets, flourished about 740-701 B. C. He was the son of Amoz, but of his personal history very little is known. His prophecies, though delivered later in point of time than several of those uttered by other prophets, occupy in our Bible, the first place, both on account of their bulk, and for the sublimity and importance of the predictions.

Isidore (iz-i-dor) of Seville, or Isidorus Hispalensis, one of the most distinguished ecclesiastics of the sixth century, was born at Cartagena, Spain, about 560. The episcopate of Isidore, which began in 600, is rendered notable by the half-ecclesiastical, half-civil counsels of Toledo, in 619 and 633, which were held under his presidency, and the canons of which may almost be said to have formed the basis of the constitutional law of the Spanish kingdoms, both for church and for state, down to the great constitutional changes of the fifteenth century. Died, 636.

Ismail Pasha (is'mä-ēl'pä-shä), khedive of Egypt, was born in 1830. He succeeded Said Pasha as fifth viceroy of Egypt, 1863; promoted the Suez canal project, and gained wealth by the cultivation of cotton during the American war. Financial disaster coming in 1879, he abdicated in favor of his son, Mohammed Tewfik, and lived after 1888 in Constantinople. Died, 1895.

Isocrates (ī-sok'ra-tēz), Greek orator and teacher, was born in Athens, 436 B. C. About 390 B. C. he set up as a teacher of oratory, though he professed also to give a general practical education. He drew to him pupils subsequently distinguished as statesmen, historians and orators. But he also wrote speeches intended to be practical; the Archidamus may actually have been composed for the Spartan king Archidamus. As a politician, Isocrates' one idea was to unite all Greeks together in a joint attack upon the common foe, Persia. The outcome was the destruction of Greek freedom at Chæronea by Philip. Died, 338 B. C.

Israels (ēs'rā-ēls'), Josef, Dutch painter, was born at Groningen, 1824. He studied at Amsterdam, under Kruseman, and next at Paris, under Picquet, and received gold medals of honor at Paris, Brussels and Rotterdam. He also had conferred upon him the Belgian order of Leopold, and was nominated a member of the French legion of honor. Principal works: The Shipwrecked Mariner; The Cradle; Interior of the Orphans' Home at Katwyk; The True Support. Died, 1911.

Ito (ē'tō), Marquis Hirobumi, Japanese statesman, was born in the province of Choshu, 1841. In 1871 he visited the United States for the purpose of examining the coinage system, and on his return to Japan was successful in establishing a mint at Osaka. He became prominent in the Japanese cabinet in 1886, made many reforms, and in 1888 prepared the written constitution of Japan, which was promulgated in 1889. In 1900, on the resignation of the Yamagata ministry, he was summoned by the emperor to form a cabinet. Assassinated, 1909.

Ito, Count Yuko, Japanese admiral, chief of the naval general staff, was born in Satsuma province, 1843. He was educated at the Tokyo Kaisei College. Entered the imperial Japanese navy, 1868; attained the rank of lieutenant-commander, 1872; was promoted rear-admiral and commander of the standing squadron, 1886; vice-admiral and chief of Yokosuka naval station, 1892; fought the battle of Yalu with all the combined squadrons under his command, 1894; chief of the naval general staff, 1895; created viscount for services in the war, and made a full admiral in 1898. Died, 1914.

Ivan, III. (ē-vän', i'van), Vasilevitch, czar of Russia, sometimes named "the great," may be regarded as the founder of the Russian empire. He was born in 1440, was at first only grand-duke of Moscow, but succeeded in shaking off entirely the yoke of the Tartars, and in subjecting a number of the Russian principalities to his own sway. In 1472 he married Sophia, a niece of Constantine Palæologus, assumed the title of "ruler of all Russia," and adopted the two-headed eagle of the Byzantine empire. Died, 1505.

Ivan IV., Vasilevitch, czar of Russia, called "the terrible," was born in 1530. He did much for the advancement of his country in arts and commerce, as well as for its extension by arms. But his hand fell with merciless cruelty upon the boyars of his kingdom, and upon some of his towns, as Moscow, Tver and Novgorod. Ivan died of sorrow for his son, whom three years before he had slain in a mad fit of rage. Died, 1584.

Ives (īvz), Frederic Eugene, American inventor, was born at Litchfield, Conn., 1856. He was educated in the public schools at Litchfield, Norfolk, Newton, Conn. In charge of photographic laboratory, Cornell University, 1874-78. His experiments in color photography on the so-called trichromatic principle, commenced in 1878, culminated in the three-color printing process in the typographic press, now an important industry, and in the Kromskop system. Author: Isochromatic Photography With Chorophyll, A New Principle in Heliochromy. Contributor to technical and educational journals on photographic processes.

Ixtlilxochitl (ēsh'tlil-shō'chēt'l), Fernando de Alva, Mexican antiquarian, was born in Mexico, about 1568. He was a descendant of the kings of Tezcuco, was interpreter of the native languages to several viceroys of Mexico and a laborious collector of the ancient MSS. and traditions of his country. Died, 1648.

Jackson, Abraham Valentine Williams, American educator and scholar, professor Indo-Iranian languages, Columbia University, since 1895, was born in New York, 1862. He was graduated at Columbia, 1883; L.H.D., 1885; Ph.D., 1886; L.L.D., 1904. He traveled in India, 1901, and Persia and Central Asia, 1903 and 1907. Author: A Hymn of Zoroastier; An Avestan Grammar; Persia, Past and Present. He edited A History of India, 9 volumes, and the Columbia University Indo-Iranian series, in three volumes.

Jackson, Andrew, seventh president of the United States, was born in North Carolina, 1767. His father, a Scotch-Irishman, emigrated to America in 1765. When Jackson grew up he was sent to study for the church, but on the outbreak of the American revolution he and his brothers were summoned to the field. In 1784 he commenced the study of law, and in 1788 was appointed solicitor for the western district of North Carolina, now the state of Tennessee. In 1813, at an outbreak of hostilities with the Creek Indians, he raised a volunteer force of 3,000 men and defeated them. Jackson's final victory on March 27, 1814, broke the power of the Indian race in North America. He was appointed major-general of the United States army; defended New Orleans against the attack of the British under General Packenham, December, 1814. The result of this action gave General Jackson a great and enduring popularity. After Spain had ceded Florida to the United States he was made governor of the territory, and subsequently was chosen United States senator from Tennessee. Elected president of the United States by the democratic party in 1828, and in 1832 reelected by an overwhelming majority. His administration was marked by singular firmness. He vetoed important measures against large majorities, destroyed the bank of the United States, and took the first steps toward a specie currency and an independent treasury. He retired with undiminished popularity after the election of President Van Buren. Died, 1845.

Jackson, Helen Hunt, American author and poet, was born in Amherst, Mass., 1831. Her maiden name was Helen Maria Fisk. She studied at Ipswich female seminary, and in 1852 was married to Major E. B. Hunt, of the United States engineers. She afterward married William S. Jackson, and lived most of the latter part of her life at Colorado Springs, Colo. She began to write verses about 1870 over the signature "H. H.," which soon became familiar to magazine readers. In 1883 Mrs. Jackson was made a commissioner by the government to look into the condition of the Mission Indians of California. Her last book, Ramona, which deals with Indian life, leaped at once into great popularity. She died at San Francisco, 1885. Buried near Colorado Springs.

Jackson, John Price, electrical engineer, was born at Philadelphia, 1868; graduated at Pennsylvania State College, 1889, M.E., 1892, E.E., 1901; was electrical engineer with Sprague and Edison electrical companies, 1890-2; professor electrical engineering, 1893-1907; dean school of Engineering 1907-15, Pennsylvania State College. Member electrical jury, St. Louis Exposition, 1904; member American Institute Electrical Engineers, American Society Mechanical Engineers, etc. Joint Author: Alternating Currents and Alternating Current Machinery; Elementary Electricity and Magnetism; etc.

Jackson, Samuel Macauley, American educator and writer, professor of church history, New York University, was born in New York City, 1851. He was graduated from the college of the city of New York, 1870; Union Theological Seminary, 1878; LL.D., Washington and Lee University, 1892; D.D., New York University, 1893. He has been editor of numerous church dictionaries and encyclopædias. His other publications include: Huldreich Zwingli, Handbooks for Practical Workers in Church and Philanthropy, etc.

Jackson, Thomas Jonathan, better known the world over as "Stonewall Jackson," American general, was born in Lewis county, Virginia (now West Virginia), 1824. He was graduated at West Point academy in 1846, and after serving with distinction in the Mexican war, he became a professor in the military institute at Lexington, Va. At the outbreak of the Civil War he was appointed brigadier-general in the confederate service. At the battle of Bull Run, July, 1861, his command on that occasion "stood like a stone wall," hence the sobriquet; captured Harper's Ferry with 11,000 federal prisoners; commanded a corps at Antietam; and was made lieutenant-general for his services in largely contributing to the federal defeat at Fredericksburg. In 1863, by a clever flank movement, he defeated the 11th corps of General Hooker's army at Chancellorsville; and on the evening of the same day was fired at by a patrol party of his own men, who mistook him and his staff, in the darkness, for a detachment of Union cavalry. He died of his wounds on May 10, 1863.

Jacobi (Ger. yä-kō'bē), Abraham, American physician, was born at Hartum, Westphalia, 1830. He studied at the Universities of Gricfswald and Göttingen; was graduated from Bonn, M.D., 1851; LL.D., University of Michigan, 1898; Columbia, 1900; Yale, 1905; Harvard, 1906. He settled in practice in New York, 1853; was professor of diseases of children, New York Medical College, 1860-65, and at New York University, 1865-70; later professor of diseases of children, College of Physicians and Surgeons. Author: Dentition and Its Derangements; The Raising and Education of Abandoned Children in Europe; Therapeutics of Infancy and Childhood; Intestinal Diseases, etc. Died in 1919.

Jacobi, Friedrich Heinrich, German philosopher, was born at Düsseldorf, 1743. He was trained for a mercantile career, but in 1772 was appointed finance officer for Jülich and Berg, and devoted himself to literature and philosophy. He elaborated no system of philosophy, but criticised all other philosophies from his special doctrine that by the "reason," not the understanding, we have immediate conviction or belief not only of the reality of objects perceived by the senses, but also of the reality of the highest verities that lie beyond the apprehension of sense. Died, 1819.

Jacobi, Karl Gustav Jakob, celebrated German mathematician, was born in Prussia, 1804. In 1829 he became a professor at Königsberg, and published his celebrated work, Fundamenta nova Theoriae Functionum Ellipticarum, for which he received the great medal of the Academy of Sciences of Paris. He also wrote a great number of memoirs on the different branches of the higher mathematics, chiefly on Series and Definite Integrals, and was a regular contributor to the celebrated Journal für reine und angewandt Mathematik of Crelle. Died, 1851.

Jacotot (zhä'kō'tō'), Jean Joseph, inventor of the "universal method" of education, was born at Dijon, France, 1770. The principles of his system are that the mental capacities of all men are equal; the unequal results of education depend almost exclusively upon will; everyone is able to educate himself, provided he is once started in the right way; knowledge should first be acquired through instinctive experience, or by the memory. He expounded his views in Enseignement Universel. Died, 1840.

Jacquard (zhä'kär'), Joseph Marie, French inventor, was born at Lyons, 1752. He attempted to establish a manufactory for weaving figured fabrics, planned several ingenious improvements in machinery, and brought to perfection the apparatus for figured weaving, which now perpetuates his name—the Jacquard loom. He resided at Lyons for many years, encountering much opposition from a prejudice excited against machinery, but eventually triumphed. He passed his latter years in tranquil retirement, and died in 1834. During his life he received the cross of the legion of honor, and in 1840 a public statue was erected to his memory at Lyons.

Jahn (yän), Friedrich Ludwig, the "Turnvater" or father of gymnastics, was born at Lanz in Prussia, 1778. In 1811 he started the first gymnasium in Berlin. His system, meant to revive patriotism, attracted the Prussian youth, and to the training thus obtained must be largely attributed the expulsion of the French. But the gymnasiums began to witness political gatherings, too liberal to please the Prussian government, and they were closed in 1818. Jahn, who had taken a prominent part in the movement, was arrested in 1819 and suffered five years' imprisonment. He was elected to the Frankfort national assembly in 1848. Died, 1852.

Jahn, Otto, German philologist, archæologist and classical editor, was born at Kiel, 1813. He lectured at Kiel, Griefswald and Leipzig. Deprived of his chair in 1851 for his part in the political movements of 1848-49, he became in 1855 professor of archæology at Bonn. He published works on Greek art, representations of ancient life on vases, a number of Latin and Greek classics, besides a Life of Mozart, and a number of masterly essays on music. Died, 1869.

James I. of England, VI. of Scotland, the only son of Mary, queen of Scots, and Henry, Lord Darnley, was born in Edinburgh, 1566. When his mother was forced to resign the crown, James was proclaimed king of Scotland, 1567. In 1578 the earl of Morton, then regent, was driven from power, and James assumed full control. In the winter of 1589 James went to Denmark, where he married Princess Anne, daughter of Frederick II., king of that country. By the death of Elizabeth, in 1603, James succeeded to the throne of England. He soon became unpopular with his new subjects. He really governed through his favorites, Kerr and Buckingham, both of them unpopular; and England's prestige as a power, which had been gained under Elizabeth, soon disappeared. The so-called King James Bible was completed during his reign. He has been described as two men in one—"a witty, well-read scholar, who wrote, disputed and harangued, and a nervous, driveling idiot who acted." Died, 1625.

James II. of England and VII. of Scotland, son of Charles I. and Henrietta Maria, was born in 1633. In 1648, during the civil war, he made his escape to France. He then entered the military service of Spain. At the restoration he was made lord high admiral of England. On the death of Charles II., 1685, James succeeded to the crown without opposition. On becoming king he promised to maintain the church and to respect the liberties of the people, but his government, nevertheless, was arbitrary and tyrannical; he paraded his Catholicism, persecuted the covenaters, subordinated English interests to French, permitted the "bloody assize," suspended the test act, violated the rights of the Universalists, gave church offices to Roman Catholics, and by these and many other acts of despotism made his deposition necessary; leading statesmen invited William of Orange to assume the throne, and James fled to France; an invasion of Ireland in 1689 ended in his defeat at the battle of the Boyne. He retired again to France, and lived at St. Germains until his death, 1701.

James IV. of Scotland, son of James III. and Margaret of Denmark, was born in 1473. His rule gave promise of being both vigorous and popular, while the personal beauty he possessed and his open frankness won the hearts of his people. In 1503 the king married Margaret, eldest daughter of Henry VII. of England, an alliance which led to the union of the two crowns just one hundred years later. Henry VIII. came to the English throne in 1509, and, in the disputes which followed, James invaded England with an army. He was met by the earl of Surrey, and in the battle which took place at Flodden, 1513, the king and many of his nobles were killed. He was forty-six years old, and had reigned twenty-six years.

James, Edmund James, American educator, was born in Jacksonville, Ill., 1855. He was educated at the Illinois state normal school and at Northwestern and Harvard Universities: Ph.D., 1877, University of Halle; LL.D., Cornell College, Wesleyan, Queen's College, professor of political and social science, University of Pennsylvania, 1884-95; professor of public administration, and director of extension division of the University of Chicago, 1896-1901; president of Northwestern University, 1902-04, and president University of Illinois 1904-20. Died, 1925. Author Relation of the Modern Municipality to the Gas Supply; The Legal Tender Decisions; Charters of City of Chicago; Growth of Great Cities in Area and Population; Government of a Typical German City—Halle; etc.

James, George Payne Rainsford, English historical novelist, was born in London, 1801. He was educated at Putney and in France, and by seventeen had written some Eastern tales, which found favor with Washington Irving. In all he published seventy-seven works, historical romances mostly, but also biographies, poems, etc. Died, 1860.

James, Henry, American author, was born in New York, 1843. He was educated in France and Switzerland, and at Harvard law school. He began his literary career as contributor to periodicals, 1866, and from 1869 he lived in England. Author: Confidence; Diary of a Man of Fifty; Washington Square; The Portrait of a Lady; Siege of London; Portraits of Places; Tales of Three Cities; A Little Tour in France; The Author of Beltraffio; The Bostonians; The Lesson of Balzac; American Scenes, etc. Died, 1916.

James, William, eminent American psychologist and philosophical writer, was born in New York, 1842. He was educated in private schools and by tutors, and at Lawrence scientific school, 1861-63; M.D., Harvard medical school, 1870; Ph.D. and Litt.D., Padua, 1893; LL.D., Princeton, 1896, Edinburgh, 1902, Harvard, 1905. He was professor of psychology, 1889-97, and professor of philosophy, 1897-1907, Harvard University. He was Gifford lecturer on natural religion, University of Edinbrugh, 1899-1901. Corresponding member of the French institute, Paris, royal Prussian academy of sciences; member National Academy of Sciences, etc. Author: Principles of Psychology, 2 vols.; The Will to Believe, and Other Essays in Popular Philosophy; Human Immortality—Two Supposed Objections to the Doctrine; The Varieties of Religious Experiences; Pragmatism—A New Name for Some Old Ways of Thinking, etc. Died, 1910.

Jameson (jām'sun), Mrs. (Anna Brownell Murphy), British writer, was born in Dublin, 1794. She was the daughter of an artist, and many of her books are about pictures, painters and other art matters. In 1823 she married Robert Jameson, and went with him to Canada, where he held a government office. Among her books are: Memoirs of Celebrated Female Sovereigns; Characteristics of Women; Memoirs of Italian Painters; The History of Sacred and Legendary Art; and Legends of the Madonna. She died in London, 1860.

Jameson, John Franklin, American educator, historian, was born in Boston, 1859. He graduated at Amherst College, 1879; Ph.D., Johns Hopkins, 1882; LL.D., 1902; Amherst, 1898; was head of department of history, University of Chicago, 1901-05, and director department of historical research, Carnegie institution, Washington, since 1905. He was managing editor of American Historical Review, 1895-1901 and again in 1905; president American historical associations, 1907-08. Author: Willem Usselinx, Founder of the Dutch and Swedish West India Companies, etc. He edited the Correspondence of John C. Calhoun; Editor of the historical publications of the Carnegie institution since 1905.

Jameson, Leander Starr, South African politician, was born at Edinburgh, 1853. He studied medicine there and at London, and began practice at Kimberley in 1878. Through Cecil Rhodes he engaged in pioneer work, was in 1891 made administrator of the South African company at Fort Salisbury, and won enormous popularity. During the troubles at Johannesburg between the Uitlanders and the Boer government, Jameson, who by order of Rhodes had concentrated the military forces of Rhodesia at Mafeking on the Transvaal frontier, started with five hundred troopers to support the Uitlanders, 1895. At Krugersdorp they were overpowered by an overwhelming force of Boers, and, sleepless and famishing, were compelled after a sharp fight to surrender, January 2, 1896. Handed over to the British authorities, Jameson was in July condemned to fifteen months' imprisonment, but was released in December. In 1900 he was elected to the legislative assembly, and was, from 1904 to 1908, premier of Cape Colony. Died, 1917.

Janet (zhā'nē'), Paul, French philosopher, was born in Paris, 1823. In 1864, he became professor of the history of philosophy at the Sorbonne, and a member of the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences. Died, 1899.

Janeway, Edward Gamaliel, physician, born in New Jersey, 1841. Graudated from Rutgers College, 1860, and received LL.D. from College of Physicians and Surgery, N. Y., 1864. Identified with Bellevue Hospital Medical College, first as curator, then as professor of pathological anatomy and later as dean. Died, 1911.

Jansen (jan'sen; D., yän'sen), Cornelius, sometimes called Jansenius, bishop of Ypres, in the Netherlands, and founder of the Jansenists, was born at Acquoi, near Leerdam in Holland, 1585. In 1636 he was made bishop of Ypres. He died in 1638, just as he had completed his great work, the Augustinus, in 3 vols., which sought to prove that the teaching of St. Augustine against the Pelagians and semi-Pelagians on grace, free-will, and predestination was directly opposed to the teaching of the Jesuit schools. On the publication of the Augustinus in 1640, it was received with loud clamor, especially by the Jesuits, and was prohibited by a decree of the inquisition in 1641; in the following year it was condemned by Urban VIII. in the bull In Eminenti.

Jastrow (yās'trō), Joseph, American educator, professor of psychology, University of Wisconsin. 1888-1928, was born at Warsaw, Poland, 1863. He was graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, 1882; Ph.D., Johns Hopkins, 1886. Author: Time-Relations of Mental Phenomena; Epitomes of Three Sciences, part author; Fact and Fable in Psychology; The Subconscious, etc.

Jastrow, Morris, Jr., American orientalist, professor of Semitic languages, and librarian, University of Pennsylvania, was born in Europe, 1861. He was graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, 1881; Ph.D., University of Leipzig, 1884, and also studied at other universities of Germany and France. He is a recognized authority on Semitic religions, languages and literatures. Author: Religion of the Babylonians and Assyrians, Editor: Jewish Encyclopædia; Encyclopædia Britannica; Hastings' Dictionary of Religions; Journal American Oriental Society and various other technical publications. Died, 1921.

Jay, John, American statesman and jurist was born in New York City, 1745, and was there admitted to the bar in 1768. In 1774, as a member of the first continental congress, he formed one of the committee of three which drew up the celebrated address to the people of Great Britain. He largely assisted in framing the New York state constitution; in 1777 was appointed chief-justice of New York, and in the following year became president of congress. He next took part in negotiating the treaty of peace entered into at Paris, 1783, between Great Britain and the United States. On his return he was appointed secretary of foreign affairs and in 1789 chief-justice of the United States supreme court. In 1794 he proceeded on a special mission to England, where he concluded a treaty which met with violent opposition from the anti-federalist party. He afterward held the governorship of New York state, and, after refusing a second nomination to the chief-justiceship, died, 1829.

Jebb, Sir Richard Claverhouse, British Greek scholar, was born at Dundee, Scotland, 1841. He was graduated from Trinity College, Cambridge, as senior classic in 1862, and was elected fellow. In 1869 he became public orator of the University, in 1875 professor of Greek at Glasgow, and in 1889 regius professor of Greek at Cambridge. In 1891 he was elected member of parliament for Cambridge University. His books include Characters of Theophrastus; The Attic Orators; Primer of Greek Literature; and his Bacchylides. But his greatest work is his translation of Sophocles. Died, 1905.

Jeejeebhoy (jē-jēb-hoi'), Sir Jamsetjee, Hindu philanthropist, was born at Bombay, India, 1783. He was taken into partnership by his father-in-law, a Bombay merchant, in 1800. By 1822 he had amassed 2,000,000 pounds, and began to exhibit a magnificent liberality. He contributed generously to various educational and philanthropic institutions in Bombay, and spent upward of a quarter of a million pounds in benevolence. Queen Victoria knighted him in 1842, and in 1857 he was made a baronet. Died, 1859.

Jefferson, Charles Edward, Congregational clergyman, was born at Cambridge, Ohio, 1860. He was graduated at Ohio Wesleyan University, 1882; School of Theology, Boston University, 1887; D.D., Oberlin, 1898; Union, 1898, Yale, 1903. He was ordained to the Congregational ministry, 1887; now pastor of Broadway tabernacle, New York. Author: Quiet Talks With Earnest People in My Study; The Minister as Prophet; Faith and Life; The World's Christmas Tree; The Old Year and the New; The New Crusade, etc.

Jefferson, Joseph, American actor, was born at Philadelphia, Pa., 1829. He came from a family of actors, and made his first appearance as a child in Pizarro. From 1856 to 1858 he played minor parts, and managed several theaters in the South, meanwhile visiting London. Shortly after he made his first substantial success as Dr. Pangloss in The Heir at Law, at New York. He toured Australia and New Zealand, 1861-65, returned by way of London, and played an engagement at the Adelphia theater in that city in an adaptation of Rip Van Winkle. He presented the same play in New York, 1866, and confined himself almost solely to it for fifteen years. In 1880 he produced The Rivals with himself as Bob Acres, and in the two last-named characters his great reputation was made on the American stage. He died at Palm Beach, Fla., 1905.

Jefferson, Thomas, third president of the United States, was born at Shadwell, Va., 1743. He graduated from William and Mary College, and studied law. In 1773, as a member of the assembly, he took a prominent part in the measures which resulted in the calling of the continental congress, to which he was sent as a delegate, and where he drew up the declaration of independence. During the war in defense of this declaration, he was governor of Virginia, and in 1784 was sent as minister to France. Returning in 1789, he was appointed, by Washington, secretary of state. In this capacity Jefferson led the party in favor of states' rights and a federal government of restricted and carefully defined powers. The other party took the name of Federalists; the former were first called Anti-Federalists, then Republicans, and finally adopted the title first given them as a reproach of Democrats.

When Washington retired, after eight years as president, Jefferson became the vice-president in 1797 under John Adams. The strife of these parties culminated in 1800, when Jefferson and Aaron Burr were elected president and vice-president, against John Adams the federal candidate. The most importance act of his administration was the purchase of Louisiana from France.

Though born and educated in the first rank of colonial life, he was a democrat in theory and practice; he held that "the world is governed too much," and that "that government is best which governs least." Though a large slaveholder, he labored for the prohibition of the slave trade and of slavery in the territory beyond the Ohio river, and advocated emancipation in Virginia.

His writings consist mostly of state papers and letters. His only literary work was his Notes on Virginia, published in 1782. His death occurred on the 4th of July, 1826, while the nation was celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the declaration of independence, which he had writen.

References.—The best edition of his Writings is that edited by P. L. Ford in 10 volumes. See biographies by Randall, Parton, Morse, in the "American Statesmen" series, and Schouler in the "Makers of America" series.

Jeffrey, Francis, Lord, Scottish critic and jurist, was born at Edinburgh, 1773. He studied at Glasgow and Oxford, and in 1794 was admitted to the Scottish bar, but as a whig made little progress for many years. In 1820 and again in 1823 he was elected lord rector of Glasgow University; in 1829 dean of the faculty of advocates. After the passing of the reform bill he was returned for Edinburgh, which he represented until 1834, when he was made a judge of the court of sessions. From 1815 he lived at Craigcrook, where he died in 1850. It is as literary critic and leader in a new departure in literary enterprise that Jeffrey holds his title to fame. Together with Sydney Smith, Francis Horner, and a few others, he established the Edinburgh Review, of which he was editor until 1829. His own contributions were very numerous and brilliant, if biased.

Jeffreys, George, Baron, English judge, was born at Acton near Wrexham, 1648, and was called to the bar in 1668. Hitherto nominally a Puritan, he now began to intrigue for court favor, was made solicitor to the duke of York, was knighted in 1677, and became recorder of London in 1678. His first exploit was the judicial murder of Algernon Sidney, but in every state-trial he proved subservient to the crown, thus earning the favor of James, who raised him to the peerage in 1685. Among his earliest trials were those of Titus Oates and Richard Baxter; later he was sent to try the followers of Monmouth, and hanged 331, transported 849 to the American plantations, and whipped or fined thirty-three others. He was lord chancellor from 1685 until the downfall of James. On James' flight he tried to follow his example, but was caught at Wapping, disguised as a sailor and sent to the Tower to save him from the mob. Here he died four months after, in 1689.

Jelliffe, Smith Ely, American physician, was born in New York, 1866. He was graduated at the Brooklyn polytechnic, 1886; medical department of Columbia University, 1889; Ph.D., Columbia, 1900. He began practice, 1889, spent one year in Europe, and since 1895 has practiced in New York. He is professor of mental diseases at Fordham University; visiting neurologist to the city hospital; and an authority in mental and nervous diseases. Author: Nervous Diseases in Butler's Diagnostics; Outlines of Pharmacognosy.

Editor and translator: Dubois' Psychoneuroses; and contributor to medical, botanical and pharmaceutical press.

Jenkin, Henry Charles Fleeming, British engineer and electrician, was born in Scotland, 1833. In 1859 he began experiments in conjunction with Sir William Thompson (Lord Kelvin) in electricity, and was specially occupied with practical work in cable telegraphy, 1858-73. He was made fellow of the royal society, 1865, became professor of engineering in University College, London, same year, and in 1868 professor at Edinburgh University. Died, 1885.

Jenks, Jeremiah Whipple, American economist and educator, professor of economics and politics, New York University since 1912. Was born in St. Clair, Mich., 1856. He was graduated from the University of Michigan, 1878; LL.D., 1903; Ph.D., University of Halle, 1885. Studied law, and was admitted to the Michigan bar. Expert agent of United States industrial commission on investigation of trusts and industrial combinations in the United States and Europe, 1899-1901; and consulting expert of United States department of labor on same subject. Special commissioner of war department, United States, to investigate questions of currency, labor, internal taxation and police in the Orient, 1901-02. Author: The Trust Problem; Citizenship and the Schools; Government Action for Social Welfare, etc.; also a member of the United States immigration commission. Died, 1929.

Jenner (jen'ẽr), Edward, English physician, discoverer of vaccination, was born at Berkeley vicarage Gloucestershire, 1749. He was apprenticed to a surgeon at Sodbury, in 1770 went to London to study under John Hunter, and in 1773 settled at Berkeley, where he acquired a large practice. In 1775 he began to investigate the truth of the traditions respecting cow-pox, became convinced that it was efficacious as a protection against small-pox. Many investigations delayed the actual discovery of the prophylactic power of vaccination, and the crowning experiment was made on May 14, 1796. This experiment was followed by many others; and in 1798 Jenner published his Inquiry Into the Causes and Effects of the Variolae Vaccinae. Yet the practice met with violent opposition for a year, when upward of seventy of the principal physicians and surgeons in London signed a declaration of their entire confidence in it. Parliament voted him in 1802 a grant of 10,000 pounds, and in 1807 a second grant of 20,000 pounds. He died at Berkeley, 1823.

Jeremiah, one of the four great prophets of Israel, author of the book in the Bible which bears his name, and of the book of Lamentations, flourished about 629-580 B. C. The writings of this prophet, dictated by him to Baruch, although arranged with little regard to order, exhibit great tenderness and elegiac beauty of sentiment, but lack the sublime grandeur of Isaiah. He often borrows from his poetic predecessors. Several of the Psalms have been attributed to him, especially by modern critics.

Jeritza, Maria, opera singer, born in Morania, Czecho-Slovakia. She studied, besides voice, the violin, cello, harp, and piano. She made her debut in Olmutz, Austria. After about ten years of opera at Vienna she came to New York and joined the Metropolitan Opera Company, in 1922. Since then she has appeared with great success in The Jewels of the Madonna, Tosca, Thais, and other opera, and has made extensive concert tours.

Jeroboam (jer-ō-bō'am), first king of the divided kingdom of Israel, ruled about 937-915 B. C. After Solomon's death he headed the successful revolt of the northern tribes against Rehoboam, and, as their king, established idol shrines at Dan and Bethel to wean away his people from the pilgrimages to Jerusalem. He reigned twenty-two years.

Jerome (jē-rōm'), Jerome Klapka, English humorist, writer, and lecturer, was born at Walsall, England, 1859. He has been at various times clerk, school-master, actor, journalist, and editor of Idler, with Robert Barr, 1892-97, and of To-day 1893-97. Author: Idle Thoughts of an Idle Fellow; Three Men in a Boat; Ruth; Wood Barrow Farm; Prude's Progress; The Second Thoughts of an Idle Fellow; Three Men on the Bummel; Tea Table Talk; Passing of the Third Floor Back; The Angel and the Author, etc. Died, 1927.

Jerome of Prague, the friend of Huss, was born at Prague between 1360 and 1370. He studied at Oxford, became a convert there to Wycliffe's doctrines, and zealousy taught them after his return home in 1407. Jerome entered with his whole soul into the contest carried on by Huss. When Huss was arrested at Constance, Jerome hastened to his side to defend him, but, being refused a safe-conduct, he set out to return to Prague, was arrested in Bavaria, 1415, and was brought back to Constance. He recanted, but withdrew his recantation, and went to the stake, 1416.

Jerome, Saint, Sophronius Eusebius Hieronymus, was born at Stridon, Dalmatia, at some period between 331 and 345. In 379 he was ordained and went in 382 to Rome, where he resided until 384, as secretary to the pope Damascus, and where, although already engaged in his great work of the revision of the Latin version of the Bible, he attained to great popularity and influence by his sanctity, learning and eloquence. Many pious persons placed themselves under his spiritual direction, the most remarkable of whom were Lady Paula and her daughter Eustochium. These ladies followed him to the holy land, whither he returned in 384. He permanently fixed his residence at Bethlehem in 386, Lady Paula having founded three convents and a monastery, the latter by Jerome himself. He is universally regarded as the most learned and eloquent of the Latin fathers. He died in 420.

Jerome, William Travers, American lawyer, was born at New York, 1859. He was educated at Williston seminary and Amherst college; was graduated at Columbus law school, 1884; admitted to the bar, 1884. He was justice of special sessions, 1895-1902. District attorney, New York county, 1901-09. During his career as district attorney he appeared in many noted trials, and attained a high rank as a lawyer and pleader. Author: Liquor Tax Law in New York.

Jerrold (jer'uld), Douglas William, English journalist, author, and wit, was born in London, 1803. He is chiefly remembered for his contributions to Punch, with which he was connected from 1841 until within a short time of his death. His best play is Black-eyed Susan, published in 1829; his best novels are St. Giles and St. James, and The Chronicles of Clovernook. An edition of his Works was published during his lifetime; and his Life and Remains was edited by his son, Blanchard Jerrold, about a year after the father's death in 1857.

Jerrold, William Blanchard, son of Douglas Jerrold, was born in London, 1826. He was a writer for many of the principal newspapers of London, and wrote also many plays, novels, books of travel and other works. Among his best books are Trips Through the Vineyards of Spain; The Story of Madge and the Fairy Content: London, illustrated by Doré, and Life of Napoleon III. He died in 1884.

Jevons (jev'unz), Frank Byron, English classical writer, subwarden of Durham University beginning 1902, was born in 1858. He was graduated at Wadham College, Oxford, and was University treasurer, 1898-1902. Author: Plutarch's Romance Questions; A Manual of Greek Antiquities; An Introduction to the History of Religion; Religion in Evolution, etc.

Jevons, William Stanley, English economist and logician, was born in Liverpool, 1835. He studied there and at University College, London. In 1866 he became professor of logic and political economy at Owens College, Manchester, and 1876-81 held the chair of political economy at University College, London. He was drowned in 1882 while bathing at Bexhill, near Hastings. He popularized the mathematical methods of Boole, and wrote many works on logic.

Jewett, Sarah Orne, American author, was born at South Berwick, Me., 1849, daughter of the late Dr. Theodore H. Jewett. She was educated at Berwick academy; Litt.D., Bowdoin College. Author: Country By-Ways; The Mate of the Daylight and Friends Ashore; Betty Leicester—A Story for Girls; Strangers and Wayfarers; The Life of Nancy; The Country of the Pointed Firs, etc. Died, 1909.

Joan of Arc (jō-an'; jōn uv ärk') or Jeanne d' Arc, was born at Domremy, 1412. A prophecy was current in Lorraine, that the kingdom should be saved by a virgin, which with her visions helped to define her mission. She dressed in a suit of white armor, mounted a black charger, bearing a banner of her own device. Her sword was one that she divined would be found buried behind the altar in the church of St. Catherine de Fierbois. Thus equipped she put herself at the head of an army of 6,000 men and advanced to Orleans. Her arrival fired the French, and, on April 29, 1429, she threw herself into the city. The English were compelled to retreat. On May 24, 143, with a handful of men she forced her way into Compiegne, which was then besieged by the forces of Burgundy; was left behind by her men, taken prisoner, and sold to the English by John of Luxembourg. She was carried to Rouen, the headquarters of the English, and flung into prison, arrainged before spiritual tribunal of Pierre Cauchon. Trial was disgraced by brutality. Burned at stake on May 30, 1431.

Joffre, Joseph Jacques Cesaire, Marshal of France, b. Rivesaltes, 1852; Educ. College of Perpignan; Ecole Polytechnic; 2d Lt. Franco-Prussian war; Capt. 1876; Major 1889; Lt.-Col. 1894; Col. 1897; Brigadier 1901; en. Div. 1905; served in China; organized defenses of Formosa; chief en. staff 1914; Com.-in-Chief, 1914-17; defeated Germans at the Marne. Visited U. S. in 1917 and received with great enthusiasm. He died in 1931.

John, Saint, the apostle, was born about 4 A. D., and was one of the earliest of Christ's disciples. During the crucifixion our Lord commended His mother to his care, and the apostle "took her to his own home." John afterward became bishop of Ephesus. According to Tertullian, he was plunged into a caldron of boiling oil during the persecution under Domitian, but received no injury. He was subsequently exiled to the island of Patmos, where he is said to have written the book of Revelation. He was also author of the gospel and epistles which bear his name. Died about 99.

John the Baptist, forerunner of Christ, was the son of the priest Zacharias and Elizabeth, the cousin of Mary, mother of our Lord. He baptized and preached repentance and forgiveness of sins. He had denounced Herod Antipas for taking Herodias, his brother Philip's wife, was flung into prison, where he was executed at the request of Salome, daughter of Herodias.

John II., Casimir, king of Poland, was born in 1609, the younger son of Sigismund III. During his reign Poland was attacked by Russia and Sweden, resulting in wars which terminated in the cessation of several provinces on the Baltic and Dnieper. His wife, intriguing for the son of the prince of Condé as successor to the throne, and the nobles contending among themselves, he abdicated at the diet of Warsaw, 1668, and retired to France, where he was kindly received by Louis XIV. Died, 1672.

John III., Sobieski, king of Poland, was born about 1624. He was sent to Paris to complete his education, and entered the musketeers of Louis XIV. under Condé; but in 1648 he returned to combat the revolted Cossacks. He fought bravely against them and against the Swedish and other invaders, and next to Czarniecki he was foremost in saving the country from ruin. In 1672 he defeated the Turks and Tartars, and when King Michael, being besieged by the Turks in Kamenetz, concluded an ignominious treaty, he caused its rejection by the senate, hastened to Podolia, and routed the Turks at Khotin, 1673. The king had died a few days before, and Sobieski was elected his successor in 1674. He resumed the war, and rescued the fortress of Trembowla, but subsequently at Zurawno, barely escaped surrender. In 1683 he hastened to the rescue of Vienna, which was besieged by an army of 300,000 Turks. Sobieski, after a triumphal entry into Vienna, pursued the enemy into Hungary, which was soon restored to the emperor. He afterward made attempts to conquer Wallachia, but failed. The last years of his life were embittered by civil as well as domestic troubles. Died, 1696.

John, king of England, surnamed Lackland, was born in 1166. He was the youngest son of Henry II., and the successor, in 1199, of Richard I., his brother. In 1203 he murdered his nephew Arthur at Rouen, and imprisoned Arthur's sister Eleanor, known as the damsel of Brittany, in Bristol castle. In 1215, on the demand of his barons, who were headed by Stephen Langton, now archbishop of Canterbury, he signed Magna Charta. Though John thus accepted the charter which has been solemnly ratified on thirty-eight different occasions by subsequent kings, yet he had no intention of being bound by it. He actually procured from the pope a bull annulling the charter, and introduced foreign soldiers to fight against the barons, who immediately offered the throne to Louis, son of Philip of France, an offer which was readily accepted, but which led to no result. During this reign the English lost nearly all their French possessions, even Normandy falling to the crown of France. Died, 1216.

John, king of Saxony, was born in 1801. He was the youngest son of Duke Maximilian of Saxony and Princess Carolina of Parma. His brother, Frederick Augustus II., dying without issue, in 1854, he became king. In the war of 1866 he took the side of Austria. The Prussians entered Saxony, and the Saxon army, having withdrawn to Bohemia, fought against them in the battle of Königgratz. Subsequently Saxony entered the North German confederation, and her troops took part in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71. Under the pseudonym Philalethes, John published a translation of Dante's Divina Commedia, with critical and historical notes, and left manuscript translations of seventy English poems. Died, 1873.

John II., king of France, surnamed "the good," the second son of the Valois family, was born in 1319. He succeeded his father, Philip VI. of Valois, in 1350. He commenced his reign by acts of despotism and cruelty. England, being appealed to by the friends of those whom he had slain, invaded France, when John was defeated by Edward, the Black Prince, at Poitiers in 1356, and carried to Bordeaux and then to London, where he was a prisoner for three years. He died in 1364.

John of Austria, or Don Juan d'Austria, natural son of the emperor Charles V., was born at Regensburg, about 1547. He was early taken to Spain, and after the death of his father was acknowledged by his half-brother Philip II. In 1570 he was sent with an army against the Moors in Granada, whom he completely expelled from the country. He sought to win the favor of the people by mildness; hard pressed for a time by William the Silent, he, with the help of Parma's troops, won the victory of Gembloux in 1577. But Philip now feared he might make himself king of the Netherlands, and Don John's death at Namur, 1578, was not without suspicion of poison.

John of Gaunt (gänt; gônt), or Ghent, fourth son of Edward III., who made him duke of Lancaster, was born in 1340, at Ghent. In the French wars he served with great bravery under his brother, Edward, the black prince. In 1359 he married Blanche, heiress of the duke of Lancaster, and himself became duke in 1362. Toward the end of his father's reign he became the chief man in the kingdom, and perhaps wished to succeed him; at any rate, the young king, Richard II., distrusted him and sent him on another wild expedition to recover his Castilian kingdom. This resulted in a treaty between John and Henry Trastamara, who had possession of the throne, by which John's daughter Catharine should succeed as queen of Castile. John of Gaunt died at London, 1399.

John of Salisbury, English schoolman, by Bishop Stubbs styled "for thirty years the central figure of English learning," was born at Old Sarum, about 1118. He studied at Paris and Chartres, and from 1150 lived at Canterbury, meanwhile often visiting Italy. From 1164 to 1170 he had to take refuge at Rheims, but he returned in time to witness Becket's murder. In 1176 he became bishop of Chartres. His Latin works include over 300 letters, the Policraticus, etc. Died, 1180.

John XXII., pope, otherwise, Jacques d'Use, was born at Cahors, France, about 1244. Attempting, after his election as pope in 1316, to carry out the vast policy of Gregory VII., he interposed his authority in the contest for the imperial crown between Louis of Bavaria and Frederick of Austria, supporting the latter and excommunicating his rival. He died at Avignon in 1334, having accumulated 18,000,000 gold florins.

John XXIII., pope, a Neapolitan named Balthazar Cossa, was born at Naples about 1360. He became chamberlain to Boniface IX., who in 1402 made him a cardinal. He succeeded Alexander in 1410. By the decree of a council held at Constance in 1414, John was deposed and imprisoned for four years, under charge of Lewis, duke of Bavaria. At the end of that time he was liberated, and found such favor with the existing pope, Martin V., that he was created by that pontiff cardinal-bishop of Tusculum, and dean of the sacred colleges, and allowed precedence over the other cardinals. He died at Florence, Italy, 1419.

Johnson, Andrew, seventeenth president of the United States, was born at Raleigh, N. C., 1808. He was self-educated, a tailor by trade, and made his entry into politics in 1840 as a presidential elector in Tennessee for Van Buren, the democratic candidate. In 1843 he became a member of congress, where for ten years he supported the policy of the democratic party. In 1853 he was elected governor of Tennessee, and again in 1855. In 1857 he was elected to the United States senate, and on the occupation of Nashville by the federals, 1862, was appointed by President Lincoln military governor of Tennessee. In this position he gave such satisfaction to the North that in 1864 he was nominated by the republican party for the office of vice-president, and was elected with President Lincoln, then reëlected for his second term. On April 14, 1865, by the assassination of President Lincoln, he succeeded to the presidency. Some indiscreet and violent speeches, during a tour to Chicago and St. Louis, turned the tide against him, and in the congressional elections his opponents triumphed by increased majorities. His vetoes were generally nullified by the two-thirds vote of both houses. In 1867 Johnson suspended Stanton, secretary of war, who was reinstated by the senate the following year. An attempt to gain possession of the war department during this quarrel led to the impeachment of the president in 1868, but he was acquitted by a single vote. Chief-Justice Salmon P. Chase, one of the most eminent American statesmen and jurists, presided at this remarkable trial. His term of office expired in 1869; and afterward he was elected United States senator, taking his seat in 1875. Died, 1875

Johnson, Clifton, author, illustrator, was born at Hadley, Mass., 1865. He was educated in the common schools there, 1870-80, and ten years later entered upon a literary career. Author: The New England Country; The Country School; The Farmer's Boy; Highways and Byways of the South; Highways and Byways of the Mississippi Valley. Illustrator: White's Natural History of Selbourne; Barrie's Window in Thrums; Burroughs' Year in the Fields, etc.

Johnson, Eastman, American artist, was born in Lovell, Me., 1824. He studied two years in royal Academy, Düsseldorf. Among many notable genre pictures are: The Kentucky Home; Husking Bee and several portraits of distinguished persons. He is represented in the Metropolitan museum of art and Lenox galleries, New York; Corcoran gallery, White House and treasury building, Washington; capitol at Albany; Knickerbocker, Century, and Union League clubs, chamber of commerce, etc., New York. Died, 1906.

Johnson, Sen. Hiram Warren (1866—), was born in California, studied law, admitted to bar, 1888. Elected Governor of California, 1911-19, on platform designed to free the state of the domination of the Southern Pacific Railroad; resigned to take seat in Senate, 1917-23. With Roosevelt, founded Progressive Party, 1912.

Johnson, Joseph French, American educator and economist, was born at Hardwick, Mass., 1853, and graduated at Harvard. He was engaged on the Springfield Republican, Chicago Tribune, Spokane Spokesman. Professor of Political Economy, New York University. Author: Money and Currency, Syllabus of Money and Banking. Editor. Died in 1925.

Johnson, Reverdy, American lawyer and politician, was born in Annapolis, Md., 1796. He began to practice in upper Marlboro, and in 1817 removed to Baltimore. From 1845 to 1849 he sat in the United States senate as a whig, but he supported the Mexican war beyond the lines of the political party to which he belonged. Later he was appointed attorney-general in President Taylor's cabinet. He again entered the United States senate in 1863, sustained the government throughout the Civil War, and, when peace was restored, argued in favor of the prompt readmission of the southern states. In 1868-69 he was minister to Great Britain. On his return from England he renewed his law practice. Died, 1876.

Johnson, Samuel, English writer and lexicographer, was born at Lichfield, 1709, where his father was a bookseller. He was educated partly at Litchfield and partly at Sowbridge, and entered Pembroke College, Oxford, 1728. Here he remained for three years, and was compelled to leave the university without a degree. In 1731 Johnson became usher in a school in Market Bosworth, Leicestershire. Disgusted with the ill-treatment he received there he left, and was next employed in Birmingham in translating for a bookseller. Here in 1736 he married the widow of Mr. Porter, a mercer. His wife was twenty years his senior, but this disparity she compensated for by bringing her husband 800 pounds. Relying upon this capital he opened a classical boarding school, but procured only three pupils, one of whom was the celebrated Garrick. Disappointed in this enterprise, he started, in company with Garrick, for London. They reached the metropolis in 1737, where Johnson was employed by Cave, the founder and proprietor of the Gentleman's Magazine. In 1738 his poem London, an imitation of the third satire of Juvenal, was published. From 1740 to 1743 he wrote the parliamentary debates for the Gentleman's Magazine, and in 1747 issued the prospectus of his English Dictionary, for which he was to receive 1,575 pounds. In 1750 he commenced his periodical, The Rambler, and in 1755 his great Dictionary appeared. For this work the University of Oxford awarded him the degree of M.A. On the death of his mother in 1759, Johnson wrote the story of Rasselas to pay her funeral expenses. In 1762 a pension of 300 pounds per annum was granted to him by the king, and subsequently he received the title of doctor of laws from both the Universities of Dublin and Oxford. In 1781 he published his Lives of the Poets, and, after a life spent in incessant literary labor, died at his house in Bolt-court, Fleet street, London, 1784.

Johnson, Tom Loftin, American politician and reformer, was born at Georgetown, Ky., 1854. He became clerk in street railway office, Louisville, Ky., 1869-75. He invented several street railway devices; bought a street railway in Indianapolis; later acquired large street railway interests in Cleveland, Detroit, and Brooklyn. He also engaged in the business of iron manufacturing in Cleveland. Was member of congress, 1891-95, prominent advocate of the Single-tax theories of late Henry George; he gave much attention to taxation questions and municipal reform. He was mayor of Cleveland, 1901-10, and during his tenure of office gained national prominence by his campaign for a three-cent fare on the Cleveland street railway system, which, however, failed in 1909. Died, 1911.

Johnston, Albert Sydney, American general, was born in Kentucky, 1803, and was graduated at West Point, 1826. In 1837 he superseded General Houston as commander-in-chief of the Texan army. In 1857 he commanded the expedition sent against the Mormons of Utah; and in 1860 was made military commander of the department of Kentucky and Tennessee by the confederate government. After the surrender of Fort Donelson he formed a junction with the army of General Beauregard, and fell in the battle of Shiloh, 1862.

Johnston, Alexander, Scottish painter, was born at Edinburgh, 1815, and first exhibited at the royal academy in 1836. His earlier pieces were derived from Scottish song and story: The Covenanter's Burial. Then followed: The Arrest of John Brown the Lollard; The Pressgang; John Bunyan in Bedford Jail; The Cotter's Saturday Night, etc. He died at Hampstead, 1891.

Johnston, Alexander, American historian, was born at Brooklyn, N. Y., 1849. He was graduated at Rutgers College, 1870; was admitted to the bar, 1876; was professor of political economy and jurisprudence at Princeton from 1883 until his death in 1889. He wrote: History of American Politics; The Genesis of a New England State; History of the United States; The United States: Its History and Constitution, etc.

Johnston, Sir Harry Hamilton, English traveler and writer, was born at Kennington, London, 1858. He was graduated at King's College, London; was a student at the royal academy of arts, 1876-80. He traveled in North Africa, 1879-80; explored Portuguese West Africa and River Kongo, 1882-83; commanded a scientific expedition of the royal society to Mount Kilimanjaro, 1884; made an expedition to Lakes Nyasa and Tanganyika, which led to the founding of the British Central Africa protectorate, 1889; commissioner and consul-general, 1891; consul-general of regency of Tunis, 1897-99; special commissioner, commander-in-chief and consul-general for Uganda protectorate, etc., 1899-1901. Author: Essays on the Tunisian Question; The Uganda Protectorate; British Mammals; The Nile Quest; Liberia; George Grenfell and the Congo, etc. Died. 1927.

Johnston, Joseph Eggleston, American soldier, was born in Virginia, 1807. He was graduated at West Point, 1829; served in the Mexican war, 1846-47; and was commissioned quartermaster-general of the United States army, 1860. He joined the confederate army as a brigadier-general at the outbreak of the Civil War, served with distinction throughout that conflict, and in 1865 was in command of the army of the Tennessee. He published a volume of memoirs, chiefly military, in 1874. Died, 1891.

Johnston, Joseph Forney, lawyer, United States senator, was born in North Carolina, 1843. He left school to join the confederate army as a private in 1861; served during the war, was wounded four times, and rose to the rank of captain. After the war he was admitted to the bar; practiced law seventeen years; was a banker ten years; and was elected governor of Alabama in 1896, reëlected in 1898, serving four years. He was unanimously elected to the United States senate from Alabama to fill out the unexpired portion of the term of Hon. E. W Pettus, deceased, ending 1909, also for the term 1909-15. Died, 1913.

Johnston, Mary, American novelist, was born at Buchanan, Botetourt county, Va., 1870, daughter of John William Johnston. She was educated at home, and exhibited literary talent at an early age. Author: Prisoners of Hope; To Have and To Hold; Audrey; Sir Mortimer; The Goddess of Reason, etc. Died, 1936.

Joinville (zhwaN'vēl), Jean, Sire de, French historical writer, was born in 1224, and became sénéschal to the count of Champagne and king of Navarre. When almost eighty he undertook his delightful Vie de Saint Louis. His style conforms closely to his character; it is veracious, flowing, naïve, often singularly expressive. Died, 1317.

Jokai (yō'ko-ē), Maurice, Hungarian novelist, was born at Komorn, Hungary, 1825. He published his first book in 1845, and took part as a journalist in the revolution of 1848. In 1863 he entered the Hungarian parliament, and during his long career there was one of the principal supporters of Koloman Tisza, 1875-90. He wrote about 200 novels. Died, 1904.

Joliet (Fr. zhō'lyā'; Eng., jō'li-et), Louis, French-Canadian explorer, one of the early explorers of the Mississippi, was born at Quebec, 1645. He studied for the priesthood at the Jesuit College, Quebec. With Marquette he was selected to explore the western country and to push through to the Mississippi. They started West in May, 1673, reaching the Mississippi at the mouth of the Wisconsin in June. They floated down the Mississippi, passing the mouths of the Missouri and the Ohio, and going far enough to be sure that the river flowed into the gulf of Mexico. Joliet upset his canoe on his way back, losing all his maps and papers, so that the only accurate report of the expedition was Marquette's. Few men have contributed more to the geography of that time than did Joliet. Died, 1700.

Jolly, Philipp von, physicist, was born in 1809 at Mannheim, Germany. He was educated at the universities of Vienna, Berlin, and Heidelberg, and was later professor at Heidelberg and Munich. His inventions were numerous, including the Jolly or spring balance for determining specific gravity, the air thermometer and the mercury air pump. He died in 1884.

Jolson, Al., actor, was born in Washington, D. C., May 26, 1886. He made his first appearance on the stage in 1899 as a member of a mob. He worked up to his present exalted position at the height of the entertainment stage through vaudeville, minstrel shows. He made his first Winter Garden (New York) appearance in 1911 in La Belle Paree. He has starred in talking moving pictures, including The Jazz Singer and The Singing Fool.

Joly de Lotbiniere, Sir Henry Gustave, Canadian statesman, was born in 1829. He was educated at the Sorbonne, Paris, France, and admitted to the bar of Quebec, 1855; queen's counsel, 1878; premier of Quebec, 1878-79; leader of opposition, 1883-85; vice-chairman, Dominion liberal convention, 1883; minister of inland revenue for Dominion of Canada, 1896-1900; and lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, 1900-06. He always took an active interest in forestry, and was vice-president of the American forestry congress, 1885. He published various writings on forestry and on the metric system. Died in 1908.

Jomini (zhō'mē'nē), Henri, Baron, noted Swiss soldier and military writer, was born at Payernes Switzerland, 1779. When very young he entered the Swiss guard of Louis XVI., but when it was disbanded returned to his own country, and before he was twenty years old was made head of the war department. In 1812 he was invited by Napoleon to join the campaign against Russia, and was appointed historian of the grand army. When the cause of Napoleon was almost lost he resented an affront he had received by going over to the allies. Napoleon bore him no ill-will for this course, saying, "He was not a Frenchman, and there was no love of country to retain him." He is known now chiefly by his works on military history and the art of war. He died at Passy, near Paris, 1869.

Jones, Henry Arthur, English dramatic author, was born at Grandborough, England, 1851. He was educated at Winslow, Bucks; hon. M.A. from Harvard University, 1907. Author: A Clerical Error; The Rogue's Comedy; The Physician; The Liars; The Manœuvres of Jane; Carnac Sahib; The Lackey's Carnival; Mrs. Dane's Defence; The Princess's Nose; The Idol; Whitewashing Julia; Joseph Entangled; The Chevalier; The Heroic Stubbs; The Hypocrites; The Evangelist; The Renascence of the English Drama; essays. Died, 1929.

Jones, Inigo, English architect, was born in London about 1573. At Venice his attention was drawn to the works of Palladio, which awoke in him a passion for architecture, to which his attention was thenceforward wholly directed. Having been appointed first architect to Christian IV. of Denmark, when that monarch visited James I. in England, Jones attended him, remained there, and became architect to the queen. In 1620 he was named one of the commissioners for repairing St. Paul's cathedral, and in the following reign he erected the banqueting-house at Whitehall. He wrote a book on Stonehenge. Died, 1652.

Jones, Jenkin Lloyd, independent minister, editor, and lecturer, was born at Cardiganshire, South Wales, 1843. He served as a private in the 6th Wisconsin battery for three years in the Civil War; was graduated from Meadville, Pa., theological seminary, 1870; was nine years pastor of All Souls church, Janesville, Wis.; secretary of western Unitarian conference for nine years; organized and was first secretary of western Unitarian Sunday-school society; in 1878, with others, established Unity, a weekly paper, now organ of the congress of religions, and was its editor since 1879; organized and until 1882 was pastor of All Souls church, Chicago. Died, 1918.

Jones, John Paul, American naval commander, was born at Arbigland, in Scotland, 1747. His original name was John Paul. He settled in Virginia, assuming the name of Jones. When the congress, in 1775, resolved to fit out a naval force, he offered his services; and, visiting the British coast in a brig of eighteen guns, performed some remarkably bold exploits and took advantage of his familiarity with the scenes of his boyhood to make a hostile visit to the shores of the Solway Firth. In 1779 he was appointed to the command of a small squadron of French ships, displaying the American flag, with which he again visited the British coasts, causing great alarm and taking some prizes. Off Flamborough he fell in with a fleet of forty-one British merchantmen, convoyed by the forty-gun Serapis and the twenty-gun Countess of Scarborough. Jones lashed his Bon Homme Richard to the Serapis and after three hours of desperate fighting compelled her surrender, after which, his own ship sinking, he transferred his crew to the Serapis. In 1787 he accepted an appointment in the Russian service, and the command of a fleet at the mouth of the Dnieper, with which he took an active part in the Turkish war. He died at Paris, 1792.

Jones, Samuel Milton, American olitical reformer, known as "Golden Rule" Jones because of his persistent advocacy of that practice in politics and in business, was born in Wales, 1846. Brought to America in 1849, he worked as a boy in the oil fields. He established large manufacturing plants at Toledo, Ohio, and gained an immense fortune and a splendid reputation in business. Elected as a republican mayor of Toledo in 1897, he was reëlected on an independent ticket in 1899, 1901, and 1903; used his office to defeat graft and dishonesty and to secure the rights of the common citizen. Died, 1904.

Jones, Wesley L., lawyer, United States senator, was born near Bethany, Ill., 1863. He was graduated at Southern Illinois College, 1886; read law in Chicago, and moved to the territory of Washington just before its admission as a state, 1889. He first worked in a real estate office; began law practice, 1890. He took part as speaker in Blaine campaign, 1884, and Harrison campaign, 1888, in Illinois, and after that in every campaign in Washington. He was member of congress from the state-at-large, 1899-1909, and was elected to the senate for the terms 1909-27. Died, 1933.

Jones, Sir William, English orientalist, was born in London, 1746. In 1765 he became tutor to the son of Earl Spencer; in 1774 was called to the bar, and in 1776 became commissioner of bankrupts. In 1783 he obtained a judgeship in the supreme court of judicature in Bengal, and was knighted. He at once devoted himself to Sanskrit, whose startling resemblance to Latin and Greek he was the first to point out in 1787. He established the Asiatic society of Bengal in 1784, and was its first president. He died at Calcutta, 1794. There is a monument to his memory, erected by the East India company, in St. Paul's cathedral.

Jonson, Benjamin, or Ben, English dramatist, was born at Westminster, about 1573, and was educated at Westminster school. The first piece that brought him into prominence was Every Man in His Humor, published in 1598. The best of his subsequent productions are Volpone, or the Fox, The Silent Woman, and The Alchemist. He also composed two tragedies, Sejanus and Catiline's Conspiracy. His Masques, written for the courts of James and Charles, are very graceful. Jonson had a pension from these monarchs, but his improvidence involved him in difficulties, and he died in poverty, 1637.

Jordaens (yôr'dăns), Jakob, Flemish painter, was born at Antwerp, 1593. He ranks next to Rubens among Flemish painters, and was master in the guild of St. Luke. He excelled in humorous scenes of Flemish life, also painted scriptural and mythological subjects. Among his numerous works are: Jesus in the Midst of the Doctors; The Adoration of the Shepherds; The Satyr and the Man Who Blew Hot and Cold, etc. Died, 1678.

Jordan, David Starr, American naturalist and educator, was born at Gainesville, N. Y., 1851. He was graduated at Cornell University, M.S., 1872; M.D., Indiana Medical College, 1875; Ph.D., Butler University, 1878; LL.D., Cornell, 1886, Johns Hopkins, 1902; president of Leland Stanford University 1891-1913; chancellor 1913, now emeritus. He was also United States commissioner in charge of fur seal investigations, etc. Author: A Manual of Vertebrate Animals of Northern United States; Standeth God Within the Shadow; The Philosophy of Despair; The Blood of the Nation; Food and Game Fishes of North America, with B. W. Evermann; A Guide to the Study of Fishes; Highlights of Geography; N. America, Europe. Died, 1931.

Joseph, favorite son of Jacob by his wife Rachel, who excited the envy of his elder brothers and was by them sold into Egyptian slavery, was born in Haran and died in Egypt. He flourished about the nineteenth century B. C. Having acquired the confidence of Pharaoh through his successful interpretation of dreams, he was placed as viceroy at the head of the arrangements for provisioning the kingdom during seven consecutive years of famine, and was thus enabled to preserve, in the persons of his father and brothers, with their families, the future Israelitish nation. After his death his body was embalmed and carried up into Canaan by the Israelites at their exodus.

Joseph I., emperor of Germany, was born at Vienna, 1678, and was crowned king of Hungary in 1687. He then succeeded his father, Leopold I., as emperor of Germany in 1705. He granted privileges to the Protestants, and, in alliance with Britain, prosecuted successfully the war of the Spanish succession against France, under command of Prince Eugene and the duke of Marlborough. He died in 1711.

Joseph II., emperor of Germany, son of Francis I. and Maria Theresa, was born in 1741. In 1764 he was elected king of the Romans, and after his father's death, in 1765, emperor of Germany. As soon as he found himself in full possession of the government of Austria he declared himself independent of the pope, and prohibited the publication of any new papal bulls without his placet. He suppressed 700 convents, reduced the number of the regular clergy from 63,000 to 27,000, prohibited papal dispensations as to marriage, and in 1781 published the edict of toleration for Protestants and Greeks. He also abolished serfdom, reörganized taxation, and curtailed the feudal privileges of the nobles. In 1788 he engaged in an unsuccessful war with Turkey; and the vexation caused by this, and by revolts in his dominions, hastened his death, 1790.

Josephine, Marie Josephe Rose Tascher de la Pagerie, first empress of the French, was born in Martinique, 1763. She married first the Vicomte de Beauharnais, by whom she became mother of Eugene Beauharnais, and Hortense, mother of Napoleon III. Her husband perished during the reign of terror, and she married, in 1796, Napoleon Bonaparte, the newly-appointed commander-in-chief of the army of Italy. Sharing her husband's fortunes, she became in time the occupant of an imperial throne, which she adorned by her beauty, grace and womanly virtues. Failing, however, to afford an heir to the new monarchy, Napoleon resolved to divorce her, which act was consummated in 1809. Josephine thereupon retired to her château at Malmaison. Died, 1814.

Josephus (jō-sē'fus), Flavius, celebrated Jewish historian, was born at Jerusalem, 37 A. D. As a dependent of the Flavian family, he assumed his name of Flavius. His Antiquities of the Jews, in twenty books, gives an account of Jewish history from the creation of the world to 66 A. D. A remarkable passage in this work relating to Jesus Christ is now believed to be spurious. His other works are: History of the Jewish War and an Autobiography. He died about 100 A. D.

Joshua (josh'ū-a), celebrated Hebrew warrior under whose leadership the land of Canaan was conquered, was the son of Nun, of the tribe of Ephraim, and was born in Egypt. The so-called book of Joshua, in its present form, containing an account of the conquest and division of the "land of promise," is of composite structure. The compiler made copious use, especially in the earlier chapters, of documents drawn up during the period of the conquest. He died about 1425 B. C.

Josiah (jō-sī'a), king of Judah, succeeded his father Amon at eight years of age, and flourished about 649-609 B. C. He reëstablished the worship of Jehovah, and instituted the rites in the newly-discovered "book of the law." He fell at Megiddo attempting to check Pharaoh-Necho's advance against the Assyrians.

Joubert (you'bert), Petrus Jacobus, Boer general and statesman, was born in Cape Colony, 1831. He was a farmer and ranchman; became a member of the Volksraad; was attorney-general in 1870; and in 1874 was acting-president. He was one of the triumvirate who organized a Transvaal revolt against the British government in 1880, held the chief command in the engagements at Laing's Nek, Ingogo river, and Majuba hill. In 1899 he was commander-in-chief of the Boer forces in the war with England. He conducted the siege of Ladysmith, but was forced to retire on account of ill-health. He died 1900.

Jouffroy (zhoo'frwä'), Theodore Simon, French philosopher, was born at Pontets in the Jura, 1796. He studied under Cousin, and from 1817 taught philosophy in Paris, until in 1838 he exchanged his chair for the post of librarian to the university. The lucid interpreter of the Scottish philosophers, Reid and Dugald Stewart, he translated their works. His own best books were Mélanges Philosophiques, Cours au Droit Natural, and Cours d'Esthétique. Died, 1842.

Joule (joul) James Prescott, English physicist, was born at Salford, England, 1818. He was a pupil of Dalton's, and devoted his time to physical and chemical research, made discoveries in connection with the production of heat by voltaic electricity, demonstrated the equivalence of heat and energy, and established on experimental grounds the doctrine of the conservation of energy. Died, 1889.

Jourdan (zhoor'dăn'), Jean Baptiste, Comte, French marshal, was born at Limoges, France, 1762. In 1797 he became president of the council of five hundred, but was expelled in 1799, owing to his opposition to Bonaparte, by whom, however, he was afterward employed. He subsequently followed the fortunes of Joseph Bonaparte in Naples and Spain. He owed his title to Louis XVIII., but joined in the revolution of 1830. Died, 1833.

Jowett (jou'et), Benjamin, English classical scholar, master of Balliol College, Oxford, was born at Camberwell, 1817. He was a fellow and tutor of his college until his election to the mastership in 1870. He wrote On the Interpretation of Scripture, a commentary on certain epistles of St. Paul; but he achieved his greatest literary successes by his translation of Plato's Dialogues, the History of Thucydides, and the Politics of Aristotle. Died, 1893.

Joy, George William, British artist, was born at Dublin, Ireland, 1844. He was educated at Harrow, and studied at Kensington, the royal academy, and at Paris under Charles Jalabert and Bonnat. Pictures: Domenica; Chess-players; Laodamia; Young Nelson's First Farewell; Wellington at Angers; The Death of General Gordon, and many portraits. He obtained gold medals at Paris, Munich and Berlin, and also the Chicago medal.

Joyce, James, Irish writer and leader of the modern school of psychological impressionism, was born in Dublin, 1882. He was educated at Royal University, Dublin. Forced into exile for his religious, anti-national, and artistic opinions, he has lived in Rome, Trieste, and Paris; in the latter city he finished and brought out his valuable work of fiction, the radically conceived and executed Ulysses, February, 1922. His other works include Dubliners, short stories, A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man, the introductory study to Ulysses, and Exiles, a play.

Juarez (hwä'rās), Benito, Mexican politician, was born in Oaxaca, 1806, of Indian parents. He became an advocate, and was governor of his native state in 1847-52. In 1861 he entered the capital, and was elected president for four years. In 1866 the French emperor declared war against Juarez, who retreated to the northern frontier; but, on the withdrawal of the French, he reëntered Mexico City in 1867, the emperor, Maximilian, having meanwhile been shot by court-martial. Juarez was elected president again in 1871, though the risings became fiercer and more frequent. He died in 1872.

Juch (yōōk), Emma Johanna Antonia (Mrs. Francis L. Wellman), operatic singer, was born during the sojourn of her parents in Vienna, Austria-Hungary, 1863, daughter of Justin Juch. She studied three years with Murio-Celli; made her début in concert at Chickering hall, N. Y., and her operatic début in her majesty's grand Italian opera, London, 1881, as Felina in Mignon. Later she sang during three seasons under Colonel Mapleson in soprano rôles, alternating with Nilsson as Elsa in Lohengrin, under management of Theodore Thomas. Was prima donna with the American opera company three seasons, and since then has sung in concerts, and in the Emma Juch English opera company.

Judson, Harry Pratt, American educator, president of the University of Chicago, after 1907, was born in Jamestown, N. Y., 1849. He was graduated at Williams College, 1870; LL.D., 1893; LL.D., 1903, Queens University, Canada. He was teacher and principal of high school, Troy, N. Y., 1870-85; professor of history, University of Minnesota, 1885-92; and head professor of political science and dean of the faculties of arts, literature and science, Chicago University, 1892-1907. Author: The Latin in English; The Mississippi Valley, in Shaler's United States of America; The Young American; The Government of Illinois. Died, 1927.

Julian (jōōl'yan) jōō'li-an), or Julianus, Flavius Claudius, surnamed the Apostate, Roman emperor, 361-63, was born in Constantinople, probably 331 A. D. In 355 he was declared Cæsar, and sent to Gaul, where he obtained several victories over the Germans; and in 316 the troops in Gaul revolted from Constantius and declared for Julian. He took from the Christian churches their riches and divided them among his soldiers. He sought likewise to induce the Christians, by flattery or by favor, to embrace paganism. His malice was further evinced by extraordinary indulgence to the Jews, and an attempt to rebuild the temple at Jerusalem, that the prophecy of Christ might be falsified; but the design was frustrated. He did not long survive his disappointment, being killed in 363 in his expedition against the Persians.

Julien (zhü'lyaN'), Stanislas Aignan, Chinese scholar, was born at Orleans, France, 1799. He became at twenty-one assistant professor at the Collège de France. He gave himself with such zeal to the study of Chinese that in less than a year he was able to make a Latin translation of Mencius. He succeeded Abel Rémusat as professor of Chinese at the Collège de France, 1832. Julien produced admirable French versions of specimens of the Chinese drama and of Chinese romances, as well as a collection of Indian novels. His Syntaxe Nouvelle de la Langue Chinoise appeared 1869-70. Died, 1873.

Julius II., Pope (Cardinal Giuliano della Rovere), was born in Italy, 1443, became pope in 1503. He endeavored to extend the papal territory, and, after driving Cæsar Borgia from the Romagna, formed the league of Cambrai with Maximilian and Louis XII. against Venice in 1508. In 1511 the holy league was formed, and the French army driven back over the Alps. He sanctioned the marriage of Henry VIII. with Catharine of Aragon, commenced to rebuild St. Peter's at Rome, and was the patron of Michelangelo and Raphael. Died, 1513.

Junot (zhü'nō'), Andoche, marshal of France, was born at Bussy-le-Grand, 1771, and distinguished himself in the early wars of the republic. In 1804 he was made governor of Paris; in 1807 was appointed to the command of the army of Portugal. He quickly made himself master of all the strong places in the kingdom, was created Duc d'Abrantès, and appointed governor of Portugal. He served in Germany and Russia, and, made one of the scapegoats for the Russian disaster, was sent to govern Illyria. Becoming deranged, he was taken to his father's house near Dijon, threw himself from a window, 1813, and died soon afterward.

Jusserand (zhü's'-rāN'), Jean Adiren Antoine Jules, French diplomat and man of letters, French ambassador at Washington since 1902, was born at Lyons, 1855. He was educated at Lyons and Paris, and entered the foreign office in 1876. LL.D., Harvard. He was councillor of the French embassy at London, 1887-90; member of the legion of honor, 1883, and minister at Copenhagen, 1898. Author: Les Anglais au moyen âge; La Vie Nomade et les Routes d'Angleterre au xiv. siecle; Le Roman au temps de Shakespeare; Histoire littéraire du Peuple anglais; Les sports et jeux d'exercice dans l'ancienne France, etc. Died, 1932.

Jussieu (zhü'syü'), Antoine Laurent de, French botanist, was born at Lyons, France, 1748. He reformed the arrangement of the gardens and collections of plants under his uncle's ideas in regard to the natural method. For thirty years he continued to develop his novel views; and when his Genera Plantarum, which he began in 1778, was completed in 1789, the natural system was finally established as the true basis of botany. In 1793 he became professor of botany in the newly organized Jardin des Plantes, where he continued to teach until 1826, when blindness compelled him to resign his chair to his son Adrien. Died in Paris, 1836.

Justin, surnamed the Martyr, was born at Shechem in Samaria about 100 A. D., and was successively a stoic and a Platonist; and after his conversion to Christianity wandered about, arguing for the truth of the new faith. At Rome, between 150 and 160, he wrote the Apologia of Christianity addressed to the emperor, followed by a second one. He is said to have been martyred about 165 A. D.

Justinian (jus-tin'i-an) the Great (Flavius Anicius), nephew of the emperor Justin, was born 483 A. D., in the village of Tauresium. His reign, which extended from 527 over a period of thirty-eight years, was the most brilliant in the history of the eastern empire. Immediately on his accession he compiled a code which comprised all the constitutions and laws of his predecessors, now known as the Code of Justinian. He died in 565.

Juvenal, or Juvenalis, Decimus Junius, celebrated Latin poet and satirist, was born in Aquinum, about 60 A. D. His satires, sixteen in number, are written in indignant scorn of the vices of the Romans under the empire, in the descriptions of which the historian finds a portrait of the manners and morals of the time. He practiced at Rome as an advocate, and, it is thought, also visited Egypt. Died about 128 A. D.

Kalakaua (kä'lä-kou'ä), David, king of the Hawaiians, 1874-91, was born in Honolulu, 1836, and was descended from Keawe, an ancient king of the islands. In 1860 he visited California. On the death of Lunalilo, who appointed no successor, Kalakaua was elected king in 1874 by the legislature, over Emma, queen dowager and relict of Kamehameha IV. In 1887 he granted a new constitution. Died, 1891.

Kames (kāmz), Henry Home, Lord, Scottish philosopher and critic, was born at Kames in Berwickshire, 1696. He was admitted to the bar in 1723, and appointed to the bench as Lord Kames in 1752. Besides books on Scotch laws, he published Essays on Morality; An Introduction to the Art of Thinking; Elements of Criticism, his best-known work; and Sketches of the History of Man. Died, 1782.

Kamimura, Hikonojo, Japanese admiral, was born in Satsuma, 1850. He commanded a cruiser in the China-Japanese war, 1894-95, was promoted vice-admiral, 1903, and at the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war was placed in command of the second Japanese squadron. In 1904 he sank the Russian cruiser Rurik off Ulson, Korea, and gained a decisive victory over the Russian squadron. Died, 1916.

Kane, Elisha Kent, arctic explorer, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1820. He entered the United States navy as a surgeon, in which capacity he visited China, India, the East Indies, and, under leave of absence, Arabia, Egypt, Greece, and western Europe. In 1850 he commenced his career of arctic discovery as surgeon, naturalist, and historian to the first Grinnell expedition. In the spring of 1853 he was again sent out, this time as commander of a second Grinnell expedition, in which he achieved important results. Died, 1857.

Kant, Immanuel, celebrated German philosopher, the founder of the "critical" or Kantian philosophy, was born at Konigsberg, Prussia, 1724, died at the same place 1804. He early showed great application to study, and was sent to the Collegium Fredericianum, and then to the university of his native city. Leaving the university after three years, he engaged in teaching, and it was not till 1755 that he took his doctor's degree.

Soon after this he was appointed to a place in Konigsberg University, and lectured on logic, metaphysics, mathematics, and natural philosophy, to which, at subsequent periods, he added natural law, moral philosophy, natural theology, and physical geography. In 1770 he became a full professor, obtaining the chair of logic and metaphysics, a post that he occupied till 1797.

The philosophy of Kant profoundly influenced all subsequent philosophical speculations. Dissatisfied with the dogmatisms of Wolff and the skepticism of Hume, he set out to investigate the field of metaphysics for himself, and in the first place proceeded to the examination of the origin, extent and limits of human knowledge. According to him, part of our knowledge is knowledge a priori, or original, transcendental, and independent of experience; part of it is a posteriori priori, or based on experience. What he calls the "pure reason" has to do with the former.

His great work named the Kritik der reinen Vernunft—"Critique of Pure Reason," contains the foundation for his whole system of philosophy. In 1790 he published a supplementary work, the Kritik der Urtheilskraft—"Critique of the Power of Judgment." Far from rejecting experience, Kant considers the work of all our life but the action of our innate faculties on the conceptions which come to us from without. He proceeds in a similar way with morality; the idea of good and bad is a necessary condition, an original basis of morals, which is supposed in every one of our moral reflections, and not obtained by experience. He treats this part of his philosophy in his Kritik der praktischen Vernunft—" Critique of Practical Reason."

References.—The works of Kant above referred to are translated: The Critique of Pure Reason by Max Müller, by Meiklejohn, and by Morris; Kant's Theory of Ethics, by Abbott; the Critique of Judgment by Bernard. The fullest English account of Kant's philosophy is Caird's Critical Philosophy—a more compendious view. See also Adamson's Philosophy of Kant; Watson's The Philosophy of Kant as Contained in Extracts From His Own Writings; Wallace's Kant; Paulsen's Immanuel Kant; and Mahaffy's Kant's Critical Philosophy for English Readers.

Katsura (kä'tshoo-rä), Marquis Taro, Japanese statesman, premier of Japan, was born in the province of Coshiu, 1847. During the restoration era, in 1867, he distinguished himself in the civil war. In 1891 he was promoted to lieutenant-general, and in the following year was appointed to the command of the third division of the army. During the China-Japanese war he marched with his division through Korea to Manchuria; and later on served under General Nodzu. For his services he was created a viscount, and two years after promoted to the rank of general. He was premier of Japan from 1901 until 1906, covering the period of the war with Russia, and in 1906 was appointed a member of the high military council of Japan. Created marquis, 1907. He became premier again in 1908. Died, 1913.

Kauffman (kouf'mān), Angelica, Swiss historical and portrait painter, was born at Coire, Grisons, in the Tyrol, 1741. In 1781 she married the Italian painter Zucchi, and, returning to Rome, spent the remainder of her life in a circle of poets, artists and scholars. Died at Rome, 1807.

Kaulbach (koul'bäk), Wilhelm von, German painter, was born at Arolsen, 1805. He studied at Düsseldorf, Munich, and Rome, and from 1849 was director of the Munich Academy of Painting. For several years he was painting the vestibule of a new museum at Berlin with a cycle illustrating the progress of civilization. His last gigantic painting was the Sea-fight of Salamis at Munich. Died, 1874.

Kaunitz (kou'nits), Wenzel Anton, Prince von, Austrian statesman, was born at Vienna, 1711. He distinguished himself in 1748 at the congress of Aix-la-Chapelle, and as Austrian ambassador at the French court in 1750-52 converted old enmity into friendship. In 1753 he was appointed chancellor, and for almost forty years had the principal direction of Austrian politics. He took an active part in the ecclesiastical reforms of Joseph II., and was a liberal patron of arts and sciences. Died, 1794.

Kean, Charles John, British actor, was born in Waterford, Ireland, 1811, son of Edmund Kean. He was educated at Eton, and made his début at Drury Lane, 1827, but did not establish his reputation until 1838, when he acted as Hamlet, Richard III. and Sir Giles Overreach. In 1842 he married Miss Ellen Tree, a celebrated actress. His last appearance was as Louis XI. at Liverpool in 1867. Died, 1868.

Kean, Edmund, English actor, was born in London 1787, son of Nance Carey, a strolling actress. A stage cupid and a cabin-boy to Madeira, he, when about sixteen, turned a "stroller," and after ten years in the provinces made his first appearance as Shylock at Drury Lane in 1814. He at once took rank as the first actor of the day. A period of wonderful success followed. He was cordially received in 1827, after a twelve-months' visit to America; but both mind and body gave way, and, breaking down hopelessly in 1833, he died at Richmond in May of that year.

Keane, Augustus Henry, British ethnologist and geographer, emeritus professor of Hindustani, University College, London, was born at Cork, Ireland, 1833. He was educated in Jersey, Italy, Dublin, and Hanover, Germany, and traveled extensively in Europe, Asia, and North America. LL.D., St. Andrews University. Author and editor: Stanford's Asia, Africa, Central and South America; Ethnology; Man, Past and Present; The Gold of Ophir; The Boer States; The World's Peoples. Died in 1912.

Keane, John Joseph, American scholar and educator, Roman Catholic archbishop of Dubuque, Ia., beginning 1900, was born in Ballyshannon, Ireland, 1839. He came to the United States in 1846; was educated at St. Charles' College and St. Mary's seminary, Baltimore, Md. Ordained priest, 1866. Was active in organizing Roman Catholic societies, and was rector of the Catholic University of America, at Washington, 1886-97, when he resigned and went to Rome. Upon his return to America he was installed as bishop. Died, 1918. Author: Onward and Upward, etc.

Kearny (kär'nē), General Philip, American soldier, was born in New York, 1815. He was attached to the staff of General Scott, 1841-44, and distinguished himself in the Mexican war. Commanded the cavalry of the army of the Potomac in the peninsula campaign during the Civil War, in which he won an enviable reputation for courage and gallantry. He took an active part in the second battle of Bull Run and also at Chantilly, Va., where he was killed in 1862, by a confederate soldier while reconnoitering in front of his command.

Keats, John, English poet, was born in London, 1795. He was apprenticed to a surgeon at Edmonton, near London, and found time to cultivate that taste for poetry which he had exhibited from his boyhood; in 1817 he published a volume of juvenile poems, having already made several contributions to the London Examiner, then under the editorship of Leigh Hunt. In 1818 appeared his Endymion, a poetic romance, founded in part on the model of Fletcher's Faithful Shepherdess.

This work, though the production of a youth of little more than two-and-twenty, was severely criticised in the Quarterly Review, and in Blackwood's Magazine, the wrath of the reviewers being probably inspired by their hatred of the political party with which Keats had identified himself, and which was represented by Keat's friends, Hazlitt and Hunt. He profited, however, by the criticisms of his reviewers and in 1820 published his Eve of St. Agnes; his odes to The Nightingale and The Grecian Urn; and the fragments of Hyperton, taken, like Endymion, from mythological sources, and written in an airy strain of classic imagery, characterized by much pensive quiet beauty. But already consumption had taken hold of the poet; he went to Naples, from there to Rome, where he died, 1821.

Keble (kē'b'l), John, English clergyman and poet, was born in 1792. At the age of fifteen he entered Corpus Christi College, Oxford, where he won several prizes and otherwise distinguished himself. In 1827 he published his volume of sacred poetry, entitled the Christian Year, which attained a very large circulation and an influence that can hardly be overestimated. He was one of the leading spirits in what was known as the "tractarian movement" in the English church, and for several years was actively engaged with Pusey, Newman and others in issuing Tracts for the Times. He died at Bournemouth, 1866.

Keen, William Williams, American surgeon, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1837. He was graduated at Brown University, 1859; M.D., Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, 1862; LL.D., Brown, 1891, Northwestern, Yale, 1906. He was assistant surgeon of 5th Massachusetts regiment, 1861; since 1866 in practice in Philadelphia; professor of artistic anatomy at Pennsylvania academy of fine arts, 1876-90; and was professor of surgery at Jefferson Medical College since 1889. Member of many medical and other bodies. Author: Keen's Clinical Charts; History of the Philadelphia School of Anatomy.

Keifer (kē'fer), Joseph Warren, congressman, ex-speaker of United States congress, was born in Clark county, Ohio, 1836. He was educated at Antioch College, and since 1858 practiced law at Springfield, Ohio. He served in the Ohio volunteers in the field, 1861-65; four times wounded. Was department commander of Ohio G. A. R., 1868-70; member of congress, 1877-85, and again in 1905; speaker of congress 1881-83. He was appointed and served, 1898-99, as major-general of volunteers in the war against Spain. Author: Slavery and Four Years of War.

Keith (kēth), George Keith-Elphinstone, Viscount, British admiral, son of the tenth Lord Elphinstone, was born at Elphinstone Tower, Stirling, 1746. He commanded the expedition in 1795-97 which took Cape Town, and the fleet landed Abercromby's army in Aboukir bay in 1801. He was made Baron Keith in 1797 and a viscount in 1814. Died, 1823.

Keller, Helen Adams, American authoress, was born at Tuscumbia, Ala., 1880, daughter of Captain Arthur H. Keller. She is descended on her father's side from Alexander Spottswood, colonial governor of Virginia, and through her mother related to Adams and Everett families of New England. She has been deaf and blind since the age of nineteen months as result of illness. When seven years old she was placed under the instruction of Miss Anne Mansfield Sullivan, her teacher from the beginning of her education to the present time. She entered Radcliffe College, 1900, and graduated, A.B., 1904. She has contributed occasional papers to Century Magazine; Youth's Companion; Ladies' Home Journal; McClure's Magazine, etc., and is the author of The Story of My Life; Optimism, an essay, etc.

Kellerman (kel'ẽr-măn), Francois Christopher, French soldier, was born in Bavaria, 1735, and entered a regiment of French hussars at the early age of seventeen. When the revolution broke out he had risen to the rank of major-general. For his services in Italy, he was made duke of Valmy and marshal of the empire by Napoleon. The Bourbons, whose party he joined at the restoration, confirmed his title of duke, and also created him a peer of France. He died in 1820.

Kellogg, Clara Louise, American prima donna, was born at Sumpterville, S. C., 1842. She made here debut in opera, 1861-62, as Gilda in Rigoletto at the academy of music, New York, and from that time rose steadily and securely in the estimation of the public. She sang repeatedly in London and once or twice before Queen Victoria at Buckingham palace. She sang in Italian opera for several years and organized her own English opera company. She married, 1887, Carl Strakosch, nephew of the well-known impressarios, Max and Maurice Strakosch. Died, 1916.

Kellogg, Frank B., American lawyer, was born at Potsdam, N. Y., 1856. He went to Minnesota with his parents in 1865; studied law, and was admitted to the bar. He removed to St. Paul in 1887. He was general counsel of the Chicago, Great Western Railway Company; Iron Range Railroad Company; Minneapolis Iron Company; Oliver Iron Mining Company, etc.; U. S. senator, 1917-23. U. S. ambassador to England, 1923-25. Secretary of State, 1925-29. In 1930 he was awarded the 1929 Nobel prize for peace in recognition of his work on the Kellogg-Briand multilateral peace pact which renounced war as a national policy.

Kelly, Howard Atwood, American physician, was born at Camden, N. J., 1858. He was graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, 1877; M.D., 1883; LL.D., Aberdeen, 1905, Washington and Lee, 1906, University of Pennsylvania, 1907; F.R.C.S., Edinburgh. He was founder of the Kensington hospital, Philadelphia; now professor of gynecology, Johns Hopkins University, and gynecological surgeon, Johns Hopkins hospital. He is a member of many medical and scientific societies, both foreign and American. Author: Operative Gynecology, 2 vols.; The Vermiform Appendix and Its Diseases, etc.

Kelly, James Edward, American sculptor, was born at New York, 1855. He studied art at the National Academy of design. His first piece of sculpture was Sheridan's Ride, 1878; forty generals, including Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and Hancock, gave him sittings for a series of bronzes. Prominent works: Monmouth Battle Monument, Call to Arms, Troy, N. Y., equestrian figures of General Sherman, Colonel Roosevelt at San Juan hill; busts from life of Admirals Dewey, Sampson and C. E. Clark, and President Roosevelt as colonel of the Rough Riders; panels from life of Dewey's captains, Sampson's captains, etc. He was one of the founders of the art students' league.

Kelvin, William Thomson, Lord, was born at Belfast in 1824. After graduating at Cambridge, he was appointed, 1846, to the chair of natural philosophy in Glasgow University, a post he retained till 1899.

His research work includes all branches of mathematical and practical physics. In heat, his principal work has been in extending thermodynamical principles—notably in devising a method of arriving at an absolute scale of temperature, in discovering the "Joule-Thomson effect," and in enunciating the principle of the dissipation of energy. In general physics, he has done much to apply mathematics as a means of expressing the relations of observed facts; and in particular he has worked out most fertile ideas as to the nature of the ether, of inertia, and the application of vortex motion to explain the properties of atoms.

His principal work, however, is probably in the field of electricity and magnetism, the first fruit of which appeared in the paper he published in 1845 on the laws of electrostatics, and which was greatly developed in his researches on electrodynamics and submarine telegraphy. These theoretical investigations he applied to the Atlantic and other cables from 1857 to 1879, and used in his invention of many instruments of the highest precision for the use both of the investigator and of the practical man.

Among the best known of these appliances are the reflecting galvanometer, the siphon recorder, several forms of electrometer, the ampere balance, electrostatic voltmeter and electric supply meters. He has also taken much interest in navigation, and in this connection invented an improved form of mariner's compass and an invaluable sounding-machine, besides working out methods for compass correction and for the investigation of tidal phenomena. In addition to three series of monographs—(1) Electrostatics and Magnetism, (2) Mathematical and Physical Papers, and (3) Popular Addresses—he has also published Baltimore Lectures on Molecula Dynamics and Wave Theory of Light, and, in collaboration with Professor P. G. Tait, A Treatise on Natural Philosophy. He was given a peerage in 1892. Died in 1907.

References.—Fitzgerald's Lord Kelvin; S. P. Thomson's Life of Lord Kelvin.

Kemble, Charles, English tragedian, was born at Brecknock, in South Wales, 1775. In 1794 he made his first appearance at Drury Lane, London, in the character of Malcolm in Macbeth. He visited the United States in 1832. Appointed examiner of plays in 1836, he performed the duties of his office by proxy until he relinquished the stage in 1840. Died, 1854.

Kemble, Frances Anne, English actress and Shakespearean reader, was born in London, 1809. She was the daughter of the celebrated Charles Kemble, and was commonly known by the name of "Fanny." She made her début at Covent Garden in 1829, and in 1832 came to the United States with her father, where she met with great success. In 1860 she returned to England and from that date divided her time between England and the United States. Died, 1893.

Kemble, John Philip, English tragedian, was born at Prescott, 1757. His first appearance was at Wolverhampton, in 1776. The success of his sister, Mrs. Siddons, gave him his opportunity, and in 1783 he played Hamlet at Drury Lane, and aroused the keenest interest. In 1802 he purchased a share in Covent Garden theater, became manager, and made his first appearance there in 1803 as Hamlet. He retired in 1817, and afterward settled at Lausanne, where he died, 1823.

Kempis, Thomas a, German mystic and writer, so called from Kempen, a town in the Prussian Rhine provinces, where he was born about 1379. He was educated at Deventer, and in 1400 entered an Augustinian convent in the diocese of Utrecht. His death took place in 1471, at which time he certainly had attained his ninetieth year, and most probably his ninety-second. The character of Kempis for sanctity and ascetic learning stood very high among his contemporaries, but his historical reputation rests almost entirely on his writings, which consist of sermons, ascetical treatises, pious biographies, letters and hymns. Of these, however, the only one which deserves special notice is the celebrated ascetical treatise, Imitation of Christ, a work that in the regard of many ranks second to the Bible, and is thought likely to survive in the literature of the world as long as the Bible itself.

Kendal, Mr. (William Hunter Grimston), English actor and manager, was born in London, 1843. He commenced his career on the stage at Glasgow in 1862, where he remained until 1866, in which year he made his first appearance in London at the Haymarket theater in A Dangerous Friend. He became lessee and manager with John Hare, of St. James' theater, 1879-88. He produced there The Queen's Shilling; The Squire; Impulse; The Iron Master; A Scrap of Paper; Lady of Lyons; As You Like It; William and Susan; Ladies' Battle, etc. He toured with Mrs. Kendal in the United States and Canada, 1889-95, with phenomenal success. Died, 1917.

Kendal, Mrs. (Margaret Brunton Robertson), English actress, was born at Cleethorpes, Lincs, 1849. She married William Hunter Kendal (Grimston), 1869. She made her début in London, in 1865, as Ophelia to the Hamlet of Walter Montgomery, and in the following month she played at the same theater, Desdemona to the Othello of Ira Aldridge. The creation of the character of Lilian Vavasour in New Men and Old Acres gave Mrs. Kendal a position among the leading comédiennes of the day. In 1875 she began a short engagement at the Opera Comique. During the period 1889-95, Mr. and Mrs. Kendal played highly successful engagements in the United States and Canada. Died, 1935.

Kennan (ken'an), George, American author and lecturer, was born at Norwalk, Ohio, 1845. He became telegraph operator and later manager of the Western Union office, Cincinnati, 1863-64; went to northeast Siberia as explorer and telegraphic engineer, 1865; investigated Russian exile system in Siberia, 1885-86, and later he became a lecturer in the United States and Great Britain. In 1898 he went to Cuba on the steamship State of Texas, with American national Red Cross society, and as special commissioner for The Outlook. Went to Japan, 1904, to report on Russo-Japanese war for The Outlook, and joined the staff of McClure's Magazine, 1907. Author: Tent Life in Siberia; Siberia and the Exile System, 2 vols.; Campaigning in Cuba, etc. Died, 1924.

Kent, Charles Foster, American biblical scholar, Woolsey professor of biblical literature, Yale University since 1901, was born at Palmyra, N. Y., 1867. He was graduated at Yale University, 1889, Ph.D., 1891; Berlin University, 1891-92. Author: Outlines of Hebrew History; The Wise Men of Ancient Israel and Their Proverbs; Narratives of the Beginnings of Hebrew History; Israel's Historical and Biographical Narratives; Origin and Permanent Value of the Old Testament; Israel's Laws and Traditional Precedents; Work and Teachings of the Earlier Prophets, etc. Died in 1925.

Kent, Charles William, university professor, was born at Louisa C. H., Va., 1860; graduated from the University of Virginia, 1882; student Göttingen, Berlin, Leipzig, 1884-7; Ph.D., 1887; LL.D., University of Alabama, 1906. Was professor of English and modern languages, University of Tennessee, 1888-93; professor English literature, rhetoric and belles lettres, Linden Kent Memorial School of English Literature, University of Virginia, since 1893. Author: Shakespeare Note Book; Graphic Representations of English and American Literature. Editor: Cynewulf's Elene; Idyls of the Lawn; Selected Poems from Burns; Tennyson's Princess; Poe Memorial Volume; Poe's Poems; Library of Southern Literature, 15 vols., etc.

Kent, James, American lawyer and jurist, was born in Philippi, N. Y., 1763. He was graduated at Yale College, 1781, was admitted to the bar when twenty-two years old, and soon became noted for his legal learning. He was several times elected to the New York legislature, and in 1793 became professor of law in Columbia College. He is best known for his Commentaries on American Law, which were published from 1826 to 1830, and are now used by every American lawyer, as well as by many in other countries. He died in New York, 1847.

Kepler, Johann, great German mathematician and astronomer, was born 1571, near Weil (Würtemberg), died at Ratisbon 1630. He studied at the University of Tübingen, and in 1593 he was appointed a teacher of mathematics at Gratz, Styria.

Here he devoted himself with much ardor to the study of astronomy; but in 1599 the religious persecutions commenced in Styria and Kepler, being a protestant, gladly accepted Tycho Brahe's invitation to Prague, to assist in the preparation of the new astronomical tables, called the Rodolphine tables. Tycho died in 1601, and Kepler continued the work alone, being appointed imperial mathematician and astronomer. After twenty-five years' incessant labor the tables were published in 1627 at Ulm. Kepler had become the happy possessor of all Tycho's papers, and the mass of observations made by that astronomer during twenty years, with a precision till then unsurpassed, enabled Kepler to establish his three laws which have proved so fruitful in the development of astronomical science.

Kepler enjoyed the patronage of the Emperors Rodolph and Ferdinand, the Dukes of Würtemberg and Wallenstein, but his life was a continued struggle; he was exposed to much religious persecution, and his domestic relations were equally unfortunate. The latter part of his life was chiefly passed at Linz as professor of mathematics. He wrote much, but the work that has rendered him immortal is his Astronomia Nova, seu Physica Cœlestis tradita Commentariis de Motibus Stellæ Martis—"New Astronomy, or Celestial Physics Delivered in Commentaries on the Motions of Mars."

References.—Brewster's Lives of Galileo, Tycho Brahe, and Kepler; Muller's Johannes Kepler; and Gunther's Johannes Kepler.

Kerensky, Alexander Federovich (1881—). Graduated from law, University of Petrograd, and married in 1904. Patriot, orator, popular leader, he was ever fervently and eloquently striving for better conditions. He was active in events that led up to the overthrow of the monarchy, 1917. Was Minister of Finance and Premier in the provisional government. He successfully thwarted Gen. Korniloff's rebellion, but lost the capital to the Bolsheviki.

Kern, John Worth, United States Senator, lawyer, was born in Howard county, Ind., 1849. He was graduated from the University of Michigan, 1869; was reporter of the supreme court of Indiana, 1885-89; state senator, 1892-96; city attorney, Indianapolis, 1897-1901; was the democratic candidate for vice-president of the United States, 1908; elected U. S. Senate 1910. Died, 1917.

Key, Francis Scott, American poet, author of "The Star Spangled Banner," was born in Maryland, 1780. He was a lawyer of note, and brother-in-law to Chief-Justice Taney. Being detained by the British during the bombardment of Fort McHenry, September 13, 1814, his feelings found vent in the verses which have become our national lyric. They were printed on his return to Baltimore, and soon diffused widely through the country. Died, 1843.

Kidd, Benjamin, English philosopher and sociologist, was born in 1858. He first entered the British civil service, and was little known until the publication of Social Evolution, in 1894. He also published: The Control of the Tropics; Principles of Western Civilization; and was the author of articles on the application of the doctrine of evolution to sociological theory and sociology in the supplement to the 9th edition of Encyclopaedia Britannica. He delivered the Herbert Spencer lecture before the University of Oxford, 1908. He traveled for economic study in the United States and Canada in 1898. Died, 1916.

Kilmer, Joyce, American poet, was born at New Brunswick, New Jersey, in 1886. He was educated at Rutgers College and at Columbia University and subsequently worked for several years as teacher and journalist. In 1917 he entered the 165th infantry regiment of the U. S. Army and was killed in action at the Battle of the Ourcq in 1918. His poetry includes Summer of Love, Trees and Other Poems, Main Street and Other Poems. His later poems are intensely religious.

Kilpatrick, Hugh Judson, American cavalry officer, was born in New Jersey, 1836. He was graduated at West Point in 1861, and was appointed to the first United States artillery. He was wounded at the battle of Big Bethel, and received rapid promotion, being a colonel of cavalry in 1862, and commissioned brigadier-general of volunteers the following year. He was commissioned major-general in 1865, and resigned from the regular army in that year and from the volunteer service, 1866. From 1865 to 1868, and again in 1881, he was United States minister to Chili. Died, 1881.

King, Charles, American soldier and author, was born at Albany, N. Y., 1844. He was graduated at West Point, 1866, and served in artillery and cavalry until retired as captain, 1879, for wounds received in action. He was inspector and instructor of Wisconsin national guard, 1882-89. In 1898 he was appointed brigadier-general of the United States volunteers in the war against Spain; served in the Philippines under General Lawton, and was commandant of Michigan Military Academy, 1902. Author: Famous and Decisive Battles; Between the Lines; The Iron Brigade; Medal of Honor; and others, over fifty in all.

King, Henry Churchill, American educator, president of Oberlin College, 1902-27, was born at Hillsdale, Mich., 1858. He was graduated from Oberlin, 1879; Oberlin Theological Seminary, 1882; post-graduate at Harvard, 1882-84; A.M., 1883; Berlin, 1893-94; D.D., Oberlin, 1897, Western Reserve, 1901, Yale. Author: Outline of Erdmann's History of Philosophy; Outline of the Microcosmus of Hermann Lotze; The Appeal of the Child; Reconstruction in Theology; Theology and the Social Consciousness; Personal and Ideal Elements in Education; Rational Living; and various pamphlets on philosophy, etc.

King, Rufus, American statesman, was born in Scarborough, Me., 1755. He was graduated at Harvard College in 1777, immediately entered as a student at law in the office of Theophilus Parsons, at Newburyport, and was admitted to the bar, 1780. In 1787 he was appointed a delegate to the general convention assembled at Philadelphia, and in 1788 removed from Massachusetts to the city of New York. In 1796 he was appointed minister to the court of Great Britain, and remained there for seven years, with equal honor to the country and himself. In 1813 he was chosen by the legislature of New York as United States senator, and continued until the expiration of the term in 1825. Upon his retirement from the senate, he accepted from President Adams an invitation again to represent the United States at the court of Great Britain. During the voyage to England his health was seriously impaired, his illness induced him to return in about a year, and he died in 1827.

King, Thomas Starr, American clergyman and author, was born in New York City, 1824. He studied theology and became pastor of a Unitarian church at Charlestown, Mass., 1846. He gained wide popularity as a lecturer, and his activity in the presidential campaign of 1860 had an important part in preserving California to the union. Died, 1864.

King, William Frederick, chief astronomer of the department of the interior of Canada since 1890, was born at Stowmarket, England, 1854. He was graduated from the University of Toronto, 1875; LL.D., 1904. Was Dominion land and topographical surveyor, 1876; her majesty's commissioner for the international boundary between Canada and the United States under treaties of 1892, 1903, 1906 and 1908; and also under agreement entered into in 1899, 1901, and 1906; member of the international waterways commission, 1904-07, and director of the Dominion astronomical observatory from its opening in 1905. Died, 1916.

King, William Rufus, American statesman, was born in North Carolina, 1786. He was a member of the North Carolina legislature for three years; entered congress from North Carolina in 1810; represented Alabama in the United States senate, 1820-44. He was then minister to France from 1844 to 1846; and again United States senator from 1848 to 1853, when, shortly before his death, he became vice-president of the United States. He died in Alabama, 1853.

Kinglake, Alexander William, English historian, was born in Taunton, 1809. He was educated at Cambridge, was called to the bar in 1837; went to Algiers in 1845, and in 1854 followed the fortunes of the British army in Crimea until the siege of Sebastopol. He represented Bridgewater in parliament, 1857-68. Died, 1891.

Kingsley, Charles, English divine and author, chaplain-in-ordinary to Queen Victoria, was born in Devonshire, 1819. He was educated at King's College, London, and at Cambridge University, and in 1842 became curate and shortly after rector of Eversley. In 1851 he published Yeast, a Problem, in which he handles the condition of the English agricultural laborer; and in 1853 Hypatia, or New Foes with an Old Face, a most vigorous and brilliant delineation of Christianity. Two years after he published Westward Ho!, probably the greatest of his works. He was appointed professor of modern history at Cambridge in 1860, and after resigning was made canon of Chester, 1869. Died, 1875.

Kingsley, John Sterling, biologist, was born at Cincinnatus, N. Y., 1854; graduated at Williams College, 1875; S.C.D., Princeton, 1885; University of Freiburg, 1891-92. Was professor of zoölogy, Indiana University, 1887-89; professor of biology, University of Nebraska, 1889-91; Tufts College, 1892-1913; professor of zoology, University of Illinois, 1913-21; now emeritus professor of zoölogy Editor: Standard Natural History. Author: Elements of Comparative Zoölogy; Vertebrate Zoölogy; Guides for Vertebrate Dissection. Translator: Hertwig's Manual of Zoölogy, etc. Died, 1929.

Kipling, Joseph Rudyard, English author, was born in Bombay, India, 1865. He was educated in United Services College, North Devon, England, and was assistant editor of Civil and Military Gazette and Pioneer in India, 1882-89. LL.D., McGill University, 1899; Litt.D., Durham, Oxford, and Cambridge. He was awarded the Nobel prize for literature in 1907. He has traveled extensively in Japan, China, Africa, and Australia. Author: Departmental Ditties; Plain Tales From the Hills; Soldiers Three; In Black and White; The Light That Failed; Barrack-Room Ballads; The Jungle Book; Second Jungle Book; The Seven Seas; The Day's Work; Stalky and Company; The Brushwood Boy; Just So Stories; The Five Nations; Puck of Pook's Hill, etc. Died, 1936.

Kirk, Sherman, educator, was born in Belmont county, Ohio, 1865, and was graduated from Bethany College, W. Va., 1888; M.A., Drake University, 1898; held pastorates in Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri, 1891-96; professor of Greek, Drake University, since 1897, and, in 1911, dean of the College of the Bible, in that institution. Delegate to and speaker before the National Congress of the Disciples of Christ.

Kitchener (kich'en-ẽr), Horatio Herbert, Lord, British general, was born in Ireland, 1850. He was educated at the Royal military academy at Woolwich, and entered the British army in 1871. In the action at Hundub, in 1888, he led the Egyptian troops against Osman Digna, and for his gallantry was made aide-de-camp to the queen. For subsequent service in Sudan campaigns he was made companion of the bath. In 1888 he was made adjutant-general in the Egyptian army, and held that position until 1892. He commanded at the taking of Dongola in 1896, and was then made K. C. B. In 1898 he was in command of an English and Egyptian army near Omdurman, opposite the site of Khartum, where he gained a notable victory. He was chief of staff of forces in South Africa, 1899-1900; commander-in-chief, 1900-02; later created viscount. Lost in North Sea, 1916.

Kitchin, George William, English historian, was born at Naughton rectory, Suffolk, 1827. He was educated at Ipswich, King's College, London, and Christ Church, Oxford. He became dean of Winchester in 1883, and of Durham in 1894. His chief work is his History of France. Died in 1912.

Klaw, Marc, theatrical manager, was born at Paducah, Ky., 1858. He was educated in the public and high schools of Louisville, Ky.; studied law and was admitted to the bar. Since 1881 he has been engaged as theatrical manager, and is now a member of the theatrical firm of Klaw and Erlanger of New York.

Kleber (klā'bār'), Jean Baptiste, French general, was born at Strassburg, 1753, and in 1776 obtained a commission in the Austrian army. In 1794 he led the left wing at Fleurus, and captured Maestricht; in 1796 he gained the victory of Altenkirchen. He accompanied Bonaparte to Egypt, was wounded at Alexandria, and won the battle of Mount Tabor, 1799. When Bonaparte left Egypt he intrusted the chief command to Kléber, who concluded a treaty with Sir Sidney Smith for its evacuation; but on Admiral Keith's refusal to ratify it Kléber resolved to reconquer Egypt, and destroyed the Turkish army at Heliopolis. In the course of an attempt to conclude a treaty with the Turks, he was assassinated by a Turkish fanatic at Cairo, 1800.

Klein (klīn), Charles, playwirght, was born in London, England, 1867, and was educated at North London College. He was formerly censor of plays for Charles Frohman. Author: A Mile a Minute; El Capitan; Heartsease; The Hon. John Grigsby; Dr. Belgraff; A Royal Rogue; The Music Master. Lost at sea, 1915.

Klopstock (klōp'shtōk), Friedrich Gottlieb, German poet, was born at Quedinburg, 1724. Incited by Virgil's Æneid and Milton's Paradise Lost, he resolved to write a great epic, and as a student at Jena, in 1745, he began The Messiah. The last cantos of The Messiah were published in 1773. Regarded in his own time as a great religious poet, he helped to inaugurate the golden age of German literature. The Messiah was translated into both English verse and prose. Died, 1803.

Knapp, Martin Augustine, American lawyer and jurist, chief justice of the U. S. Court of Commerce, was born in Stafford, N. Y., 1843. He was graduated from Wesleyan University, Connecticut, 1868; LL.D., 1892; hon. A.M., Syracuse University, 1892. He was interstate commerce commissioner 1891-1910; chairman of the commission, 1898-1910, and appointed chief justice of the new U. S. Commerce Court, established 1910. For a number of years he lectured on interstate commerce law at George Washington University. Died, 1923.

Kneisel (k'ni'zel), Franz, German-American musician, director of Kneisel quartette, was born in Roumania, of German parentage, in 1865. He studied violin instruction under Grün and Hellmesberger; was concertmaster of Hofburg theater orchestra, Vienna; later of Bilse's orchestra, Berlin, and concertmaster of the Boston symphony orchestra. He was especially prominent as violin soloist. From 1905 to 1926 he was head of violin department in the Institute of Musical Art, New York. Died, 1926.

Kneller (nel'ẽr), Sir Godfrey, noted portrait-painter, was born at Lübeck, 1646. He studied at Amsterdam and in Italy, went to London, 1675, and in 1680 was appointed court-painter. In 1693 William III. knighted him, and in 1715 George I. made him a baronet. His best-known works are the Beauties of Hampton Court, painted for William III.; his portraits of the Kit-Cat Club; and of fourteen sovereigns. He died at Twickenham, 1723.

Knight, Charles, English publisher and author, was born at Windsor, 1791. He early turned his attention to publishing. In 1823 he started Knight's Quarterly Magazine, and continued it for some time in London. The whole of his noteworthy career was devoted to popular literature, of which he was one of the earliest and most accomplished advocates. Among the works which he published or edited are the Penny Magazine, which was started only a month or two after Chambers' Edinburgh Journal and the British Almanac. Died, 1873.

Knowles, James Sheridan, British dramatist, was born at Cork, 1784. His Caius Gracchus was first performed at Belfast. Virginius, his most effective play, had been a success in Glasgow before Macready in 1820 produced it at Covent Garden. Besides William Tell, in which Macready achieved one of his greatest triumphs, Knowles' other best plays are Love, The Hunchback, The Love Chase, and The Wife. He appeared with fair success in many of his own pieces; but about 1844 became a Baptist preacher, drew large audiences to Exeter hall, and published two anti-Roman Catholic works. He died at Torquay, 1862.

Knox, Henry, American general, was born in Boston, Mass., 1750. He was an officer in a military company, and, when the revolution broke out, he escaped from the city with his wife, who hid his sword in the folds of her dress, and took part in the battle of Bunker Hill. He soon attracted the attention of Washington by his skill in planning fortifications and his knowledge of artillery, and throughout the war he commanded the artillery in various battles. Congress made him a major-general, and from 1785 to 1795 he was secretary of war. Died, 1806.

Knox, John, Scottish divine and reformer, was born at Giffordgate, in Haddingtonshire, 1513. He became a priest and notary in the diocese of St. Andrews before he had attained the age of twenty-five. He renounced Catholicism about 1543, and openly preached the new faith. In the reign of Mary, he retired to Frankfort, and thence to Geneva, where he became acquainted with Calvin. Having returned to his own country in 1559, he denounced the priesthood, and especially the mass and image-worship, and declaimed against the queen of Scots, whom he called Jezebel. With tireless perseverance and vehement eloquence he labored until his death for the establishment of Protestantism in Scotland. The person of Knox was diminutive, and his frame wasted and feeble, but his energy was inexhaustible. He was the author of several works, notably of a Historie of the Reformation of Religion in Scotland. But the influence he exerted was by the tongue rather than by the pen. Died, 1572.

Knox, Philander Chase, American lawyer and statesman, was born in Brownsville, Pa., 1853. He was graduated at Mt. Union College, Ohio, 1872; LL.D., University of Pennsylvania, 1905; Yale, 1907. He was admitted to the bar, 1875; was assistant United States district attorney, Western district of Pennsylvania, 1876-77. He was attorney-general of the United States 1901,-04; United States senator from Pennsylvania 1904-09, and secretary of state 1909-13. Died, 1921.

Kobbe (kob'ē), Gustav, American author and journalist, was born in New York, 1857. He was graduated at Columbia University, 1877; Columbia Law School, 1879. He engaged in newspaper and magazine work, chiefly on musical and dramatic subjects. Author: The Ring of the Nibelung; Wagner's Life and Works, 2 volumes; Opera Singers; Signora, a Child of the Opera House, a novel; Wagner's Music Dramas Aanalyzed; Wagner and His Isolde; Famous American Songs; How to Appreciate Music; The Pianolist, etc. Died, 1918.

Koch (kōK), Robert, German physician and bacteriologist, was born at Klausthal, in the Hartz mountains, 1843. He studied medicine at Göttingen, receiving his doctor's degree in 1866. His first substantial achievement was the result of the penetration, skill, and thoroughness of his researches on the contagion of splenic fever in cattle. In 1879 he had begun his investigations into the causes of consumption, and in 1882 he announced the discovery of the tubercle bacillus before the physiological society of Berlin. He discovered the comma bacillus, or cholera germ, in 1884. He was rewarded with a gift of 100,000 marks by the government, and imperial titles and honors were showered upon him. In 1885 he was appointed a professor in the University of Berlin, the new chair of hygiene being created for him, and was made director of the hygienic institute. In 1905 he was awarded the Nobel prize for achievements in physiology. Died, 1910.

Kohlsaat (kōl'sät), Hermann Henry, capitalist, journalist, was born in Albion, Ill., 1853. He was educated in the common schools at Galena, Ill. He was traveling salesman for two other firms, and, 1875-80, for Blake, Shaw and company, wholesale bakers; became junior partner, 1880, and had charge of a bakery lunch established by this firm. He bought that branch of the business, 1883, greatly enlarged it, and the firm of H. H. Kohlsaat and company now owns several large establishments devoted to the wholesale bakery business. He was part owner of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, 1891-93; was editor and publisher of Chicago Times-Herald, 1894; also of Chicago Evening Post, 1894-1901. He purchased control of the Chicago Record-Herald in 1910, and has been largely identified with local real estate operations. Died, 1924.

Komura (kō'moo-rä), Count Jutaro, Japanese statesman, minister for foreign affairs since 1908, was born at Hyuga, 1855. He was educated at the University of Tokyo, and at Harvard University Law School. Was chargé d'affaires in China, 1893-94; minister to United States, Russia, China, 1898-1901; minister for foreign affairs, 1901-06; senior plenipotentiary to the peace conference, and signed, with Mr. Takahira, peace treaty at Portsmouth, N. H., 1905; Japanese ambassador to Great Britain, 1906-08. Died, 1911.

Korner (kûr'nẽr), Karl Theodore, German lyric poet, was born at Dresden, 1791. He studied at Freiburg, Leipzig, and Berlin, and in 1811 settled at Vienna. Here he was dramatist to a Vienna theater, and wrote some light comedies, among them Der Grüne Domino and Der Nachtwächter, and some tragedies, of which Zriny was the most successful. The most famous song, Das Schwert-Lied, was dashed off in a pause of battle only a few hours before the author fell at Gadebusch near Schwerin, 1813.

Kosciusko (kos'i-us'kō), Thaddeus, Polish general and patriot, was born in Minsk, West Russia, 1746. He became a captain in the Polish army, came to America and served in the war of independence, and returned to Poland in 1786, with the rank of general. With 20,000 regular troops and 40,000 ill-armed peasants he resisted for months the united Russian and Prussian army of 150,000 men. Overpowered by superior numbers in the battle of Maciejowice, 1794, he was captured and kept a prisoner until after the accession of the emperor Paul. When Napoleon, in 1806, formed a plan for the restoration of Poland, Kosciusko felt himself restrained from taking an active part in it by his promise to the emperor Paul. He released from servitude, in 1817, the peasants on his own estate in Poland. His death took place in 1817, in consequence of a fall from his horse.

Kossuth (kosh'oot), Francis, son of Louis Kossuth, leader of the independence party in the Hungarian parliament, was born in 1841. He suffered exile with his father, was partly educated in England, and lived in France and Italy. After his father's death in 1894 he went back to Hungary, took the oath of allegiance as a Hungarian subject, and soon became leader of those aspiring to national independence. When the coalition came into office in 1906 he became minister of commerce in the Wekérle cabinet. Died, 1914.

Kossuth, Louis, Hungarian patriot, orator and leader, was born at Monok, 1802. In 1832 he commenced his political career as editor of a liberal paper. To his speeches must in part be ascribed not only the Hungarian revolution, but the insurrection in Vienna in 1848. To put an end to all the hopes and schemes of the moderate party he induced the national assembly at Bebreczin, in 1849, to declare the independence of Hungary, and that the Hapsburg dynasty had forfeited the throne. He was then appointed provisional governor of Hungary. In 1849 he was compelled to abandon his position, and to flee into Turkey, where, however, he was made a prisoner. In 1851 he landed in the United States, where he met with a most enthusiastic reception. He returned in 1852 to England, and there he chiefly resided until the Italian war broke out against Austria, when he organized an Hungarian legion in Italy. Later he lived in Turin until his death in 1894.

Kotzebue (kōt'se-bōō), Augustus Frederic Ferdinand von, German dramatist and historic writer, was born at Weimar, 1761, and was educated at Jena and Duisburg. In 1801 he left Russia, where for several years he had resided, and spent the remainder of his life in innumerable literary productions and in politics. The emperor Alexander subsequently employed him in various posts, and in 1817 appointed him his literary correspondent in Germany. This invidious office Kotzebue is said to have filled in a manner hostile to the freedom of his native country; and for this supposed crime he was assassinated in 1819 by a youthful fanatic named Sand. His dramas number nearly three hundred. Among his other works are: History of the German Empire, History of Ancient Prussia, and various narratives and recollections of his travels.

Kreisler, Fritz, violinist born, Vienna, Austria, Feb. 2, 1875. Educated, Vienna Conservatory, and Paris Conservatory, where he won Premier Prix de Rome at 12. M. Harriet Lies of New York City, 1902. Début, Berlin, 1899. Owns famous violin—Josef Guarnerius del Gesu, 1737. Capt. Austrian Army, 1914-15.

Kropotkin (krō-pōt'kēn), Prince Peter, Russian socialist, writer, was born at Moscow, 1842. In 1871 he explored the glacial deposits of Finland and Sweden; in 1872, while on a visit to Belgium and Switzerland, he associated himself with the extremest section of the International. In 1874, after his return to Russia, he was arrested, but in 1876 effected his escape to England. In France at Lyons he was condemned, in 1883, to five years' imprisonment for anarchism, but was released in 1886 and returned to England. Author: In Russian and French Prisons; Mutual Aid, a Factor of Evolution; Modern Science and Anarchism; The Great Revolution, 1789-1903, etc. Died in 1921.

Krouskopf (krous'kopf), Joseph, rabbi, lecturer and author, was born in Ostrowo, Prussia, 1858. He came to America in 1872, worked as clerk at Fall River, Mass. He was graduated at the University of Cincinnati, 1883, and as rabbi from Hebrew Union College, 1883; D.D., 1885. He founded the Jewish Publication Society of America; founded, and was president at organization of the National Farm School, in which Jewish boys are trained in practical and scientific agriculture. Author: The Jews and Moors in Spain; Evolution and Judaism; Some Isms of To-day; Gleanings From Our Vineyard; The Service Manual; The Service Ritual, etc. Died, 1923.

Kruger (krōō'ger), Stephanus Johannes Paulus, Boer statesman, was born at Rastenburg in Cape Colony, 1825. With his family he "trekked" to Natal, the Orange river free state, and the Transvaal and won such a reputation for cleverness, coolness, and courage that in the war against England, in 1881, he was appointed head of the provisional government. Oom Paul was the soul of the policy that issued in the so-called Boer war of 1899-1902, showed consummate resolution and energy, and, after the tide had fairly turned against the Boers, went to Europe to seek alliances against Britain. He died, 1904.

Krupp (krōōp), Alfred, German ironmaster, was born at Essen, 1812. Krupp established the first Bessemer steel works and the first forging-hammer erected in Germany. The first steel gun manufactured by him, in 1847, was a 3-pounder muzzle-loader; in 1880 at the Düsseldorf exhibition he showed the first 100-ton steel gun. These factories are not permitted by other Powers to manufacture guns. Krupp died in 1887.

Kubelik (kōō'be-lik), Johann, Bohemian violinist, was born in 1880 at Miehle, near Prague. He was very successful at concerts in Austria-Hungary prior to appearing in Berlin with the Philharmonic orchestra, 1900. He was then invited to England by Dr. Richter, and made his début at St. James' hall. In 1905 he began a two years' tour round the world, and met with high favor throughout Europe and America.

Kuenen (kū'nen), Abraham, Dutch theologian, was born at Haarlem, 1828 He studied at Leyden and became, in 1853, a professor there. His first important work was his Historical-Critical Inquiry into the Old Testament, the result of which was to reconstruct the history of Israel, the priestly code and the historical portions connected with it being made the latest element in the pentateuch. This view was developed further in a succeeding volume. He died at Leyden, 1891.

Kugler (kōōg'lẽr), Franz Theodor, German historian of art, was born at Stettin, 1808, and studied at Heidelberg and Berlin. In 1833 he became a professor at the art academy in Berlin. His most valuable work is the Manual of the History of Art. He is also favorably known as a poet and as the author of several dramas. Died, 1858.

Kuroki (kōō'rō-kē), General, Count, noted Japanese general, was born at Satsuma, 1844. He commanded the first army in the Russo-Japanese war, 1904-05, and was victorious at Yalu, Liulien-ling, Liao-Yang, Mukden, etc. In 1906 he became inspector-general of the Japanese army, and subsequently made a tour of the United States. Died, 1923.

Kuropatkin (kōō-ro-pät'kin), Alexei Nicholaevitch, Russian general, was born in the government of Pskov, 1848. After receiving an excellent education in the Russian military schools, he entered the army and distinguished himself in the war against the Bokharans. In 1904 he was made commander-in-chief of the Russian army during the Russo-Japanese war. In 1905 he was succeeded by General Linievitch, and was appointed to command the first Manchurian army. He commanded the Russian armies on the northern front Feb.-Aug., 1916, and then was governor of Turkestan until 1917. Died, 1925.

Kutusoff (kōō-tōō'zōf), Mikhail, I. G., prince of Smolenskoi, Russian field-marshal, was born in 1745. He was appointed in 1805 to the command of the first Corps d'armée against the French. In that year he was victorious over Marshal Mortier at Dürenstein. In 1811-12 he commanded the Russian army in the war against the Turks, and, notwithstanding his advanced age, succeeded Barclay de Tolly in 1812 as commander-in-chief of the army against the French, and obtained a great victory over Davout and Ney at Smolensk. Died, 1813.

Kuyper (koi'pĕr), Abraham, Dutch theologian, statesman and writer, was born at Maassluis, 1837. He was graduated at the University of Leyden; D.Sc., Delft; LL.D., Princeton; D.D., Leyden. He founded the free university at Amsterdam, 1880; became professor of theology and literature there; founded the daily Standard and became its chief editor, 1872; the Heraut, 1878; and founded the Reformed Free church, 1886. He lectured in America, England, and Belgium, and in 1897 was president of Netherland press association He edited the Encyclopœdia of Sacred Theology and is the author of the following works: The Work of the Holy Spirit; Calvinism; Socialism and Christianity; The Evolution; The South African Crisis; Varia Americana; Around the Old Word, etc. Died, 1920.

Lackaye, Wilton, actor, was born in Virginia, 1864. He studied law for one year; began his stage career, in Francesca da Rimini in New York, 1883. His principal rôles have been Prince Saviana, in Jocelyn; Don Stephano, in Featherbrain; Jefferson Stockton, in Aristocracy; Solomon Strong, in The Idler; Svengali, in Trilby; Curtis Jadwin, in The Pit; Jean Valjean, in The Law and the Man; John Haggleton, in The Battle. Died. 1932.

Lacordaire (lă'kôr'dâr'), Jean Baptiste Henri, French divine, was born at Recey-sur-Ource, 1802. He went to Paris in 1821 to continue his legal studies. He assisted Lamennais and Montalembert to found the Avenir, and was once summoned for opposing the government In 1834 Lacordaire gave a series of "conferences" or lectures to students which attracted great attention, and led the way to his famous conferences in Notre Dame, Paris, in 1835-36. In 1839 he entered the Dominican order, and in 1840 reappeared in the pulpit of Notre Dame, where, from 1843 to 1851 he continued his conferences. His last conferences, delivered at Toulouse in 1854, are the most eloquent of all. Thenceforward until his death, in 1861, he was director of the military school of Sorrèze. He was a member of the academy.

Lacretelle (lă'krē-tel'), Jean Charles Dominique de, French historian and journalist, was born at Metz, 1766. He was attracted to Paris on the outbreak of the revolution. In 1809 he was made professor of history at the University of Paris, where he remained until 1848. In 1810 censor of the press, and in 1808-12 published his History of France in the Eighteenth Century, a work of high merit. From 1811 a member of the French Academy, he became its president in 1816. He died near Mâcon, 1855.

Lacroix (lă'krwă), General de, French general, vice-president of the supreme council of war and commander-in-chief of the French army, was born in 1844. In the Franco-Prussian war he was taken prisoner at Sedan. He served in the French expedition to Tonquin, and in 1902 succeeded General Bonnal at the Ecole de Guerre. In 1903 he was appointed military governor of Lyons and commander of the fourteenth army corps. He succeeded General Hagron in his present post in 1907.

Lactantius (lak-tan'shĭ-us), Lucius Caelius, Firmianus, Christian apologist, was born in the latter part of the third century. He was brought up in Africa, and settled as a teacher of rhetoric in Nicomedia in Bithynia, where he was converted by witnessing the constancy of the Christian martyrs under the persecution of Diocletian. His most important work is Divinarum Institutionum libri vii., which is a vindication of Christianity, and an exposure of the paganism he had formerly professed. Died, 325.

Ladd, George Trumbull, American educator, professor of philosophy at Yale University beginning 1881, was born in Painesville, Ohio, 1842. He was graduated at Western Reserve College, 1864; Andover Theological Seminary, 1869; D.D., 1879; LL.D., 1895, Western Reserve; LL.D., Princeton, 1896; lecturer on church polity and on systematic theology, Andover theological seminary, 1879-81; lectured on philosophy before University of Bombay, India, 1899-1900, and on philosophy of religion at Calcutta, Madras, Benares, etc. Author: Principles of Church Polity; Doctrine of Sacred Scripture, 2 vols.; Lotze's Outlines of Physiology, translated to 6 vols.; Elements of Physiological Psychology; What Is the Bible? Introduction to Philosophy; Outlines of Physiological Psychology; Philosophy of Mind Several of his books have been translated into Japanese and into the language of the blind. Died, 1921.

La Farge (lă färzh'), John, American artist, was born in New York, 1835. He studied architectural decoration, then painting with Couture and William M. Hunt. He began painting with religious subjects and decorative work; then devoted himself to mural painting and stained glass windows mostly of religious or ecclesiastical character. Much of his work was in churches and residences in Boston, New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Washington, Detroit, and elsewhere. Author: Lectures on Art, Letters from Japan, etc. Died, 1910.

Lafayette (lă'fā-yet'), Marie Jean Paul Roche Yves Gilbert du Motier, Marquis de, French general and statesman, descended from an ancient family of Auvergne, and was born in the castle of Chavagnac, now in the department of upper Loire, 1757. He became a soldier at an early age, and in 1777 came to America to take part with the colonists in the war of independence, and was intrusted by congress with the defense of Virginia, where he rendered important services. He had imbibed liberal principles, and on his return to France eagerly sought to promote a thorough reform in his native country. He was called to the assembly of notables in 1787, and was one of those who most earnestly urged the summoning of the states-general. He took part also in the movements which converted the assembly of the states into the national assembly in 1789. The extreme French republicans soon came to dislike him, because he advocated a constitutional kingdom; and the court-party, especially the queen, did the same—in spite of the services he rendered them—because of his zeal for the new order of things. Along with Bailly, he founded the club of the Feuillants. After the adoption of the constitution of 1790 he retired to his estate of Lagrange until he received the command of the army of Ardennes, with which he won the first victories at Philippeville, Maubeuge, and Florennes. Nevertheless, the calumnies of the Jacobins rendered him exceedingly unpopular, and he was accused of treason, but acquitted. After several efforts to maintain the cause of rational liberty, he left Paris for Flanders, but was taken prisoner by the Austrians, and detained at Olmütz until Bonaparte obtained his liberation in 1797. He sat in the chamber of deputies from 1818 to 1824, and from 1825 to 1830. In 1824 he revisited America, by invitation of congress, which voted him a grant of $200,000 and a township of land. In 1830 he took an active part in the revolution, and commanded the national guards. Died, 1834.

Laffitte (lă'fēt'), Jacques, French banker and statesman, was born at Bayonne, France, 1767. He acquired great wealth as a Paris banker, and in 1814 became governor of the bank of France. In 1830 his house was the headquarters of the revolution, and he supplied a great part of the funds needed. In November he formed a cabinet, but he held power only until March. As the government became less liberal, Laffitte became more active in opposition; in 1843 he was elected president of the chamber of deputies. Died, 1844.

La Follette (lă fol'et), Robert Marion, lawyer, statesman, was born in Primrose, Wis., 1855. He was graduated at the University of Wisconsin, 1879; LL.D., 1901; was admitted to the bar, 1880, and became district attorney of Dane county, 1880. He was a member of congress, 1885-91. He was elected governor of Wisconsin in 1901, 1903, and 1905; and led the movement to nominate all candidates by direct vote, adopted by his state, 1904; to tax railway property by same system and at same rate as other taxable property, adopted, 1903; and also for the control of railway rates within the state by state commission, enacted into a law by the legislature of 1905. He was elected United States senator in 1905 and again in 1910. He made important contributions to railroad and other public reforms. Was candidate for President of United States in 1924. Died, 1925.

Lafontaine (lă-fôn'tēn'), Jean de, French poet and fabulist, was born at Chateau Thierry in Champagne, 1621. In 1654 he published a verse translation of the Eunuchus of Terence, and then went to Paris, where Fouquet awarded him a pension of 1,000 francs for a piece of verse quarterly. His Contes et Nouvelles en Vers appeared in 1665, his Fables Choisies mises en Vers in 1668, and his Amours de Cupid et Psyche in 1669. In 1684 on his reception by the academy, he read an admirable Discourse en Vers. The subjects of the Contes are taken from Boccaccio, Ariosto, Machiavelli, Rabelais, the Heptameron, Apulcius, Athenæus, and other writers. He was a brilliant writer, but not a great poet. Died, 1695.

Lagrange (lă'grănzh'), Joseph Louis, Count, mathematician, was born in Turin, 1736, of French extraction. He became professor of mathematics in Turin at the age of nineteen. In 1766 he succeeded Euler as director of the Academy of Berlin. Removing to Paris in 1787, he remained there during the revolution, was afterward patronized by Napoleon, and created by him a count and a senator. Died, 1813.

Lalande (lă'lănd'), Joseph Jerome Le Francais de, French astronomer, was born at Bourg-en Bresse, 1732. He devoted himself with such success to mathematics and astronomy that the French Academy sent him to Berlin, 1751, to determine the moon's parallax, at the same time that Lacaille was sent to the Cape of Good Hope. His chief work is Traité d'Astronomie. Died, 1807.

Lally-Tollendal (lă'lē' tō'lăn'dăl'), Thomas Arthur, Comte de Lally and Baron de Tollendal, French general; of Irish descent, was born at Romans in Dauphiné, 1702. His father, Sir Gerard Lally, was an Irish Jacobite refugee in the French service. Lally in 1756 became commander-in-chief in the French East Indies. He commenced vigorous hostilities against the British, and besieged Madras; but, being defeated, retreated to Pondicherry, which was attacked in 1760 by a superior British force. Lally capitulated in 1761, after ten months' siege, and was conveyed to England. Accused of cowardice, he returned to France, and was thrown into the Bastile. The parliament of Paris at last condemned him, and he was executed in 1766. But his son, supported by Voltaire, procured a royal decree in 1778, declaring the condemnation unjust, and restoring all the forfeited honors.

Lamar, Joseph Rucker, lawyer, jurist, was born at Ruckersville, Ga., October 14, 1857, educated at the University of Georgia, Washington and Lee Universities, and Bethany College; admitted to bar, 1879, and practised at Augusta, Ga., 1879-1903. Member Georgia house of representatives, 1886-9; commissioner to codify the laws of Georgia, 1895; associate justice supreme court of Georgia, 1903-10; associate justice of the United States supreme court, 1910-1916. Died, 1916.

Lamar (la-măr'), Lucius Quintus Cincinnatus, American lawyer and statesman, was born in Putnam county, Ga., 1825. Removed to Mississippi, 1854, and was a member of congress from that state, 1857-60; served in the confederate army during the Civil War, and was sent to Europe as agent of the confederacy. In 1866 he was made professor of political economy at the University of Mississippi; was a member of congress, 1872-77, and of the United States senate, 1877-85. President Cleveland made him secretary of the interior and, in 1888, associate justice of the United States supreme court. He died at Macon, Ga., 1893.

Lamarck (lă'märk'), Jean Baptiste Pierre Antoine Monet de, celebrated French naturalist and pre-Darwinian evolutionist, was born at Bazentin, 1744. In 1778 he published a Flore Francaise. In 1779 he became a member of the French Academy and keeper of the royal garden, afterward the nucleus of Jardin des Plantes, and here he lectured for twenty-five years on invertebrate zoölogy. About 1801 he had begun to think about the relations and origin of species, expressing his conclusions in his famous Philosophie Zoölogique, in 1809. His Historie des Animaux sans Vertèbres appeared in 1815-22. He broke with the old notion of species, expressly denied the unchangeableness of species, sought to explain their transformation and the evolution of the animal world, and prepared the way for the now accepted theory of descent. Died, 1829.

Lamartine (lă'mär'tēn'), Alphonse, French author and politician, was born at Mâcon, 1790. He exercised a most important influence upon the revolution of 1848, restraining the populace from many excesses into which they might otherwise have been led. The greater part of his career was devoted to literature, in which he obtained eminence. His History of the Girondists, published in 1847, undoubtedly did much to hasten the revolution and his History of the Revolution of 1848, which appeared in the following year, is a deeply interesting account of a movement which if it had not been turned into another direction by the temporarily successful ambition of Louis Napoleon, might have gained for France at once that free government that France obtained only after the fall of the empire. Died, 1869.

Lamb, Charles, English essayist and poet, was born in London, 1775. He was the son of a clerk to one of the benchers at the Inner Temple, and was educated at Christ's Hospital, where he was the schoolfellow and friend of Samuel Taylor Coleridge. From 1792 to 1825 he was a clerk in the accountant's office of the East India company, retiring at last on a pension; but, during most of these years, and indeed up to the close of his life, he devoted himself, in a spirit of noble self-sacrifice, to the care of his sister Mary, who, like himself, had inherited a taint of insanity. Lamb's earliest literary efforts were in verse. In 1807 he published, in conjunction with his sister, a series of Tales from Shakespeare; and in 1808 two volumes of Specimens of English Dramatic Poets Who Lived About the Time of Shakespeare, with short but felicitous notes. On the establishment of the London Magazines in 1820, he began that series of essays, signed Elia, which are the chief foundation of his fame. He died in 1834, his sister Mary surviving him until 1847.

Landor, Arnold Henry Savage, English artist and traveler, was born at Florence, Italy, 1865, and was educated there and at Paris. He traveled in the East several years, also in America, Australia, Azores and northern Africa. He was the first white man to reach both sources of the great Brahmaputra river and establish their exact position; to settle the geographical problem that no range higher than the Himalayas existed north of the Brahmaputra river. He held the world's record in mountaineering for many years, but later climbers of Mount Everest have reached much higher altitudes. Author: Alone With the Hairy Ainu, or 3,300 Miles on a Pack-saddle; Corea, or the Land of the Morning Calm; The Gems of the East; Tibet and Nepal; Across Widest Africa, etc. Died, 1924.

Landor, Walter Savage, English poet and prose writer, was born at Ipsley Court, Warwickshire, 1775. He studied at Oxford, where he won high reputation as a scholar, and in 1808 raised a body of men, at his own expense, and joined the Spanish patriots under Blake. He was made a colonel in the service of Spain, but resigned his commission on the restoration of King Ferdinand. He first became known as the author of a poem called Gebir, in 1798, which was followed by Count Julian. In 1824-29 appeared his Imaginary Conversations of Literary Men and Statesmen, in 5 vols. He was a thorough classical scholar, and his Greek and Roman characters speak as we should expect the ancient heroes to have spoken. "He has," says Emerson, "an English appetite for action and heroes." Died in Florence, Italy, 1864.

Landseer, Sir Edwin, English painter, was born in London, 1802. The first work that brought him prominently before the public was Dogs Fighting, exhibited in 1819. It was succeeded by the Dogs of St. Gothard, the popularity of which was very great. In 1830 he was elected a royal academician, and in 1850 was knighted. Among this most celebrated achievements are: The Return From Deerstalking; The Illicit Whiskey-still; Night; Morning; The Children of the Mist; Saved; Flood in the Highlands; Windsor Park; Squirrels Cracking Nuts. He was elected president of the Royal Academy in 1865, but declined the honor. He was the most superb animal-painter of his time. Died, 1873.

Lane, Edward William, English orientalist and Arabic scholar, was born at Hereford, 1801, the son of a prebendary. The result of Egyptian visits was his Manners and Customs of the Modern Egyptians, still a standard authority. This was followed by the annotated translation of the Thousand and One Nights, which was the first accurate rendering. His later years in Egypt were devoted to the great work of his life, the Arabic-English Lexicon. Died, 1876.

Lane, Franklin Knight, Secretary of the Interior, lawyer, was born Prince Edward Island, July 15, 1864. He was graduated from the University of California, 1886, and began the practice of law in San Francisco, 1889. Was corporation council of San Francisco, 1897-1902; candidate for governor of California, 1902, and for United States senator 1903; and member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, 1905-13. He was appointed Secretary of the Interior by President Wilson, 1913. On April 11, 1893, he married Anne Wintermute, of Tacoma, Wash. Died, 1921.

Lane-Poole, Stanley, English historian and archaeologist, professor of Arabic at Trinity College, Dublin, 1898-1904, was born in London, 1854. M.A., Oxford, and Dublin; Litt.D., Dublin. Visited Australia, 1890; employed by Egyptian government on archaeological research at Cairo, 1895-97; lecturer at the royal institution, 1900, and examiner in Arabic to the University of Wales, 1901-02. Author: Catalogue of the Oriental and Indian Coins in the British Museum, 14 vols.; Social Life in Egypt; Studies in a Mosque; The Art of the Saracens of Egypt; Speeches and Table-talk of Mohammed; Essays in Oriental Numismatics, 3 vols., etc. Edited: Lane's Arabic Lexicon, The People of Turkey, 2 vols., Lane's Koran; Arabian Society in the Middle Ages, etc.

Lanfranc (lan'frangk), prelate and scholar, archbishop of Canterbury, was born in Pavia, Italy, about 1005. In 1045 he was chosen prior of the Benedictine Abbey of Bec. William of Normandy appointed him a counsellor of state, and in 1066 abbot of a monastery in Caen, where he established a school. Afterward William caused him to be elected to the see of Canterbury, and he was consecrated in 1070. His works consist of commentaries, letters and sermons. Died, 1089.

Lang (lang), Andrew, Scottish writer and critic, was born at Selkirk, Scotland, 1844. He was educated at St. Andrews University and Balliol College, Oxford. Litt.D., Oxford, LL.D., St. Andrews. He was elected a fellow of Merton College, 1868, and shortly became one of the busiest and brightest writers in the world of London journalism. He wrote Ballads and Lyrics of Old France; Helen of Troy; Rhymes a la Mode; Customs and Myth; Modern Mythology; contributions to the study of the philosophy and religion of primitive man. Among his other works are: The Library Life of Lockhart; Pickle the Spy; Companions of Pickle; History of Scotland, 2 vols.; Prince Charles Edward; The Mystery of Mary Stuart; Homer and His Age, etc. He translated Theocritus and, with others, Homer, besides editing the Fairy Books, etc. Died, 1912.

Langevin (länzh'van'), Louis Philip Adelard, Canadian prelate, Catholic archbishop of St. Boniface, Manitoba, since 1895, was born at St. Isadore, La Prairie, province of Quebec, Canada, 1855. He was educated at Montreal College, completed his course of theological study at St. Mary's College, Montreal; entered the order of oblates of Mary Immaculate, 1881, and was ordained priest, 1882. Professor of moral theology in the Catholic University of Ottawa, where he soon became vice-dean of the theological faculty, 1885; D.D., 1892. He visited England, France, Belgium, Germany, in 1890; Rome in 1896, 1898, and 1904, and the same year visited the Holy Land. Has founded twenty-eight parishes, twenty-four educational convents, three hospitals, two orphanages, six Indian boarding schools, and doubled the number of priests and the number of missionaries among the Indians.

Langton, Stephen, English prelate, was born about 1160. He studied in Paris and there became canon of Notre Dame and chancellor of the University. In 1207 was consecrated archbishop of Canterbury. In 1213 he joined the barons opposed to the misgovernment of John, and his name stands first among the subscribing witnesses to Magna Charta. He again placed himself at the head of the barons, in 1823, to demand from Henry III, the confirmation, of their liberties. Died, 1228.

Lanier (la-nēr'), Sidney, American poet, was born in Macon, Ga., 1842. He was graduated at Oglethrope College, Ga., 1860, and served in the confederate army during the Civil War. From 1868 to 1872 he practiced law in company with his father at Macon. In 1876 he prepared an ode for the centennial exhibition at Philadelphia, and in 1877 settled in Baltimore, where he delivered lectures on English literature. In 1879 he was appointed lecturer on English literature at Johns Hopkins University. In the summer of 1880, enfeebled by consumption, he sought relief in the mountains of North Carolina, where he died, 1881. His two notable books are Science of English Verse, and Poems.

Lankester (lang'kes-tēr), Sir Edwin Ray, English zoölogist, was born in London, 1847. He was educated at Downing College, Cambridge, and at Christ Church, Oxford; D.Sc., Oxford and Leeds; LL.D., Cambridge. He was fellow and tutor of Exeter College, regius professor of natural history, Edinburgh, 1882; Linacre professor of comparative anatomy, Oxford, 1891-98, and director of the natural history departments of the British museum, 1898-1907. Author: A Monograph of the Cephalaspidian Fishes; Degeneration. Died, 1929.

Lannes (lan), Jean, duke of Montebello, French marshal, was born at Lectoure, 1769. He entered the army in 1792, and by his conspicuous bravery in the Italian campaign fought his way up to the rank of brigadier-general, 1795. He rendered Napoleon important service, and on the 9th of June, 1800, won the battle of Montebello. In 1809 he commanded the center at Aspern, where he was mortally wounded, and died in that year.

Lansdowne (lanz'doun), Henry Charles Keith Petty-Fitzmaurice, fifth Marquis of, English statesman, was born in 1845. He was educated at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford; D.C.L., Oxford. He succeeded to the marquisate in 1866, from 1868 held minor offices in the liberal administration, and in 1872-74 was under-secretary of war. In 1880 he became under-secretary for India, but resigned owing to a difference with Gladstone over the compensation for disturbance bill. He was governor-general of Canada, 1883-88, of India, 1888-94, war secretary in 1895-1900, and in 1900-1905 foreign secretary, promoting the entente with the United States and France and the treaties with Japan. Died, 1927.

Lansing, Robert, diplomatist, born at Watertown, N. Y., 1864, represented United States in Behring Sea Arbitration, Behring Sea Claims Commission, Alaskan Boundary Tribunal, and Atlantic Fisheries Commission. He was considered one of the great authorities on International Law. In 1919 he was one of the American delegates to the International Peace Conference at Versailles. Secretary of State, 1917-1920. Dismissed by President Wilson, February, 1920, on claim of usurpation of presidential powers. Since then member firm Lansing & Woolsey; counsel for Chinese government; he died in 1928.

Laotse (la'o-tsu'), Chinese sage, founder of Taoism, was born about 604. He was a contemporary of Confucius, and wrote the celebrated Tao-te-King canon, one of the sacred books of China.

Laplace (là'plàs'), Pierre Simon, Marquis de, eminent French mathematician and astronomer, was born at Beaumont-en-Auge, in Normandy, 1749. He was for some time a teacher of mathematics in the military school there, and afterward went to Paris. He was gifted with wonderful scientific sagacity and solved several problems which had for many years defied the attempts of geometers. He was the author of the nebular hypothesis, and together with Lagrange did much to verify Newton's theory. His Traité de la Mécanique Céleste, and supplements to it, are, next to Newton's Principia, the greatest of astronomical works. Died at Paris, 1827.

Lardner, Ring, American writer, was born at Niles, Michigan, in 1885, and received his training at the Armour Institute of Technology, Chicago. He wrote for newspapers in Boston, Chicago, and St. Louis until 1919, when he began work for the Bell Syndicate. His humorous writings include Gullible's Travels, You Know Me, Al; The Big Town, and My Four Weeks in France. Died, 1933.

Larned, Josephus Nelson, author and journalist, was born in Chatham, Ont., 1836. He was educated in the public schools of Buffalo; was on editorial staff of Buffalo Express, 1859-72; superintendent of education, Buffalo, 1872-73; and superintendent of Buffalo library, 1877-97. Author: A Multitude of Councilors; Primer of Right and Wrong; History of the United States for Secondary Schools; Seventy Centuries—a Survey. Died, 1913.

La Rochefoucauld (là rōsh'fōō'kō), Francois, Duc de, French moralist, was born at Paris, 1613. He joined the Frondeurs and was wounded at the siege of Paris. In 1652, wounded again, he retired to the country. On Mazarin's death in 1661 he repaired to the court of Louis XIV. A surreptitious edition of his Mémoiers, written in retirement, was published in 1662; as it gave wide offense he disavowed its authorship. His Réflexions, ou Sentences et Maximes Morales appeared in 1665. His last years were brightened by his friendship with Mme. de La Fayette, which lasted until he died, in 1680.

Larrey (là'rā), Dominique Jean, Baron, noted French surgeon, was born at Baudéan in 1766. He went to Paris, and entered the navy as surgeon, and afterward became a surgeon in the army. He served under Napoleon in the wars of Egypt, Germany and Spain, and was much loved by the soldiers because of his bravery and skill as surgeon. Once he killed his own horses to make soup for the wounded men under his care. Napoleon said of him: "If the army ever erects a monument of gratitude, it should be to Larrey"; and in his will said: "I leave 100,000 francs to the surgeon-chief Larrey, the most virtuous man I know." There is a bronze statue of Larrey in Paris, in which he is shown standing and holding Napoleon's will in his hand, open at these words. Died, 1842.

La Salle (là sal'), Rene Robert Cavelier, Sieur de, noted French navigator, was born in Rouen, 1643. He came to America in 1667. After a voyage of exploration from Lake Erie to Lake Superior and down the Mississippi, he took possession of the land around the gulf of Mexico, called it Louisiana, after the French king, and went to France to get men and means to colonize it. But quarrels arose between him and the commander of the fleet, which ended in the return of the ships, and fifty of the people, to France. With the others La Salle kept on his way, but failed to find the Mississippi again, and wandered from place to place, until his followers were nearly all dead. At last, he started for Canada with sixteen men in 1687. On the way in 1687 two of the men, who hated La Salle, shot him. He was the first European to travel from the headwaters to the mouth of the Mississippi.

Lassalle (là'sàl'), Ferdinand, founder of socialism in Germany, was born in Breslau, 1825, of Jewish parents. He became a disciple of Hegel, took part in the revolution of 1848, and was sent to prison for six months. In 1861 his System of Acquired Rights started an agitation of labor against capital, and he was again thrown into prison. Returning to Switzerland, he conceived a passionate affection for a lady betrothed to a noble, whom she was compelled to marry, and whom he challenged; the noble mortally wounded Lassalle in a duel in 1864.

Latimer, Hugh, English bishop and martyr, was born at Thurcaston, in Leicestershire, about 1485, the son of a yeoman. He was educated at Christ's College, Cambridge. He was made bishop of Worcester, 1535, by Henry VIII. The bishopric, however, he resigned, on the passing of the act of the six articles; and was punished by being imprisoned during the remainder of Henry's reign. The accession of Edward VI. set Latimer at liberty, and he resumed his preaching, but refused to resume the mitre. On Mary's ascending the throne he was again incarcerated; and, in 1555, was brought to the stake, where he suffered with unshaken courage. Ridley was his fellow martyr.

Latour D'Auvergne (là'tōōr' dō'vern'y'), Theophile Malo Corret de, noted French soldier, was born at Carhaix Brittany, 1743. He entered the French army when twenty-four years old. He was a man of extraordinary bravery, became distinguished in the wars of 1792-1800, and was commander of the troop called the "infernal column." When peace came, Latour went to his home and lived quietly until the war again broke out; then he joined the army in place of the only son of a friend. After his death his name was called at roll for many years, and the oldest sergeant used always to answer for him; "Died on the field of honor." He fell in battle at Oberhausen, Bavaria, 1800.

Latrobe (la-trōb'), Benjamin Henry, American architect and engineer, was born in Yorkshire, England, 1764. In 1785 he entered the Prussian army in a regiment of hussars, and was twice wounded in battle. In 1796 he came to the United States, when he was made engineer of the James river and Appomattox canal, and superintended the building of the penitentiary in Richmond. In 1798 he settled in Philadelphia, where he designed the bank of Pennsylvania, the old academy of art and the bank of the United States. In 1811 he completed the capitol at Washington, and after its destruction by the British in 1814, superintended its reconstruction. Died at New Orleans, 1820.

Laud (lôd), William, 1573-1645, English prelate, Archbishop of Canterbury, was born at Reading, the son of a clothier. He rose to the primacy, but declined offer of a cardinal's hat, and became a chief advisor of Charles I. His advice did not benefit the king, and on Towerhill he was beheaded for treason.

Lauder, Harry, one of the most popular Scottish comedians, is declared to be among the greatest entertainers now before the public. The secret of his success is that he is simply natural, bubbling over with wit and melody because he cannot help it.

Laughlin (làf'lin), James Laurence, American educator, economist, head professor of political economy, University of Chicago, 1892-1916; and since emeritus professor same. Was born at Deerfield, Ohio, 1840. He was graduated at Harvard, 1873; Ph.D., 1876. He taught in Hopkinson's classical school, Boston, 1873-78; was instructor, 1878-83, assistant professor, 1883-87, of political economy at Harvard; president of Manufacturers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, Philadelphia, 1887-90; and professor political economy; Cornell, 1890-92. Author: Anglo-Saxon Legal Procedure in Anglo-Saxon Laws; Elements of Political Economy; Gold and Prices Since 1873; Facts About Money; Principles of Money; Reciprocity; Industrial America, etc. He was lecturer in Berlin on invitation of Prussian cultus ministerium, 1906.

Laurens (lô'ens), Henry, American statesman, was born in Charleston, S. C., 1724. He was educated for a merchant, was very successful and accumulated a large fortune. In 1776 he became a member of the continental congress from South Carolina, and in the following year was elected its president. In 1779 he was sent on important state business to Holland, but was captured on the way by a British ship-of-war, and taken to London, where he was kept prisoner in the Tower for fifteen months. When the war ended, he was freed and became one of the ministers to Paris, 1782, to conclude the terms of peace. He died in Charleston, 1792.

Laurie (lou'rē), Simon Somerville, Scotch educator, was born at Edinburgh, 1829. He was educated at the University of Edinburgh; LL.D., Edinburgh, Aberdeen, and St. Andrews. He was secretary to the endowed schools of Scotland commission, 1872; and at one time president of the teachers' guild. He was Gifford lecturer at Edinburgh, 1905-06, and professor emeritus of the institutes and history of education. Author: Philosophy of Ethics; Primary Instruction in Relation to Education; Institutes of Education; Historical Survey of Pre-Christian Education; and many philosophical and educational articles. Died in 1909.

Laurier (lo'ri-ā'), Sir Wilfrid, Canadian statesman, first French-Canadian premier of the Dominion since 1896, was born in St. Lin, 1841, and educated for the bar at L'Assomption College, 1864; D.C.L., LL.D. He rose rapidly in his profession, and in 1871 was elected as a liberal to the Quebec provincial assembly. In 1874 he was elected to the federal assembly. On the retirement of Blake in 1891 he was chosen leader of the liberal party, and at the general election of 1896 he led his followers to a notable victory. His tariff legislation during 1897, giving Great Britain the benefit of preferential trade with Canada, aroused much enthusiasm both in the colony and at home, and he was warmly welcomed when he went to London to attend the jubilee festivities. He was then appointed a member of the privy council and made a G. C. M. G. In 1900 he again secured the approval both of the Dominion and of the empire by the prompt despatch of Canadian troops to aid the mother country in South Africa, and led his party to another victory at the polls in November. He attended the colonial conference and the coronation in England in 1902. He was again returned to power in 1904 and 1908. Died in 1919.

Laveleye (lav'le'), Emile Louis Victor de, Belgian political economist, was born at Bruges, 1822. He studied at Ghent, and in 1864 became professor of political economy at Liége. His works include De la Propriété Lettres d'Italie; Le Socialisme Contemporain; Elements d'Economie Politique; La Péninsule des Balkans; and works on rural economy in the Netherlands, and on current topics of the day. He was made a baron a few weeks before his death in 1892.

Lavelle, Michael J., American Roman Catholic priest, was born in New York, 1856. He was graduated at Manhattan College, 1873, St. Joseph's Seminary, Troy, N. Y., 1874, and was ordained to the priesthood, 1879. He was assistant, of St. Patrick's cathedral, 1879-86, and rector since 1886; was appointed vicar general, New York, 1902, and domestic prelate to Pope Pius X., 1903. He has been prominent in educational and philanthropic movements.

Lavoisier, Antoine Laurent, celebrated French chemist, was born at Paris, in 1743. He was educated at Mazarin College, and on quitting it, devoted himself wholly to the sciences, but more particularly to chemistry. To obtain the means of more fully prosecuting his researches, he accepted, in 1769, the office of farmer-general. In 1768, he was made an academician; in 1776, discovered a way of greatly improving the quality of gunpowder; and made other beneficial discoveries in economics, and in the application of chemistry to agriculture.

Availing himself of the discoveries of Black Priestly, and Cavendish, and making many experiments and discoveries himself, he was led to connect the discovery of gas, oxygen, with the phenomena of combustion and of acidity; and in 1783, he proved that water can be formed by burning oxygen and hydrogen together, and that it can be decomposed into the same elements. Another great contribution to science by Lavoisier was the chemical nomenclature which he is understood to have invented, and which is still retained, having served as the basis of all subsequent improvements in this important branch of the literature of the science in general.

Notwithstanding his talents and virtues, he was condemned to death by the revolutionary tribunal of Paris, on the frivolous charge of having adulterated the tobacco with ingredients obnoxious to the health of the citizens, and was guillotined, 1794. His principal work is his Traité Elementaire de Chimie, "Treatise on the Elements of Chemistry."

References.—Life by Grimaux; Thorpe's Essays in Historical Chemistry; Brougham's Lives of Philosophers.

Lawrence, Abbott, American merchant and philanthropist, was born at Groton, Mass., 1792. He was elected to congress in 1839, and in 1842 was one of the commissioners to settle the northeast boundary question with Great Britain. He founded the Lawrence scientific school at Harvard University, and made a bequest for model lodging houses. Died at Boston, Mass., 1855.

Lawrence, Amos, American philanthropist, and brother of Abbott, was born at Groton, Mass., 1786. Having acquired an immense fortune in trade, he devoted over $700,000 of it to charities and donations, among other institutions to Kenyon and Williams Colleges and the theological seminary at Bangor, Me. He died at Boston, Mass., 1852, and his son published his Life and Correspondence in 1855.

Lawrence, James, American naval officer, was born at Burlington, N. J., 1781. In the war of 1812 he served under Commodore Decatur, and by brave conduct rose rapidly. In 1813, after a short engagement, he captured the British ship Peacock, and soon after was made commander of the frigate Chesapeake. After he had been in command of its undisciplined crew for only a few days, in June, 1813, he met the British frigate Shannon just out of Boston, and during a hard fight he was mortally wounded and his ship was captured. It was here that he uttered the words, "Don't give up the ship!"

Lawrence, Sir Thomas, English portrait painter, was born in Bristol, 1769; succeeded Sir Joshua Reynolds in 1792 as first painter to King George III. In 1820 he became president of the Royal Academy. He painted nearly all the monarchs and notabilities of Europe; his pictures are distinguished by fidelity of touch and by a peculiar softness and grace of finish. Died, 1830.

Lawrence, William, American prelate, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts since 1893, was born in Boston, 1850. He was graduated at Harvard, 1871; D.D., 1893; S.T.D., Hobart, 1880; LL.D., Princeton, 1904. He was rector of Grace church, Lawrence, Mass., 1876-84; professor of homiletics and pastoral theology, Episcopal theological school, Cambridge, 1884-93; dean of same, 1888-93. Author: Life of Amos A. Lawrence; Visions and Service; Life of Roger Wolcott; Study of Phillips Brooks, etc.

Lawson, Thomas William, American banker, yachtsman and author, was born in Charlestown, Mass., 1857. He was educated at the public schools of Cambridge, was in business as banker and broker since 1870, and was formerly senior member of the firm of Lawson, Arnold, and company, members of Boston and New York stock exchanges. He was prominent as yachtsman and as a contributor to magazines, reviews and newspapers. Author: The Krank; History of the Republican Party; Secrets of Success; Frenzied Finance; Friday the Thirteenth, etc. Died in 1925.

Layard (lā'ard), Sir Austen Henry, English diplomat, was born in Paris, 1817. Traveling along the Tigris on his way to Ceylon in 1840, he was struck with the ruins of Nimrud, the supposed site of Nineveh; and in 1845-47 carried on excavations there, finding the remains of four palaces. He published Nineveh and Its Remains, Monuments of Nineveh, etc. He was presented with the freedom of the city of London, was made D.C.L. by Oxford, and was lord rector of Aberdeen University, 1855-56. He was member of parliament for Aylesbury, 1852-57, foreign under-secretary 1861-66, chief commissioner of works, 1868-69, and in 1869 went as British ambassador to Spain, from 1877 to 1880 to Constantinople, being made K.C.B. in 1878. Died, 1894.

Lea (lē), Henry Charles, American author and historian, was born in Philadelphia, 1825. He received private education; LL.D. University of Pennsylvania, Harvard and Princeton, and was made a member of many learned societies in Europe and the United States. He was in the publishing business, 1843-80; then retired and devoted himself to literary and historical research. Author: A History of the Inquisition of the Middle Ages; Chapters From the Religious History of Spain; Formulary of the Papal Penitentiary in the Thirteenth Century; History of the Inquisition of Spain; and also many articles in periodicals. Died, 1909.

Learned, Marion Dexter, university professor, was born near Dover, Delaware, 1857; graduated at Dickinson College, 1880; L.H.D., 1904; studied in Germany, 1885; Ph.D., Johns Hopkins, 1887. He was instructor associate and associate professor of German, Johns Hopkins, 1886-95; professor of German, University of Pennsylvania, since 1895. President Modern Language Association of America, 1909. Author: The Saga of Walther of Aquitaine; German Grammar; Herder and America; German Diaries of the American Revolution, etc.

Le Brun (lē brun'), Charles, French historical painter, was born in Paris, 1619. He studied four years in Rome, and for nearly forty years, 1647-83, exercised a despotic influence over French art and artists, being usually considered the founder of the French school of painting. From 1668 to 1683, he was employed by Louis XIV. in the decoration of the palace of Versailles; but, being superseded, he became ill and died, 1690.

Le Brun, Marie Anne Elisabeth Vigee, French painter, was born in Paris, 1755, daughter of one Vigée, a painter. In 1776 she married J. B. P. Le Brun, picture dealer and grand-nephew of Charles Le Brun. Her portrait of Marie Antoinette in 1779, led to a lasting friendship with the queen. She painted numerous portraits of the royal family. In London she painted portraits of the prince of Wales, Lord Byron, and others. Died, 1842.

Lecky (lek'i), William Edward Hartpole, British historian and philosopher, was born near Dublin, Ireland, 1838. He was graduated in 1859 at Trinity College, Dublin. In 1861 he published anonymously The Leaders of Public Opinion in Ireland, four brilliant essays on Swift, Flood, Grattan and O'Connell. His later works were Rationalism in Europe; History of European Morals; History of England in the 18th Century; and Democracy and Liberty with a volume of poems in 1891. He was elected to parliament for Dublin University in 1895 and again in 1900. Died, 1903.

Le Conte (lē kont'), Joseph, American naturalist and physicist, was born in Liberty county, Ga., 1823. He was graduated at Franklin College, University of Georgia, in 1841, and the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1845, and practiced his profession at Macon, Ga. In 1850 he went to Cambridge, Mass., where he studied under Agassiz. He subsequently held several professorships, and in 1869 became professor of geology and natural history in the University of California. He published several essays on education and the fine arts: The Mutual Relations of Religion and Science; Elements of Geology; Sight; A Compend of Geology; Evolution, etc. He died in the Yosemite valley, California, 1901.

Lee, Fitzhugh, American soldier, nephew of Robert E. Lee was born in Fairfax county, Va., 1835. He was graduated at West Point military academy 1856, and became a lieutenant in the second United States cavalry. At the opening of the Civil War he resigned and entered the confederate service, advancing to the rank of major-general. In 1885 he was elected governor of Virginia, serving until 1890. He was appointed consul-general to Havana by President Cleveland, and was retained at that post by President McKinley. He administered his office with signal ability during the investigation of the explosion of the battleship Maine, and throughout the trying times preceding the Spanish-American war. In that war he served as major-general of volunteers and after peace was declared he was made governor of the province of Havana. He was later appointed brigadier-general in the regular army, retiring in 1901. Died, 1905.

Lee, Henry, distinguished American general, was born in Virginia, 1756. He was one of the most daring, vigilant and successful cavalry officers on the side of the colonists. "Lee's legion" was probably the most effective and courageous body of troops raised in America. At the battles of Guilford Court House and Eutaw, at the sieges of Forts Watson, Motte, and Granby and Augusta, and, at the storming of Fort Grierson, Lee particularly signalized himself. After the war he was sent to congress as a delegate from Virginia, advocated the adoption of a federal constitution, and in 1792 was chosen governor of Virginia. When Washington died Lee was chosen by congress to write a eulogy of him; in it occurs the famous words "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen." Died, 1818.

Lee, Richard Henry, eminent American patriot, and signer of the declaration of independence, was born in Virginia, 1732, and received his education in England. He returned to his native country in his nineteenth year. In 1764 he was appointed to draft an address to the king, and a memorial to the house of lords, which are among the best state papers of the period. The memorial of congress to the people of British America, and the second address of congress to the people of Great Britain, were both from his pen. In June, 1776, he introduced the measure that declared the colonies free and independent states, and supported it by a speech of the most brilliant eloquence. He continued to hold a seat in congress until 1780, when he declined a reëlection until 1784. In that year he was chosen president of congress, but retired at its close, and in 1786 was chosen a member of the Virginia assembly. He was a member of the convention which adopted the present constitution of the United States, and one of the first senators under it. In 1792 he again retired from public life, and died in 1794.

Lee, Robert Edward, American general, was born in Westmoreland county, Va., 1807. At eighteen he entered West Point, was graduated second in his class in 1829, and received a commission in the corps of engineers. In the Mexican war he was chief-engineer of the central army in Mexico, and at the storming of Chapultepec was severely wounded. In 1852-55 he was superintendent of the United States military academy, and greatly improved its efficiency. He was in command in Texas in 1860, but was recalled to Washington in March, 1861, when seven states had formed the southern confederacy. Virginia seceded on April 17th, and Colonel Lee, believing that his allegiance was due to his state, sent in his resignation. Within two days he was made commander-in-chief of the forces of Virginia. At Richmond he superintended the defenses of the city until the autumn, when he was sent to oppose General Rosecrans in West Virginia. His masterly strategy in the seven days' battles around Richmond defeated McClellan; his battles and strategy in opposing General Pope, his invasion of Maryland and Pennsylvania and other achievements are cardinal to the history of the war. On April 9, 1865, Lee surrendered his army to General Grant at Appomattox Court House, Virginia, and the war was practically ended. After the close of the war he frankly accepted the result, and, although deprived of his former property at Arlington on the Potomac, and the White House on the Pamunky, he declined proffered offers of pecuniary aid, and accepted the presidency of what came to be called the Washington and Lee University, at Lexington, Va., at whose head he remained until his death in 1870. Numerous military critics regard Lee as the greatest military leader produced by the Civil War, and one of the very first produced by the nineteenth century.

Le Gallienne (lē gal'i-en'), Richard, journalist, was born in Liverpool, England, 1866. He was educated at Liverpool College, and engaged in business seven years, but abandoned it for literature. For a few months he was private secretary to Wilson Barrett, then became literary critic for several papers, and settled in London. For some years his journalistic and literary work has been confined to the United States. Author: My Ladies' Sonnets; Volumes in Folio; George Meredith; The Book-Bills of Narcissus; English Poems; The Religion of a Literary Man; Prose Fancies; Robert Louis Stevenson and Other Poems; The Beautiful Life of Rome; Rudyard Kipling, a Criticism; The Life Romantic; Sleeping Beauty; Mr. Sun and Mrs. Moon; Odes from the Diran of Hafiz; Painted Shadows; Little Dinners With the Sphinx, etc.

Legare (lē-grē'), Hugh Swinton, American statesman, was born in Charleston, S. C., 1797. He studied law, traveled in Europe, and was a member of the South Carolina legislature, 1820-22 and 1824-30. In 1830 he was elected attorney-general. He was chargé d'affaires at Brussels, 1832-36, and took his seat as a member of congress during the session of 1837. After the accession of President Tyler in 1841, Legaré was appointed attorney-general of the United States, and in the spring of 1843 he succeeded Webster as secretary of state. He was distinguished as a scholar, and contributed largely to periodicals. Died, 1843.

Leibnitz, Gottfried Wilhelm, von, perhaps the most extraordinary example of universal scholarship upon record, was born, 1646, at Leipzig. In 1672 he submitted to Louis XIV. an essay entitled Consilium Ægyptiacum, containing a plan for the invasion of Egypt, which is by some supposed to have led to the Egyptian expedition of Bonaparte in 1798. Died, 1716.

He was the chief organizer of the academy of Berlin, of which he was the first president, and originated both at Dresden and Vienna a project for the establishment of similar bodies. It was to him, likewise, that Peter the Great owed the plan of the since celebrated academy of St. Petersburg. He was eminent in languages, history, divinity, philosophy, political studies, experimental science, mechanical science, and even belles-letters. But it is through his philosophical reputation that he lives in history.

The principal metaphysical speculations of Leibnitz are contained in his Theodicee Nouveaux Essais, Systeme nouveau de la Nature, De Ipsa Natura, Monadologie, and in portions of his correspondence. He controverted Locke's rejection of innate ideas, holding that there are necessary truths which cannot be learned from experience, but are innate in the soul, not, indeed, actually forming objects of knowledge, but capable of being called forth by circumstances. Authorities seem generally agreed that Leibnitz discovered the differential calculus independently of any knowledge of Newton's method of fluxions, so that each of these great men in reality attained the same result for himself.

References.—Guhrauer's G. W. F. Leibnitz; Dewey's Leibnitz's New Essays Concerning the Human Understanding; Stein's Leibnitz and Spinoza; Merz's Leibnitz; Latta's Leibnitz, The Monadology and Other Philosophical Writings; Russell's A Critical Exposition of the Philosophy of Leibnitz.

Leighton (lā'tun), Frederick, Lord, English painter, was born at Scarborough, England, 1830. His early years were spent in the study of art, under the best masters in Rome, Florence, Frankfort, Paris and Brussels. His famous picture, "Cimabue's Madonna Carried in Procession Through the Streets of Florence" was his first appearance in the Royal Academy in 1755, and was at once purchased by the queen. Among his other paintings are Ariadne; Romeo and Juliet; Wedded, etc. In 1878 he became president of the Royal Academy, was made a baronet in 1885, and raised to the peerage in 1896. In his lifetime he received almost every honor possible to an artist. Died, 1896.

Lemieux, Rodolphe, French statesman, postmaster-general, and minister of labour of Canada since 1906, was born at Montreal, 1866. He was educated at the seminary of Nicolet, and at Laval University, Montreal; barrister, 1891; Q. C., Quebec, 1898, and K. C., Ottawa, 1904. He was a member of parliament for Gaspé, 1896; reëlected, 1900 and 1904; represented Canada before the privy council in England, 1904; solicitor-general of Canada, 1904-06; fellow of the royal society, Canada, 1908. Author of several works on law and a number of addresses.

Lenbach (len'bäκ), Franz von, noted German portrait painter, was born at Schrobenhausen, Bavaria, 1836. He studied at the Munich Academy under Gräfle and Piloty, and in 1858 went to Rome. In 1860 he become professor of art at Weimar, but resigned in 1862 and went to Italy and Spain. On his return to Munich he devoted himself exclusively to portraiture, but after 1872 spent much time in travel and work in Vienna, Morocco and Egypt. His portraits of Bismarck are specially famous. Died, 1904.

Lenin, Nikolai, Russian Soviet leader, was born at Simbirsk, 1870. When he was seventeen his elder brother was hanged for a conspiracy against the czar. Lenine studied law at the university of Kazan from which he was expelled for his revolutionary agitations and at Petrograd. In 1896 he was arrested but escaped and went abroad, where he wrote much in favor of Marxism and social upheaval, advocating terrorism and violence. At the beginning of the World War he was a leader in socialist circle. He soon saw that his cause would be helped by Russia's defeat and worked to this end, with the financial aid of the German secret service. He was made president of the Soviet Republic in 1918. His health failed in 1923 and he died, 1924.

Leo I., the Great, pope of Rome 440-461, was born about 390. He succeeded Sixtus III. in 440; zealously opposed the Manichæans and Pelagians, and secured the condemnation of the Eutychian heresy at the general council of Chalcedon; extended the Roman see, and induced Attila to spare Rome. He published several volumes of letters and sermons. Died at Rome, 461.

Leo X., Pope (Cardinal Giovanni de Medici), son of Lorenzo the Magnificent, was born in Florence, Italy, 1475. He was banished, with his family, in 1497; traveled in Germany and Flanders, and formed a friendship with Erasmus. On his return to Italy he became legate to Julius II; was taken prisoner at Ravenna in 1512, escaped and became pope in 1513. In 1515 he signed the famous concordat with Francis I. His pontificate is one of the most brilliant periods in the history of art and literature, and is also memorable as the time when the reformation began. Died, 1521.

Leo XIII., Pope (Gioacchino Pecci), son of Count Ludovico Pecci, was born in Carpineto, in the papal states, 1810. He was educated at the Collegio Romano and the Academy of Noble Ecclesiastics; appointed by Gregory XVI. a domestic prelate in 1837. He was made archbishop of Damietta in partibus and sent to Belgium as nuncio in 1843, nominated archbishop of Perugia in 1846, and in 1853 created a cardinal by Pius IX. Upon the death of Pius IX., in 1878, he was elected to the papacy under title of Leo XIII. He restored the hierarchy in Scotland and composed the difficulty with Germany. He regarded himself as the despoiled sovereign of Rome, and as a prisoner at the vatican; and persistently declined to recognize the law of guarantees. He protested against heresy and "godless" schools, and in his encyclicals affirmed that the only solution to the socialistic problem is the influence of the papacy. In 1894 he constrained the French clergy and the monarchists to accept the republic. In 1883 he opened the archives of the vatican for historical investigations, and made himself known as a poet, chiefly in the Latin tongue. The jubilee of his episcopate in 1893 was marked by pilgrimages, addresses, and gifts, as was that of his priesthood in 1887. In 1896 he issued an encyclical pronouncing Anglican orders null and void. Died, 1903. Down to the time of his death he was one of the foremost figures of modern times, and a potent force in religion, education and morals.

Leonardo da Vinci (lā'ônär'dō dä vēn'chē). See Vinci.

Leonidas I. (lē-ŏn'idas), king of Sparta, succeeded his brother, Cleomenes I., 491 B. C. When the Persian monarch, Xeres, approached with an immense army, Leonidas opposed him at the narrow pass of Thermopylæ, 480 B. C., with a force of 300 Spartans and more than 5,000 auxiliaries. The treachery of one Ephialtes having made it impossible to bar any longer the progress of the foe, Leonidas and his little band threw themselves on the swarming myriads and found a heroic death.

Lepsius (lep'sē-oos), Karl Richard, noted German Egyptologist, was born at Naumburg, 1810. In 1836 at Rome he studied Egyptology, Nubian, Etruscan, and Oscan, writing numerous treatises. In 1842-45 he was at the head of an antiquarian expedition sent to Egypt by the king of Prussia, and in 1846 was appointed professor in Berlin. His Chronologie der Aegypter laid the foundation for a scientific treatment of early Egyptian history. His other works consist of letters from Egypt, Ethiopia, and Sinai, 1852; the Konigsbuch and the Todtenbuch, or the Egyptian Book of the Dead. Died, 1884.

Lesage (le'säzh'), Alain Rene, French novelist and dramatist, was born in Sarzeau, in Brittany, 1668, and studied at the Jesuits' College at Vannes. After having held a situation under the farmers-general in his native province, he went to Paris in 1692, tried the bar for a short time, and then adopted the profession of an author. For some years he continued to be little known as a writer: but in 1707 he rose at once into popularity by his comedy of Crispin the Rival of His Master, and his romance of Le Diable Boiteux. The comedy of Turcaret, in 1709, added to his fame, which subsequently was rendered imperishable by his admirable Gil Blas. He composed twenty-four dramatic pieces, and had a share in the composition of seventy-six others. He died in Paris, 1747.

Lesseps (lē-seps'), Ferdinand, Viscount de, French engineer and diplomat, was born at Versailles, 1805. He held various consular offices; in 1854 proposed to the viceroy of Egypt the cutting of the Suez canal, and completed the work in 1869. He entered upon the construction of the canal across the isthmus of Panama, afterwards completed by the United States. The sentence of imprisonment pronounced upon him by the French government in 1893, as one of the officers of the French Panama Canal Company, was never enforced. Died, 1894.

Lessing, Gotthold Ephraim, German critic, dramatist and scholar, was born, 1729, at Kamentz, in upper Lusatia. He entered the University of Leipzig in 1746 to study theology, but his love of the drama and his intimacy with Schlegel, Mylius, Weisse and other young men of literary tastes, led him to abandon his intention.

After a short stay in Wittenberg he went in 1748, with Mylius to Berlin, where he wrote for magazines and booksellers. He also undertook, with Mylius, in 1750, a publication entitled Beiträge zur Historie und Aufnahme des Theaters "Contributions to the History and Improvement of the Theater;" published some poems under the title of Kleinigkeiten ("Trifles"); translated a work of the Spanish philosopher Huarte; and wrote some articles in Voss' Gazette. He entered at this time into friendly relations with Moses Mendelssohn and the bookseller Nicolai, in conjunction with whom he established the critical journal, Briefe die neueste Literatur treffend ("Letters on the Newest Literature").

In 1755 appeared Miss Sara Sampson, a tragedy dealing with English life. In 1760 Lessing became secretary to General Tauenzien in Breslau for five years, when he returned to Berlin and published the Laokoon oder uber die Grenzen der Malerei und Poesie ("Laocoon, or on the Limits of Painting and Poetry,") and his comedy Minna von Barnhelm. About 1767 he became director of the National Theater at Hamburg. While here he wrote his Dramaturgie. His criticisms made him enemies, and having been compelled to quit Hamburg, the Duke of Brunswick appointed him his librarian at Wolfenbüttel.

In 1775 he went to Vienna and accompanied Prince Leopold of Brunswick to Italy. He married in 1776, but his wife died in little more than a year. At this period he was involved in fierce theological disputes, which his philosophical drama Nathan der Weise did nothing to allay. Besides those mentioned, he wrote another drama, Emilia Galotti. He died at Brunswick in 1781.

References.—Biographies by Danzel and Guhrauer, Erich Schmidt, Borinski, Sime, Helen Zimmern, Rolleston; and Stahr's Life and Works of Lessing.

Leutze (loit'sĕ), Emanuel, German-American painter, was born at Gemünd in Würtemberg, 1816. He was brought up in America, studied in Europe, 1841-59, then settled in New York. Among his works are: Washington Crossing the Delaware; Washington at Monmouth; Landing of the Norsemen; Cromwell and His Daughter, etc. Died at Washington D. C., 1868.

Lever (lē'vĕr), Charles James, Irish novelist, was born at Dublin, 1806. He was graduated at Trinity College in that city, 1827; studied medicine at Göttingen, and then returned to Dublin. His most popular work, Charles O'Malley, is a reflex of his own college life at Dublin, and many of the incidents in this novel are no doubt drawn from his own experience in the world. He died at Trieste, Italy, 1872.

Levermore, Charles Herbert, authority on world peace, was born in 1856. He was graduated from Yale University then taught for several years at the University of California and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He was principal of Adelphi Academy and president of Adelphi College, Brooklyn. From 1913 he was active in societies for the promotion of peace and was made secretary of the New York Peace Society in 1917. He won the Bok Peace Prize of $50,000 for the best plan for maintaining peace among the nations.

Lewes (lū'is), George Henry, English philosopher and critic, was born in London, 1817. He was educated partly at Greenwich under Dr. Burney, and partly in Jersey and Brittany; left school early to enter first a notary's office, and then the house of a Russian merchant. In 1838 he proceeded to Germany, and remained there nearly two years, studying the life, language and literature of the country. He was married unhappily and had children when his connection with George Eliot began in 1854; it ended only with his death at their house in Regent's Park, 1878. Lewes was one of the best of critics and biographers; as a popularizer of philosophy he was inferior to none, as a popularizer of science he was inferior to few. His works, besides a tragedy and two novels, include: Biographical History of Philosophy; Physiology of Common Life; Studies in Animal Life; Aristotle; On Actors and the Art of Acting; Problems of Mind, Life, etc.

Lewis, Edwin Herbert, college professor, was born at Westerly, R. I., 1866. Graduated from Alfred University, 1887; Ph.D., Syracuse University, 1892; University of Chicago, 1894; studied in Italian libraries, 1888-89; professor of Latin, Alfred University, 1890-92; assistant in rhetoric, 1893-94; instructor in English, 1895-6, University of Chicago; associate professor of English, 1896-99, University of Chicago and Lewis Institute; professor of English since 1899, dean college students since 1906, Lewis Institute, Chicago. Author: The History of the English Paragraph; A First Book in Writing English; A First Manual of Composition; An Introduction to the Study of Literature; A Second Manual of Composition; Specimens of the Forms of Discourse; Applied English Grammar, etc.

Lewis, Meriwether, American explorer, was born near Charlottesville, Va., 1774. In 1803-06 he was engaged with Captain William Clarke in an expedition to the Pacific Ocean, the results of which were important to geographical science; and in 1807 he was made governor of the territory of Louisiana. He was subject to periods of mental depression, in one of which he is said to have taken his own life near Nashville, Tenn., 1809. His memoir by Jefferson was published, together with Biddle and Allen's Narrative of the Lewis and Clarke Expedition, in 1804.

Lewis, Sinclair, American novelist, was born in Minnesota in 1885. He was educated at Yale, and began his literary work by writing editorials and short stories for magazines. His first novel, Our Mr. Wren, appeared in 1914, followed by The Trail of the Hawk, Free Air, Main Street, Babbitt, Arrowsmith, Elmer Gantry, Dodsworth, etc. He was awarded the Nobel prize in literature in 1930, being the first American writer to receive this award.

Lewis, William Draper, American educator and law writer, dean of the law department, University of Pennsylvania, since 1896, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1837. He was graduated at Haverford, 1888; University of Pennsylvania, LL.B., Ph.D., 1891. Author: Federal Power Over Commerce and Its Effects on State Action; Our Sheep and the Tariff; Restraint of Infringement of Incorporeal Right. Editor: Lewis' Greenleaf's Evidence, 3 vols.; Wharton's Criminal Law; Lewis' Blackstone's Commentaries. 4 vols.; Digest of Decisions of United States Supreme Court and Circuit Court of Appeals, etc.

L'Hopital (lō'pē'tal'), Michel de, French statesman, was born about 1507. He was president of the court of accounts, 1554-60, and afterward chancellor of France until 1568. He promoted the edict of Romorantin, which excluded the inquisition from France; the ordinance of Orleans, an administrative, judicial and religious code; the edict of acification, for the free exercise of Protestant worship; and the ordinance of Moulins, to reform the administration of justice. He died in 1573.

Liddon (lid'un), Henry Parry, English clergyman, was born at North Stoneham, Hampshire, 1829. He was graduated at Christ Church, Oxford, 1850; was ordained in 1852 as senior student of Christ Church; from 1854 to 1859 was vice-principal of Cuddesdon theological college, and in 1864 became a prebendary of Salisbury, in 1870 a canon of St. Paul's, and Ireland professor of exegesis at Oxford, until 1882. In 1886 he declined the bishopric of Edinburgh, and in 1887 visited the Holy Land. Canon Liddon was the most able and eloquent exponent of liberal high church principles. He died suddenly at Weston-super-Mare, 1890.

Lieber (lē'ber), Franz, German-American publicist, was born in Berlin, 1800. After suffering imprisonment for his political opinions, he came to America in 1827, and was made professor of history in South Carolina College, 1835-56, of political economy in Columbia College, 1857-60, and of political science in Columbia law school, 1860-72. He edited the Encyclopædia Americana, and wrote Political Ethics; Civil Liberty and Self-Government, Guerilla Parties, etc. Died, 1872.

Liebig (lē'biɛ), Justus, Baron von, German chemist, was born in Darmstadt, 1803. He studied at Bonn and Erlangen; then went to Paris, and attracted the attention of Humboldt by a paper on the fulminates. He was appointed professor at Giessen in 1824, where he established a laboratory celebrated for researches in organic chemistry and the application of chemistry to agriculture, food, etc. Among his chief works are: Organic Chemistry in Its Application to Agriculture; Animal Chemistry in Its Application to Physiology and Pathology. He died at Munich, 1873.

Li Hung Chang (lē'hoong'chäng'), Chinese statesman, was born in 1823, and studied at Hanlin College. In 1853, in the Taiping rebellion, he joined the imperial army as secretary. In 1864 he was appointed governor-general of the Kiang provinces, and in 1872 of Chih-li, and senior grand secretary. He founded the Chinese navy and promoted a native mercantile marine. On the outbreak of the war with Japan in 1894, Li, in supreme command of the military and naval forces in Corea, was thwarted by the incompetence, dishonesty and cowardice of inferior officers, The Chinese forces were swept out of Corea, and Li, whose policy was that of peace, was deprived of his honors and summoned to Pekin. With this last command he refused to comply, and the disastrous course of events soon compelled the emperor to restore him to honor. Through his efforts the war was brought to a termination in 1895, China ceding Formosa and paying a war indemnity of $175,000,000. Professedly friendly to foreigners, and well aware of the value of western culture and industry, he visited Russia, Germany, France, England and America in 1896. He died in 1901.

Lincoln, Abraham, American statesman and the sixteenth president of the United States of America, was born in Kentucky 1809. He removed with his family in 1816 to Spencer county, Indiana, and for the next ten years was engaged in laborious work of various kinds, having only about a year's schooling at intervals.

At the outbreak of the Black Hawk war in 1832 he joined a volunteer company, and as captain he served three months in the campaign. He next opened a country store, was appointed postmaster of New Salem, Illinois, began to study law, and at the same time turned amateur land surveyor. In 1834 he was elected a member of the Illinois legislature, to which he was again returned at the three following biennial elections, and in 1836 he was licensed to practice law.

In 1846 he was elected a representative in congress from Illinois, and voted steadily in congress with the anti-slavery party. In 1849 and again in 1858 he was unsuccessful in attempts to enter the United States Senate. In the Republican national convention held at Chicago in May, 1860, he was nominated as a candidate for the presidency, and after several votes he gained a majority, and was eventually chosen unanimously. The southern states alarmed at the aggressive anti-slavery policy which many of the leading Republicans had proclaimed their determination to follow, refused to acquiesce in Lincoln's election, and began one after another to announce their secession, and to organize the means of resisting the enforcement of the claims of the central government.

The election of Lincoln took place in November, 1860, and he assumed office on the 4th of March, 1861. It was the intention of Lincoln to use every means of conciliation consistent with the policy he deemed essential to the national interest to pursue. On one point, however, his resolution was steadfast, to admit no secession, and before his assumption of office secession was as resolutely determined on the other side. On the 4th of February the southern confederacy had been constituted, and on the 14th of April the first blow in the Civil War was struck by the capture of Fort Sumter by the Confederates.

The events of the Civil War during the next four years in Lincoln's career belong to the history of the United States. Lincoln's persistence in raising and pouring in fresh troops after every disaster finally enabled the Federal government to subdue the secession. The toleration of slavery was always in Lincoln's opinion an unhappy necessity; and when the southern states had by their rebellion forfeited all claim to the protection of their peculiar institution, it was an easy transition from this view to its withdrawal. The successive stages by which this was effected—the emancipation of the slaves of rebels, and the offer of compensation for voluntary emancipation, followed by the constitutional amendment and unconditional emancipation without compensation—were only the natural steps by which a change involving consequences of such vast extent was reached.

The determination of the northern states to pursue the war to its conclusion on the original issue led to the reelection of Lincoln as president in 1864. The decisive victory of Grant over Lee on April 2d, 1865, speedily followed by the surrender of the latter, had just afforded the prospect of an immediate termination of this long struggle, when, on the 14th of the same month, President Lincoln was shot in Ford's Theater, Washington, by the assassin, John Wilkes Booth, and expired on the following day. In the affections of America Lincoln holds a place second only to Washington.

References.—Nicolay and Hay, Abraham Lincoln: A History; the same authors edited the Complete Works of Abraham Lincoln. See also Lives by Morse, Arnold, Herndon and Weik, Lamon, and Tarbell. Also see Rhodes' History of the United States From the Compromise of 1850.

Lincoln, Robert Todd, American lawyer, was born at Springfield, Ill., 1843, eldest son of Abraham Lincoln. He was graduated at Harvard, 1864; entered Harvard Law School, but left to enter the army, serving until end of war as captain on staff of General Grant. He then finished his law studies, was admitted to the Illinois bar, 1867, and practiced at Chicago. He was presidential elector, 1880; secretary of war, 1881-85, and United States minister to Great Britain, 1889-93. He was also vice-president of the Commonwealth Edison Company; Central Union Telephone Company, Commercial National Bank, Pullman Loan and Savings Bank, etc. Died in 1926.

Lind, Jenny (Madame Otto Goldschmidt), the Swedish singer, was born in Stockholm, Sweden, 1820. At three years of age she could sing correctly any piece she had once heard, and at nine was placed under Croelius, a famous teacher of music. She visited New York in 1850, under the auspices of P. T. Barnum, and was enthusiastically received, but dissolved the engagement prematurely in 1851, was married to M. Otto Goldschmidt, a skillful pianist and conductor, and retired from the stage. She reappeared in 1855, in 1861, in 1863, and in 1880 for a limited period. She was professor of singing at the Royal College of Music. Wiesbaden, 1883-86. She died in Wynd's Point, Malvern, England, in 1887.

Lindbergh, Charles Augustus (1902-), born in Detroit, Mich., son of later Congressman from Minnesota. He became a "barnstorming" airplane pilot, then joined the reserve corps and became an air-mail pilot. On May 20, 1927, he flew non-stop from New York to Paris in 36 hours 30 minutes, gaining world acclaim. Later became technical adviser to an airplane company and with his wife (former Anne Morrow), studied world air routes in long flights.

Lindsay, Nicholas Vachel, American writer, was born at Springfield, Illinois, in 1879. He attended Hiram College, and studied art in Chicago and New York, but eventually devoted himself to writing. He has a theory that strongly emphasized rhythm can convey moods to people not reached by conservative verse. So one finds in his works the monotonous beat of the tom-tom, the rhythm of the Ford car, or the martial drum beats of the Salvation Army. Among his works are The Congo and Other Poems; General William Booth Enters Heaven; The Santa Fe Trail; Adventures While Preaching the Gospel of Beauty, was written after some of his walking tours. Died, 1931.

Lindsey, Benjamin Barr, jurist, reformer, was born in Jackson, Tenn., 1869. He was educated in the public schools studied law and was admitted to the bar. Judge of the county court and juvenile court of Denver, Colo., beginning 1900. He is the originator of the juvenile court system and has an international reputation as an authority on juvenile delinquency. In 1906 he was a candidate for governor of Colorado. Author: The Beast and the Jungle.

Linevich (li-nev-ich), Nicolay Petrovich, Russian general, was born in the government of Techrnigoff in 1838. He served in the Russo-Turkish war and in 1900 succeeded to the command of the Siberian troops in Manchuria. In 1904 he commanded the Russian left at the battle of Mukden in the Russo-Japanese war and succeeded General Kuropatkin in 1905 as commander-in-chief in the far East. Died, 1908.

Linne (lin'nā), Karl Von, commonly called Linnæus, the greatest botanist of his age, was born at Rsahult, Sweden, 1707, and died at Upsala in 1778. He was the son of a clergyman, who had him educated at the grammar-school and the gymnasium of Wexiö. He showed an early interest in botany; entered the University of Lund, where his botanical tastes were encouraged; and removed to Upsala in 1728, where he undertook the supervision of the botanic garden. Here he made the acquaintance of the botanist Rudbeck, whose assistant he became.

Aided by the academy of sciences at Upsala, Linné made a journey through Lapland, the result of which was shown in his Flora Lapponica, published 1735. In this year he went to the University of Harderwyk in Holland and took an M.D. degree; afterward visited Leyden, where he published the first sketch of his Systema Naturæ and Fundamenta Botanica. In 1736 he visited England, went to Paris in 1738, and afterward settled in Stockholm as a physician.

He became professor of medicine at Upsala in 1741, and then of botany and natural history; was made a knight of the Polar Star, with the rank of nobility; and died on his estate near Upsala from apoplexy.

The great merit of Linné as a botanist was that he arranged plants on a simple system of sexual relationship and prepared the way for the more natural and satisfactory classification which has superseded the Linnæan system. Nor must it be forgotten that he was eminent not only in botany, but in all the sciences of his time. His chief works, besides those already mentioned, were: Genera Plantarum; Classes Plantarum; Flora Suecica; Fauna Suecica, Philosophia Botanica, and the Species Plantarum.

References.—Sach's History of Botany; Caru's History of Zoölogy; Stoever's Life of Sir Charles Linnaeus; Caddy's Through the Fields with Linnaeus.

Lipton, Sir Thomas Johnstone, British sportsman and merchant, was born in Glasgow, of Irish parentage, 1850. He started life as a retail merchant, acquired extensive tea, coffee and cocoa estates in Ceylon, and accumulated a large fortune. He is chairman of Lipton, Ltd., and is also largely interested in business enterprises in the United States and Canada. He owned the yachts Erin, Shamrock, and Shamrock III., and challenged for the American cup on many occasions. He was knighted in 1898, created a baronet in 1902. Died, 1931.

Lister, Joseph, Lord, English surgeon, was born in Upton, England, 1827. He was graduated at London University in 1847, and in medicine, 1852. He was successively lecturer on surgery, Edinburgh; regius professor of surgery, Glasgow; professor of clinical surgery, Edinburgh; professor of clinical surgery, King's College hospital, London, and surgeon-extraordinary to Queen Victoria. In addition to important observations on the coagulation of the blood, inflammation, etc., his great work has been the introduction, since 1860, of the antiseptic system, which has revolutionized modern surgery. He received many foreign honors, and was made a baronet in 1883 and a peer in 1897. Died, 1912.

Liszt (list), Franz, noted Hungarian pianist and composer, was born at Raiding, 1811. In 1849 he became conductor of the court theater at Weimar; in 1861 was made commander of the legion of honor, and in 1865 took orders and received the tonsure. In 1871 his native country granted him a pension of 600 pounds a year, and in 1875 he was named director of the Hungarian academy of music. One of his two daughters married Richard Wagner, his lifelong friend. Though Liszt's fame as a pianist overshadows his name as a composer, yet he was the creator of the symphonic poem, and his Hungarian Rhapsodies for the piano are unrivaled. He died at Bayreuth, Bavaria, 1886.

Litman, Simon, educator, economist, was born in Odessa, Russia, 1873. He was educated at Odessa Commercial College, School of Political Science, Paris, at the University of Zurich, and University of Munich; lecturer at the Russian School of Social Science, in Paris, 1902; instructor in commerce University of California, 1903-1908; associate in commerce, 1908-1910, and assistant professor in economics, 1910, University of Illinois. Member of the American Economic Association, American Statistical Association, American Association for Labor Legislation and National Geographic Society. Author of Trade and Commerce; Die Lohnfondstheorieu, and of many articles on industry, commerce and transportation.

Littleton, Martin W., American lawyer, was born in Roane county, Tenn., 1872. He was practically self-educated and began practicing law in 1891. He was assistant prosecuting attorney, Dallas, Texas; delegate from New York to national democratic convention, 1904; and has appeared in many famous legal trials. He was elected to Congress 1910.

Littleton, Sir Thomas, English jurist, was born in Worcestershire, England, 1402. He was recorder of Coventry in 1450, king's sergeant in 1455, in 1466 judge of common pleas, and in 1475 a knight of the bath. His reputation rests on his treatise on Tenures, written in law French, and turned into English about 1500. It was the text that Coke commented on in his Coke Upon Littleton. Died, 1481.

Littre (lē-trā'), Maximilien Paul Emile, French philosopher and philologist, was born in Paris, 1801. He studied at the Lycée Louis-le-Grand, then graduated in medicine and finally turned to philology. He fought on the barricades in 1830, was one of the principal editors of the National down to 1851, and became an enthusiastic follower of Comte. His La Poésie Homerique et l'Ancienne Poésie Francaise was an attempt to render the first book of the Iliad in the style of the Trouvères. His splendid Dictionnaire de la Langue Francaise did not prevent the academy in 1863 from rejecting its author, whom Bishop Dupanloup denounced as holding impious doctrines. In 1871 the academy at last admitted him. He was one of the first linguists and scientists of this century. Died, 1881.

Livingston, Edward, American jurist and statesman, was born at Livingston, N. Y., 1764. He was elected a member of congress in 1794, and became federal attorney and mayor of New York in 1801. In the dispute with England in 1814-15 he became aide-de-camp and secretary to General Jackson. In 1821 he was appointed to draw up a code of civil procedure for Louisiana. It was the simplest known up to that time, and received the warmest approval from Bentham and other jurists. He was thereafter United States senator for Louisiana, 1829-31; secretary of state, 1831-33; minister to France, 1833-35, and supported the demand of $5,000,000 made by the United States government for indemnity on account of French spoliations, and succeeded in securing its payment. Died at his own estate on the Hudson, 1836.

Livingstone, David, African explorer and missionary, was born at Blantyre, in Lanarkshire, Scotland, 1813. Was sent to southern Africa by the London missionary society in 1840; resided for several years at various stations near the Limpopo, discovering Lake Ngami in 1849, and penetrating to the Makola Country in 1851; in 1853-54 and in 1854-56 made his way from Loando to Quilimane, following the course of the Zambesi, and discovering the Victoria falls. He returned to England in 1856, and published Missionary Travels, 1857; returned to Africa as consul at Quilimane in 1858; explored the country north of the Zambesi, 1858-64, discovering Lakes Shirwa and Nyassa, and in 1865 published a narrative of the journey. He undertook his third expedition in 1866, and spent the remainder of his life endeavoring to ascertain whether the Nile flowed from the water-system west of Lake Tanganyika. In 1871 he was found by Stanley at Ujiji. He died in central Africa, 1873.

Livy, or Titus Livius, Roman historian, was born at Patavium (Padua), in the north of Italy, 59 B. C. He was the most eminent of the Roman historians. His history of Rome was written partly at Rome and partly at Naples, under the patronage of the emperor Augustus. It consisted originally of 142 books; but of these only thirty-five have come down to us and some of these in a very imperfect state. Of all but two, however, we possess fragments, with short epitomes from another hand. The history, or as it was called by its author, The Annals of the Roman People, begins with the foundation of the city, and ends with the death of Drusus, the younger brother of the emperor Tiberius, 9 B. C. Died, 17 A. D.

Lloyd-George, Rt. Hon. David, Premier of England, was born at Manchester, 1863, of Welsh stock. Elected to Parliament in 1890; appointed Privy Councillor, 1905; president of Board of Trade, 1905-08; Chancellor of the Exchequor, 1908-15; Minister of Munitions, 1915-16; came into power at downfall of Asquith ministry, 1916; called to premiership by King. Resigned, 1922.

Locke, George Herbert, Canadian educator, professor of education and dean of training school for teachers, Macdonald College, McGill University, Montreal, Canada, since 1907, was born in Ontario, Canada, 1870. He was educated at Victoria College, University of Toronto, and University of Chicago; instructor in history and art of teaching, Harvard University and Radcliffe College, Cambridge, Mass., 1897-99; associate professor of education, University of Chicago, 1899-1905; in editorial department of Ginn and Company, Boston, 1905-07; associate editor of The Quarterly Journal of Pedagogy, 1907. He is the author of many contributions to educational periodicals.

Locke, John, eminent English philosopher, was born at Wrington, in Somersetshire, 1632, and died, 1704, at Oates in Essex. He was sent to Christ Church, Oxford, where he took the degrees of B.A. and M.A., and applied himself to the study of medicine. In 1666 Locke made the acquaintance of Lord Ashley, afterward earl of Shaftesbury, and held various offices in the patronage of that nobleman. When in 1682 his patron was obliged to retire, for political reasons, to Holland, Locke accompanied him in his exile. Owing to the troubled condition of his country, and the continued triumph of the party which he had opposed, Locke continued to reside abroad.

He returned to England at the revolution, and was appointed commissioner of appeals under the new government. As early as 1670 he had formed the plan of his famous Essay on the Human Understanding, a plan which he had carefully elaborated in his exile, and which he published in its completed form in 1690. It was received with much opposition, notably by the University of Oxford, which resolved to discourage it; but despite this it acquired a great reputation throughout Europe, and was translated into French and Latin. Locke was made a commissioner of trade and plantations in 1695, but retired when unable to perform its duties, and lived with his friend Sir F. Masham until his death.

Briefly, it may be stated that the chief purpose of Locke's celebrated Essay was to find the original sources and the scope of human knowledge. The conclusions he arrived at were that there is no such thing as an "innate idea;" that the human mind is a sheet of white paper prepared to be written upon; that the knowledge thereon written is supplied by experience; and that "sensation" and "reflection" are the two sources of all our ideas.

Among other works of Locke are his Letters on Toleration; Thoughts Concerning Education; Reasonableness of Christianity; Two Treatises on Government; Notes Upon St. Paul's Epistles to the Galatians, Corinthians, Romans, and Ephesians; and Treatise on the Conduct of the Understanding.

References.—Stewart's Philosophical Essays; King's Life of John Locke; Scharer's John Locke; Cousin's Philosophy of John Locke; Bourne's Life of Locke; Fowler's Locke; Fraser's Locke; and Russell's The Philosophy of Locke.

Lockhart, John Gibson, Scottish biographer, was born in Scotland, 1794. He was graduated at Oxford, studied law at Edinburgh, and was admitted to the Scottish bar in 1816. He and John Wilson were long the chief supporters of Blackwood's Magazine. It was this connection which led to his acquaintance with Sir Walter Scott. In 1820 he married Sophia Scott, eldest daughter of Sir Walter. After the publication of other works, and from 1837-39, appeared his Life of Scott, a production of undoubted merit, but which has given rise to much bitter controversy. In 1843 Lockhart was appointed auditor of the duchy of Cornwall. Died, 1854.

Lockyer (lok'yēr), Sir Joseph Norman, English astronomer, was born at Rugby, 1836. He became a clerk in the war office, 1857; in 1869 was made a fellow of the royal society; in 1870 lecturer on astronomy at the normal school of Science at South Kensington; in 1894 a C. B., and in 1897 a K. C. B. He headed eclipse expeditions to Sicily, India, Egypt, and the West Indies. He wrote Elementary Lessons in Astronomy; The Chemistry of the Sun; The Dawn of Astronomy, etc. Died, 1920.

Lodge, Henry Cabot, American author, statesman, was born in Boston, Mass., 1850. He was graduated from Harvard College, 1871; from Harvard law school in 1875, was admitted to the Suffolk bar in 1876, and received the degree of Ph.D. from Harvard University for his thesis on The Land Law of the Anglo-Saxons; LL.D., Williams, Yale, Harvard; editor North American Review, 1873-76; university lecturer on American history, Harvard, 1876-79, and lecturer before Lowell Institute, Boston, 1880. He was elected a member of congress, 6th Massachusetts district, 1887-93, and United States senator in 1893 and re elected for several terms. Editor: Complete Works of Alexander Hamilton. Author: Life and Letters of George Cabot; Life of Washington, History of Boston; Certain Accepted Heroes and Other Essays in Literature and Politics; Story of the Revolution, etc. Died, 1924.

Lodge, Sir Oliver Joseph, British educator and physicist, principal of the University of Birmingham since 1900, was born at Penkhull, Staffordshire, 1851. He was graduated at University College, London; D.Sc., London, Oxford, Victoria, and Liverpool; LL.D., St. Andrews, Glasgow, and Aberdeen. Was professor of physics, University College, Liverpool, 1881-1900. Author: Elementary Mechanics; Modern Views of Electricity; Pioneers of Science; Signalling Without Wires; Ministers and Stewards; Man and the Universe, etc.

Loeb (lōb), Jacques, German-American physiologist, professor of physiology, University of California, beginning 1902, was born in Germany, 1859. He studied medicine at Berlin, Munich, and Strassburg; M.D., Strassburg, 1884; assistant professor of physiology and experimental biology, 1892-95; associate professor, 1895-1900; professor, 1900-02, University of Chicago. Author: The Heliotropism of Animals and Its Identity With the Heliotropism of Plants; Studies in General Physiology, etc. Died, 1924.

Logan, John Alexander, American soldier, was born in Illinois, 1826. He served in the Mexican war, was admitted to the bar in 1852, and was elected to congress as a democrat in 1858. He raised an Illinois regiment in the Civil War, and retired at its close as major-general. He returned to congress as a republican in 1866, was United States senator from Illinois, 1871-86. He was nominated for the vice-presidency in 1884, but was defeated with the rest of the Blaine ticket. Died, 1886.

Lombroso (lōm-brō'zō), Cesare, famous Italian alienist and criminologist, was born at Verona, Italy, 1836. He was educated at the University of Turin, became professor of mental diseases at the University of Pavia, 1862, and finally professor of forensic medicine and psychiatry at Turin. Lombroso was the author of many books on his special subject, particularly the pathology of genius, and his investigations of insanity and criminology led the way to great reforms in the treatment of these classes in Europe and elsewhere. He visited England in 1908, and died in 1909.

London, Bishop of. See Ingram, A. F. W.

London, Jack, American author and socialistic lecturer, was born in San Francisco, Cal., 1876. He was educated at Oakland high school and the University of California. He left college to go to the Klondike and never completed his course; went to sea before the mast, 1892; went to Japan and seal hunting in Bering sea, 1893; tramped throughout the United States and Canada for sociological and economic study, 1894, and traveled widely at various times. Author: The Son of the Wolf; A Daughter of the Snows; The Children of the Frost; The Call of the Wild; The Faith of Men; The Sea Wolf; White Fang; Before Adam; The Road; Martin Eden, etc. Died, 1916.

Long, George, English scholar, was born at Poulton, Lancashire, England, 1800. He was graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge, 1822, and in 1826 was made fellow, over Macaulay's head. He was professor of Latin at University College, London, 1824-46, reader in jurisprudence to the Middle Temple, and classical lecturer at Brighton College, 1849-71. His great work was the editing of the Penny Cyclopædia. He died at Portfield, Chichester, 1879.

Long, John Davis, American lawyer and publicist, was born at Buckfield, Me., 1838. He was graduated at Harvard, 1857; LL.D., Harvard, 1880; he practiced law at Buckfield, Me., 1861-62, and since then at Boston, Mass.; was a member of the Massachusetts legislature, 1875-78; speaker, 1876-78; lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts, 1879; governor, 1880-82; secretary of the United States navy, 1897-1902. Was senior member of the law firm of Long and Hemenway, Boston, and president of the board of overseers of Harvard College. Author: After-Dinner and Other Speeches; The Republican Party—Its History; Principles and Policies. Died, 1915.

Long, John Luther, lawyer, author, was born in Pennsylvania, 1861. He studied law, was admitted to the Pennsylvania bar, traveled extensively, and about 1898 turned to dramatic writing. Author: Madam Butterfly; Miss Cherry-Blossom of Tōkyō; The Fox-Woman; The Prince of Illusion; Naughty Nan; Heimweh, and Other Stories; Billy Boy; The Way of the Gods, etc. Died, 1927.

Longfellow, Henry Wadsworth, distinguished American poet, was born in Portland, Me., 1807, at which period Maine formed part of the commonwealth of Massachusetts. He was graduated in 1825 from Bowdoin College, when but eighteen years old, and began his poetical career while he was in college. When nineteen he was made professor of modern languages and literature in Bowdoin College, and passed the next three years in Europe, preparing himself for his professional duties. That time was spent in Germany, France, Spain and Italy. He then held the chair to which he had been appointed from 1830 until 1835. Outre-Mer: A Pilgrimage Beyond the Sea, came out two years later, and after its publication he was appointed to the professorship of modern languages and belles-letters in Harvard College. He began his official duties at Cambridge in 1837, and held the professorship until 1854, when he resigned. Meantime his career as an author went steadily on. Ballads and Other Poems dates from 1841. The Spanish Student was published in 1843, and in 1845 he prepared Poets and Poetry of Europe, a critical compilation. Then came The Belfry of Bruges, and Other Poems, in 1846, and Evangeline in 1847. The Golden Legend has the date of 1851. In 1855 he published The Song of Hiawatha. Three years later, in 1858, The Courtship of Miles Standish met with the applause it deserved, Tales of a Wayside Inn appeared in 1863, Flower-de-Luce in 1867, and New England Tragedies in 1868. The publication of his translation of Dante took place in 1867, and filled three superb and massive volumes. His Three Books of Song appeared in 1872, The Hanging of the Crane in 1874, and Morituri Salutamus in 1875. In 1869 he received the degree of D.C.L. from Oxford University, and in 1874 a large complimentary vote for the lord rectorship of the University of Edinburgh. Died, 1882.

Longford, Joseph Henry, British scholar, professor of Japanese, King's College, London, beginning 1903; was born in 1849, in County Dublin, Ireland. He was graduated at Queen's College, Belfast, Ireland, entered the British consular service in Japan as student interpreter, 1869, and was subsequently called to the British bar. After many years of service in Japan he retired on a pension in 190..

Longinus (lon-jī'nus), Dionysius Cassius, one of the greatest of Greek critics and philosophers, flourished during the third century. The only work which has been preserved of this eminent writer is the celebrated treatise On the Sublime. Died, 273 A. D.

Longstreet, James, American general, was born in South Carolina, 1821. He was graduated at West Point, 1842. He resigned his commission to take part with the South in the Civil War, 1861. In 1862 he was made major-general, and after the battle of Fredericksburg, 1862, Longstreet was promoted to the command of a corps, with the rank of lieutenant-general. He surrendered with General Lee in April, 1865. In 1875 he took up his residence in Georgia, and in 1880 was sent as minister to Turkey, where he remained until 1881. He was United States marshal for the northern district of Georgia, 1881-84; and United States railroad commissioner from 1898 until his death in 1904.

Longworth, Nicholas, congressman, capitalist, was born at Cincinnati, Ohio, 1869. He was graduated at Harvard, 1891, Harvard Law School, 1893, Cincinnati Law School, 1894, and was admitted to the bar in the same year. He was a member of the board of education, Cincinnati, 1898; Ohio house of representatives, 1899-1901, Ohio senate, 1901-03, and member of congress, 1st Ohio District, 1903-13. 1915-31. Died, 1931.

Loomis, Elias, American mathematician and physicist, was born in Connecticut, 1811, and was graduated from Yale College in 1830. He published a series of text books embracing the whole range of mathematics, natural philosophy, astronomy and meteorology. His Treatise on Analytical Geometry and Calculus has been translated into the Chinese language, and his Treatise on Meteorology into Arabic. His scientific papers embrace the various departments of meteorology, the phenomena of auroral exhibitions and atmospheric electricity, territorial magnetism, astronomical observations, shooting-stars, solar-spots, etc. Died, 1889.

Lope de Vega (lō'pā dā vā'gā), Felix. See Vega.

Lorenz (lō'rents), Adolf, Austrian surgeon, surgeon-in-chief of the orthopedic department in the imperial royal general hospital, Vienna, was born in Silesia, 1854. He was graduated at Vienna University, M.D., 1880; professor of general surgery in Vienna University, since 1889. He is especially famous for his bloodless methods in orthopedic surgery, and has taught the cure of hip-deformities and all forms of club foot in a rapid bloodless way, without bone resections. In 1895 he published a treatise on Dislocation of the Hip which has received wide scientific approval. He visited the United States on several occasions since 1902.

Lorenzo de Medici. See Medici.

Lorimer (lor'i-mēr), George Horace, American journalist and writer, editor-in-chief of the Saturday Evening Post since 1899, was born in Louisville, Ky., 1868. He pursued a college course at Colby and Yale, and immediately entered upon a journalistic career. Author: Letters From a Self-Made Merchant to His Son; Old Gorgan Graham; The False Gods; Jack Spurlock—Prodigal, etc.

Lossing (los'ing), Benson John, watchmaker, wood-carver, journalist, editor, and historian, was born in Dutchess county, N. Y., 1813. He edited some magazines and prepared several illustrated works, among which are an Outline History of the Fine Arts, Lives of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, and Pictorial Field-Book of the Revolution. Died, 1891.

Lotze (lōt'sē), Rudolf Hermann, German philosopher, was born in Bautzen, Saxony, 1817. He was educated at Leipzig, where he studied medicine and philosophy, and was appointed to a professorship there in 1842. He ranks among the first metaphysicians, and gave a strong impulse to the development of physiological psychology. Died in Berlin, 1881.

Loubet (lōō'be'), Emile, French statesman, ex-president of France, was born at Marsanne, in the department of the Drôme, 1838. He became a barrister, practicing at Montélimar, and steadily rose step by step from the municipal council of Montélimar to the presidency. As president of the senate in 1896 he was kept more or less outside of parties, though he was known to be a moderate with radical tendencies. On the sudden death of President Faure, in 1899, he was elected by a large majority to succeed him, and held office until 1906. His uprightness, patriotism, and simplicity of demeanor made him the most popular president France has ever had. Died, 1929.

Louis IX. (Fr., lōō'ē'), or Saint Louis, of France, was born in Poissy, 1215, and succeeded his father, Louis VIII., in 1226. When he attained his majority he became involved in a war with Henry III. of England, and defeated the English at Taillebours, at Saintes, and at Blaye, 1242. During a dangerous illness he made a vow that if he recovered he would go in person as a crusader, and accordingly, having appointed his mother regent, he sailed in 1248 with 40,000 men to Cyprus, whence, in the following spring, he proceeded to Egypt. He embarked on a new crusade, 1270, and proceeded to Tunis; but a pestilence breaking out in the French camp carried off the greater part of the army and the king himself. Died, 1270.

Louis XII. of France, son of Charles, duke of Orleans, was born in 1462, and succeeded Charles VIII. in 1498. In 1499 he invaded Italy, and gained possession of Milan. In 1508 he united with Ferdinand, Pope Julius II., and the emperor in the league of Cambrai against the Venetians. In 1511 Ferdinand joined Julius in the holy league against the French, who were finally driven out of Italy by means of the Swiss in 1513. By his good government he earned the title of "Father of His People." Died, 1515.

Louis XIII., king of France, was born at Fontainebleau, 1601. When his father, Henry IV., was assassinated in 1610, he succeeded to the throne, but his mother, Marie de Medici, was regent during his youth. Under the guidance of his great minister, Richelieu, the king gradually increased the power of the monarchy, at the expense of the Protestant nobles, ending in the overthrow of the Huguenots by the capture of La Rochelle in 1628. His possession of Alsace and Roussillon was confirmed in the next reign. Died, 1643.

Louis XIV., king of France, 1643-1715, was born in 1638. He inherited from his father the war with Spain, and this was followed by the civil war of the Fronde, which lasted from 1649 to 1653. He changed the feudal monarchy of France into an absolute one, and his favorite motto, L'etat c'est moi, "I am the state" was at once the expression of the ruling principles of his life, and a description of his policy. On the death of Philip IV., the father of his queen, he laid claim to Holland, which he invaded; but this led to the alliance against him of England, Sweden and Holland, usually called "the triple alliance," and Louis was speedily compelled to make peace. Several other wars followed, notably the war of the Spanish succession, in which Louis sought to secure the Spanish monarchy for his grandson, the duke of Anjou. Two years afterward, 1715, Louis died at Versailles, in his seventy-seventh year. He left several children. Many of the most famous names in French literature belong to this reign.

Louis XV., surnamed "the well-beloved," king of France, 1715-74, was born at Fontainebleau, 1710. He was the son of the duke of Burgundy, and the successor of his great-grandfather, Louis XIV. On the death of Augustus, king of Poland, 1733, Louis supported the pretensions of his father-in-law to the vacant throne, and was opposed by the emperor of Germany, who upheld the claims of the elector of Saxony. Afterward, in 1755, a new war was kindled between England and France, about their possessions in Canada; and this war was not terminated until 1763, when, by the treaty signed in Paris in that year, France formally ceded to England, Canada, Nova Scotia and its other North American colonies, besides Granada, Dominica and Tobago, in the West Indies. During his later years, Louis suffered himself to be governed wholly by favorites, among whom were the Marchioness de Pompadour and Madame Du Barry. He died at Versailles, 1774.

Louis XVI., king of France, 1774-93, was born at Versailles, 1754. He was the grandson of Louis XV., whom he succeeded, having already, in 1770, married Marie Antoinette of Austria, daughter of Maria Theresa, and sister of the emperor Joseph. The first acts of Louis, after his accession, endeared him to his people, for he gave them immunities to which they had been hitherto unaccustomed, and effected many reforms in the administration; but he soon became embarrassed by financial difficulties, and was not fortunate in his choice of ministers. In October a mob of armed women from Paris made an attack on the palace of Versailles, after which the king and queen were forcibly removed to Paris. In 1789 the states-general of the kingdom was convoked at Versailles. Within a few days it was superseded by the national assembly, which assumed the whole legislative authority; and then began the revolution, which culminated, as far as the king was concerned, in the insurrection of 1792, and in his execution on the scaffold in January, 1793.

Louis XVIII., king of France, a younger brother of Louis XVI., was born at Versailles, 1755. He fled from Paris on the same night as the king, Louis XVI., and reached the Belgian frontier in safety. After the execution of his brother, he proclaimed the dauphin king, under the title of Louis XVII., and in 1795 took the title of king himself. The fall of Napoleon opened the way for him to the French throne and in 1814 he landed at Calais after twenty-four years of exile. He ruled by "the divine right of kings." The revolution had taught him nothing, and his treatment of the protestants, republicans and the followers of Napoleon, opened the way for Napoleon's return from Elba, when he fled into exile until after the battle of Waterloo. He was restored to the throne by the allied powers in 1815, and ruled until his death at Paris, 1824.

Louis Philippe (lōō'ĕ'fĕ'lĕp'), king of France, was born at Paris, 1773, eldest son of Louis Philippe Joseph, duke of Orleans. He sought, during the revolution, in Switzerland a place of security for his sister Adelaide, wandered about for four months, and accepted a situation as teacher of geography and mathematics in a school at Reichenau, near Chur, assuming the name of Chabaud-Latour. On the fall of Napoleon he hastened to Paris, where he was received with distrust by Louis XVIII. After the second restoration, when he returned to France, he recovered his great estates. He was very popular in Paris. He kept aloof, however, from political intrigues; and the three bloody days of the revolution of 1830 were nearly over before he was brought forward, the banker Laffitte proposing, in the provisional committee, his appointment as lieutenant-general of the kingdom, from which he proceeded to the acceptance of a constitutional throne, August 9, 1830. Insurrectionary movements caused by a demand for a more liberal suffrage, ensued in the streets of Paris in February, 1848; and the "citizen king" saw with alarm that the national guard could not be expected to support him. On February 24th Louis Philippe, deserted by his courtiers, fled to the coast of Normandy with his queen, concealed himself for some days, and at length found opportunity of escaping in a British steamboat to Newhaven under the name of Mr. Smith. He died at Claremont, 1850.

Louise, queen of Prussia, was born in 1776, at Hanover, where her father, Duke Karl of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, was commandant. She was married to the crown prince of Prussia, afterward Frederick William III., in 1793, and was the mother of Frederick William IV. and William III. afterward emperor. Died, 1810.

Lounsbury (lounz'bĕr-i), Thomas Raynesford, American educator and scholar, professor of English since 1871, and librarian at Sheffield scientific school, Yale, was born at Ovid, N. Y., 1838. He was graduated at Yale, 1859; LL.D., Yale, 1892, Harvard, 1893, Aberdeen, 1903; L.H.D., Lafayette, 1895, Princeton, 1896. He was engaged on the American Cyclopædia, 1860-62; was first lieutenant 126th New York volunteers, 1862-65; instructor at Yale, 1870-71. He edited Chaucer's Parliament of Foules, and is the author of: History of the English Language; Studies in Chaucer; Shakespeare as a Dramatic Artist, etc. Died, 1915.

Lovett, Robert Scott, lawyer, president of Union Pacific railroad, was born in San Jacinto, Texas, 1860. He was educated in the public schools; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1882; attorney for Houston East and West Texas railroad, 1884-89; assistant general attorney, 1889-91, and general attorney, 1891-92, Texas and Pacific railroad; general counsel for Harriman railroads, 1904-09; succeeded Edward H. Harriman as president and chairman of board of directors, Union Pacific railroad, 1909.

Low, A. Maurice, journalist, author, was born in London, England, 1860. He was educated at King's College, London, and in Austria. Since 1886 he has been Washington correspondent of The Boston Globe; chief American correspondent of the London Morning Post. Author: The Supreme Surrender. Died, 1929.

Low, Seth (1850-1916), American educator and publicist, graduated from Columbia, 1870, and held LL.D. degree from many other colleges. Was elected mayor of Brooklyn, 1881-85, on independent ticket, held presidential chair at Columbia University, 1890-1901, and was elected mayor of New York, 1902-03. In 1895 he erected the Columbia University Library, at a cost of $1,175,000. President McKinley appointed him a member of the United States delegation to the International peace conference at The Hague. Died, 1916.

Lowden, Frank Orren (1861—), American public official, received degree of LL.B. at Union College of Law, Chicago, 1887. He practised law in Chicago for many years, held seat in Congress 1906-11, and was elected governor of Illinois for the term 1917-21.

Lowell, Abbott Lawrence, American educator and writer, president of Harvard University since 1909, was born in Boston, Mass., 1856. He was graduated at Harvard, 1877; Harvard Law School, 1880; practiced law in Boston, 1880-97. He was lecturer at Harvard, 1897-99; professor of the science of government, Harvard, 1900; trustee of the Lowell Institute of Boston, 1900, and was elected president of Harvard to succeed Dr. Charles W. Eliot, who resigned, in 1908. He is an accepted authority in the field of government and comparative politics. Author: Essays on Government; Governments and Parties in Continental Europe. Resigned Harvard presidency, 1933.

Lowell, Amy, American poet and critic, was born in Brookline, Mass., in 1874. She attended private school and travelled abroad. In 1912 she published A Dome of Many Colored Glass—a volume of conventional poetry—which was followed in 1914 by Sword Blades and Poppy Seed, containing many poems which immediately identified her with the imagist school of free verse. Her later volumes include Men, Women, and Ghosts; Can Grande's Castle; Pictures of a Floating World, and many translations of Chinese and Japanese poetry. Fir Flower Tablets—poems translated from the Chinese, —appeared shortly before her death in 1925.

Lowell, James Russell, American poet and diplomat, was born in Boston, Mass., 1819. He was educated at Harvard University, spent several years abroad studying languages, and, in 1855, succeeded Longfellow as professor at Harvard. LL.D., Harvard, and Cambridge, England; D.C.L., Oxford. Was United States minister to Spain, 1877-80, and ambassador to Great Britain, 1880-85. In 1869 he published Under the Willows, and Other Poems, and The Cathedral, an epic; in 1870; a collection of essays; in 1871, My Study Windows, in 1887, Democracy; in 1888, Political Essays. Heartsease and Rue, etc. Among his poems, the best known are The Vision of Sir Launfal; The First Snowfall, and the Commemoration Ode. He died in Cambridge, 1891.

Lowell, Percival, author, astronomer, was born in Boston, Mass., 1855. He was graduated at Harvard, 1876; LL.D., Amherst, 1907. He went to Japan in 1883, and lived there from time to time until 1893; established the Lowell observatory, 1894, and undertook an eclipse expedition to Tripoli, 1900. He received the Janssen medal of the French astronomical society, 1904, for researches on Mars, and made discoveries on the planets, especially Mars; was appointed non-resident professor of astronomy, Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Author: Annals of the Lowell Observatory; The Solar System; Mars and Its Canals, etc. Died, 1916.

Lowther (lou'thĕr), James William, British statesman, speaker of the House of Commons since 1905, was born in 1855. In 1883 he was elected to parliament for Rutland; contested Mid-Cumberland, 1885; was under-secretary for foreign affairs, 1891; represented Great Britain at International conference at Venice, 1892; chairman of committee on ways and means and deputy speaker, 1895-1905.

Loyola, Ignatius (lō-yō'lä), original name Inigo Lopez de Recalde, the founder of the order of the Jesuits, was descended from a noble Biscayan family, born at the castle of Loyola, Guipuscoa, in 1491, and died 1556. He was attached in his youth as a page to the court of Ferdinand and Isabella, and trained up in all the vices and frivolities peculiar to his position.

When still a young man he entered the army, and during the defence of Pampeiuna in 1521, against the French, he was severely wounded, and a long and tedious confinement was the result. The only books he found to relieve its tedium were books of devotion and the lives of saints. This course of reading induced a period of mystical devotion in which he renounced the world, made a formal visit to the shrine of the Virgin at Montserrat, and vowed himself her knight.

After his dedication he made a pilgrimage to Rome and Jerusalem, and from 1524 to 1527 attended the schools and universities of Barcelona, Alcala and Salamanca. In 1528 he went to Paris, where he went through a seven years' course of general and theological training. Here in 1534 he formed the first nucleus of the society which afterwards became so famous. Francois Xavier, professor of philosophy, Lainez, and others joined with Loyola and bound themselves together to devote their lives to the care of the church and the conversion of infidels.

Rome ultimately became their headquarters, when Loyola submitted the plans of his new order to Paul III., who, under certain limitations, confirmed them, 1540. Loyola continued to reside in Rome and govern the society he had constituted till his death. He was beatified in 1607 by Paul V., and canonized in 1622 by Gregory XV.

References.—Of the complete Lives, the best in English are those by Genelli, and Stewart Rose. In French, the Life by Bartoli. See also Druffel's Ignatius v. Loyola; Gothein's Ignatius v. Loyola und die Gegenreformation; and Joly's Ignace de Loyola.

Lubbock (lub'uk), Sir John, Lord Avebury, English naturalist and politician, was born in London, 1834. He was educated at Eton College, then entered his father's banking house, and in 1858 became a member of parliament, where he served at intervals until elevated to the peerage, in 1900, as Lord Avebury. He is the author of Prehistoric Times; The Origin of Civilization and the Primitive Condition of Men; Fifty Years of Science: Pleasures of Life, etc. Died, 1913.

Lucretius (lu-krē'shi-us), or Titus Lucretius Carus, Roman poet of the first rank, was born about 99 B. C. His principal work, De Rerum Natura, in six books, appeared 56 B. C. and is still unequaled as a philosophical didactic poem. Died about 55 B. C.

Lucullus (lū-kul'us), Lucius Licinius, celebrated Roman general, was born about 110 B. C. He twice defeated Tigranes of Armenia; but his legions became mutinous, and he was superseded by Pompey, in 66 B. C. He attempted to check Pompey's power, and was consecutively edile and consul, but soon withdrew from politics. He died about 57 B. C.

Luini (lōō-ē'nē), or Luvino, Bernardino, painter of the Lombard school, was born at Luino, about 1475. His skill was developed in the school of Leonardo da Vinci; indeed, many of his works were at one time attributed to that great artist. He is one of the five great painters whose "supremacy" Ruskin affirmed. Died about 1533.

Lummis (lum'-is), Charles Fletcher, American author, explorer, was born at Lynn, Mass., 1859. He was graduated at Harvard, 1881; Litt.D., Santa Clara College. Edited newspaper in Ohio, 1882-84. He was city editor Los Angeles Daily Times, 1885-87; lived five years in Indian Pueblo of Isleta, New Mexico, learning Indian languages and customs; traveled all over the southwest on horseback; also in Mexico and South America; has explored entire continent from Canada to Chili. Editor: Out West Magazine; The King of the Broncos; The Enchanted Burro; The Awakening of a Nation; Mexico To-Day, etc. Died, 1928.

Lurton, Horace Harmon, American jurist, was born at Newport, Ky., 1844. He was graduated at Cumberland University, Tennessee, 1867; D.C.L., University of the South, 1899. Judge of the United States circuit court, 6th judicial circuit, 1893-1909, and became associate justice of the United States supreme court in 1909. He was for a number of years professor of constitutional law and dean of the law department, Vanderbilt University. Died, 1914.

Luther, Martin, great German religious reformer, was born at Eisleben, 1483, and died there 1546. At school he made rapid progress in Latin and other studies and in 1501 entered the University of Erfurt; here in 1505 he received a master's degree.

About this time he discovered in the library of the university a Latin Bible, and found, to his no small delight, that it contained more than the excerpts in common use. He was destined by his father to the law, but his more intimate acquaintance with the Bible induced him to turn his attention to the study of divinity, with the view of entering monastic life. Contrary to the wishes of his father, he entered the monastery of the Augustines at Erfurt in 1505. In 1507 he was consecrated priest, and in 1508, by the influence of his patron, Staupitz, who was provincial of the order, he was made professor of philosophy in the new University of Wittenberg.

In 1510 he visited the court of Pope Leo X. at Rome on business connected with the order. Returning to Wittenberg he was made a doctor of theology in 1512, and here his profound learning and powerful eloquence drew large audiences. At that time he had no controversy with the pope or the church, but the arrival in 1517 of John Tetzel in Wittenberg selling indulgences for sins roused the fiery energy of Luther, and caused him to draw up his famous protest in ninety-five propositions, which he nailed to the church-door in Wittenberg. The result was that the sale of indulgences ceased, Tetzel fled, and a great religious commotion spread rapidly through Germany.

Luther was summoned to Rome to explain his heretical proceedings, but refused to go; nor were the efforts of Cardinal Cajetan able to effect a reconciliation between him and the pope. His dispute with Dr. Eck at Leipzig in 1519, in which he denounced indulgences, and questioned the authority of the pope, was followed in 1520 by a bull of anathema—a document which Luther straightway burned publicly in Wittenberg.

This open defiance of Rome required him to vindicate his conduct, which he did in a pamphlet addressed to the Christian Nobles of Germany, with the result that many rallied to his aid. When summoned to appear before the German emperor, Charles V., at the Diet of Worms (1521), Luther appeared, acknowledged his writings, made an eloquent defence, but refused to recant. When he retired from Worms he was met by a friendly troop of soldiers belonging to Frederick the Elector of Saxony, who conveyed him to the castle of Wartburg, where he remained for nearly a year. Here he employed his time in translating the New Testament into German, but when he heard that disturbances had been excited in Wittenberg on the question of images, he could no longer bear the restraint of inaction. Returning suddenly, Luther succeeded in quieting the people by means of a wise and patient moderation.

In 1524 he laid aside his cowl as a priest of the Roman church, and in 1525 married Catharina von Bora, one of nine nuns who had renounced their religious vows under his teaching. The wisdom of this marriage was doubted by his friends, but his home-life and the birth of six children, contributed greatly to the happiness of the reformer.

From the year 1521 Luther had been busy translating the Bible into German with the aid of Melanchthon and others, and the great task was completed in 1534. This important work, taken in connection with the protestant confession made at Augsburg in 1530, served to establish the reformer's doctrines in Germany, and closed the important part of his public life. He continued, however, till the end his private work of teaching, preaching and writing.

The massive character of the German reformer lay along simple lines and found its full and direct expression in his work. The learning of Calvin, and the balanced judgment of Melanchthon were not his, but a vivid practical insight enabled him to mark the abuses of the Roman church, and his fervid energy urged him to reform them. Behind all the zeal of the reformer he had much lowly human sympathy, humor, tenderness and a love of homely things. This side of his character is most clearly seen in his Letters and Table-Talk. His German writings were varied and extensive.

References.—Luther has been the subject of numerous biographies, including those of Melanchthon, Michelet, Koestlin, Freytag, Kolde, Jacobs, and T. M. Lindsay. See also Seiss' Luther and the Reformation.

Luxembourg (luk'sĂN'bōōr'), Francois Henri de Montmorency-Bouteville, Duke of, marshal of France, was born in Paris, 1628. In 1667 he served under Conde in Franche-Comte; in 1672 he successfully invaded the Netherlands and, driven back in 1673, conducted a masterly retreat. During the war he stormed Valenciennes and twice defeated the prince of Orange. Made a marshal in 1675, soon after the peace of 1678, he quarreled with Louvois, and was not employed for twelve years. Died, 1695.

Lyall (lī'al), Edna, pen-name of Ada Ellen Bayly, English novelist, daughter of a London barrister and bencher of Gray's Inn. She was born at Brighton, Sussex, and at an early age took to writing as a profession. Her first story, Won by Waiting, was published in 1879, and was followed by Donovan; We Two; In the Golden Days; Knight Errant; and A Hardy Norseman, etc. Her books have attained a wide-spread popularity. Died, 1903.

Lycurgus (lī-kûr'gus), lawgiver of Sparta, flourished in the ninth century B. C. He was uncle of the young king Charilaus, and governed wisely during his nephew's infancy, then traveled in Crete, Ionia and Egypt. On his return, finding Sparta in anarchy, he redivided property, and remodeled the constitution, military and civil. Lycurgus was afterward honored as a god at Sparta. His laws remained in force for about seven hundred years.

Lyell, Sir Charles, British geologist, was born in Scotland, 1797. He was graduated at Oxford, and studied law, but left his practice and gave himself to the study of geology, to which he had been attracted by Alexander Buckland's lectures when he was at Oxford. He made geological tours in 1824, and again in 1828-30, over various parts of Europe, and published the results of his investigations in the Transactions of the Geological Society and elsewhere. The first volume of his great work, The Principles of Geology, appeared in 1830, the second in 1832, and the third in 1833. Died, 1875.

Lyon, Mary, American educator, founder of Mount Holyoke College, was born at Buckland, Mass., 1797. In 1837 she founded the famous seminary, now Mount Holyoke College, at South Hadley, Mass., upon the plan of uniting domestic service with intellectual culture. She died at South Hadley, Mass., 1849.

Lysander (lī-san'dĕr), Spartan soldier, son of Aristoclitus. In 407 B. C., he became commander of the Spartan fleet in the Ægean, and defeated the Athenian fleet off Notium. As the Lacedæmonian law did not allow the office to be held twice by the same person, he was there named vice admiral, nominally subordinate to Aracus. He captured, at Ægospotami in the Hellespont, the entire navy of Athens, except eight or nine galleys, which escaped with Conon to Cyprus, and in 404 B. C. ended the Peloponnesian war by the capture of Athens. Died, 395 B. C.

Lysias (lis'i-as), Greek orator, was born about 450 B. C., son of a rich Syracusan, who settled in Athens about 440 B. C. The first use to which Lysias put his eloquence was, on the fall of the Thirty in 403 B. C., to prosecute Eratosthenes, the tyrant, chiefly to blame for his brother's murder. His thirty-four surviving speeches show Lysias delightfully lucid in thought and expression, and strong in character drawing. Died, 380 B. C.

Lysimachus (lī-sim'a-kus), Greek general, king of Thrace, was born about 360 B. C. On the division of the provinces, after the death of Alexander in 323 B. C., Thrace and the region bordering on the Danube were allotted to him. In 306 B. C. he assumed the title of king. Lysimachus so improved and enlarged New Ilium and the Mysian Alexandria that he came to be regarded as their founder. In 288 B. C. he formed a confederacy with Ptolemy, Seleucus, and Pyrrhus against Demetrius Poliorcetes, and acquired Macedonia. Having consented to the death of his son Agathocles at the instigation of his new wife Arsinoë, daughter of Ptolemy, his Asian subjects rebelled, and with the aid of Seleucus defeated and slew Lysimachus at Corus in Phrygia, 281 B. C.

Lytton, Edward George Earle Lytton, Bulwer, Lord, eminent English novelist, was born in Norfolk, of an ancient family, 1803. In 1826 he was graduated at Cambridge, and published in 1827 his first novel, Falkland. In the year following Pelham appeared—a work which placed him at once in the first rank of contemporary writers of fiction. Thenceforward his literary career was one of meteoric brillancy; novel after novel, drama after drama, flowed from his pen almost without intermission. In 1866 he was created a peer of the realm. Among his principal novels are: The Disowned; Devereux; Paul Clifford; Eugene Arm; Night and Morning; Zanoni; The Last of the Barons; Harold, the Last of the Saxon Kings; The Caxtons; Kenelm Chillingly, etc. He is also author of the plays, The Lady of Lyons, Richelieu, and Money, and of the poems, The New Timon, and King Arthur. Died, 1873.

Lytton, Edward Robert, Earl of, "Owen Meredith," poet, diplomat and statesman, was born at London, 1831. He was educated at Harrow and at Bonn. In 1849 he came to Washington as an attaché and private secretary to his uncle, Sir Henry Bulwer. In 1873 he succeeded his father as second Lord Lytton, and in 1876 became viceroy of India. In 1892 he was appointed English ambassador to France. His literary works, of which perhaps the most popular is Lucile, have been published under his pseudonym. He also wrote Clytemnestra; The Wanderer; The Ring of Aamsis; and Fables in Song. Died, 1891.

Maartens (mär'tens), Maarten, pen name of J. M. W. van der Poorten-Schwarz, Dutch author, was born at Amsterdam, 1858. He attended school in Germany, and studied law at Utrecht University. He is the author of a series of powerful novels, including The Sin of Joost Avelingh; A Question of Taste; My Poor Relations; Dorothea; The Jailbird, a one-act play; The Healers; The Woman's Victory; The New Religion, etc. Died in 1915.

Mabie, Hamilton Wright, American journalist and writer, associate editor of The Outlook, was born at Cold Spring, N. J., 1846. He was graduated at Williams College and Columbia Law School; L.H.D., Williams; LL.D., Union College and Western Reserve University. Author: Norse Stories Retold From the Eddas; Nature in New England; My Study Fire; Works and Days; Parables of Life; Backgrounds of Literature; Myths Every Child Should Know. Died, 1916.

Mabillion (mà'bē'yôn'), Jean, French scholar and historian, was born at St. Pierremont in Champagne, 1632. In 1653 he entered the Benedictine order, in 1663 became keeper of the monuments at St. Denis, and from 1664 worked in the abbey of St. Germain-des Prés at Paris. He edited St. Bernard's works, and wrote a history of his order: also De Re Diplomatica; Vetera Analecta; Musæum Italicum, etc. Died, 1707.

Macaulay (mà-kô'lī), Thomas Babington, Lord, British historian and statesman, was born at Rothley Temple, Leicestershire, 1800. He entered Trinity College, Cambridge, at the age of eighteen, where he acquired a brilliant reputation both as a scholar and debater. In 1825 he contributed to the Edinburgh Review his famous essay on Milton, the eloquence, brilliancy of fancy, and generous enthusiasm of which quite fascinated the educated portion of the public. He was elected to parliament in 1830, where he made a brilliant reputation; and in 1834 went to India as legal adviser of the supreme council. In 1839 he was appointed war secretary. While holding this office he composed the Lays of Ancient Rome, and in the following year published a collected series of his Essays, in three volumes. In 1848 appeared the first two volumes of his History of England from the Accession of James II. The third and fourth volumes of his History were published in 1855. Died, 1859.

McAdoo (mak-à-dōō'), William Gibbs, lawyer, public official, was born near Marietta, Ga., 1863, and was educated at the University of Tennessee. He was deputy clerk of United States circuit court of Tennessee, 1882; studied law and was admitted to the bar, 1885; practiced at Chattanooga. He removed to New York to practice in 1892. In 1902 he was elected president of the Hudson and Manhattan railroad, and completed in 1909 the fourth tunnel under the Hudson River. Appointed Secretary of the Treasury by President Wilson in 1913.

MacArthur, Arthur, American soldier, was born in Springfield, Mass., 1845. He was educated in the public schools of Milwaukee and by private tutors. He entered the union army in 1862 as first lieutenant, served throughout the Civil War, and entered the United States army, 1866. Awarded medal of honor, 1890, for seizing colors of regiment at critical moment and planting them on captured works on the crest of Missionary Ridge, 1863. He commanded the third expedition to Manila, and took part in the battle of Manila, August, 1898. He was subsequently commander of the division of the Philippines and military governor, 1900-01, and was created lieutenant general of the U. S. army, 1906. Died, 1912.

MacArthur, Robert Stuart, American clergyman, was born at Dalesville, Quebec, Canada, 1841. He was graduated at the University of Rochester, 1867; Rochester Theological Seminary, 1870; LL.D., Columbian, Washington, 1896. He was correspondent for years of the Chicago Standard; long editorially connected with Christian Inquirer, and Baptist Review, and was also a well-known lecturer on foreign travel. He was pastor of Calvary Baptist church, New York. Died, 1923.

McBurney, Charles, American surgeon, was born in Roxbury, Mass., 1845. He was graduated at Harvard, 1866, and from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, 1870. He was in practice as surgeon in New York from 1870; was professor of clinical surgery, College of Physicians and Surgeons, beginning 1896, and was consulting surgeon to President McKinley after the President was shot by an assassin in 1901. Died, 1913.

McCall, Samuel Walker, American congressman, lawyer, was born in East Providence, Pa., 1851. He was graduated at Dartmouth College, 1874, and was admitted to the bar, 1876. Member of the Mass. house of representatives, 1888, 1889, and 1892; member of Congress, eighth Massachusetts district, 1893-1913. Died, 1923.

McCarthy, Justin, British novelist and historian, was born at Cork, Ireland, 1830. He was educated privately at Cork, and engaged in journalism there, 1848-52; in Liverpool, 1852-60; and London, 1880. Was chairman of Irish parliamentary party, 1890-96. Author of many novels including: Miss Misanthrope; Dear Lady Disdain; Donna Quixote; Maid of Athens; Red Diamonds; Mononia, etc.; histories: A History of Our Own Times; Reminiscences. Died, 1912.

McClellan, George Brinton, American general, was born at Philadelphia, Pa., 1826. He was graduated at West Point, 1846. In 1861 he was commissioned major-general of the United States army, and appointed in command of the department of the Ohio. He subsequently commanded the army of the Potomac, but after indecisive engagements, was superseded by General Burnside, 1862. In 1865, as a democrat, he was the unsuccessful opponent of Lincoln for the presidency. Died, 1885.

McClellan, George Brinton, lawyer, public official, was born at Dresden, Saxony, 1865, during the residence of his parents, General George Brinton and Ellen M. McClellan, in that city. He was graduated at Princeton, 1886; LL.D., 1905; LL.D., Fordham University, 1905, Union College, 1906. Admitted to the bar, 1892; president of board of aldermen, New York, 1893 and 1894; member of congress, 1895-1903, and mayor of New York, 1903-10; Democrat. Hon. Chancellor Union U., 1906; Stafford Little lecturer on public affairs, 1908-10; university lecturer public affairs, 1911-12, prof. econ. history Princeton University since 1912.

McCloskey, John, American prelate, first cardinal of the Roman Catholic church in America, was born at Brooklyn, N. Y., 1810. He was the first president of St. John's College (now Fordham University), Fordham, N. Y., 1841-42; was consecrated bishop of Albany in 1847; archbishop of New York in 1864, and in 1875 was created cardinal. He built the cathedral at Albany, the Theological Seminary at Troy, was an effective preacher, and otherwise noted as an able executive and administrator. He died at New York, 1885.

McCormack, John, a recognized tenor of superior quality, was born in Athlone, Ireland, 1885. Winning in a musical competition at the Dublin Musical Festival inspired and enabled him to go to Italy to study. His success was so complete that he was engaged for Covent Garden, 1907. Has appeared in most of large cities of the United States.

McCormick, Cyrus Hall, American inventor, was born at Walnut Grove, Va., 1809. He invented a reaping machine, patented in 1831, which possessed all the essential points of modern machines and in 1847 established the McCormick Harvesting Machine Company (Chicago) in partnership with his brother. He made large gifts to education and endowed a chair at Washington and Lee University. He had only a common school education. Died in 1884.

McCormick, Robert Sanderson, American diplomat, was born in Rockbridge county, Va., 1849. He was graduated at the University of Virginia; envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary, 1901-02, and first ambassador, 1902, to Austria-Hungary; United States ambassador to Russia, 1902-05, to France, 1905-07. Died. 1919.

McCosh, James, 1811-1894, educator and philosopher, was born in Ayrshire, Scotland. Educated at the University of Glasgow and Edinburgh, he was appointed to the chair of logic and metaphysics in Queen's College. In 1868 was elected president of College of New Jersey at Princeton, which position he held for twenty years. He wrote First Fundamental Truths and Religious Aspects of Evolution.

MacCracken, Henry Mitchell, American educator, chancellor of New York University 1891-1911, was born at Oxford, Ohio, 1840. He was graduated at Miami University, 1857; D.D., Wittenberg, 1878; LL.D., Miami, 1887; chancellor of Western University, Pittsburg, Pa., 1881-84; vice-chancellor and professor of philosophy, New York University, 1884-91; deputy to general assembly, Free church of Scotland, 1867, and to Irish Presbyterian general assembly, 1884. Author: Tercentenary of Presbyterianism; Kant and Lotze; A Metropolitan University, etc. Died, 1918.

McCrea, James, American railway president, was born in Philadelphia, 1848. He entered the railway service in 1865; with Pennsylvania railroad, 1871-82, consecutively as assistant engineer and division superintendent; manager, general manager, and fourth vice-president, Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg, 1882-90; second vice-president, 1890-91; first vice-president, 1891-1907; and president of Pennsylvania railroad company, 1907-1913. Died, 1913.

McCumber, Porter James, lawyer, United States senator from North Dakota, was born in Illinois, 1858. Taught school for a few years, and took a law course in the University of Michigan, graduating in 1880. He removed to Wahpeton, North Dakota, 1881, where he practiced his profession. He was a member of the territorial legislature, 1895 and 1897; was elected to the United States senate, 1899, and reslected in 1905 and 1911.

McCutcheon, George Barr, journalist, author, was born on a farm in Tippecanoe county, Indiana, 1866. He was graduated at Purdue University, and was city editor of the Lafayette Courier, 1893. Author: Graustark; Beverly of Graustark, etc., and numerous short stories. Died, 1928.

Macdonald, George, Scottish poet and novelist, was born at Huntley, 1824; was educated at Aberdeen and the Independent College at Highbury, and became pastor at Arundel and at Manchester. His first book was one of verse, and a long series of novels followed, including David Elginbrod; The Portent; Alec Forbes; Annals of a Quiet Neighborhood; Malcolm; St. George and St. Michael. In 1872-73 he made a lecturing tour in the United States; in 1877 received a pension of 100 pounds. Died, 1905.

Macdonald, J. A., Canadian journalist, managing editor of The Globe, Toronto, beginning 1902, was born in Middlesex, county of Ontario, Canada, 1862. He was graduated at Knox College, Toronto, 1887; was ordained to ministry of the Presbyterian church, and inducted pastor of Knox church, St. Thomas, Ontario, 1891. He was principal of the Presbyterian Ladies' College, 1896-1901; and was appointed by Ontario government to serve for six years on first board of governors of the University of Toronto, 1906. Died in 1923.

Macdonald, Sir John Alexander, distinguished Canadian statesman, was born in Glasgow, 1815. His parents settled in Canada during his childhood, and he was educated at Kingston Grammar School, studied law, and was admitted to the Canadian bar in 1836. He entered the Canadian parliament in 1844; attorney-general, 1854-62 and 1864-67; prime minister, 1858. He was chairman of the London colonial conference 1866-67, and more than any other person was responsible for Canadian federation. After its establishment, he was head of the new Dominion government, as minister of justice and attorney-general, 1867-73, when he resigned from the cabinet. From 1878 until his death he was premier of the Dominion. He died at Earnscliffe Hall, near Ottawa, 1891.

MacDowell, Edward Alexander, composer, was born in New York City, 1861. He studied at home, then in Europe, at Paris and in Germany, where he lived for eight years. At this time he met Raff and Liszt and gave many concerts. He returned to America in 1888 and in 1896 was made the first professor of music at Columbia University. He suffered a mental breakdown from overwork in 1905 and died in 1908. Among his best known compositions are Woodland Sketches and Sea Pieces for the piano, the orchestral Indian Suite, sonatas and symphonic poems.

McGee, Anita Newcomb, American physician, was born at Washington, D. C., 1864, daughter of Professor Simon Newcomb. She was educated in private schools, and graduated at Columbian University, M.D., 1892. In 1888 she married W. J. McGee, the anthropologist. She was appointed, in 1898, acting assistant surgeon of United States army, being the only woman to hold such a position. In 1904, she took a party of trained nurses, formerly in the United States army, to serve gratuitously in the Japanese army for six months.

McGiffert, Arthur Cushman, American Theological writer and critic, professor of church history, Union Theological Seminary, New York, since 1893, was born at Sauquoit, N. Y., 1861. He was graduated at Western Reserve College, 1882; Union Theological Seminary, 1885; University of Marburg, Germany, Ph.D., 1888; studied in Germany, 1885-87, and in France and Italy, 1887-88.

McGrath, Harold, journalist, author, was born in Syracuse, N. Y., 1871, and has been engaged in journalism since 1890. Author: Arms and the Woman; The Man on the Box; Hearts and Masks; Half a Rogue; The Best Man; The Lure of the Mask; The Puppet Crown; The Grey Cloak; The Princess Elopes; Enchantment; The Watteau Shepherdess, an operetta; The Goose Girl; and numerous magazine stories. Died, 1932.

McGraw, John J., baseball player and manager, was born at Truxton, N. Y., 1873. He started playing professionally with the Olean Club in 1890, played with Baltimore from 1891 to 1899, when he became manager, then went with St. Louis. In 1901-02 he managed the Baltimore Orioles, then became manager of the Giants (New York National League). The Giants have held the highest record of victories in the national league.

Machiavelli (mä'kyä-vel'lē), Niccolo di Bernardo del, Italian statesman and author, was born in Florence, Italy, 1469, son of a jursit of good family. He was secretary of state at Florence from 1498 to 1512, went on several important missions, but was deprived of office and exiled in the latter year by the Medici. His chief works were Il Principe; Istorie Fiorentine; Arte della Guerra, some comedies and poems; and Discorsi sulle Deche di Tito Livio. In 1521 he again took part in public affairs for a short time, but died in poverty, 1526.

Mack, Norman Edward, American journalist and politician, editor and publisher of the Buffalo Times, was born in Canada, 1858. He was a delegate to the national democratic conventions of 1892, 1896, 1900, 1904, 1908, 1912, 1916, 1920 and 1924; is a member of the national democratic committee and member executive committee of the same, since 1900; and was chairman in 1908.

McKenna, Joseph, American lawyer and jurist; born at Philadelphia, Pa., 1843; educated at the College of St. Augustine, Benicia; studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1865. Assisted in the framing of the McKinley tariff of 1890. Appointed to the United States circuit bench of the Pacific slope in 1893; attorney-general of the United States, 1897-98; appointed associate justice of the United States supreme court, 1898. Died, 1926.

Mackensen, August von, German general, born at Haus Leipnitz, Saxony, 1849. Served as volunteer in the Franco-Prussian war; raised to nobility, 1899; in European war directed the Austro-German drive, which swept Russians from the Carpathians in 1915; honored for signal victories in Balkan campaign in 1916. Autnor of a military history.

Mackenzie, Alexander, Canadian statesman, born near Dunkeld, Scotland, 1822; moved to Canada in 1842 and engaged in contracting. Elected to the assembly, 1861-67, and remained a member for twenty-five years. Became premier of the Dominion and minister of public works. Resigned upon election of a conservative majority in 1878. Died, 1892.

McKenzie, Alexander, Congregational clergyman, was born at New Bedford, Mass., 1830. He was graduated at Harvard, 1859; Andover Theological Seminary, 1861; D.D., Amherst, 1879, Harvard, 1901; pastor First church, Cambridge, beginning 1867. He was a trustee of Phillips Academy, Andover, and Hampton Institute, Virginia; lecturer at Andover Theological Seminary, and president of trustees of Wellesley College. Author: Two Boys; A Door Opened; Now, etc. Died, 1914.

McKim, Charles Follen, American architect, was born in Chester county, Pa., 1847. He was educated at Lawrence Scientific School, Harvard, 1866-67. He began practice, 1872, joined in partnership by William R. Mead, 1877, and by Stanford White in 1879 as McKim, Mead and White. Among the notable buildings erected by the firm are: Columbia University; state capitol, Rhode Island; music hall, public library, Boston; Newport casino; University, Harvard, Century clubs, New York, etc. He was a member of the congressional commission for the improvement of Washington park system. He was awarded the royal gold medal by King Edward for promotion of architecture, 1903. Died, 1909.

McKinley, William, American statesman, twenty-fifth president of the United States, was born in Niles, Ohio, 1843. He was educated in the public schools, at the Poland, Ohio, Academy. In 1861 he volunteered in the Union army, and entered the 23rd Ohio infantry as a private. He served four years, rising by merit and faithfulness to the captaincy of his company, and to the rank of major when mustered out in 1865. He then at once began the study of law; in 1867 he was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Canton, Ohio, where he afterward had his residence. Elected to congress in 1876, and for six successive terms. In 1882 his election was contested, and he was unseated, but triumphantly returned at the next election. His reputation in congress rests chiefly on the tariff bill that bears his name. It was drawn by him as chairman of the ways and means committee, and passed by the fifty-first congress. In 1891 he was elected governor of Ohio by a large plurality over former Governor James E. Campbell, a very popular democrat, and re-elected in 1893 in the reactionary tidal wave of politics, following a contrary tariff policy, that carried the republican party back to power in congress. By this time his name was frequently mentioned as future candidate for the presidency. He was nominated and elected by an electoral majority of ninety-five, after a campaign of more intense interest than was displayed in any election since the Civil War. President McKinley's first term is memorable chiefly for the occurrence of the Spanish-American war and its unexpected results. That his policies during 1896-1900 were acceptable was shown by his unanimous renomination and reëlection in 1900 by an electoral majority of 137. His second term began most auspiciously and ended tragically. On September 5, 1901, he visited the Pan-American exposition in Buffalo, N. Y., that day having been set apart in his honor and called the "President's Day." On the afternoon of the following day, while holding a public reception in the temple of music, he was shot twice by Leon F. Czolgosz, an anarchist, who was at once arrested. The wounded president was taken first to the emergency hospital on the exposition grounds for immediate treatment, and then removed to the residence of John G. Milburn, president of the exposition. Hopes of his recovery were entertained for several days, but on September 13 he began to sink rapidly and died at 2.15 A. M., September 14. His remains were removed to Washington on September 16, lay in state in the capitol on the 17th, and were taken to his home city, Canton, Ohio, where they were interred on the 18th.

Mackintosh, Sir James, Scotch philosopher and politician, was born in Inverness-shire, 1765. He was recorder at Bombay, 1803; judge of admiralty, Bombay, 1806; returned to England, 1811, and entered parliament, 1813. Contributed a masterly preliminary Disertation on Ethics to the Encyclopædia Britannica; wrote the History of the Revolution in England in 1688, etc. Died at London, 1832.

Maclaren, Ian, pseudonym of John Watson, Scotch preacher and writer, was born at Manningtree, Essex, 1850, of Scottish parents. He was educated at Edinburgh University and at Tübingen. In 1893 he acquired great distinction and a wide fame by a series of Scottish prose idylls, written for the British Weekly, and afterward published under the title of Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush. This work won deserved praise for the fidelity with which he portrayed humble and reverent Scottish life and scenes. The volume was followed by The Days of Auld Lang Syne. Died, 1907.

McLaughlin (mak-lôf'lin), Andrew Cunningham, American historian and educator, was born at Beardstown, Ill., 1861. He was graduated at the University of Michigan, 1882; law department, 1885; A.M., 1895. Professor of American history, 1891-1906, University of Michigan, and professor of history, University of Chicago, since 1906. He was director of the bureau of historical research, Carnegie Institution, Washington, 1903-05. Author: Lewis Cass, in American Statesmen series. Editor: Cooley's Principles of Constitutional Law; The Study of History in Schools, etc.

MacLean, George Edwin, American educator, was born at Rockville, Conn., 1850. He was graduated at Williams College, 1871; Yale theological seminary, 1874; University of Leipzig, Ph.D., 1883. Chancellor University of Nebraska, 1895-99; and president of the University of Iowa, 1899-1911. Author: A Chart of English Literature; Old and Middle English Reader; A Decade of Development in American State Universities.

MacMahon (mak'ma'ôn'), Marie Edme Patrice Maurice de, French general and statesman, was born at Sully near Autun, 1808. In 1859 was made marshal and duke of Magenta. In the Franco-Prussian war, 1870-71, he commanded the first army corps, but was defeated at Worth, and captured at Sedan. After the war, as commander of the army at Versailles, he suppressed the commune. In 1873 he was elected president of France for seven years, and was suspected, perhaps not unjustly, of reactionary and monarchical leanings. He resigned in 1879, and died at Château la Foret, 1893.

McMaster, John Bach, American Historian, professor of American history in the University of Pennsylvania since 1883, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 1852. He was graduated at the College of the city of New York, 1872; Ph.D., Litt.D., LL.D., was a civil engineer, 1873-77, and instructor in civil engineering at Princeton, 1877-83. Author: A School History of the United States; A Primary School History of the United States. Died, 1932.

MacMillan, Donald Baxter, explorer and ethnologist, was born in 1874 and educated at Bowdoin College. He taught for several years, then joined the Peary expedition to the North Pole, 1909. In 1910 he went with Cabot, remaining for two years to study among the Esquimos. He led the Crocker land expedition, 1913-1917; the Baffin land expedition, 1920-1922; the North Greenland expedition, 1923-1924; the Polar expedition, 1925; and the Labrador expedition, 1926. He has written many scientific articles and a book, Four Years in the White North.

MacMonnies (mak-mun'iz), Frederick William, American sculptor, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 1863. He studied under Augustus St. Gaudens at the Academy of Design and Art Students' League, and completed his art education at Munich. He has received many prizes and decorations, and executed the following works, among others: Sir Henry Vane, Boston Public Library, 1893, central bronze doors and statue of Shakespeare, Congressional library; etc.

McMurry, Charles Alexander, educator, was born at Crawfordsville, Ind., 1857, graduate of Illinois Normal University, 1876; University of Michigan, 1876-80; Ph.D., University of Halle, 1887. Principal of practice school, Illinois State Normal University and lecturer Teachers' College, University of Chicago, 1899, 1900; Principal Practice School, Northern Illinois Normal School, 1900-01; professor of elementary education, George Peabody College of Teachers, Nashville, Tenn., since 1915.

McReynolds, James Clark, Associate Justice U. S. Supreme Court, lawyer, was born at Elkton, Kentucky, February 3, 1862; son of Dr. John O. and Ellen (Reeves) McReynolds. He was graduated from Vanderbilt University, 1882; and from the law department of University of Virginia, 1884. He practiced at Nashville, Tennessee, many years; was professor of law at Vanderbilt University, 1900-3; Assistant Attorney-General of the United States, 1903-07; Attorney-General, 1913; engaged in private practice in New York until 1914; then made an Associate Justice of U. S. Supreme Court. He was long especially retained by the Government in matters relating to enforcement of anti-trust laws, particularly in proceedings against the tobacco trust and the combination of the anthracite coal railroads.

MacSwiney, Terence, Lord Mayor of Cork, assumed that office upon the death of Lord Mayor MacCurtain, who was murdered by the constabulary. After he became prominent in the Sinn-Fein movement, his life consisted mainly of arrests, his first being in May 1916. Deported without trial, released without explanation only to be re-arrested, re-deported and re-released without explanation, he was arrested on August 12, 1920, and for the fourth time deported to England where he died after a sixty-four day hunger strike.

McVeagh, Franklin, merchant, secretary of the treasury, was born in Chester county, Pa. He was graduated from Yale, 1852, Columbia Law School, New York, 1854; abandoned the practice of law because of ill health and went to Chicago, 1866; established firm of Franklin MacVeagh & Co., wholesale grocers of which he remained head until 1909; again president since 1925. He was president of the bureau of charities and municipal art league; member of the executive committee, national civic federation, and vice-president of the American Civic Association, 1905. He was secretary of the treasury, 1909-1913.

McVeagh, Wayne, American lawyer, was born near Phoenixville, Chester country, Pa., 1833, He was graduated from Yale, 1853, and was admitted to the bar, 1856. United States minister to Turkey, 1870-71; member of Pennsylvania constitutional convention, 1872-74; head of "McVeagh commission" sent to Louisiana, 1877, by President Hayes amicably to adjust disputes of contending parties there; United States attorney general in cabinet of President Garfield, 1871, was ambassador to Italy, 1893-97, and chief counsel of the United States in the Venezuelan arbitration before the Hague tribunal, 1903. Died in 1917.

Madison, James, fourth president of the United States, was born in King George county, Va., 1751. He was graduated at Princeton, N. J., 1771, and studied law. He was sent to the federal congress, 1780; in 1784, to the legislature of Virginia, in which he supported the measures of Jefferson in the revision of the laws, and placing all religious denominations on an equality of freedom without state support. He supported the adoption of the constitution, but opposed the financial policy of Hamilton, and became a leader of the republican, or Jeffersonian party. In 1801, Jefferson having been elected president, Madison was made secretary of state, which post he held during the eight years of Jefferson's administration. In 1809 he was elected president of the United States. The European wars of that period, with their blockades and orders in council, were destructive to American commerce. The claim of the English government to impress seamen from American vessels was violently resisted. Madison vainly endeavored to avoid a war with England, which, nevertheless, was declared in 1812, and continued for two years, at a cost of 30,000 lives and $100,000,000. In 1817 he retired to his seat at Montpelier, Va., where he served as a rector of the University of Virginia, and a promotor of agriculture and public improvements. Died at Montpelier, 1836.

Maecenas (mē-sē'nas'), Gaius Cilnius, Roman statesman, was born about 70 B. C. He was the friend of Vergil and Horace, and was celebrated for his patronage of letters. In 31 B. C. Maecenas proved himself an able and vigilant governor of Rome by crushing a conspiracy of the younger Lepidus, and thereby preventing a second civil war. Died, 8 B. C.

Maeterlinck (mā'tĕr-lingk), Maurice, Belgian author, was born at Ghent, 1862. He was greatly influenced in his thought by Novalis and Emerson, and his first writings were poetical. The following is a list of his chief works, some of which have been translated into English and have attracted considerable attention: La Princesse Maleine; Pélleas et Mélisande; Alladine et Palomides; Aglavaine et Selysette; Douze Chansons; Le Trésor des Humbles.

Magellan, Ferdinand, Protuguese navigator, was born about 1480 Under Charles V.'s patronage he and Ruy Falero set out to reach the Moluccas by the west in 1519, reached the Philippines, and died in battle in Matan. On this voyage he discovered the Magellan strait, 375 miles long and 15 miles wide, between the South American mainland and Tierra del Fuego. Died, 1521.

Mahan (ma-han'), Alfred Thayer, American naval officer and writer, was born at West Point, N. Y., 1840. He was graduated at the United States naval academy, 1859; served in the Civil War; visited Europe in command of the Chicago, 1893, receiving many honors, among them degrees from both Oxford and Cambridge. He was retired at his own request in 1896. During the war with Spain he was a member of the naval board of strategy; and in 1899 was appointed by President McKinley one of the American delegates to the universal peace conference at The Hague. Author: The Gulf and Inland Waters; Influence of Sea Power Upon History; Life of Nelson, 2 vols.; Lessons of Spanish War; Retrospect and Prospect; Sea Power in Its Relations to the War of 1812; From Sail to Steam. Died, 1914.

Mahomet (ma-hom'et). See Mohammed.

Maine, Sir Henry James Sumner, celebrated English lawyer and writer, was born in 1822. He was educated at Cambridge University, where, in 1847, he became regius professor of comparative jurisprudence at Oxford. In 1847 he was elected Whewell professor of international law at Cambridge. He introduced wise reforms into Indian law, but his work in the origin and growth of legal and social institutions is the work on which his fame mostly rests. His publications include: International Law; Dissertations on Early Law and Custom, etc. He died at Cannes, France, 1888.

Major, Charles, American lawyer, author, was born in Indianapolis, Ind., 1856. He was educated in the common schools at Shelbyville and Indianapolis; studed law and practiced at Shelbyville. Author: When Knighthood Was in Flower; Dorothy Vernon of Hadden Hall, etc. Died, 1913.

Malebranche (mäl'brănsh'), Nicholas, French philosopher, was born in Paris, 1638. At the age of twenty-two he entered into the congregation of the Oratory, and he devoted himself to the study of Bible History and of the fathers of the church. He subsequently devoted much attention to Descartes' Traite de l' Homme, which led him to the study of philosophy, and called forth his famous work, De la Recherche de la Verite. Died at Paris, 1715.

Malherbe (mäl-erb'), Francoi de, French poet, was born at Caen, 1555. In 1605 he became court poet, and is called the founder of classic poetry in France. Died in Paris, 1826.

Malibran (mal'i-bran), Maria Felicita, celebrated mezzo-soprano singer, was born at Paris, 1808. She very early showed extraordinary talent, and made her debut in Italian opera, 1628, in London. In New York she married M. Malibran, a French banker. After her husband's failure in business she returned to the stage, and was recieved with great enthusiasm in France, England, Germany and Italy. She was one of the most popular and successful prima donnas of modern times. Died 1836.

Malpighi (mäl-pē'hē), Marcello, Italian anatomist, was born near Bologna, Italy, 1628. He lectured in Bologna, Pisa and other places, and wrote works on the anatomy of plants, the physiology of the silkworm and medical subjects. His name was given to the Malpighian genus. In 1691 he became physician to Pope Innocent XII., but died in 1694.

Malthus (mal'thus), Thomas Robert, English political economist, was born near Guilford, England, 1766. He was graduated at Cambridge, 1788; was for some time fellow of Jesus College, Cambridge; published in 1798, his Essay on Population, in which he maintained that population tends to increase out of porportion to the increase of means of subsistence. Died, 1834.

Mann, Albert Russel, educator, agricultural writer, was born at Hawkins, Pa., 1880, and graduated from the College of Agriculture, Cornell University, 1904; assistant superintendent Boston Farm School, 1904-5; assistant on Bailey's Cyclopedia of American Agriculture, 1905-8; successively assistant professor of dairy industry, secretary and professor of agricultural editing, New York State College of Agriculture, Cornell University, since 1908. Author: Beginnings in Agriculture, etc.

Mann, Horace, American statesman and educator, was born at Franklin, Mass., 1796. He was graduated at Brown University, 1819, studied law, and was admitted to the bar, 1823. Member of congress, 1840-53; and from 1853 to 1859 president of Antioch College, Ohio. He wrote: Lectures on Education; Report of an Educational Tour of Germany, Great Britain, and Ireland; and was untiring in his efforts in the cause of educational extension and reform, in the suppression of slavery and in the promotion of temperance. Died, 1859.

Mannering, Mary, actress, was born in London, England, 1878, daughter of Richard and Florence Firend. She was educated in private schools; studied for the stage under Herman Vezin; went on the stage at the age of fifteen. She came to the United States under management of Daniel Frohman; made her American debut at Parsons' theater, Hartford, Conn., 1896, in The Courtship of Leoni; New York debut, Lyceum theater, four days later. She has since appeared in leading roles in modern drama.

Manning, Edward Henry, English prelate, was born in Hertfordshire, England, 1808. He was graduated at Oxford in 1830, studied theology, and was appointed rector of Lavington and Graffham, Sussex, 1834. He became archdeacon of Chicester, 1840; in 1851 resigned his preferments in the church of England, and joined the Roman Catholic Church; was ordained a priest in 1857; nominated archbishop of Westminster, 1865, and created cardinal, 1875. Died, 1892.

Mansfield, Richard, American actor, was born in Heligoland, Germany, 1857. He studied in England for the East Indian Civil Service; came to Boston and opened a studio, and later entered theatrical profession. He was very successful in a wide repertoire, from Koko in Mikado to Richard III, Was head of his own company, and created such parts as Beau Brummel, Baron Chevrial, and the titular roles in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Appeared as Cyranno de Bergerec in 1899, and played Shylock, Henry V., Beaucaire, and Brutus in Julius Cæsar. Died, 1907.

Mantegna (măn-ān'yă), Andrea, Italian painter, was born in or near Padua, 1431. A precocious genius, he set up a studio of his own when only seventeen years old. His greatest works were nine pictures representing the Triumph of Cæsar, now at Hampton Court, England. He did not aim at grace and beauty in his pictures, but his technical excellences greatly influenced Italian art. Died, 1506.

Mantell (man'tel), Robert Bruce, actor, was born in Irvine, Ayrshire, Scotland, 1854. He made his professional debut at Rochdale, England, as the Sergeant in Arrah-na-Pogue, 1876; came to the United States and played juvenile roles with Mme. Modjeska, 1878; returned to England, and for three years supported Miss Wallis as leading man. Later appeared in New York as Lord Ippanhoff in Fedora with Fanny Davenport; afterward became a star, and has since been at the head of his own company in classic and romantic plays. Died, 1928.

Manzoni (măn-dzō'nē), Alexandro, Italian novelist and poet, was born at Milan, 1785. He published his first poems in 1803, married happily in 1810, and spent the next few years in writing sacred lyrics and a treatise on the religious basis of morality. His noble ode, Il Cinque Maggio, was inspired by the death of Napoleon. In spite of his Catholic devotedness, he was a strong advocate of a united Italy. Died at Milan, 1873, leaving the memory of a great writer and singularly nobleman.

March, Francis Andrew, American philologist, professor of English language and comparative philology, Lafayette College, 1856-1911, was born at Millbury, Mass., 1825. He was graduated at Amherst, 1845; LL.D., Princeton, 1870; Amherst, 1871; L.H.D., Columbia, 1887; D.C.L., Oxford, England, 1896; Litt.D., Cambridge, England, and Princeton, 1896. Author: Method of Philological Study of the English Language; Comparative Grammar of the Anglo-Saxon Language. Died, 1911.

Marconi (mär-kō'nē), Gugliemo, electrical engineer and pioneer of wireless telegraphy, was born in Girffone, near Bologna, 1874. His father was an Italian, his mother an Irish woman. He was educated at Leghorn and Bologna Universities; LL.D., Glasgow, Aberdeen, and University of Pennsylvania; D.SC., Oxford. He began in 1890, on his father's estate, experiments to test the theory that the electric current is capable of passing through any substance, and, if started in any given direction, of following an undeviating course without need for a wire or other conductor. Soon afterward he succeeded in sending messages from Spezia to a steamer fifteen kilometers distant; also sent messages from Queen Victoria ashore to the prince of Wales on royal yacht, 1897; came to the United States, 1899; used his method in reporting election, 1900; succeeded in establishing wireless telegraphic communication across the Atlantic ocean, 1902; daily ocean news service by wireless telegraphy inaugurated by him on trans-Atlantic liners, 1904.

Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, son of Annius Verus and Domitia Cavilla, was born at Rome, 121 A. D. His qualities attracted the notice of the emperor, Hadrian, who used to term him not Verus, but Verissimus, and who conferred high honors on him, even while a child. When only seventeen years of age he was adopted, with Lucius C. Commodus, by Antoninus Pius, the successor of Hadrian; and Faustina, daughter of Pius, was selected for his wife. He was made consul in 140 A. D., and from this period to the death of Pius, 161 A. D., he continued to discharge the duties of his various offices with the greatest promptitude and fidelity. He studied oratory under Herodes Atticus and Cornelius Fronto, and his love of learning was insatiable. Even after he had attained to the highest dignity of the state he did not disdain to attend the school of Sextus of Chæronea. Men of letters were his most intimate friends, and he received the highest honors both when alive and dead. His death in 180 A. D., was felt to be a national calamity; he was deified, and for more than a hundred years his image was found among the household gods of the Romans.

Margaret of Angouleme (ärʹgōōʹlȧmʹ), queen of Navarre, and daughter of Charles of Orleans, was born in 1492. In 1527 she was married to Henri d'Albert, king of Navarre, to whom she bore a son, who died in infancy, and a daughter, Jeanne d'Albert, mother of the great French monarch, Henry IV. She encouraged agriculture, the arts and learning, and to a certain extent embraced the cause of the reformation. She died at Odos, 1549.

Margaret of Anjou (ärʹzhōōʹ), daughter of René of Anjou, was born in 1430. In 1445 she was married to Henry VI. of England. In the wars of the Roses, Margaret, after a brave struggle of nearly twenty years, was finally defeated at Tewkesbury, in 1471, and was kept in the Tower four years, until ransomed by Louis XI. She then retired to France, and died at the castle of Dampierre near Saumur, 1482.

Margaret of Austria, daughter of the emperor Maximilian and Mary of Burgundy, was born at Ghent, Belgium, 1480. She married first John of Castile, and second Philibert of Savoy; was made governor of the Netherlands in 1507, and negotiated both the league of Cambria, in 1508, and the "pair des dames," in 1529. She died at Mechlin, Belgium, 1550.

Margaret of Denmark, daughter of Waldemar IV. of Denmark, was born in 1353. She succeeded her father, became queen also of Norway on the death of her husband, Hakon VIII., but was soon expelled. She recovered Norway in 1387, and, having defeated Albert of Mecklenburg in 1389, united the three Scandinavian kingdoms by the union of Kalmar in 1397. Died, 1412.

Maria Christina, queen-dowager of Spain, was born at Naples, 1806, daughter of Francis I., king of the Two Sicilies. In 1829 she became the fourth wife of Ferdinand VII. of Spain. In 1834 a revolution expelled her from the country, and she took refuge in France, but returned to Spain in 1864, only to retire again in 1868. Died, 1878.

Maria Theresa (mȧ-rīʹȧ te-rēʹsȧ), daughter of the emperor Charles VI. of Germany, was born at Vienna, 1717. By the "pragmatic sanction," for which the principal European powers became sureties, her father appointed her heir to his hereditary thrones. Frederick II. of Prussia claimed Silesia, and poured his armies into it; Spain demanded the Austrian dominions in Italy; and the Bavarians, assisted by the French, invaded Bohemia, the elector of Bavaria being crowned emperor as Charles VII., in 1742. The young queen was saved by the chivalrous fidelity of the Hungarians, supported by Great Britain. The empress-queen lost Silesia to Prussia, Parma and Piacenza to Spain, and some Milanese districts to Sardinia. She joined with Russia and Prussia in the first partition of Poland, 1772, securing Galicia and Lodomeria; while from the porte she obtained Bukowina, 1777, and from Bavaria several districts. She died in 1780. A woman of majestic figure and an undaunted spirit, she combined feminine tact with masculine energy; and not merely won the affection and even enthusiastic admiration of her subjects, but raised Austria from a wretched condition to a position of assured power. Of her ten surviving children, the eldest son, Joseph II., succeeded her.

Mariana (mȧ-rē-ȧʹnȧ), Juan, Spanish historian, was born in 1536. He was a Jesuit, taught theology in Rome, Sicily, and Paris, and finally lived in retirement in Toledo. In 1609 he published at Cologne Seven Theological and Historical Treatises, two of which were censured by the inquisition, and the author was subjected to imprisonment and penance. His chief work is his History of Spain, which extends to the accession of Charles V. with a summary of later events down to 1621. Died, 1623.

Marie Antoinette (mȧ-rēʹ ȧn-twȧ-nетʹ), Josephe Jeanne, wife of Louis XVI. of France, youngest daughter of Francis I., emperor of Germany, was born at Vienna, 1755. Soon after the accession of Louis XVI. libels were circulated by her enemies, accusing her of constant intrigues, not one of which has ever been proved. From the first hour of the revolution she was an object of fanatical hatred to the mob of Paris. At last she resolved on flight. Her husband long refused to abandon his country, and she would not go without him. A dim sense of kingly duty and honor was not wanting in Louis, but after the mob stopped his coach in 1791, and would not let him go to St. Cloud, he consented. The flight took place on the night of the 20th of June. Unfortunately the royal fugitives were recognized and captured at Varennes. From this time Marie's attitude became heroic, but the French people could not rid themselves of the suspicion that she was secretly plotting with enemies for the invasion of the country. On August 1, 1793, she was removed to the conciergerie by order of the convention, condemned by the revolutionary tribunal October 16, and guillotined next day.

Marie de'Medici (mȧ'rēʹ dā mā'dē-chēʹ), queen of France, daughter of Francis of Tuscany, was born in 1573. She married Henry IV. of France in 1600, and became the mother of Louis XIII., during whose minority she was regent. She was overthrown by Richelieu after a long contest, and left France in 1631. Died, 1642.

Mario (mȧ'rē-ō) Giuseppe, famous Italian operasinger, was born at Cagliari, Italy, 1810, son of General di Candia. In 1838 he made his first appearance in opera as Robert in Robert le Diable. In this he achieved the first of many successes in Paris, London, St. Petersburg, and America. Mario married the famous singer, Giulia Grisi, and retired from the stage in 1867. Died, 1883.

Marion, Francis, American general and patriot, was born near Georgetown, S. C., 1732. He received a scanty education, and, after a trial of seafaring life, in which he was wrecked and with difficulty rescued, engaged in farming. His first active service was in Charleston harbor, and later in the defense of Fort Moultrie, 1776. He was present at the siege of Charleston, 1780, raised several companies of volunteers among the country lads, or "cowboys" as the British called them, and with this force marched to the relief of General Gates, at that time in North Carolina. Among the most noted engagements in which he took part may be named Fort Moste, Fort Wilson, Granby, Parker's Ferry and Eutaw. At the close of the war Marion resumed his former occupation and remained on his plantation until his death, 1795.

Marion Harland. See Terhune, Mary V.

Marius (mȧ'ri-us), Caius, Roman general, was born near Arpinum, 157 B. C. He served with distinction at Numantia under the younger Scipio Africanus, and in 119 B. C. was tribune of the plebs. Meanwhile an immense horde of Cimbri and Teutons had burst into Gaul and repeatedly defeated the Roman forces. Marius, consul for the second third, fourth and fifth times, 104-101 B. C., annihilated them after two years' fighting in a terrible two days' battle near Aix, in Provence, where 100,000 Teutons were slain. Marius was declared the saviour of the state, the third founder of Rome, and was made consul for the sixth time in 100 B. C. Marius and Cinna were elected consuls for the year 86 B. C., but Marius died a fortnight afterward.

Mark, Edward Laurens, American naturalist and educator, professor of anatomy, Harvard, was born at Hamlet, Chautauqua county, N. Y., 1847. He was graduated at the University of Michigan, 1871; Ph.D., University of Leipzig, Germany, 1876; LL.D., University of Michigan, 1897, University of Wisconsin, 1904. Hersey professor of anatomy since 1885, director of zoölogical laboratory since 1900, Harvard University.

Markham, Edwin, American poet, writer, lecturer, was born in Oregon City, Ore., 1852. He went to California, 1857, worked at farming, blacksmithing, herded cattle and sheep during his boyhood, and earned his way through the common school. He wrote poems, since early boyhood, for California papers and received recognition of best Eastern magazines; was principal and superintendent of schools in California until 1899. Author: The Man with the Hoe, and Other Poems; Lincoln, and Other Poems.

Marlborough, John Churchill, first Duke of, soldier and diplomat, was born in 1650. He obtained a commission, through the influence of his sister, with the duke of York, and first served under Turenne; deserted James II. at the revolution, but, though created earl and commander-in-chief by William III., intrigued with his former master; was appointed captain-general and duke under Queen Anne, and won the victories of Blenheim, 1704, Ramillies, 1703, Oudenarde, 1708, and Malplaquet, 1709, but was recalled in 1710, and dismissed on a charge of peculation. Died, 1722.

Marlowe, Christopher, British dramatic writer, was born about 1564. He belonged to the generation immediately preceding that of Shakespeare, and is considered by many to be second only to Shakespeare among the dramatists of the time. His chief plays are: Tamerlane the Great; The Tragical History of Dr. Faustus, to which Goethe acknowledged his obligations; The Jew of Malta; and Edward the Second. He died in a tavern brawl at the age of twenty-nine, in 1593.

Marlowe, Julia, American actress, was born in England, in the village of Caldbeck, Cumberlandshire, 1870. She came to the United States with her parents at the age of five; lived in Kansas two years; moved to Ohio, locating finally in Cincinnati; attended public schools until her twelfth year, then joined juvenile opera company which gave Pinafore, Chimes of Normandy, and other light operas. She then retired from the stage and studied three years in New York. Married Robert Taber, who has been leading man in her company; married E. H. Sothern, 1911. Metropolitan debut as Parthenia in Ingomar, and since 1888 has starred in Shakespearean and other tragic and romantic roles.

Marmontel (mär'mōn'tel'), Jean Francois, French writer, was born at Bort, 1723. He wrote Les Incas; Belcsaire, and Contes Moraux, and made his way into Parisian society by gentleness, wit and a dainty and candid literary power. He was elected to the French Academy in 1763. Died, 1799.

Marquette (mär'ketʹ), Jacques, French Jesuit missionary and American explorer, was born at Laon, France, 1637. He founded Sault Ste. Marie and Kaskaskia Missions; accompanied Joliet in his exploration of the Mississippi, and died while attempting to establish a mission among the Illinois Indians, 1675.

Marryat (mar'i-at), Frederick, English author, was born in Westminster, 1792. He served in the navy for many years, becoming a post captain, and wrote many novels, including: Frank Mildway; Midshipman Easy; Peter Simple; Snarleyyow; The Little Savage; and Valerie. He also published a Code of Signals for Vessels Employed in the Merchant Service, adopted in England and other countries, and Dairy in America, in 6 vols. Died, 1848.

Marsh, George Perkins, American diplomat and philologist, was born at Woodstock, Vt., 1801. He studied law, was elected to congress in 1842, was United States minister to Turkey, 1849-53, and to Italy, 1861-82. He was made LL.D. by Harvard in 1859. He died at Vallonbrosa in Italy, 1882.

Marshall, Alfred, English economist, was born in London, 1842. He was educated at Merchant Taylors' and St. John's, Cambridge; D.Sc., Oxford and Cambridge; honorary LL.D., Edinburgh; hon. Dr. Jur., Cracow University; professor of political economy, Cambridge University, 1885-1908; member of royal commission on labor, 1891; vice-president of the royal economic society; fellow of the British Academy, 1902, and member correspondent de l'Institut de France, 1908. Author: Economics of Industry; Curriculum in Economics, etc. Died, 1924.

Marshall, Henry Rutgers, American architect and author, was born in New York, 1852. He was graduated at Columbia in 1873; L.H.D., Rutgers, 1904; in practice as architect since 1878. Pain, Pleasure, and Æsthetics; Æsthetic Principles, Instinct and Reason, etc. He was a contributor to art, psychological and philosophical journals and literary magazines and reviews, and was the principal speaker on æsthetics at the congress of arts and sciences, St. Louis Exposition.

Marshall, John, American jurist, chief-justice of the United States, was born in Fauquier county, Va., 1755. He was privately educated, and his law studies were interrupted by the revolution, in which he served under his father, Colonel Marshall, 1775-79, rising to the rank of captain. In 1781 he began to practice law in Fauquier county, Va. He was sent to France with Pinckney and Gerry as an envoy in 1797, and with Pinckney was ordered to leave the country when they had declined Tallyrand's request for a loan. In 1799 he was elected to congress, and in 1800 became secretary of state. He was made chief justice of the United States in 1801 by President John Adams, and held this position until his death, which occurred at Philadelphia, Pa., 1835. His great legal learning and judicial poise dominated the supreme court for thirty-four years, during which his decisions on constitutional questions established precedents in the interpretation of the constitution that have been accepted ever since.

Marshall, Thomas Riley, Vice-President of the United States, lawyer, was born at North Manchester, Ind., March 14, 1854, son of David M. and Martha A. (Patterson) Marshall. He was graduated from Wabash College, 1873, and subsequently received the degree LL.D. from Wabash, Notre Dame and University of Pennsylvania. He was admitted to the bar, 1875; 1876-92, was member of the law firm, Marshall & McNagny of Columbia City, Ind.; and, 1892-1909, of Marshall, McNagny & Clugston. He was governor of Indiana, 1909-13; July 3, 1912, received the Democratic nomination for vice-president at the Baltimore convention; and was elected at the ensuing election. He took his seat as vice-president, March 4, 1913. On Oct. 2, 1895, he married Lois I. Kinsey, of Angola, Ind. Died, 1925.

Martel, Charles. See Charles Martell.

Martens (mär'tenz), Frederic de, Russian diplomat and international lawyer, late professor of international law, University of St. Petersburg, 1871-1907, was born at Pernau, in the Russian Baltic provinces, 1845. He was graduated at the University of St. Petersburg, 1867; doctor of international law, 1873; LL.D., Edinburgh, Cambridge and Yale Universities; D.C.L., Oxford. He was Russian delegate at the peace conference at The Hague, 1899, and president of the second commission; Russian delegate at the peace negotiations between Russia and Japan in Washington, 1905. Author: La Paix et la Guerre; On Consular Jurisdiction in the East, etc. Died, 1909.

Martin (mär'tăN'), Bon Louis Henri, French historian, was born in 1810, at Saint Quentin. He studied law, but later abandoned it, and, after publishing a series of historical novels, gained celebrity by his Histoire de France. In 1870 he became mayor of Paris, and in 1871, a member of the national assembly. In 1876 he was elected a senator, and in 1878 a member of the French Academy. Died, 1883.

Martin, William Alexander Parsons, American missionary and Chinese scholar, was born at Livonia, Ind., 1827. He was graduated at the Indiana University, studied theology at Presbyterian Seminary, New Albany, Ind.; D.D., Lafayette, 1860; LL.D., University City of New York, 1870. Went to Peking, China, and Yeddo, Japan, with John E. Ward, United States minister, 1859. Missionary at Peking, 1863-68; president and professor of international law at Tung Wen College, thirty years. Was adviser Chinese authorities on matters of international law in several disputes with European powers; and was made a mandarin of the third class, 1885, and of the second class, 1898. Author: Lore of Cathay; Siege in Peking; A Cycle of Cathay; Chinese Legends; Awakening of China. Died, 1916.

Martineau (mär'ti-nō), Harriet, English writer of Huguenot descent, was born at Norwich, in 1802. She visited the United States in 1834, and the East in 1846, publishing descriptive works on her return. She wrote Deerbrook, The Hour and the Man, and other novels, and many tales for children. She was also author of a condensation of Comte, and History of England During the Thirty Years' Peace. Died, 1876.

Martineau, James, English theologian, brother of the preceding, was born at Norwich, 1805. In 1841 he was appointed professor of mental and moral philosophy at Manchester new college. He was principal of the college, 1868-85. As one of the profoundest thinkers and most effective writers of his day, he received degrees from Harvard, Leyden and Edinburgh. Died, 1900.

Marx, Heinrich Karl, German socialist, was born in Trèves, 1818, son of a lawyer. He was educated at Bonn and Berlin, took an active part in the liberal movement of 1840, and, after the suppression of the Rhenish Gazette, edited by him, he went to Paris. Later he settled in London, where he engaged in literary work, and took an active part in the international working men's association. After the secession of the anarchist section in 1873, he took but little part in affairs, and died at Hampstead ten years later, 1883. His chief work was Das Kapital.

Mary, Queen of England, 1553-58, was born at Greenwich, 1516. She was the daughter of Henry VIII. and Catharine of Aragon, and succeeded to the throne on the death of her half-brother, Edward VI. In 1554 she was married to Philip II. of Spain; and in the following year, having already repealed all the laws enacted in favor of Protestantism, and reëstablished Catholicism, she began, probably reluctantly, that series of persecutions of the Protestants which have earned for her the title of the "bloody Mary." During her short reign of four years, no fewer than 284 persons, of all ages, and sexes, were put to death. She died 1558, succeeded by her half-sister, Elizabeth.

Mary, Queen of Scots, daughter of James V. and Mary of Lorraine, was born at Linlithgow, Scotland, 1542. She became, by her father's death, queen before she was a week old. She was educated in France, and married the dauphin, Henry II., 1558, who died, 1560. In 1561 she returned to Scotland, her Kingdom, and, in 1565, married her cousin, Lord Darnley. Refraining from interference with the Protestant movement she retained her own Catholic faith, but chose Protestant advisers. Her only son, afterward James VI., was born in 1566. Darnley was murdered by Hepburn, Earl of Bothwell, almost certainly with Mary's connivance, and her marriage with Bothwell, in May, alienated the nobles. They rose, took the queen prisoner at Carberry, carried her to Edinburgh, then to Loch Leven, where they forced her to abdicate in July. Next year, escaping, she fled to England, and was there for many years a prisoner. Catholic plots were formed to liberate her and put her in place of Elizabeth on the English throne, by virtue of the fact that she was next in order of succession, being great-granddaughter of Henry VII. At last she was accused of complicity in Babbington's conspiracy, tried, found guilty, and executed in Fotheringhay castle, 1587.

Masaryk, Thomas Garrigue, president of the Republic of Czecho-Slovakia, was born in Moravia, 1850. He was educated at the University of Leipzig and in 1882 was made professor of philosophy at the University of Prague. In 1893 he came to the United States, where he was for a time a member of the faculty at the University of Chicago. After his return to Bohemia in 1907 he became a leader in the effort to free Bohemia from the dominance of Austria. Through his efforts the republic of Czecho-Slovakia was recognized by European powers, just before the close of the war. Elected president, 1920; re-elected, 1927.

Mascagni, Pietro, Italian operatic composer, was born at Leghorn in 1863. While studying for the law he took secret music lessons and had a symphony and other compositions produced at the Instituto Luigi Cherubini and through the attention he aroused became endowed to study at the Milan Conservatoire. He soon abandoned his work at the conservatoire and after a haphazard time suddenly achieved a brilliant success by the production of Cavalleria Rusticana. But his fame was to live by this alone, for none of his later work was successful. He became the director of the Pesaro Conservatoire from 1895 to 1903.

Masefield, John, poet and playwriter, was born at Ledbury, England, in 1874. While still quite young he ran away to sea, where he worked as a common sailor for many years, visiting numerous countries. This fact probably accounts for the vividness of his Salt Water Poems and Ballads. But fame came to him through The Everlasting Mercy (awarded the Edmond de Polignac prize in 1912), The Widow in the Bye Street, Dauber, and The Daffodil Fields. Made poet laureate in 1930, succeeding Robert Bridges.

Mason, George (1725-1792), American statesman, born in Virginia. He was a member of the Continental Congress and took part in framing the Constitution in 1787. He was opposed to slavery. He was chosen as Virginia's first United States senator, but refused to serve.

Mason, James Murray (1798-1871), American jurist and statesman, born in Virginia. He was elected United States senator from Virginia in 1847 and retained that place until the Civil War, when he withdrew and cast his lot with the Confederacy. With John Slidell, Mason left in November, 1861, on a mission to secure aid for the South in Europe. They were captured on the steamer Trent by a United States warship and imprisoned. Upon the demand of the English government, Mason and Slidell were given up Jan. 1, 1862.

Mason, Walt, newspaper poet, was born in Canada in 1862. He came to the United States in 1880 and engaged in newspaper work. His prose poems have become regular and well-known features in more than 200 newspapers. His published books include Uncle Walt, Rippling Verse, Terse Verse and Walt Mason—His Book.

Maspero (mȧs'pē-rō'), Gaston Camille Charles, French Egyptologist, was born at Paris, 1846, of Italian parents. In 1874 he became professor of Egyptology at the Collège de France, and after 1881 keeper of the Boulaq museum and director of explorations in Egypt. Author: Egyptian Archæology; Life in Ancient Egypt and Assyria; Dawn of Civilization; The Struggle of the Nations; The Passing of the Empires, etc. Died, 1916.

Massasoit (mas'ȧ-soit'), chief of the Pokanoket, or Wampanoag Indians, ruled over most of south Massachusetts from Cape Cod to Narragansett Bay. In 1621, three months after Plymouth had been founded, Massasoit and sixty warriers, armed and painted, came to the settlement and made a treaty of peace. His home was where now stands the town of Warren, R. I., and here he entertained Roger Williams for several weeks, when on his way to Providence after being banished from Massachusetts. Massasoit was honest, kept his word and loved peace. He died in 1661.

Massena (mȧ'sā'nȧ'), Andre, prince of Essling, and duke of Rivoli, one of the most celebrated of Napoleon's marshals, was born at Nice, 1758. He entered the army in 1775, and retired from it after having served for fourteen years. The revolution, however, again roused his military ardor. His rise was rapid, and he attained the rank of general of division, 1793. In 1810 he was appointed to command the army which invaded Portugal, but was foiled by Wellington, and compelled to abandon the Portuguese territory. After this period Massêna did not again appear in the field. Died, 1817.

Massenet (mȧ's'nē'), Jules Emile Frederic, French composer, was born at Montaud, 1842. He was educated at Lycée, Saint-Louis, and Le Paris conservatoire, under Laurent, Reber, Savard, and Ambroise Thomas. He was professor of composition at the conservatoire, 1878-96. He wrote the following operas: La Grande Tante; Werther; Thais; Le Portrait de Manon; Le Jongleur de Notre Dame, etc. Died, 1912.

Massillon (mȧ'sē'yŏN'), Jean Baptiste, one of the most eloquent of French pulpit orators, was born at Hijères, 1663. He entered at the age of eighteen into the congregation of the oratory, and became so celebrated as a preacher that he was summoned to court to display his powers. His success there was complete. Louis XIV. complimented him in the strongest terms. His sermons and other theological works form fifteen volumes. Died, 1782.

Massinger (mas'in-jĕr), Philip, English dramatist, was born at Salisbury, England, 1583. He studied at Oxford, 1602, and in 1606 went to London. Eighteen of his plays are still extant. Notwithstanding his genius and the popularity of his plays, he lived in obscurity; and the course of his life in London is not easily traced. Among his best-known works are: Duke of Milan; Fatal Dowry, and A New Way to Pay Old Debts, which latter is still in use upon the stage. He was found dead in his bed in 1640, and was entered upon the book of the parish church simply as "a stranger."

Masters, Edgar Lee, American poet, was born in Garnet, Kansas, in 1869. After graduating from Knox College, he studied law in his father's office, and was admitted to the bar in 1891. Although he published A Book of Verses in 1898, his first notable work was Spoon River Anthology, a series of over two hundred epitaphs purporting to be a frank revelation of village history. Its success was immediate and permanent. Other writings include Songs and Satire, Starved Rock, Domesday Book, and Althea, a play.

Mather (maтн'ĕr), Cotton, American colonial divine, was born in Boston, 1663. The phenomenon termed "Salem witchcraft" having appeared in the colony, he investigated it, and wrote, in 1689, his Memorable Providences Relating to Witchcraft and Possessions. He found that devils or possessed persons were familiar with dead and foreign languages, etc., and eagerly advocated the adoption of desperate remedies for the diabolical disease. Despite his bitter bigotry and narrow-mindedness, he was an able man, and, with remarkable industry, wrote 382 works. Died, 1728.

Mather, Increase, American colonial divine, father of the preceding, was born at Dorchester, 1639. He was for about sixty years pastor of the North church, Boston. In 1684 he was also chosen president of Harvard College, for which he obtained the right to confer the degrees of B. D. and D.D. His influence was so great in the colony that he was sent to England in 1688 to secure a new charter, and had the appointment of all offices under it. Died, 1723.

Mathew, Theobald, "Father Mathew," apostle of temperance, was born at Thomastown in Tipperary, Ireland, 1790. He took priest's orders in the Capuchin order in 1814; and in his ceaseless labors at Cork, seeing how much of the degradation of his people was due to drink, became in 1838 an ardent advocate of total abstinence. His success was marvelous, and everywhere he roused enthusiasm and secured warm affection. But overwork ruined his health, and he died in 1856.

Mathews, Shailer, theologian, editor, was born at Portland, Me., 1863; graduated from Colby College, 1884; graduate of Newton Theological Institution, 1887; University of Berlin, 1890-01, D.D., Colby, 1901, Oberlin College, 1908. Has been associate professor of New Testament history and interpretation, 1894-7, professor, 1897-1905, professor systematic theology, 1905-6, history and comparative theology since 1906; junior dean divinity school, 1899-1908, dean since 1908, University of Chicago. Editor: The World To-Day, 1903-1912. Author: The Social Teaching of Jesus; A History of New Testament Times in Palestine; Constructive Studies in the Life of Christ (with E. D. Burton), The French Revolution—A Sketch; The Church and the Changing Order; The Social Gospel; The Gospel and the Modern Man, etc.

Matsukata (mät'sōō-kä'tä), Marquis Masayoshi, Japanese statesman, was born at Kagoshima, 1835. He received a military and literary education, and naval training from foreigners in Nagasaki. He visited Europe as president of the Japanese section of the Paris exposition of 1878; was appointed minister of home affairs, 1880; minister of finance, 1881. The redemption of inconvertible notes was the most important work accomplished during his more than ten years' service as minister of finance. He was created count, 1884; premier, 1891-92, and 1896-98; minister of finance in October of the latter year until October, 1900. The adoption of the gold standard, for which the count was mainly responsible, has been the most important incident in the history of Japan in recent years. He visited America and Europe, 1902; received an honorary D.C.L. from Oxford, 1902. Author: Report on the Adjustment of Paper Currency. Died, 1924.

Matthews, Franklin, American journalist, editor of the New York Sun beginning 1890, was born at St. Joseph, Mich., 1858. He was graduated at Cornell University, 1883. He was reporter and editor of Philadelphia Press, 1886-90. Author: Philadelphia; Our Navy in Time of War; The Newborn Cuba. Died, 1917.

Matthews, James Brander, American author, professor of dramatic literature, Columbia, was born at New Orleans, 1852. He was graduated at Columbia College, 1871; LL.B., 1873; D.C.L., University of the South, 1899, Litt.D., Yale, 1901; LL.D., Columbia, 1904. He was admitted to the New York bar, but turned to literature. Author: The Theatres of Paris; French Dramatists of the Nineteenth Century; Introduction to the Study of American Literature; A Confident To-Morrow; The Action and the Word; The Historical Novel; Parts of Speech, Essays in English; Development of the Drama. Legion of honor, 1907. Died, 1929.

Matthias (mȧ-thī'as), Corvinus, king of Hungary, was born in 1443. He was proclaimed king in 1458, soon after his release from imprisonment at Prague; maintained the throne against the emperor, Frederick III., and, after having engaged in successful wars with the Turks, received the Bohemian crown from the pope on condition of extirpating the Hussites. After this he engaged in two wars with the emperor, and captured Vienna in 1485, living there until his death in 1490.

Maupassant, Henri Rene Albert Guy De, French novelist and short story writer, was born in 1850 at the Chateau of Miromesnil. Under the severe tutorship of Flaubert he became a master of short story writing. Strength and simplicity in both substance and style are characteristic of all Maupassant's writings. In 1891 his reason began to give way, and he died in 1893. Among his best known stories are The Necklace, The Piece of String; Sisters of Randoli, and Tales of Day and Night. His very first story, Boule Je Suif, was a masterpiece. His best known novels are Pierre and Jean and Strong as Death.

Mauptertuis (mō'per'twē'), Pierre Louis Moreau de, French geometrician and astronomer, was born at St. Malo, 1698. He studied at the college of La Marche, at Paris, and, after having served for four years in the army, devoted himself to science and literature. In 1745, invited by Frederick the Great, he settled at Berlin, and was made president of the royal academy there. Died, 1759.

Maurice (mō'ris), prince of Orange and count of Nassau, one of the most skillful and distinguished generals of his age, was born at Dillenburg, 1567, son of William I. In 1597, with the help of some English auxiliaries, he defeated the Spaniards at Turnhout in Brabant, and in 1600 won a splendid victory at Nieuwport. Finally, in 1609, Spain was compelled to acknowledge the united provinces as a free republic. Died, 1625.

Maxim, Sir Hiram Stevens, American inventor, was born at Sangerville, Me., 1840. He received a common school education, and his sicentific knowledge was obtained by study and attending lectures. He was for four years an apprentice to coach-building; worked in various iron works; patented numerous inventions in the United States and went to England in 1881, where he became a naturalized citizen. He has patented many electrical inventions, including incandescent lamps, self-regulating current machines, etc.; invented the Maxim gun, automatic system of firearms, which makes the recoil of the gun serve as the power for reloading. Chevalier légion d'honneur. France, and knighted by Queen Victoria in 1900, Died, 1916.

Maximilian I., German emperor, was born in 1459, son of Frederick III. In his nineteenth year he married Maria, only child and heiress of Charles the Bold, duke of Burgundy, and was soon involved in a war with Louis XI. of France, who attempted to seize some of her possessions. Subsequently he married the daughter of the duke of Milan, and, although inclined to peace, he became involved in war with the Swiss, the Venetians and the French. Died, 1519.

Maximilian, Ferdinand Maximilian Joseph, archduke of Austria and emperor of Mexico, was born in Vienna, 1832. He was the brother of the former emperor of Austria-Hungary. In 1863 Napoleon III. had it in mind to conquer Mexico and set up an empire, and he offered the crown to Maximilian, who went to Mexico in 1864. But he pleased no one, and in 1866, when the French troops left the country, the empire fell to pieces. Maximilian tried to form a native army for his own defense, but he was captured by the republicans, and, after a trial, shot near Queretaro, in his thirty-fifth year, 1867.

Max O'Rell. See Blouet, Paul.

Maxwell, James Clerk-, British physicist, was born at Edinburgh, 1831. He was educated at the University of Edinburgh. In the great work of his life, Electricity and Magnetism, 2 volumes, he constructed a theory of electricity in which "action at a distance" should have no place. He was the first to make color-sensation the subject of actual measurement. But he was best known to the public by his investigations on the kinetic theory of gases. In 1879 he edited Cavendish's Electrical Researches, and died in the same year.

Maxwell, William Henry, American educator, superintendent of schools of Greater New York beginning 1898, was born at Stewartstown, Ireland, 1852. He was educated at royal academical institution, Belfast, and Queen's Colleges, Galway and Belfast. He was teacher in the public schools, Brooklyn, N. Y., 1880-82; assistant superintendent of schools, Brooklyn, N. Y., 1882-87, and superintendent, 1887-98; superintendent, public schools, Greater New York, 1898, then emeritus. He was author of a series of text-books on English grammar and composition, etc. Died, 1920.

May, Sir Thomas Erskine, English jurist and writer, was born in London, 1815. He was educated at Bedford school. He was created successively C. B. and K.C.B., and was on his retirement, in 1886, created Baron Farnborough. His Treatise on the Law, Privileges, Proceedings, and Usage of Parliament has been translated into various languages; his Constitutional History of England, 1760-1860 is a continuation of Hallam; and his Democracy in Europe shows great learning and impartiality. Died, 1886.

Mayer, Henry ("Hy Mayer"), caricaturist, was born at Worms-on-Rhine, 1868. He was educated in England and Germany, and came to the United States, 1886. He began his career as an artist in Cincinnati, 1887, and has resided in New York since 1893. He has been illustrator for Fliegende Blaetter; Figaro Illustré: Le Rire; Pall-Mall Magazine; Punch; Life, New York Times, Herald, etc. Author: Autobiography of a Monkey; A Trip to Toyland; Alphabet of Little People, etc.

Mayo Brothers, William James (1861——) and Clarence Horace (1865——), American surgeons, were born in Minnesota. In 1889 they organized the Mayo Clinic, in St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, Minn., which has become famous throughout the world for the number and success of its operations. Beginning in 1912, graduate courses in medicine were offered in this clinic. In 1915, the Mayo Foundation for Medical Education and Research was established, to which the brothers contributed $1,500,000. In 1917 the foundation became a department of the University of Rochester.

Mazarin (ma'zà'raN'), Jules, cardinal and chief minister of France during the minority of Louis XIV., was born at Rome, 1602. Having accompanied a papal legate to the court of France, he became known to Richelieu about 1628. The latter perceived his great political talents, and engaged him to maintain the French interests in Italy, which he did while still employed by the pope as vice-legate to Avignon, in 1632, and nuncio to the French court. Under him the influence of France among the nations was increased, and in the internal government of the country those principles of despotism were established on which Louis XIV. afterward acted. The administration of justice, however, became very corrupt, and the commerce and finances of the country sunk into deep depression. Died, 1661.

Mazzini (mät-sē'nē), Guiseppe, Italian patriot and revolutionist, was born at Genoa, 1805. The organization of a new liberal league, "Young Italy," was Mazzini's first work. A new association, entitled "New Europe," and based on principles of European rights and enfranchisement, was inaugurated by the exertions of Mazzini in Switzerland. In 1837 he quitted Switzerland and finally took up his abode in London. From there his labors in the Italian revolutionary cause were unremitting. After an ineffective scheme for a republican rising, he ventured to enter Italy, and was arrested at Gaeta, where he remained a prisoner until Rome was taken by the Italian army. On his death, 1872, the government honored him with a public funeral.

Mead, Larkin Goldsmith, American sculptor, was born at Chesterfield, N. H., 1835. His early years were spent in Vermont. He studied art at Brooklyn, N. Y., and in Italy. The colossal statue of "Vermont" on the dome of the statehouse, and of "Ethan Allen" in the portico of the same building in Vermont, and one of the same hero, given by the state of Vermont to the hall of representatives at Washington, are all his work, also a colossal statue, "The Mississippi River"; colossal marble group representing Columbus appealing to Isabella, Sacramento, Cal., high relief portraits in bronze of Henry James, William D. Howells, and John Hay. Died, 1910.

Meade, George Gordon, American general, was born in Cadiz, Spain, where his father was an agent of the United States navy, 1815. He was graduated at West Point, 1835, and, after serving one year in the army, resigned to begin practice as a civil engineer. At the outbreak of the Civil War he was placed in command of a brigade of volunteers, soon rose to the command of a division, and joined his fortunes permanently to those of the army of the Potomac. At Chancellorsville he commanded the fifth corps; and when Hooker resigned the command of the army, and while the army itself was in hasty movement northward to check Lee's invasion of the North in 1863, Meade was appointed to the command. He accepted it with the greatest reluctance, and altogether from a sense of duty. He had inclined to fight on the line of Pipe creek, to the south of Gettysburg; but Reynolds fell into collision with Lee's support, and Gettysburg became historical. At the close of the war he was made major-general in the regular army, and commanded the military division of the Atlantic at the time of his death, 1872.

Medici (mā'dē-chē), Lorenzo de', surnamed "the magnificent," was born in 1448. He was a member of an illustrious Florentine family, which for centuries exerted great influence in Italy and in Europe. In 1478 a conspiracy was formed against him and his brother Giuliano, by the Pazzi, another distinguished family of Florence, who were instigated by Pope Sixtus IV., and aided by Salviati, archbishop of Pisa. The result was that Giuliano was assassinated and Lorenzo wounded; whereupon Salviati was hung out of his palace window in his archiepiscopal robes, and Giacopo de Pazzi, with one of his nephews, shared the same fate. The pope now excommunicated Lorenzo and the magistrates of Florence laid an interdict upon the whole territory, and, forming a league with the king of Naples, prepared to invade the Florentine dominions. Hostilities followed, and were carried on with varying success during two campaigns. The remainder of Lorenzo's administration was unmarked by any great public events; but his regard for literature was manifested by the extraordinary attention he paid to the augmentation of the Laurentian library, which had been founded by his grandfather. Died, 1492.

Meighan, Thomas, actor, born in Pittsburg, 1879. Played on the New York stage and in London. Since 1916 he has been appearing in moving pictures, starring in Out of a Clear Sky, The Miracle Man, Male and Female, Don't Change Your Wife, and many other films. He is a past president of the Lambs Club, New York. Died, 1936.

Meissonier (me'sō-nyā'), Jean Louis Ernest, French painter, was born in Lyons, 1815. He was a pupil of Cogniet, and became a member of the Beaux Arts in 1861. His best pictures distinguished for minute detail are probably the "Napoleon Cycle," among which the picture called "1814" was sold, in 1887, for the highest price ever obtained during an artist's lifetime, $170,000. He served in the Italian campaign and the early part of the Franco-Prussian war, and was colonel at the siege of Paris. Died, 1891.

Melanchthon (mē-langk'thun), Philip, Luther's fellow-laborer, in the reformation, was born at Bretten, in the palatinate of the Rhine, 1497. In 1521 he published his Loci Communes Rerum Theologicarum, the first great Protestant work on dogmatic theology. In 1530 he made a most important contribution to the cause of Protestantism in the Augsburg confession. After Luther's death, he lost in some measure, the confidence of some of the Protestants, by those concessions to the Roman Catholics which his anxiety for peace led him to make. Died, 1560.

Melba, Madame, nee Helen Porter Mitchell, operatic vocalist, was born in Melbourne, Australia, 1865. She studied under Madame Marchesi in Paris, and made her stage début in 1887 in Rigoletto, at the théâtre de la Monnaie, Brussels. Next year she appeared as Lucia at Covent Garden. In 1889 played Ophelia at Paris grand opera. For her Bemberg specially wrote Elaine, produced in London in 1892. She has taken a prominent part in opera in London and New York, and proved herself equally successful in concert. In 1925 she published Melodies and Memories. Died, 1931.

Mellen, Charles Sanger, American railway official, was born in Lowell, Mass., 1851. He was in the railway service, 1869, beginning as clerk in the cashier's office of the Northern New Hampshire railroad, general manager of New York and New England railroad at Boston, 1892; second vice-president New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, 1892-96; president of Northern Pacific railway company, 1896-1903; president, New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company, 1903-13; president B. & M. R. R. Co., 1910-13. Died, 1925.

Mellon, Andrew William, born Pittsburgh, Pa., 1852. Banker and director of numerous financial institutions. Trustee Carnegie Institute. Secretary of the Treasury under Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.

Mencius (men'shi-us), Meng-tse, Chinese sage, was born in Shan-tung, about 371 B. C. He founded a school on the model of that of his great predecessor Confucius. After his death his disciples collected his conversations and exhortations and published them as the Book of Mengtse. The philosophic root of his system is belief in the ethical goodness of man's nature. In his liberal and enlightened system of political economy, he advocated freedom of trade, the deposition of unworthy rulers, division of labor, inspection of work by government, maintenance of good roads and bridges, poor-laws, education and the abolition of war. Chinese ethics are based on his writings. Died about 287 B. C.

Mendelssohn-Bartholdy (men'del-sōn bär'tōl'dē'), Felix, German composer, was born at Hamburg, 1809. In 1835 he accepted the directorship of the Leipzig concerts. Here he was in the center of the musical world of Germany and was stimulated to his highest and most brilliant efforts. His oratorios, St. Paul and Elijah, are his two best works. Died, 1847.

Mengs (mengks), Anton Raphael, modern German artist, was born in Aussig, Bohemia, 1728. From his sixth year he was compelled to exercise himself in drawing daily and hourly, and a few years later was instructed by his father in oil, miniature and enamel painting. In 1761 Charles III. invited him to Spain, where his principal works at this time were an Assembly of the Gods, and a Descent from the Cross. In 1776 he returned once more to Rome, where he died in 1779.

Menzies, Wilfrid Granbrook, university professor, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, 1877. M.A., Edinburgh, 1897, B.Sc., 1898; studied at Leipzig and Aberdeen; Ph.D., Chicago, 1910. Assistant professor chemistry, Heriot-Watt College, Edinburgh, 1898-1901; professor of chemistry, St. Mungo's College, Glasgow, 1902-08; secretary Medicial Faculty, 1907-08; research associate instructor, Chicago University since 1908. Fellow Royal Society Edinburgh. Author: Sensitiveness of a Thermoregulator; Phosphoric Acid Hydrates; Molecular Weight Determination of Dissolved Substances; New Methods for Measuring Vapor Pressure; Vapor Pressure of Mercury, and of Sulphur; Vapor Density Apparatus; Constitution of Calomel Vapor; Calomel and Abegg's Anomaly; Critical Temperature of Mercury; Calculation of Critical Temperatures; Physical Constants Formic Acid; Pure Lithiumand Its Cofft. of Expansion; High Temperature Oven, etc.

Mercator (mẽr-kā'tẽr), Gerardus, Flemish geographer of the sixteenth century, was born at Rupelmonde, Flanders, 1512, his real name being Kraemer, "merchant," of which Mercator is the Latinized form. He took his degree as bachelor of philosophy at Louvain, but devoted his later years to the study of geography. He published several important works, including maps and descriptions of France, Germany, and Great Britain. Some of his later works were of a religious character and were supposed to favor the reformed doctrines. He died in Prussia, 1594.

Meredith, George, English poet and novelist, a native of Hampshire, was born in 1828. After studying for some time in Germany he commenced his literary career with the publication of a volume of poems. This was followed by the Shaving of Shagpat, an Arabian entertainment; Farina, a legend of Cologne; The Ordeal of Richard Feverel; Poems of the English Roadside; Emilia in England; Rhoda Fleming; Vittoria; Beauchamp's Career; Diana of the Crossways; A Reading of Earth; One of Our Conquerors; Empty Purse; Jump to Glory Jane; The Amazing Marriage; The House on the Beach; Comedy, and the Uses of the Comic Spirit; Selected Poems, etc. Died, 1909.

Meredith, Owen. See Lytton, Edward Robert, Earl of.

Mergenthaler (mer'gen-tä'lĕr), Ottmar, inventor of the type-setting machine bearing his name, was born in Würtemberg, Germany, 1854. He came to the United States in 1872, and received a government position in Washington, D. C., to care for the mechanism of bells, clocks and signal service apparatus. Died at Baltimore, Md., 1899.

Merimee (mā'rē'mā'), Prosper, French novelist, historian and archæologist, was born at Paris, 1803. After several anonymous efforts, wrote Clara Gazul, and La Guzla, Spanish comedies and Illyrian songs; La Chronique du Règne de Charles IX., his most famous historical novel; Colomba; Carmen; Tamango. He became a member of the French academy in 1844, was made a senator in 1853, president of the commission for reorganizing the bibliotheque inperiale in 1858, and commander of the legion of honor, 1860. Died at Cannes, 1870.

Merivale (mer'i-vāl), Charles, English historian, dean of Ely, was born in Exeter, 1808. He was graduated at Cambridge. He wrote a history of Rome from its foundation in 752 B. C. to the fall of Augustus in 476 A. D., but his chief work is the History of the Romans Under the Empire, indispensable as an introduction to Gibbon. Died, 1893.

Merle d'Aubigne (merl-dō'bēn'yā), Jean Henri, ecclesiastical historian, was born near Geneva, Switzerland, 1794. In 1823 he was appointed court preacher at Brussels; but after the revolution of 1830 he declined the post of tutor to the prince of Orange; returning to Geneva, he took part in the institution of the new Evangelical College, and filled its chair of church history until his sudden death in 1872. His History of the Reformation in the 16th Century has enjoyed immense popularity.

Merrill, George Perkins, American geologist and educator, was born at Auburn, Me., 1854. He was graduated at the Maine State University, B.S., 1879; Ph.D., professor of geology and mineralogy, George Washington University, 1893-1915; curator dept. geol. U. S. Nat. Mus. beginning 1897. Author: Stones for Building and Decoration; Rocks, Rock-weathering and Soils; The Non-Metallic Minerals; The Non-Metallic Minerals—Their Occurrence and Uses, etc. Died, 1929.

Merritt, Wesley, American general, was born in New York, 1836. He was graduated from West Point in 1860; was commissioned brigadier-general of the United States volunteers, 1863; major-general of United States volunteers, 1865; and since the Civil War regularly promoted from lieutenant-colonel to major-general, United States army. He served in the army of the Potomac until June, 1864; was superintendent of United States military academy, 1882-87; assigned, May, 1898, to command of United States forces in the Philippine islands; was in command of department of the East, Governor's island, until retirement in 1900. Died, 1910

Merry del Val (mer'rē del vāl'), Raphael, pontifical secretary of state, was born in London, of Spanish parents, in 1865. He was at first attached to the diocese of Westminster, acted for many years as Camerieri Segreto to Pope Leo XIII., and was appointed president of the Accademia Pontificia in 1899, and Italian archbishop of Nicosia in 1900. He visited England as papal envoy on the occasions of Queen Victoria's jubilee and King Edward's coronation, and was sent to Canada on an educational mission. He celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his entry into the college of Cardinals in 1928 and was secretary of state under Pope Pius X. Died, 1930.

Mesmer, Friedrich Anton, or Franz, founder of mesmerism, was born near Constance, Switzerland, 1733. About 1772 he took up the opinion that there existed a power of extraordinary medicinal influence on the human body, which he called animal magnetism. In 1778 he went to Paris, where he created a great sensation. He refused an annual pension of 20,000 livres to reveal his secret; but in 1785 a commission of physicians and scientists reported on him unfavorably. He fell into disrepute, and after a visit to England spent the rest of his life in obscurity at Meersburg in Switzerland. Died, 1815.

Metastasio (mā'täs-tä'zyō), Pietro Bonaventura, Italian poet, whose real name was Trapassi, was born in Rome, 1698. His tragedy of Giustino was produced when he was only fourteen. In 1724 he published one of his most celebrated dramas, La Didone, which, with Il Catone and Il Siroe, conferred on the poet a European name. In 1730 he accepted the post of poet laureate to the imperial court of Vienna. During his sojourn in Vienna he composed his Giuseppe Riconosciuto, Il Demofoonte, and the Attilio Regolo, his masterpiece. Died at Vienna, 1782.

Metchnikoff (mech'ni-kŏf), Illya, Russian physiologist and cytologist, was born at Livanovka, Russia, 1845. He studied at Kharkov, and afterward at Giessen and at Munich. He became chief assistant to Pasteur in 1892, and, at the latter's death in 1895, succeeded him as director of the Pasteur Institute at Paris. He is the author of The Nature of Man; Immunity in Infective Diseases; The Prolongation of Human Life; Optimistic Essays, etc. Died, 1916.

Metternich (met'ĕr-nix), Clemens Wenzel, Prince von, Austrian diplomat and statesman, was born in Coblentz, 1773. After a distinguished diplomatic career he became foreign minister of the empire in 1809. This high office he held with consummate ability for a period of thirty years, exercising, almost without control, the highest authority in Austria. Died, 1859.

Meyer, Adolf, pathologist, alienist, was born in Niederweningen, near Zürich, Switzerland, 1866. LL.D., Glasgow, 1901. He came to the United States in 1892, became a fellow and later docent in neurology, University of Chicago, 1892-95. He is now director of pathology, New York state hospitals; professor of psychiatry, Cornell Medical College, and has been an extensive contributor on neurology, pathology, psychiatry, etc.

Meyer, George von Lengerke, American diplomat and cabinet officer, was born in Boston, Mass., 1858. He was graduated at Harvard, 1879, and then engaged in business as merchant and trustee of Provident Institution for Savings. He was United States ambassador to Italy, 1900-05; ambassador to Russia, 1905-07; postmaster-general, 1907-09; secretary of the navy under President Taft, 1909-13. Died, 1918.

Meyerbeer, Giacomo, German composer, was born in Berlin, 1791. He began to study dramatic composition under Bernhard Anselm Weber; and in 1806 entered the school of Vogler at Darmstadt, where he formed an intimate friendship with Carl Maria von Weber. He subsequently composed an opera, Jepthah's Vow, produced at Munich in 1812. His subsequent works include: Romilda e Constanza; L'esule di Granata; Il Crociato in Egitto; Robert le Diable; Les Huguenots, in which he reached the climax of his fame; Le Prophète; Pierre le Grand; Dinorah. Died, 1864.

Michelangelo Buonarotti, (mē'kel-än'je-lō bwo'när-rō'tē), in an age when Christian art had reached its zenith, stood almost unrivaled as a painter, sculptor and architect. He was born in 1475 at Chiusi, in Italy. He learned the rudiments of painting from Bertoldo, a pupil of Domenico Ghirlandaio, and having been admitted as a student into the school which was established by Lorenzo the Magnificent for the study of ancient art, in connection with the collections of staturary, in the Medicean Gardens, he attracted the attention of Lorenzo by the artistic skill with which he had restored the mutilated head of a laughing faun, and was received into the palace of the Medici, where he spent several years.

Pope Julius II. called him to Rome, and commissioned him to make his monument, which was to be erected within St. Peters'. Although this work was never completed on the scale on which it had been designed, and was ultimately erected in the Church of St. Pietro ad Vincula, it is a magnificent composition, and is memorable for having given occasion to the reconstruction of St. Peter's on its present sublime plan, in order the better to adapt it to the colossal dimensions of the proposed monument.

The pope insisted upon Michelangelo painting with his own hand the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel, and he began in 1508 and completed within less than two years his task, which proved one of the most marvelous of his works. The subjects of these cartoons are taken from the book of Genesis, while between these and the representations of the persons of the Savior's genealogy are colossal figures of prophets and sibyls.

His great picture of the Last Judgment was painted for the altar of the Sistine Chapel. This immense fresco, nearly 70 feet in height, which was completed in 1541, was regarded by contemporary critics as having surpassed all his other works. After its completion Michelangelo turned to the perfecting of St. Peter's, which, by the touch of his genius, was converted from a mere Saracenic hall into the most superb model of a Christian church. He refused all remuneration for his labor, which he regarded as a service for the glory of God. Michelangelo died in 1563 in Rome, but his remains were removed to Florence.

References.—The Life of Michelangelo, by J. A. Symonds; Sonnets of Michelangelo and Campanella, by J. A. Symonds; Life and Work of Michelangelo Buonarroti, by C. Heath Wilson; Life of Michel Angelo Buonarroti, by John Harford; Illustrations, Architectural and Pictorial, of the Genius of Michel Angelo, by Canina, C. R. Cockerell, and John Hartford.

Michelet (mēsh'lĕ'), Jules, French historian, was born in Paris, 1798. In 1843-46 he became widely known, not only in his own country, but also in England, by his attacks upon the Jesuits in his three works: The Jesuits; Priests, Women, and Families, and The People. He was the writer of many other works, several of them of considerable interest. Died, 1874.

Michelson (mī'kel-sun), Albert Abraham, scientist, educator, was born at Strelno, Germany, 1852. He was graduated at the United States naval academy, 1873; was midshipman of United States navy, 1873; instructor of physics and chemistry, United States naval academy, 1875-79; Sc.D., University of Cambridge, 1890; LL.D., Yale, 1901; University of Pennsylvania, 1906. He was professor of physics at the Case school, Cleveland, Ohio, 1883-89, Clark University, 1889-92, and professor and head of the department of physics, University of Chicago, beginning 1892. Was awarded the Nobel prize for physics ($40,000) by the Swedish academy of sciences, 1907. Died, 1931.

Mifflin, Thomas, American general and statesman, was born in Philadelphia, 1744; was originally a merchant of his native city. He was elected to the continental congress of 1774, joined the revolutionary forces, and rose to be major-general in 1777, but was removed for his connection with the Conway cabal, 1778. In 1782 he was sent to the federal congress, and in 1783 became its president; governor of Pennsylvania, 1790-99. Died, 1800.

Milburn, John George, American lawyer, was born near Sunderland, England, 1851. Was admitted to the bar, 1374, and practiced in Buffalo. Member of the firm of Carter, Ledyard & Milburn since 1904. He was president of the Pan-American exposition, 1901. He was a trustee of the New York life insurance company and member of the board of commissioners of statutory consolidation.

Miles, Nelson Appleton, American general, was born in Westminster, Mass., 1839. At the outbreak of the Civil War he was engaged in mercantile pursuits in Boston, Mass.; entered the service as first lieutenant of the 22d Massachusetts regiment in 1861. In 1862 he was commissioned colonel of the 61st New York regiment, which he led at Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, where he was severely wounded. He was promoted brigadier-general, 1864, and brevetted major-general for gallantry at Ream's station in December, 1864. At the close of the war he was commissioned colonel of the 40th United States infantry. He was promoted brigadier-general in 1880; major-general in 1890; and succeeded Lieutenant-General John M. Schofield as commander of the army in 1895. On the reorganization of the army in 1901, the grade of lieutenant-general was revived and he was promoted to it. Retired 1903. Died, 1925.

Mill, James, British historian and political economist, was born near Montrose, Scotland, 1773. He studied at the University of Edinburgh, where he distinguished himself in Greek and in moral and metaphysical philosophy. He wrote much of standard value, including History of British India; Liberty of the Press; Law of Nations; Elements of Political Economy; and Analysis of the Phenomena of the Human Mind. Died, 1836.

Mill, John Stuart, English philosopher and economist, son of the preceding, was born in 1806. He was educated at home by his father. In 1820 he went to France, where he made himself master of the French language and occasionally attended public lectures on science. In 1823 he entered the India house as a clerk in the examiner's office, where his father was assistant examiner. His first publication consisted of articles in the Westminster Review. He established his reputation, in 1843, by the publication of A System of Logic, Ratiocinative and Inductive, a work the success of which paved the way for The Principles of Political Economy. He was a member of parliament, 1865-68. Died, 1873.

Millais (mi-lā'), Sir John Everett, English painter, was born of Jersey parentage, at Southampton, 1829. He studied at the royal academy, and at seventeen exhibited a notable historical work. He then early associated with Rossetti and Hanolm Hunt, and remained for over twenty years under their influence. His chief subsequent work, in which technical interest predominates, was mostly portraiture, including Gladstone and Beaconsfield. He was made R. A. in 1863, a baronet in 1885, and became president of the royal academy in 1896. Died, 1896.

Millay, Edna St. Vincent, was born at Rockland, Maine in 1892. She was graduated from Vassar College in 1917 and since then has lived in New York City. Probably her greatest poem and one of the most remarkable of modern times is "Renascence," written when she was but nineteen years old. She has published two volumes of poetry, Figs from Thistles and Second April, and a poetic play, Aria de Capo, first performed by the Provincetown Players in New York City.

Miller, Hugh, Scottish geologist, was born at Cromarty, 1802. In 1829 he published Poems Written in the Leisure Hours of a Journeyman Mason, followed by Scenes and Legends of the North of Scotland, in 1835. His editorial labors, during the heat of the religious disruption struggle were immense, and, worn out by overwork, he shot himself dead in 1856.

Miller, Joaquin, pen-name of Cincinnatus Heine Miller, American poet. He was born in Indiana, 1841, became a miner in California, fought in the Indian wars, was an express messenger, practiced law in Oregon, edited a paper suppressed for disloyalty, in 1866-70 was a county judge in Oregon, was a Washington journalist, and in 1887 settled in California as a fruit-grower. His works include: Songs of the Sierras; Songs of the Sunlands; Songs of Italy; Songs of the Mexican Seas; '49 or the Goldseekers of the Sierras. Died, 1913.

Millet (mē'le'), Jean Francois, French painter, was born in the village of Gruchy, France, 1814. He first worked as a farm laborer, but his taste for painting was so evident that he was sent to study with Mouchel, a painter in Cherbourg. He painted small pictures, portraits and signboards in his first efforts to support himself. Some of his best known works are: The Gleaners; Waiting; The Angelus; The Man With the Hoe. His most celebrated picture, The Angelus, sold for over $100,000. He died in 1875 at Barbizon, which, under his influence, had become an artist colony.

Millikan, Robert Andrews, American physicist, was born at Morrison, Illinois, in 1868. He studied at Oberlin College, and at Columbia, Berlin and Gottingen universities. He was on the faculty of the University of Chicago from 1896 to 1921, when he was appointed director of the laboratory of physics at the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena. Through his investigations, the electrical theory of atoms has been put on a sound experimental basis. He was awarded the Nobel prize for physics in 1923.

Mills, Clarke, American sculptor, was born in Onondaga county, New York, 1815. In 1850 he completed a model of an equestrian statue of Jackson, for Lafayette square, Washington. He produced a perfect cast in 1852, and the statue was set up the following year. He made also the equestrian statue of Washington, dedicated in Washington on February 22, 1860, and the colossal statue of Liberty, from a design by Crawford, which crowns the dome of the capitol, finished in 1863. He died at Washington, D. C., 1883.

Mills, Roger Quarles, American lawyer, ex-United States senator, was born in Todd county, Ky., 1832; was admitted to the bar at twenty years of age. He was elected to the Texas house of representatives, 1859. After the fall of General James Deshler, he took command of the brigade at the battles of Missionary Ridge, 1863; New Hope church, and Atlanta, 1864, where he was twice wounded. He was a member of congress, 1873-92; United States senator, 1892-93, and 1893-99, and was author of the Mills' tariff bill. Died, 1911.

Mills, William Lennox, bishop of Ontario since 1901, was born at Woodstock, Ontario, and was graduated at the Western University, London, 1872; D.C.L., LL.D., Queen's University, Kingston; rector of the crown rectory of St. John's, province of Quebec, 1875; rector of Trinity church, Montreal, 1882; archdeacon of St. Andrew's, diocese of Montreal, 1896; bishop coadjutor of Ontario, with title of bishop of Kingston, 1900.

Milman, Henry Hart, poet and church historian, was born in London, 1791. He was educated at Greenwich, Eton, and Brasenose College, Oxford, where in 1812 he won the Newdigate prize with his Belvidere Apollo, best of Oxford prize poems; 1849, dean of St. Paul's. His Poems an Dramatic Works comprise Fazio, a Tragedy; Samor; and—his masterpiece—The History of Latin Christianity to the Pontificate of Nicholas V. Died, 1868.

Miltiades (mil-tī'a-dēz), Athenian general, "tyrant of the Chersonese," yet, as Byron sings, "freedom's best and bravest friend," was born about 540 B. C. He particularly distinguished himself by the great victory which he gained at Marathon with a small body of Athenians and 1,000 Plateans, 490 B. C., over the Persians. He failed in an expedition against Paros, was fined fifty talents, which he was unable to pay, and consequently died in prison, 489 B. C.

Milton, John, English poet, was born in London 1608. He took his degree of M.A. at Cambridge, and, having relinquished the idea of following divinity or law, he left in 1632, and went to live at his father's house at Horton, in Buckinghamshire. There, he lived five years, reading the Greek and Latin poets, and composing Comus, Lycidas, Arcades, L'Allegro, and Il Penseroso. On the death of his mother, in 1637, he went abroad, visiting the chief Italian cities, and making the acquaintance of Grotius and Galileo.

In 1641 he engaged in the controversies of the times, and in the course of that and the following year he issued the treatise Of Reformation; The Reason of Church Government Urged against Prelacy; Prelatical Episcopacy; and An Apology for Smectymnuus. After the execution of Charles he was appointed Latin secretary to the council of state. In his new position his pen was as terrible as Cromwell's sword. In Eikonoklastes, he made a savage but effective reply to the famous Eikon Basilike; and in his Pro Populo Anglicano Defensio he assailed his opponent, Claude de Saumaire, better known as Salmasius, with such a storm of eloquence and abuse, that the latter, who died in Spain 1653, is believed to have lost his life through chagrin. Milton at least flattered himself with having "killed his man."

In 1643 he married Mary Powell, who left him in a few weeks, which led to his writing four treatises on divorce, although he afterward became reconciled to her. His second wife, whom he married in 1656, was a daughter of Captain Woodcock, of Hackney. She died, 1658, and her husband has enshrined her memory in an exquisitely pure and tender sonnet.

Unceasing study had affected his eyesight, and about 1654 Milton became totally blind. After the restoration, he retired from affairs; he was obnoxious to the reigning power, and it is said that he was once in custody of the sergeant-at-arms. On the publication of the Act of Oblivion, he married his third wife, Elizabeth Minshull, and shortly after removed to a house in Artillery Walk, London, where he was busy with Paradise Lost.

This great poem was originally planned as a mystery, then some idea of treating it as a drama haunted the author's mind; finally however, he resolved to write an epic poem on the Fall of Man. The poem was published in 1667. He received five pounds from his publisher, and a promise of five pounds more when 1,300 copies should have been sold. In 1670 he published his History of England. Next year he printed Paradise Regained and Samson Agonistes. He died 1674, and was buried in St. Giles Church, London.

References.—Masson's Life of Milton and his edition of the Poems; also the Life by Mark Pattison; concordance to the Poems by Dr. Bradshaw; Trent's A Short Study; and Raleigh's Study.

Mirabeau (mē'rà'bō'), Gabriel Honora Riquetti, Comte de, French orator, was born at Bignon, near Nemours, 1749. He wrote many effective political pamphlets, particularly against the financial administration of Calonne. When the states-general was convened, he sought to be elected a representative of the nobles of Provence, but was rejected, and left them with the threat that, like Marius, he would overthrow the aristocracy. To suppress insurrection, he effected in 1789 the institution of the national guard. In 1790 he was elected president of the club of the Jacobins, and, in 1791, of the national assembly. Both in the club and in the assembly he displayed great boldness and energy; but soon after his appointment as president of the latter he died, 1791.

Mitchell, Donald Grant, "Ik Marvel," American novelist and essayist, was born at Norwich, Conn., 1822. He was graduated at Yale College, and pursued law studies in New York City. In 1853 he was appointed United States consul at Venice, and in 1858 became editor of the Atlantic Monthly. His best known works are: Dream Life; Reveries of a Bachelor; My Farm at Edgewood; English Lands, Letters, and Kings; and American Lands and Letters. Died, 1908.

Mitchell, John, American labor leader, was born at Braidwood, Ill., 1870. He began work in coal mines, 1882, and later, as worker or labor leader, was identified with mines and mining. His official connection with the United Mine Workers of America began in 1895, and from 1899 to 1908 he served as president of that organization. He directed the strikes of the anthracite miners in 1900 and 1902, and was vice-president of the American Federation of Labor in 1898, and reelected in 1900. He was the author of a book, Organized Labor, Its Problems, Purposes. Died, 1919.

Mitchell, Maria, American astronomer, was born at Nantucket, Mass., 1818. In 1847 she was awarded a gold medal by the king of Denmark for the discovery of a comet. She was employed in observations connected with the coast survey, and in compiling the nautical almanacs. In 1865 she became professor of astronomy at Vassar College, and held that position until the year before her death at Lynn, Mass., 1889.

Mitchell, Silas Weir, American physician, poet and novelist, was born at Philadelphia, Pa., 1830. He studied at the University of Pennsylvania, was graduated at Jefferson Medical College, 1850; LL.D., Harvard, Edinburgh, Princeton. He established a practice in Philadelphia, became prominent as a physiologist and especially as neurologist, and stood at the head of the profession in that department of medical science. Author: Treatise on Neurology; Serpent Poisons; Poems; Hephzibah Guinnes; Adventures of Francois; The Autobiography of a Quack. Died, 1914.

Mitford, Mary Russell, English author, was born at Alresford, Hants, 1786. She was sent to school in Chelsea, and her first volume of poems appeared in 1810, and was followed by two more in 1811-12. Her charming sketches of country manners scenery, and character were rejected by several editors, but at length found a place in the London Magazine, and were collected as Our Village in 5 volumes. She died in 1855 at Swallowfield.

Mithridates (mith'ri dā'tēz), The Great, 132-63 B. C., King of Pontus, Armenia, and Parthia. He became king when about 13 years old. He conquered the Roman provinces in Asia Minor, sent armies against the Greeks, but finally made a treaty with Sulla. In desperation he committed suicide. Though a despot he favored culture and art.

Mix, Tom, movie actor, is a screen star of high order. Brought up on the western plains, his best work is in cowboy roles. He was discovered by Otis Turner, and sprang rapidly into prominence.

Modjeska (mo-jes'kà), Helena, (Mme. Chlapowski, née Opido), actress, was born in Cracow, Poland, 1844. She made her début in Bochnia, Poland, 1861; soon became leading actress in her native country; married G. O. Modjeska in 1860, and, in 1868, Charles Bozenta Chlapowski, compatriot. Her first appearance in English was at San Francisco, 1877, in Adrienne Lecouvreur. She returned here after two London engagements, and played leading Shakespearean parts, Camille, Mary Stuart, etc. She retired from the stage in 1905 and died, 1909.

Mohammed, (mō-ham'ed), or Mahomet, the founder of the Mussulman religion, was born in Mecca in 570 or 571, died in Medina, 632. His family (Hashem), of the distinguished tribe of Koreish, were hereditary guardians of the Caaba, yet his parents were poor. His father Abdallah, a merchant, died two months after his birth. At the age of six years he lost his mother, and was carried to his grandfather Abd-el-Mottalib. Two years later he lost also his grandfather, and was then adopted by his uncle, Abu Taleb, who held the key of the Caaba.

With his uncle, young Mohammed (in his ninth or twelfth year) made journeys through Syria and other countries, and became acquainted with a Christian monk (probably Nestorian), who predicted his greatness. In his twenty-fifth year he was a shepherd near Mecca, and then joined the business of a linen trader named Saib. At Hajasha, a market, six days' journey south of Mecca, Mohammed entered the service of a rich widow named Khadijah, whom he finally married, although she was sixteen years his senior. They had four daughters and two sons; both sons died young.

From his thirtieth to his fortieth year Mohammed frequently resorted to a solitary cave of Mt. Hara for religious contemplation. There, amid spasmodic convulsions, he had his first vision, in which the angel Gabriel commanded him to recite what he (the angel) said. The revelations continued henceforth to the end of his life, and were dictated by Mohammed to several secretaries, and after his death collected.

His wife was his first convert. During the first three years of his mission only his relatives and friends acknowledged him as a prophet. In the fourth or fifth year he proclaimed himself a prophet, but met only with imprecations. To protect him he was removed by his uncle Abu Taleb to a fortified castle outside of Mecca, where he remained three years. The Koreishites outlawed him and his disciples. When the interdict was removed he returned to Mecca. After another brief expulsion from Mecca he reported his celebrated journey to heaven.

Some pilgrims from Yathreb were converted in 621, and the new faith was established on a firm basis. The era of the Moslems begins with the flight of the prophet, the Hegira. The name of Yathreb was changed into Medinet en-Nebi, "the city of the prophet" (Medina). During the first year of the Hegira he built a mosque at Medina, and proclaimed war against the unbelievers. In an engagement at Bedr between 314 Moslems and 600 Meccans, under the chief of Mecca, the Moslems were victors. In the following years Mohammed was defeated by the Koreishites in the battle of Mt. Ohod, and besieged for a time in Medina. Failing to gain admittance into Mecca with his followers as pilgrims, he led them against several Jewish tribes, with some success. He now sent written demands to Chosroes II. of Persia, the Abyssinian king, the Byzantine emperor Heraclius, the governor of Egypt, and the chiefs of several Arab tribes. He punished the Meccans, who had broken faith with him and compelled them to acknowledge him as a sovereign and a prophet. The possession of Mecca decided the victory of the new religion in Arabia, and the subjection of a majority of the inhabitants of Arabia to Mohammed's rule and religion became complete.

In 631 he proclaimed a holy war against the Byzantine empire, which proved a complete failure. In the following year Mohammed made his last pilgrimage to Mecca at the head of at least 40,000 pilgrims. Three months after his return to Medina he was taken seriously ill. He himself announced in the mosque the approach of his death, and he expired in the arms of Ayesha, his favorite wife. His only surviving child was Fatima, the wife of Ali, and the ancestress of all the sherifs or nobles of the Mohammedan world. Mohammed possessed natural eloquence, a keen intellect, an overwhelming fluency and great courage.

References.—Muir's Life of Mahomet, and Mahomet and Islam; Ameer Ali's The Life and Teachings of Mohammed; and Margoliouth's Mohammed and the Rise of Islam.

Moliere (mo-lyār), the assumed name of Jean Baptiste Poquelin, French dramatist, was born at Paris in 1622. His father was a tradesman connected with the court, and he received a good education. He studied law but gave it up for the career of an actor, assuming the name of Molière.

After gaining great success in the provinces he settled in Paris in 1658, having previously produced his two comedies L'Étourdi and Le Depit Amoureux. In the following year his reputation was greatly advanced by the production of the Precieuses Ridicules, a delicate satire on the prevailing affectation of the character of bel esprit, on the pedantry of learned females, and on affectation in language, thoughts and dress. It produced a general reform when it was brought forward in Paris. Continuing to produce new plays and performing the chief comic parts himself he became a great favorite both with the court and the people, though his enemies, rival actors and authors, were numerous. Louis XIV. was so well pleased with the performances of Molière's company that he made it specially the royal company, and gave its director a pension.

In 1662 Moliere made an ill-assorted marriage with Armande Béjart, upward of twenty years younger than himself, a union that embittered the latter part of his life. Among his works, other than those mentioned, may be noted: L'Ecole des Maris, L'Ecole des Femmes, Le Mariage Force, Don Juan, Le Misanthrope, Le Medecin Malgre lui, Le Tartuffe, L'Avare, George Dandin, Les Fourberies de Scapin, Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme, and Le Malade Imaginaire.

Moliere died in 1673 of an apoplectic stroke, a few hours after playing in Le Malade Imaginaire. As a player he was unsurpassed in high comic parts; and in the literature of comedy he bears the greatest name among the moderns, after Shakespeare. He borrowed freely from Latin, Spanish and Italian writers, but whatever materials he appropriated he so treated them as to make the result entirely his own and original. The archbishop of Paris at first refused him burial as being an actor and a reviler of the clergy; but the king himself insisted on it.

References.—Life by Despois and Mesnard prefixed to his works; and also those of Taschereau, Trollope, and Hatton.

Moltke (mōlt'kĕ), Hellmuth Karl Bernhard, Count von, chief marshal of the German empire, was born in Parchim, in Mecklenburg, 1800. He was graduated from the military academy at Copenhagen, 1818, and entered the Prussian service in 1822. He became lieutenant-general of the Prussian army in 1859, and sketched the plans of the campaigns against Denmark, 1864, and Austria, 1866. He was the commander-in-chief in the Franco-German war, 1870-71, and to his brilliant strategy are ascribed the splendid victories of the German arms. He was generally regarded as the first strategist of his day; was created a count in 1870, and chief marshal of the German empire in 1871. Died at Berlin, 1891.

Mommsen (mōm'zen), Theodor, German historian, was born at Garding in Sleswick, 1817, son of a pastor. In 1852 he became professor of Roman law at Zürich, in 1854 at Breslau, and in 1858 of ancient history at Berlin. He edited the monumental Corpus Inscriptionum Latinarum, helped to edit the Monumenta Germaniae Historica, and from 1873 to 1895 was secretary of the academy of science. His fine library was burned in 1880. His greatest work, the History of Rome, was followed by The Roman Provinces. Died, 1903.

Monet, Claude, French painter, was born in Paris, 1840. He did little at school but draw in the margins of his books. At twenty he joined the regiment of the Chasseurs d'Afrique and spent two years in the desert, till he was sent home with fever. He entered the studio of the classical painter Gleyre, but soon left and associated with "impressionists," painters who were striving to catch fleeting aspects rather than to record in detail. He became a "plein air" painter, producing remarkable effects of light in his works, and a recognized leader of the Impressionistic School. Among his works are views of cathedrals (Rouen under different lights), "Le Bassin des Nympheas," Saule Pleureur," and a view of the Seine at Giverny. Died, 1926.

Money, Hernando De Soto, lawyer, ex-United States senator, was born in Holmes county, Miss., 1839. He was educated at the University of Mississippi, Oxford, Miss.; served in the confederate army from the beginning of the war until 1864. In 1897 was appointed to the United States senate to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Hon. J. Z. George. In 1898 he was elected to fill out the unexpired term ending 1899, and was then elected to succeed himself, 1899-1911. Died, 1912.

Monge (mōnzh), Gaspard, French mathematician and physicist, was born at Beaune, 1746. After he had helped to found the Ecole Polytechnique, he was sent by the directory to Italy. Here he formed a close friendship with Bonaparte, followed him to Egypt, and was made successively professor in the Ecole Polytechnique, a senator and count of Pelusium. He died at Paris, 1818.

Monk, George, duke of Albemarle, English general, was born in County Devon, 1608. After a brief service in Holland he fought at first on the side of Charles I. during the English civil war; then, changing to the other side, he commanded a republican army in Ireland, 1646-50, and in 1651 reduced Scotland to submission to Cromwell. After the death of the protector in 1658, Monk proclaimed the former's son, Richard Cromwell, his successor, and himself retained command of the army in Scotland. With that army, in 1660, he marched upon London, and declared for the restoration of Charles II. After gaining a great victory at sea over the Dutch in 1666, Monk died in 1670.

Monmouth, James Fitzroy, Duke of, English general, was born at Rotterdam, 1649. He was a natural son of Charles II. and Lucy Walters, and as such was loaded with rank and honors. In time he became the idol of the English nonconformists. In 1684 he went to Antwerp, and remained abroad until the death of the king, when he resolved to embark for England. He landed, in 1685, with a small force, at Lyme-Regis, and issued a manifesto declaring James to be a murderer and usurper, and asserting his own legitimacy and right by blood to be king of England. On the fifth day, however, his force consisted only of a rabble of some 2,000 rudely armed peasants and farmers. He was completely defeated at the battle of Sedgemoor, the last great fight on English soil, was taken prisoner, and, on July 15, 1685, was brought to the scaffold and beheaded on Tower hill.

Monroe, James, fifth president of the United States, was born in Westmoreland county, Va., 1758. He was graduated at William and Mary College, served in the revolutionary army, was present at several battles, and in 1783 entered the general congress as a delegate from his native state. During the years 1799-1802, he filled the office of governor of Virginia. In 1802, as the associate of Livingston, he was dispatched on a special mission to negotiate for the purchase of Louisiana. In 1803, in England, and in 1805, in Spain, he performed special diplomatic services for his country. In 1816 he was elected president of the United States by the republican (democratic) party, and made himself very popular. His most noteworthy acts, perhaps, were the recognition of the independence of Mexico and the South American republics, and the promulgation of what has since been called the "Monroe doctrine." After being twice president, he was justice of the peace, a visitor of the University of Virginia, and member of a state convention. He died in 1831—like his predecessors, Adams and Jefferson—on the 4th of July.

Montagu, Lady Mary Wortley, English beauty, wit and writer, was born at Thoresby, in Nottinghamshire, about 1689, eldest daughter of Evelyn Pierrepont, duke of Kingston. She was carefully educated, and manifested precocious talents. Pope was among her friends, but he at length quarreled with and libeled her. In 1739 her declining health induced her to settle on the continent, whence, however, she returned in 1761. She died in the following year. Her Letters place her at the head of feminine epistolary writers in Great Britain, and leave her few rivals in other countries.

Montaigne (mon-tān' Fr. pron. mon-tan-y'), Michel Eyquem de, famous French essayist, was born in 1533 at the castle of Montaigne, in Périgord. He learned Latin conversationally before he could speak French, and Greek was also an early acquisition. At the age of six he became a pupil at the Collége de Guienne at Bordeaux, and at thirteen he began to study law. Little is known of his youth and early manhood.

He was a parliamentary counsellor from 1554 till 1567; he seems to have seen some military service in 1556; he married the daughter of a fellow counsellor; and at some period was appointed a gentleman of the chamber to the king. In 1571, however, he retired to his ancestral chateau and devoted himself to peaceful study and meditation. In 1580 he published the first two books of his Essais, and immediately afterward set out on a journey through Germany, Switzerland and Italy to restore his health, which had been shattered by the attacks of a hereditary disease.

In 1582 and 1584 he was chosen mayor of Bordeaux. In 1588 he republished his Essais, with the addition of a third book. After a last visit to Paris (in the course of which he was thrown into the Bastille for a short time by the Leaguers) Montaigne seems to have dwelt quietly in his chateau. He died of quinsy in 1592.

Montaigne's Essais have at all times been one of the most popular books in the French language. They embrace an extraordinary variety of topics, which are touched upon in a lively entertaining manner, with all the raciness of strong native good sense, careless of system or regularity. Sentences and anecdotes from the ancients are interspersed with his own remarks and opinions, and with stories of himself in a pleasant strain of egotism, and with an occasional license, to which severer moralists can with some difficulty reconcile themselves.

His Voyages, a diary of his journeys in 1580-82 were published in 1774.

References.—See Life, by Alphonse Grun and Bonnefon; and Dowden's Montaigne.

Montalembert (mōn'tà'lăn'bâr'), Charles Forbes, Comte de, French historian, orator and publicist, was born in London, 1810, his mother being a Scotchwoman. He became a peer of France on the death of his father. In 1858 he published a pamphlet entitled, Un Dèbat sur l'Inde, eulogizing English institutions, and depreciating those then existing in France. For this pamphlet he was summoned before the bar of the correctional police, and was sentenced to imprisonment for six months, and to pay a fine of 3,000 francs; and, though this penalty was immediately remitted by the emperor, Montalembert appealed against the decision of the court, was again condemned, and once more pardoned, very much to his own disgust. He died at Paris, 1870.

Montcalm (mont-kăm'), Louis Joseph St. Veran, Marquis de, commander-in-chief of the French troops in Canada, 1756-59, was born near Nimes, France, 1712. He captured Fort Ontario at Oswego, 1756; Fort William Henry in 1757; repulsed the British under Abercrombie at Ticonderoga in 1758; repelled Wolfe's attack on Quebec, 1759; and was defeated and mortally wounded in the battle of Quebec, September 13 of the same year.

Montesquieu (mon'tes-ku'; Fr. mon'tes'ke-u) Charles de Secondat, Baron de la Brede et de, French philosophical writer was born in the Chateau de la Bréde, near Bordeaux, 1689. In 1716 he became president of the Parlement of Bordeaux. His first published work, the Lettres Persanes, was a daring and subtle satire on the follies of the day, disguised in the form of letters from a Persian noble.

He gave up his president's office in 1726, and then visited Germany, Hungary, Italy, Holland and England. In England he stayed for eighteen months, and imbibed a deep admiration for its social and political institutions. He returned to France in 1731, and in 1734 he published his Considerations sur les Causes de la Grandeur et la Decadence des Romains. In 1748, L'Esprit des Lois, the result of twenty years of labor, was published, and at once placed its author among the greatest writers of his country. Among his lesser works are Dialogue de Sylla et d'Eucrate; Le Voyage de Paphos; Essai sur le Gout (unfinished); Arsace et Ismenie (probably a work of his youth); and Lettres Familieres. He died 1755.

References.—Ilbert's Montesquieu (Romances Lecture, 1904), and Vian's Hist. de Montesquieu, sa Vie et ses Wuvres; Lowell's Eve of the French Revolution.

Montessori, Maria, Italian educator, was born in 1870. She was so successful in her teaching of feeble-minded children that she determined to apply the same method to the education of normal children. The central idea of her system is "self education," allowing the child to choose those activities in which he is most interested. The system is widely used throughout the United States.

Montfort, Simon de, English general and statesman, was born in France about 1208, son of a French count. He went to England in 1230. He here attached himself to Henry III., married the king's sister, and was sent to govern Gascony in 1248. He returned in 1253, and passed over to the side of the barons, whom he ultimately led in the struggle against the king. He sketched a constitution for the country, and summoned the most representative parliament that had yet met, but as he aimed at the welfare not of the barons only, but of the common people as well, the barons began to distrust him. He was slain at Evesham, 1265.

Montgolfier (mōn'gōl'fyā'), Jacques Etienne, and Joseph Michel, two brothers, distinguished as the inventors of balloons, were the sons of a celebrated paper manufacturer at Annonay, France. The former was born in 1745, and the latter in 1740. Joseph was a man of much genius and little education; but the two brothers were fitted to supplement each other's deficiencies, and together they made many discoveries, and were both received as members of the French academy. Joseph invented the hydraulic screw, the calorimeter, etc., and in the latter part of his life filled a post in the department of arts and manufactures. He died at Paris in 1810, eleven years after his brother.

Montgomery, James, British poet, was born in Scotland, 1771. He was intended for a Moravian preacher, but, showing little aptitude, became a shop boy. In 1797 he published a small volume of poems, Prison Amusements, followed by The Wanderer of Switzerland. Died, 1854.

Montgomery, Richard, American general, was born in Ireland, 1736. In 1772 he resigned his commission in the British service, and settled in Dutchess county, N. Y., representing it in the continental congress, 1775. As brigadier in the colonial army he took Montreal, and was killed in the assault on Quebec, December, 1775.

Moody, Dwight Lyman, American preacher and revivalist, was born in Massachusetts, 1837. He renounced Unitarianism, became a Congregationalist, served during the Civil War on the Christian commission, and from 1865 entirely abandoned business and devoted himself to religious work in Chicago and elsewhere. His church and schoolhouse at Chicago having burned down in 1871, he went to England to raise funds for rebuilding them, and was successful in his object. He established a school for Christian workers at Northfield, Mass., and a Bible institute at Chicago. Died, 1899.

Moody, William Vaughn, American poet and playwright, was born at Spencer, Indiana, in 1869. He was educated at Harvard, and taught English there in 1894-5, leaving to become instructor and later assistant professor in the University of Chicago. The Fire Bringer, a lyrical drama, The Masque of Judgment, and Poems place him among the foremost American poets. The Great Divide, 1907, is among the best American plays. Moody died in 1910.

Moore, George Foot, American scholar and educator, professor in Harvard University since 1902, was born at West Chester, Pa., 1851. He was graduated at Yale College, 1872; D.D., 1897; Union theological seminary, N. Y.; Tübingen, LL.D., Western Reserve, 1903; Harvard, 1906. Author: The Book of Judges in Hebrew, Index to the Journal of the American Oriental Society. He was appointed Roosevelt lecturer at Berlin University, 1909.

Moore, Sir John, British general, was born in Glasgow, Scotland, 1761. He served in the British army during the American war; became a member of parliament in 1784; served in Corsica, 1793-94. In 1798 he was made major-general. On his return from an expedition in aid of Sweden, he was sent to Portugal to command an army to coöperate with the Spaniards, 1808. He was obliged to retreat from Salamanca to the sea, won the victory of Corunna in 1809, but fell in the battle.

Moore, John Bassett, American publicist, was born in Smyrna, Del., 1860. He was graduated at the University of Virginia, 1880; LL.D., Yale, 1901. He studied law at Wilmington, Del., and in 1885, was appointed law clerk in the state department at Washington, D. C. In 1886 he became third assistant secretary of state, and was retained in that position until he resigned, 1891, to become professor of international law and diplomacy at Columbia University. In 1913, appointed counsellor of the department of state by President Wilson. He is an authority on international law. Author: Report of Extra-territorial Crime; Report on Extradition; Extradition and Interstate Rendition.

Moore, Thomas, Irish poet, was born in 1779. He was graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, 1798, and in 1799 went to London to study law, taking with him a translation of the Odes of Anacreon which he published in 1800. In 1801 he published The Poetical Werks of the Late Thomas Little, Esq., a pseudonym suggested by his diminutive stature. His Irish Melodies have enjoyed a popularity surpassing that of any similar poems in the language. In 1817 he completed Lalla Rookh, the most elaborate of his works. His most important prose work was his Notices of the Life of Lord Byron. His remaining works comprise: The Summer Fête, a poem; Memoirs of Lord Fitzgerald. Died, 1852.

Moran, Thomas, American artist, was born at Bolton, in Lancashire, England, 1837. His early life was spent at Philadelphia, where he learned engraving. He then studied painting in England, France, and Italy. His large paintings, the Grand Canon of the Yellowstone, and the Chasm of the Colorado, were bought by congress for $20,000. His other works are mostly of the same class. Died, 1926

More, Hannah, English writer, daughter of the village schoolmaster of Stapleton, near Bristol, was born in 1745. In 1774 she was introduced to the Garricks, Johnson, Burke, Reynolds and the best literary society of London. Led by her religious views to withdraw from society, she retired, on the publication of her Sacred Dramas, to Cowslip Green near Bristol, where she did much to improve the condition of the poor, and still helped by her writings to raise the tone of English society. In 1828 she settled at Clifton, where she died in 1833.

More, Sir Thomas, English statesman, was born at London, 1478. He was educated at Oxford, and at Lincoln's Inn. In 1514 and 1515 he was sent on commercial embassies to the Netherlands, and after his return became a privy councillor. In 1521 he was knighted and made treasurer of the exchequer. In 1523 he was chosen speaker of the house of commons. He constantly refused to lend his authority to Henry VIII.'s project of divorce and second marriage. In 1534 he refused to swear allegiance to the act of succession for securing the throne to the offspring of Anne Boleyn, and was committed to the Tower. In July, 1535, he was brought to the bar of the high commission charged with traitorously attempting to deprive the king of his title as supreme head of the church, and was condemned. He was executed July 6th. He wrote Utopia, and several other works, most of them in Latin.

Moreau (mō'rō'), Jean Victor, celebrated French general, was born at Morlaix, 1763, and educated for the bar. He entered the army before he was eighteen, but was taken from it by his father. The revolution enabled him to gratify his wishes, and he made his first campaign under Dumouriez, 1792. He gained the rank of brigadier-general in 1793, and that of general of division in 1794. In the latter year he commanded the right wing of Pichegru's army, and obtained great successes in the Netherlands. Having engaged with Pichegru, Georges, and other royalists in a plot against the consular government, he was brought to trial, 1804, and sentenced to two years' imprisonment, but was allowed to come to America. Here he remained until 1813, when he was prevailed upon to join the allied sovereigns, and appear in arms against his country. He was, however, mortally wounded at the battle of Dresden, and died September 1, 1813.

Morgagni (mōr-gän'yē), Giovanni Battista, Italian anatomist, was born at Forli, Italy, 1682. He was professor at Padua from 1715, and is the reputed founder of pathological anatomy, to which his most celebrated works refer. His chief book is On the Seats and Causes of Diseases Investigated by Anatomy. He died at Padua, 1771.

Morgan, John Pierpont, American banker, financier, and art collector, was born in Hartford, Conn., 1837. He was graduated at English high school, Boston; studied at the University of Göttingen, Germany, and entered the bank of Duncan, Sherman and Company, 1857. Became a member, 1871, of the firm Drexel, Morgan and Company, now J. P. Morgan and Company, leading private bankers of the United States, with important branch houses in London and Paris. Gave site, buildings and funds amounting to about $1,500,000 to Lying-in hospital, New York, and large donations to the New York trade schools, the cathedral of St. John the Divine, Harvard Medical College, and many other institutions. He made valuable gifts to the American museum of natural history, Metropolitan museum of art, and New York public library, and owned famous collections of pictures, books, manuscripts, curios, etc. He was president of the Metropolitan museum of art, and member of many societies, clubs, etc. Died in Rome, Italy, 1913.

Morgan, John Tyler, American soldier, lawyer and statesman, was born at Athens, Tenn., 1824. He removed to Alabama in 1833; was admitted to the bar in 1845. After the Civil War he resumed practice of law at Selma, Ala.; was a presidential elector, 1876; and from 1877 to 1907 was one of the ablest members of the United States senate. He was appointed by President Harrison as arbitrator on Behring sea fisheries, 1892, and was appointed by President McKinley, in 1898, one of the commissioners to organize government in Hawaii, after passage of annexation bill. Died, 1907.

Morley, Christopher, American author and editor, was born at Haverford, Pa., in 1890. He was an undergraduate at Haverford College, and Rhodes scholar at Oxford from 1910 to 1913. He edited successively The Ladies Home Journal, The Philadelphia Public Ledger, and The New York Evening Post. He wrote essays, travel notes, poetry, short stories and novels. Among his works are Hide and Seek, Parnassus on Wheels, Chimney Smoke, Where the Blue Begins, and Thunder on the Left.

Morley, John, British statesman and writer, was born in Blackburn in 1838, and educated at Cheltenham and Oxford. He edited, among other publications, the Fortnightly Review, from 1867 to 1882; the Pall Mall Gazette, from 1880 to 1883, and Macmillan in 1883-85, and, after two unsuccessful candidatures, in 1869 and 1880, entered parliament in 1883, as member for Newcastle. From the first, he advocated home rule for Ireland, and his articles in favor of it, followed up by speeches in 1885, made him Gladstone's most conspicuous supporter. His best known books are: Edmund Burke; Critical Miscellanies; Voltaire, and an authoritative Life of Mr. Gladstone. He was created a viscount, 1908. Died, 1923.

Morrill, Justin Smith, American legislator was born in Strafford, Vt., 1810, and devoted himself to mercantile pursuits until his election to congress. He sat in the house of representatives from 1855 to 1867, and in the senate from 1867 until his death, the longest term of service up to that time. In 1861 he succeeded in securing President Lincoln's approval of a bill, previously vetoed by Buchanan, for the reëstablishment through public land grants of state colleges for the teaching especially of agriculture and the mechanic arts. By virtue of this bill there had been established up to 1899 in the various states sixty-four institutions giving instruction to 36,000 students. Senator Morrill was also the author of the famous Morrill tariff bill of 1861. He died in 1898.

Morris, Clara, American actress, was born in Toronto, Canada, 1849. She was taken to Cleveland when a child, and grew up there; became a member of the ballet in academy of music, Cleveland, 1861, and rapidly advanced to leading lady. Soon became prominent in emotional rôles and appeared as a star in the principal American theaters. Leading rôles: Camille, Alixe, Miss Multon, Mercy Merrick in The New Magdalene, Cora in L'Article 47, etc. She married Frederick C. Harriott in 1874. Author: A Silent Singer; Life on the Stage; The Trouble Woman; Life of a Star, etc. Died, 1925.

Morris, George Pope, American journalist and poet, was born in Philadelphia, 1802. He edited American Melodies, and, with N. P. Willis, The Prose and Poetry of America. His best known poem is Woodman, Spare That Tree. In 1837 he produced a drama entitled Briarcliff, which ran forty nights. Died, 1864.

Morris, Gouverneur, American statesman, was born in 1752. He became a member of the provincial congress of New York, and was one of those who drew up the state constitution in 1776. He was also a prominent member of the continental congress in 1777-80, the colleague of Robert Morris as superintendent of finance, and the organization of the bank of North America was largely due to him. In 1787 he was one of the committee to draft the federal constitution; was minister to France during the revolution, and became United States senator on his return. Died, 1816.

Morris, Robert, American financier, was born in Liverpool, England, 1734. He came to America at an early age and settled in Philadelphia, becoming a partner in the counting-house of C. Willing. Signed the declaration of independence, and greatly helped the American cause from his own purse, both during the revolution and afterward. He founded the bank of North America, was superintendent of finance from 1781 to 1784, but declined the secretaryship of the treasury. Died, 1806.

Morris, William, English poet and artist, was born near London, 1834. He was educated at Marlborough school and at Oxford. In an artistic capacity he did much to elevate the taste of the public in domestic decoration, designing wallpapers, fabrics and furniture. He published The Earthly Paradise and many other works, and rendered into English the Anglo-Saxon Beowulf, the Odyssey, Æneid, etc. He also carried on for a time the Kelmscott Press, which reprinted various choice works. His works include, besides the above: Defense of Guenevere and Other Poems; The Life and Death of Jason, etc. He died at London, 1896.

Morse, Samuel Finley Breese, American painter and inventor, was born at Charlestown, Mass., 1791. After graduating at Yale college in 1810, he studied painting under Washington Allston and Benjamin West. He is one of the best of our earlier American portrait painters, and was one of the founders and the first president of the national academy of design. In 1835 he was appointed professor of the history of art at the university of New York.

It was while returning from Europe in 1832, on board the Sully, that Morse worked out roughly a plan for employing electromagnetism in telegraphy. It was not until 1835, however, that he was able to exhibit an instrument that was found to work well. Thereafter he associated with him in his work Prof. Leonard Gale and Alfred Vail, and was assisted by the published discoveries of Prof. Joseph Henry. Credit should be given to these three men in particular, and to others for material assistance in bringing the telegraph to practical success, but Morse was the inventor in the only true meaning of the word.

In 1843, after many discouragements Congress voted $30,000 for an experimental line between Washington and Baltimore. More hardships were encountered before the line was finally completed, but at last, on May 24, 1844, the first public message was sent over the line, the now historic words, "What hath God wrought?"

Morse died 1872, in New York City, after successfully defending his rights through a long series of lawsuits and after many honors had been bestowed upon him by his own countrymen and by foreign nations. It seems not unlikely that the idea of the submarine Atlantic cable originated with Morse; at all events, he laid in New York harbor the first submarine telegraph line, in 1842. With Prof. John Draper he also took the first daguerreotype to be made in this country.

References.—Prime's Life of S. F. B. Morse; Jeans' Lives of Electricians; Hubert's Inventors; Denslow and Porter's World's Workers.

Morton, Oliver Perry, American statesman and jurist, was born in Wayne county, Ind., 1823. He was graduated at Miami University in 1843; was admitted to the bar in 1847, United States senator from Indiana, 1867-77. He declined the post of United States minister to England in 1870. In 1877 he was a member of the United States electoral commission, and died the same year.

Moscheles (mōsh'e-lās), Ignaz, German pianist and composer for the piano, was born at Prague, 1794, of Jewish parents. He made frequent tours throughout Europe from 1815; from 1844 he was a professor at the Leipzig conservatory until his death, 1870. He edited in English Schindler's Life of Beethoven, and wrote numerous concertos, sonatas, and studies for the piano.

Moses, Hebrew leader, prophet, and legislator was born in Egypt about 1600 B. C., during the time of the oppression of the Hebrews. His father, Amram, and mother, Jochebed, both of the race of Levi, were obliged to expose him in obedience to a royal edict, but placed him in a basket of bulrushes on the river border, where he was found by the daughter of the Egyptian king as she went to bathe. She adopted him as her son, and in all probability had him educated for the duties of the priesthood, the means of instruction thus afforded him being the best which his time possessed.

His expedition into Ethiopia, in his fortieth year, as leader of the Egyptians, when he subdued the city of Saba (Meroe), won the affections of the conquered Princess Tharbis. That he married her, rests only on the tradition preserved by Josephus. An outrage committed by an Egyptian on a Hebrew excited his anger, and he secretly slew the Egyptian. The deed became known, and he escaped the vengeance of the king only by a hasty flight into Arabia. Here he took refuge with Jethro, a Midianitish prince and a priest, and espoused his daughter Zipporah.

The promises of God that his race would become a great natior occupied much of his thoughts, and at last God appointed him the chosen deliverer from the bondage in Egypt. Being slow of speech, and possessing none of the arts of an orator, God therefore gave him power to prove his mission by miracles, and joined to him his elder brother Aaron, a man of little energy, but of considerable eloquence. Thus prepared, Moses returned to Egypt at the age of eighty years to undertake the work.

At first he had the greatest obstacles to overcome, but after the visitation of ten destructive plagues upon the land, Pharaoh suffered the Hebrews to depart. Moses conveyed them safely through the Red Sea, in which Pharaoh, who pursued them, was drowned with his army. New difficulties arose however. The distress of the people in the desert, the conflicts with hostile races, the jealousies of the elders, often endangered his authority and even his life, despite the miraculous attestations of his mission.

During the term of the encampment at Sinai he received the Ten Commandments and the laws for the regulation of the lives of the Israelites. When they were already near the end of their journey toward Canaan Moses saw himself compelled, in consequence of new evidences of discontent, to lead them back into the desert, for forty years more of toilsome wandering. He was not himself permitted, however, to see the Israelites settled in their new country on account of a murmur which, in the midst of his distresses, he allowed to escape against his God.

After appointing Joshua to be the leader of the Hebrews he ascended a mountain beyond Jordan, from which he surveyed the land of promise, and so ended his life in his 120th year. All superstitious reverence for his bones or his place of sepulture was prevented by the secrecy of his burial, and its effectual concealment from the people.

References.—See, for traditional view of his life, Rawlinson's Moses, His Life and Times; for personality and work, W. R. Smith's Old Testament in Jewish Church; Schultz's Old Testament Theology; Kittle's History of the Hebrews; Rothstein's Moses as Man and Prophet.

Motley, John Lothrop, American historian and diplomat, was born in Massachusetts, 1814. He was graduated at Harvard College in 1831, and studied at Göttingen and Berlin; D.C.L., Oxford, 1858. After traveling for some years in Europe he returned to the United States, studied law and was admitted to the bar. In 1869 he was appointed American minister to the court of St. James, a post from which he was removed in 1871. The three great works upon which Motley built up one of the foremost literary reputations of the age are: The Rise of the Dutch Republic—a History; its sequel, The History of the United Netherlands From the Death of William the Silent to the Synod of Dort; and John of Barneveld. Died in England, 1877.

Mott, Lucretia, née Coffin, Quaker philanthropist and reformer, was born in Nantucket, 1793. She was a delegate to the world's anti-slavery convention in London, 1840, but was not allowed to take a seat as delegate because of her sex. She published a Sermon to Medical Students in pamphlet form, and also a Discourse on Women, delivered in Philadelphia, 1849. Died at Philadelphia, 1880.

Moulton, Ellen Louise Chandler, American novelist and poet, was born in Pomfret, Conn., 1835, daughter of Lucius L. Chandler. She married William U. Moulton in 1855. Author: This, That, and the Other; Juno Clifford; My Third Book; Bed-Time Stories; More Bed-Time Stories; Some Women's Hearts; Swallow Flights; Poems. Died, 1908.

Moulton, Forest Ray, astronomer, was born at LeRoy, Michigan, in 1872. He was educated at Albion College and at the University of Chicago, where he became professor of Astronomy in 1912. Through his extensive researches, especially in mathematical calculations, he has placed himself in the front rank of modern scientists.

Moulton, Richard Green, educator, author, was born in Preston, England, 1849. He was graduated from London University, 1869; Cambridge, 1874; Ph.D., University of Pennsylvania, 1891. Was professor of literary theory and interpretation, University of Chicago. Author: Shakespeare as a Dramatic Artist; The Ancient Classical Drama; The Literary Study of the Bible; A Short Introduction to the Literature of the Bible; Editor: The Modern Reader's Bible, in 21 volumes. Died in 1924.

Moultrie, William, American revolutionary general, was born in South Carolina, 1731. He repulsed an attack on Sullivan's island, Charleston harbor, where Fort Moultrie now stands, in 1776, for which he received the thanks of congress; defended Charleston in 1779. In 1785 and again in 1794 he became governor of his native state, and died in 1805.

Mozart(mo-zart "German; pron. mōtsart), Johann Chrysostomus Wolfgang Amadeus, great German composer, was born at Salzburg, 1756; died at Vienna, 1791. At the age of four years his father, Leopold Mozart, a violinist of repute, began to teach him some minutes and other small pieces on the harpsichord.

From this period he made rapid progress, and a concerto for the harpsichord, which he wrote in his fifth year, was so difficult that only the most practiced performer could play it. In his sixth year Mozart was taken by his father, along with his sister, to Münich and Vienna, where the little artists were received at court with great favor. In 1763 the family made a journey to Paris, where Mozart published his first sonatas for the harpsichord; and in the following year they proceeded to England, where the child-musician performed before the court the most difficult compositions of Bach and Handel. Returning to Salzburg, after visiting Holland, the family again went to Vienna in 1767. where the boy received a commission from the emperor to write the music of a comic opera, but owing to the opposition of the court musicians the work was never performed.

In 1769 Mozart, who had been made master of the concerts at the court orchestra at Salzburg, commenced a journey to Italy, in company with his father. In Rome he wrote down, on hearing it, the famous Miserere, annually sung in the Sistine chapel during the holy week. At Milan in 1770 he composed, in his fourteenth year, his first opera Mithridates, which was performed more than twenty times in succession. Henceforth he resided chiefly in Salzburg, but also visited Paris, Munich, and finally Vienna. In the latter city, although he was appointed composer to the court, he found it necessary to maintain himself by giving lessons in music and writing waltzes.

Notwithstanding this poverty it was here that most of his best work, such as his famous operas, Le Nozze di Figaro ("The Marriage of Figaro,") Don Giovanni, La Clemenza di Tito ("Clemency of Titus"), Die Zauberflöte ("The Magic Flute"), and his last work the Requiem, were written. It was here also that the best pianist and greatest composer of his time—perhaps of the world—died in obscurity and was buried in a pauper's grave.

The extent of work done by Mozart during his short life is almost incredible, and in every department of composition, whether vocal or instrumental, he excelled. In the history of music he stands most prominently forward as an operatic composer, his Don Giovanni, Magic Flute, and Marriage of Figaro being works previously unequaled and never since surpassed. In his character he was kind hearted, guileless, cheerful, void of envy, almost boyish to the last.

References.—See Lives, by Otto Jahn, which contain a summary of everything heretofore written on Mozart; Fischer, Holmes, Nohl's Life, translated by Lalor; Correspondence, edited by Nohl; article in Grove's Dictionary of Music.

Muhlenberg, Heinrich Melchior, clergyman, founder of the German Lutheran church in America, was born in Germany in 1711. In 1748 he was instrumental in forming the first American Lutheran synod. Died, 1787.

Muhlenberg, John Peter Gabriel, American general, son of preceding, born in Pennsylvania, 1746. He was a pastor and later became a major-general in the army. Died, 1807.

Muir, John, geologist, naturalist, inventor, explorer, was born in Scotland in 1838 and died in Martinez, California, in 1914. From his boyhood he was deeply interested in nature. In 1850 he came to America and spent four years at the University of Wisconsin. Finally he went to California and made the Yosemite his home. He lived as a hermit for years. He discovered many glaciers in the High Sierras. Author: The Mountains of California; Our National Parks; The Yosemite; 150 shorter articles.

Muller (mül'ĕr), Friedrich Max, British philologist and orientalist, was born in Dessau, 1823, son of a German poet, Wilhelm Müller. He was educated at Leipzig; studied at Paris, and settled in England in 1846. He was appointed Taylorian professor at Oxford in 1854, and 1868-75 was professor of comparative philology there. Besides editing the Rig-Veda, he has published Lectures on the Science of Language; The Origin and Growth of Religion; Comparative Mythology; Lectures on the Science of Language; Chips From a German Workshop. Died, 1900.

Mulock (mŭ'lok), Dinah Maria, (Mrs. Craik), English author, was born at Stoke-upon-Trent, 1826. Settling in London, at twenty, she published The Ogilvies; Olive; The Head of the Family, and Agatha's Husband. She never surpassed or even equaled her John Halifax, Gentleman, published in 1857. In 1856 she married George Lillie Craik, and spent a period of quiet happiness and literary industry at Corner House, Shortlands, Kent, where she died, 1887.

Mulock, Sir William, Canadian jurist, chief-justice of the exchequer division of the high court of justice for the province of Ontario since 1905, was born at Bond Head, Canada, 1843. He was graduated at the University of Toronto, 1863, barrister, 1868, and Q. C., 1888. He was first elected to the parliament of Canada, 1882; was postmaster-general of Canada, 1896-1905, and minister of labor, 1900-05; chief justice of Ontario in 1923. He also introduced and carried through the house of commons a bill establishing the Canadian department of labor, 1900. He represented the Dominion of Canada at proceedings connected with inauguration of federal parliament of Australia.

Munchhausen (müngk'hou-zen), Hieronymus Karl Friedrich, Baron von, member of an ancient and noble German family, who attained a remarkable celebrity by false and ridiculously exaggerated tales of his exploits, adventures. Died, 1797.

Mundelein, George William, (1872-). Graduated Manhattan College, New York City, 1889. Ordained Roman Catholic priest, 1895. Consecrated Auxiliary Bishop of Brooklyn in 1909; Promoted Archbishop of Chicago, 1916; Created Cardinal, 1924.

Munroe, Charles Edward, American chemist, educator, was born at Cambridge, Mass., 1849. He was graduated at Harvard, S.B., 1871; Ph.D., Columbian, 1894; professor of chemistry at United States naval academy, 1874-86; chemist to torpedo corps, United States Naval Torpedo Station and War College, 1886-92; head professor of chemistry 1892-1918, and dean of faculty of graduate studies, George Washington University, 1893-1913; emeritus since 1918. He is the inventor of smokeless powder and an authority on explosives.

Munsey, Frank Andrew, American publisher, was born in Mercer, Me., 1854. He was educated in the public schools of Maine, and started his business career in a country store. He became manager of the Western Union telegraph office, Augusta, Me.; went to New York, 1882, and started The Golden Argosy, a juvenile weekly, now the adult monthly, The Argosy; in 1889 he launched Munsey's Weekly, converted in 1891 into Munsey's Magazine. He was also the owner of the Baltimore News, Washington Times, and Philadelphia Evening Times. Died, 1925.

Munsterberg (mün'ster-bĕrg), Hugo, German-American psychologist, educator and author, was born at Danzig, Germany, 1863. He was graduated at Danzig gymnasium, 1882; pursued post-graduate studies in philosophy, natural sciences, and medicine in Leipzig and Heidelberg, 1882-87; Ph.D., Leipzig, 1885, M.D. Professor of psychology beginning 1892, and director of psychological laboratory, Harvard. Author: Psychology and Life; American Traits; The Americans; Principles of Art Education. Died, 1916.

Murat (mü'rä'), Joachim, celebrated French marshall, was born at La Bastide, near Cahors, France, 1771. He was one of the best generals of Napoleon I., by whom he was created King of Naples. In 1812 he accompanied the great army to Moscow, in command of the cavalry, and again commanded the cavalry at the battle of Leipzig, in the following year. After the return of Napoleon from Elba, he led an army against the Austrians, whom he encountered at Tolentino, in upper Italy, but was signally defeated—losing at once his army and his throne. Subsequently he landed with a few followers on the coast of Calabria, but was again defeated, captured, and, after trial by court-martial, shot at Pizzo in 1815, dying with the same bravery he had exhibited during life.

Murfree, Mary Noailles (Charles Egbert Craddock), author, was born in Murfreesboro, Tenn., 1850, daughter of William L. Murfree. For years she concealed her identity and sex under her pen-name. Author: In the Tennessee Mountains; The Young Mountaineers; The Story of Old Fort Loudon; The Bush-whackers and Other Stories; The Champion; A Spectre of Power; Storm Centre; The Frontiersman; The Windfall, etc. Died, 1922.

Murillo (mōō-rēl'yō), Bartolome Esteban, Spanish painter, was born in Seville, Spain, 1618. In 1646 he finished painting the little cloister of St. Francis; and the manner in which he executed it produced the greatest astonishment among his countrymen. He enriched the churches and convents of Seville and other cities with numerous works. His greatest picture is probably the "Immaculate Conception." Having been invited to Cadiz to paint the grand altar of the Capuchins, he there executed his celebrated picture of the "Marriage of St. Catherine." Died in Seville, 1682.

Murray, Sir James Augustus Henry, British philologist, was born at Denholm, 1837. He was graduated from the London University. His Dialect of the Southern Counties of Scotland established his reputation as a philologist. The great work of his life, the editing of the philological society's New English Dictionary, was begun at Mill Hill, 1879, and was continued at Oxford. He was knighted in 1908. Died, 1915.

Murray, John Clark, Canadian educator and writer, professor of moral philosophy, McGill University, Montreal, beginning 1872, was born in 1836. He was educated at the Universities of Glasgow, Edinburgh, Heidelberg, and Göttingen, and was appointed to the professorship of philosophy in Queen's University, Kingston, Canada, 1862. Author: Outline of Sir W. Hamilton's Philosophy; A Handbook of Psychology; An Introduction to Ethics. Died, 1917.

Murray, Lindley, American grammarian, was born at Swatara, Pa. 1745. He was educated at a Quaker school at Philadelphia. At first in a New York counting-house, he studied law, and was admitted to the bar; but during the revolutionary war he amassed a fortune in commerce. In 1785 he was crippled by a fever. Author: English Grammar, etc. Died, 1826.

Mussolini, Benito, born 1883 in Doria, Province of Forli, Italy. His father, Alessandro, the village blacksmith, was a socialist. While a bricklayer in Switzerland, he studied at night. After urging Italy to join the Allies in the World's War, he entered the war, served on the Italian front, and was seriously wounded. In the midst of the post-war depression he organized and led the Fascisti Party. Without the firing of a gun the Fascisti took control of Italy and Mussolini was made dictator. During his administration crime was suppressed, agriculture encouraged, business and commerce increased, an alliance with the Vatican formed, and a remarkable improvement effected throughout the whole of Italy.

Mutsuhito (moot-soo-he'to), emperor of Japan, was born in 1852, ascended the throne in 1867, and married Princess Haruko in 1869. His reign was marked by great reforms. Under the rule of this noted emperor, Japan entered upon an unprecedented era of prosperity. Civilization made rapid progress, and secured for Japan the foremost place among Asiatic nations. Died, 1912.

Myers, Philip Van Ness, author, historian, was born at Tribes' Hill, N. Y., 1846. He was graduated at Williams College, 1871; LL.B., Yale, 1890; L.H.D., Miami University, 1891. He was president of the Farmer's College, Ohio, 1879-90; professor of history and political economy, University of Cincinnati, 1890-1900; dean academic faculty, University of Cincinnati, 1896-97. Author: Life and Nature Under the Tropics; Remains of Lost Empires; Ancient History; Mediæval and Modern History; General History, etc.

Myrick, Herbert, publisher, editor, author, was born at Arlington, Mass., 1860. He was graduated at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, Mass., 1882. He is now president and editor of Phelps publishing company; director of Good Housekeeping, 1901-1911; was vice-president of the Orange Judd Company and managing editor of American Agriculturist at New York, and Orange Judd Farmer at Chicago, 1888-1920.

Nadir Shah (nä'dēr shä), Persian ruler, belonging to the Afshars, a Turkish tribe, was born near Kelat, in Khorassan, Persia, 1688. Having been degraded and punished for some real or supposed offense, he betook himself to a lawless life, and for several years was the daring leader of a band of 3,000 robbers, who levied contributions from almost the whole of Khorassan. He invaded India, took Delhi in 1739, and seized the Koh-i-noor diamond and the peacock throne. His last years were marked by rapacity and oppression, and he fell at last under the hand of an assassin, 1747. He is still reckoned by the Persians, however, as one of their great national heroes.

Nagel, Charles, lawyer, secretary of commerce and labor, 1909-13, was born in Colorado county Texas, 1849. He was graduated from the St. Louis Law School in 1872; and was admitted to the bar in 1873. President of the St. Louis city council from 1893 to 1897; was a member of the St. Louis Law School faculty beginning 1886. He took an active part in politics for many years. Member of the Taft Cabinet.

Nansen (năn'sen), Fridtjof, Arctic explorer, was born in Norway, 1861, and was graduated from the University of Christiania, Ph.D., 1888. He started on his first Arctic expedition in 1882, and in May of the same year undertook his celebrated journey across Greenland, which he accomplished in forty-six days. In 1893 Nansen sailed in the Fram to make an examination of the entire polar regions, and penetrated farther north than any of his predecessors. He then became professor of zoölogy at Christiania University, took an active part in the separation of Norway and Sweden in 1905, was minister for Norway at the court of St. James, 1906-08; and professor of oceanography, Oslo University, 1908. Author: Farthest North; Scientific Results; Norway and the Union with Sweden. Died, 1930.

Napier (nāp'yĕr; nā-pēr'), Sir Charles, British admiral, was born at Merchiston hall near Falkirk, 1786, cousin to the hero of Sind. Commanding the Thames in 1811, he inflicted great damage upon the enemy in the Mediterranean. In 1814 he led the way in the ascent of the Potomac and took part in the operations against Baltimore. He also commanded the Baltic fleet in the Russian war; but the capture of Bomarsund failed to realize expectations, and he was superseded. He twice sat in the British parliament, and, until his death at his Hampshire seat, Merchiston hall, in 1860, he labored to reform the naval administration.

Napier, Sir Charles James, British general, the conqueror of Sind, was born at London, 1782. He served during the Irish rebellion, and at the battle of Corunna was five times wounded and taken prisoner. He also took part in the Anglo-American war of 1812. From 1822-30 he was governor of Cephalonia; in 1838, a K.C.B., and in 1841 was sent to India to command the army of Bombay against the Ameers of Sind. Here he destroyed the fortifications of Emaun Ghur, 1843, followed by the battle of Meanee (Miani), where, with 2,800 English and Sepoys, he defeated 22,000 Baluchs. After the annexation he was appointed governor of Sind. He died near Portsmouth, 1853.

Napier (nā'pĕr), John, Scottish mathematician, inventor of logarithms, was born at Merchiston castle, Edinburgh, in 1550. He made a contract with Logan of Restalrig for the discovery of treasure in Fast castle, in 1594, devised warlike machines for defense against Philip of Spain, and recommended salt as a fertilizer of land. He described his famous invention of logarithms in Mirifici Logarithmorum Canonis Descripto, in 1614, and the calculating apparatus called "Napier's bones" in Rabdologiæ seu Numerationis per Virgulas libri duo, 1617. Died at Merchiston, 1617.

Napier of Magdala, Robert Cornelis Napier, Lord, British general, was born at Colombo, Ceylon, 1810. During the Indian mutiny he was chief engineer in Sir Colin Campbell's army, distinguished himself at the siege of Lucknow, and was made K.C.B. He received the thanks of parliament for his services in the Chinese war of 1858. In 1870 he became commander-in-chief in India and a member of the Indian council, and was subsequently governor of Gibraltar, field-marshal, and constable of the Tower. He died in 1890, and was buried in St. Paul's.

Napier, Sir William Francis Patrick, brother of Sir Charles, was born near Dublin, 1785. He served in the peninsular campaign and retired as a lieutenant-general. He also wrote a famous History of the War in the Peninsula, The Conquest of Scinde, and the Life of Sir Charles Napier. He died at Clapham, London, 1860.

Napoleon I. (Napoleon Bonaparte), emperor of the French, was born at Ajaccio, 1769. He was, at the age of eleven, sent to the military school of Brienne, in Champagne, and in 1784, to the military school of Paris.

In 1785 he was appointed junior lieutenant in the army. He was in Paris on June 20, 1792, and saw the mob invade the Tuileries. He also witnessed the overthrow of the monarchy on August 10. In 1793 he took a leading part in ousting the English from Toulon, and in 1794 was appointed general of the artillery of the army of Italy, and drove back the Sardinians.

He was married to Joséphine Beauharnais in 1796, and two days later left to assume command of the army in Italy. He first overthrew the Austrians and Sardinians at Millesimo and Dego, and forced the Sardinians to make the armistice of Cherasco. He then turned against the Austrians, whom, after a severe struggle at the bridge of Lodi, he drove across the Adda. Then ensued the celebrated fights for Mantua, Castiglione Arcola, and Rivoli. Mantua fell on January 16, 1797, and the Emperor Francis II. agreed to preliminaries of peace at Leoben. Bonaparte had already organized Lombardy as a republic and had forced the Pope to make the peace of Tolentino.

On his return to Paris Bonaparte obtained leave of the directory to attempt the conquest of Egypt, which was meant to be the prelude of the restoration of the French supremacy in India. Sailing from Toulon in 1798, he captured Malta, and landed in Egypt. On July 2 he captured Alexandria, on July 21, the French won the battle of the Pyramids, and the conquest of Egypt was effected. But Nelson's victory on August 1 in the battle of the Nile (Aboukir) was a bitter reverse, destroying his fleet.

In 1799, he invaded Syria, but failed to take Acre, which was defended by Sir Sidney Smith's squadron. He then massacred 2,500 prisoners at Jaffa, and returned to Egypt, where he defeated the Turks in the battle of Aboukir. Hearing of the successes of the second coalition in Europe, of the French loss of Italy, and of the state of France, he left Kélber in command in Egypt and returned to his native land. The revolution of November 9, 1799, arranged by Siéyes, followed, and the consulate was established.

Austria and England were now the chief foes of France. Early in 1800, Bonaparte crossed the Alps, occupied Milan, and on June 14 won the great battle of Marengo. On December 3, Moreau won the battle of Hohenlinden, and on February 9, 1801, the Emperor Francis II. agreed to the treaty of Lunéville. The terms were in the main the same as those of Campo-Formio. On March 27, 1802, the peace of Amiens was signed with Britain; on August 1 Bonaparte was proclaimed consul for life. The concordat with the pope had already been signed, and Napoleon, as he was henceforth called, gave to the nation the bank of France and the code Napoléon, reformed its educational system, conciliated many of the old nobles and instituted the Legion of Honor.

During the years 1802 and 1803, however, Napoleon made preparations for a fresh development in foreign policy. He proposed to found one colonial empire in the New World and another in India. But his schemes with regard to America were frustrated when fever destroyed his army in Haiti in 1803. In the same year he sold the territory of Louisiana to the United States for $15,000,000.

He then determined to rearrange the map of Germany and to destroy Britain's commerce. Early in June, 1802, he became President of the Italian republics, and in September and October he annexed Piedmont, Parma and Piacenza. In February, 1803, he reconstituted Switzerland, and sent secret agents to stir up rebellion in Ireland. Further, he persisted in demanding the British evacuation of Malta. On May 18, 1803, war between France and England broke out, and Hanover was occupied by French troops.

The discovery of a plot, headed by Georges Cadoudal, strengthened Napoleon's position, and on May 18, 1804, he became emperor of the French. Then he made elaborate preparations at Boulogne for conveying troops across the channel and capturing London. In 1805 he incorporated the Ligurian Republic with France, and forced Naples to make a treaty. But the defeat of Villeneuve by Calder off Cape Finisterre in July destroyed all chance of a successful invasion of England, and in September he invaded Germany.

The fall of Ulm opened the way to Vienna; and though Nelson's victory at Trafalgar, on October 21, destroyed the Spanish and French fleets, Napoleon defeated the Austrians and Russians on December 2 at Austerlitz, and on December 26 forced the Emperor Francis II. to make the treaty of Pressburg. Austria being humbled and deprived of much territory, an opportunity was given Napoleon of forming in July, 1806, the confederation of the Rhine. Bavaria, Baden, Würtemberg, Hesse-Darmstadt, and other states placed themselves under Napoleon's protection. The Holy Roman Empire ceased to exist, and on August 6, 1806, the Emperor Francis II. formally renounced his title of German Emperor.

Prussia, however, declared war on October 1, 1806; on the 14th of the same month her army was totally defeated at Jena; on the 25th the French occupied Berlin. England and Russia were alone left unsubdued. Against the former Napoelon issued the famous Berlin decree of November 21, 1806, and at the same time prepared to attack the Russians. In February, 1807, he fought the battle of Eylau, and on June 15 he won a decisive victory at Friedland. In July the Czar Alexander and Napoleon agreed to the treaties of Tilsit, which enabled them to dominate Europe. In October, 1807, France and Spain agreed to conquer Portugal, and in November Junot entered Lisbon. No sooner had Napoleon made Joseph Bonaparte king of Spain (June, 1808) than the Spanish people rose, and an English expedition landed in Portugal (August) and Wellington won the battle of Vimeiro. The peninsular war proved one of the principal causes of the fall of Napoleon. War with Austria again broke out in April, 1809; but after the battles of Aspern and Wagram, the Emperor Francis was forced to sign the humiliating treaty of Vienna (Schönbrunn), October, 1809.

In seeking to strengthen his position, Napoleon was led to divorce Joséphine, and in 1810 to marry Marie Louise of Austria. At the same time he made almost superhuman efforts to ruin England by means of his continental system. But on Decmeber 31, 1810, the czar intimated that he intended to modify his adhesion to the continental system, and Napoleon resolved to invade Russia. His disastrous campaign to Moscow in 1812, undertaken while he had the Spanish War on his hands, encouraged Europe to rise, and in 1813 the war of liberation began. Russia and Prussia joined forces, and though Napoleon won the battles of Lutzen (May 2, 1813) and Bautzen (May 20), the adhesion of Austria to the ranks of his enemies was followed by the total defeat of the French at Leipzig (October 16-19, 1813).

After showing consummate but unavailing skill in the campaign in France during the spring of 1814, Napoleon was forced to abdicate in April, and Louis XVIII. entered Paris. After a short sojourn in Elba, Napoleon escaped and landed in France on March 2, 1815, and his reign of a hundred days began. The battle of Waterloo (June 18) completed the downfall of his hopes and he ended his days on the Island of St. Helena.

That Napoleon often showed himself in his earlier days kind, generous and affectionate is undoubted; that he was patient during his last captivity is equally true. His temperament was Italian, his passionate feelings Corsican, but he was by nature neither bloodthirsty nor cruel. The code Napoléon witnesses to the boldness and clearness of his statesmanship; while, as Marbot tell us, the soldier who understands Napoleon's strategy has nothing more to learn. He waged war on a scale never before witnessed, and neither France nor any other country has produced a greater military genius. His body was conveyed to France in 1840 and laid in the Hotel des Invalides in Paris.

References.—Fournier's Napoleon I.; Rose's Life of Napoleon I.; Sloane's Life of Napoleon Buonaparte; Rosebery's Napoleon: the Last Phase; Lanfrey's The History of Napoleon the First; Seeley's A Short Life of Napoleon; Lévy's Napoleon In Time; and Browning's Napoleon: the First Phase.

Napoleon III., or Charles Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, emperor of the French, was born in the palace of the Tuileries, Paris, 1808. In 1830, he took part in a revolutionary movement in Italy, and in 1836 entered France; but, seeking to arouse the soldiery at Strassburg in his favor, he was taken prisoner and transported to the United States. In 1840 he landed at Boulogne, again hoping to arouse the French soldiery in his favor; for this second attempt he was tried for his high treason before the chamber of peers and received a sentence of perpetual imprisonment in the castle of Ham. In 1846 he escaped from Ham in the disguise of a workman. In 1848, on the abdication of Louis Philippe, the provisional government permitted his return to France. In June of that year he was elected to the national assembly for the department of Seine and for three other departments; and in the following December he was elected by an immense majority president of the newly-constituted republic. In December, 1852, the famous coup d'etat took place, and Louis Napoleon secured his election as president for ten years; but a year later he again appealed to the people, and obtained an almost unanimous vote for the restoration of the empire. In 1870 the Franco-Prussian war broke out, which led to the surrender of the emperor and his army at Sedan, and to the ultimate reëstablishment of the republic. He died at Chiselhurst, England, 1873.

Narses (när'sēz), statesman and general, lived in the 6th century. He was a eunuch. He led an army into Italy, took possession of Rome and completely extinguished the Gothic power in that country. Justinian appointed him exarch of Italy, which post he held until his death, 568.

Navarro (nä-vär'rō), Mary Anderson de, American actress, was born in Sacramento, Cal., 1859. She made her début as Juliet at McAuley's theater, Louisville, 1875. She had great success in leading legitimate roles in the United States and England until 1889, when she married Antonio de Navarro, and retired from the stage. She has since lived in England. Author: A Few Memories.

Nazimova, Madame Alla (1879——), Mrs. Charles Bryant, was born in Yalta, Crimea. She was a skilled violinist at 12, but preferred the drama, in which she was successful before she was 21. Appeared in New York, 1905, becoming famous in Ibsen's A Doll's House.

Neander (nā-ān'dĕr), Johann August Wilhelm, noted German ecclesiastical historian, was born at Göttingen, 1789, of Jewish parents, named Mendel. He received his early education at the Johanneum in Hamburg. In 1811 he took up his residence at Heidelberg University as a privat docent; in 1812 he was appointed professor of theology and the following year was called to the newly established University of Berlin as professor of church history. Here he remained until his death in 1850. The most important work of his life was his Universal History of the Christian Religion and Church, in 5 volumes.

Nearchus (nē-är'kus), Macedonian naval commander, was a native of Crete, who settled in Amphipolis during the reign of Philip, and became the companion of the young Alexander the Great. In 329 B. C. he joined Alexander in Bactria with a body of Greek mercenaries, and took part in the Indian campaigns. Having built a fleet on the Hydaspes, Alexander gave Nearchus the command. He left the Indus in November, 325 B. C., and, skirting the coast, reached Susa in 324 B. C. His narrative is preserved in the Indica of Arrian.

Nebuchadnezzar (neb'ū-kad-nez'ar), king of ancient Babylon, was born about 645 B. C. In 604 B. C. he became king, took Jerusalem about 606 B. C. and made Zedekiah king as his vassal. Zedekiah soon rebelled, and Nebuchadnezzar again took Jerusalem, after a terrible siege, destroyed the temple, threw down the walls of the city, and carried the people captives to Babylon. Among the captives was the Hebrew prophet Daniel, who tells much about him in the book of Daniel. He died about 561 B. C.

Necker (ne'kâr'), Jacques, French financier and statesman, was born at Geneva, 1732, and was for many years a banker at Paris. His Eulogy on Colbert, his Treatise on the Corn Laws and Trade, and some Essays on the Resources of France inspired such an estimate of his talent for finance, that in 1776, he was appointed director of the treasury, and, shortly after, comptroller-general of France. He died at Copet, in Switzerland, 1804. The whole of his works form fifteen volumes.

Nehemiah, Jewish reformer, was a Jew of the captivity, of royal degree and in high favor. He received a commission from the king to repair to Jerusalem and restore the Jewish worship, and ruled over it for twelve years, until he saw the walls of the city, amid much opposition, restored. He subsequently returned to superintend the reform of the worship, of which the book of the old testament, named after him, relates the story.

Neill, Charles P., American economist and educator, United States commissioner of labor, was born at Rock Island, Ill., 1865. He was educated at the University of Notre Dame, Ind., 1885-88, instructor and associate professor and professor of political economy, Catholic University, Washington, 1897-1905, and United States commissioner of labor, 1905-1913, and member of the United States immigration commission, 1907-1910. Manager bureau of information, Southeastern Railways since 1915.

Neilson (nēl'sun), Lillian Adelaide, English actress, was born in Leeds, Yorkshire, England, 1848. She made her début as Juliet when only seventeen years old; appeared as Amy Robsart in 1870, in London, with immense success, and in 1878 stood at the head of her profession. In 1872 she came to the United States, playing in Booth's theater, New York, and in Boston, where she was equally successful. She died in Paris, France, 1880.

Nelson, Horatio, Viscount, famous English admiral, was born at Burnham Thorpe, Norfolk, 1758. He entered the navy as a midshipman in 1770, and after voyages to the West Indies, the Arctic regions, and the East Indies, was promoted to a lieutenancy in 1777. While in command of the Boreas on the Leeward islands station, he involved himself in trouble through his severe and arbitrary enforcement of the navigation act against American traders. His conspicuous bravery at the engagement with the Spaniards off Cape St. Vincent in 1797 brought him to the rank of rear-admiral. In the same year he lost his right arm at Santa Cruz, and in the following year, with an inferior force, annihilated the French fleet in the bay of Aboukir, for which he was raised to the peerage as Baron Nelson, and created duke of Bronte by the king of Naples. During the scare of a Napoleonic invasion he kept a vigilant watch in the channel, and, on the resumption of war, he in 1805, crowned his great career by a memorable victory off Trafalgar over the French fleet commanded by Villeneuve, but was himself mortally wounded at the very height of the battle, dying in 1805.

Nelson, Knute, lawyer, United States senator, was born in Norway, 1843. He came to the United States in 1849, and resided in Chicago, Ill., until the fall of 1850; removed to the state of Wisconsin, and from there to Minnesota, 1871. He was admitted to the bar in the spring of 1867; was a member of the assembly in the Wisconsin legislature, 1868 and 1869; member of the forty-eighth, forty-ninth, and fiftieth congresses for the 5th district of Minnesota; elected governor of Minnesota in the fall of 1892 and reëlected in the fall of 1894; elected United States senator for Minnesota, 1895, and reëlected 1901, 1907 and 1912. Died, 1923.

Nepos (nē'pos), Cornelius, Roman historian, was born probably at Verona, Italy, and flourished during the time of Julius Cæsar and the first six years of the reign of Augustus. He enjoyed the friendship of Cicero, and his only extant work, Vitae Excellentium Imperatorum, is held in high esteem as an educational classbook.

Nernst (nernst), Walther, German chemist and physicist, was born at Briesen, Prussia, 1864. He was educated at Zürich, Berlin, and Würzburg; appointed professor of physics at Göttingen in 1891, where in 1895 he organized the institute for physical and electro-chemistry, of which he became director in 1905. Inventor Nernst electric lamp. Won Nobel prize in chemistry, 1920.

Nero, Claudius Cæsar Drusus Germanicus, Roman emperor, was born at Antium, in Latium, A. D. 37. He was adopted by the emperor Claudius, who married Agrippina, A. D. 50, and four years later he succeeded Claudius on the throne, which he occupied for fourteen years. Nero's whole reign was characterized by licentiousness, brutality, and cruelty. The great fire in Rome happened in Nero's reign, and it is asserted by some writers that the city was set on fire by the order of Nero, who attributed the fire to the Christians and persecuted them with the most unrelenting cruelty. The philosopher Seneca, who had been his tutor, and the poet Lucan were put to death by his order. At length a formidable conspiracy was raised against him, and he fled to a house about four miles from Rome, where he put an end to his own life on hearing the trampling of the horses on which his pursuers were mounted, 68 A. D.

Nesselrode (nes'el-rō-dye), Karl Robert, Count, Russian diplomat, was born at Lisbon, Portugal, 1780, son of a Russian ambassador. He gained the confidence of Emperor Alexander, took a principal part in the negotiations which ended in the peace of Paris and in the congress of Vienna, and was one of the most active diplomats of the holy alliance. Died, 1862.

Nestorius (nes-tō'ri-us), celebrated heresiarch, was born in Syria. He was made patriarch of Constantinople in 428, deposed for heresy by the council of Ephesus, 431, and banished to the Lybian desert, where he died after 439.

Nethersole (neтн'ėr-sōl), Olga, English actress, was born in London, 1870, daughter of Henry Nethersole. She joined the Garrick theater under John Hare's management in 1889; visited Australia on starring tour, 1890; several times visited the United States on starring tours, and as manager of her own company; was manager of Her Majesty's theater, London, 1898, when she produced The Termagant, and was manager of the Adelphi theater, London, during 1902, where she produced Sapho, and also of the Shaftesbury theater, 1904. 1904. Made her own debut in Paris under her own management, 1907; joined British Red Cross, 1916; on nursing staff of Hampstead military hospital as V. A. D., 1916-19.

Nevada (ne-vä'dä), Emma, née Emma Wixon, prima donna, was born at Austin, Nev., 1861. She studied under Mme. Marchesi, Paris; and made her début at Her Majesty's theater, London, 1880, as Amina in La Somnambula. She subsequently sang here and in Europe. In 1885 she married Dr. Raymond Palmer, and now lives in Paris.

Nevin, Ethelbert, American composer, was born at Edgeworth, Pa., 1862. From 1887 to 1893 he taught in Boston, then went to southern Europe to study until 1900, when he returned and associated himself with H. N. Parker at Yale. Narcissus, among a group entitled Water Scenes, and a song, The Rosary, are perhaps his most popular productions. He died in 1901 at New Haven.

Newcomb (nū'kum), Simon, American astronomer and mathematician, was born in Wallace, N. S., 1835. He came to the United States in 1853; was graduated at Lawrence Scientific School, Harvard, 1858; LL.D., Columbian, Yale, Harvard, Columbia. He was assigned to duty at United States naval observatory; professor of mathematics and astronomy, Johns Hopkins, 1884-94, and editor of American Journal of Mathematics. In 1874 he was made correspondent, and after 1893 was one of the eight foreign associates of the Institute of France; made officer of legion of honor of France, 1893. Author: Secular Variations and Mutual Relations of the Orbits of the Asteroids; Investigation of the Orbit of Neptune; Researches on the Motion of the Moon. Died, 1909.

Newlands, Francis Griffith, lawyer, United States senator, was born in Natchez, Miss., 1848. Was admitted to the bar by the supreme court of the District of Columbia and went to San Francisco, where he entered upon the practice of law and continued in the active practice of his profession until 1888. He was elected to the fifty-third, fifty-fourth, fifty-fifth, fifty-sixth, and fifty-seventh congresses; and the United States senate from Nevada, in 1903 and 1908 Died, 1917.

Newman, John Henry, English prelate and author, was born at London, 1801, son of a London banker. He was graduated from Trinity College, Oxford, 1820, and took orders in 1824. He took a leading part in the tractarian movement, and in 1841 wrote Tract XC., which was severely condemned. After living at Littlemore for some years in seclusion, he was received into the Roman Catholic church, 1845. He was created cardinal in 1879. Chief among his works are Apologia pro Vitâ suâ; and The Dream of Gerontius. Died, 1890.

Newton, Sir Isaac, English natural philosopher, was born at Woolsthorpe, Lincolnshire, 1642. In 1665-7 he invented the binomial theorem, the method of tangents, and the fluxional calculus.

The story seems to be authentic that the fall of an apple in the garden at Woolsthorpe late in 1665, started the train of thought which led him to the discovery of universal gravitation. He certainly then deduced the rule of inverse squares from Kepler's third law, and attempted to verify it by the observed motion of the moon. It was not, however, until 1685, when Picard's improved value for the terrestrial radius was at his disposal, and he had overcome the difficulty of calculating the attraction of a sphere upon an adjacent particle, that he ascertained the agreement to be exact.

The great work embodying his conclusions was published in 1687, with the title Philosophiae Naturalis Principia Mathematica. The first book expounded generally the dynamical results of the law. The second treated of motion in a resisting medium, hydrostatics, hydrodynamics, and the theory of the tides. Finally, Book III. showed the working of the attractive principle in the solar system and demonstrated the subjection to it of comets.

Newton's optical researches began in 1666, when he resolved white light into its constituent colors. Two years later he constructed the first reflecting telescope, and in papers communicated to the Royal Society, in 1672 and 1675, described his prismatic experiments and the phenomena of thin plates. His results were collected in a volume on Optics, in which the emission theory of light was advocated. Newton was made Lucasian professor of mathematics at Cambridge in 1669.

He represented the university in the convention of 1689; but though again elected to parliament in the Whig interest in 1701, he was rejected at the polls in 1705. He was knighted by Queen Anne in 1705, and acted as president of the Royal society from 1703 until his death. The controversy between Newton and Leibniz regarding their respective claims to priority in the discovery of the differential calculus dragged on for a score of years, from 1705. The facts elicited left no room for doubt of Newton's originality.

He was engaged in 1694-5 on the laborious task of perfecting his lunar theory, for which purpose Flamsteed's observations were indispensable. They were communicated partially and reluctantly, and the annoyances involved caused Newton to abandon his pursuit of the moon's inequalities. This contest embittered seven years of his life. He died at Kensington, 1727, and was buried in Westminster abbey.

References.—See Lives, by Sir David Brewster, and A. de Morgan; also Lodge's Pioneers of Science; and Hawthorne's True Stories.

Ney (nā), Michel, French marshal, was born in Saarlouis, now in Prussia, 1769, the son of a cooper. He entered the army as a private hussar in 1788; became a general of brigade in 1796, and distinguished himself by his bravery. When Napoleon abdicated in 1814 he attached himself to Louis XVIII., but on the former's return from Elba he joined his old master, and stood by him during the hundred days. He was defeated by Wellington at Quatre-Bras, in 1815, and commanded the Old Guard at Waterloo on June 18th. On the second restoration he was arrested, tried by his peers, and shot, December 7, 1815.

Nicholas I., emperor of Russia, third son of Paul I., was born at St. Petersburg, 1796. In 1828 the war with Persia began, and on its close occurred the war with Turkey. This was followed by the rising of Poland, which he subdued, and reduced the kingdom to a mere province. His rule now became despotic and fierce. Died, 1855.

Nicholas II., czar of Russia, was born in St. Petersburg, 1868, son of Alexander III., whom he succeeded in 1894. During the famine of 1891, he was, at his own request, made president of the committee of succor, and worked hard in the organization of relief. He married Princess Alix of Hesse-Darmstadt in 1894. The coronation of the czar took place with impressive ceremonial at Moscow in May, 1896, and in August of the same year he commenced a tour which included visits to the emperor of Austria and Germany, to the king of Denmark, to Queen Victoria and to the president of France. His reign was marked by the construction of the trans-Siberian railroad to the Pacific coast, by the Russo-Japanese war, by adroit diplomacy with China, by a strong and conservative attitude toward Turkey, as well as toward the European powers, and by the granting of a constitution in 1905. Assassinated, 1918.

Nicholas V., pope, Tommaso Parentucelli, was born near Pisa, Italy, 1397. He was educated at Bologna and Florence, went to Rome in 1426 and entered the ecclesiastical service. He was chosen pope in 1447. A liberal patron of scholars, he despatched agents east and west to purchase or to copy important Greek and Latin manuscripts, and may almost be said to have founded the Vatican library. Died, 1455.

Niclas (nish'i-as), Athenian statesman and general of the Peloponnesian war, was the son of the wealthy Niceratus. In 427 B. C. he defeated the Spartans and Corinthians, and ravaged Minoa, Melos and Locris. In 415 B.C. he was appointed one of the commanders against Sicily, and in the autumn laid siege to Syracuse. At first successful, later his fleet was destroyed, his army began a retreat and he was captured and put to death in 413 B. C.

Nicoll (nik'ul), De Lancey, American lawyer, was born at Bayside, L. I., N. Y., 1854. He was graduated at Princeton, 1874; Columbia Law School, 1876; was admitted to the bar, and practiced law in New York City. He was nominated by the Tammany organization for district attorney, 1887; was elected and served three years. Is now senior member of the firm of Nicoll, Anable, Fuller & Sullivan, and has appeared in numerous corporation cases. Died, 1931.

Niebuhr (nē'bōōr). Barthold George, German historian and critic, was born in Copenhagen, 1776, where his parents then resided. He was educated at Kiel and Edinbrugh, held several appointments under the Danish government, and entered the Prussian civil service in 1806. At the opening of the University of Berlin, in 1810, he became connected with that institution. His great work is is his History of Rome, upon which he was engaged for many years. His Lecturers on Roman History, and several other works, were published after his death by Dr. Schmitz and others, from notes on Niebuhr's viva voce lectures. Died, 1831.

Niehaus (nē'hous), Charles Henry, American sculptor, was born at Cincinnati, Ohio, 1855. He was educated in the Cincinnati schools, and at the Royal Academy, Munich, Germany. Among his works are: equestrian statue of General Forrest, Memphis, Tenn.; statue of McKinley and lunette for tomb at Canton, Ohio; Benjamin Harrison monument, Indianapolis; pediment, state capitol, Frankfort, Ky., etc.

Nielsen (nēl'sen), Alice, American opera singer, was born at Nashville, Tenn., daughter of Erasmus Ivarius. She received her musical education in San Francisco, under Mlle. Ida Valerga, and made her first stage appearance with an opera company at Oakland, Cal., 1893, as Yum Yum in Mikado. She studied grand opera in Rome, and made her first appearance in grand opera at Bellini theater, Naples, Italy, as Marguerite in Faust; appeared at San Carlo opera house, Naples, in La Traviata, and at Covent Garden, London, in Don Giovanni, The Marriage of Figaro, La Boheme, and Rigoletto. She toured the United States in grand opera from 1906-11, successively with the Don Pasquale Co., San Carlo Co. and Boston Opera Co.; then for several years with Metropolitan Opera Co.

Nietzsche, Friedrich, German philosopher, was born near Leipzig, 1844. When thirty-five, he was forced on account of illness to leave Basle, where he was professor of classical philology. Owing as much to his abnormal mind and poor digestion as to the contemporary thought of several German writers, he became the classical exponent of the Superman theory, attacking Christianity, marriage and the general idea of democracy. Among his works are Beyond Good and Evil, Thus Spoke Zarathustra, The Will To Power, and The Geneology of Morals. He died insane in 1900.

Nightingale, Florence, a famous philanthropic nurse, was born at Florence, Italy, 1820, of wealthy English parentage. At the age of twenty-two she entered the institution of Protestant deaconesses at Kaiserswerth, to be trained as a nurse, and afterward studied the methods of nursing and hopsital management with the sisters of St. Vincent de Paul, Paris. In 1854 she volunteered to organize a staff of nurses during the Crimean war, and, during the terrible winter of 1854-55, she ministered with unwearied devotion to the suffering soldiers. Died, 1910.

Nikisch (nik'ish), Arthur, noted Hungarian orchestral conductor, was born in Lébény Szent-Miklos, 1855, and at an early age disclosed extraordinary musical talent. He remained at the Vienna conservatory for eight years; was appointed first violinist at the royal opera; and, in 1878, went with Neumann to Leipzig, where he was made assistant conductor and conductor in the Old opera house. In 1889 he succeeded Herr Gericke as conductor of the Boston symphony orchestra, and in 1895 accepted the post of director of the royal opera at Budapest. He was one of the greatest conductors of our time. Died, 1922.

Nilsson (nil'sun), Christine (Comtesse de Miranda) Swedish operatic singer, was born at Wexiö. Sweden, 1843, daughter of a peasant. She made her début at Paris in 1864, in London, 1867. She repeatedly visited the United States. In 1872 she married M. Rouzand, who died in 1882; and in 1887, at Paris, she became the wife of the Count de Miranda, and retired. Died, 1921.

Nixon, Lewis, shipbuilder, was born in Leesburg, Va., 1861. He was graduated at the United States Naval College, 1882. He was sent to the Royal Naval College, Greenwich, England, by navy department, and transferred to construction corps of navy, 1884. In 1890 he designed the battle-ships Oregon, Indiana and Massachu- setts, and then resigned from navy to become superintending constructor of the Cramp shipyard, Philadelphia, Pa., and in 1895 founded the Crescent shipyard, Elizabeth, N. J. He was appointed by Mayor Van Wyck, president of East river bridge commission, 1898; appointed, 1902, New York commissioner to Louisiana Purchase exposition, St. Louis. He succeeded Richard Croker as leader of Tammany Hall, 1901-02.

Nobel (nō-bel'), Alfred Bernhard, Swedish chemist and engineer, was born at Stockholm, 1833. His father, a mechanician, settled in 1837-59 in St. Petersburg, and in 1862 began to manufacture nitroglycerine. In 1867 Alfred, who assisted him, discovered through the accidental escape of some nitroglycerine from a cask into the siliceous sand of the packing, how to make a safe and manageable explosive—dynamite. He also invented blasting-jelly and several kinds of smokeless powder. At his death at St. Remo, Italy, in 1896, he left a fortune of over 2,000,000 pounds, most of which he destined to go for annual prizes for those making the most important discoveries in physics, chemistry, physiology, writing the best literature, and accomplishing the most for humanity and peace.

Nodzu (nō'dzûû), Michitsura, Count, Japanese general, was born in Satsuma, 1840. He fought on the side of the mikado in the war of restoration, and with imperialists in the Satsuma rebellion. During the war with China he captured Pinyang; was placed in command of the 5th division; later on appointed commander-in-chief of the first army, and, during the Japanese and Russian war, commander-in-chief of the fourth army. He was created a baron, 1895. Died in 1908.

Nogi (nō'gē), Kiten, Baron, Japanese general, was born in Choshu, Japan, 1849. He served in the Satsuma rebellion of 1877, and was twice severely wounded. He commanded the third army in the Russo-Japanese war, capturing Port Arthur, 1905. Suicided, 1912, on death of Emperor.

Nordau (nōr'dou), Max Simon, German physician and writer, of Jewish descent, was born at Budapest, 1849, but is a Prussian subject. He received his university education at Budapest, Berlin, and Paris. He was co-founder and for many years vice-president of the Association Littcraire et Artistique Internationale, Paris; a member of the Hellenic National Academy, Athens. His first book on Paris appeared in 1878; others, more especially two in English translation, Conventional Lies of the Children of Culture, and Degeneration, were much criticised and led to considerable discussions. Died, 1923.

Nordenskjold (nō'ren-shûl'), Nils Adolf Eric, Baron, Swedish explorer, geologist, was born at Helsingfors, Finland, 1832. In 1858 he was appointed state mineralogist at Stockholm, obtained letters of naturalization as a Swedish subject, and was a member of the chamber of nobles during the last two assemblies of the Swedish states. After several successive voyages and explorations in the Arctic sea, he, in 1878-79, discovered the northeast passage. He was created baron in 1880. Died, 1901.

Nordhoff (nōrd'hof), Charles, American author, was born at Erwitte, Prussia, 1830. He came to the United States with his parents when a child of five years. From 1861 to 1871 he was editorial writer for the New York Evening Post. The next two years he spent in travel through California and the Hawaiian islands. He then became Washington correspondent for the New York Herald. His principal works are: A Man of War Life; The Merchant Vessel. Died, 1901.

Nordica (nōr'di-ka), Lillian, née Lillian Norton, stage name of Mrs. Zoltan F. Döme, American prima donna, was born at Farmington, Me., 1859. Her earlier education was pursued at the New England conservatory, Boston, and her later studies at Milan, Italy. She made her début as an opera singer at Brescia, Italy, in La Traviata. She sang leading soprano parts in forty operas and in all the standard oratorios, but she was best known in Wagnerian parts. She appeared in grand opera in the United States several seasons. Died, 1914.

Norman, Sir Henry (1858—), English journalist, author and traveler, graduated from Harvard in 1881. He was given important commissions abroad, largely because of his proficiency in modern languages. Made extensive reports upon the Armenian massacres, and the status of the Monroe doctrine. Elected to parliament, 1900.

North, Frederick, eighth Lord North and second earl of Guilford, English statesman, was born in 1732, and educated at Oxford. He entered the house of commons at the age of twenty-two, and was made junior lord of the treasury in 1759. In 1770 he became prime minister, and his course, to a large extent, caused England to lose America. He resigned in 1782, and became blind five years before his death, which occurred in 1792.

Norton, Charles Eliot, American educator, critic and scholar, professor of art at Harvard, 1874-98, was born at Cambridge, Mass., 1827. He was graduated at Harvard, 1846; Litt.D., Cambridge, 1884; L.H.D., Columbia, 1885; LL.D., Harvard, 1887, Yale, 1901; honorary D.C.L., Oxford, 1900. In 1864-68 he was joint editor with Lowell of the North American Review. In 1874 he was appointed professor of the history of art at Harvard, and in 1879 became president of the Archæological Institute of America, holding that office for eleven years. Editor: Letters of James Russell Lowell; Correspondence of Carlyle and Emerson; Correspondence of Goethe and Carlyle; Reminiscences and Letters of Thomas Carlyle; Letters of John Ruskin; and translator of Dante's Vita Nuova and Divina Commedia. Died, 1908.

Novalis (no-vā'lis), German lyric poet and philosopher, was born in Saxony, 1772. His real name was Friedrich Ludwig von Hardenberg. His principal works are Lehrlinge zu Sais, Hymnen an die Nacht and an unfinished art romance entitled Heinrich von Ofterdingen. He died of consumption, 1801.

Noyes, Alfred, English poet, was born at Staffordshire in 1880 and was educated at Oxford. In 1914 he became Professor of Modern English Literature at Princeton University. His most pretentious work is an epic in blank verse, Drake (1908). It is the dramatic story of England's struggle upon the sea, interspersed with lyrics and songs. Of his numerous poems and ballads perhaps the best known are The Barrel Organ and Forty Singing Seamen, both extremely lilting in their quality.

Noyes, George Rapall, American biblical scholar, was born in Massachusetts, 1798. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1818, and studied theology at Cambridge Divinity School. In 1840 he was made professor of Hebrew and oriental languages and Dexter lecturer on biblical literature at Harvard University. Died, 1868.

Nye, Edgar Wilson, American writer and humorist, who wrote largely under the pseudonym of "Bill Nye," was born at Shirley, Me., 1850. He studied law and later went to Wyoming, where he was admitted to the bar and elected to the legislature. On account of ill health he returned to the East and settled in New York, having already achieved wide popularity through his humorous contributions to the press. In connection with James Whitcomb Riley, he made frequent tours of the country, giving entertainments consisting of lectures and readings. Died, 1896.

Oberlin (ō'bĕr-lin), Jean Friederic, German clergyman and philanthropist, was born in Strassburg, 1740. He was educated at Strassburg University, studied theology, became a German Lutheran clergyman, and was celebrated for his philanthropy. Oberlin College, Ohio, is named after him. Died at Waldbach, 1826.

Obregon, Alvaro (1880-1928), Mexican statesman, born in the State of Sonora. After many years spent as a farmer and stockraiser, he took up arms to assist Carranza in 1913. Two years later he lost an arm fighting against Villa. He was minister of war under President Carranza. In 1920 Obregon was chosen President, serving until 1924. In 1928 he was again elected President but was assassinated before taking office.

O'Brien, Morgan Joseph, American lawyer and jurist, born in New York, 1852. Senior member of firm O'Brien, Boardman, Parker & Fox, trustee of Equitable life assurance society.

O'Brien, Thomas J., American lawyer and diplomat, was born at Jackson, Mich., 1842. He was graduated from the law department, University of Michigan, 1865, and was admitted to the bar, 1864. Candidate for judge of the supreme court of Michigan, 1883; E.E. and M.P. to Denmark, 1905-07, American ambassador to Japan, 1907-11 and to Italy, 1911-13.

Ocam (ok'am), or Ockham, William of, English scholastic, was born at Ockham in Surrey, between 1270 and 1280. He entered the Franciscan order, studied at Oxford and Paris, and headed the Franciscans' revolt against Pope John XXII.'s denunciation of evangelical poverty. His views on civil government are expounded in his Dialogues; his philosophical views in Summa Logicse, in his commentaries on Porphyry and Aristotle, and the commentary on the Sententiae of Peter the Lombard; and his theological views in this last, and the Tractatus de Sacramento Altaris.

Ochs (oks), Adolph S., newspaper publisher, was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, 1858. He received a common school education at Knoxville, Tenn., established The Tradesman, 1879, of which he is still principal owner. He became publisher and owner of the New York Times, 1896. Died, 1935.

Ochs, George Washington, journalist, was born at Cincinnati, Ohio, 1861. He was educated at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville; was twice mayor of Chattanooga, Tenn., was decorated chevalier of legion of honor by French government. Became general manager of Philadelphia Times, 1901; in 1902 the Public Ledger and the Philadelphia Times consolidated under the name of Public Ledger, and he was its publisher and general manager, 1901-2; editor-in-chief, Public Ledger, 1902-15; editor Current History Magazine, etc., after 1915. Died, 1931.

O'Connell, Daniel, Irish orator and "liberator," was born in County Kerry, Ireland, 1775. Was admitted to the Irish bar in 1798. His large practice, worth, he said, $35,000 a year, was sacrificed for his country, when he took a leading part in Irish politics. He was head of the Catholic party and contended for the admission of Catholics to parliament, and himself entered parliament in 1829. In 1844 he, with his son and five others, was tried for sedition and sentenced to imprisonment for one year, and a fine of $10,000, and, though the house of lords soon set aside the verdict, the fourteen weeks he was in prison brought on the ailment of which he died. Worn out with the struggle, he left Ireland for Rome, but only reached Genoa, where he died in 1847.

O'Connell, Dennis J., American educator, was born at Charleston, S. C. He was educated at St. Charles' Seminary and St. Mary's College, Charleston; S.T.D., Propaganda, Rome, 1877. He was for some time secretary to Cardinal Gibbons; was head of the American College in Rome sity of America, 1903-09. Appointed Bishop of Richmond, 1912.

O'Connell, William Henry, R. C. cardinal, was born at Lowell, Mass., 1859. He was graduated from Boston College, 1881; studied at the American College, Rome, 1881-84; ordained priest at Rome, 1884; rector American College, Rome, 1895; bishop of Portland, Me., 1901; assistant at pontifical throne, Rome, and special envoy to the emperor of Japan, 1905; and archbishop of Boston, 1907-1911. In 1911 he was made cardinal by Pius X.

O'Connor, Thomas Power, journalist and parliamentary leader, popularly known as "Tay Pay," was born at Athlone, Ireland, 1848. He took up journalism in Dublin and went to London later, where he was appointed a sub-editor on the Daily Telegraph. He was afterward employed in the London office of the New York Herald, and entered parliament as member for Galway, 1880. He was returned for both Galway and Liverpool, 1885; chose the latter, and was again returned in 1886, 1892, 1895, 1900. Author: Lord Beaconsfield, a Biography; Gladstone's House of Commons. Died, 1929.

O'Conor, Charles, American lawyer, was born in New York City, 1804. At the age of twenty he was admitted to the bar of New York, and soon gained high rank in the profession. He was counsel in many important cases; was prosecuting lawyer in the "Tweed ring" cases; and in 1872 was nominated, in the face of his absolute refusal, for the presidency by the labor reform party, and by a convention of democrats, dissatisfied with the nomination of Horace Greeley. Died, 1884.

Octavia (ok-tā'vi-ā), sister of the Roman emperor Augustus, and wife of Mark Antony, was born about 70 B. C. Her first husband was C. Marcellus, to whom she was married, 50 B. C. He died in 41 B. C., shortly after which she consented to marry Antony, to make secure the reconciliation between him and her brother. In 32 B. C. war, long inevitable, broke out between Antony and Octavian, and the former crowned his insults by sending Octavia a bill of divorcement. But no injury was too great to be forgiven, and after her husband's death she brought up with maternal care not only her own children, but Cleopatra's also. Her death took place 11 B. C.

Odoacer (ō'-dō-ā'sĕr), king of the Germanic tribe of the Heruli, ruler of Italy from 476 to 493, was the son of Ædico, a secretary of Attila, and one of his ambassadors to the court of Constantinople. He entered the military service of the Western Roman empire, rapidly rose to eminence, and took part in the revolution by which Orestes, in 475 drove the emperor Julius Nepos from the throne. He extinguished the Western Roman empire, and showed himself to be a wise and politic ruler. But on March 5th, 493, Odoacer was assassinated at a feast, either by Theodoric himself or by his command.

Œhlenschlager (û'len-shlâ'gĕr), Adam Gottlob, Danish poet and dramatist, was born at Copenhagen, 1779. In 1803 appeared his first collection of poems, including one longer dramatic piece, The Play of St. John's Eve, which attracted favorable notice for the lively fancy with which national habits and local characteristics were portrayed. His poetical works comprise over thirty volumes. He ranks among the Danes as does Goethe among the Germans, and his death in 1850 was felt by the whole nation.

Oersted (ûr'stetH), Hans Christian, Danish physicist, was born at Rudkjöbing, in the island of Langeland, 1777. He studied at the University of Copenhagen and received the degree of Ph.D. there in 1799. In 1819 he published his famous essay entitled Experiments on the Effect of Opposing Electricity Upon the Magnetic Needle, in which he showed the identity of the forces of magnetism, electricity, and galvanism, and thus opened the way for the wonderful development of knowledge in respect to those forces, which was one of the chief scientific glories of the nineteenth century. Died at Copenhagen, 1851.

Offenbach (ōf'en-baK), Jacques, French composer of comic operas, was born in Cologne, 1819, of German-Jewish parents. In 1835-37 studied at the Paris conservatory. He was installed manager of the Gaité theater in 1873, and sank some millions of francs in the experiment. He afterward visited the United States. Died at Paris, 1880.

Oglethorpe (ō'g'l-thôrp), James Edward, English general and founder of Georgia, was born at London, 1696. He served in the British army, and was thirty years in parliament. He planned a colony in America, as a refuge for debtors, who were then imprisoned in English jails, and also for persecuted German Protestants. George II.

gave the land, which was named Georgia, after him, and parliament contributed $50,000, and in 1733 he took out 130 persons, and founded the city of Savannah, in 1733. He left the colony in 1743, and surrendered the charter to the British government in 1752. Died in England, 1785.

Ohm (ōm), Georg Simon, German physicist, was born at Erlangen, Bavaria, 1787. He was educated at the University of Erlangen, held the chair of physics at Cologne from 1817 to 1826. "Ohm's law" was a result of his researches in electricity, and the measure of resistance, called the ohm, was so named in honor of his achievements by the Paris congress of physicists in 1881. Died, 1854.

Ohnet (ō'nĕ'), Georges, French novelist of great popularity, was born in Paris, 1848. He was educated at Sainte Barbe, and at the Lycee Bonaparte. Under the general title of Les Batailles de la Vie he published a series of novels, some of which have reached a hundredth edition. Chief of these are: Serge Panine; Le Maitre des Forges; La Comtesse Sarah; Lise Fleuron. Died, 1918.

Oken (ō'ken), Lorenz, German naturalist, was born at Bohlsbach, Swabia, 1779. He became professor of medicine at Jena in 1807, and in 1816 issued a journal called Isis, which led to government interference and his resignation. Died, 1851.

Oku (ō'kōō), General Hokyo, Count, Japanese soldier, a Samurai of Ko-Kura, was born in 1845. He entered the army in 1871; was major in the imperial forces during the Satsuma rebellion of 1877. He was commander of the second army during the Russo-Japanese war, 1904-05, which landed on the east coast of the Liao-tung peninsula in May, 1904, won the brilliant victory at Kinchau, and did splendid service in the subsequent fighting in Manchuria. He was made chief of general staff, 1906, and count, 1907. Chief of general staff, 1906-12; field marshal, 1911.

Okuma (ō'-kōō-mä), Count Shigenobu, Japanese statesman, was born at Saga, Hizen, 1838. He was a retainer of Lord Nabeshima; was one of the founders of the new government; finance minister, 1869-81; foreign minister, 1888-89; minister of agriculture and commerce, 1896-97; prime minister and foreign minister, 1898. Died, 1922.

Olaf (ō'läf), Saint, king of Norway, was born in 995, and, having made his name a terror on the coasts of Normandy and England, succeeded, in 1015, in securing the throne of Norway. He died in 1030, fighting for Christianity, and his body, laid in the cathedral of Trondhjem, was said to have wrought many miracles. Olaf was later proclaimed patron saint of Norway.

Olcott, Chauncey, otherwise Chancellor John Olcott, singer and actor, was born in Buffalo, N. Y., 1860. He was educated in the Buffalo public schools; was brought out as a singer by late R. M. Hooley, 1880. He was with Hooley's company for two years, sang two years in England in comic opera, then succeeded W. J. Scanlan as star in Irish musical dramas. He has since appeared in various leading roles in the United States and England. Died, 1932.

Oliphant, Laurence, English traveler, diplomat, and writer, was born at Cape Town in 1829. He was called to the Scottish bar; later to the English bar. He became private secretary to the earl of Elgin, then governor-general of Canada. He died at Twickenham, 1888. His later mystical views he published in Sympenumata and Scientific Religion. He also wrote: The Transcaucasian Campaign Under Omar Pasha. Died, 1914.

Oliphant, Margaret (née Wilson), British novelist and biographical writer, was born at Wallyford, Midlothian, 1828. In 1849 she published her first work, Passages in the Life of Mrs. Margaret Maitland of Sunnyside, which instantly won attention and approval. It is, however, on the Chronicles of Carlingford that her reputation as a novelist most securely rests. Died, 1897.

Oliver, George Tener, manufacturer, newspaper publisher, United States senator, was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, 1848, while his parents were visiting in that country, they at the time being residents of Allegheny City, Pa. He was graduated at Bethany College, West Virginia, 1868; studied law and was admitted to the bar of Allegheny county, 1871. In 1900 he purchased the Pittsburg Gazette, and acquired the controlling interest in the Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph, and in 1906 merged the former with the Pittsburg Times, under the name of the Gazette-Times. He was elected in 1909 to the United States senate to fill the unexpired term of Hon. P. C. Knox, who resigned to accept the office of secretary of state. Died, 1919.

Olney, Richard, American lawyer and statesman, was born at Oxford, Mass., 1835. He was graduated at Brown, 1856, and at Harvard Law School, 1858; LL.D., Harvard, 1893, Brown, 1894, Yale, 1901. He was admitted to the bar in 1859. He was a regent of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington; member of American philosophical society, etc. While secretary of state in Cleveland's cabinet he evinced great ability, and his state papers are among the most vigorous documents of those offices. Died, 1917.

Oman, Charles William Chadwick, British historian, Chichele professor of modern history at Oxford, since 1905, was born at Mozufferpore, India, 1860. He was graduated at Oxford, has been a fellow of All Souls College since 1883, and is author of the following works: A History of Greece; Warwick the King-maker; Short History of the Byzantine Empire, etc.

Omar (ō'mär), Abu-Hafsa-ibn-al-Khettab, second caliph of the Moslems, was born about 581. After Mohammed's death he caused Abu-Bekr to be proclaimed caliph, and was himself appointed prime minister. On the death of Abu-Bekr, Omar succeeded as caliph, and pushed on the wars of conquest with increased vigor. He was summoned to Jerusalem, in 637, to receive the keys of that city, and before leaving gave orders to build a mosque, now called by his name, on the site of the temple of Solomon. He instituted the practice of dating from the hegira. He died in 644.

Omar Khayyam (ō'mär ki-yäm'), astronomer-poet of Persia, was born at Nishapur about 1050, and is said to have died there in 1123, or 1124. Omar was the poet of agnosticism, though some see nothing in his poetry save the wine cup and roses, and others read into it that sufi mysticism with which it was largely adulterated long after Omar's death. He was a true poet; yet Fitz-Gerald's translation is far finer than the original.

Omer Pasha (ō'mĕr pä-shä'), Turkish general, was born at Piaski, in Croatia, a province of Austria, 1806. When Medjid became sultan, he made Omer Pasha governor of Lebanon. When the Russians invaded the European dominions of Turkey, he was sent with an army of 60,000 men against them, and successfully held his ground at Kalafat, and, after their withdrawal from the country, entered Bucharest in triumph, August, 1854. He was governor-general of Bagdad, and also minister of war at different periods. Died, 1871.

Ontario, Bishop, of. See Mills, William Lenox.

Oppenheim, Nathan, American physician, medical author, was born at Albany, N. Y., 1865. He was graduated at Harvard, 1888, and from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, 1891. Attending physician, children's department, Lebanon hospital. Author: The Development of the Child; The Medical Diseases of Childhood; The Care of the Child in Health; Mental Growth and Control; and various scientific essays. Died, 1916.

Opper, Frederick Burr, American artist, was born at Madison, Ohio, 1857. He left school at fourteen. He was on the art staff of Frank Leslie's three years; an artist on Puck for eighteen years, and severed his connection with Puck, to accept an offer from Hearst's New York Journal, 1899. Illustrator for Bill Nye, Mark Twain, Hobart (Dinkelspiel), Dunne (Doolcy) etc.

Optic, Oliver, American writer of books for young folks, was born in Medway, Mass., 1822. His real name was William T. Adams, and he was for several years a public school teacher in Boston. He wrote a large number of books which are published in several series, Oliver Optic's Magazine for Boys and Girls was edited by him for many years, but it was discontinued in 1875. He died at Boston, 1897.

Orange, Prince of. See William I., the Silent; William III., king of England.

Orcagna (ōr-kän'yä), Andrea di Cione, Italian painter, sculptor, architect and poet, was born at Florence about 1308. He was chief architect of the cathedral at Orvieto. The frescoes of the Last Judgment and Christ and the Virgin, in the church of Santa Maria at Florence, still survive as examples of his painting. His work was studied by succeeding painters, especially by Michelangelo and Raphael. He died about 1376.

O'Reilly, John Boyle, Irish-American poet, was born at Dowth, Ireland, 1844. He passed through the various stages of journalism from type-setting to the writing of editorials. He was tried for treason, convicted, and banished to Australia in 1866. Escaping from that country, he reached the United States in 1869, and became the editor of the Boston Pilot. Died, 1890.

Origen (or'i-jen), Greek church father, was born at Alexandria, about 185. Much of his life was spent in Alexandria, in which city he obtained great reputation as a teacher, but, which he was compelled, by persecution, to leave finally in 231. His writings are said to have amounted to six thousand, but by far the greater number are lost. As to the learning of Origen and his ability as a teacher, we possess the most ample testimony. He died at Tyre, 254.

Osler (os'lĕr), William, Canadian physician, educator, and author, was born at Bond Head, Ontario, 1849. He was graduated at McGill University, Montreal, 1872; LL.D., McGill, Toronto, University of Edinburgh. He was professor of the institutes of medicine, McGill University, 1874-84, professor of clinical medicine, University of Pennsylvania, 1884-89, and at Johns Hopkins University, 1889-1905; was regius professor of medicine, Oxford University, beginning 1905. Author: The Cerebral Palsies of Children; Chorea and Chreiform Affections; Lectures on Abdominal Tumors; Angina Pectoris and Allied Stages; etc. Died, 1919.

Osman I. (ōs'män) or Othman (ōth'män), surnamed "the conqueror," was born in Bithynia, 1259. When the Mongols overthrew the sultanate of Iconium, 1299, he seized a portion of Bithynia. From his name the terms Ottoman and Osmanli are derived. He died in 1326.

Ossian (osh'an), Celtic bard, supposed to have lived in Scotland or Ireland about fifteen hundred years ago. He was the son of Fingal, king of Morven, a famous hero, and was blind. His poems are remarkable for their grandeur and wild beauty, and are very different from all other poetry. They have been published in nearly all European languages.

Ossoli (ōs'ō-lē), Marchioness. See Fuller, Sarah Margaret.

Otho I., the Great, emperor of the West, son of the emperor Henry I., of Germany, was born in 912, and in 936 formally crowned king of the Germans. He consolidated the disjointed power of the German emperors, and established Christianity at many different points in the Scandinavian and Slavonic lands which lay beyond the circuit of his own jurisdiction. Died, 973.

Otis, James, American patriot and orator, was born at West Barnstable, Mass., 1725, and became a leader of the Boston bar. He was advocate-general in 1760. In 1761, elected to the Massachusetts assembly, he was prominent in resistance to the revenue acts. In 1769 he was savagely beaten by revenue officers and others, and lost his reason. In 1783 he was killed by lightning. His fame chiefly rests on The Rights of the Colonies Asserted, published by him in 1764.

Ottawa, Bishop of. See Hamilton, Charles.

Otter, William Dillon, Canadian general, chief of the general staff, Canada, was born in 1843. He was educated at Upper Canada College, Toronto; served for twenty-two years in active militia; beginning 1883 in the permanent militia, and saw active service during Fenian raids of 1866 and 1870, Northwest rebellion of 1885, and during the Boer war of 1899-1900; commanded Western Ontario district, 1905-08; chief of general staff headquarters, 1908-10; inspector general, 1910-12; director, Internment Operations since 1914. He is the author of The Guide, a Manual of Interior Economy, etc., for Canadian Infantry. Died, 1929.

Oudinot (ōō'dē'nō), Charles Nicolas, duke of Reggio, French marshal, was born at Bar-le-Duc, 1767. He served in the revolutionary wars, and in 1805 obtained the grand cross of the legion of honor and the command of ten reserve battalions, the "grenadiers Oudinot." In 1810 he was charged with the occupation of Holland, and took part in the Russian campaign and in the battles of 1813 with Russians and Austrians. In 1823 he commanded in Spain; became grand chancellor of the legion of honor in 1839, and succeeded Marshal Moncey as gov. of the Invalides, 1842. Died, 1847.

Ouida (wē'da). See De la Ramee, Louise.

Overbeck, Johann Friedrich, German painter, was born at Lübeck, 1789. He studied art at Vienna, 1806-10, and settled in Rome, where he allied himself with the like-minded Cornelius, Schadow, Schnorr, and Veit, who, from the stress they laid on religion and moral significance, were scoffed at as church-romanticists, pre-Raphaelites, etc. His oil-pictures are inferior to his frescoes. Died, 1869.

Overman, Lee Slater (1854-1930), lawyer, United States senator, born in Salisbury, N. C. He was graduated at Trinity College, N. C., 1874; member of North Carolina legislature, 1883, 1885, 1887, 1893, 1900; and speaker, 1893. He was elected United States senator, 4 terms, 1903-27.

Ovid (ov'id), or Publius Ovidius Naso, Roman poet and writer, was born at Sulmo, Italy, 43 B. C. He belonged to a noble family, and was brought up to the law; but his love for poetry and his natural indolence led him to desert the practice of the law, though he occupied one or two judicial positions. He died in banishment at Tomi, 18 A. D. Besides the Metamorphoses, consisting of all the transformations recorded in legend from the creation of the world to the time of Julius Cæsar, he was the author of a poem called Ars Amatoria, or the "Art of Love."

Owen, Sir Richard, British naturalist, was born at Lancaster, England, 1804. He studied medicine at Edinburgh and London, but soon began his work in zoölogy and comparative anatomy by preparing catalogues of the collections in the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons and lecturing on comparative anatomy. Owen's researches in zoölogy number nearly 400; they are largely devoted to structure, and embrace every class of animals from a sponge to man. Among his voluminous writings are: Comparative Anatomy of Invertebrates; Comparative Anatomy and Physiology of Vertebrates. Died, 1892.

Owen, Robert, English social reformer, was born in Wales, 1771. In 1799 he married the daughter of David Dale, from whom, with others, he bought the village and cotton mills of New Lanark, Scotland. Here he introduced a system of reform, which proved for a time highly successful. He came to the United States in 1824, and tried to found a communist society at New Harmony, Ind.; but the scheme failed, and in 1827 he returned to Great Britain, where experiments of a similar nature, attended by a similar result, were made at Orbiston in Lanarkshire, and at Tytherley in Hampshire. He finally became a spiritualist. Died, 1858.

Owen, Robert Latham, lawyer, United States senator, was born at Lynchburg, Va., 1856. Began practice of law, 1880; United States Indian agent for the five civilized tribes, 1885-89. He is the owner of extensive banking, real estate, farming and cattle interests. As attorney for Choctaws and Cherokees he recovered from the United States government, in money, nearly $9,000,000; drew up the act of congress of 1891, giving United States citizenship to every Indian in Indian territory. He was elected United States senator from Oklahoma for the terms 1907-1925.

Oxenstjerna (ŏk'sen-sher'nä), Axel, Count, Swedish statesman, was born at Fano, in Upland, 1583. He was made chancellor by Gustavus Adolphus in 1611; succeeded him as leader of the Protestant party in Germany, 1632-35; acted as regent throughout the minority of Christina, and became her chief minister when she assumed the government in 1644. Died, 1654.

Oyama (ō'yä-mä), Iwao, Prince, Japanese field-marshal, was born in Kagoshima, 1844. He entered the Japanese army, was appointed colonel in 1871, promoted major-general in the same year, lieutenant-general in 1877, general in 1891, and in 1898 was raised to the rank of field-marshal. Having served as military attaché during the Franco-Prussian war, upon his return to Japan, he entered the ministry of war, and assisted in the work of reorganizing the army. In 1904 he was chief of the general staff, and when war broke out with Russia he was appointed commander-in-chief in Manchuria, defeating the Russians at the three great battles of Liau-Yang, the Shaho and Mukden. He received the order of merit, 1906, and resigned his post as chief of the general staff in April. Created prince in 1907. Died, 1916.

Packard, Alpheus Spring, American naturalist, was born at Brunswick, Maine, 1839, was graduated from Bowdoin in 1861, and became assistant to Agassiz at Cambridge. After taking part in several scientific expeditions, he became state entomologist of Massachusetts, and professor of zoölogy and geology at Brown University. Besides many technical papers, he published Guide to the Study of Insects; Our Common Insects; Zoölogy; Entomology for Beginners; Text-Book of Entomology, etc. Died, 1905.

Paderewski (pä'de-ref'skē), Ignace Jan, Polish pianist and composer, was born in Podolia, Russian Poland, 1860. In 1872 he went to Warsaw, studied under Roguski, and subsequently pursued his studies under the late Frederick Kiel of Berlin. In 1884 he resolved to adopt the career of a virtuoso, removed to Vienna, placed himself under his fellow-countryman, Theador Leschetizky, and at the expiration of three years' hard study made his début. Afterward he visited Germany, and in the autumn of 1889 made his first appearance before a Parisian audience. His first appearance in England took place at St. James' hall, London, 1890. He has written Manru, an opera; Suits for Orchestra in G, etc. Premier of Poland, 1918-1919.

Paganini (pä'gä-nē'nē), Nicolo, Italian violinist, son of a commission broker at Genoa, was born in 1782. His musical talent showed itself in his childhood; in his ninth year he had instructions from Costa at Genoa, and afterward from Rolla at Parma, and from Ghiretti. In 1831 his violin playing created an equal furor in Paris and London. His mastery over the violin has never been excelled. He died at Nice, 1840.

Page, Thomas Nelson, American author, was born on Oakland plantation, Hanover county, Virginia, 1853. He was educated at Washington and Lee University; LL.B., University of Virginia, 1874; Litt.D., Washington and Lee, 1887, Yale, 1901; LL.D., Tulane University, 1899. He practiced law at Richmond, Va., 1875-93, but subsequently turned to literature and lecturing. Author: In Ole Virginia; Two Little Confederates; On Newfound River; The Old South; Among the Camps: Elsket and Other Stories. Died, 1923.

Page, Walter Hines, American journalist and writer, editor of The World's Work beginning 1900, was born at Cary, N. C., 1855. He was educated at Randolph-Macon College, Virginia, and Johns Hopkins University; LL.D., Randolph-Macon, and Tulane. He was literary adviser to Houghton, Mifflin and Company, 1895-99; editor of The Atlantic Monthly, 1896-99. Ambassador to Great Britain, 1913-1918. Author: The Rebuilding of Old Commonwealths, etc. Died, 1918.

Paget (paj'it), Sir James, English surgeon, was born at Yarmouth, England, in 1814. He entered the Royal College of Surgeons in 1836, became member of the council in 1865, president in 1875, and Bradshawe lecturer in 1882. He was made a baronet in 1871, and also an LL.D. by the University of Edinburgh. His works are Lectures on Surgical Pathology, Clinical Lectures, etc. Died at London, 1899.

Paine, John Knowles, American composer and organist, professor of music, Harvard, from 1875, was born in Portland, Maine, 1839. He studied music under Herman Kotzschmar there; made his first appearance as organist, 1857; studied in Germany under Haupt and others, 1858-61; and made an artistic tour there, 1866-67. He was instructor in music, Harvard, 1862-73 and became professor there in 1876; A.M., Mus.D. He composed the music for the Œdipus Tyrannus of Sophocles performed in Greek at Cambridge, 1881; Hymn of the West, words by Stedman, sung at the opening of the St. Louis exposition, 1904; the oratorio, St. Peter; cantatas, Realm of Fancy, Phœbus Arise, etc. Died, 1906.

Paine, Thomas, Anglo-American writer, was born, 1737, at Thetford, England. In 1774 he came to America, was favorably received by a bookseller in Philadelphia, and in 1776 published a pamphlet entitled Common Sense, in which he maintained the cause of the colonies against the mother country. The success and influence of this publication were extraordinary, and it won him the friendship of Washington, Franklin and other distinguished American leaders. In 1791 he published The Rights of Man, the most famous of all the replies to Burke's Reflections Upon the French Revolution. In 1792 the department of Pas-de-Calais elected him a deputy to the national convention, where he usually voted with the Girondists. At the trial of Louis XVI. he proposed that the king should be spared and afforded an opportunity of seeking an asylum in America. In 1802 returned to the United States, and died, 1809.

Palestrina (pä'lās-trē'nä), Giovanni Pierluigi da, distinguished Italian composer was born near Rome about 1514. In 1581 he was made master of the Julian chapel, Rome, and in 1554 published a collection of masses, so highly approved by Pope Julius III., to whom they were dedicated, that he appointed their author one of the singers of the pontifical chapel. During the remaining years of his life the number and the quality of the works of Palestrina were remarkable. He died in 1594.

Paley (pā'li), William, English divine and writer, was born at Peterborough in 1743. He was educated at Christ's College, Cambridge, of which he became a fellow in 1766, and for ten subsequent years he resided at the University. In 1785 he at once attained high reputation by his Principles of Moral and Political Philosophy. He was successively made vicar of Stanwix, a prebendary of St. Paul's, subdean of Lincoln, a doctor of divinity, and rector of Bishop's Wearmouth. Died, 1805.

Palissy (pa'le'sē), Bernard, French artist and philosopher, was born about 1510. He was apprenticed in a glass work at Agen, where he learned the art of painting on glass. Having completed his apprenticeship he set out on a tour of France and Germany, in 1528, maintaining himself by practicing his craft of glass painter and by land surveying. During his travels he studied attentively all the books within his reach, and acquired an extensive knowledge of natural science.

In 1535 he returned to France, married and settled at Saintes. Shortly after his return his attention was attracted by a fine specimen of enameled pottery, and he thereupon resolved to discover for himself the secret of the enamel. Being ignorant of the potter's art he had to grope his way, and labored on year after year without success, almost starving, and reducing his family to the depths of poverty. At length, after sixteen years of unremunerated labor (1538-54), he obtained a pure white enamel, affording a perfect ground for the application of decorative art.

He was now able to produce works in which he represented natural objects grouped and portrayed with consummate skill, and his enameled pottery and sculptures in clay became recognized as works of art.

In 1562 he went to establish himself at Paris, where he continued to work at his art, and also delivered scientific lectures, which were attended by the most distinguished men in Paris, and contained views far ahead of his time. He suffered persecution as a Huguenot, and was arrested in 1589 and thrown into the Bastille, where he is said to have died in 1590. He left several philosophical works.

References.—Morley's Palissy the Potter, and Lives in French by Burty and Dupuy; Lamartine's Celebrated Characters; Hood's Peerage of Poverty.

Palladio (pal-lä'dyō), Andrea, famous Italian architect, was born at Vicenza, 1518. After having studied with the greatest care the writings of Vitruvius and the monuments of antiquity at Rome, he settled in his native city, and first acquired a reputation by his restoration of the basilica of Vicenza. He died at Vicenza, 1580.

Palma (päl'mä), Tomas Estrada, Cuban patriot, was born about 1836 in Bayomo, Cuba; studied law at University of Seville, but never practiced; took part in the Cuban revolution of 1868-78. He became president of the Cuban republic, but was captured, 1877, and imprisoned until hostilities ceased, 1878. During the last Cuban revolution he was delegate-at-large and minister plenipotentiary for Cuban republic, and subsequently president of Cuba, 1902-06. He died 1908.

Palmer, Edward Henry, English explorer and orientalist, was born, 1840, at Cambridge. He graduated from Cambridge in 1867. In 1881 he turned journalist, writing principally for the Standard. In 1882, on the eve of Arabi's Egyptian rebellion, sent by government to win over the Sinai tribes, he, Captain Gill and Lieutenant Charrington were on August 11th murdered in the ravine of Wady Sadr. Among Palmer's works are the Desert of the Exodus; Persian Dictionary.

Palmer, Erastus Dow, American sulptor, was born at Pompey, N. Y., 1817. He was a joiner by trade, and made carvings first of animals and leaves in wood. Seeing a cameo head, he cut on a shell a portrait of his wife, and his success induced him to try working in marble. He executed busts of Alexander Hamilton, Washington Irving, Commodore Perry and others. The Landing of the Pilgrims, in the capitol at Washington, is one of his largest works. Died, 1904.

Palmer, George Herbert, American educator and scholar, Alford professor of natural religion, moral philosophy and civil polity, Harvard, since 1889, was born in Boston, 1842. He graduated at Harvard, 1864; LL.D., University of Michigan, 1894, Union, 1895, Harvard, 1906; Litt.D., Western Reserve, 1897. He was tutor in Greek at Harvard, 1870; assistant professor, 1873-83, and professor of philosophy, 1883-89. Author: The Odyssey, an English translation in rhythmic prose; The Life and Works of George Herbert; Life of Alice Freeman Palmer, etc. Died, 1933.

Palmerston (päm'-ėr-stun), Henry John Temple, Viscount (1784-1865), British statesman, was elected to parliament in 1807, and in 1811 became member of the University of Cambridge, which he represented until 1831. In 1852 he was appointed home secretary and was made first lord of the treasury in 1855. In 1858 he was defeated and compelled to resign office owing to a conspiracy bill arising out of Orsini's attempt to assassinate Napoleon III. The following year he returned to power, and remained prime minister until his death.

Pankhurst, Mrs. Emmeline (1854-1928), English "suffragette" leader, began in 1908 the "militant" movement for promoting woman suffrage in England. She and her small group of followers were a great annoyance to the government; repeated arrests and imprisonments failed to curb the movement; the "hunger strike" was their best weapon.

Paoli (pä'ō-lē), Pasquale, famous Corsican patriot, was born in 1725 at Morosaglia, in Corsica. In 1755 he was elected captain-general of the island. In 1794, he joined the British in driving out the French. He then surrendered the island to George III., but, becoming dissatisfied with the government, he quarreled with the British viceroy. He therefore retired from the island in 1796, and spent the remainder of his life in the neighborhood of London. Died, 1807.

Pape, Eric, American artist, illustrator, was born in San Francisco, 1870. He received his art education in Paris. He exhibited at Paris salon, 1890-1900, World's Columbian exposition, 1893, Munich Kunst Austellung, 1897, Omaha exposition, 1899, Paris exposition, 1900, Pan-American exposition 1901, St. Louis exposition, 1904, and at various art museums and exhibitions in the United States and abroad, and has illustrated many important works.

Papin (pä'pan'), Denis, French physicist, was born at Blois, 1647. He studied medicine in Paris, where, after receiving his degree, he practiced for some time as a physician. To Papin undoubtedly belongs the high honor of having first applied steam to produce motion by raising a piston. Papin's sagacity led him to many other discoveries, among which was the principle of action of the siphon. Died at Marburg, Germany, 1712.

Papinianus (pa-pin-i-ā'nus), Emilius, Roman jurist, was born about 146. He held offices at Rome under Septimus Severus, but was put to death by Caracalla in 212. He was remarkable for his juridical genius, the lucidity of his decisions and his high sense of right and morality. Nearly 600 excerpts from his legal works were incorporated in Justinian's Pandects.

Pappenheim (päp'en-him), Gottfried Heibrich, Count von, a great imperialist general in the Thirty Years' war, was born, 1594, at Pappenheim, Bavaria, of an old and distinguished Swabian family. He served under the king of Poland against the Russians and the Turks, and then joined the Catholic league, defeating the Bohemians at Prague in 1620. At Lützen, in 1632, he arrived in time to save Wallenstein from defeat by the Swedes, but was mortally wounded in the second charge and died at Leipzig, 1632.

Paracelsus (par-ä-sel'sus), otherwise Theophrastus Bombastus von Hohenheim, German-Swiss physician and alchemist, was born in Switzerland in 1493. He entered Basel University at sixteen, studied alchemy and chemistry with Withemina, bishop of Wurzburg, and next at the mines in Tyrol learned the properties of metals and minerals. He acquired fame as a medical practitioner, was made town physician at Basel, and lectured on medicine at the University, but flouted at Galen and Avicenna, and justified the furious enmities that pursued him by his own vanity, arrogance, aggressiveness and intemperate habits. Of some 250 works attributed to him, the critics admit only from ten to twenty-four as genuine, the others being by his followers the "Paracelsists." In spite of his attraction to alchemy and mysticism, he made new chemical compounds, and improved pharmacy and therapeutics. Died, 1541.

Paris (pá'rē'), Comte de, Louis Philippe Albert d'Orleans, grandson of King Louis Philippe, was born in Paris, 1838. He was educated in England. In 1862 he returned to France, entered the national assembly, but was expelled in 1886, and went to England, where he occupied himself in writing a History of the American Civil War. He was the head of the Orleans family and a claimant to the French throne. Died, 1894.

Park, Roswell, American physician, was born at Pomfret, Conn., 1852. He was graduated from Racine College; A.M., Harvard; M.D., medical department of Northwestern University, 1876; honorary M.D., Lake Forest University; LL.D., Yale, 1902. 1883 professor of surgery, medical department, University of Buffalo, and surgeon to Buffalo general hospital. He was a member of all national and several foreign surgical societies; and was director of the New York state pathological laboratory in Buffalo. Died, 1914.

Parker, Alton Brooks, American lawyer, jurist, was born in Cortland, N. Y., 1852. He was educated at the Cortland Academy, Cortland Normal School, and graduated at the Albany Law School; LL.D., Union University. Appointed justice of supreme court of New York, 1885, elected, 1886; justice court of appeals, second division, 1889-92. Chief justice of court of appeals, 1898-1904. He resigned to accept democratic nomination for the presidency, made on first ballot, July 9, 1904. He was president of the American bar association, 1906-07, and practiced law as a member of the firm of Parker, Hatch and Sheehan. Died, 1926.

Parker, Edward Wheeler, statistician, was born at Point Deposit, Md., 1860; was educated at Baltimore, and in City College, Baltimore. Statistician United States Geological Survey since 1891, in charge Division of Mineral Resources, 1907-1915. Expert special agent twelfth United States Census; member Anthracite Coal Strike commission, 1902; expert in charge of history of mining in United States for department of economics and sociology, Carnegie Institute. Author: Annual Reports on Production of Coal in United States; Production of Coke in United States; also reports on coal mining, coke manufacture and petroleum refining for United States Census, etc.

Parker, Sir Horatio Gilbert, Anglo-Canadian novelist, was born in Canada, 1862. He was educated at Trinity College, Toronto; D.C.L., Toronto. He was trained to journalism in Australia, and there first began his literary and dramatic works: When Valmond Came to Pontiac; The Seats of the Mighty; The Battle of the Strong; The Lane That Had No Turning; The Right of Way; History of Old Quebec; The Weavers, etc. He was returned to parliament for Gravesend as a Unionist in 1900, and was knighted in 1902. Died, 1932.

Parker, Horatio William, American composer and, organist, professor of the theory of music, Yale, beginning 1894, was born at Auburndale, Mass., 1863. He was educated at Auburndale and in Europe; graduated at Royal Conservatoire, Munich, 1885; M.A., Yale, 1892; Mus.D., Cambridge University, England, 1902. Organist at Trinity church, Boston beginning 1893. His Hora Novissima was performed at the Chester (England) festival July, 1899, and, in September, 1899, at festival of the three choirs, Worcester, England. He was author of the cantatas, King Trojan and The Kobolds; and of the oratorios, Hora Novissima and St. Christopher. Died, 1919.

Parker, Joseph, English preacher and author, the son of a stonecutter, was born at Hexham, 1830. He studied at University College, London, and became pastor of Congregational chapels at Banbury, Manchester, and, in 1869, of that now represented by the City Temple in London. Ecce Deus is his most noted work. Died, 1902.

Parker, Matthew, second Protestant archbishop of Canterbury, was born at Norwich, England, 1504. He studied at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and was ordained a priest in 1527. On the accession of Queen Mary he refused to conform to the reëstablished order of things, and was deprived of his preferments, and even obliged to conceal himself. The death of Mary, and the accession of Elizabeth called him from his compulsory retirement, when he was appointed by the queen archbishop of Canterbury. "The subsequent history of Archbishop Parker," it has been justly remarked, "is that of the church of England." It was under his presidency that the thirty-nine articles were finally reviewed and subscribed to by the clergy, 1562. Died, 1575.

Parker, Theodore, American clergyman and scholar, was born at Lexington, Mass., 1810. He entered Harvard College in 1830, and during his collegiate course supported himself by teaching private classes and schools. He then graduated from Harvard Divinity School in 1836 and the next year became a Unitarian minister at West Roxbury. His complete works, in twelve volumes, edited by F. P. Cobbe, were published in 1863-65. After a trip to Europe for his health, he returned in 1844 and for years preached to immense congregations at Melodeon and Music halls, Boston. His health compelled him to go to Mexico, thence to Italy, where he died at Florence, 1860.

Parkhurst, Charles Henry, American Presbyterian clergyman, was born in Framingham, Mass., 1842. He graduated from Amherst, 1866; D.D., LL.D., Amherst. After 1880 pastor of Madison Square Presbyterian church, New York. He became president in 1891 of the society for prevention of crime, and his assertion of partnership of police with criminals led to an investigation of the New York police by the New York legislature. Author: What Would the World Be Without Religion? The Swiss Guide; Our Fight With Tammany; The Sunny Side of Christianity, etc. Died, 1933.

Parkman, Francis, American historical writer, was born in Boston in 1823, and graduated at Harvard, 1844. He then began the study of law, but abandoned it to devote himself to historical literature. He lived some time among the Indians of the Rocky Mountains, and wrote The Conspiracy of Pontiac; The Old Regime in Canada; Count Frontenac and New France under Louis XIV.; Montcalm and Wolfe; A Half Century of Conflict; The California and Oregon Trail, etc. He died at Jamaica Plain, Mass., 1893.

Parmenides (pär-men'i-dez), Greek philosopher, and greatest member of the Eleatic school, was born at Elea, and flourished about the fifth century B. C. In his didactic poem On Nature he sought to demonstrate the reality of absolute being.

Parnell (pär'nel), Charles Stewart, Irish statesman, was born in 1846, in Avondale, Ireland, and was educated at Cambridge. He entered public life as member for Meath in 1875. At the general election he was elected for three constituencies, but chose Cork, and as the head of the land league was prosecuted in 1880, by the Gladstone government, the result being a disagreement of the jury. At the general election of 1885, he nominated every home rule candidate, and subsequently entered into an alliance with the followers of Gladstone. In the next parliament he proposed a bill to suspend evictions and reduce rent, after the rejection of which the agitation continued. In 1888 a special commission was appointed to examine the charges made against Parnell and others by the London Times, the result being his acquittal. He then brought suit for libel against the Times and recovered 5,000 pounds damages. Died, 1891.

Parrhasius (pa-rā'shi-us), celebrated Greek painter, was the son of Evenor, also an artist, and was born at Ephesus in the fifth century B. C. According to Pliny, he was the first to establish a true proportion between the different parts of a picture, and delineated with elegance and precision all the minutiæ of the features.

Parrish, Maxfield, American painter and illustrator, was born in 1870 at Philadelphia. He studied at the Pennsylvania Academy of Arts, and with Howard Pyle. In 1900 he received honorable mention at the Paris Exposition, and in 1901 a silver medal at the Pan American. He became a member of the National Academy in 1906.

Parrott, Robert Parker, American inventor, was born in New Hampshire in 1804, graduated at West Point in 1824. He became captain in the ordnance corps in 1836, and soon afterward superintendent of the West Point iron and cannon foundry. Here he invented the Parrott system of rifled guns and projectiles, which were first introduced into actual use at the battle of Bull Run, 1861. Died, 1877.

Parsons, Alfred William, English landscape painter, was born at Beckington, Somersetshire, 1847. He was educated in private schools; was a clerk in the savings bank department of a London post office, 1865-67, after which he has devoted himself to painting. He executed illustrations for Harper's Magazine and other publications; with E. A. Abbey, illustrations for Herrick's Poems; She Stoops to Conquer; etc. Died, 1920.

Parsons, William Barclay, American engineer, was born in New York, 1859. He was graduated at Columbia University, 1879; as chief engineer of the New York rapid transit commission, designed and constructed underground railway system in New York; was a member of the Isthmian canal commission.

Partridge, William Ordway, American sculptor, author, was born at Paris, France, 1861. He studied at Columbia College, and received his art education in Rome, Florence and Paris. His works include statue of Shakespeare, Lincoln park, Chicago; equestrian statue General Grant for Union League club, Brooklyn; Pocahontas, Jamestown exposition, 1907, etc. He has been an exhibitor at the salon, Paris: Royal Academy, London, and Berlin. Died, 1930.

Pascal (pás'kál'), Blaise, French philosopher and scholar, was born at Clermont, in Auvergne, 1623. When he was in his thirty-fourth year he devoted himself wholly to religious meditation, mortification and prayer. The last five years of his life were spent in retirement at Port Royal, near Paris. But his retirement did not prevent his noticing what was passing in the world and he took an interest in the controversy between the Jesuits and the Jansenists, which led to the publication of the Provincial Letters, in favor of the latter. His Thoughts on Religion has been translated into most European languages, and has been many times republished. Died at Port Royal, 1662.

Pasteur (pás'tûr'), Louis, distinguished French chemist and bacteriologist, born in 1822 at Dôle. He received the degree of doctor of science in 1847; in 1857 director of the Ecole Normale Supérieure, Paris; in 1863 professor of geology, physics and chemistry at the School of Fine Arts; and 1867-75 professor of chemistry at the Sorbonne, Paris. From 1886 on, his researches were made in connection with the Pasteur Institute. At a very early date he became celebrated for researches on isomeric crystals and their behavior in polarized light, which obtained for him the London royal society's Rumford medal in 1856. He subsequently spent four years in studying and successfully combating the contagious silkworm disease; then the diseases of fowl-cholera and anthrax, which he successfully treated by vaccino of diluted virus. In 1882 he was elected to the French Academy. His latest work was connected with a vaccine treatment for hydrophobia. Pasteur must be regarded as the parent of the whole modern science of bacteriology. Died, 1895.

Pater (pá'tĕr), Walter Horatio, English essayist and critic, was born near London, 1839, educated at Oxford, and became a fellow at Brasenose College. He came early under the influence of Keble, Jowett and Ruskin, and succeeded the latter as the high priest of æsthetic thought. His Studies in the History of the Renaissance in 1873 revealed him as a penetrating critic with a beautiful prose style. Among his other works are: Marius the Epicurean; Imaginary Portraits; Plato and Platonism; The Child in the House; and Greek Studies. Died, 1894.

Paton (pā'tun), Sir Joseph Noel, British painter, born 1821; died, 1901. His themes were taken from legends and religious allegories. His paintings include Luther at Erfurt, The Fairy Raid, Gethsemane and The Man of Sorrows.

Patrick, Saint (387?-493), patron saint of Ireland, born at Bannaventa, England. Carried to Ireland by Irish raiders about 405; escaped after six years' bondage; fled to Gaul; became a monk and returned to Christianize Ireland; established the see of Armagh.

Patten (pat''n), Simon Nelson, American economist and writer, professor of political economy, University of Pennsylvania, beginning 1888, was born at Sandwich, Ill., 1852. He graduated at Halle, Germany, 1878, with the degree of Ph.D. Author: Premises of Political Economy; Economic Basis of Protection; Heredity and Social Progress; The New Basis of Civilization, etc. Died, 1922.

Patterson, Thomas Macdonald, lawyer, journalist, United States senator, was born in Ireland, 1840. He was brought to the United States in childhood, and received his education at Asbury (now De Pauw) University, and Wabash College; was admitted to the bar, and practiced at Denver, Colorado. He was elected United States senator from Colorado, 1901-07. Died, 1916.

Patti (pat'ē), Adelina Maria Clorinda (Baroness Rolf Cederström), noted operatic singer, was born at Madrid, Spain, 1843. She studied under Ettore Barili, and made her début at the Academy of Music, New York, 1859. Her voice was a high soprano, of rich bell-like quality and remarkable evenness of tone. Her greatest success is generally considered to have been in the part of Marguerite in Gounod's Faust. She appeared in the United States, South America and Mexico at various times. Died, 1919.

Pattison, Mark, English writer and scholar, was born at Hornby, in Yorkshire, England, in 1813. He studied at Oxford and became a fellow of Lincoln College in 1839. He contributed articles to the Quarterly, the Westminster, and the Saturday Review, and wrote biographies of Isaac Casaubon and Milton, the latter one of the best lives in the English Men of Letters series. In 1861 he was made rector of Lincoln College. He died at Harrowgate, 1884.

Patton, Francis Landey, American educator, theologian, was born in Warwick Parish, Bermuda, 1843. He was educated at Knox College, Toronto, and University of Toronto; graduated from Princeton theological seminary, 1865; LL.D., Wooster University, 1878, Harvard, 1889, Toronto, 1894, Yale, 1901, Johns Hopkins, 1902. He was professor in McCormick theological Seminary, Chicago, 1872-81; pastor of Jefferson Park Presbyterian church, Chicago, 1874-81; and beginning 1888 professor of ethics, Princeton University. He was president of Princeton University, 1888-1902, and president of Princeton Theological Seminary, 1902-13. Died, 1932.

Paul, the apostle, commonly called Saint Paul, was born of Jewish parents at Tarsus, in Cilicia, and inherited the rights of a Roman citizen. He was highly educated and early went to Jerusalem to study under Gamaliel, one of the most celebrated Jewish rabbis.

Thus prepared for the office of teacher, he joined the sect of the Pharisees, and became a perseeutor of the Christians, to crush whose the sanhedrin employed him in and out of Jerusalem. He was present at and encouraged the stoning of Stephen, and it was only when he was overtaken by a vision on his way to Damascus that he became a convert to Christianity.

His sudden conversion was indicated by the change of his name from Saul to Paul, and he engaged in the work of an apostle with an ardor that overcame every difficulty. Arabia, Syria, Asia Minor, Greece and the islands of the Mediterranean were the scenes of his labors. The churches of Philippi in Macedonia, of Corinth, Galatia and Thessalonica, honored him as their founder; and he wrote epistles to these churches and to the churches in the chief cities of Greece and Asia Minor.

By admitting the gentiles to the church he incurred the hatred of the Jews, who persecuted him as an apostate. Undismayed, the apostle went to Jerusalem and was there arrested and brought to Cæsarea, where he was kept a prisoner for two years by the Roman governors Festus and Felix. He appealed, as a Roman citizen, to the emperor; and on his way to Rome, where he arrived in the year 62, he was shipwrecked on the island of Melita. At Rome he was treated with respectful kindness, and there is reason to believe that he for some time regained his liberty. According to the tradition of the early church the apostle suffered martyrdom during the reign of Nero.

References.—Conybeare and Howson's Life and Epistles of St. Paul; Baur's Paul, His Life and Works; Pfleiderer's Paulinismus; Lewin's Life and Epistles of St. Paul; Sabatier's L'Apôtre Paul; Bruce's St. Paul's Conception of Christianity; Steven's The Pauline Theology; Ramsay's St. Paul the Traveller and the Roman Citizen; Cone's Paul the Man, the Missionary, and the Teacher; Weinel's St. Paul: the Man and his Work.

Paul III. (Alessandro Farnese), pope from 1534 to 1549, was born in Tuscany in 1468. Though ambitious to advance his family, making cardinals of two grandsons while they were yet boys, he was, however, a wise ruler and surrounded himself with good cardinals. His bull, or decree of excommunication against Henry VIII. of England, issued in 1538, and the one forming the order of the Jesuits, 1540, are the most important edicts of his reign. He died suddenly, 1549.

Paulding, James Kirke, American author, was born at Pleasant Valley, N. Y., 1779. He was self-educated, early developed a tendency to literature, was a friend of Washington Irving, and wrote a portion of Salmagundi. He held at one period the post of navy agent at New York, and was appointed by President Van Buren secretary of the navy. At the close of Van Buren's presidency, in 1841, Paulding retired to a country residence at Hyde Park, N. Y., where he wrote The Old Continental, a novel; The Puritan and His Daughter. Died, 1860.

Paur (pour), Emil, German musical director, director of New York philharmonic society, was born in Austria, 1855. He was appointed first violin of Vienna imperial opera house; court conductor at Cassel, Hanover, 1876-80; conductor of Boston symphony, 1893-98; 1898 to 1900 leader of philharmonic society, New York. He has also appeared with leading concert organizations, and as solo pianist, and was conductor of the Pittsburg orchestra, 1904-10.

Paxton, Sir Joseph, English architect, was born in Bedfordshire, England, 1801. He began life as a gardener in the service of the duke of Devonshire. His care of the great glass conservatories of the duke at Chatsworth suggested to him the use of glass and iron for the building, in Hyde Park, London, for the great exhibition of 1851. Paxton was knighted for his successful design. He sat in parliament for nine years, and died at Sydenham, near London, 1865.

Payne, John Howard, American dramatist, was born at New York, 1792. His first appearance as an actor was in that city in 1809. He was a successful actor for thirty years and also wrote several plays, of which the best known are Brutus, Charles II., and Clari. The song, Home Sweet Home, for which he is remembered, is in Clari, which was produced as an opera. Died, 1852.

Payne, Sereno Elisha, lawyer, congressman, was born at Hamilton, N. Y., 1843. He graduated at the University of Rochester, 1864; LL.D. Colgate, 1902, University of Rochester, 1903. He was admitted to the bar, 1866 and practiced at Auburn, N. Y. Member of congress for 26th New York district, 1883-85, 27th district, 1885-87, and again, 1889-1900, 31st New York district. He was chairman of the committee on ways and means. He was a member of the high joint commission to negotiate a treaty with Canada, 1898. Died, 1914.

Paynter, Thomas H., lawyer, United States senator, was born in Lewis county, Ky., 1851. He was educated at Rand's Academy, and at Center College, Danville, Ky.; studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1872. Elected judge of the court of appeals of Kentucky in 1894 for an eight-year term which he resigned, in 1895; was elected to the United States senate for the term 1907-13.

Peabody, Elizabeth Palmer, American educator, was born at Billerica, Mass., 1804. She taught in the celebrated school of Bronson Alcott and was one of the first to introduce the methods of Frœbel into American schools and to use object lessons in teaching. Among her best known works are: The Kindergarten in Italy; Letters to Kindergartners; Guide to the Kindergarten, etc. She died at Jamiaca Plain, Mass., 1894.

Peabody, Francis Greenwood, American clergyman and educator, Plummer professor of Christian morals, Harvard, 1886-1913; was born at Boston, 1847. He graduated at Harvard, 1869; Harvard Divinity School, 1872; D.D., Yale; LL.D., Harvard. Author: Mornings in the College Chapel; Afternoons in the College Chapel; Jesus Christ and the Social Question, etc.

Peabody, George, American merchant and philanthropist, was born at South Danvers, Mass. 1795. In 1827 he first visited England, where he settled permanently ten years later. In 1851 he supplied the sum required to fit up the American department at the great exhibition in London. He contributed £1,400,000 to the city of Baltimore for an institute of science, literature and the fine arts; and $8,000,000 for the promotion of education, endowment of libraries, etc., in the United States. He died in London, 1869.

Peabody, George Foster, American banker, was born at Columbus, Ga., 1852. He was educated in private schools there, and subsequently engaged in banking in New York. Member of board of managers of American Bible society; trustee of Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute, Colorado College; general vice-president of American civic federation, 1905, etc.

Peale, Charles Wilson, American portrait-painter, was born at Chestertown, Maryland, 1741. He received his art education from Copley and Benjamin West. In 1785 he formed a collection of natural curiosities, and founded Peale's museum at Philadelphia. During the revolutionary war he commanded a company of soldiers at Trenton and at Germantown. Died, 1827.

Peale, Rembrandt, American painter, the son of Charles W. Peale, was born in Pennsylvania, 1778. Besides his many portraits, he painted several historical pictures, among them the well-known Roman Daughter, and The Court of Death. He published Notes on Italy, and Portfolio of Art and Artists. He died at Philadelphia, 1860.

Pearsons, Daniel Kimball, American philanthropist, was born at Bedford, Vt., 1820. He graduated in medicine at Woodstock, Vt., and practiced in Chickopee, Mass., until 1857. He then became a farmer in Ogle county, Illinois, in 1857, but in 1860 he removed to Chicago, where he rapidly accumulated a large fortune in real estate. He is best known through his large gifts to educational and eleemosynary institutions, the Presbyterian hospital of Chicago and the Chicago Theological Seminary being especially favored. There are but few of the smaller colleges to which he did not give from $25,000 to $250,000, and his gifts run well up into the millions. Died, 1912.

Peary, Robert Edwin, Arctic explorer, officer of United States navy, born at Cresson, Pa., 1856. Graduated at Bowdoin, 1877; entered United States navy as civil engineer, 1881; Chief of Arctic expedition of Academy of natural sciences of Philadelphia; 1891-92, to northeast angle of Greenland; discovered and named Melville Land and Heilprin Land, lying beyond Greenland. Commander of Arctic expedition under auspices of Peary Arctic club of New York City, 1898-1902, and attained latitude 84° 17′ north. In 1908-09 made an eighth expedition, and reached the pole in April, 1909. Promoted to Rear Admiral and given thanks of congress by special act of congress, March, 1911. Made Grand Officer of Legion of Honor by President of France, June, 1913. Author: Northward Over the Great Ice, Nearest the Pole, The North Pole. Died, 1920.

Peck, Harry Thurston, American educator, scholar and writer, professor of Latin, Columbia University, 1888-1912, was born at Stamford, Conn., 1856. He graduated at Columbia, 1881; Ph.D., L.H.D.; LL.D.; and studied in Berlin, Paris and Rome. He was literary editor of The Commercial Advertiser, 1897-1901; and editor of The Bookman, 1895-1907. Author: The Personal Equation; The Semitic Theory of Creation; Latin Pronunciation, etc. Died, 1914.

Peckham, Rufus Wheeler, American jurist, was born at Albany, N. Y., 1838. He was educated at the Albany Academy and in Philadelphia; studied law, and was admitted to the bar, 1859; LL.D., Union College, 1894, Yale, 1896, Columbia, 1901. Justice of supreme court of New York, 1883-86; associate justice of court of appeals, New York, 1886-95; and associate justice of United States supreme court from 1895 until his death in 1909.

Pedro I. (pā'drō), emperor of Brazil, was the second son of John VI. of Portugal, and was born in 1798. He declared for Brazilian independence in 1822, and was crowned as Pedro I. The new empire did not prove successful under his rule, and Pedro in 1831 abdicated, withdrew to Portugal, where, after securing the throne for his daughter, he died, 1834.

Pedro II., son of the preceding, was born, 1825, became emperor of Brazil on his father's abdication, and, distinguished by his love of learning and scholarly tastes, reigned in peace until the revolution of 1889 drove him to Europe. He died at Paris, 1891.

Peel, Sir Robert, English statesman, was born near Bury, Lancashire, 1788. He graduated at Oxford in 1808, and next year entered parliament as tory member for Cashel; afterward sat for Oxford University, and after 1832 for Tamworth. Opposed to reform, he became leader of the conservative opposition in the parliament of 1833, and was called to the premiership in 1834. He could not maintain his administration, however, and it was not until 1841 that the victory of protection over the free-trade agitation gave him a stable majority in the house of commons. His "conversion" split the tory party and he retired from office, becoming a supporter of the whig ministry in its economical and ecclesiastical policy. His death, in 1850, was the result of a fall from horse back.

Peelle, Stanton Judkins, American jurist, was born in Wayne county, Indiana, 1843. He was educated at Indiana University; served in the Civil War; judge of the United States court of claims, 1892-1905; and chief justice, 1906-12, of United States court of claims. He was professor of the law partnership, and bailment in the law department of George Washington University, 1901-11, and a trustee of Howard University. Died, 1928.

Peirce, Benjamin, American mathematician, was born at Salem, Mass., 1809. He graduated at Harvard in 1829; in 1833 became professor at Harvard; in 1849 astronomer to the American Nautical Almanac; and in 1867-74 was superintendent of the United States coast survey. His papers on the discovery of Neptune, in 1848, and on Saturn's rings brought him membership in many learned societies in Europe and America. He died at Cambridge, Mass., 1880.

Pelagius (pē-lā'ji-us), author or systematizer of the doctrine known as Pelagianism, was born about the middle of the fourth century, in Britain, or, according to some authorities, in Bretagne. He settled in Rome; at the end of the fourth century had already acquired a considerable reputation for sanctity and for knowledge of the scriptures and the spiritual life. Of his after life nothing is known in detail.

Pelissier (pā'lē'syā)', Amable Jean Jacques, a marshal of France, was born at Maromme, near Rouen, 1794. He entered the French army at the age of twenty; and after thirty-six years' service attained the rank of general, in 1850. On the 8th of September he stormed the Malakoff, for which he was rewarded with a marshal's baton, and after the fall of Sebastopol he also was created Duc de Malakoff, and rewarded with a grant of $20,000. He became governor-general of Algiers in 1860 and died there in 1864.

Pellico (pel'lē-kō), Silvio, Italian patriot and poet, was born at Saluzzo, in Piedmont, 1789. In 1819 he became connected with a liberal periodical which was published in Milan under the title of Il Conciliatore. Arrested in the following year on a charge of conspiracy against the Austrian government, he was imprisoned from 1822 to 1830 in the subterranean dungeons of the fortress of Spielberg, near Brunn, being at last liberated by the command of the emperor. He died at Turin, 1854.

Pelopidas (pē-lop'i-das), Theban general of noble descent, was noted among his fellow citizens for his disinterested patriotism. In 382 B. C. he was driven from Thebes by the oligarchic party, who were supported by the Spartans, and forced to seek refuge at Athens, whence he returned secretly with a few associates, 379 B. C., and recovered possession of the Kadmeia, or citadel, slaying the Spartan leader, Leontiades, with his own hand. In 364 B. C., he won the battle of Cynoscephalæ, but was himself killed.

Pelz, Paul Johannes, German-American architect, was born in Seitendorf, Germany, 1841. He studied architecture, 1859-66, in New York, under Detlef Lienau; was connected with United States lighthouse board as architect and civil engineer, during which service he designed many lighthouses. He was one of the architects of the Congressional library building, Washington, D. C.; architect of Georgetown College Academic building and many other structures.

Penn, William, celebrated Quaker, and the founder of Pennsylvania, was born in London, 1644. He studied at Oxford, early gave evidence of strong religious impulses, and adopted the new doctrines of the so-called society of Friends. In 1681, Penn, who had inherited from his father a claim against the government of 16,000 pounds, obtained from the king in satisfaction therefor a grant of an extensive tract of country lying west of the Delaware river and north of Maryland, in the American plantations, and which in the royal patent was called Pennsylvania. This territory Penn resolved to form into a commonwealth based upon perfect religious toleration, and accordingly set sail thither, arriving in Delaware bay on the 27th of October, 1682. In November he entered into a league with the Indians, and next founded the city of Philadelphia. In 1684 he returned to England, where he enjoyed the confidence of James II. In 1699 he paid a second visit to Pennsylvania, and his stay, which lasted two years, was marked by many useful measures, and by efforts to ameliorate the condition, both of the Indians and the negroes. In 1701 he returned to England, and died, 1718.

Pennell (pen'el), Joseph, American artist, illustrator, author, was born in Philadelphia, 1860. He was a pupil of the Pennsylvania Academy of fine arts and Pennsylvania School of Industrial Art. His works are represented in the national collections of France, at Dresden, Budapest, Melbourne, Perth, Adelaide, and in many state and municipal collections in Europe and America. He was chairman of the international jury of awards, St. Louis exposition, 1904. Author: The Illustration of Books; The Alhambra; The Work of Charles Keene; Lithography and Lithographers; The Life of James M' Neill Whistler, etc. Died in 1926.

Penrose, Boies, politician, United States senator, was born in Philadelphia, 1860. He graduated from Harvard College in 1881, and was admitted to the bar in 1883. He practiced his profession in Philadelphia for several years; was elected to the Pennsylvania house of representatives in 1884; to the Pennsylvania state senate in 1886, 1890, and 1894; and to the United States senate, 1897, and reëlected in 1903 and 1909. Died, 1921.

Pepin le Bref (pē'pan' le bref'), king of the Franks and father of Charlemagne, was born in 714, the youngest son of Charles Martel. On the death of his father in 741, he received Neustria and Burgundy; deposed Childeric III., and founded the Carlovingian dynasty in 751. He was the first Frankish monarch whose election received the sanction of the Pope, and who was consecrated to his high dignity. He died, 768.

Pepper, Charles M., American journalist, was born in Ohio, 1859. He graduated at Wooster University, 1881. Appointed by President Roosevelt a delegate to the Pan-American congress at the city of Mexico, 1901; and foreign trade commissioner, department of commerce and labor, 1906-07. He was correspondent from Hawaii to the Chicago Tribune and New York Herald, 1897. Author: Tomorrow in Cuba; Panama to Patagonia, etc.

Pepper, William, 1843-1898, physician, benefactor, was born at Philadelphia, and educated at U. of Pa. He was elected provost of the University in 1881, and during his incumbency it became a new institution. On account of ill health he retired and moved to California, where he died, 1898. He edited Pepper's System of Medicine by American Authors.

Pepperell, Sir William, American general, was born in Maine in 1696. He was a member of the British council for the province of Massachusetts for thirty-two years from 1727, and in 1730 was appointed chief-justice of the court of common pleas. He commanded the successful expedition against Louisburg in 1745, and was made a baronet. He published an account of a Conference With the Penobscot Tribe. Died, 1759.

Pepys (pēps, pep'is, peps), Samuel, English politician and diarist, officer of the English admiralty during the reigns of Charles II. and James II., was born, 1632. For two years he was president of the Royal society. He wrote Memoirs of the Royal Navy, 1690; left to Magdalen College, Cambridge, his large collection of books, manuscripts and prints, including about 2,000 ancient English ballads, forming five folio volumes; but his reputation is founded on his Diary from 1659 to 1669, which affords a curious insight into the manners and court life of his day. Died, 1703.

Pericles (per'i-klēz), greatest of Athenian statesmen, and a general and orator, was born at Athens, 495 B. C. He soon gained the position of head of the more democratic party in the state, in opposition to Cimon, the son of Miltiades, who was at the head of the aristocratic party. He led the Athenians against Samos in 440 B. C., and was their principal adviser and commander during the first two years of the Peloponnesian war. Phidias was the friend of Pericles, and the public buildings erected by the latter during the administration of Pericles made Athens the admiration of Greece. To Pericles Athens was indebted for the Parthenon. He died, 429 B. C.

Perkins, George Walbridge, financier, was born at Chicago, 1862. He received a common school education, and started business career in the Chicago office of the New York life insurance company, 1877. Second vice-president, 1898; chairman of the finance committee, New York Life, 1900; and vice-president, 1903. He became partner in the banking firm of J. Pierpont Morgan and company, 1901. Died, 1921.

Perry, Bliss, editor, author, educator, editor of the Atlantic Monthly 1899-1909, was born in Williamstown, Mass., 1860. He graduated at Williams, 1881; L.H.D., Princeton, 1900; Williams, 1902; Litt.D., Bowdoin, 1904; LL.D., Lake Forest, 1906. He was professor of English at Williams, 1886-93; at Princeton, 1893-1900; and is now professor of English literature at Harvard. General editor of Cambridge editions of the poets. Author: The Broughton House; Salem Kittredge, and Other Stories; The Plated City; The Powers at Play; A Study of Prose Fiction; The Amateur Spirit; Walt Whitman; Whittier.

Perry, Oliver Hazard, American naval commander, was born in South Kingston, Rhode Island, 1785. During the war of 1812 fitted out a fleet on Lake Erie. With nine vessels he sailed against the British fleet. The English attacked the Lawrence, Perry's flag ship, so fiercely that out of 101 men on it only eighteen were uninjured. Perry left the Lawrence in a small boat and was rowed to the Niagara. He captured all the English ships. In 1819 he commanded a fleet which sailed to Columbia and ascended the Orinoco river. Died, 1819, Trinidad. In 1860 a marble statue of him was erected at Cleveland, Ohio.

Pershing, Gen. John Joseph, Commander-in-Chief, Americans in France. b. Linn Co., Mo., 1860; m. d. Senator Warren of Wyoming. Lost wife and three daughters in Presidio fire, 1915. Educa. Kirksville Normal; West Point, served Apache Indian campaign, 1886; Sioux campaign, 1890-91; miltary instructor Nebr. 1891-95; instructor in tactics West Point, 1897-98; Santiago campaign, 1898; Philippines 1899-1903; general staff, 1903-6; miltary attache Tokio, 1905-6; with Kuroki's army in Manchuria, 1905; duty in Philippines, 1909-13 as military governor of Moro Province; command border troops in 1914-16; sent into Mexico pursuit Villa, 1916. Commanded American forces at the St. Mihiel drive, took many prisoners and threatened the German fortress Metz. His vigorous pressure here and in the Argonne were strong factors in bringing the Great War to an abrupt close. His soldiers in the army of occupation on the Rhine set an example to the world of fulfilling their duty as masters of a conquered people with firmness, courtesy and consideration.

Pestalozzi (pes'tä-lōt'sē), Johann Heinrich, Swiss educationist, born at Zürich, 1746. He studied at Zürich; in 1775, established on his estate, Neuhof, a school. The idea of his system was that nothing should be treated except in a concrete way. Almost all Pestalozzi's methods are now substantially adopted by the instructors of elementary teachers in the schools of Europe and America, and to no other man has primary instruction been so largely indebted. His chief works were How Gertrude Instructs Her Children and his Leonard and Gertrude. During the last two years of his life he wrote also his autobiography. He died at Brugg, Switzerland, 1827.

Petain, Henri Philippe, French general, was born in 1856. Though only a colonel at the beginning of the world war, his services were so meritorious during the early months of that struggle that he was promoted to the command of an army corps in 1914. In 1916, after the Germans had taken the outer defenses of Verdun, through his energy and new methods of defense, he saved that stronghold. For this he was made grand officer of the Legion of Honor. In April, 1917, he was appointed chief of the General Staff of the army, and in May of the same year, Commander-in-Chief of the French armies. During the subsequent allied offensive directed by Foch, Petain was most successful in co-ordinating the movements of his troops with those of England and America. At the conclusion of the war he was created Marshall of France, and has received many high honors from allied governments.

Peter I., The Great, Alexeievitch, emperor of Russia, was born 1672. In 1682 Ivan renounced the crown, and Peter was declared czar, with his mother, the Czarina Natalia Kirilovna, as regent. Sophia, third daughter of Alexis, succeeded in having Ivan proclaimed czar jointly with Peter, and herself regent. Peter was relegated to private life, his education purposely neglected and his bad habits encouraged.

In 1689 Peter became virtually sole emperor. He now determined to raise his country out of its barbarism, and to place its people in the ranks of civilized nations. He journeyed to Holland and England (1796-98), worked in shipyards, and the knowledge he there gained was amply profited by on his return.

Peter not only created a navy, but gave Russia a sea-board and sea-ports by wresting the Baltic provinces from Charles XII. of Sweden. Young Russian nobles were obliged to travel; schools of navigation were founded; agriculture was improved. Peter established manufactories and distributed metallurgicists through the mining districts of Russia; roads and canals were built.

In 1703 he laid the foundation of St. Petersburg, and twenty years later of its academy of sciences. Laws and institutions which in any way interfered with his projects, he either abolished or altered. In his zeal to do good he was too frequently injudicious in choosing times and seasons, and the least show of opposition irritated him into ferocity. He repudiated his wife a few years after marriage for her reactionary leanings; for the same reason his son Alexis was ill treated, compelled to renounce the succession, and condemned to death, but died suddenly before sentence could be carried out.

Peter died in 1725, the immediate cause being inflammation, contracted while assisting in the rescue of some soldiers in Lake Ladoga.

References.—Oscar Browning's Life of Peter the Great and Schuyler's Peter the Great.

Peter, St., one of the foremost of the twelve apostles, originally called Simon, was the son of Jona, and a resident at Bethsaida. Peter was a man of ardent temperament, affectionate and generous. He was favored with special manifestations of his Master's confidence, and performed a more prominent part in the sacred history than any other of the twelve disciples. He was crucified with his head downward, in the persecution under Nero, about A. D. 64.

Peter the Hermit, French monk and preacher, was born at Amiens, about the middle of the eleventh century. He made a pilgrimage to the holy land about 1093, and having witnessed the cruelties there inflicted upon the Christians by the Mohammedans, communicated on his return with Pope Urban II., by whom he was authorized to preach the first crusade for the recovery of Jerusalem from the hands of the Turks. His last years were spent in obscurity, in a monastery which he had founded at Huy. Died, 1115.

Peters, John Punnett, American clergyman and orientalist, was born in New York, 1852. He graduated from Yale, 1873; studied philology and theology, Yale; Ph.D., 1876; D.D., 1895; Sc.D., University of Pennsylvania, 1895; rector of St. Michael's church, New York, 1893-1904; canon residentiary, cathedral of St. John the Divine beginning 1904. Author: Scriptures, Hebrew and Christian. Translator of Political History of Recent Times, and editor of Diary of David McClure. Died, 1921.

Peters, Madison Clinton, Baptist clergyman, was born in Lehigh county, Pennsylvania, 1859. D.D., Heidelberg University and Ursinus College. He was ordained to the ministry of the Reformed church, 1880. He preached as an independent in the Majestic theater, New York. Author: Justice to the Jew; Will Our Republic Live; The Man Who Wins; The Love Affairs of Great Poets; The True St. Patrick; etc. Died, 1918.

Peterson, William, Canadian educator, principal of McGill University, was born in Edinburgh, 1856. He was educated at the University, Edinburgh. LL.D., St. Andrews; Princeton, New Jersey; University of New Brunswick; Yale; Johns Hopkins, Pennsylvania. Principal of University College, Dundee, 1882-95. Author: Quintilian's Institutes of Oratory; Dialogues of Tacitus. Died, 1921.

Petrach (pē'trārk), Francis, Italian poet, was born in 1304 at Arczzo in Tuscany. Having settled at Avignon, he became deeply attached, in 1327, to the beautiful Laura de Noves, in whose honor were written those sonnets and odes which have rendered his name immortal. He was invited to Naples, to Paris and to Rome; and received the laureate crown in the capitol of the latter city. Among his warmest friends and patrons was the Colonna family. In 1348 his feelings were deeply grieved by the death of Laura. He survived her, however, nearly thirty years, during which period he was admired and honored by his own countrymen, and by foreign princes. He died, 1374.

Petrie (pē'tri), William Matthew Flinders, English Egyptologist, was born at Charlton, 1853. He was educated privately, and his earliest explorations bore fruit in his Stonehenge, 1880. He next turned his attention to the pyramids and temples of Gizeh, and subsequently, with the aid of the Egypt exploration fund, to the mounds of Said and Naukratis, and founded the Egyptian research account, 1894, enlarged as the British school of archæology in Egypt, 1905. Author: Pyramids and Temples of Gizeh; Racial Portraits; Ten Years' Digging; History of Egypt; Egyptian Tales, etc.

Pfleiderer (plī'der-er), Otto, German theologian, was born at Steeten in Wurtemberg, 1839. He studied at Tübingen, 1857-61. In new testament criticism Pfleiderer belongs to the younger critical school which has grown out of the impulse given by Baur. He was an independent thinker, acute, suggestive and profoundly learned, and made his name as well known in England and America as in Germany. His chief works are: The Philosophy and Development of Religion; Evolution and Theology, etc. Died, 1909.

Phelps, Edward J., American jurist and diplomat, was born at Middlebury, Vt., 1822. He studied at Middlebury College, graduated in law at Yale in 1843, and was admitted to the bar in the same year. President of the American bar association in 1880. He became a professor in the law School of Yale in 1881, where he served until appointed minister to Great Britain in 1885. Phelps remained at the court of St. James until 1889. He died at New Haven, Conn., 1900.

Phelps, William Lyon, American educator and writer, was born in 1865, at New Haven, Conn. He was educated at Yale and Harvard, and has been instructor and professor of English at Yale since 1892. He is popular as a lecturer. Besides editing many books, he has written volumes of criticism, including Essays on Modern Novelists, A Dash at the Pole, Human Nature in the Bible, The Twentieth Century Theatre.

Phelps-Ward, Elizabeth Stuart, American author, was born at Andover, Mass., in 1844. Besides lecturing, writing for magazines and engaging in various kinds of work for the advancement of women, she has written: Gates Ajar; The Silent Partner; Poetic Studies; An Old Maid's Paradise; Beyond the Gates; The Madonna of the Tubs; A Singular Life; The Story of Jesus Christ; The Man in the Case; etc. In 1888, she married Rev. Herbert D. Ward. Died, 1911.

Phidias, Greek sculptor, was born about 490 B. C. He is said to have studied painting before he devoted himself to statuary. He became famous probably about 460 B. C., when he produced the bronze statue of Athena Promachos, the Lemnian Athena, and other works. From 444 B. C. to 438 B. C. he was superintendent of the building of the Parthenon at Athens, and the production of the statue of Athena for that temple. From about 437 B. C. to 433 B. C. he was in Elis, working on the statue of Zeus for the temple at Olympia.

On his return to Athens in 432 B. C. he was charged with embezzling money entrusted to him in connection with the building of the Parthenon, or, as other stories say, for impiety in introducing his own likeness and that of Pericles in the battle of the Amazons on the shield of Athena. In any case, it was as a friend of Pericles that he was attacked; condemned, and died in prison, 432 B. C.

By the general consent of antiquity Phidias was the greatest of Greek sculptors. His chief characteristics were largeness, dignity and magnificence; all his work was marked by a certain repose; he realized that violent action cannot be represented in sculpture. His principal works were what are called chryselephantine statues—that is, there was an inner core of wood or stone, which was covered with plates of polished ivory, for the parts representing flesh, while the gold was used for the drapery.

The Emperor Theodosius I. took the statue of Zeus to Constantinople about 390 A. D. and it perished there in a fire in 475. It is only the remains of the external sculptures of the Parthenon, especially the frieze (of which the Elgin marbles are a part), that survive to give us an idea of Phidias' skill; but it is not certain that they are actually his own work.

References.—Waldstein's Essays on the Art of Phidias; Collignon's Phidias; Mitchell's History of Ancient Sculpture; and Phidias, in Masters in Art series.

Philip II., king of Macedon, father of Alexander the Great, was born in 382 B. C., and came to the throne in 359 B. C. He first undertook the thorough union of his kingdom, and then speedily entered upon a policy of aggression, his object being to reduce all the Grecian states to his supremacy. In 339 B. C., the Amphictyonic council, composed of several Grecian states, declared war against the Locrians, and the next year appointed Philip commander-in-chief of all their forces. The Athenians were at last alarmed at his approach into Greece in this capacity, and formed a league with the Thebans against him; but their united forces were utterly defeated at the battle of Chæronea, 338 B. C.; and Philip was now master of all Greece. Philip was faithless in the observance of treaty obligations, and utterly unscrupulous as to the means by which he gained his end; but his great ability both as a king and a soldier is conceded by all historians. Assassinated, 336 B. C.

Philip II., of France, called Philip Augustus, on account of his great abilities and successful administration, was born, 1165. He was crowned joint king with his father, Louis VII., in 1179, and on the death of the latter, in the year following, he came into full possession of the kingdom. He was one of the greatest monarchs of the Capet dynasty. The crusade against the Albigenses occurred in his reign, and he granted the first charter to the University of Paris. He died at Nantes, 1223.

Philip II., king of Spain, only son of the emperor Charles V., was born in 1527 at Valladolid. His first wife was Mary of Portugal; he then married Mary Tudor in 1554; spent over a year in England, and in 1555 succeeded his father in the sovereignty of Spain, Sicily, Milan, the Netherlands, Franche Comtè, Mexico and Peru. He greatly injured Spain by crushing her chivalrous spirit, by persecuting the industrious Moors and by destroying her commerce by heavy taxation. He died, 1598.

Philip IV., "the fair," king of France, was born at Fontainebleau in 1268. He succeeded to the throne in 1285, and by his marriage with Queen Joanna of Navarre obtained Navarre, Champagne and Brie. The chief feature of his reign was his contest with Pope Boniface VIII., which grew out of his attempt to levy taxes upon the clergy, which the pope directed them not to pay. In 1305 Philip obtained the elevation of one of his own creatures to the papal chair as Clement V., and seated him at Avignon, which place was the residence of the head of the church for seventy years thereafter. This period of papal history is often called "the seventy years' captivity." Philip suppressed the order of the Templars and confiscated their lands. He died, 1314.

Philip VI., of Valois, king of France, was born, 1293, and succeeded Charles IV., in 1328. Edward III. of England contested his claim, contending that the Salic law, though it excluded females, did not exclude their male heirs. Edward was son of a daughter, Philip son of a brother, of Philip IV.; thus began the Hundred Years' war between France and England, 1337. The king afterward purchased Majorca. Died, 1350.

Philip, King, sachem of the Wampanoag tribe of Indians, was the second son of Massasoit, who for nearly thirty years had been the stanch ally of the pilgrim settlers. In 1662 Philip succeeded his elder brother and kept the treaties of his father for several years. But, at length, goaded by the encroachments of the whites, he formed a confederation of tribes, amounting to nearly 10,000 warriors, and in 1670 the war known as "King Philip's war," broke out. The Indians surprised and murdered a great many colonists, but were eventually overcome, and in 1676 Philip himself was captured and slain in Rhode Island.

Philips, Andrew Wheeler, American educator, professor of mathematics and dean of the graduate school of Yale University, was born at Griswold, Conn., 1844. He graduated at Yale, 1873; PhD., 1877; and dean of the graduate school at Yale. Joint author: Transcendental Curves; Graphic Algebra; The Elements of Geometry; Trigonometry and Tables; The Orbit of Swift's Comet, etc. Died, 1915.

Phillips, Stephen, English poet, was born at Somertown, near Oxford, 1868; studied for the civil service, but abandoned this and went on the stage, playing various parts with Frank Benson's company. Author: Marpessa; Eremus; Christ in Hades; Poems; Paolo and Francesca; Herod; Ulysses; The Sin of David; Nero; The Last Heir, drama, etc. Died, 1915.

Phillips, Wendell, American orator and abolitionist, was born in Boston, Mass., 1811. He was graduated at Harvard in 1831, studied law there and was admitted to the bar in 1834. A timely speech in Faneuil hall in 1837 made him at once the principal orator of the anti-slavery party; and henceforth, until President Lincoln's proclamation of January 1, 1863, he was William Lloyd Garrison's loyal and valued ally in the struggle for abolition. He died in Boston, Mass., 1884.

Phillpotts (fil'pots), Eden, English novelist, was born at Mount Aboo, India, 1862. He was educated at Plymouth, England; went to London and studied for the stage, but abandoned it on finding his ability did not justify perseverance, and adopted literature. Author: Some Everyday Folks; Down Dartmoor Way; Lying Prophets; Children of the Mist; The Human Boy; Sons of the Morning; The Striking Hours.

Philo Judæus (fi'lō jōō-dē'us), philosopher of the first century, born in Alexandria; studied the Greek philosophy, and found in it, particularly in the teaching of Plato, the rationalist explanation of the religion of Moses, which he regarded as the revelation to which philosophy was but the key. He died about 54 A. D.

Phipps, Henry, American manufacturer and philanthropist, was born in Philadelphia, 1839. He worked in stores in Pittsburg, 1852-56; later associated with Thomas M. and Andrew Carnegie in iron and steel manufacture, building up large fortune, and having, next to Carnegie, largest interest in United States steel corporation. He was a director of United States steel corporation, Carnegie company. He gave $1,000,000 to the Johns Hopkins University endowment fund in 1909. Died, 1930.

Phocion (fō'shi-on), an Athenian general and statesman, born about 402 B. C., studied under Plato and Xenocrates. As a soldier he was several times sent against Philip of Macedon, though in politics he sided with him against Demosthenes. Forty-five times he was elected strategus. Implicated in a plot to hand over the Piræus to the enemy, he was sentenced to death by the Athenians, 317 B. C. A revulsion of feeling later led to the erection of a statue in his honor.

Piccolomini (pēk'kō-lō'mē-nē), Octavio, German general, was born in Italy, 1599, died in Vienna in 1656. He was a favorite of Wallenstein, who intrusted him with a knowledge of his projects, when he purposed to attack the emperor. In spite of this he made himself the chief instrument of Wallenstein's overthrow, and, after the latter's assassination in 1634, was rewarded with a portion of his estates. He was defeated by Torstensohn at Leipzig in 1642.

Pickering, Edward Charles, American astronomer was born at Boston, 1846. He graduated at the Lawrence Scientific School, Harvard, 1865; LL.D., University of California, 1886, Michigan, 1887, Chicago, 1901, Harvard, 1903, Pennsylvania, 1906; PhD.; Thayer professor of physics, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1867-76; and professor of astronomy and director of the Harvard College observatory. He established the first physical laboratory in the United States, and under his administration the work of the observatory was devoted mostly to the new fields of photometry and photography as applied to astronomical observation. Author: Elements of Physical Manipulation, and various volumes of annals and other publications of Harvard College observatory. Died, 1919.

Pickering, Timothy, American statesman, was born in Massachusetts, 1745. He served as colonel in the American revolution; became Washington's adjutant-general in 1777; he was a delegate to the Pennsylvania constitutional convention of 1787 and 1789. Secretary of war, 1795; secretary of state, 1795-1800; United States senator, 1803-11. He was the author of several political pamphlets, and paid much attention to agriculture. He died in 1829.

Pickett, George Edward (1825-1875,) American soldier, was born at Richmond, Va., graduated at West Point, and entered army during war with Mexico. At outbreak of the Civil War he resigned his commission in the United States Army and entered the Confederate as Colonel. Fought under Lee and won special distinction at Gettysburg.

Pickford, Mary (1893——), actress, first public appearance at 5; initial success in pictures as "Hearts Adrift." Since 1920, member United Artists Corporation. Some of her best performances are Tess of the Storm Country, Cinderella, Poor Little Rich Girl, Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm, Sparrows. Married Douglas Fairbanks, 1920.

Pierce, Franklin, fourteenth president of the United States, was born in Hillsborough, N. H., 1804. Franklin Pierce was educated at Bowdoin College, Maine, and was an officer in the college military company, in which his biographer, Nathaniel Hawthorne, was a private. In 1837 he was elected to the United States senate, of which he was the youngest member. In 1852, in consequence of the conflicting claims of the leaders of the democratic party at the Baltimore convention, he was nominated as a compromise candidate for the presidency against General Scott, the whig nominee, and received the votes of all but four states. He appointed an able cabinet, including Jefferson Davis as secretary of war. During his administration the Missouri compromise was repealed, the treaty for reciprocity of trade with the British American colonies was made, and a treaty with Japan negotiated. He died in 1869.

Pillow, Gideon Johnson, American soldier, was born in Williamson county, Tennessee, 1806. He graduated at the University of Nashville in 1827, was admitted to the bar. He practiced law in his own state until the beginning of the Civil War, to avert which he had proposed various compromises. But having entered the confederate service in 1861, he was rapidly advanced to the command of a brigade, and took part in the battles of Belmont and Fort Donnelson. He was second in command when the latter was taken by the federal troops. He died in Lee county, Arkansas, 1878.

Pinchot (pin'shō), Gifford, American forester, was born in Simsbury, Conn., 1865. He graduated from Yale, 1889; M.A., Yale, 1901, Princeton, 1904; LL.D., McGill, 1909. Studied forestry in Europe; Chief of the U.S. Forestry Dep't, 1898-1910; Member of U.S. Food Administration, 1917-1918; Negotiated settlement of Anthracite Coal Strike, 1923; Reform Governor of Pennsylvania, 1923-1927, 1931-1935. Writer of many books on forestry.

Pinckney (pingk'ni), Charles Cotesworth, American statesman, was born in South Carolina, 1746. He fought during the revolution; assisted in framing the constitution of the United States; was special envoy to France, 1796-97. He was a lawyer of eminence, and author of the famous sentiment, "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute." He died, 1825.

Pindar (pin'dăr), greatest Greek lyric poet, was born at Cynoscephalæ, a village in the territory of Thebes, about 522 B. C. He commenced his career as a poet at an early age, and was employed for many years in various courts and by many of the princes of Greece to compose for them choral songs for special occasions. Of his many works—which consisted of hymns, poems, odes, songs, dirges, and encomiums on princes—only his Epinicia, or Odes, have come down to us entire. These were composed in commemoration of victories in the public games. Died at Thebes, 442 B. C.

Pinero (pi-ner'ō), Sir Arthur Wing, English dramatist, was born in London, 1855. He was educated in private schools; was an actor from 1874-81; and from that time until the present, a dramatic author. Author: The Magistrate; The School-mistress; The Profligate; The Second Mrs. Tanqueray; Trelawny of the Wells; The Gay Lord Quex; His House in Order, and many other plays.

Pinkerton, Allan, Scottish-American detective, was born in Glasgow, 1819, and emigrated to America in 1842. He located in Illinois, where he captured a gang of counterfeiters and became a deputy sheriff four years later. In 1850 he opened a detective agency in Chicago; recovered $40,000 for the Adams express company, and, discovering a plot to murder Abraham Lincoln on his inaugural journey to Washington, was authorized to protect the president-elect. He then organized the United States secret service, of which he became the head, and conducted it until the close of the Civil War. He wrote several books connected with his work before his death in 1884.

Pinkney, William, American lawyer and diplomat, was born at Annapolis, Maryland, 1764. He was admitted to the bar in 1786. In 1806 he was sent to England as minister extraordinary, and remained as minister resident, 1807-11. He was attorney-general of the United States, 1811-18; served in the war of 1812 as commander of a volunteer corps; was elected to congress in 1815; was a member of the United States senate, 1820-22. Died, 1822.

Pisistratus (pi-sis'tra-tus), tyrant, or ruler of Athens, was born about 612 B. C., the son of Hippocrates, who left him a large fortune. He usurped the throne in 560 B. C., and although he was twice expelled, he regained it and ruled with mildness and justice. He enforced the laws of Solon, who was his friend and relative; founded the first public library at Athens, and collected and arranged the poems of Homer. He died about 527 B. C.

Pitman, Benn, Anglo-American stenographer, was born at Trowbridge, Wilts, England, 1822. He settled in the United States, 1853, and founded the phonographic institute, Cincinnati. He was inventor of the electro-process of relief engraving, 1856; military recorder of state trials during the Civil War. Author: The Reporter's Companion; Manual of Phonography, etc. Died, 1910.

Pitney, Mahlon, Jurist, Associate Justice U. S. Supreme Court from 1912 to 1922, was born at Morristown, N. J., 1858. He was graduated from Princeton University, 1879; LL.D., 1908; admitted to the bar, 1882; practiced law, 1882-1901; member of Congress, 1895-9, when he resigned and became State Senator; served in latter body, 1899-1901, being president of Senate in latter year. He was Associate Justice N. J. Supreme Court, 1901-08, and Chief Justice of the N. J. Court of Chancery, 1908-12. Died, 1924.

Pitt, William, first earl of Chatham, a famous English statesman, often referred to as the elder Pitt, was born in Westminster, 1708. Educated at Oxford, he entered parliament in 1735. He later became a member of the privy council, and was called upon to form a new cabinet in 1756, of which the duke of Devonshire was prime minister. He resigned in 1761, but five years later was called upon to form another cabinet, in which he became Viscount Pitt and earl of Chatham. Ill health forced his retirement in 1768, but he kept up an active interest in public affairs, opposed Lord North's policy of taxing the colonies, and, upon the alliance of the colonies and France, protested, in a last great effort, against the proposal to make peace. At the close of his speech, he fell into the arms of his friends, and died a few days later, 1778.

Pitt, William, British statesman, son of the preceding, was born at Hayes, England, 1759. He was educated at Cambridge, studied for the bar at Lincoln's Inn, and entered parliament in 1781. At the age of twenty-three he became chancellor of the exchequer, and at twenty-five was regarded as one of England's most powerful ministers. For seventeen years he held his great position without a break. In 1784 he established a new constitution for the East India company. In 1788-89 he maintained against Fox the right of parliament to supply the temporary defect of royal authority occasioned by the incapacity of the king. Until 1801 he continued to hold the reins of government during one of the most stormy periods of British history; and his admirers have conferred on him the title of "the pilot that weathered the storm." In 1799 he effected the union with Ireland. It was part of his scheme to relieve the Roman Catholic laity from civil disabilities, and to grant a public maintenance to their clergy; but the obstinacy of the king frustrated his design. Chagrined by this failure, Pitt resigned office in 1801. In 1804 he returned again to the head of the treasury, which position he continued to hold until his death in 1806.

Pius VI., Giovanni Angelo Braschi, pope, 1775-99, was born at Cesena, Italy, 1717. He was elected pope in succession to Clement XIV. Soon after came the French revolution and the confiscation of church property in France. The pope launched his thunders in vain, and ere long the murder of the French agent at Rome in 1793, gave the Directory an excuse for an attack. Bonaparte took possession of the legations, and afterward of the march of Ancona, and extorted in 1797 the surrender of these provinces from Pius. Pius was called on to renounce his temporal sovereignty, and on his refusal was seized, carried to Siena, and later to Certosa, Grenoble, and finally Valence, where he died, 1799.

Pius IX., Giovanni Mastai Ferretti, pope, 1846-78, was born near Ancona, Italy, 1792. He was elected in 1846, and his pontificate covers one of the most eventful periods of the papacy. After the insurrection at Rome, 1848, he fled to Gæta, but was restored by French aid two years later. The same year he established a Catholic hierarchy in England, and in 1854 defined the doctrine of the immaculate conception. In 1870 the infallibility dogma was promulgated by the ecumenical council held at Rome. In that year, when the French left the city, it was declared the capital of Italy, occupied by the troops of Victor Emmanuel and the Pope was practically held a captive in the vatican until his death in 1878.

Pius X., 258th Roman pontiff, was born in 1835 at Riese, near Treviso, Italy. His name was Giuseppe Sarto, and he was the son of a minor municipal official. He was educated at Castelfranco and the Diocesan Seminary of Padua, and ordained priest, 1858. In 1884 he was appointed bishop of Mantua, and Leo XIII. made him a cardinal and patriarch of Venice in 1893. His charity and tact brought him unbounded popularity, and he was more than once instrumental in settling serious strikes and labor disputes. On the death of Leo XIII., 1903, the conclave met, and, at the seventh scrutiny, elected him pope, and he chose to be known as Pope Pius X. As priest and bishop his life was spent in the pastoral and episcopal service of the church rather than in diplomatic and official service. He was constantly zealous in the reform of church music and in other matters of ecclesiastical discipline. In 1907 he issued a decree intrusting the revision of the Vulgate Bible to the Benedictine Order, and later an encyclical against the modernist movement in the church. Died, 1914.

Pius XI—Achill Ratti, born at Desio near Milan, March 31, 1857. His father, Francesco Ratti, director of silk factory. The son was thoroughly educated and prepared for the priesthood. His scholarly tastes led to teaching; became Professor in Seminary at Milan; director of the Ambrosian Library; director of the Vatican Library; papal nuncio to Poland in 1918; archbishop of Milan in 1921; elected Pope, February 6, 1922.

Pizarro (pē-thär'rō), Francisco, Spanish conqueror of Peru, was born at Trujillo, Spain, about 1470. He received little education, was of an adventurous spirit, entered the army, and embarked with other adventurers for America.

Plato, who, with Aristotle, represents to modern times the whole compass of Greek philosophy, was born at Athens in the year 429 B. C. When he was twenty years old the political troubles, of which the death of Socrates was only one terrible symptom, forced him to leave Athens for a season, and he resided at Megara, with Euclid, the founder of the Megaric sect. That he visited Italy is extremely probable; at all events, he was most closely connected with Archytas and the Pythagorean philosophers.

After returning from his first visit to Sicily, being then in his fortieth year, he began teaching philosophy publicly in the Academia, a pleasant garden in the most beautiful suburb of Athens, and there gathered around him a large school of distinguished followers, who maintained a regular succession after his death under the name of the philosophers of the academy. He lived to the age of eighty-two; was never married and must have possessed some independent property, as he expressed himself strongly against teaching philosophy for fees, and we nowhere read of his having held any public office from which he could have derived emolument.

The distinctive character of the Platonic philosophy is expressed by the word idealism, as opposed to realism, materialism, or sensationalism, using these words in their most general and least technical sense. We should err greatly, however, if we looked on Plato as a man of mere speculation and a writer of metaphysical books. Neither Plato nor any of the great Greeks looked on their intellectual exercises and recreations as an end in themselves. With them, philosophy did not mean mere knowledge or mere speculation, but it meant wisdom, and wisdom meant wise action, and wise action meant virtue.

References.—Jowett's translation of the Dialogues of Plato; Ritchie's Plato; Nettleship's Lectures on the "Republic"; Grote's Plato; histories of philosophy by Zeller and Gompers; Lutoslawski's Origin and Growth of Plato's Logic; and also Emerson's essay in Representative Men.

Platt, Thomas Collier, American politician, was born in Oswego, N. Y., 1833. He was a member of class of 1853, Yale, but was compelled to give up his course because of ill health; M.A., 1876. Member of congress, 1873-77; elected United States senator, 1881. President of board of quarantine commissioners, New York, 1880-88; was president of Southern Central railroad and of Addison and Northern Pennsylvania railroad; and was the recognized leader in New York republican politics for years. He was again United States senator from 1897 to 1909. Died, 1910.

Plautus (plô'tus), Titus Maccius, the greatest comic poet of ancient Rome, was born about 254 B. C. at Sarsina in Umbria. Of the twenty-one comedies legitimately assigned him twenty are still extant. They present great vivacity, well-constructed plots and humorous, life-like characters and situations. He has found noteworthy imitators in Shakespeare, Molière, Dryden, Addison, and Lessing. His literary career continued uninterrupted until his death in 184 B. C.

Pliny (plin'i), the name of two famous Romans, usually distinguished as Pliny the Elder and Pliny the Younger. Pliny the Elder, Caius Plinius Secundus, was born probably at Como, Italy, A. D. 23, and was a famous naturalist. Of his many works, his Historia Naturalis is the only one that has come down to us. He perished in the great eruption of Vesuvius, which overwhelmed Herculaneum and Pompeii, 79 A. D.

Pliny the Younger, Caius Plinius Cæcilius Secundus, was born at Como, A. D. 61, was the nephew of the elder Pliny, and is celebrated chiefly for his Letters, of which ten books are extant. In 103 he was appointed governor of the provinces known as Bithynia and Pontus; and in this capacity he wrote his well-known letter to the emperor Trajan respecting the Christians in his province, which called forth the emperor's equally well-known reply. He died about 116 A. D.

Plutarch (plu'tark), celebrated Greek biographer and moralist, was a native of Chæronea, in Boeotia. In A. D. 66 he was a pupil of the philosopher Ammonius at Delphi. He visited Italy, and spent some time at Rome, lecturing there on philosophy as early as the reign of Domitian; but his name is not mentioned by any of the eminent Roman writers, his contemporaries. He returned to his native town, where he held various magistracies, and was appointed priest of Apollo. He was still living in 120, but the time of his death is not known.

His great work is entitled Parallel Lives, and consisted of biographies of forty-six eminent Greeks and Romans, arranged in pairs, each pair accompanied by a comparison of characters. They are written with a moral purpose and present not orderly narratives of events, but portraitures of men, drawn with much graphic power, with great good sense, honesty and kindheartedness.

Few books of ancient or modern times have been so widely read, so generally admired, as these Lives.

The English translation by the Langhornes is well known; less known, but more spirited is that by North. A new edition of the translation called Dryden's, revised by Clough, appeared in 1859. Most of Plutarch's other writings are ethical, and are entitled Moralia.

References.—Trench's Four Lectures on Plutarch; Volkmann's Leben, Schriften und Philosophie von Plutarch.

Pobyedonostsev (pō-bye-dō-nōs'tsef), Konstantin Petrovich, Russian jurist and statesman, was born at Moscow, 1827. He studied at St. Petersburg, became an official of the senate in Moscow, and in 1858 a professor of civil law there. In 1872 he was made a member of the council of the empire, and as procurator of the holy synod, from 1880 to 1905, was the most uncompromising champion of the autocracy and of the supremacy of the orthodox Greek church. He died in 1907.

Pocahontas (pō'ka-hon'tas), the celebrated Princess Pocahontas, of American colonial history, was born about 1595, the daughter of Powhatan, an Indian chief of Virginia. In 1613 she married John Rolfe, one of the settlers of Jamestown, afterward secretary and recorder-general of Virginia. She died in England in 1617, leaving a son, Thomas Rolfe. Her descendants include some of the leading families of Virginia, the celebrated John Randolph being one of them.

Poe, Edgar Allan, famous American poet and romancer, was born in Boston, Mass., 1809. He was adopted by John Allan of Richmond; entered the University of Virginia in 1826, but left after a term and spent two years as a private in the regular army. He expressed a wish to remain in the army, and Mr. Allan secured him a cadetship in the Military Academy at West Point. Here he neglected his studies and was cashiered in 1831. In 1833, the publisher of a Baltimore magazine having offered prizes for the best prose story and the best poem, Poe competed and won both prizes. In 1835 he married Virginia Clemm. In 1837 he removed to New York, where he lived by contributing to the New York Quarterly Review and other periodicals, and where in 1838 he published The Narrative of Arthur Gordon Pym. In 1839 he became the editor of The Gentleman's Magazine at Philadelphia, and published a collection of his best stories, with the title Tales of the Arabesque and Grotesque. The year 1845 was marked by the appearance of his famous poem, The Raven. In 1847, after the death of his wife, he began to deteriorate, and died at Baltimore, Md., in 1849. His was perhaps the most original poetical genius which America has produced.

Polk (pōk), James Knox, eleventh president of the United States, was born in North Carolina, 1795. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and was admitted to the bar at Columbia, Tenn., in 1820. Governor of Tennesee, 1839-41; and was elected as a democrat to the presidency in 1844. The principal feature of Polk's administration, which extended from 1845 to 1849, was the Mexican war, by which the United States acquired the great states of Texas and California and the territory of New Mexico. On the expiration of Polk's term he retired to Nashville, Tenn., where he died a few months afterward, 1849.

Polk, Leonidas, general in the Confederate army, and bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church, was born at Raliegh, N. C., 1806. He graduated at West Point in 1827, and received a commission in the artillery, but resigned and studied for the ministry. Soon after the outbreak of the Civil War, Polk tendered his services to the confederate government, and was appointed major-general by Jefferson Davis. He commanded an army corps at the battle of Shiloh, and in October following was made lieutenant-general. He was killed by a cannon-shot while reconnoitering on Pine mountain, 1864.

Pollock, Sir Frederick, English legal writer and educator, was born in London, 1845. He was graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge, and was admitted to the bar in 1871. LL.D., Cambridge; D.C.L., Oxford. Corpus professor of jurisprudence, University of Oxford, 1883-1903; and honorary fellow of Corpus Christi College, Oxford, 1906. Author: Principles of Contract; The Law of Torts; The Land Laws; Essays in Jurisprudence and Ethics; Introduction to the History of the Science of Politics; Indian Contract Act, etc.

Polo (pō'lō), Marco, Italian traveler, was born in Venice, of a noble family, about 1255. In 1271 he accompanied his father and uncle to the court of the Tartar emperor of China, by whom he was received with favor and employed on several embassies. He was then captured by the Genoese, put in prison, and dictated to another captive, Rusticiano, the story of his adventures, which proved to be the first account that opened up to wondering Europe the magnificence of the eastern world. He died about 1323.

Polybius (pō-lib'i-us), Greek historian, was born at Megalopolis, in Arcadia, about 204 B. C. He was educated and trained for a public career, was one of the thousand distinguished Archæans who were carried as prisoners to Rome, 168 B. C. After his return to Greece, he undertook numerous journeys into foreign countries, and wrote his celebrated History. His death was caused by a fall from his horse, about 122 B. C.

Polycarp (pol'i-kärp), bishop of Smyrna and, Christian martyr, was born about 69 A. D. He was brought up at Smyrna, was taught the doctrine of christianity by the apostles, particularly by John, with whom he had "familiar intercourse." He was burned alive. Polycarp wrote several Epistolæ, of which only one has been preserved, the Epistola ad Philippenses, valuable for its numerous quotations from the new testament.

Polygnotus (pol'ig-nō'tus), early Greek painter, was born in Thasos, and settled in Athens 463 B. C. He is considered the founder of historical painting, and is praised especially by Aristotle, who pays a high tribute to him. He was the first to attempt portrait painting and to exhibit character by his art. He was identified with Cimon in the reconstruction of Athens, and his school did much to adorn Athens' famous temples.

Pombal (pōm-bäl'), Marquis of, Dom Sebastiano Jose de Carvalho, one of the greatest of Portuguese statesmen and one of the ablest men of his time, was born in 1699. On the accession of Maria, he was, under Jesuit influence, dispossessed of power, and died in poverty, 1782.

Pompey, Cneius Pompeius Magnus, called the Great, famous Roman general, was born 106 B. C. He early evinced his military talents by siding with Sulla against Marius, and defeating Brutus, in 83 B. C. In 72 B. C. he reduced Spain to subjection, and on his return was elected to the consulship, with Crassus as his colleague. In this capacity, he restored the power of the tribunes and exterminated the Mediterranean pirates. He next successfully put an end to the Mithridatic war, occupied Syria, besieged and took Jerusalem, and subjugated Pontus and Bithynia. In 59 B. C. he, with Cæsar and Crassus, formed the triumvirate; and, in 51 B. C. identified himself with the aristocratic party, which brought him into armed antagonism with Cæsar. He was overthrown by Cæsar on the field of Pharsalia, 48 B. C., escaped to Egypt and was assassinated.

Ponce de Leon (pōn'thā dā lā-ōn'), Juan, Spanish explorer, was born in Leon, Spain, 1460. Having heard of the existence of a fountain that could restore youth and beauty, he set out in search of it in 1512, and discovered and named Florida on an Easter Sunday. At the end of a subsequent voyage he died, 1521.

Poniatowski, Joseph Antony, born at Warsaw, 1762, was trained in the Austrian army. When the duchy of Warsaw was constituted, in 1807, he was appointed minister of war and commander-in-chief. Five years later, with a large body of Poles, he joined Napoleon in his invasion of Russia, and distinguished himself at Smolensk, at Borodino, and at Leipzig, where, in covering the French retreat, he was drowned in the Elster, 1813.

Poniatowski (pō'nyä-tôf'skē), Stanislaus Augustus, last king of Poland, was born at Wolczyn, Lithuania, 1732. He tried, too late, to introduce reforms. The intrigues of discontented nobles led to Russian and Prussian intervention, and King Stanislaus resigned his crown and died at St. Petersburg, 1798.

Pontiac (pon'ti-ak), chief of the Ottawa Indians, was born about 1740. After the French had surrendered Canada, his hatred of the English prompted him to organize a combined attack upon all the English garrisons and settlements, with a view to the extermination of what he called "those dogs dressed in red." Pontiac resorted to every means familiar to savages to reduce Detroit, but was unsuccessful. Peace was finally made in 1766, Pontiac being forced to submit to British rule. He was killed at Cahokia, Illinois, by a drunken Indian in 1769.

Pope, Alexander, celebrated English poet, was born, 1688, in Lombard Street, London. Pope was deformed, small in size and delicate in constitution. The groundwork of learning he acquired at two private schools, and from two priests, who were employed as his tutors; for the rest he was indebted to his own persevering studies. He was a poet almost from infancy. His pastorals and some translations appeared in Tonson's Miscellany in 1709, but were written three or four years earlier. These were followed by the Essay on Criticism, 1711, and Rape of the Lock, 1712-17. From 1715-26 Pope was chiefly engaged on his translations of the Iliad and the Odyssey. In 1728-29 he published his greatest satire, the Dunciad, an attack on all poetasters and pretended wits. Died, 1744.

Pope, John, American general, was born at Louisville, Ky., 1822. He graduated at West Point in 1842, entered the engineer corps of the United States army, served in the Florida war of 1842-44 and afterward in the Mexican war. During the Civil War he was appointed brigadier-general of volunteers, and in 1862 highly distinguished himself by the capture of New Madrid, Mo., and "Island No. 10," in the Mississippi river. On account of these signal successes he was transferred to the east and placed in command. In 1882 Pope was made a major-general in the regular army, and retired in 1886. He died at Sandusky, Ohio, 1892.

Porson (pôr's'n), Richard, eminent English Greek scholar, was born in Norfolk, England, 1759. He was graduated at Cambridge, held a professorship of Greek there, and proved to be a prodigy of learning and critical acumen. After his death, several of his works left in manuscript were published. Died, 1808.

Porter, David D., American admiral, born at Chester, Pa., 1813; entered navy as midshipman, 1829; stationed at naval base during Mexican war. As commander of the Pouhatan in Civil War won great honors at capture of New Orleans; cooperated with Farragut in attack on Vicksburg; raised to rank of rear admiral, 1862; head of naval academy, 1865; vice-admiral, 1866; admiral, 1870. Died, 1891.

Porter, Gene Stratton, author and naturalist, born in Wabash County, Ind., 1868; married C. D. Porter, 1886. Novels popular for their idealistic treatment of characters in close association with nature. Author: The Song of the Cardinal, Freckles, What I Have Done With Birds, At the Foot of the Rainbow, A Girl of the Limberlost, Birds of the Bible, Music of the Wild, The Harvester, Moths of the Limberlost, Laddie, Michael O' Halloran. Died, 1924.

Porter, Horace, American diplomat and soldier, was born at Huntingdon, Pa., 1837. He graduated at West Point, 1860; LL.D., Union, 1894, Princeton, 1903. He served in the Civil War; was lieutenant colonel and aide-de-camp to General Grant, 1864. He was assistant secretary of war, 1866; and executive secretary to President Grant, 1869-73. United States ambassador to France, 1897-1905; Author: West Point Life; Campaigning With Grant, etc. Died, 1920.

Porter, Jane, English novelist, was born at Durham, England, 1776. Her first novel was Thaddeus of Warsaw, which was translated into several languages. In 1810 she published The Scottish Chiefs, which was also very popular. In 1841 she visited St. Petersburg, and died, 1850, at Bristol, England.

Porter, Noah, American educator and philosophical writer, was born at Farmington, Conn., 1811. He graduated at Yale college in 1831, and, after teaching for a number of years, studied theology and became pastor of a Congregational church at New Milford, Conn. He was professor of metaphysics and moral philosophy at Yale college, 1846-71; president of Yale, 1871-86; and died at New Haven, Conn., 1892. Among Dr. Porter's numerous works are: The Human Intellect; Books and Reading; Elements of Intellectual Science; Elements of Moral Science. He was the editor of Webster's Unabridged and of the International Dictionaries.

Porter, William Sydney (1862-1910), known as "O. Henry," after varied years of journalism and travel, settled down in New York in 1901, where he became one of the most popular short story writers in America. Author: The Four Million; Roads of Destiny, etc.

Portes Gil, Emilio, was born in Victoria, State of Tamaulipas, Mexico, in 1891. He received a legal training. He was war secretary under Obregon. He became governor of Tamaulipas in 1920. In 1922-24 he sat in congress. He was secretary of state under Calles. In 1928 he was elected by congress as provisional President for the period Nov. 30, 1928 to Feb. 4, 1930.

Potter, Henry Codman (1834-1908), American protestant Episcopal prelate, was born in Schenectady, N. Y. After various pastorates, he became bishop of New York in 1887. Author: Thirty Years Reviewed; Our Threefold Victory; The Church and Her Children; The Religion of Today.

Potter, Paul, celebrated Dutch animal-painter, was born, a painter's son, at Enkhuizen in 1625. He left Amsterdam and established himself at The Hague at an early age, where he studied painting under Jacob de Weth. Here he resided until 1653, when he returned to Amsterdam. His best pictures are pastoral scenes with animal figures, the Young Bull being especially celebrated. The Rijks museum at Amsterdam possesses the Bear-hunt and seven other pictures, and England is rich in his works. Died, 1654.

Poussin (pōō'saN'), Nicholas, French painter, was born in Normandy in 1594. He was a pupil of Varin, Lallemont, and others, and in 1624 went to Rome, where he studied with Dufresnoy the sculptor. His reputation mainly rests on his success in the classic style. Upward of two hundred prints have been engraved from his works. The national gallery in London has several of Poussin's pictures. Died, 1665.

Powell, Edward Payson, American journalist and author, was born at Clinton, N. Y., 1833. He graduated at Hamilton College, 1853, and from the Union theological seminary, 1858. He was editorial writer on the St. Louis Globe-Democrat for several years; and editorial writer of The Independent. Author: Our Heredity From God; Liberty and Life. Died, 1915.

Powers, Hiram, American sculptor, was born at Woodstock, Vt., 1805. While still a boy he went to Cincinnati, Ohio, where he became an apprentice to a clockmaker, and about the same time formed the acquaintance of a German sculptor, who taught him to model in plaster. In 1835 he went to Washington, where he executed the busts of the most distinguished persons of his day. In 1837 he went to Italy to study his art, and resided in Florence until his death. In 1838 he produced his statue of Eve, which excited the admiration of Thorwaldsen, and in 1839 the still more popular Greek Slave. Died, 1873.

Poynter, Sir Edward John, English painter, was born of Huguenot ancestry in Paris, 1836. Was educated at Westminster and Ipswich; studied, 1853-54, at Rome and, 1856-60, in Paris and elsewhere. His water colors are numerous, and he was elected to the royal water color society in 1883, was R. A. from 1876. In 1871 he became Slade professor of art, University of London; in 1876-81 was director of art at South Kensington; from 1894 to 1905 was director of the national gallery, London; and beginning 1896 president of the Royal academy. In 1869-70 he designed the cartoons for a mosaic of St. George in the British house of parliament. He was knighted, 1887, and created a baronet in 1902. Died, 1919.

Praxiteles (prak-sit'ē-lēz), famous Grecian sculptor, is believed to have been a native of Athens, to have flourished early in the fourth century B. C. and to have died at the age of eighty. He executed statues in both bronze and marble, and was unrivaled in the exhibition of the softer beauties of the human form, especially the female figure, his most celebrated being the marble statue of Aphrodite at Cnidus.

Prentice, George D., American journalist, was born at Preston, Conn., 1802, and graduated at Brown University in 1823. After studying law he edited the New England Review for two years, and in 1831 became editor of the Louisville Journal, which position he continued to hold until his death in 1870. He also achieved considerable reputation as a public lecturer and was the author of a number of poems.

Prescott, William Hickling, American historian, was born at Salem, Mass., 1796. During his college course he lost the sight of an eye by being struck by a piece of bread playfully thrown at him by a fellow student, and his studies so affected the other eye, that he became nearly blind. He was then sent abroad for his health, and traveled in England, France and Italy. On his return to America he turned his attention to literature, and, in 1825, selected materials for his History of Ferdinand and Isabella, which appeared in 1837. He next devoted six years to the History of the Conquest of Mexico and four years to the Conquest of Peru. From 1855 to 1858 he published three volumes of his History of Philip II, but left it unfinished. He was made D.C.L. at Oxford in 1850. Died, 1859.

Price, Sterling, American general, was born in Virginia, 1809. He was a democratic member of congress, 1845-46; was made brigadier-general in the Mexican war; was governor of Missouri, 1853-57; became a noted leader of the secession party; was appointed major-general in the confederate service in 1862, and rendered distinguished service to the confederacy in the southwest throughout the Civil War. Died, 1867.

Priestly, Joseph, eminent English clergyman and experimental philosopher, was born in 1733, at Fieldhead, in Yorkshire, England. In 1774 he announced his discovery of oxygen. At Birmingham he proceeded actively with philosophical and theological researches, became the associate of Boulton, Watt, and Dr. Darwin, grandfather of Charles Darwin, and was also appointed pastor of a Unitarian congregation. In 1791, however, the scene changed. His religious principles and his avowed partiality to the French revolution excited the hatred of the high church and tory party, and, in the riots which took place in July, his house, library, manuscripts and apparatus were committed to the flames by the infuriated mob and he was exposed to great personal danger. He fled to Northumberland, Pennsylvania, at which place he died, 1804. His works include between seventy and eighty volumes. Among them are: Lectures on General History; Theory and History of Language; Principles of Oratory and Criticism; Charts of Biography and History; Disquisitions Relating to Matter and Spirit, etc.

Prim (prēm), Juan, Spanish general and statesman, was born, 1814. Entered Spanish army very young; colonel in 1837; aided Navaraez, 1843, overthrow Espartero in effecting the return of Queen Maria Christina, was banished, 1864, after helping overthrow Isabella; welcomed back to Spain and occupied high posts. He furnished the pretext for the Franco-Prussian war by offer of the Spanish crown to Prince Leopold. Assassinated in 1870 for having procured election of Amadeus to the Spanish throne.

Prinzip Gavriola, Serbian assassin of Austrian Archduke Francis Ferdinand, June 28, 1914. Died in Austrian fortress, 1918.

Pritchett, Henry Smith, American educator, was born at Fayette, Mo., 1857. He graduated at Pritchett College, Glasgow, Mo., 1875; Ph.D., Munich, 1894; LL.D., Hamilton, 1900; Pennsylvania, Harvard, Yale, 1901; Johns Hopkins, 1902; Williams, Michigan, 1905; Sc.D., Tufts, 1906. Professor of astronomy and director of observatory, Washington University, St. Louis, 1883-97; superintendent of United States coast and geodetic survey, 1897-1900; president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1900-06; and president of the Carnegie foundation for advancement of teaching, 1906. Author of various scientific papers.

Proctor, Richard Anthony, English astronomer and mathematician, was born at Chelsea, England, 1837. He was a graduate at St. John's College, Cambridge, in 1860. About 1885 he settled in St. Louis, and later moved to Florida, leaving there just before he was seized with his fatal illness in New York. His principal popular books were: Saturn and Its System; Gnomonic Star Atlas; Half-hours with the Telescope; Half-hours with Stars; Other Worlds Than Ours; Light Science for Leisure Hours; Elementary Astronomy; Border Land of Science. Died, 1888.

Protagoras (prō'-tag'ō-ras), the first of the Greek sophists, was born about 480 B. C., and died about 411 B. C. A native of Abdera, he settled in Athens, and gained a reputation as a paid teacher of philosophy. His doctrine was a form of agnosticism; his favorite saying was that "man is the measure of all things."

Proudhon (prōō'dôN'), Pierre Joseph, French socialist, was born at Besançon, 1809. By his vigorous advocacy of extreme and democratic opinions he became one of the leading figures of his day. His economic views are expounded in his Qu'est-ce que la propriété and his Système des contradictions économiques. He died at Passy, 1865.

Ptolemy I. (tol'ē-mi), king of Egypt, known by his surname Soter, or "the preserver," was born, 367 B. C. Ptolemy acted as one of Alexander's generals in his eastern campaigns; and when the possessions of the latter were divided, after his death at Babylon, 323 B. C., Egypt fell to Ptolemy. Two years before his death, which occurred in 283 B. C., he abdicated in favor of his son, Ptolemy Philadelphus. Ptolemy's reign extended from 323 B. C. to 285 B. C.

Ptolemy II., surnamed Philadelphus, son of Ptolemy I., was born, 309 B. C., in the island of Cos. His reign is remarkable for the successful cultivation of the arts of peace rather than the practice of war. He enriched the library of Alexandria with all the literary treasures of his own and of earlier times, and the museum was crowded with the learned from all countries. He also expended large amounts on public works; was the builder of the famous lighthouse on the island of Pharos and constructed a royal mausoleum, to which he removed the remains of Alexander from Memphis. Altogether, under Ptolemy Philadelphus Egypt rose to a high rank among the nations in power and wealth. He reigned from 285 B. C. to 247 B. C.

Ptolemy, celebrated astronomer and geographer, whose proper name is Claudius Ptolemaeus, was a native of Egypt, though it is uncertain whether he was born at Pelusium or at Ptolemais in the Thebaid; flourished 139-161 B. C. Ptolemy, both as an astronomer and geographer, held supreme sway over the minds of almost all the scientific men from his own time down until about the fifteenth century; and in astronomy especially he seems to have been not so much an independent investigator as a corrector and improver of the work of his predecessors.

Puccini, Giacomo, composer of operas, was born at Lucca, Italy, in 1858, of a family known for generations for musical accomplishment. He studied at Milan Conservatory and became a professor there. In that year he brought out his first opera, Manon Lescaut. Following this, with three and four year regularity, came La Boheme, La Tosca, Madame Butterfly and a number of other operas less well known. Puccini has several times visited the United States. His recent works include The Girl of the Golden West, Le Rondine, Il Tabarro, Suor Angelica. Died, 1924.

Pugin (pū'jin), Augustus Welby, English architect, was born in London, 1812, the son of a French architect, Augustin Pugin, in whose office he was trained, chiefly by making drawings for his father's books on Gothic buildings. He was associated with Sir Charles Barry, architect of the British houses of parliament, and designed and modeled a large part of the decorations and sculpture for those structures. Died, 1832.

Pulaski (poo-lás'kē), Casimir, Polish count and general, who fell in the American revolutionary war, was born in Podolia, 1748. On account of the active part he took in the Polish war against Russia, he was stripped of his estates and outlawed in the partition of Poland in 1772. In 1777 he offered his services to the American colonies in their contest against England, and for his gallant conduct at the battle of Brandywine was given a brigade of cavalry, which he commanded until March, 1778. At the siege of Savannah, in October, 1779, he fell in an assault at the head of the cavalry, and died on board the brig Wasp two days later.

Pulitzer (pū'lit-sēr), Joseph, American journalist, proprietor of New York World 1883-1911, was born at Budapest, Hungary, 1847. He was educated by private tutor; came to United States, 1864; served until end of Civil War in a cavalry regiment. In 1878 he bought the St. Louis Dispatch and united it with The Evening Post, as the Post-Dispatch, which he still owned at the time of his death. He sat in the Missouri legislature, 1869; Missouri state constitutional convention, 1874; was elected to congress in New York for term 1885-87, but resigned after a few months' service. In 1903 he endowed with $1,000,000 Columbia University school of journalism, with agreement to give an additional $1,000,000 when the school should be in successful operation. Mr. Pulitzer died in 1911. His will ratified the previous gift to Columbia of $7,000,000 and also ratified the agreement that the additional $1,000,000 be paid.

Pullman, George M., American inventor and business man, was born at Brocton, Chautauqua county, N. Y., 1831. He made his home in Chicago in 1859, and in the same year prepared models of sleeping cars, which became the foundation of his fortune. In 1863 he began building the coaches that are called by his name the world over. A few years later he organized the Pullman palace car company which was to build them. In 1880 he founded the town of Pullman, near Chicago, where the coaches are built. He died in 1897, having amassed a large fortune from his inventions and his various business enterprises.

Pupin (pū-pēn'), Michael Idvorsky, physicist, electrician, professor of electro-mechanics, Columbia, beginning 1889, was born in Ivard Banat, Hungary, 1858. He graduated at Columbia University, 1883; Ph.D., Berlin. His researches in electrical resonance and wave propagation have made possible distance telephony, multiplex telegraphy. D. 1935.

Purcell (pûr'sel), Henry, noted English composer, was born at Westminster in 1658, and in 1664 became a chorister in the Chapel Royal. He wrote many anthems and other church music and many dramatic and chamber compositions. Among them are his opera Dido and Æneas, written at seventeen; his music to the Tempest, his songs in Dryden's King Arthur, his music to Howard's and Dryden's Indian Queen. His greatest work is the Te Deum and Jubilate. His church music was edited from the original manuscript by Vincent Novello in 1829-32, with an essay on his life and works. Purcell died, 1695, and was buried in Westminster abbey.

Pusey (pū'zi), Edward Bouverie, English divine, was born at Pusey, in Berkshire, in 1800 and graduated at Oxford in 1822. In 1828 he was appointed professor of Hebrew at Oxford, a position he held until his death. In private life, Pusey was a man of warm affection and was widely known for his gentleness, sincerity and humility. His charity was limited only by his income; besides abundant gifts to the poor, he spent large sums in helping to provide churches in East London and in founding and supporting sisterhoods. He died at Oxford, 1882.

Pushkin (poosh'kin), Alexander Sergeyevitch, Russian poet, was born in 1799. He was the son of a nobleman and when quite young became a government clerk. Among his writings are the poems: The Gypsies; Poltava; Dubrovski; and The Captain's Daughter, a novel. Pushkin was killed in a duel at St. Petersburg when thirty-seven years old, 1837.

Putnam, George Haven, publisher, head of G. P. Putnam's Sons, was born in London, England, 1844. He was educated at the Sorbonne, Paris, and University of Göttingen; A.M., Bowdoin College; Litt.D., Western Pennsylvania. He left Göttingen without graduating to enter 176th New York volunteers, 1862; served from private to major, until 1865. President, G. P. Putnam's Sons, publishers, New York. He died in 1930.

Putnam, Herbert, librarian of congress since 1899, was born at New York, 1861. He graduated at Harvard, 1883; Litt.D., Bowdoin, 1898; LL.D., Columbian, 1903; Illinois, 1903; Wisconsin, 1904; Yale, 1907. He took a partial course at Columbia law school, and was admitted to the Minnesota bar, 1886; to the bar of Suffolk county, Mass., 1892; and practiced law, Boston, 1892-95. Minneapolis public library, 1887-91, and Boston public library, 1895-99. He was president of the American library association, 1898, 1904, and overseer of Harvard, 1902.

Putnam, Israel, American general, born at Danvers, Mass., 1718. In 1755 he helped as a captain to repel a French invasion of New York and was present at the battle of Lake George. In 1759 he received a regiment, in 1762 went on the west India campaign and in 1764 helped to relieve Detroit, then besieged by Pontiac. In 1775, after the battle of Concord, he was given command of the forces of Connecticut, was at Bunker Hill, held the command at New York, and in August 1776, at Brooklyn Heights, where he was defeated by Howe. Died, 1790.

Pyle, Howard, American artist, author, was born at Wilmington, Del., 1853. He was educated in private schools and at the art students' league, New York. Author and illustrator: The Merry Adventures of Robin Hood; Pepper and Salt, or Seasoning for Young Folks; Within the Capes; The Wonder Clock; The Story of Sir Launcelot and His Companions. Died, 1911.

Pym (pim), John, English orator and statesman, was born at Brymore, in Somersetshire, in 1584. He was for many years member of parliament for Tavistock. In 1641 he led the impeachment of the earl of Strafford; and in the following year he was one of the "five members" the attempt to seize whom, on the part of Charles I., immediately preceded the English civil war. Scarcely had the great conflict begun, however, when toil and anxiety brought his career to a close. He died at Derby House, 1643, and was buried in state in Westminster abbey.

Pyrrhus (pir'us), Greek general, king of Epirus, was born about 318 B. C.; came to the throne in 306 B. C. He was expelled a few years later, but restored by the help of Ptolemy Soter in 296 B. C.; held the kingdom of Macedonia for a short time, and, in 281 B. C., went to Italy to help Tarentum against the Romans. He was at first successful, through his elephants and the phalanx, but was finally defeated in 275 B. C. Died, 272 B. C.

Pythagoras (pi-thag'ō-ras), celebrated Greek philosopher, was born about 586 B. C., at Samos. He began to travel at the age of eighteen. On his return he taught geometry at Samos, after which he settled at Crotona, in Magna Græcia, and established a school of philosophy, which became famous. Persecution at length drove him thence, and he took refuge in the temple of the Muses at Metapontum, where he is said to have been starved to death, about 497 B. C. Besides being an illustrious metaphysical philosopher. Phthagoras was a great geometrician and astronomer, discovered the numerical relations in music and propounded the theory of the "harmony of the spheres."

Quatrefages de Breau (ka'tr'-fâzh' dē brā'ō'), Jean Louis Armand de, French naturalist, was born at Berthezème, France, 1810. In 1850 he was elected professor in the Lycee Napoleon and in 1855 at the natural history museum, Paris. His chief works are: Souveniers d'un Naturaliste; Unité de l'Espèce Humaine; L'Espèce Humaine; Crania Ethnica; Les Pygmées; Darwin et ses Precurseurs Francais; and Théories Transformistes. Died, 1892.

Quay, Matthew Stanley, United States senator and republican politician, was born at Dillsburg, Pa., 1833. He entered the state legislature in 1865, was twice state secretary, state treasurer; chairman of the republican national committee during the Harrison campaign of 1888. In 1887 he was made United States senator for Pennsylvania, reëlected in 1893, and two years later was tried for alleged misappropriation of public funds, but was acquitted. He was again elected in 1901, but died in 1904.

Quesnay (ke'ne'), Francois, French economist and physician, was born at Méré, France, 1694. He studied medicine at Paris, and at his death was the first physician to the king. But the fame of the "European Confucius" depends on his essays in political economy. Quesnay's principles are well known from his contributions to the Encyclopedie, and from his Maximes du Gouvernement Economique, Le Droit Naturel, etc. He died in 1774.

Quesnel (kĕ'nĕl), Pasquier, French Roman Catholic theologian, was born in Paris, 1634. He studied at the Sorbonne, became in 1662 director of the Paris oratory, and here wrote Réflexions Morales sur le Nouveau Testament. Having refused to condemn Jansenism in 1684, he fled to Brussels, where his Réflexions were published 1687-94. His book was condemned in the bull Unigenitus in 1713. He spent his last years at Amsterdam, and died there in 1719.

Quigley, James Edward, Roman Catholic archbishop of Chicago beginning 1893, was born at Oshawa, Canada, 1854, and moved with his parents to Lima, N. Y. He was educated at St. Joseph's College, Buffalo, N. Y., and at the University of Innspruck and the College Propaganda, Rome. Bishop of Buffalo, 1897-1903, when he was installed in Chicago. Died, 1915.

Quiller-Couch, Arthur Thomas, British novelist and essayist, was born in Cornwall, 1863. He was graduated at Trinity College, Oxford. Author: Dead Man's Rock; The Blue Pavilions; The Warwickshire Avon; The Delectable Duchy; Verses and Parodies; Shakespeare's Christmas; From a Cornish Window, etc. In 1897 he was commissioned to finish R. L. Stevenson's uncompleted novel, St. Ives.

Quincy, Josiah, American statesman, was born in Boston, Mass., 1772. He was graduated at Harvard, 1790, and adopted the law as a profession. In 1805-13 he was a member of congress. In 1813 he was elected to the Massachusetts state senate, and joined in the protest of the legislature against the war and the admission of Louisiana. He was mayor of Boston, 1823-28, and president of Harvard, 1829-45. He published History of Harvard University; The Municipal History of the Town and City of Boston During Two Centuries; The Life of John Quincy Adams; and other works. Died, 1864.

Quinet (kē'nĕ'), Edgar, French philosopher and author, was born at Bourg, France, 1803, and first studied at Lyons and at Paris. From this early period he formed an intimate friendship with Michelet. He then became a contributor to the Revue des Deux Mondes, in which Ahasvérus, perhaps his finest work, first appeared. From 1839 to 1842 he held the chair of foreign literature at Lyons. From here he passed to a chair at the Collège de France. He threw himself eagerly into the reform agitation that brought about the revolution of 1848, and was elected a member of the constitution and legislative assemblies, but was expelled from France. On the fall of the empire he returned to France, and was reïnstalled in his chair at the Collège de France, 1870. In 1871 he was elected a member of the assembly, and died in 1875.

Quintilian (kwin-til'i-an), or Marcus Fabius Quintilianus, Latin rhetorician, was born at Calagurris, now Calahorra, in Spain, about 35 A. D. The work by which he is known is entitled De Institutione Oratoria, or sometimes Institutione Oratoria, and is comprised in twelve books. This work, which contains all that Quintilian considered most valuable in the earlier treatises, both Greek and Latin, on the subject, was discovered by Poggio Bracciolini in the monastery of St. Gall in 1417. Quintilian died probably in Rome about 97 A. D.

Rabelais (rà'b'-lē'), Francois, the great French humorist, was born at Chinon, in Touraine, about 1490. In 1530 he settled at Montpellier and, taking a medical degree at the university was appointed lecturer. His romance, in which are narrated the wonderful adventures of Gargantua and Pantagruel, continues to take rank as one of the world's masterpieces of humor and grotesque invention. Lord Bacon called Rabelais "the great jester of France"; others have called him a "comic Homer." Died in Paris, 1553.

Rachel (rà'shel'), or Elisa Rachel Felix, celebrated actress, was born at Munf, in the canton of Aargau, Switzerland, 1821, daughter of poor parents, of the Jewish race. She began her career by singing in the streets of Lyons, and subsequently of Paris. Although her life was spent chiefly in Paris, she visited London, St. Petersburg, Amsterdam and many other European cities, and in all of them her genius for tragedy was recognized as of the highest order. She died, near Toulon, France, 1858.

Rachmaninoff, Sergei Vasilievich, Russian composer and pianist, was born in 1873 in the province of Novgorod. He received his musical education at Petrograd and Moscow, and won a gold medal for his opera Aleka in 1892. Besides being a skillful pianist and conductor, he has been a prolific composer. His works include concertos, symphonies, preludes, sonatas, devotional music and the operas Aleka, The Miser Knight, Francesca da Rimini. He visited the United States in 1909-1910, appearing as pianist and conductor of his own works. In 1912 he wrote The Bells, produced in Liverpool in 1921. He is probably most popularly known through his preludes.

Racine (rà'sēn'), Jean Baptiste, distinguished French dramatist, was born at La Fertè Milon, 1639, and completed his education at the seminary of Port Royal. His first dramatic efforts The Thebaid, and Alexander the Great, gave but faint indications of superior talent, but his tragedy of Andromache placed him far above all his contemporaries except Corneille. He increased his fame by the production of Britannicus, Berenice, Iphigenia and other tragedies, and by his comedy, The Pleaders. After a lapse of twelve years, he wrote, by desire of Madame de Maintenon and Louis XIV., the dramas of Esther and Athalie, to be performed at the Seminary of St. Cyr. The latter is now considered, very generally, to be his finest play. Died, 1699.

Radcliffe, Ann (née Ward), noted English novelist, was born in London, 1764. In her twenty-third year she married William Radcliffe, a student of law, who became proprietor and editor of a weekly newspaper, the English Chronicle. Among her works are: The Castles of Athlin and Dunbayne; A Sicilian Romance; The Romance of the Forest; Mysteries of Udolpho, etc. She died in 1823.

Radcliffe, John, English physician and the founder of the Radcliffe library at Oxford, was born at Wakefield, Yorkshire, England, 1650. To University college he left his estate in Yorkshire. He left 40,000 pounds for the erection of a public library in Oxford, since known as the Radcliffe library, which he endowed with 150 pounds per annum for a librarian. The Radcliffe infirmary and Radcliffe observatory, at Oxford, were both erected out of this fund. Died, 1714.

Rae, John, British author and journalist, was born in Wick, Scotland, 1845. He was graduated at Edinburgh University; M.A., Edinburgh; honorary LL.D., Edinburgh. He did much writing for the leading reviews, especially on social and economic subjects, and is the author of Contemporary Socialism; Eight Hours for Work; Life of Adam Smith, etc. Died, 1915.

Raeburn, Sir Henry, Scottish portrait painter, was born at Stockbridge, near Edinburgh, 1756. At twenty-two he married the widow of Count Leslie, a lady of means, studied two years in Rome, 1785-87, then settled in Edinburgh, and soon attained preëminence among Scottish artists. In 1814 he was elected A.R.A., in 1815, R.A.; was knighted by George IV. in 1822, and appointed king's painter for Scotland a few days before his death, 1823. His style was to some extent founded on that of Reynolds.

Raff (ráf), Joachim, German composer, was born at Lachen on the lake of Zürich, 1822. In 1850-56 he lived near Liszt in Weimar, taught music at Wiesbaden until 1877, and was then director of the conservatory at Frankfort-on-Main. Among his operas the chief are König Alfred and Dame Kobold. Died, 1882.

Raglan (rag'lan), Lord (Fitzroy James Henry Somerset), British general, was born in 1788. He entered the army in his sixteenth year, and after serving on the staff of Sir Arthur Wellesley in the Copenhagen expedition and the peninsular war, became his secretary in 1812. In 1852 he was made master-general of the ordnance, and entered the house of lords as Baron Raglan. When war was declared against Russia, in 1854, Lord Raglan was appointed commander of the English forces in the Crimea, and, at the desperate battle of Inkerman, he won the baton of a field-marshal. Raglan died before Sebastopol, 1855.

Raikes (rāks), Robert, English publisher and philanthropist, founder of the modern Sunday schools, was born at Gloucester, England, 1735. He early interested himself in the pitiable condition of prisoners in the jails; and then his consideration for the misery and ignorance of many children in his native city led him, in 1780, to start a Sunday school where they might learn to read and understand the Bible. Died, 1811.

Raleigh (rô'li; ral'i), or Ralegh, Sir Walter, English courtier, colonizer and man of letters, was born at Budleigh, in Devonshire, 1552, and was educated at Oriel College, Oxford. Shortly after returning from a voyage to America he seems to have attracted the attention of Queen Elizabeth, with whom he speedily rose high in favor. In 1584 a patent having been granted him to take possession of lands to be discovered by him on the continent of North America, he fitted out two ships at his own expense and shortly achieved the discovery and occupation of the territory known as Virginia. It was through him that the potato and tobacco were introduced into England at this time. With the death of Elizabeth in 1603 ends the brilliant and successful portion of his career. Her successor, James, from the first regarded him with a suspicion and dislike, which he was at no pains to conceal. He was accused of complicity in a plot against the king. Sentence of death was passed, but James did not venture to execute him, and he was sent to the Tower, where for thirteen years he remained a prisoner. During his imprisonment he wrote his History of the World, a noble fragment, still notable to the student as one of the finest models of the quaint and stately old English style. In 1615 he procured his release and sailed for Guiana. After his return, in 1618, he was infamously executed, nominally on the sentence passed on him sixteen years before, but really there is reason to suppose in base compliance on James' part with the urgenices of the king of Spain, who resented Raleigh's persistent hostility.

Rambaud (rän'bō'), Alfred Nicolas, French historian, was born at Besançon, 1842. He was a member of the French cabinet, 1879-80, and in 1896 became minister of public instruction. He was appointed, in 1883, professor of history in the University of Paris, and became a member of the academy of moral and political sciences in 1897. He wrote works on Russia, French civilization, colonial France, etc., and, with Lavisse, Histoire Générale du IVme Siecle, in 12 volumes. Died, 1905.

Rameses I. (răm'ē-sēz), ruled about 1355 B. C., and was king during the nineteenth Egyptian dynasty, formed a treaty with the Hittites and maintained the conquests of Egypt as far as Wady Halfa. He subjected Ethiopia, which had revolted, established a fleet in the Mediterranean and erected some of the largest of the Egyptian edifices. It is usual to identify the warrier king Rameses II. with the Pharaoh of the oppression, and Merenptah, his son, as the Pharaoh of the Exodus.

Ramsay, Sir William, British chemist, was born at Glasgow, 1852. He was educated at Glasgow University, and at Tübingen; M.D., Ph.D., LL.D., D.Sc. In 1887 accepted the chemistry chair at University College, London. In conjunction with Lord Rayleigh, he discovered argon in 1894, and in 1895 obtained helium from clèveite. In 1904 he was awarded the Nobel prize for chemistry. He is the author of numerous papers, the most important of which are perhaps The Molecular Surface-Energy of Liquids; Argon, A New Constituent of the Atmosphere (in conjunction with Lord Rayleigh), and Helium, A Constituent of Certain Minerals. Died, 1916.

Ramsay, Sir William Mitchell, professor of humanity at Aberdeen University, 1886-1911, was born at Glasgow, 1851. He was educated at the Universities of Aberdeen, Oxford and Göttingen; honorary D.C.L., Oxford; LL.D., St. Andrews and Glasgow; Litt.D., Cambridge. Author: The Historical Geography of Asia Minor; The Church in the Roman Empire; St. Paul the Traveler and the Roman Citizen; Impressions of Turkey; Was Christ Born at Bethlehem?

Randall, Samuel J., American statesman, was born at Philadelphia, Pa., 1828. After spending a number of years in mercantile business in his native city, he was elected to congress as a democrat, in 1862. He held this position up to the time of his death at Washington, D. C., 1890. He was elected speaker of the house of representatives, 1876, 1877 and 1879. Throughout his congressional career his ability and integrity were conceded by men of all parties, and he was held in the highest esteem by his fellow-congressmen.

Randolph, Edmund Jennings, American statesman, was born at Williamsburg, Va., 1753, and was admitted to the Virginia bar. Was governor of Virginia from 1786 to 1788, and a member of the convention which framed the constitution of the United States. In 1789 he entered Washington's cabinet as attorney-general, and in 1794 was appointed secretary of state, to succeed Jefferson. He died in Virginia, 1813.

Randolph, John, of Roanoke, American orator and statesman, was born in Chesterfield county, Va., 1773. He was United States senator, 1825-27; United States minister to Russia in 1830; and again elected to congress in 1832. Randolph prided himself on his descent from Pocahontas, and his marked Indian features bore witness to his origin. He died in Philadelphia, Pa., 1833.

Ranke (răn'kē), Leopold von, eminent German historian, was born at Wiehe, Thuringia, 1795. He was educated at Leipzig, and at twenty-three became head master of the gymnasium at Frankfort-on-the-Oder, where he devoted his leisure to historical studies. Six years later he published A Critique Upon the Later Historians, and the History of the Roman and Germanic Peoples From 1495 to 1535, which attracted wide attention and won him the chair of history at Berlin in 1825; this he retained until 1871. His most complete and elaborate effort, however, is his German History in the Time of the Reformation. In 1880, in his eighty-fourth year, he published the first volume of his Welt-Geschichte, or History of the World, writing a volume annually. Probably no man of his time, even in his own land, toiled more indefatigably or laid up greater stores of knowledge. Died, 1886.

Raphael, Santi or Raffaello Sanzio (raf'ā-el) the greatest Italian painter of the Roman school, was born at Urbino, 1483. Timoteo Viti was his first master, and he entered Perugino's atelier in 1499 or 1500, where he was also under Pinturicchio's influence. To his Urbino period belong The Vision of a Knight and St. Michael. To the Peruginesque period belong, among other paintings, two madonnas in Berlin and one in the Hermitage, St. Petersburg, and The Marriage of the Virgin, in the Brera at Milan.

He went to Florence in 1504, and came under the influence of Leonardo da Vinci and Michelangelo. His extraordinary talents developed rapidly. With an eager power of assimiliation, he put one master after another under contribution for some special power of drawing, grace of design, use of color. He carried the efforts of his predecessors to perfection rather than introducing anything new.

His distinguishing qualities were mastery of workmanship, perfection of design and of form, harmonious beauty and serenity of expression, balanced by refinement of taste and purity of color. To his Florentine period belong The Ansidei Madonna, the Madonnas called Del Granduca, Del Cardellino, La Belle Jardiniére, St. Catherine, and The Entombment of Christ.

In 1508 he was summoned to Rome by Pope Julius II. to decorate the state apartments in the vatican. The proximity of Michelangelo, working in the Sistine Chapel, and the world of classical antiquity around him, gave a noble direction to his mind and ripened his powers to full perfection. Works by older masters were destroyed to give him wall-space; he collected a school of artists to aid him. Prominent among these pupil-assistants were Giulio Romano, Gianfrancesco Penni, "Il Fattore"; Perino del Vaga; and Giovanni da Udine.

He decorated the ceilings and walls of four apartments, and received 1,200 gold scud for each wall painting. The subjects testify to the range and fertility of his creative genius—(1). Poetry, or the Parnassus; The Dispute of the Sacrament; Philosophy, or the School of Athens; Jurisprudence. (2). Expulsion of Heliodorus from the Temple; The Mass of Bolsena; Attila at the Head of His Army; The Deliverance of Peter from Prison (3). L'Incendio del Borgo; Victory at Ostia Over the Saracens; Charlemagne Crowned by Leo III.; Oath of Leo III. (4). Victory of Constantine Over Maxentius at Ponte Molle. The famous loggia in the vatican were decorated with biblical scenes and arabesque ornamentations designed by Raphael.

To his Roman period also belong the various cartoons for tapestries, the Chigi Sibyls, the graceful and beautiful paintings in the Chigi chapel, the Farnesina designs, and the superb Galatea, full of the sense of life and enjoyment. Of his many madonnas the finest are, exclusive of those mentioned above, the Garvagh, Di Casa d' Alba, Di Foligno, and the magnificent San Sisto at Dresden. His madonnas were conceived with a graceful freedom delicately controlled, guided by a fine feeling for the laws of art and the sacred relationships of life, and were painted in a spirit of dreamy fancy or a cheerful outlook on life.

Among his finest portraits are Julius II. La Donna Velata and Joanna of Aragon. So beloved was he that all classes mourned his death. His body lay in state with his unfinished Transfiguration suspended above it, and he was buried in the Pantheon at Rome

References.—Vasari's Life; Eugene Muntz's Raphael: His Life, Work and Times; Crowe and Cavalcaselle's Raphael; His Life and Work; Minghetti's Raffaello; Julia Cartwright's Early Work of Raphael; and The Works of Raphael in the Royal Library at Windsor; and Berenson's Central Italian Painters.

Rauch (rouk), Christian Daniel, noted German sculptor, was born at Arolsen, in the principality of Waldeck, 1777. He was a pupil of Canova and of Thorwaldsen. His greatest effort was the colossal monument to Frederick the Great, which was dedicated in the city of Berlin in 1851. The greater portion of his long life was spent in Berlin, but he died at Dresden, 1857.

Rawlinson, George, English historian and orientalist, brother of Henry Rawlinson, was born at Chadlington, Oxfordshire, 1815. He was graduated at Oxford; was elected a fellow and tutor of Exeter College; canon of Canterbury cathedral in 1872; and rector of All Hallows, London, 1888. In 1860 he published his notable Bampton lectures on the Historic Evidence for the Truth of the Christian Records. He died at Canterbury, 1902.

Rawlinson, Sir Henry Creswicke, 1810-1895; entered the East India military service in 1827; served in the Bombay presidency until 1833; then appointed to assist in reorganizing Persian army. During six years spent in Persia, he studied the cuneiform inscriptions, and translated the famous Behistun inscription of Darius. His principal works are: England and Russia in the East; The Cuneiform Inscriptions of Western Asia; Outline History of Assyria, etc.

Rayleigh (rā'li), John William Strutt, Lord, distinguished English physicist, was born in 1842, graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1865, and became a fellow in the following year. He succeeded to the title of baron in 1873, was professor of experimental physics at Cambridge, 1879-84, and of natural history at the royal institution, London, 1887-1905. Died, 1919.

Raymond, Henry J., American journalist, was born at Lima, N. Y., 1830. He was graduated at the University of Vermont in 1840, and after serving for a number of years on the staff of the New York Tribune and other papers, he in 1851 founded the New York Times, which speedily took rank among the leading journals of the country. Died, 1869.

Rayner, Isidor, lawyer, United States senator, was born in Baltimore, Md., 1850. He was educated at the University of Maryland and at the University of Virginia, where he completed the academic and law courses. He was admitted to the Baltimore bar in 1871; member of congress, 1886-92, and attorney-general of Maryland in 1899. He was council for Rear Admiral Schley before invesitgation commission in 1901, and United States senator from Maryland, beginning 1904. He was recognized as one of the leading lawyers of the senate, was a finished orator, and an authority on constitutional law. Died, 1912.

Read, Thomas Buchanan, American poet and painter, was born in Chester county, Pa., 1822. He entered a sculptor's studio in Cincinnati, afterward studied painting, and in 1841 settled in Boston, where he began to paint portraits. In 1846 he returned to Philadelphia, and in 1850 went to Florence, where he spent most of the rest of his life. He died at New York, 1872.

Reade, Charles, distinguished English novelist, was born in Oxfordshire, England, 1814. Was graduated at Oxford, secured a fellowship there, and in 1847 was admitted to the bar as a member of Lincoln's Inn. He began his literary career by play-writing; studied the art of fiction for fifteen years and first made his mark as novelist in 1852, when he was nearly forty, by the publication of Peg Woffington. This was followed in 1856 by It Is Never Too Late to Mend, and 1861 by The Cloister and the Hearth, the last, his best, and the most popular. He died in London in 1884.

Reaumur (rā'ō'mūr'), Rene Antoine Ferchault de, French naturalist and physicist, was born at La Rochelle, France, 1683. He was educated at Poitiers, Bourges and Paris, and was elected a member of the academy of sciences in 1708. He discovered the method of tinning iron and invented the Réaumur thermometor. He died in 1757. leaving behind him a voluminous array of works, the most important of which is the Mémoires pour servir à l' Historie des Insectes.

Recamier (rā'kà'myā), Mme. (née Jeanne Francoise Julie Adelaid Bernard), French woman of society, was born at Lyons, France, 1777. At fifteen she was married to Jacques Récamier, and attracted to her salon at Paris a brilliant circle during the consulate and empire. A record of the splendid social triumphs of Mme. Récamier would involve notice of nearly all who were distinguished in Paris during a space of about fifty years. She became a power in the whole of France, and so continued in spite of changes of fortune which ordinarily would have involved the extinction of even more solid celebrity. Died, 1849.

Reclus (rē'klü'), Jean Jacques Elisee, French geographer, was born at Ste-Foix-la-Grande, France, 1830. He was educated at Montauban and Berlin. An extreme democrat, he left France after the coup d' état of 1851. In Switzerland he began his masterpiece, Nouvelle Géographie Universelle; wrote also a physical geography, La Terre; Histoire d'un Ruisseau; Les Phénomènes Terrestres, In 1983 he became a professor at Brussels. Died, 1905.

Redfield, William Cox, Secretary of Commerce, manufacturer, was born in Albany, N. Y., June 18, 1858. His parents removed to Pittsfield, Mass., in 1867, where he was educated in the grammar and high schools of that city. He removed to New York City in 1877, thence to Brooklyn in 1883, engaging in the manufacture of iron and steel forgings, tools, etc., and in the manufacture of ventilating, heating and dry apparatus, engines, etc. He was vice-president of the American Blower Co., 1907-11. In 1902 and 1903 he was commissioner of public works for the Borough of Brooklyn, New York City. He was a member of the Sixty-second Congress, and appointed Secretary of Commerce by President Wilson, 1913-1919, retired.

Red Jacket, or Sa-go-ye-wat'-ha, "He keeps them awake," a noted chief of the Seneca tribe of Indians, was born at Old Castle, on Seneca lake, New York, about 1751. He was a friend of the whites, though he wished to have the Indians keep their own lands; and, when the six nations made a treaty to sell theirs, he opposed the treaty in an eloquent speech, 1784. Some years after this he visited General Washington, who gave him a silver medal. In later life he visited New York and Washington, and the speeches that he made there are among the finest specimens of Indian eloquence. He died at Seneca village, near Buffalo, N. Y., 1830.

Reed, Thomas Brackett, American lawyer and legislator, was born at Portland, Me., 1839, and was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1860. He was a member of the Maine legislature; attorney-general of the state; and was elected to congress in 1876. His ability was so clearly recognized that he soon become the acknowledged leader of the republican party on the floor; and when his party secured a majority of the house of representatives in the fifty-first congress, Reed was chosen speaker. His name was presented to the Republican National Convention in 1896, but he was defeated by McKinley. He served in congress until 1899, and was elected speaker of the fifty-fourth and fifty-fifth congresses. Died, 1902.

Reed, Walter, American surgeon and bacteriologist, was born in Virginia, 1851. Received his medical education at University of Virginia and at Bellevue hostpital in New York. Reed demonstrated that typhoid fever is spread in camps through flies and personal contact, rather than by infected water, and that yellow fever is caused only by the bite of a certain kind of mosquito. By means of the precautions he urged after the Spanish war, yellow fever was practically exterminated in Cuba. He died, 1902.

Reeves, John Sims, English tenor, was born at Shooter's Hill, Kent, 1822. He went to Paris, 1843, in order to perfect his voice and style, and on his return to England, 1847, was recognized as the first tenor in that country, a position which he maintained for a number of years. In 1892 he became professor of the Guildhall school of Music, London, and retired from the stage, returning to concert work, however, in 1896. He died at Worthing, Sussex, 1900.

Regiomontanus (rē-ji-ō-mon-tā'nus), the name given from his birthplace at Königsberg (Mons Regius) to the mathematician and astronomer Johann Müller. He was born in 1436, studied at Vienna, and in 1461 accompanied Cardinal Bessarion to Italy to learn Greek. In 1471 he settled in Nuremberg, where, with Bernard Walther, he labored at the "Alphonsine tables," and published Ephemerides 1475-1506, in 1473. Died, 1476.

Regnard (re'nyär'), Jean Francois, French dramatist, was born at Paris, France, 1655. After a roving and adventurous life in various countries, he returned to France about 1683, and became prominently connected with the ministry of finance. Regnard was one of the best followers of Molière, and is regarded as second only to that great master as an exponent of French comedy. Died, 1709.

Regnault (rē'nyō'), Henri, French figure and genre painter, was born in Paris, 1843. He studied there and at Rome, later making a study of Velasquez in Madrid. His equestrian portrait of Marshall Prim was one of the finest of the century. Regnault enlisted in the army during the Franco-Prussian war and was killed at Buzevenal, 1871.

Regnault, Henri Victor, French chemist and physicist, was born at Aix-la-Chapelle, 1810. In 1841 he succeeded Dulong as professor of physics in the Collège de France; in 1847 he became chief engineer of mines, and in 1854 director of the porcelain factory at Sevres. He rendered distinguished service to science by his exact determination of physico-chemical constants, and his criticism of the law of Boyle and Mariotte. Died, 1878.

Regnier (rā'nyā), Mathurin, French poet, was born at Chartres, 1573. After a life of dissipation he became, in 1609, canon of the cathedral of Chartres, and was called "the good Régnier," on account of his amiability. Boileau called him the best satirical poet before Moilère. He died at Rouen, 1613.

Regulus (reg'ū-lus), Marcus Atilius, Roman general, was consul in 267 B. C., when he took Brundusium, and received a triumph. In 256 B. C. he was a second time consul, and in conjunction with his colleague, Manlius, defeated the Carthaginian fleet of 350 ships under Hanno and Hemilcar, landed at Clypea, and ravaged the enemy's territory. The Carthaginians at last defeated him and took him prisoner. After five years' captivity he was sent in 250 B. C. to Rome as an ambassador. In the same year he returned to Carthage, where he was put to death about 250 B. C.

Reid, Sir James, British physician, physician-in ordinary to King Edward and to the prince of Wales, was born at Scotland, 1849. He was graduated at Aberdeen University, M.A., 1869; M.D., 1875; LL.D., 1895; honorary LL.D., Glasgow, 1901. He studied at Vienna, 1876-77; practiced in Scotland, 1877-81; resident physician to Queen Victoria, 1881-1901; physician extraordinary, 1887-89; physician-in-ordinary, 1889-1901. Died, 1923.

Reid, Robert Gillespie, Canadian railway builder and capitalist, was born in Scotland, 1840. In 1871 he came to America and had charge of the construction of the international railway bridge at Niagara Falls, the international bridge over the Rio Grande and the Lachine bridge over the St. Lawrence. Died, 1908.

Reid, Thomas, 1710-1796, Scottish philosopher, was born at Strachen, Scotland. Professor of moral philosophy in the University of Glasgow, 1763-1781. Author: Inquiry Into the Human Mind, and Active Powers of the Human Mind.

Reid, Wallace (1892-1923), motion picture actor, son of a playwright, gave up newspaper work to enter motion pictures in 1910. He played with Geraldine Farrar in Carmen. His athletic, happy-go-lucky personality quickly made him popular. His best star parts have been The Valley of the Giants, Hawthorne of the U. S. A.

Reid, Whitelaw, American diplomat and journalist, was born at Xenia, Ohio, 1837. He was graduated at Miami University, 1856; LL.D., Miami, 1890, Princeton, 1899, Yale, 1901, Cambridge, 1902; D.C.L., Oxford, 1907; aide-de-camp on the staffs of Generals Thomas A. Morris and W. S. Rosecrans in West Virginia. In 1868 he was attached to the editorial staff of New York Tribune; managing editor, 1869, editor-in-chief and chief proprietor, 1872-1905; was United States minister to France, 1889-92; special ambassador of the United States to Queen Victoria's jubilee, 1897; member of peace commission to Paris, 1898, special ambassador for coronation of Edward VII., 1902, and United States ambassador to England in 1905. Author: After the War, A Southern Tour; Ohio in the War; Schools of Journalism; Newspaper Tendencies; Town Hall Suggestions; Two Speeches at the Queen's Jubilee; Some Consequences of the Last Treaty of Paris, etc. Died, 1912.

Reinsch (rīnsh), Paul Samuel, American educator and author, professor of political science, University of Wisconsin, beginning 1899, was born at Milwaukee, Wis., 1869; was graduated at the University of Wisconsin, 1892; PhD., 1898. Author: The Common Law in the Early American Colonies; World Politics at the End of the Nineteenth Century as Influenced by the Oriental Situation; Colonial Government; Colonial Administration and American Legislatures. Died, 1923.

Rejane (rā'zhän'), Madame (Gabrielle Reju), French actress, was born in Paris, 1857. She married M. Porel, Director of the Vaudeville theater, Paris. She was educated at the Paris Conservatoire, under Regnier, and made her début at the Vaudeville theater in Revue des Deux Mondes, 1875. She toured in America in 1895, and obtained an enormous success. She afterwards managed her own theater in Paris, the Théâtre Rèjane. Died, 1920.

Rembrandt (ram'brănt), Van Ryn, Paul Harmens, a Dutch painter, was born in Leyden, 1607, and died 1669. He studied in Leyden and Amsterdam, and about 1623 fitted up a studio in his father's windmill on the bank of The Rhine. In 1628 he executed his first great work, a portrait of his mother, and in 1630 settled in Amsterdam, where he gained great celebrity, and founded a school of art based on the natural style.

His paintings and etchings, exhibiting the most powerful effects of light and shade, brought great prices, and he taught a large number of pupils. He preferred the imitation of vulgar nature to the cultivation of ideal beauty; and his manner depends upon the elaboration of a single element of art, that of chiaroscuro.

Among his historical pictures are The Sacrifice of Abraham, The Woman Taken in Adultry, and The Descent from the Cross; his portraits include The Jew Merchant and the Night Watch. His pecular style is perhaps most strikingly displayed in his etchings, especially in his Christ Healing the Sick. He was twice married; his second marriage involved him in difficulties, and he became bankrupt in 1656. He executed over 600 paintings, now variously valued at from $500 to $31,000.

References.—Bell's Rembrandt; Michel's Rembrandt, His Work, His Life, His Time; Middelton's Decriptive Catalogue of the Etched Work of Rembrandt; Memphis' Rembrandt; and Study of His Work, by E. Michel.

Remington, Frederic, American artist, illustrator, sculptor and author, was born in St. Lawrence county, N. Y., 1861. He early studied at Yale art school, and at the art students' league of New York, after which he led the life of a cowboy and stockman on ranches in Montana and Wyoming, where he became notable as an animal painter and illustrator of western scenes and modes of life on the plains. He subsequently came into note as an illustrator for magazines, treating of military subjects and of ranching life, and, after the Spanish-American war, of Cuban scenes and characteristics. Died, 1909.

Remsen, Ira, American chemist and educator, president, 1901-1912; and professor of chemistry 1876-1913; Johns Hopkins University, was born in New York, 1846. He was graduated at the college of the city of New York, 1865; M.D., Ph.D., Göttingen; LL.D., Columbia. He was professor of chemistry, Williams College, 1872-76; founder, 1879, and editor of the American Chemical Journal; president of national academy of sciences, 1907-08. Author: The Principles of Theoretical Chemistry; Inorganic Chemistry. Died, 1927.

Renan (rē-nän'), Joseph Ernest, French philologist, historian and critic, was born at Trèguier, in Brittany, 1823. At twenty-five he received his doctorate at the University of Paris, and in 1850 obtained a post in the Bibliothèque Nationale. In 1862 he was chosen professor of Hebrew in the Collège de France; but the emperor, inspired by the clerical party, refused to ratify the appointment; and it was not until 1870 that he was established in the chair. In 1878 he was elected to the academy. His first work of importance was published in 1854, but his European reputation dates from the publication of the Life of Jesus, in 1863. None of the other volumes excited the extraordinary interest of the first. Of the volumes that followed, those on St. Paul, 1869, and Marcus Aurelius, 1882, are specially noteworthy. He died in 1892.

Rennie (ren'i), John, British civil engineer, was born at Phantassie farm, East Lothian, 1761. After working as a millwright he studied at Edinburgh University. In 1780 he entered the employ of Boulton and Watt, and in 1791 started in London on his own account as an engineer and bridge-builder, at which he won great fame. He died in 1821 and was buried in St. Paul's.

Repplier, Agnes, American essayist, was born in Philadelphia in 1858. She was educated at Sacred Heart Convent, Torresdale, Pa. Besides critical essays on contemporary life, published in various magazines, she is the author of Americans and Others, Points of Friction, Essays in Miniature, Essays in Idleness, Boo. s and Men.

Reuter (roi'tĕr), Baron Paul Julius, German journalist, was born in Cassel in 1821. In 1849 he established an office at Aix-la-Chapelle for supplying news by telegraph, and thereby revolutionized the press of Europe. He laid several important telegraphic cables. Died, 1899.

Revere (rē-vēr'), Paul, American patriot, was born in Boston, Mass., 1735, and learned the business of a goldsmith. He was conspicuous for his zeal against the mother country, and one of the first actors in the revolt. He became famous in history and song for his ride from Boston to Lexington to arouse the minute-men, April 18-19, 1775. He died at Boston, 1818.

Reynolds, John Fulton, American general, was born in Lancaster, Pa., 1820. He was graduated at West Point, 1841, and entered the artillery; served in the Mexican war and on the frontier; in 1861 took command of a brigade of the Pennsylvania reserve corps, and led them in McClellan's peninsular campaign in 1862 until he was taken prisoner at Glendale, June 30. Encountering the van of the confedcrate army at Gettysburg, he had already selected the ground for the impending battle, when at the opening of the fight he was killed by a rifle-shot, July 1, 1863. A monument was erected to him at Gettysburg, and a bronze equestrian statue of him by Rogers stands in Philadelphia in front of the city hall.

Reynolds, Sir Joshua, eminent English painter, was born at Plympton, in Devonshire, 1723. He studied under Thomas Hudson, a portrait painter, and when about twenty years old began his career as a portrait-painter, at Plymouth Dock, now Devonport. On the institution of the royal academy in 1769, he became president and was knighted by George III. His works are very numerous. He was especially famous for his portraits, though his historical paintings, of which upward of sixty are catalogued, show him to have been qualified to excel in both departments of his art. He was the friend of Johnson, Burke, Goldsmith, and the most eminent literary men of his time. He died at London, 1792, and was buried in St. Paul's cathedral.

Rhees, Rush, American educator, president of University of Rochester since 1900, was born at Chicago, 1860. He was graduated at Amherst, 1883; LL.D., 1900; Hartford Theological Seminary, 1888; D.D., Colgate University, 1901. Associate professor of new testament interpretation, Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass., 1892-94, and professor in the same, 1894-1900. Author: The Life of Jesus of Nazareth, a Study; St. Paul's Experience as a Factor in His Theology.

Rhodes, Cecil John, South African statesman, was born at Bishop Stortford, England, 1853. He was sent for his health to Natal, and subsequently made a fortune at the Kimberly diamond mines. He entered the Cape Colony house of assembly as member for Barkly, and in 1884 occupied a place in the Cape Colony cabinet. In 1890 he became prime-minister of Cape Colony; but even before this he had become a ruling spirit in the extension of British territory, and secured, in 1889, the charter for the British South Africa company, of which until 1896 he was managing director. This territory is now known as Rhodesia. In 1896 he resigned the Cape premiership in consequence of complications arising from the raid of Dr. Jameson, the chartered company's administrator, into the Transvaal, in aid of the Uitlanders' claims. In 1899 he was made D.C.L. at Oxford. He was a conspicuous figure during the war of 1899-1902. Died, 1902, and was buried in the Matoppo hills, leaving a remarkable will which, besides making great benefactions to Cape Colony, founded rich scholarships at Oxford.

Rhodes, James Ford, American historian and essayist, was born at Cleveland, Ohio, 1848. He was educated in the public schools, at the University of New York and the University of Chicago, but was not graduated; LL.D., Western Reserve University, 1893, Harvard, 1901, Yale, 1901, Wisconsin, 1904; Litt.D., Kenyon, 1903. He received the Loubet prize of the Berlin Academy of Science in 1901. Author: History of the United States from the Compromise of 1850, in 7 volumes, Historical Essays, etc. Died, 1927.

Ricardo (ri-kär'dō), David, British political economist, of Jewish extraction, was born in London, 1772, and entered upon a mercantile life, after having received a common school education. He gained a large fortune by commerce, obtained a seat in parliament for Portarlington, 1819, and acquired a high reputation as an economist and writer. Died, 1823.

Ricciarelli (rēt'chä-rel'lē), Daniele, known also by the name of Daniele da Volterra, Italian painter, was born at Volterra, 1509. He studied painting at Siena, and afterward repaired to Rome, where he was much indebted to the friendship of Michelangelo, who not only instructed him, but gave him designs for some of his most celebrated works. His fame rests chiefly on a series of frescoes in the church of La Trinité de' Monti, Rome; and of these the "Descent From the Cross" is well known by Toschi's admirable engraving. He died at Rome in 1566 or 1567.

Rice, Alice Hegan, American author, was born at Shelbyville, Ky., 1870, daughter of Samuel W. Hegan. She was educated at Hampton College, Louisville, and in 1902 married Cale Young Rice. Author: Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch; Lovey Mary; Sandy; Captain June, etc., and a number of short magazine stories.

Richard I., surnamed Cœur de Lion, king of England from 1189 to 1199, was born at Oxford, 1157. He was the third son and successor of Henry II. He spent his early years in Poitou and Aquitaine, in 1190 joined his forces with Philip Augustus of France in the third crusade; captured Cyprus, and won great renown in the holy land, particularly by his defeat of Saladin. After shipwreck on the coast, on his way home, he was captured by the archduke of Austria, and handed over to the emperor Henry VI. in 1193. He was ransomed at a heavy price by his subjects, and landed in England in 1194. He died of an arrow wound at the siege of Chalus in 1199.

Richard II., king of England, was born at Bordeaux, France, in 1367. He was the son of Edward the Black Prince, and the grandson of Edward III., whom he succeeded. Being only eleven years old at his accession, a council of regency was appointed to govern the kingdom during his minority. Quarrels with his uncles, with the commons and with his parliaments, on behalf of worthless favorites with whom he was surrounded, fill up the years of Richard's reign. The noted John of Gaunt, duke of Lancaster, and Thomas, duke of Gloucester, tried to bend their royal nephew to their own purposes. He resisted them successfully, but the murder of Gloucester, who was arrested near London, and slain at Calais in 1397, fixes an indelible stain upon his memory. Two years afterward he was defeated and deposed by his cousin, Henry of Bolingbroke, duke of Hereford, who succeeded him. He is believed to have been murdered in Pontefract castle, Yorkshire, in the following year.

Richard III., king of England 1483-85, surnamed Crookback, was born at Fotheringay castle, 1452, youngest son of Richard, duke of York, a brother of Edward IV., and uncle of Edward V., whom he murdered. Scarcely had he placed himself securely, as he thought, upon the throne, than a plot broke out, in which the duke of Buckingham took a leading share, in favor of Henry Tudor, earl of Richmond. The plot disastrously failed so far as Buckingham was concerned, for he was apprehended, condemned and executed at Salisbury, 1483; but in 1485 the earl of Richmond landed at Milford Haven with a force of a few thousand men, and a few days later defeated the king in the battle of Bosworth field, in Leicestershire. In this battle Richard was killed. He was buried in Grey Friars' church, Leicester. The house of York and the Plantagenet line of kings ended with the death of Richard, who was succeeded by Henry VII., the first of the Tudor line.

Richardson, Samuel, English novelist, was born in Derbyshire, 1689. He was early apprenticed to a printer in London. It was not until he was more than fifty years of age that he published his first novel, Pamela, or Virtue Rewarded. In 1749 appeared his second work, The History of Clarissa Harlowe, which greatly increased his reputation; and in 1753 he published The History of Sir Charles Grandison. All his novels are in the epistolary style. He may be said to be the originator, after De Foe, of the English novel. He died in 1761.

Richelieu (rēsh'ē-lyū'), Armand Jean Duplessis, Duc de, celebrated French statesman and cardinal, was born of a noble family at Paris, 1585. He pursued ecclesiastical studies, and underwent the preliminary examination for his degree at the Sorbonne. In 1607 he was consecrated bishop of Lucon at Rome in the presence of Pope Paul V., and for some time devoted himself zealously to the discharge of his duties in his diocese. In 1622 he became a cardinal, and from 1624 to 1642 was the principal minister of Louis XIII. The administration of Richelieu forms an epoch in the history of France and her relations with other countries. It is memorable for several great measures, or series of measures. Of these the first and most lasting in its results was that by which the absolute authority of the sovereign was established. By a succession of vigorous and energetic, and, it must be added, not unfrequently unscrupulous measures, Richelieu succeeded in breaking down the political power and subduing the arrogant assumptions of the great families, the heads of several among which were brought to the scaffold, while not a few were condemned to life imprisonment. Another of the great enterprises of his ministry was the overthrow of the Huguenot party as a political power and a rival of the throne in France. The siege and capture of Rochelle, which he conducted in person in 1628, was followed by the submission of the other Huguenot strongholds. In the external relations of France the great object of all his measures was the overthrow of the preponderance of Austria. He died at Paris in 1642.

Richter (rik'tĕr), Johann Paul Friedrich or "Jean Paul," German humorist and sentimentalist, was born at Wunsiedel, in Bavaria, 1763. He studied at Leipzig, and began his literary career in 1783 with The Greenland Lawsuits. In 1789 appeared Selections From the Papers of the Devil, and, in 1793, The Invisible Lodge. This was followed by Hesperus, the work by which he is perhaps best known outside of Germany. He died at Bayreuth, 1825.

Ridder, Herman, American journalist, was born in New York, 1851, of German parentage. He attended the New York schools, and began business at eleven as errand boy. He was an insurance agent at twenty; president, 1907, of the New York Staats-Zeitung. As an independent democrat he was active in Cleveland campaigns and reform movements, especially in German-American reform union. Member of the chamber of commerce, American museum of natural history, Metropolitan museum of art; director of the associated press and treasurer of New York publishers' association. Died, 1915.

Ridley, Nicholas, English reformer, was born in Northumberland, about 1500. He was appointed bishop of Rochester in 1547, and of London in 1550; took a leading part in composing the liturgy and drawing up the thirty-nine articles; favored the attempt to place Lady Jane Grey on the throne, and was imprisoned in the Tower. He was condemned to death for heresy and burned, with Latimer, at Oxford, 1555.

Ridpath (rid'păth), John Clark, American historian and educator, was born in Putnam county, Indiana, 1840. He was graduated at Asbury, now De Pauw University, 1863, and in 1869 was appointed professor of literature at Asbury and ten years later became vice-president of that university. He was editor of The Arena, 1897-98. Author of an academic history and a popular history of the United States; A Cyclopœdia of Universal History and a compendious treatise on The Great Races of Mankind. Died at New York, 1900.

Rienzi (ri-en'zē), Nicola Gabrini, Italian patroit, commonly called "the last of the Roman tribunes," was born in Rome about 1313. He proved an excellent leader at first, but soon became elated by success, caused himself to be crowned with seven crowns and lived in great splendor and extravagance. In a few months the people became tired of him and he was obliged to escape from the city in the dress of a monk. He was afterward recalled to Rome and was assassinated in 1354, while making a speech to the people.

Riggs, Mrs. George C. See Wiggin, Kate Douglas.

Riis (rēs), Jacob August, American journalist, author, was born in Ribe, Denmark, 1839. He was educated at the Latin school there; came to New York, and was subsequently active in the small parks and playgrounds movement and in tenement house and school reform. He was secretary of the New York small parks commission, 1897, and executive officer of Good Government clubs, 1896-97. Author: How the Other Half Lives; The Children of the Poor; The Making of an American; The Battle With the Slum; Children of the Tenements; and magazine articles on social and economic subjects. Died, 1914.

Riley, James Whitcomb, American poet, writer, and lecturer, was born at Greenfield, Ind., 1853. He received a public school education; M.A., Yale, 1902; Litt.D., Pennsylvania, 1904; M.L.D., Indiana, 1907. He began contributing poems to Indiana papers, 1873. For a number of years he appeared on the lecture platform throughout the country and gave readings from his works. Author: The Old Swimmin' Hole and 'Leven Other Poems; The Boss Girl and Other Sketches; Afterwhiles; Old-Fashioned Roses; Pipes o' Pan at Zekesburg; Rhymes of Childhood, etc. Died, 1916

Rimsky-Korsakoff, Nicholas Andreyevitch, Russian composer, was born in the province of Novgorod in 1844. Although he showed an unusual talent for music at an early age, he was sent to the naval academy at Petrograd, where he remained until he completed his course. During a world tour as midshipman he composed his first symphony, which was produced upon his return. He then devoted himself entirely to music, basing many of his works on Russian folk melodies. Besides symphonies, overtures and piano compositions, he wrote thirteen operas. The best known are Czar Or, The Snow Maiden, Sadko, The Czar's Betrothed, and Pan Voyevoda. In 1871 he became professor of composition in the conservatory at Petrograd, where he remained until his death in 1908.

Rinehart, Mary Roberts, American novelist, was born in Pittsburgh, 1876, educated in Pittsburgh High School and Pittsburgh Training School of Nurses. Visited western battle front, under protection of Allies, 1915, and after the United States entry into war, volunteered as a nurse. Author: Circular Staircase; Window at the White Ca; Street of Seven Stars; Altars of Freedom; The Amazing Interlude, Dangerous Days, etc.

Rinehart, William Henry (1825-1874), American sculptor, began his carer as a marble worker in Baltimore in 1846. In 1855 he studied in Italy. He completed Crawford's bronze doors for the capitol at Washington, and executed a fine bronze statue of Chief-Justice Taney, 1872. He died in Rome, leaving his property as a fund for needy students of art.

Ripley, George (1802-1880), American scholar and critic, graduated from Harvard, 1823. During his pastorate of a Unitarian Church at Boston, which he held until 1841, he became one of the leading spirits in the transcendental movement. The first meeting of the club was held at his home in 1836. He was the originator of the Brook Farm experiment, and co-editor of the New American Cyclopedia.

Ristori (rēs-tō'rē), Adelaide, Italian actress, was born in 1821, the child of strolling players. In America she played with Edwin Booth. Her leading parts were: Francesca da Rimini, Marie Stuart, Phædra, Lady Macbeth, Judith, etc. She retired from the stage in 1885 and died in 1906.

Ritter, Karl, German geographer, was born at Quedlinburg, Prussia, 1779. He studied at Halle, became professor of geography at Berlin in 1820, and afterward member of the academy and director of studies in the military school. With Ritter as the founder of comparative geography, began a new epoch in the history of geographical science. He died at Berlin, 1859.

Rives (rēvz), Amelia, Princess Amélie Troubetzkoy, American novelist, was born at Richmond, Va., 1863. Her earliest production was a series of stories entitled A Brother to Dragons. This was followed by a sensational work called The Quick or the Dead? which met with considerable popularity.

Riviere (rē'vyâr'), Briton, English painter, was born in London, 1840, of Huguenot ancestry. He was graduated at Oxford in 1867, M.A., D.C.L. He had exhibited at the royal academy in 1858, and from the appearance of The Poacher's Widow, 1866, he was regularly represented there and at various international exhibitions. He became A.R.A. in 1878, R.A. in 1881. Died, 1920.

Robbia (rŏb'bya), Lucca della, Italian sculptor, was born at Florence, about 1400. He decorated the campanile of the cathedral at Florence; made a bronze door for the sacristy of the same and was famous for his work in enameled terra cotta, since known as "della Robbia" ware. Died, 1482.

Robert I., king of Scotland. See Bruce, Robert.

Roberts, Charles George Douglas, Canadian author, was born at Douglas, N. B., Canada, 1860. He was graduated at the University of New Brunswick, 1879; was editor of the Week, Toronto, 1883-84; editor of the Illustrated American, in New York, 1897. Author: New York Nocturnes; The Book of the Rose; The Heart of the Ancient Wood; The Kindred of the Wild; Barbara Ladd; The Prisoner of Mademoiselle; The Heart That Knows; In the Deep of the Snow; The Young Acadian, etc.

Roberts, Frederick Sleigh, baron of Kandahar and Waterford, distinguished British general, was born at Cawnpore, India, 1832. He was educated at Eton College, at Addiscombe and at Sandhurst; D.C.L., Oxford, LL.D., Cambridge. At the age of nineteen he joined the Bengal artillery and served through the Indian mutiny. For his heroism he received the Victoria cross. In 1868 he took part in the Abyssinian war and was made a C.B. In the Afghan war of 1878 he commanded the Kuram field force and in this affair he made his famous march from Kabul to Kandahar, effecting the relief of the latter place. For his great military feat in this war he was created a baronet, and earned from his soldiers the familiar sobriquet of "Little Bobs" or Bobs Bahadur. In 1892 he was raised to the peerage. In 1895 he was made field-marshal and commander of the forces in Ireland. In 1899 he proceeded to South Africa to take supreme command during the Boer war, where he invaded the Orange Free State and the Transvaal and turned the fortunes of that struggle in favor of the British. In the autumn of 1900 he returned to England to succees Lord Wolseley as commander-in-chief of the army, retiring in 1904. He is the author of the Rise of Wellington and Forty-one Years in India. Died, 1914.

Roberts, Morley, English novelist and journalist, was born in London, 1857. He was educated at Owens College, served before the mast on Australian sheep-runs, worked on Texan ranches, on California railways and British Columbian sawmills, and multiplied his experiences in the South Seas, the Transvaal, Rhodesia and Corsica. Between 1887 and 1904 he published some forty works, mostly novels and has written continuously since then.

Roberts, Theodore, actor; born San Francisco, 1861, married Clyde Harron. First appeared in Richelieu, and in 1881 in New York in Our Bachelors, in London at the Adelphi Theatre, Feb. 3, 1902, in Arizona; later in many well-known plays, including "The Right of Way." Died, 1929.

Roberts, William Henry (1844-1920), Presbyterian clergyman, graduated from the College of the City of New York, 1863, and Princeton Theological Seminary, 1873. He was statistician of the Treasury Department at Washington, 1863-65, and assistant librarian of Congress, 1866-71. After twenty years' connection with divinity institutions he was made acting pastor at Fourth Church, Trenton, N. J., 1895-1900. He occupied many important church organization offices, was moderator of the general assembly in 1907, and as its secretary edited its minutes, 1884-1914. Author: History of the Presbyterian Church, Laws Relating to Religious Corporations, etc.

Robertson, Frederick William, English pulpit orator and writer, was born in London, 1816. He was educated for the army at Tours and Edinburgh, but subsequently studied at Oxford, 1837-40, and devoted himself to the church. In 1842 he was settled at Cheltenham; in 1847 became incumbent of Trinity chapel, Brighton, where his earnestness, originality and wide sympathy arrested attention, but provoked suspicion. He resigned in 1853 because his vicar had refused to confirm his nomination of a curate, and died the same year. His Sermons were published complete in 1870.

Robertson, William, British historian, was born in Borthwick, Midlothian, 1721. He distinguished himself in the general assembly of the church and became leader of the moderate party. He was one of the ministers of Greyfriars church, Edinburgh, and principal of the university from 1762. He wrote History of Scotland During the Reigns of Mary and James VI.; History of the Reign of the Emperor Charles V.; and History of America. He died near Edinburgh when nearly seventy-two years old, 1793.

Robespierre (rō'bes-pyâr'), Maximilien Marie Isidore, noted French revolutionist, was born at Arras, France, 1758. He was elected to the national convention as head of the Paris deputies, and as recognized chief of the extreme party he was one of the main agents in procuring the execution of the king, which took place in December, 1792. A period of terror followed; Marie Antoinette and the infamous duke of Orleans were the first victims; Pètion, Danton and Camille Desmoulins were next immolated, on a suspicion of having favored a reactionary policy; and for months, under the so-called committee of public safety, Paris became the scene of an indiscriminate quasi-judicial slaughter, in which some thousands of lives were sacrificed. A conspiracy was organised against "the tyrant," and after a scene of fierce tumult in the convention his arrest was accomplished. A rescue by the populace followed, but he lacked the courage and promptitude to turn the opportunity to account; while he hesitated his enemies acted, and in July, 1794, he closed his career on the scaffold.

Robie, Virginia Huntington, author and editor, was born at Salmon Falls, N. H., of an old colonial family, and educated in Boston, Mass.; has specialized as a writer on furniture, ceramics and interior decoration; associate editor of The House Beautiful. Author of Interior Decorations; Shamrock and Thistle; Historic Styles in Furniture; etc.

Robinson, Edwin Arlington, American poet, was born at Head Tide, Maine, in 1869. He was educated at Harvard University and is a member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters. His poems include The Children of the Night, The Town Down the River, Merlin, The Three Taverns, and Collected Poems. He is a shrewd analyst of character and a master of technique. Died 1934.

Robinson, James Harvey, American historian and educator, professor of history, Columbia University, 1895-1919, was born at Bloomington, Ill., 1863. He was graduated at Harvard, 1887; Ph. D. Freiburg, 1890. Acting dean, Barnard College, 1900-01; an organizer and lecturer, New School for Social Research, 1919-21. Author: The German Bundesrath; Petrarch, The First Modern Scholar and Man of Letters, with Rolfe; Died, 1936.

Robinson, William Callyhan, American educator, and legal writer, dean of law school, Catholic University of America, beginning 1895, was born at Norwich, Conn., 1834. He was graduated at Dartmouth College, 1854; graduated in divinity, General Theological Seminary, Protestant Episcopal church, 1857; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1864; LL.D., Dartmouth, 1879. He practiced law at New Haven, Conn., 1865-95; judge of city court, New Haven, Conn., 1869-71; judge of court of common pleas, New Haven county, Conn., 1874-76; member of the legislature of Connecticut, 1874. Author: Notes of Elementary Laws; Elementary Law; Clavis Rerum; Law of Patents; Forensic Oratory; Elements of American Jurisprudence. Died, 1911.

Robson, Eleanor Elsie, American actress, was born at Wigan, Lancashire, England, daughter of Charles Robson. She was graduated at St. Peter's Academy, Staten Island, New York, 1897, and made her professional debut at California theater, 1897. She played Juliet to the Romeo of Kyrle Bellew, 1903; starred in Merely Mary Ann, 1903-05, and headed an "all-star" cast in a special production of She Stoops to Conquer, at the New Amsterdam theater, New York, under Liebler and company, 1905. Married August Belmont, 1910, and retired from stage.

Rochambeau (rō'shăn'bō'), Jean Baptiste Donatien de Vimeur, Comte de, marshal of France, was born in 1725. He served in the war of the Austrian succession; distinguished himself in the Seven Years' war, coöperated with Washington at the siege and capture of Yorktown, during the American war of independence. In 1791 he became commander of the French army of the north, but resigned in 1792, and narrowly escaped execution during the reign of terror. Died, 1807.

Rochefoucauld. See La Rochefoucauld Francois Duc de.

Rockefeller, John Davison, American capitalist and philanthropist, was born at Richford, N. Y., 1839, and moved to Cleveland, Ohio, 1853. He received a public school education; was clerk in a forwarding and commission house, and at nineteen a partner in the firm of Clark and Rockefeller, commission merchants. Subsequently the firm became Andrews, Clark and Company, and engaged in the oil business. In 1865 the firm, then William Rockefeller and Company, built the Standard Oil works at Cleveland, and this was consolidated with others in the Standard Oil Company, 1870. Other interests were later acquired and the Standard Oil trust was formed, 1882, but dissolved, 1892. The various Standard oil companies were then operated separately, with Rockefeller at the head of the entire business until 1911, when he retired. He has given a total of more than $500,000,000 to philanthropies.

Rockefeller, John Davison, Jr., capitalist, son of preceding, was born in 1877. He was graduated at Brown University, and married in 1901, Abby Green Aldrich, daughter of Nelson W. Aldrich, United States senator from Rhode Island. He is associated with his father in his various business enterprises, and is a trustee of the University of Chicago.

Rockefeller, William, capitalist, brother of John Davison, was born at Richford, N. Y., 1841. He was educated at Owego, N. Y., and Cleveland, Ohio; was bookkeeper and late partner in produce commission trade; soon after joined his brother John Davison, in oil business. Died, 1922.

Rodin (rō'dan'), Auguste, French sculptor, was born at Paris, 1840. He studied under Barye, and began to exhibit in the salon in 1875. He produced a number of great scriptural and symbolical groups, but is best known by his portrait busts and statues, notably the bust and the monument of Victor Hugo. Acknowledged greatest sculptor of his time. Died, 1917.

Rodney, George Brydges, Lord, English admiral, was born in 1719. In 1759, after twenty-eight years of active service, he was made rear admiral. In 1762 he became vice admiral and in 1764 was made a baronet. During the Seven Years' war he accomplished the relief of Cibraltar and Minorca and defeated, near Martinique, the French fleet, under Ccunt de Guichen; took Eustatia from the Dutch, with 250 ships and other booty. He was elevated to the peerage as Baron Rodney, and received a pension of 2,000 pounds per annum for himself and his successors. Died, 1792.

Roebling (rōb'ling), John Augustus, American civil engineer, was born in Mühlhausen, Prussia, 1806. He emigrated to the United States in 183 and in course of years became the designer and constructor of many great public works, among them the canal aqueduct across the Allegheny river, and the Monongahela suspension bridge, both at Pittsburg; the suspension bridge at Niagara; the Ohio bridge at Cincinnati, etc. He died in 1869, having just before projected the Brooklyn Bridge.

Roebling, Washington Augustus, American engineer, was born at Saxonburg, Pa., 1837. He was graduated at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, 1857; joined his father in construction of Pittsburg suspension bridge across Allegheny river. The Brooklyn bridge, was undertaken by his father, but the latter's death in 1869 left the entire construction in his hands, and he directed it to completion. He was president and director of the John A. Roebling's Sons Company, Trenton, N. J. Died in 1926.

Roentgen (rūnt'gen), Wilhelm Konrad, eminent German scientist, distinguished investigator of physical problems and discoverer of the "X" or Rœntgen rays, was born in the province of Dusseldorf, Prussia, 1845. In December, 1895, he communicated to the Würzburg physico-medical society his remarkable discovery of the new and powerful "X-rays," since known by his name, and in the following month he described his discovery at the celebration of the semi-centennial of the founding of the Berlin physical society. Later he demonstrated the rays in the presence of the emperor of Germany, who decorated him, and Prince Ludwig of Bavaria created him a baron. In 1901 he received the Nobel prize for physics. Died, 1923.

Rogers, Henry Wade, American educator, dean of the law department of Yale University, 1903-16, was born at Holland Patent, N. Y., 1853. He was graduated at the University of Michigan, 1874; LL.D., Wesleyan University, Conn. He was admitted to the bar, 187- was professor of law, University of Michigan, 1883-85; dean of same, 1885-90; president of Northwestern University, 1890-1901, and professor of law at Yale, 1901-03. U. S. Circuit Judge, beginning 1913. Author Illinois Citations; Expert Testimony. Died, 1926.

Rogers, Randolph (1825-1892), American sculptor, studied the art in Rome. He is distinguished for many memorial statues throughout the country.

Rogers, Will, motion picture actor, first played on the vaudeville stage, then in Ziegfeld's "Follies," finally entering motion pictures with the Goldwyn Company. His perfect ease, spontaneity and humor, are shown in Almost a Husband, Laughing Bill Hyde, and Jubilo. Humorous writer. Died, 1935.

Roland (rō'lan'), Marie Jeanne, wife of Jean Marie Roland de la Platière, daughter of Pierre Gratien Philipon, was born at Paris, France, 1754. Her husband was obliged to flee from Paris, May 31, 1793, and the same night she was arrested and imprisoned in the Abbaye. Summoned before the revolutionary tribunal in the beginning of November, she was condemned, and on the 9th was guillotined amid the shoutings of an insensate mob. Most celebrated is her apostrophe to the statue of Liberty, at the foot of which the scaffold was erected: "O Liberty, what crimes are committed in thy name!"

Rolland, Romain, French writer, born in 1868 at Clamecy, Burgundy, which province he has celebrated in Colas Breugnon, 1919. He was educated in Paris, where he developed a passion for music. He was professor of the History of Music at the Sorbonne from 1903-1910. Jean-Christophe, 1904-1912, a ten volume novel, is his masterpiece. It is the biography of a German musician, depicting the artistic temperament against a panorama of modern civilization. Au-dessus de la Melée, 1915, made Rolland unpopular in France, as the book was too international and pacifistic for the patriotic spirit of the time. After its publication, Rolland retired to Switzerland, where he is still living. Other works include L'Ame Enchanéte (The Soul Enchanted), 1922; several studies of musicians, and a number of plays. He was awarded the Nobel prize in literature, 1915.

Rollin (rō'lan'), Charles, French historian, was born at Paris, 1661. He studied at the College of Duplessis; acquired there a knowledge of languages and philosophy, and studied theology for three years at the Sorbonne. In 1694 he was appointed rector of the University of Paris, and in 1696, coadjutor of the College of Beauvais; but was at length driven from it by the intrigues of the Jesuits. Thenceforth he gave his time wholly to literature. His principal works are: Ancient History; Roman History; and Treatise on the Mode of Studying. Died, 1741.

Romanes (rō-ma'nes). George John, naturalist, was born at Kingston, Canada, 1848, and was graduated in 1870 from Caius College, Cambridge. While still at the university he formed a friendship with Darwin, and he powerfully re-inforced his master's arguments in his Croonian, Fullerian and other lectures. He wrote: Animal Intelligence; Scientific Evidences of Organic Evolution; Mental Evolution in Animals; Jelly-fish, Star-fish, and Sea-urchins; Mental Evolution in Man, etc. Died, 1894.

Romney (rum'ni), George, English painter, was born at Dalton, in Lancashire, 1734. After receiving some lessons from a country artist, he studied art in London in 1762; visited France in 1764, and Italy, 1773-75; and on his return to England became the rival of Reynolds as a portrait painter. He also gained distinction as a painter of historical pictures; assisted in preparing the Boydell Shakespeare gallery. Died at Kendal, 1802.

Ronsard (rōn'sär'), Pierre de, French poet, was born at the Château de la Poissonnière in Vendôme, 1524. Becoming deaf, he abandoned arms for letters, and at the Collège Coqueret studied with Du Bellay and other members of the famous Pléiade. His seven years of study bore its first fruit in his Odes, 1550, which excited violent opposition from the older national school. In 1552 appeared his Amours and the fifth book of his Odes, his Hymns in 1555, the conclusion of the Amours in 1556, in 1560, Complete Works. He died at his priory of St. Cosme at Tours, in 1585.

Roosevelt, Franklin Delano (1882——). Thirty-second President of U. S. Graduated from Harvard, 1904, and in law at Columbia Univ., 1907. Admitted to New York Bar, 1907. Member of New York Senate, 1910-13. Assistant Secretary of the U.S. Navy, 1913-1920. Democratic Vice-Presidential Candidate, 1920. Athletically inclined. In August, 1921, at his summer home in Campobello, New Brunswick, stricken with infantile paralysis, which by years of almost super-human patience and hard work he partially overcame. Governor of New York, 1929-1932. President of U.S. 1933——. An unusual orator, statesman, executive, gifted with remarkable courage, determination and initiative, he quickly acquired almost dictatorial power, which he used for the betterment of the nation, as revealed by results by 1934. Married Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, March 17, 1905. They have one daughter and four sons.

Roosevelt (rōz'velt), Theodore, American soldier, writer, statesman, twenty-sixth president of the United States. was born in New York City, 1858, son of Theodore and Martha (Bullock) Roosevelt. He entered Harvard University at eighteen, and was graduated in 1880; LL.D., Harvard, Yale, etc. The year following he began the study of law, but in the same year was elected to the New York legislature. In 1884 he was chosen a delegate to the republican national convention, and later in the year went to North Dakota, where he spent two years on a ranch, raising cattle. President Harrison appointed him a member of the United States civil service commission in 1889, in which capacity he served until 1895, when he resigned to accept the presidency of the police commission of New York city, under Mayor Strong. President McKinley appointed him assistant secretary of the navy in April, 1897, and upon the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, in 1898, he resigned the post to assist in organizing the 1st United States volunteer cavalry. In September, 1898, he was mustered out, with his regiment, at Montauk, L. I. Shortly following he was nominated for governor of New York, and elected November, 1898. Two years later he was unanimously nominated for vice-president of the United States by the republican national convention, at Philadelphia, and elected. He succeeded to the presidency September 14, 1901, upon the death of President McKinley, and at the close of the term was unanimously nominated by his party to succeed himself, and elected for the term 1904-09. He had long been an advocate of administrative, political, and social reforms, and contributed widely to periodicals and general literature. Among his important publications are: The Winning of the West; History of the Naval War of 1812; Hunting Trips of a Ranchman; Life of Gouverneur Morris; American Ideals and Other Essays; The Rough Riders; Life of Oliver Cromwell; The Strenuous Life. His efforts in bringing about the treaty of peace between Japan and Russia in 1905 were important and effective; and, in 1906 he was awarded the Nobel peace prize of $40,000. Was an enthusiastic hunter of big game, and after his retirement from the presidency on March 4, 1909, he led a scientific expedition to East Africa for the purpose of adding rare faunal specimens to the Smithsonian and national museums at Washington. Unsuccessful candidate of the Progressive party for President in 1912. Died, 1919.

Root (rōōt), Elihu, American statesman and lawyer, was born in Clinton, N. Y., 1845. He was graduated at Hamilton College in 1864; was graduated at the law school of New York University, 1867; LL.D., Yale, Harvard, etc. He was appointed by President Arthur United States attorney for the southern district of New York, 1883-85. On August 1, 1899, he was appointed secretary of war by President McKinley, and on March 5, 1901, was re-appointed. In August, 1903, he resigned the office of secretary of war, his resignation to take effect in January, 1904, and during 1903 he was a member of the Alaskan boundary tribunal. In 1905 President Roosevelt appointed him secretary of state, and while discharging the duties of that office he did much to unify the Pan-American countries. In 1908 he was elected United States senator from New York for the term 1909-15. He is probably the ablest lawyer at the American bar.

Root, George Frederick, American musical composer, was born at Sheffield, Mass., 1820. After studying music a year in Paris, he returned to write numerous popular songs, among which are: Music in the Air; Battle Cry of Freedom; Just Before the Battle, Mother; Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys are Marching. He died in 1895.

Rosa (rō'zä), Salvator, Italian painter, was born at Arenella near Naples, 1615. At Rome his social talents—he was a skillful musician, improvisatore, actor, and poet—and his princely generosity rendered him a great favorite. But he made powerful enemies by his satires, and withdrew to Florence for nine years. After that he returned to Rome, and died in 1673. Salvator owes his reputation mainly to his landscapes of wild and savage scenes, though his masterpiece is considered to be the "Conspiracy of Catiline."

Roscoe, Sir Henry Enfield, noted English chemist, was born at London, 1833. He was graduated at University College, London, and received his Ph.D. from Heidelberg University, 1853. He was professor of chemistry at Owens College, Manchester, 1857-87; member of parliament for Manchester, 1885-95; vice-chancellor of the University of London, 1896-1902; officer of the legion of honor. Author: Lessons in Elementary Chemistry; Treatise on Chemistry; Primer of Chemistry, etc. Died, 1915.

Rose, John Holland, English educator and historian, was born at Bedford, 1855. He was educated at Owens College, Manchester, and at Christ's College, Cambridge; Litt.D., Cambridge. For many years he was lecturer on modern history to the Cambridge University local lectures syndicate, and to the London University's board for the extension of university teaching. Author of numerous historical works.

Rosebery, Archibald Philip Primrose, fifth Earl of, was born in 1847. He was graduated from Oxford; under-secretary for home affairs, 1881-83; lord privy seal, 1885; secretary for foreign affairs, 1886 and 1892-94; prime minister and lord president of council, 1894-95, and lord rector of Glasgow University, 1899. He retired from the leadership of the liberal party, 1896, and then supported Lord Salisbury; delivered many notable speeches on literary and social subjects. Author: Appreciations and Addresses; Sir Robert Peel; Napoleon; The Last Phase; Oliver Cromwell, etc. Died, 1929.

Rosecrans, William Starke, American general, was born at Kingston, Ohio, 1819. He was trained as an engineer, and had settled down to coal-mining when the Civil War broke out; joined the army in 1861; highly distinguished himself during the campaigns of 1862-63. He was afterward minister to Mexico, a member of congress, and, 1885-93, register of the United States treasury. He died near Los Angeles, Cal., 1898.

Ross, George William, Canadian educator, was born near Nair, Middlesex county, Ontario, 1841. He was educated at the Normal School, Toronto, and at the law department of the Albert University, LL.B., 1883; LL.D., St. Andrews, Toronto, Victoria, McMaser, and Queen's Universities. He was admitted to the bar in 1887; was member of parliament for West Middlesex, 1872-74-78-82; minister of education, 1883-99; premier and treasurer of the province of Ontario, 1899-1905, and a member of the senate of Canada. Died in 1914.

Ross, James Clark, English Arctic and Antarctic explorer, was born in 1800. He made five successive voyages to the Arctic regions, made himself famous by his sledge journeys, and determined the position of the north magnetic pole, 1831. He was knighted in 1844, commanded an expedition in search of Sir John Franklin in 1848, and was made rear-admiral in 1856. Died, 1862.

Rossetti (rō'set'ē), Dante Gabriel, British painter and poet, was born in London in 1828. His name was first brought prominently forward by his association with Millais and Holman Hunt in the pre-Raphaelite brotherhood. As an author he is well known by his Early Italian Poets, Ballads and Sonnets, The Blessed Damozel, etc. He played a distinguished part in the resuscitation of Gothic art in England. Died, 1882.

Rossini (rōs-sē'nē), Gioacchino Antonio, celebrated Italian composer, was born at Pesaro, Italy, 1792. He was the son of a strolling musician. When little more than twenty-one, he produced his opera of Tancredi, which was performed for the first time in Venice. Three years later he produced The Barber of Seville. After Guillaume Tell, which appeared in 1829, he published only his Stabat Mater. He died in 1868.

Rostand (rōs'tänⁿ'), Edmond, French poet and dramatist, member of the Académie Francaise beginning 1901, was born at Marseilles, 1868. He was educated at the Lycée de Marseilles, and at the College Stanislass. His first successful drama was Les Romanesques, which was produced in 1894. It was followed by La Princesse Lointaine: La Samaritaine; Cyrano de Bergerac; L'Aiglon, and during 1917 by the remarkable Chantecler, etc. His poetical works include: Les Musardises; Pour la Grèce: Un Soir à Hernani; Les Mots; etc. Great modern dramatist. Died, 1918.

Rothschild (roths'child'), the name of a celebrated Jewish family of bankers and financiers. The founder of the family, Mayer Anselm, named from his father's signboard, the "Red Shield," was born at Frankfort-on-the-Main, 1743. He was educated for a Jewish rabbi, but founded a business as a money-lender and became the financial adviser of the landgrave of Hesse. At his death, in 1812, the founder left five sons, all of whom were made barons of the Austrian empire in 1822. Mayer Anselm, 1773-1855; eldest son, Solomon, 1774-1855; Nathan, 1777-1836; Karl, 1788-1855; and Jacob, or James, 1792-1868. They negotiated many of the greatest government loans of Europe in the nineteenth century, and Nathan raised the house to be first among the banking-houses of the world. His son Lionel, 1808-79, did much for the civil and political emancipation of the Jews in Great Britain. Lionel's son, Nathan, born in 1840, succeeded to the baronetcy conferred in 1847 on his uncle Anthony, and was made Baron Rothschild in 1885. Died, 1915. His niece Hannah (1851-90), in 1878 married the earl of Rosebery.

Rouget de Lisle (rōō'zhe' de lēl'), Claude Joseph, French soldier and poet, was born at Lons-le-Saunier, France, 1760, and wrote the Marseillaise when stationed in 1792 as captain of engineers at Strassburg. In 1796 he published a volume of Essais en Vers et en Prose. The Marseillaise, by its author called Chant de l'Armee du Rhin, was made known in Paris by troops from Marseilles. He died at Choisy-le-Roi, near Paris, 1836.

Roussaeu (rōō'sō'), Jean Jacques, French philosopher and prose writer, was born in 1712, son of a watchmaker at Geneva. In 1750 he gained a prize, offered by the academy of Dijon for an essay attacking the influence of the arts and sciences on society. The main significance of Rousseau was as a renewer of the force of the imagination and the feelings in an artificial time. He loved nature and praised its beauties; he broke with the arid traditions of the past, and formed a new ideal of the future with an eloquence and a warmth that had great influence on the French revolution. He wrote on education and modified its narrowing tendencies, and in literature led the way to the romantic reaction against classicism. The most famous of his productions are: Discourse sur l'Origine et les Fondements de l' Inegalite parmi les Hommes; Julie, ou la Nouvelle Héloise; Du Contrat Social, ou Principes du Droit Politique; Émile, ou de l'Education; Les Confessions; and Réveries d'un Promeneur Solitaire. Died, 1778.

Rowe, Leo S., American economist, educator, was born at McGregor, Iowa, 1871. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, 1890; LL.B., 1895; Ph.D., University of Halle; LL.D., National University of La Plata, Argentine, 1906; head professor of political science, since 1903, in the University of Pennsylvania. In 1906 he was United States delegate to the third international conference of American states, Rio Janeiro Author: Report of the United States Commission to Revise the Laws of Porto Rico; The United States and Porto Rico.

Royce, Josiah, American philosophical writer, professor of the history of philosophy at Harvard beginning 1892, was born at Grass Valley, Cal., 1855. He was graduated at the University of California, 1875; Ph.D., Johns Hopkins, 1878; LL.D., University of Aberdeen, Scotland, 1900; LL.D., Johns Hopkins, 1902. Author: Religious Aspect of Philosophy; The Conception of Immortality; Studies of Good and Evil; Outlines of Psychology; Herbert Spencer. Died, 1916.

Rubens, Peter Paul, greatest of Flemish painters, was born probably at Siegen, in Westphalia, 1577. His parents settled in Cologne in 1578, where they remained till 1587, when Rubens' father died, and his mother removed with her family to Antwerp.

He was first placed under Verhaagt, a landscape painter; however, inclining more to historical painting, he became a pupil of Van Noort, but soon quitted his school for that of Otho Van Veen, or Venius, who then enjoyed a high reputation; and after studying four years with that painter went to Italy, in 1600.

Recommended to Vincenzo Gonzago, Duke of Mantua, he was sent on a mission by the duke to Philip III. of Spain, and on that occasion painted several portraits of Spanish noblemen. He also spent considerable time at Venice and Rome making copies for the duke, and executing independent works, which added largely to his reputation. In 1608, after an absence of eight years, Rubens returned to Antwerp on account of the illness of his mother, but she died before he had accomplished the journey. He intended to return to Mantua, but was induced to remain by the Archduke Albert, governor of the Netherlands.

In 1621 he visited Paris by invitation of Maria d' Medici; and in 1625 completed the series of sketches for the pictures destined to adorn the palace of the Luxembourg. Rubens was sent by the Infanta Isabella, widow of the Archduke Albert, on a diplomatic mission to Philip IV. of Spain in 1628; and in the following year on a similar mission to Charles I. of England, by whom he was knighted in 1630. He died very rich in 1640.

References.—Stevenson's Peter Paul Rubens; article in North American Review (November, 1900) by Benjamin Constant; Early Flemish Painters, by Sir J. A. Crowe; and Original Unpublished Papers, Illustrative of the Life of Sir Peter Paul Rubens, by W. Noel Saintsbury.

Rubinstein (rōō'bin-stīn), Anton Gregor, Russian composer and pianist, was born at Wechwotynetz, near Jassy, in Russian Bessarabia, 1829. At Berlin he studied composition under Dehn. In 1872-73 he visited America, and after 1867 he spent his time in traveling and composing. As a pianist he was the only rival, technically, that Liszt ever had, and as a composer his works are characterized by the most wonderful fertility of imagination, and many of them by a gorgeous oriental coloring. Died, 1894.

Rudolf, or Rudolph I., founder of the Hapsburg imperial dynasty, was born at Schloss Limburg in the Breisgau, 1218, and, becoming a warm partisan of Frederick II., increased his possessions by inheritance and marriage, until he was the most powerful prince in Swabia. In 1273 the electors chose him German king. Rudolf did much to suppress the robber knights. He died at Spires in 1291.

Rudolf, or Rudolph II., born at Vienna, 1552, eldest son of the emperor, Maximilian II., became king of Hungary in 1572; king of Bohemia, with the title "king of the Romans," in 1575; and emperor on his father's death in 1576. He died in 1612 after an inefficient reign.

Runeberg (rōō'ne-ber'y'), Johan Ludwig, national poet of Finland, was born at Jacobstad, 1804. He was educated at the University of Abo, where he afterward lectured. His epic idylls, The Elk Hunters, Christmas Eve, his epic King Fjalar, Fänrik Stals Sagner, etc., are the finest poems in the Swedish language, and are characterized by reprose, simplicity, artistic finish and the warmth of national life. He died in 1877.

Rupert, Prince, British general, third son of the elector palatine Frederick V., and Elizabeth, daughter of James I. of England, was born at Prague, 1619. In 1642 he returned to England, and for the next three years the "mad cavalier" was the life and soul of the royalist cause, winning many a battle by his resistless charges, to lose it as often by a too headlong pursuit. In 1645 his surrender of Bristol so irritated Charles, who in 1644 had created him duke of Cumberland and generalissimo, that he dismissed him. A court martial, however, cleared him, and he resumed his duties, only to surrender at Oxford to Fairfax in 1646. He now took service with France, but in 1648 accepted the command of that portion of the English fleet which had espoused the king's cause, and acquitted himself with all his old daring and somewhat more caution. He died in 1682.

Rush, Benjamin, American physician, was born near Philadelphia, Pa., 1745. He was graduated at Princeton in 1760, studied medicine at Edinburgh and at Paris, and became professor of chemistry in the Philadelphia Medical College. He was a founder of the Philadelphia dispensary, the first in America, and of the college of physicians, and was given several medical professorships besides the one he already held at Philadelphia. Among his medical writings are: Medical Inquiries and Observations; Essays; and Diseases of the Mind. He died at Philadelphia, 1813.

Ruskin, John, distinguished English critic and writer on art, was born in London, 1819. He studied at Christ Church, Oxford, where he gained the Newdigate prize for English poetry in 1839, and took his degree in 1842. The year following appeared the first volume of his Modern Painters, the primary design of which was to prove the superiority of modern landscape painters, especially Turner, to the old masters. In 1849 appeared The Seven Lamps of Architecture, and in 1851 to 1853 The Stones of Venice, both being efforts to introduce a new and loftier conception of the significance of domestic architecture. About 1860 he became deeply interested in the social problems of the age, and published Unto This Last and Munera Pulveris. Among his later works are: Sesame and Lilies; The Ethics of the Dust; The Crown of Wild Olives; and Præterita, a charming autobiography, completed in 1888. He was also selected Slade professor of fine arts at Oxford, being thrice reëlected. He was obliged to resign the post in 1884 on account of failing health. For several years prior to his death he lived in retirement at Brantwood, Coniston. Died, 1900.

Russell, Annie, actress, was born in Liverpool, England, 1869, and made her first stage appearance at Montreal when seven. She afterward appeared at New York in Pinafore, went to South America and West Indies in varied repertory. She has since appeared as a star in Miss Hobbs; A Royal Family; The Girl and the Judge; Mice and Men; Jimmy the Carrier; Brother Jacques; Major Barbara; Midsummer Night's Dream, etc. She married Oswald Yorke, in 1904. Died, 1936.

Russell, James Earl, American educator, dean of Teachers College, Columbia University, since 1898, was born at Hamden, N. Y., 1864. He was graduated at Cornell in 1887; Ph.D., Leipzig, 1894; professor of education, Teachers' College, since 1897; and Barnard professor of education, Columbia, since 1904. Author: The Extension of University Teaching in England and America; German Higher Schools.

Russell, John Earl, British statesman, third son of the sixth duke of Bedford, was born in 1792. He was educated at Westminster and Edinburgh; entered parliament as a whig in 1813; became an advocate of parliamentary reform; was instrumental in the repeal of the test and corporation acts in 1828, and the passing of the Catholic relief act in 1829; led the opposition, 1841-46; was prime minister, 1846-52; went as British plenipotentiary to the Vienna conference, 1855; was foreign secretary under Lord Palmerston, 1859-65; again became prime minister in 1865 but resigned on the defeat of his reform bill in 1866. Died, 1878.

Ruth, George (Babe), born in Baltimore and educated in an orphanage there. The record holder in the national game of baseball as a batter.

Ruyter (roi'tĕr; rī'tĕr), Michael Adriaanszoon de, Dutch admiral, was born at Vlissingen in 1607, of poor parents, who sent him to sea as a cabin-boy when only eleven years old. He became a warrant officer, and in 1637 rose to be captain in the Dutch navy. After serving several years in the Indian seas he was, in 1641, made rear admiral. He had his legs shattered in an engagement off the coast of Sicily, and died of his wounds in 1676.

Ryan, Patrick John, American prelate, Roman Catholic archbishop, was born at Thurles, County Tipperary Ireland, 1831. He was graduated at Carlow College, 1852; LL.D., University of New York and University of Pennsylvania. He was chaplain of the Gratiot state military prison and hospital, St. Louis, during the Civil War; and while rector of Annunciation church, delivered lenten lectures in English at Rome, 1868, on invitation of Pope Pius IX. He was consecrated, 1872, titular bishop of Tricomia in Palestine and made coadjutor bishop of St. Louis; was promoted to archbishop, 1883, and in June, 1884, was transferred to the see of Philadelphia. Died, 1911.

Ryan, Thomas Fortune, American financier, was born in Nelson county, Va., 1851. He began business life, 1868, in a Baltimore dry goods house; entered Wall street, 1870, and became a member of the New York stock exchange, 1874; been identified with the Morton Trust company, the Seaboard Air Line railway, American Tobacco company, Fifth Avenue Trust company, Industrial Trust company of Providence and many other corporations; and purchased a controlling interest of the stock of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States in 1905. Died, 1928.

Sachs (zăks), Hans, noted German poet, was born at Nürnberg, 1494. He was the son of a tailor, and by trade a shoemaker. He learned "the mystery of song" from a weaver. He wrote over 6,000 pieces, among them 208 tragedies and comedies. Died 1576.

Sachs, Julius von, botanist, was born at Breslau, 1832. In 1867 he became professor of botany at Freiburg, and in 1868 at Würzburg. There he carried on important experiments, especially as to the influence of light and heat upon plants, and the organic activities of vegetable growth. He wrote extensively on botany, and is considered the founder of experimental vegetable physiology. Died at Würzburg, 1897.

Sacy (sá'sē'), Antoine Isaac, Baron Silvestre de, French orientalist, was born at Paris, 1758. Was appointed in 1795 professor of Arabic in the school of oriental languages, and in 1806 of Persian in College de France, besides which he held various other appointments. He founded the Asiatic society in 1822; was created a baron by Napoleon I., and entered the chamber of peers in 1832. His writings gave a stimulus to oriental research throughout Europe. He died in 1838.

Sadi-Carnot. See Carnot.

Sadi (sä-dē'), Persian poet, was born at Shirza, about 1184. He studied science and theology at Bagdad, and from there made the first of fourteen pilgrimages to Mecca. He is called the "nightingale of a thousand songs," and the catalogue of his works contains twenty-two different kinds of writing in prose and poetry, in Arabic and Persian. Died, 1291.

Sagasta (sä-gäs'tä), Praxedes Mateo, Spanish statesman, was born in 1827. He was obliged to leave the country for his share in the rising of 1856, and again, ten years later, to seek refuge in France. After the accession of Alfonso XII., he became president of the cortes, formed a liberal constitutionalist party, and having, in 1880, joined a new liberal combination, formed a coalition with Campos, which lasted until 1883. Died, 1903.

Sage, Margaret Olivia Slocum, philanthropist, was born at Syracuse, N. Y., 1828, daughter of Joseph Slocum; in 1869 married Russel Sage, at Watervliet, N. Y. Gave many millions of dollars to charitable and educational institutions. Died, 1918.

Sage, Russell, American capitalist, was born in Oneida county, New York, 1816. Educated in the public schools, he became a grocer's clerk and established himself as a wholesale grocer in Troy, 1839. He was a member of congress, 1852-56, removed to New York in 1863, purchased a seat on the stock exchange and associated himself with Jay Gould in extensive railway operations, gaining a wide reputation by his close bargaining and successful speculation. His fortune was variously estimated at from $60,000,000 to $100,000,000. Died, 1906.

Saint Ambrose. See Ambrose.

Saint Augustine. See Augustine St.

Saint Basil. See Basil.

Saint Benedict. See Benedict.

Saint Bernard. See Bernard.

Saint Clair, Arthur, American general, was born in Scotland, 1735. In 1777 he became major-general, and entered congress in 1785, of which body he was elected president two years later. In 1789 he was made governor of the Northwest territory, and two years afterward suffered a defeat with heavy loss, at the hands of the Miami Indians. Died, 1818.

Saint Columba. See Columba.

Saint Francis of Assisi. See Francis St.

Saint Gaudens (sānt gô'denz), Augustus, American sculptor, was born in Ireland in 1848, and was brought to the United States in infancy. During 1861-66 he was a student at Cooper institute, and at the academy of design, New York; went to Paris and studied at the École des Beaux Arts under Jouffroy. He executed a number of notable works, of which the most important are: The Puritan; Farragut; Lincoln; Peter Cooper, New York; Colonel R.G. Shaw, Boston. He was awarded medals at the Paris, Buffalo and St. Louis expositions, and made an officer of the French legion of honor. Died, 1907.

Saint Jerome. See Jerome.

Saint Louis IX. See Louis IX.

Saint Patrick. See Patrick.

Saint Paul. See Paul.

Saint Pierre(sañ'pêr') Jacques Henri Bernardin de, French writer, was born in Havre, France, 1737. He is best known for his beautiful story, Paul and Virginia, which has been translated into many languages. He died in 1814.

Saint-Saens (sañ'sāns'), Charles Camille, French composer and pianist, was born at Paris, 1835. He wrote his first symphony at the age of sixteen, and studied at the Paris conservatoire under Benoit, Halévy, and Gounod; LL.D., Cambridge; Mus.D., Oxford. His works include the operas: La Princesse Jaune; Le Timbre d'Argent; L'Anctere; the sacred drama, Samson and Delila. The strongest originality, sometimes becoming eccentricity, pervades his music, which is of the most modern school. Died, 1921.

Saintsbury (sānts'bĕr-i), George Edward Bateman, English critic, was born at Southampton, 1845. He was educated at Merton College, Oxford. In 1868-76 he was a schoolmaster at Manchester, Guernsey, and Elgin, but soon after established himself as one of the most active critics of the day; professor of English literature at Edinburgh University, 1895-1915. Among his books are: Short History of French Literature; History of Elizabethan Literature; Essays in English Literature, 1780-1860; History of Nineteenth-Century Literature; History of Criticism; The Earlier Renaissance; Minor Caroline Poets; A History of English Prosody, A History of the French Novel, etc.

Saint Simon, Claude Henri, Comte de, French social philosopher, was born at Paris, 1760. At sixteen he entered the army, served in America, and distinguished himself. In 1817-18 he published L'Industrie ou Discussions Politiques, Morales et Philosophiques. The third volume is the work of Auguste Comte. The last and by far the most remarkable work of Simon is his Nouveau Christianisme, which contains his final and matured convictions. Died, 1825.

Saint Thomas Aquinas. See Aquinas.

Sainte-Beuve (sañt'bûv'), Charles Augustin, French literary critic, was born at Boulogne-sur-Mer, 1804. In 1827 he became acquainted with Victor Hugo, whose commanding influence drew him into the romantic movements, and determined for him a literary career. In 1837 he lectured at Lausanne on Port-Royal, and these lectures contain some of his finest writings; was elected in 1845 to the academy; and three years later lectured for a session at Liege University. During 1849-69 he contributed to the Constitutionel. These contributions form his famous Causeries du Lundi and Nouveaux Lundis, which, for variety of human interest, critical insight and breadth of sympathy, remain unsurpassed. He was elected a senator in 1865, and his popularity revived by his eloquent advocacy of freedom of thought. In precision, in subtlety and in delicacy, his works, fifty-three volumes in all, stand alone in the literature of criticism. Died, 1869.

Saionji (sī'ōn-jē), Marquis, Japanese statesman, was born at Kioto in 1849. At the age of eighteen he gathered volunteers and fought for the emperor in the revolution of 1868. Subsequently he became minister to Austria-Hungary and then to Germany. On his return to Japan he joined the first Ito cabinet as minister of education, a post which he again occupied in the second Ito cabinet, having been minister of foreign affairs in the interval. He assisted Ito in forming the constitutional association of 1900, and became its leader in 1903. At three difficult crises the mikado called him to be prime-minister, his last term of office being from 1906 to 1908.

Saladin (sal'ä-din) or Salah-ed-Din, celebrated sultan of Egypt, flourished between 1137 and 1193. He was one of the great conquerors of his time; and in 1187 defeated the Christians in a great battle near Tiberias, afterward storming and capturing Jerusalem. He was, however, defeated by Richard Coeur-de-Lion in 1191, and died, broken down by disease and toil, in the spring of 1193.

Salisbury (sôlz'bĕr-i), Robert Arthur Talbot Gascoyne-Cecil, Marquis of, British statesman, was born at Hatfield, 1830. He was graduated from Christ Church, Oxford, 1853, and sat in parliament for Stamford, 1853-68. In 1878 he was appointed foreign secretary, and, with Lord Beaconsfield, took a prominent part in the congress of Berlin. After the latter's death he became the principal leader of the conservatives in the house of lords, and was prime-minister in 1885-1886, 1886-1892, and 1895-1902. Died, 1903.

Sallust (sal'ust') or Sallustius, Caius Crispus, Roman historian, of equal talents and profligacy, was born at Amiternium, 86 B. C. He rose from a plebeian to a senator. Cæsar successively made him quæstor and prætor, and governor of Numidia. In the last of these offices he amassed an enormous fortune by acts of rapine. His History of the Roman Republic is lost, with the exception of some fragments; but his masterly Histories of the Jugurthine War, and the Conspiracy of Catiline are extant, and bear ample testimony to his genius. Died, 34 B. C.

Salmon (săl'mun), George, British mathematician and theological writer, was born in Dublin, 1819. He was graduated at Trinity College in 1839, and became a fellow in 1841, regius professor of divinity in 1866, and provost in 1888; also F.R.S., D.D., LL.D. and D.C.L. Died, 1904.

Sampson, William Thomas, rear admiral of United States navy, was born at Palmyra, N. Y., 1840. He was graduated at Annapolis in 1861. He served six years as instructor at Annapolis, then became chief of bureau of ordinance and gained an international reputation by his work in building up the new navy. On the outbreak of the war with Spain he was appointed acting rear admiral, 1898, and placed in command of the North Atlantic squadron operating against Spain in Cuban waters. When the Spanish fleet under Cervera took refuge in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, Sampson established a close blockade of that port, resulting in the destruction of the Spanish fleet when it attempted to escape from the harbor, July 3, 1898. At the close of the war he was made rear admiral. Died, 1902.

Sand, George, pseudonym of Amantine Lucile Aurore Dudevant, French author, was born at Paris, 1804. She was descended on her father's side from the famous Marshal Saxe, and her maiden name was Dupin. After receiving a strict conventual education, she married M. Dudevant in 1822, but separated from him in 1831. Her best known works are: Indiana; Valentine; Rose et Blanche; Lelia; La Comtesse de Rudolstadt; Consuelo; Jacques; Mauprat, etc. Died, 1876.

Sandburg, Carl, American poet, born in 1878 at Galesburg, Illinois. His early life was such as to especially fit him to become the poet of industrial America. He was from time to time milk-driver, porter, scene shifter, truckman, dish-washer, harvest hand, advertising manager, salesman, newspaper man. His first volume of verse appeared in 1904, but he was unknown to the literary world until 1914, when one of his poems, Chicago, was awarded the Levinson prize of $200. Cornhuskers appeared in 1918.

Sankey, Ira David, American evangelist and singer, was born at Edinburgh, Pa., 1840. He united with the Methodist Episcopal church at fifteen; became choir leader, Sunday school superintendent, and president of the Y. M. C. A. at New Castle, Pa. In 1870 he met Dwight L. Moody, and became associated with him as a solo singer in evangelistic work in the United States and abroad. He composed many of the most popular gospel songs of his day. He lost his sight in 1903, and died in 1908.

Santa Ana (sän'tä ä'nä), Antonio Lopez de, Mexican general, was born in Jalapa, 1795. The separation of Texas from the Mexican union was vigorously but unavailingly opposed by him, but he recognized the independence of Texas, and defended Vera Cruz against the French in 1839. In 1847, war having been declared by Mexico against the United States, he took command of the Mexican forces, and when the war came to an end, he retired from Mexico. He afterward resided on Staten Island, N. Y. After the death of Juarez in 1872, he returned to Mexico, where he died in 1876.

Sappho (saf'ō), celebrated lyric poetess of Greece, was a native, probably, of Mitylene, in Lesbos. She flourished about 600 B. C., and was a contemporary and friend of Alcæus. Except some fragments, only two of her compositions have come down to us, the Ode to a Young Female, and Hymn to Venus.

Sardou (sär'dōō'), Victorien, French dramatist, was born in Paris, 1831. He studied medicine at the College Henri IV., but subsequently turned to literature. He won a reputation by M. Garatt and other pieces, produced at the Déjazet theater and was admitted to the academy in 1877. Among his best known plays are: Les Paties de Mouche; La Taverne; Les gens Nerveux; Candide; La Famille Benoiton; Theodora; Cleopâtra; Thermidor; Pamela; Robespierre; Dante, etc. Died, 1908.

Sargent (sär'jent), Dudley Allen, former director Hemenway gymnasium, Harvard, was born at Belfast, Me., 1849. He was graduated at Bowdoin, 1875, A.M., 1887, Sc.D., 1894; M.D., Yale, 1878. He invented the modern system of gymnasium apparatus; was director of the normal school of physical training, Cambridge, Mass., and president of the American association for the promotion of physical education. Died, 1924.

Sargent, John Singer, American artist, was born in Florence, Italy, 1856, of American parents. He was educated in Italy and Germany; studied painting at the academy of fine arts, Florence, Italy, and in Paris, under Carolus Duran; removed to London in 1884. R.A., 1897; officer of legion of honor. He painted many portraits, English and American, one of recent note being that of ex-President Roosevelt, painted in 1903; also various other pictures, of which his "Japanese Dancing Girl" was awarded a grand medal at the Paris exposition, 1889. Died, 1925.

Sarto (sär'tō), Andrea del, Italian painter, was born in Florence, Italy, 1487. He painted two series of frescoes in Florence, the best of the first series being Nativity of the Virgin and Journey of the Three Kings. The most celebrated of his single pictures are the Last Supper, the Madonna with the Harpies, and Fathers of the Church Disputing. He was a rapid worker, and excelled in accurate drawing. He died at Florence in 1531.

Saul, the first king of Israel, was the son of Kish, and began his reign about 1050 B. C. His victories over the Philistines were unmistakable proof of his vigorous military capacity; but gradually there showed itself a wild perversity, culminating in paroxyms of insane rage, which led him to commit frightful deeds. Nothing availed to stay his downward career, and at last he fell in a disastrous and bloody battle with the Philistines on Mount Gilboa. He was succeeded by David.

Savigny (sä-vēny'e), Frederick Karl von, 1779-1831, one of the most distinguished of modern European jurists, the founder of the modern historical school of jurisprudence, was born at Frankfort-on-the-Main.

Savonarola (sav'ō-na-rō-la), Girolamo, 1452-1498, Italian monk and reformer, was born at Ferrara. He became a Dominican Monk in 1475, and later prior of St. Mark's. He inveighed against the corruption of the church, for which he was excommunicated in 1497, and arrested and put to death, 1498.

Saxe, Maurice, French marshal, natural son of Augustus II., elector of Saxony and king of Poland, was born at Goslar, 1696. He took a brilliant part in the siege of Philippsburg, 1734, and in the war of the Austrian succession he invaded Bohemia and took Prague by storm. In 1744, now marshal of France, he commanded the French army in Flanders, showed splendid tactical skill, and took several fortresses. For the third time, at Laffeld, 1747, he defeated Cumberland and captured Bergen-op-zoom. He then retired to his estate of Chambord, and died in 1750. His work on the art of war, Mes Rêveries, was published in 1751.

Say, Jean Baptiste, eminent French economist, was born at Lyons, 1767. In 1819 he became professor of industrial economy at the Conservatoire des Arts et Métiers, and in 1830 professor of political economy at the College de France. His chief work was his Traite d'economie politique. Say died in 1832.

Sayce (sās), Archibald Henry, English philologist, was born at Shirehampton, near Bristol, 1846. He was graduated from Queen's college, Oxford, 1869. He was deputy-professor of comparative philology, 1876-90, and professor of Assyriology, 1891-1919. Among his works are Comparative Philology; The Science of Language; The Ancient Empires of the East; Herodotus; Patriarchal Palestine; Assyrian Grammar; Israel and the Surrounding Nations; Egyptian and Babylonian Religion; The Archæology of Cuneiform Inscriptions, etc.

Scaliger (skal'i-jĕr), Joseph Justus, French scholar was born in Guienne, 1540, and educated at Bordeau. In large part, however, he educated himself, mastering Latin, Greek, Syrian, Hebrew, Persian and most of the modern European languages, and at his death, in 1609, was recognized as the greatest scholar of his time. From 1793 until his death he was professor of literature at Leyden.

Schaeffer, Nathan C., American educator, state superintendent of public instruction, Pennsylvania, beginning 1893, was born in Berks county, Pa., 1849. Ph.D., D.D., LL.D. He was professor at Franklin and Marshall College, 1875-77, and principal of Keystone state normal school, 1877-93; president of National educational association, 1905-07. Died, 1919.

Scheele (shā'le), Carl William, Swedish chemist—was born at Stralsund, in the Prussian province of Pomerania, 1742. Although by profession only an apothecary, and to a large extent self-taught, he made many important chemical discoveries, with which his name will always be associated. He discovered oxygen gas, independently of Priestly, in 1774, and in the same year discovered the element chlorine. Died, 1786.

Scheffer (shef'ĕr), Ary, French painter, was born at Dordrecht, Holland, 1795, and studied under Guérin of Paris. He first made a reputation as a painter of genre pieces, which have been popularized in France by engravings. It was not until the romantic movement reached art, however, that he began to feel conscious of his peculiar power. The influence of Goethe and Byron became conspicuous in his choice of subjects. Toward the year 1836 his art underwent its third and final phase—the religious. He also executed some remarkable portraits; among others those of Lafayette, Béranger and Lamartine. Died, 1858.

Schelling (shel'ing), Friedrich Wilhelm Joseph, German philosopher, was born in Würtemburg, 1775. He studied theology and philosophy at Tübingen and science and mathematics at Leipzig. He began as a follower in philosophy of Fichte and Hegel, with whom he ranks among German philosophers, but later was influenced by Spinoza and Boehme. The large number of his philosophical works include the Enquiry Into the Nature of Human Freedom; On the Possibility of Any Form of Philosophy; Philosophy of Nature. He died in Switzerland, 1854.

Schiller, von, Johann Christoph Friedrich, great German poet and dramatist, was born at Marbach, Würtemberg, 1759. In 1773 the duke of Würtemberg, who had formed a favorable opinion of Schiller, educated the boy, free of expense, at the military academy founded by him, under the name of Karls-schule. In 1780 he passed as a military surgeon, but meanwhile, in 1778, had completed the first sketch of his memorable drama, Die Räuber, ("The Robbers"). In October, 1782, Schiller fled from the harsh service of the duke into Franconia, and lived for a year under a feigned name at Baurbach, near Meiningen, where he completed his Fiesco and Cabale und Liebe. Don Carlos was also sketched in outline here.

In 1783 he went to Mannheim, and was for some time closely connected with actors and theatrical life. To this period belong several of his lesser poems. With the Cabale und Liebe above mentioned ended the first poetic period in Schiller's career, otherwise known as the sturm und drang period. In 1785 he left Mannheim, and proceeded to Leipzig, where he wrote Lied an die Freude; whence after a few months he went to Dresden, where he began the practice of composing during the night, which so fatally assisted in shortening his life. Der Geister-seher was written here, and the drama of Don Carlos was completed.

In 1787 he was invited to Weimar, where Goethe and he became the closest friends. Henceforth Schiller owed more to Goethe than to all other men. His History of the Thirty Years' War originally appeared in the Taschenkalender fur Damen. On the occasion of the poet's marriage in 1790 with Charlotte von Lengefeld, the Duke of Meiningen made him a privy-councilor; the French republic also conferred on him the right of citizenship; and in 1802 the emperor raised him to the rank of nobility.

While staying for a year with his relatives in Würtemberg, he wrote his exquisite letters on aesthetic culture. After 1795 the finest of his lyrics and dramas were produced—as Der Spaziergang and the Lied von der Glocke (Song of the Bell), Wallenstein, Maria Stuart, Die Jungfrau von Orleans, Braut von Messina and finally his Wilhelm Tell. He died, 1805.

References.—In English we have the famous biography by T. Carlyle, and those by Lord Lytton, James Sime, H. Nevinson, and T. Calvin. For criticism the following are of importance—E. Dowden's Schiller's Friendship With Goethe; F. Werner's The Characteristics of Schiller's Dramas; E. Fischer's Schiller's Works Illustrated by the Greatest German Artist.

Schlegel (shlā'gel), August Wilhelm von, German critic, poet and scholar, was born at Hanover, 1767. In 1800 he published his first volume of poems; and, in company with his brother, the Charakteristiken und Kritiken. His most valuable and most widely popular work was his Lectures on Dramatic Art and Literature, originally delivered at Vienna, in the spring of 1808, and translated into most European languages. In 1818 Schlegel, now ennobled, was appointed professor of history in the University of Bonn, and devoted himself to the history of the fine arts and to philological research. He was one of the first students of Sanskrit in Germany, established a Sanskrit printing office at Bonn, and an Indische Bibliothek. Died, 1845.

Schlegel, Karl Wilhelm Friedrich, German critic and author, brother of the preceding, was born at Hanover in 1772. He studied at Göttingen and Leipzig, and in 1797 published his first work, The Greeks and Romans, followed in the course of a year by his History of Greek and Roman Poetry. In 1808 he went to Vienna, where, in 1811, appeared his Lectures on Modern History, and in 1815 his History of Ancient and Modern Literature. Died, 1829.

Schleiermacher (shlī'ĕr-mäkĕr), Friedrich Ernst Daniel, German philosopher and theologian, was born at Breslau, 1768. In 1794 he became assistant clergyman at Landsberg-on-the-Warthe, where he remained for two years. The first work that won for him general celebrity was his Discourses on Religion, which startled Germany from its spiritual torpor. He was professor at Halle, 1804-06, and in 1810 was called to a theological chair in the new University of Berlin. In 1811 appeared his Brief Outline of the Study of Theology; in 1817 his Critical Essay on the Writings of Luke; and in 1821-22 his greatest work, An Exhibition of the Christian Faith, According to the Principles of the Evangelical Church. Died, 1834.

Schley (shlī), Winfield Scott, American admiral, was born near Frederick, Md., 1839. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy, 1860; served in West Gulf blockading squadron from 1861. In 1872 he was placed at the head of the department of modern languages at Annapolis. In 1884 took command of Greeley relief expedition and rescued Lieutenant Greeley and six survivors at Cape Sabine. He was placed in command of the "flying squadron" on duty in Cuban waters in war with Spain; was in immediate command at the destruction of Cervera's fleet off Santiago, July 3, 1898. Promoted to rear-admiral, August, 1898; was presented with a gold sword by the people of Pennsylvania; a silver sword by the Royal Arcanum; a gold and jeweled medal, with the thanks of the Maryland legislature. He retired at the age limit in 1901. Author: Rescue of Greeley, Forty-five Years Under the Flag, etc. Died, 1911.

Schliemann (slē'män), Heinrich, German traveler and archæologist, was born at Mechlenburg-Schwerin, 1822. He excavated the ancient city of Troy in 1870, and in 1876 he began excavations on the side of the ancient city of Mycenæ, in Greece, and the treasures found there are now preserved at Athens. He wrote an account of his work in Mycenæ, Tiryns, Ilios, Troja, and other volumes. He died at Naples, 1890, and was buried at Athens.

Schofield (skō'fēld), John McAllister, American general, was born in Gerry, N. Y., 1831. He was graduated at West Point, 1853, and was made a professor there in 1855; LL.D., Chicago University. When the Civil War broke out he entered the army as major of the 1st Missouri volunteers. He shared Sherman's southern campaign, and was in most of the battles which ended with the taking of Atlanta, when he returned to Tennessee, defeating Hood at Franklin, and was with General Thomas at the battle of Nashville. In 1868 he became secretary of war, and major-general in the regular army. Upon the death of General Sheridan, 1888, he succeeded to the command of the United States army. Previous to his retirement, he was, by act of congress, made lieutenant-general, 1895. He published a biographical narrative entitled Forty-six Years in the Army. Died, 1906.

Schoolcraft, Henry Rowe, American ethnologist and explorer, was born at Watervliet, N. Y., 1793. After studying at Union College, he visited the mining region west of the Mississippi, and also acted as geologist in an exploring expedition to Lake Superior and the upper Mississippi, under General Cass. While Indian agent he made treaties that gave the United States 16,000,000 acres. As a member of the legislature of Michigan territory, from 1828-32, he founded its historical society. An expedition which he commanded in 1832 discovered the sources of the Mississippi. His works include narratives of his journeys: Notes on the Iroquois; The Red Race of America; Thirty Years With the Indian Tribes; and The Indian in His Wigwam. He died at Washington, D. C., 1864.

Schopenhauer (shō'pen-hou'ĕr), Arthur, German philosopher, was born at Dantzig, Germany, 1788. He studied first at Göttingen and afterward at Berlin and Jena. He then proceeded to Dresden, where he published a treatise, Sight and Color, which was followed three years later by his great work, The World as Will and Idea. Died, 1860.

Schouler (shōō'lĕr), James, American lawyer and historian, was born at Arlington, Mass., 1839. He was graduated at Harvard, 1859; LL.D., National University, 1891, Johns Hopkins, 1902. He was admitted to the Massachusetts bar, 1862, and to the supreme court of the United States, 1867; and lecturer, Johns Hopkins, Baltimore Author: The Law of Domestic Relations; The Law of Bailments. Died, 1920.

Schubert (shōō'bĕrt), Franz Peter, Austrian composer, was born at Vienna, 1797. His talent for composition soon revealed itself, and by 1813 his supreme gift of lyric melody showed itself in the song The Erlking, the Mass in F, etc. His output of work was remarkable for its variety and quantity, embracing some 500 songs, ten symphonies, six masses, operas, sonatas, etc.; but his fame rests on his songs, which are infused by an intensity of poetic feeling. Died, 1828.

Schumann (shōō'män), Robert, German composer, was born in Zwickau, 1810. He studied at Heidelberg, 1828-30, and then at Leipzig, under Wieck. Up to 1840 nearly all his compositions had been for the piano, but he subsequently produced 138 songs, many of which have become classic. In 1850-53 he was director of music at Dusseldorf. Died, 1856.

Schumann-Heink (shōō'män hingk'), Ernestine, née Roessler, German dramatic contralto, was born at Lieben, 1861. She studied at Gratz, and made her début at Dresden, 1878. In 1883 she went to Hamburg; in 1896 sang at Bayreuth She married Heink in 1883, and Paul Schumann in 1893. She made her American début in 1898; since then she has devoted herself largely to concert work. In 1905 she bought a large estate at Montclair, N. J. Died 1936.

Schurman (shōōrman), Jacob Gould, American educator, ex-president of Cornell University, 1892-1920, was born at Freetown, Prince Edward island, 1854. He was graduated at the University of London, 1877, studied at Paris and the University of Edinburgh, 1877-78; D.Sc., Edinburgh; LL.D., Columbia University, 1892, Yale University, 1901, University of Edinburgh, 1902, and 1886-92 Sage professor of philosophy, and later part of time dean, of Sage school of philosophy, Cornell. Envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to China, 1921-25, similar post in Germany since 1925. Author: Kantian Ethics and the Ethics of Evolution; The Ethical Import of Darwinism; Belief in God; Agnosticism and Religion; A Generation of Cornell; Report of the Philippine Commission. Ambassador to China.

Schurz (shōōrts), Carl, American publicist, was born in Liblar, near Cologne, Germany, 1829. He was educated at the gymnasium, Cologne, and University of Bonn; LL.D., Harvard; took part in a revolutionary movement in 1848-49; joined the revolutionary army, but finally had to flee to Switzerland. Came to the United States, 1852; settled in Watertown, Wis.; United States minister to Spain, 1861; resigned to enter the Union army; appointed brigadier-general, 1862; major-general, 1863; and commanded a division at the second battle of Bull Run and at Chancellorsville, and a corps at Gettysburg. After the war he was Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune, 1865-66; and United States senator from Missouri, 1869-75. He was one of the organizers of the liberal party, 1872; supported Hayes, 1876; was secretary of the interior, 1877-81. Author: Speeches; Life of Henry Clay; Abraham Lincoln, an Essay, and an autobiography published in McClure's Magazine, interrupted by his death in 1906.

Schwab (shwŏb), Charles M., American capitalist, ex-president of the United States steel corporation, was born in Williamsburg, Pa., 1862. He was educated in the village school and at St. Francis College; entered service of Carnegie Company as stake-driver in engineering corps of Edgar Thompson steel works; became superintendent of Homestead works and finally president of Carnegie Steel Company, limited. He built a new Catholic church, costing $150,000, at Loretto, Pa.; established an industrial school at Homestead, Pa., etc.

Schwanthaler (shvän'tä-lĕr), Ludwig von, German sculptor, was born at Munich, 1802. He studied under his father, and after a visit to Rome was charged by King Louis of Bavaria to execute bas-reliefs and figures for the public buildings of Munich. Among his works are the colossal statue of Bavaria; statues of Goethe, Jean Paul Richter, Mozart, etc. Died, 1848.

Scipio (sip'i-ō), Æmilianus Publius, surnamed Africanus Minor, was born about 185 B. C. After distinguishing himself in Spain, he proceeded to Africa to take part in the third Punic war. Here he laid siege to Carthage, took it by storm, and leveled it with the ground in 146 B. C. He was afterward sent to Spain, where he captured Numantia, after a stubborn resistance, to the extension of the sway of Rome. Died, 129 B. C.

Scipio, Publius Cornelius, surnamed Africanus Major, celebrated Roman general, was born about 237 B. C. In 212 B. C. he was elected ædile, and in the following year proconsul, with command of the Roman forces in Spain. He defeated Hasdrubal at Baesula, with heavy loss. In 205 B. C. he returned to Rome, where he was elected consul, and in the following year sailed from Lilybæum, in Sicily, at the head of a large army, for the invasion of Africa. His success compelled the Carthaginian senate to recall Hannibal from Italy. Peace was concluded the following year, when Scipio returned to Rome, and enjoyed a triumph. His laurels, however, did not protect him from the intrigues of his enemies in Rome. Various charges were brought against him, and he at length retired in disgust to his country seat at Liternum, where he died, 183 or 185 B. C.

Scott, Sir George Gilbert, British architect, was born at Gawcot., near Buckingham, England, 1811. He was indentured to a London architect, 1827-30, and eventually became the leading architect of the Gothic restoration in England. He was elected A.R.A. in 1855, R.A. in 1861; held the professorship of architecture at the London Academy; and was knighted in 1872. He died in 1878, and was buried in Westminster abbey.

Scott, James Brown, American lawyer and educator, was born at Kincardine, Ontario, 1866. He was graduated at Harvard, and studied international law, 1891-94; J.U.D., Heidelberg, 1894. He practiced law at Los Angeles, Cal., 1894-99; professor of law, Columbia Law School, 1903-06; professor of law, 1905-06, and of international law, 1906-11, in George Washington University. He was solicitor for the department of state, 1906-11. Editor-in-chief American Journal of International Law, 1907-24. Author: Cases on International Law; Cases on Quasi-contracts; Cases on Equity Jurisdiction; Cases on Equity Pleading.

Scott, Richard William, Canadian senator and Dominion secretary of state beginning 1896, was born at Prescott, Canada, 1825. He was educated at Prescott, became member of parliament for Ottawa, 1857-63; speaker of the house of commons, 1871; appointed to senate, 1873; secretary of state, 1873-78; and leader of the opposition in the senate, 1879-96. He carried through parliament the school bill giving the Roman Catholics right to establish separate schools, 1863, and the Canada temperance (local option) act, 1875. Died, 1913.

Scott, Sir Walter, Scotch novelist and poet, was born in Edinburgh, 1771. He came of the old border family. Though he matured into a man of robust health, as a child he was feeble and sickly, and was smitten with a lameness which remained with him through life. In 1783 he entered Edinburgh University, and remained there three years. In 1786 he was articled apprentice to his father, in whose office he worked as a clerk till 1792; in the same year he was called to the bar.

In his profession he had fair success, and in 1797 he was married to Charlotte Margaret Carpenter, a lady of French birth and parentage. Toward the end of 1799, through the interest of his friends Lord Melville and the Duke of Buccleuch, he was made sheriff-deputy of Selkirkshire, an appointment which brought him 300 pounds a year, with not very much to do for it. Meantime, in a tentative and intermittent way, his leisure had been occupied with literature, which more and more distinctly announced itself as the main business of his life.

His first publication, a translation of Burger's ballads, Lenore and The Wild Huntsman, was issued in 1796. In 1798 appeared his translation of Goethe's drama of Goetz von Berlichingen; and in the year following he wrote the fine ballads, Glenfinlas, the Eve of St. John, and the Gray Brother. In the year 1802 he published the first two volumes of his Border Minstrelsy, which were followed in 1803 by a third and final one. This work at once won for him a prominent place among the literary men of his time. In 1804 he issued an edition of the old poem Sir Tristram. By the publication in 1805 of The Lay of the Last Minstrel Scott became at a bound the most popular author of his day.

During the next ten years, besides a mass of miscellaneous work, he gave to the world the poems Marmion, The Lady of the Lake, The Vision of Don Roderick, Rokeby, The Bridal of Triermain (anonymously published), The Lord of the Isles, and The Field of Waterloo. In Waverly, which appeared without his name in 1814, he achieved the first of a new and more splendid series of triumphs. Guy Mannering, The Antiquary, The Black Dwarf, Old Mortality, Rob Roy, and The Heart of Midlothian rapidly followed, and the "Great Unknown," as he was called, became the idol of the hour.

In 1820, to set a seal upon all this distinction, a baronetcy was bestowed upon him as a special mark of the royal favor. Financial misfortune led him to redouble his efforts, and he literally wrote for money. He produced upward of twenty novels in the next ten years, and the strain was terrific. In 1830 he was smitten down with paralysis, from which he never thoroughly rallied. It was hoped that the climate of Italy might benefit him; and by the government of the day a frigate was placed at his disposal in which to proceed thither. But in Italy he pined for his home. He died at Abbotsford, 1832, and was buried beside his wife in the old Abbey of Dryburgh.

References.—Lockhart's Life is the main source for Scott's biography. See also Hutton's English Men of Letters; Lang's Sir Walter Scott; Norgate's Life; and Crockett's The Scott Country.

Scott, William Amasa, university professor, was born at Clarkson, Monroe County, N. Y., 1862; graduated at University of Rochester, 1886; Ph. D., Johns Hopkins, 1892. Professor of history and political science, University of South Dakota, 1887-90; graduate student and instructor of history, Johns Hopkins, 1890-2; assistant professor political economy, 1892-3, associate professor, 1893-7, professor since 1897; director School of Commerce since 1900, University of Wisconsin. Author: Repudiation of State Debts; Money and Banking. Translator: Bohm-Bawerk's Recent Literature on Interest, etc.

Scott, Winfield, American general, was born near Petersburg, Va., 1786. He studied at William and Mary College, and first became a lawyer, but in 1808 entered the army as captain. In the war of 1812 he was sent to the Canadian border, where he fought at Queenstown and at Lundy's Lane. He was wounded in both the battles, having two horses shot under him at Lundy's Lane. He was made a major-general for his services. As commander-in-chief of the United States army, 1841-47, he took command of the invasion of Mexico. He captured Vera Cruz, and defeated Santa Anna at Cerro Gordo, taking Jalapa and Puebla; took the castle of Chapultepec by storm, and September 14, 1847, marched into the City of Mexico, where he commanded until the treaty of peace was signed in February, 1848. At the beginning of the Civil War he was in charge of the army, but soon yielded his position to younger men. He died at West Point, 1866.

Seamen, Owen, English humorist and editor of Punch since 1907, was born in 1861. He was educated at Shrewsbury and at Clare College, Cambridge; was professor of literature at Durham College of science at Newcastle-on-Tyne, 1890; and began writing for Punch, 1894. He was made a barrister of Inner Temple, 1897, joined the staff of Punch in the same year, and was assistant editor in 1902. Died, 1936.

Seawell, Molly Elliot, American author, was born in Gloucester county, Va., 1860, daughter of John Tyler Seawell. She was educated privately, and began writing sketches and stories in 1886. In 1890 her Little Jarvis took a prize of $500, offered by the Youth's Companion, for the best story for boys, and in 1895 her Sprightly Romance of Marsac took a prize of $3,000 offered by the New York Herald. Died, 1916.

Seegar, Alan, American poet, was born in New York City in 1888. He entered Harvard in 1906, and became an editor of the Harvard monthly. After graduation he spent the years 1910 to 1914 in Paris. At the very beginning of the world war he enlisted in the foreign legion of France, serving on various fronts until he was killed in 1916. He showed great literary promise, though his fame rests almost entirely on his poem "I Have a Rendezvous with Death," published in 1916. His letters from the front, published in 1917, show developing power.

Seeley, Sir John Robert, English historian, was born in London, 1834. He was educated at Christ's College, Cambridge, and was elected a fellow of his college in 1858. His Ecce Homo appeared anonymously in 1865, and excited an extraordinary commotion in the religious world. It was followed by Natural Religion, 1882. He was created a K.C.M.G. in 1894 and died, 1895.

Seerley, Homer Horatio, college president, was born near Indianapolis, Indiana, 1848; graduated at the State University of Iowa, 1873, Bachelor of Didactics, 1875, M.A., 1876; LL.D., Pennsylvania College, 1898, State University of Iowa, 1901. Was teacher, 1873-5, and superintendent city schools, 1875-86, Oskaloosa; president of Iowa State Teacher's College beginning 1886; president department normal schools, N.E.A., 1898; etc. Author: History and Civil Government of Iowa; The Common Schools, etc.

Seligman (sel'ig-man), Edwin Robert Anderson, American economist, McVickar professor of political economy, Columbia University, since 1904, was born in New York, 1861. He was graduated at Columbia, 1879. He was adjunct professor at Columbia, 1888-91; president of the American economic association, 1902-04, and was president of the Tenement house building company. He is editor of the Political Science Quarterly. Author: Railway Tariffs; Finance Statistics of American Commonwealth; Economic Interpretation of History; Principles of Economics, etc.

Selous (se-lōōs', or lōō), Frederick Courtney, English traveler and writer, was born in London, 1851, and was educated at Rugby, in Switzerland and in Germany. He first visited South Africa in 1871, and published A Hunter's Wanderings in Africa; Travel and Adventure in Southeast Africa. Died, 1917.

Sembrich (zem'brĭk), Marcella, Austrian soprano, was born in 1858. She studied under Stengel, whom she afterward married; Epstein, and Rokitansky in Vienna, and made her début at Athens in 1877, in I Puritani. In 1879 she sang in Dresden and afterward at Vienna, Dresden, London and New York. Besides possessing a voice of high quality, she is also an excellent actress. Died, 1935.

Semmes (semz), Raphael, American naval officer, was born in Maryland, 1809. He served in the Mexican war; in 1861 joined the naval service of the confederate states, and was appointed to the command of the war steamer, Sumter. He also commanded the famous Alabama during her destructive cruise. After the war he practiced law at Mobile, Ala. Died, 1877.

Seneca, Lucius Annaeus, Roman stoic philosopher, was born at Corduba, Spain, about 3 B. C. On the accession of Emperor Claudius, A. D. 41, he was banished to the island of Corsica. On the marriage of Claudius to his second wife, Agrippina, Seneca was through her influence recalled, and was appointed tutor to her son Domitius, afterward the emperor Nero. Five years later his pupil ascended the throne, and Seneca became one of the chief advisers of the young emperor. All his influence failed, however, to restrain the vicious propensities of Nero; and, after the murder of Agrippina by the latter, A. D. 59, Seneca asked permission to retire from court. He now wholly avoided public life, and devoted himself to his philosophical studies; but the emperor, who both disliked and feared him, followed him into his retirement, and is said to have sought to compass his death by poison. After the conspiracy of Piso, A. D. 65, Seneca was mentioned by one of the conspirators as having shared in the plot, and without further proof, was ordered to put himself to death. He died with all the courage of a stoic, and his wife, Pompeia Paulina, attempted, though vainly, to die with him. Of Seneca's writings which have come down to us, the greater part are on moral and philosophical subjects.

Sennacherib (se-nak'ĕr-ĭb), celebrated king of ancient Assyria, reigned from 705 to 681 B. C. He seems to have been the first who fixed the seat of government permanently at Nineveh, which he adorned with splendid buildings.

Septimius Severus. See Severus.

Sergel (ser'gel), John Tobias, eminent Swedish sculptor, was born at Stockholm, 1740. He was a pupil of L'Archevecque, and subsequently completed his studies at Rome; rose to great eminence, and was ennobled after his return to Sweden. Died, 1814.

Servetus (sĕr-vē'tus), Michael, Spanish physician and controversialist, was born in Spain, about 1511. He studied law at Saragossa and Toulouse, was graduated in medicine at Paris, and afterward studied theology at Louvain. He maintained a vigorous correspondence with Calvin, who endeavored for sixteen years to convince him of his errors; and the failure of the endeavor irritated Calvin, whose anger was doubtless increased by the trenchant styles in which Servetus replied to his argument. Was so imprudent as to pass through Geneva, where Calvin obtained intelligence of his arrival, and gave information of it to the magistrates. He was thereupon seized, imprisoned, tried for heresy, and ultimately burned by a slow fire, 1553.

Service, Robert William, Canadian poet and novelist, was born at Preston, England, in 1874. He came to Canada in 1907, where he traveled extensively in British Columbia and in the Yukon country. His first success, Songs of a Sourdough, was followed by The Spell of the Yukon, Ballads of a Cheechako, Rhymes of a Rolling Stone, The Pretender, and Rhymes of a Red Cross Man. He was a war correspondent and ambulance driver during the world war.

Seton (sē'tun), Ernst Thompson, artist, author, lecturer, was born at South Shields, England, 1860. He lived in the back woods of Canada, 1866-70; on western plains, 1882-87. He was educated at Toronto Collegiate Institute and the Royal Academy, London, England, and studied art in Paris, 1890-96. He was one of the chief illustrators of The Century Dictionary. Author and illustrator: Wild Animals I Have Known; The Trail of the Sandhill Stag; The Biography of a Grizzly; Krag and Johnny Bear; Two Little Savages; Monarch, the Big Bear.

Severus (sē-vē'rus), Lucius Septimius, Roman emperor, was born near Leptis Magna, in Africa, 146. He rose to be prætor in 178, and commander of the army in Pannonia and Illyria. After the murder of Pertinax in 193, he was proclaimed emperor, marched upon Rome, utterly defeated his two rivals in 195 and 197, and between these dates made a splendid campaign in the East, and took Byzantium. To protect south Britain from the Caledonian invasions, he repaired Hadrian's wall, sometimes called after Severus, and died soon after at Eboracum (York), 211.

Sevigne (sā'vēn'yā'), Madame de, nêe Marie de Rabutin Chantal, one of the most charming of letter writers, was born at Paris, 1626. At eighteen she married the dissolute Marquis Je Sévigné, who left her a widow at twenty-five. Her fame rests on her Letters, written chiefly to her daughter in Provence, which reflect the brightest and purest side of Parisian life, and contain the tender outpourings of her mother's heart in language of unstudied grace. Died, 1696.

Seward, William Henry, American statesman, was born in Florida, N. Y., 1801. He was graduated at Union College in 1820, was admitted to the bar in 1822, and settled at Auburn, N. Y. He was elected to the state senate in 1830; was elected governor of New York in 1838, and in 1849 was elected to the United States senate, where he became the acknowledged leader of his party. In 1860 he was the most prominent candidate of the republican party for nomination for the presidency, but personal and local interests finally secured the election of Abraham Lincoln. Seward afterward accepted the important post of secretary of state, in Lincoln's cabinet, in which he guided the diplomacy of the federal government through the perils of the Civil War. He resigned in 1869, on the accession of U. S. Grant. He published Speeches and Orations (in 4 volumes), Life of John Quincy Adams, and Life of De Witt Clinton. Died, 1872.

Seymour, Sir Edward Hobart, English admiral, was born in 1840. He was educated at Radley, and entered the British navy in 1852. He served through the Crimean war in the Black sea; the China war, 1857-60; operations against Chinese rebels and in the Egyptian war of 1882, taking part in most of the naval fighting in connection with those wars. As commander he was badly wounded in action on the river Congo. He became captain in 1873, rear-admiral, 1889, and vice-admiral, 1895, and was commander-in-chief of the China station, 1898-1901. Commander-in-chief, Devonport, 1903-05. Author: My Naval Career and Travels. Died, 1929.

Seymour, Horatio, American statesman, was born at Pompey, N. Y., 1810. He studied at a military school; was admitted to the bar, 1832; entered New York legislature, 1841; and was chosen speaker, 1845. He was elected governor in 1852 and 1862, and came into great prominence as one of New York's "war governors." He was Democratic candidate for President, in 1868. Died, 1886.

Shaftesbury, Anthony Ashley Cooper, Earl of, British statesman, was born at Winborne, in Dorsetshire, 1621. He was educated at Exeter College, Oxford, and studied law at Lincoln's Inn. He entered parliament in 1640. He was chancellor of the exchequer in 1661, and in 1372 was created an earl and lord chancellor, but, hoodwinked by Charles in the secret treaty of Dover, he went over to the opposition and lost his chancellorship. His virulent attacks on James and espousal of Monmouth's cause brought about his arrest on a charge of high treason in 1681, and although released he retired to Holland, where he died in 1683. He is the Achitophel of Dryden's great satire.

Shaftesbury, Anthony Ashley Cooper, seventh Earl of, English statesman and philanthropist, was born in London, 1801. He was graduated at Oxford, and entered parliament as a conservative in 1826. His name lives, by virtue of his noble and lifelong philanthropy, which took shape in numerous acts of parliament, such as the mines and collieries act of 1842, excluding women and boys under thirteen working in mines; the better treatment of lunatics act, 1845, called the magna charta of the insane; the factory acts, 1867, and the workshop regulation act, 1878. Died, 1885.

Shahan, Thomas Joseph, American educator, rector of the Catholic University of America, since 1909, was born at Manchester, N. H., 1857. He was educated at Montreal College, Canada, 1872, American College, Rome, 1878-82; D.D., College of the Propaganda, Rome, 1882; J.U.L., Roman Seminary, 1889. He was ordained to the Roman Catholic priesthood in the cathedral of St. John Lateran, Rome, 1882; professor of church history and patrology, Catholic University of America, beginning 1891. Author: The Blessed Virgin in the Catacombs; The Middle Ages; The House of God, and Other Addresses and Studies, etc.

Shah Jehan (shä' je-hän'), fifth of the Mogul emperors of Delhi, was born about 1592, and succeeded his father in 1627. He was a man of great administrative ability and a skilled warrior. He founded the modern city of Delhi, built the Taj Mahal and other magnificent buildings at Agra. Died in prison in 1666, a victim to the perfidy of his usurping son, Aurungzebe.

Shakespeare, William, the chief literary glory of England, was born at Stratford-on-, Avon, in Warwickshire, 1564. His father, John Shakespeare, seems to have belonged by birth to the class of yeoman. His mother, Mary Arden, was of more distinguished origin, and came of a good old Warwickshire family. Of a family of four sons and four daughters born to them, William was the third child. At the free grammar school of Stratford there can be little doubt the young Shakespeare received his entire education.

In 1582 Shakespeare, a lad of nineteen, was married to Anne Hathaway of Shottery, a girl about eight years older tnan himself. The children born of the marriage were a girl, and twins, a boy and a girl. The boy Hamnet died in his twelfth year.

At the age of twenty-two, Shakespeare went to London. No certain details have come down to us as to his earlier relations with the London theater. According to one tradition, he was content at first to turn a penny by holding horses at the door. According to another—which seems a natural sequence with the foregoing—we find him admitted inside on his promotion, though as yet only in the humble capacity of prompter's attendant. If at any time he was thus occupied it could have been only for a brief period, as very speedily we have note of him as a man of some importance, at once dramatist, actor and shareholder in the Blackfriars theater.

In the year 1592 we find a contemporary and brother dramatist, Henry Chettle, apologizing to Shakespeare for an offense given, in terms most respectfully appreciatory of his excellences at once as a man and an author, and in 1698 Francis Meres, in his Wits, Treasury, writes of him as the "most excellent among the English for both kinds of tragedy and comedy." We have ample evidence of the unrivaled acceptance his works obtained from all classes; they brought him special marks of favor and approval from Queen Elizabeth and her successor James, and procured him the patronage and friendship of some of the most accomplished men of rank of his time, more notably, Henry Wriothesly, earl of Southampton, to whom he dedicated his Venus and Adonis, and Rape of Lucrece, and William Herbert, earl of Pembroke, to whom his Sonnets are addressed.

His visits to Stratford now became more and more frequent; and prior to the year 1613 he had ceased to reside in London, and finally established himself at Stratford. Of his last years there spent, further than that they lapsed peacefully in honor, and the exercise of a liberal and kindly hospitality, nearly nothing is known. There is a good reason to believe that, though withdrawn from other active concernment with the stage, he still continued to write for it. His death took place on his fifty-third birthday, 1616, and he was buried in Stratford church-yard.

He was essentially a man of noble and estimable character, and was obviously of most kindly and lovable disposition; his pleasurable wit and good nature made him delightful as a companion; and it was as "gentle Will Shakespeare" that he was familiarly known to his contemporaries. The lofty eulogy of Dryden, "he was the man who, of all modern and perhaps ancient poets, had the largest and most comprehensive soul," has been generally acquiesced in. As dramatist, he is admittedly in the world without a peer; as poet, there are but one or two names in literature even to be named beside his; and dismissing his claims in either kind, we have in his works such a treasury of gnomic wisdom on all matters of human concernment as no other writer has ever left to the world.

References.—Halliwell-Philipp's Outlines of the Life of Shakespeare; Sidney Lee's Life; Hazlitt's Characters of Shakespeare's Plays; Ulrici's Shakespeare's Dramatic Art; Hudson's Shakespeare: His Life, Art and Characters; Dowden's Shakespeare, His Mind and Art; Bayne's Shakespeare Studies; Swinburne's Study of Shakespeare; White's Studies in Shakespeare; Moulton's Shakespeare as a Dramatic Artist; Brandes' William Shakespeare; Smith's Eighteenth Century Essays on Shakespeare; Stopford Brooke's Ten Plays of Shakespeare; Gervinus's Shakespeare.

Shaler (shā'ler), Nathaniel Southgate, American scientist, author, was born in Newport, Ky., 1841. He was graduated at Lawrence Scientific School, Harvard, 1862; Sc.D., 1865; served two years as artillery officer in Union army during the Civil War. Professor of palæontology, 1868-87, and afterward professor of geology, Harvard; and from 1884 to 1906 was geologist in charge of the Atlantic division of the United States geological survey. Author: A First Book in Geology; Kentucky, a Pioneer Commonwealth; Sea and Land; The United States of America; A Study of the American Commonwealth; American Highways; Features of Coasts and Oceans; Domesticated Animals: Their Relation to Man; The Individual; Study of Life and Death; etc. Died, 1906.

Sharpless, Isaac, American educator, president of Haverford College beginning 1887, was born in Chester county, Pa., 1848. He was graduated at the Lawrence Scientific School, Harvard, 1873; Sc.D., University of Pennsylvania; LL.D., Swarthmore College; professor of mathematics and astronomy, 1879-84, and dean, 1884-87, of Haverford College. Author: Astronomy; Geometry. Died, 1920.

Shaughnessy, Sir Thomas George, Canadian railway president, was born at Milwaukee, Wis., 1853. He received a common school education; entered the railway service in 1869, in the purchasing department of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad. Vice-president and director, 1891-98, and president beginning 1898 of the Canadian Pacific railway. He was knighted by Queen Victoria, 1901. Died, 1923.

Shaw, Albert, editor of the American Review of Reviews, was born in Shandon, Ohio, 1857. He was graduated at Iowa College, Grinnel, Ia. 1879; Ph.D., Johns Hopkins, 1884; LL.D., University of Wisconsin, 1904. He is a member of numerous learned societies, and has lectured in many Universities and colleges. Is president, Review of Reviews Corporation. Author: Icaria—A Chapter in the History of Communism; Municipal Government in Continental Europe, etc.

Shaw, George Bernard, British dramatist, critic and novelist, was born in Dublin, Ireland, 1856, and went to London in 1876, where he engaged in newspaper work. He published a few novels, wrote musical critiques in the London Star, 1888-90, and in the World, 1890-94; and, in 1895, began his work as a dramatic critic, writing in the Saturday Review. In 1898 he published Plays, Pleasant and Unpleasant. Since then his chief literary work has been writing for the stage. His plays include Man and Superman; John Bull's Other Island; Major Barbara; The Doctor's Dilemma; Cæsar and Cleopatra; Getting Married, etc.

Shaw, Henry Wheeler, American humorist, was born in Lanesborough, Mass., 1818. In 1859 he began to write, and, in 1860, sent An Essa on the Muel, bi Josh Billings to a New York paper. It was reprinted in several comic journals, and extensively copied. His most successful literary venture, however, was his Farmer's-Allminax a travesty on the Old Farmer's Almanac. He began to lecture in 1863, and, for twenty years previous to his death, contributed regularly to the New York World. Died in Monterey, Cal., 1885.

Shaw, Leslie Mortier, American financier and lecturer, was born at Morristown, Vt., 1848. He was graduated at Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Ia., M.S., 1874; LL.D. He was admitted to the Iowa bar in 1876, and began practice at Denison, Ia.; subsequently engaged in banking at Denison, Manilla, and Charter Oak, Ia. Was twice elected governor of Iowa, 1898-1900, 1900-02; secretary of the treasury, 1902-07, and president of the Carnegie trust company, N. Y. '07-8. Died, 1932.

Shays, Daniel, American insurgent, was born in Hopkinton, Mass., 1747. He served as ensign at the battle of Bunker Hill; attained the rank of captain in the continental army, and took a leading part in the popular movement in western Massachusetts for the redress of alleged grievances due to misgovernment. In 1786 he appeared before Springfield, Mass., at the head of 1,000 men, to prevent the session of the supreme court at that place. He died in Sparta, N. Y., 1825.

Shelley, Mary Wollstonecraft Godwin, wife of the poet, was born in London in 1798, and married Shelley in 1816. In 1818 she produced a remarkable novel entitled Frankenstein. She likewise wrote Rambles in Germany and Italy, etc., and carefully edited her husband's poems. Died, 1851.

Shelley, Percy Bysshe, famous English poet, was born at Field Place, near Horsham, England, 1792. In 1808 he left school, and after two years passed at home was sent to Oxford. A pamphlet entitled The Necessity of Atheism, which circulated during the second year of his college course, led to his expulsion from Oxford. In 1811 he married Harriet Westbrook, daughter of a retired innkeeper, but in 1814 a separation took place between him and his wife. His second wife was Mary Godwin. In 1813 appeared his poem Queen Mab, which was printed only for private circulation. In 1818 he left England for Italy, and during that and the following year, chiefly while a resident at Rome, he produced what may rank as his two finest poems—the grand lyrical drama of Prometheus Unbound and the tragedy of The Cenci. His other works of chief importance are Rosalind and Helen, The Witch of Atlas, written in 1819; Epipsychidion, Adonais, on the death of Keats, and Hellas—all produced in 1821. He perished in 1822 by the capsizing of his boat, while sailing in the gulf of Leghorn.

Shepard, Edward Morse, American lawyer and publicist, was born in New York, 1850. He was graduated at the college of the city of New York, 1869, studied law and was admitted to the bar. He was civil service commissioner of Brooklyn, 1883-85; New York state forestry commissioner, 1884-85, and democratic candidate for mayor of Greater New York, 1901. Author: Martin Van Buren, in American statesmen series; Memoirs of Dugdale; and many review, magazine and other articles and addresses on political, industrial and educational topics. Died, 1911.

Shepherd, F. J., Canadian physician, professor of anatomy, 1883-1913, and dean of the medical faculty, McGill University, Montreal, 1908-1913, was born at Cavagnol, province of Quebec, 1851. LL.D., Edinburgh and Harvard. He was demonstrator of anatomy in McGill University, 1875; president of the Montreal medico-chirurgical society, and vice-president of the international dermatological congress, 1894 and 1907. Author: American Text-Book of Surgery; Retrospect of Surgery, 1881-94, etc.

Sheridan, Philip Henry, American general, was born at Albany, N. Y., 1831. He was graduated at West Point in 1853. At the beginning of the Civil War he was a captain in the 13th infantry, was made quartermaster of the federal army in Missouri, and rapidly passed up through the various grades to major-general in 1863 for brilliant service in the battles of Perryville and Stone river. For his decisive victory over Early at Cedar Creek—the occasion of his famous ride—he was promoted to major-general in the regular army, and received the thanks of congress. Returning to the army of the Potomac, in 1865, he was conspicuous under Grant in the operations before Petersburg, and in the final battles preceding Lee's surrender. When Sherman was made general, Sheridan was made lieutenant-general, and when Sherman was retired, a special act of congress conferred the further rank of general upon Sheridan, who became commander-in-chief of the army. He died at Nonquitt, Mass., 1888.

Sheridan, Richard Brinsley, British dramatist and politician, was born in Dublin, 1751. He was educated at Harrow, and became a student of the Middle Temple, London, though he was never called to the bar. In 1775, produced The Rivals successfully at Covent Garden. In 1777 he became part proprietor of Drury English theater, in which he produced The School for Scandal and also The Critic, one of the wittiest farces. During the whole time of Pitt's ascendancy the talents of Sheridan were displayed in combating that great statesman, by whom however, his eloquence was acknowledged, and especially his eloquence on the occasion of the Warren Hastings' trial. He died in 1816, and was buried in Westminster abbey.

Sherman, James Schoolcraft, lawyer, banker, vice-president of the United States beginning 1909, was born in Utica, N. Y., 1855. He was graduated from Hamilton College in 1878, and was admitted to the bar in 1880; LL.D., Hamilton, 1903. Was mayor of Utica, 1884; chairman of New York state republican convention in 1895 and again in 1900; and chairman of the national republican congressional committee, 1906-09. He was a member of congress, 1887-91, 1893-1903, and 1903-09; elected vice-president of the United States, 1908, taking his seat, March 4, 1909. Died, 1912.

Sherman, John, American statesman, brother of William Tecumseh, was born at Lancaster, Ohio, 1823. He was employed for a time at surveying, and was admitted to the bar in 1844, entering into partnership with his brother. He became an anti-slavery whig, and as such entered congress in 1855. He was reëlected to congress and continued in the house until 1861, the recognized leader of the republicans. He was then United States senator, 1861-77, and 1881-97; secretary of the treasury under President Hayes, 1877-81; and secretary of state under President McKinley, 1897-98. He supported the reconstruction measures, defended the protective tariff, and took a leading part in the legislation for the restoration of specie payments and the refunding of the national debt, and was author of the famous Sherman anti-trust law. Died, 1900.

Sherman, Roger, American statesman, was born at Newton, Mass., 1721. He was a shoemaker by trade, then a surveyor of lands, and finally a lawyer and judge; served in both the continental and the United States congresses from 1774 to 1791; was one of the committee that drafted the declaration of independence, one of the signers of it. He was United States senator, 1791-93. Died, 1793.

Sherman, William Tecumseh, American general, was born in Lancaster, Ohio, 1820. He was graduated at West Point in 1840, and received a commission as first lieutenant in the United States army in 1841. During the war with Mexico he was promoted to the rank of captain. In 1861, was appointed colonel of infantry. Raised to the rank of brigadier-general. He distinguished himself at the battle of Shiloh, and as major-general in the siege of Vicksburg. Raised to an independent command, he marched across the state of Mississippi, took command of the army of Georgia, forced General Hood to evacuate Atlanta, and captured Savannah and Charleston, from which point he moved north, and, by cutting off the resources of General Lee, compelled the evacuation of Richmond, and the surrender of General Lee to General Grant, April 9, 1865. No Northern general acquired greater popularity than Sherman. He was appointed lieutenant-general in 1866, and in 1869 became general and commander-in-chief. In point of daring originality of design, fertility of resource, brilliant strategy, and untiring energy, General Grant pronounced him "the best field officer the war had produced." He retired from the command of the army of the United States, 1884. Died, 1891.

Shorey, Paul, university professor, was born at Davenport, Ia., 1857; graduated from Harvard, 1878; University of Leipzig, 1881-2, University of Bonn, 1882, American School of Classical Studies, Athens, 1882-3; Ph.D., University of Munich, 1884; LL.D., Iowa College, 1905; admitted to bar, Chicago, 1880. Professor of Greek, Bryn Mawr College, 1885-92; professor of Greek beginning 1892, head department since 1896, University of Chicago. Annual associate director of American School Classical Studies, Athens, 1901-2; president American Philological Association, 1910. Author: De Platonis Idearum Doctrina; The Idea of Good in Plato's Republic; The Odes and Epodes of Horace; The Unity of Plato's Thought, etc.

Siddons, Sarah, noted English tragic actress, was born at Brecon, 1755, daughter of Roger Kemble, manager of a company of itinerant players. In her eighteenth year she married William Siddons, an actor, and in 1775 made her first appearance in London as Portia. She appeared at Drury Lane, 1782, in the character of Isabella in The Fatal Marriage. In 1785 she appeared as Lady Macbeth, her greatest rôle, and in 1788 as Queen Catherine. Thenceforth her course was a continual triumph. She died in 1831. In 1783 Sir Joshua Reynolds painted her as The Tragic Muse.

Sidgwick, Henry, English moralist and economist, was born in Yorkshire, 1838, and educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he lectured from 1859 to 1875, becoming professor of moral and political philosophy in the latter year and professor of moral philosophy in 1883. His chief works comprise The Methods of Ethics; The Principles of Political Economy; History of Ethics, and The Elements of Politics. Died, 1901.

Sidney, Sir Philip, English writer and soldier, was born in Kent, 1554. He was educated at Oxford, traveled throughout Europe and returned to become a favorite at the court of Elizabeth, who called him "the jewel of her dominions." For her entertainment he wrote his celebrated Arcadia and several minor poems. Among his works are also his Apologie for Poetrie and Defense of Poetrie. He was killed at the battle of Zutphen, 1586.

Siemens, Ernst Werner von, German engineer and electrician, was born at Lenthe, in Hanover, 1816. In 1838 he entered the Prussian artillery, and in 1844 took charge of the artillery workshops at Berlin. He developed the telegraphic system in Prussia, and discovered the insulating property of gutta-percha, and was the first to explode a submarine mine by electricity. Besides devising numerous forms of galvanometers and other electrical instruments, Siemens was one of the discoverers of the self-acting dynamo. He determined the electrical resistance of different substances, the Siemens unit being called after him. He died at Berlin in 1892.

Siemens, Sir William (Karl Wilhelm), German scientist, was born at Lenthe, Manover, 1823, brother of the preceding. He studied at Göttingen, giving special attention to science. As manager of the house of Siemens Brothers, he was engaged in constructing telegraph lines, the steamship Faraday being designed by him for cable laying. He invented a water meter, a bathometer for measuring ocean depths, an electrical thermometer, and a process of hastening the growth of plants by electric light. He was president of the three principal telegraphic societies of Great Britain, and of the British association, and in 1883 was knighted. Died, 1883.

Sienkiewicz (shen-kyā'vich), Henryk, Polish novelist, was born at Wola Okrzejska, in Lithuania, 1846, and was educated at the University of Warsaw. In 1876 he came to the United States, and for a time, in company with Madame Modjeska, his countrywoman, he resided in California, where he designed to establish a Polish colony. He returned to Poland and in 1880 wrote a work on Tartar Slavery, following this, a few years later, by his masterly novel, With Fire and Sword. To this succeeded The Deluge, Pan Michael, Without Dogma and Children of the Soil. In 1895 appeared his masterpiece, Quo Vadis—a tale of the time of Nero. His later works include The Knights of the Cross, Monte Carlo, etc. In 1905 he received the Nobel prize for literature. Died, 1916.

Sieyes (syā'yes'), Emmanuel Joseph, better known as the Abbé Sieyès, French revolutionist, was born in Frejus, France, 1748. He studied for the church at Paris; during the reign of terror he withdrew into the country; but after Robespierre's downfall returned to the convention, took an active part in affairs, and became president of the national assembly in 1790. He retired with the title of Count, and obtained grants of land and property to the value of at least $250,000. He was exiled at the restoration, but returned to Paris during the revolution of 1830, and died there in 1836.

Sifton, Sir Clifford, Canadian statesman, born in Middlesex county, Ontario. He was graduated at Victoria University, Coburg, 1880; was admitted to the Manitoba Bar, 1882; practiced in Brandon; was created queen's counsel by Dominion patent, 1895. He was a member of the Manitoba legislature, 1888-96. He was first elected to the Dominion house of commons for Brandon, Manitoba, 1896, and reelected in 1900 and 1907. Member Alaskan Boundary Commission. Died, 1929.

Sigel (sē'gel), Franz, American general, was born in Germany, 1824. He was in the service of the grand-duke of Baden, and became minister of war in the revolution of 1848, but was obliged to flee, and came to the United States. He entered the federal army as colonel in 1861, during the Civil War, and by gallant service rose to the rank of major-general. He was register of New York city, 1871-74. Died, 1902.

Sigismund (sij'is-mund), emperor of Germany was born about 1368. He was terribly defeated in an expedition against the Turks at Nicopolis in 1396. Some years later he conquered Bosnia, Herzegovina and Servia, and became emperor of Germany in 1411. Died, 1437.

Silliman, Benjamin, American physicist, was born at Trumbull, Conn., 1779. He was educated at Yale College, and admitted to the bar in 1802, but soon after received from the college the appointment of professor of chemistry, and held that chair over half a century. In 1818 he founded the American Journal of Science, better known as Silliman's Journal, of which he was for twenty years editor. Died, 1864.

Simon (sē'mōn'), Jules Francois, French statesman and publicist, was born at Lorient, France, 1814. He was educated at Lorient and at Vannes, and in 1839 became professor of philosophy at the Sorbonne, Paris. He was then member of the corps législatif, 1863-70; minister of public instruction, 1871-73; senator and member of the French Academy, 1875, and prime minister, 1876-77. Amidst the general corruption he remained poor, supporting his family by his pen, and preserving an absolutely stainless character to the last. Died, 1896.

Simpson, Sir James Young, noted Scottish physician, was born at Bathgate, Scotland, 1811. He was graduated at the University of Edinburgh as doctor in medicine in 1832, and in 1840 was appointed to the chair of obstetrics there. In this field he introduced the use of chloroform and other anæsthetics, and made improvements in the old methods of practice. Died, 1870.

Simpson, Matthew, 1811-1884, American Methodist Episcopal clergyman, was born in Cadiz, Ohio. President Indiana Asbury University; editor Western Christian Advocate; author: A Hundred Years of Methodism, and Cyclopedia of Methodism. Was an eminent orator.

Sims, William Sowden (1858———), graduate U. S. Naval Academy, 1880, commissioned Commander, 1907, Captain, 1911, and Rear Admiral, 1917, Admiral, 1918, reverting to permanent rank upon relinquishment of command U. S. naval forces operating in European waters, 1919; pres. Naval War College, since 1919; retired 1922. Died, 1936.

Sinclair, May, English author, was born in Cheshire and educated at the Ladies College, Cheltenham. Her first novel, Audrey Craven, appeared in 1896, followed by Mr. and Mrs. Neville Tyson (1898) and Two Sides of a Question (1900). But it was through her novel, The Divine Fire (1904), that she became widely known. Other works are: The Helpmeate, Kitty Tailleur, The Creators, The Combined Maze, The Tree of Heaven, Mary Olivier, and The Romantic. She also wrote Journal of Impressions in Belgium, a story of her experiences as a member of an advance field ambulance in 1914.

Sinclair, Upton, author, was born in Baltimore, 1878, and graduated from the College of the City of New York, 1897. He assisted the government in the stockyard investigation in Chicago, and has taken a leading part in socialist movements. Author: Springtime and Harvest; Prince Hagen, a Phantasy; Manassas; The Jungle; The Industrial Republic; The Overman, etc.

Sinclair, William Macdonald, English prelate, archdeacon of London and canon of St. Paul's beginning 1889, was born at Leeds, 1850. He was graduated at Balliol College, Oxford, and became assistant minister of Quebec chapel, 1876. He was resident chaplain to the bishop of London, 1877; chaplain to the order of St. John of Jerusalem, 1900, and chaplain-in-ordinary to Queen Victoria. Hon. chaplain to King Edward VII. Author: The Servant of Christ; Simplicity in Christ, etc. Died, 1917.

Sismondi (sis-mon'di), Jean Charles Leonard Simonde de, distinguished Swiss historian of Italian descent, was born at Geneva, 1773. Before he had completed his education the pecuniary reverses of his father made it necessary for him to enter a counting-house. In 1803 appeared a work on political economy, followed by his History of the Italian Republics. In 1813 appeared his Literature of Southern Europe, and in 1819 he began his greatest work, the History of the French, with which he was occupied until his death, in 1842.

Sixtus IV., Pope, Francesco della Rovere, was born in a small village near Savona, Italy, 1414. He had a great reputation as a preacher throughout Italy, and became pope in 1471. Learning, and especially the improvement of the city, owed much to him. He built the Sistine chapel and the Sistine bridge across the Tiber, increased the vatican library, and patronized the great painters of his time. Died, 1484.

Sixtus V., Felice Peretti, one of the ablest of the Popes, was born near Montalto, Italy, 1521. He was a professor of theology at Rimini and Siena, an eloquent preacher, vicar-general and cardinal, and succeeded Gregory XIII. His pontificate was notable for vigorous administration. He also fixed the number of cardinals at seventy. Died, 1590.

Skeat (skēt), Walter William, English philologist, was born in London, 1835. He was graduated from Christ's College, Cambridge, 1858, became a fellow in 1860, and in 1878 professor of Anglo-Saxon; Litt.D., LL.D., Ph.D., D.C.L. He was the first director of the dialect society, established in 1873, and contributed more than any scholar of his time to a sound knowledge of Middle English and English philology generally. His works include: Piers Plowman; Barbour's Bruce; Chaucer's Treatise on the Astrolabe, etc.; editions of Chatterton's Poems; Chaucer's Minor Poems; his admirable Etymological English Dictionary; Principles of English Etymology; his great edition of Chaucer, in 6 volumes, etc. Died, 1912.

Skinner, Otis, American actor, was born in Cambridge, Mass., in 1858. He made his professional début as Jim in Woodleigh. He has played important roles with Booth, Modjeska, Barrett and Daly. His later plays include Kismet, Sire, A Celebrated Case, The Honor of the Family, and sundry character sketches in dialect, such as Mr. Antonio. Almost the last survivor of the school of clean romantic comedy.

Skobelev (skō'be-lyef), Mikhail Dimitrievich, Russian general, was born in 1844. He fought against the Polish insurgents in 1863, and in 1875-71 was at the conquest of Khiva and Khokand. In 1881 he stormed the Turkoman stronghold Geok-Tepe. He died near Moscow, in 1882. He was an ardent Panslavist.

Slicer, Thomas Roberts, Unitarian clergyman, was born at Washington, 1847. He was educated in Baltimore; A.M., Dickinson College; D.D., Harvard. He was a Methodist Episcopal minister ten years in Maryland, Colorado and New York; entered Unitarian ministry, 1881; held pastorates in Providence, R. I., and Buffalo, N. Y.; and beginning 1897 was pastor of the church of All Souls, New York. Died, 1916.

Slidell (sli-del'), John, American lawyer and politician, was born in New York city about 1793. From 1853 to 1861, was a member of the United States senate; and in the Civil War, when Louisiana seceded, he withdrew, and was appointed confederate minister to France. In company with James M. Mason, who was named minister to England, he was taken on the high seas by Captain Wilkes, of the United States navy, and both brought as prisoners to the United States, where they were confined in Fort Warren. On the demand of England, they were released, however, and proceeded on their respective missions. After the war closed he settled in England and resided there until his death in 1871.

Sloane, William Milligan, American historian, Seth Low professor of history, Columbia, beginning 1896, was born at Richmond, Ohio, 1850. He graduated at Columbia, 1868; Ph.D., Leipzig 1876; L.H.D., Columbia; professor at Princeton University, 1876-96; and editor Princeton Review, 1886-89. Author: Life of James McCosh; The French War and the Revolution; Napoleon Bonaparte, A History (4 volumes); French Revolution and Religious Reform, etc. Died, 1928.

Slocum, Henry W., American general, was born 1827, at Delphi, N. Y. He graduated from West Point in 1852. On the outbreak of the Civil War, he was commissioned colonel of the 27th New York volunteers and took part in the first battle of Bull Run, where he was wounded. In 1861 he was made brigadier-general. He distinguished himself at the battles of Gaines' Mill, Glendale and Malvern Hill and was promoted to major-general of volunteers. Later he was transferred, with his corps, to the army of the Cumberland, succeeded to the command of the 20th eorps and was the first to enter Atlanta. In Sherman's march to the sea and through the Carolinas he commanded the left wing, taking part in the action of that campaign. After the war he took up the practice of law at Brooklyn, was elected to congress in 1870, and again in 1884. Died, 1894.

Smeaton, John, English civil engineer, was born near Leeds, England, 1724. He began his career as a maker of mathematical instruments, but continued his studies and experiments, inventing, in 1751, a machine for measuring a ship's path at sea. He was also the builder of the famous Eddystone light-house. He died, 1792.

Smiles, Samuel, Scottish writer, was born at Haddington, Scotland, 1812. He was graduated in medicine at Edinburgh, at twenty, and practiced medicine in Haddington. He wrote Life of George Stephenson; Self-Help, which had an extraordinary success, and was translated into a score of languages; Character; Thrift; Duty; Life and Labor; Lives of the Engineers. He died at London, 1904.

Smith, Adam, Scottish political economist, founder of the modern science of political economy, was born at Kirkcaldy, in Fifeshire, 1723. In 1764 he accompanied the duke of Buccleuch to the continent as traveling tutor and governor, and this engagement occupied him for two years; but at the end of that time he returned to Kirkcaldy, where he lived until he was appointed a commissioner of customs in 1778, when he took up his residence in Edinburgh. In 1776 he produced his great work, An Inquiry Into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations, and upon this work his reputation rests. In 1787 he was elected lord rector of the University of Glasgow, and died, 1790.

Smith, Alexander, chemist, was born at Edinburgh, Scotland, 1865; graduated from the University of Edinburgh, 1886; Ph.D., University of Münich, 1889. Assistant in chemistry, University of Edinburgh, 1889-90; professor chemistry and mineralogy, Wabash College, 1890-4; assistant professor chemistry, 1894-8; associate professor, 1898-1903; professor and director of general and physical chemistry, 1903-11, University of Chicago, and professor of chemistry, Columbia University, beginning 1911. Author: Lassar-Cohn Laboratory Manual of Organic Chemistry; Laboratory Outline of General Chemistry; The Teaching of Chemistry and Physics (with E. H. Hall); Introduction to General Inorganic Chemistry; General Chemistry for College, etc. Died, 1923.

Smith, Alfred Emanuel, American politician, was born in New York City in 1873. His father's death compelled him to leave school at thirteen, and he is therefore a marked example of the self-made man. He was a member of the New York assembly from 1903 to 1915, speaker of the assembly in 1913, sheriff of New York county, 1915-17, president of the board of aldermen of Greater New York in 1917, and governor of New York State for four terms. He was the Democratic nominee for President in 1928.

Smith, Benjamin Eli, American editor, was born in Beirut, Syria, 1857. He graduated at Amherst College, 1887; A.M., L.H.D. Died, 1913. Editor and translator: Schwegler's History of Philosophy; Century Cyclopædia of Names; Century Atlas; Cicero's De Amicitia; Franklin's Poor Richard's Almanac; Selections From Marcus Aurelius; Epictetus, etc.

Smith, Charles Emory, American journalist, was born at Mansfield, Conn., 1842. He removed to Albany, N. Y., with parents, in 1849; graduated at Union College, 1861. He was actively engaged during the Civil War in raising and organizing Union volunteer regiment. He was United States minister to Russia, 1890-92; postmaster-general of United States, 1898-1902. Died, 1908.

Smith, Ellison DuRant, United States senator, was born, 1866, at Lynchburg, S. C. He graduated at Wofford College, Spartanburg, S. C., in 1889; was a member of the South Carolina legislature, 1896-1900. He became a national figure on account of addresses on the cotton industry at New Orleans, Birmingham, Dallas, and Shreveport, and was elected to the United States senate, for the terms 1909-27.

Smith, Francis Hopkinson, American artist, author and engineer, was born at Baltimore, 1838. When quite young he was clerk in iron works, and was later educated as a mechanical engineer; L.H.D., Yale, 1907. He built the government sea-wall around Governor's island; another at Tompkinsville, S. I.; the Race Rock lighthouse off New London; foundation for Bartholdi statue of Liberty, etc. Author: A Gentleman Vagabond and Some Others; Tom Grogan; Gondola Days; Venice of To-day; Caleb West; At Close Range; The Wood Fire in No. 3; The Tides of Barnegat; The Veiled Lady; The Romance of an Old-Fashioned Gentleman; Peter, etc. Died, 1915.

Smith, Goldwin, English author and educator, was born in Reading, England, 1823; graduated from Magdalen College, Oxford, 1845; D.C.L., Oxford, 1882; LL.D., Princeton, 1896; and was called to the English bar, 1847. He was regius professor of modern history, Oxford, 1858-66; was an active champion of the North during the American Civil War; visited United States, 1864; was lecturer, 1868-71, and later honorary professor of English and constitutional history, Cornell; he resided in Toronto, Ont., 1871-1910. Author: Irish History and Irish Character; Lectures on Modern History; Rational Religion and the Rationalistic Objections of the Bampton Lectures for 1858; Shakespeare, the Man; Commonwealth or Empire; In the Court of History; The Founder of Christendom; Lines of Religious Inquiry; My Memory of Gladstone; Labor and Capitol, etc., and numerous articles in magazines. Died, 1910.

Smith, Captain John, English adventurer and colonist, founder of Virginia, was born in Lincolnshire, England, in 1580. He traveled in France and Holland, and, when on his way to join the Christian army fighting against the Turks in Hungary, was robbed by four adventurers. In 1605 he joined an expedition of three vessels and one hundred five men, to found a colony in Virginia. On one of his journeys into the country for corn he was captured by the Indians, under the chief Powhatan, and his life saved by the chief's daughter Pocahontas. On his return to Jamestown he found the colony reduced to about forty men, who were anxious to return to England, but were induced by Smith to remain until others arrived. He then explored the coasts of the Chesapeake bay in two voyages, and made a map of the country. In 1614 he explored the coast of New England, and undertook the founding of a colony in New England in 1615, but his vessel was captured by a French warship and he was carried to La Rochelle. After his escape, he wrote an account of his voyages to New England. He died in London, 1631.

Smith, Munroe, American educator, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 1854. He graduated at Amherst College, 1874; Columbia Law School, 1877; J.U.D., Göttingen, 1880; LL.D., Columbia, 1904. Professor of Roman law and comparative jurisprudence, at Columbia, 1891-1922; Bryce professor of European legal history, 1922-24, emeritus, 1924. Author: Bismarck and German Unity; Selections from Cicero. Died, 1926.

Smith, Sydney, English clergyman and essayist, was born at Woodford, England, 1771. He graduated from Oxford, and entered the church; in 1802 resided in Edinburgh, and joined Brougham, Jeffrey, and others, in establishing the Edinburgh Review, of which he was the first editor. From 1831 until his death in 1845 he was a canon of St. Paul's, London. He was a universal favorite in society and distinguished for brilliant wit and graceful and forcible English.

Smith, William Alden, lawyer, United States senator, was born at Dowagiac, Mich., 1859. Was a newsboy, and messenger boy in Western Union telegraph office; appointed page in the Michigan house of representatives, 1879; studied law, and was admitted to the bar, 1883; A. M., Dartmouth, 1901; was a member of congress, 1895-1907, fifth Michigan district; and was elected United States senator, 1907, and in 1913 for term expiring 1919.

Smith, William Robertson, British theologian and orientalist, was born at Keig, Scotland, 1846, and graduated at Aberdeen in 1865. He afterward studied theology at Edinburgh, Bonn, and Göttingen; and in 1870 became professor of Hebrew and old testament exegesis in the Free Church College, Aberdeen. In 1881 he became associated with Professor Baynes in the editorship of the Encyclopædia Britannica, and in 1887 succeeded him as editor-in-chief. At Cambridge he was successively Lord Almoner's professor of Arabic, in 1883; university librarian, 1886, and Adams professor of Arabic, 1889. He died at Cambridge, 1894.

Smollett, Tobias George, English novelist, was born, 1721. He was educated at the University of Glasgow, and was afterward apprenticed to a surgeon. In 1748 he produced his Roderick Random. In 1751 appeared Peregrine Pickle, a more ambitious and not less successful work; and in 1753 Ferdinand Count Fathom. In 1758 he published his History of England. Another novel appeared in 1760-1, The Adventures of Sir Launcelott Greaves, in 1766; two volumes of Travels in France and Italy; in 1771 The Expedition of Humphrey Clinker, the best of all his novels. Died at Leghorn, 1771.

Smoot, Reed, United States senator, banker, Mormon apostle, was born at Salt Lake City, 1862. He graduated at Brigham Young Academy, Provo, Utah, 1879. He was appointed one of the presidency of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 1895, and apostle, 1900. He was elected by Utah legislature, 1903, United States senator since 1903.

Snorri Sturluson (snor'rē stōōr'lōō-sun), Icelandic poet and historian, born in 1179. Tracing his descent from the kings of Norway, he early turned his attention to the history of their doings, and made a collection of sagas entitled the Heimskringla, or the "Ring of the World," in which are interspersed songs of his own composing. Snorri became chief judge of Iceland, but his ambitious and intriguing character led to his assassination in 1241.

Snow, Francis Huntington, American educator, was born at Fitchburg, Mass., 1840. He graduated at Williams College, 1862; Ph.D., 1881. He was president of the faculties, 1889-90, chancellor, 1890-1901, and professor of organic evolution, systematic entomology and meteorology in the University of Kansas. Died in 1908.

Sobieski (sō-byes'kē). See John III., king of Poland.

Socinus (sō-sī'nus), Faustus, Italian theologian, was born at Siena, Italy, 1539; in 1574 took up his residence at Basel, where he busied himself in elaborating into a system the scattered hints and views in the writings of his uncle. In 1577 he appeared in open debate, maintaining that the Trinity was a pagan doctrine, and that Christ was a created and inferior being. The Socinians were long a powerful religious body in Poland, Hungary, and Transylvania; their peculiar catechism is known as Racovian, from its place of publication, Rakow in Poland. He died near Cracow, 1604.

Socrates, celebrated Greek philosopher, was born at Athens, 469 B. C. His father, Sophroniscus, was a sculptor, and he followed the same profession in the early part of his life. His physical constitution was robust to an extraordinary degree, enabling him to endure the hardest military service and to live his own chosen life of superiority to all wants above the barest necessaries of life.

He had the usual education of an Athenian citizen, which included not only readings in the Greek poets, but also the elements of arithmetic, geometry and astronomy, as then known. As a young man, he frequented the society of the physical philosopher, Archelaus, a disciple of Anaxagoras.

Excepting in connection with his philosophical career, few circumstances of his life are known. He served as a foot-soldier at Potidæa, at Delium and at Amphipolis and his bravery and endurance were extolled. Somewhere about the middle period of his life he gave himself up to the career that made him famous. Deservedly styled a philosopher, he neither secluded himself for study nor opened a school for the regular instruction of pupils. He disclaimed the appellation of teacher; his practice was to talk or converse.

Early in the morning he frequented the public walks, the gymnasia for bodily training and the schools where youths were receiving instruction; he was to be seen in the market-place at the hour when it was most crowded, among the booths and tables where goods were exposed for sale. He talked with any one, young or old, rich or poor, that sought to address him, and in the hearing of all who stood by. He died 399 B. C. Socrates was not a writer, and what we know of his teaching is derived from the representations of his pupils, Xenophon (in his Memorabilia) and Plato (in his Dialogues, in the majority of which Socrates is the chief interlocutor). The relation of these two divergent representations to the original has been a problem for historical criticism.

References.—Zeller's Socrates and the Socratic Schools; Forbes' Socrates; Gildersleeve's Essays and Studies; Lamartine's Homer and Socrates.

Solomon, king of Israel, born about 1033 B. C., was the son of David and Bathsheba. By his remarkable judicial decisions and his completion of the political institutions of David, Solomon gained the respect and admiration of his people; while by the building of the temple, which gave to the Hebrew worship a magnificence it had not hitherto possessed, he bound the nation more strongly to his throne. Toward the close of his reign troubles arose and the growing discontent, coming to a head after his death, resulted in the division of the kingdom, which his feeble son Rehoboam could not prevent. The writings attributed to Solomon are The Book of Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and the Song of Solomon, with the apocryphal book, the Wisdom of Solomon.

Solon (sō'lun), famous legislator of Athens, and one of the seven sages of Greece, was born, about 638 B. C., at Salamis, of an ancient family. As archon, he framed a new code of laws, and, having obtained from the citizens an oath that they would observe them for ten years, he departed from Greece, and visited Egypt and Cyprus, and, perhaps, Lydia. On his return he found the tyranny of Pisistratus established, and he withdrew to Cyprus, where he is said to have died at the age of eighty, about 559 B. C.

Solyman, or Soliman II., surnamed The Magnificent, greatest of the Turkish sultans, was born about 1496, and succeeded in 1520 his father Selim I., who had carefully initiated him into the Ottoman policy. He drove the knights of St. John from Rhodes, 1522; and for three years following devoted himself to improvements in the administration. By 1541 the long and desultory contest between the Turks and the imperialists for Hungary was ended in favor of the former, who took complete possession of the country. A brilliant naval victory, 1561, over the knights of Malta and their allies, the Spaniards, and an expedition to Hungary, 1566, were the chief events of the remainder of his reign. Died, 1566.

Somerville, Mary Fairfax, Scotch scientist, was born at Jedburgh, Scotland, 1780. In 1812 she attracted attention by some experiments on the violet rays of the solar spectrum. She was granted a pension in 1835 and made a member of the royal astronomical society of England and of many foreign societies. She died at Naples, 1872.

Sonnino (sōn-nē'nō), Baron Sidney, Italian statesman, was born at Florence, 1847, and educated at the University of Pisa. In 1887 he joined the Crispi administration as under-secretary for the treasury, and first as finance minister, 1893, and then as minister of the treasury, he worked a great reform in the country's finances. After Crispi's fall in 1896, he became one of the opposition leaders, and in 1906 was prime minister of Italy. Died in 1922.

Sophocles (sof'o-klez), Greek tragic poet, was born in the Attic demus, or village of Colonus, B. C. 495, thirty years later than Æschylus. He received a good education and at an early age gained the prize in music and gymnastics. He was fifteen when the battle of Salamis was fought, and for his remarkable beauty and skill in music, he was chosen to lead the chorus which sang the pæan of victory.

His first appearance as a dramatist was in 468, B. C. when, under memorable circumstances he had Æschylus for his rival, and won the victory. Of the next twenty-eight years of his life nothing is recorded; but it is known that he made poetry his vocation and that he composed a great many plays during that period.

The Antigone, the earliest of his extant tragedies, was brought out in 440 B. C. and won the prize. The number of plays attributed to him, without question, was one hundred and thirteen, of which eighty-one were probably produced after the Antigone. Seven only are extant, viz., Antigone, Electra, Trachinian Women, King Oedipus, Ajax, Philoctetes, and Oedipus at Colonus.

These exhibit his art in its maturity and sustain the verdict of ancient and modern critics that Sophocles carried the Greek drama to its highest perfection. He effected a complete change in the constitution of tragedy as Æschylus left it; loosening the connection between the parts of the trilogy and the satyric drama, and making them not one great poem, but four distinct ones; introducing a third actor; and for subject selecting, not a series of heroic and mythical actions, but for each play one leading fact of real human interest and lasting significance.

Sophocles lived to be nearly ninety and in his latest years most probably wrote the Oedipus at Colonus, so full of sweetness and tender melancholy, and consoling hopes, which was not presented on the stage till five years after the poet's death. He died 406 B. C.

References.—Campbell Life of Sophocles; His translators are Web, Whitelaw and Campbell.

Sorley, William Ritchie, British educator and philosophical writer, Knightbridge professor of moral philosophy, University of Cambridge, since 1900, was born at Selkirk, 1855. He was educated at Edinburgh, and Trinity College, Cambridge; professor of logic and philosophy at University College, Cardiff, 1883-04; and professor of moral philosophy, Aberdeen, 1894-1900. Edited: Development of Modern Philosophy; Recent Tendencies in Ethics, etc.

Sothern (suтн'ėrn), Edward Hugh, actor, was born in New Orleans, 1859. He received an academic education in England; first appeared, 1879, in small part at Abbey's Park theater, New York. He first took leading rôle, Lyceum theater, New York, 1887, as Jack Hammerton in The Highest Bidder, and starred with his own company in Lord Chumley; An Enemy to the King; The Adventures of Lady Ursula; The Song of the Sword; The Sunken Bell; Hamlet; Richard Lovelace; If I Were King, etc. Died, 1933.

Soult (sōōlt), Nicholas Jean de Dieu, duke of Dalmatia and marshal of France, was born at Saint-Amans-la-Bastide in 1769. In 1785 he entered the army. He achieved brilliant success in the campaign against the Austrians, closed by the battle of Austerlitz. In 1809 he became commander-in-chief in Spain, gained a brilliant victory at Ocaña, and overran and subdued Andalusia; on his return from Elba he abandoned Louis XVIII., and became major-general of the imperial army. After Waterloo he rallied the army at Laon, and on July 3d, at the council of war, coincided with Carnot as to the uselessness of further resistance. He died, 1851.

Sousa (sōō'zȧ), John Philip, American musician, was born at Washington, 1854. He studied music, was a conductor at seventeen, and one of the first violins of Jacques Offenbach's orchestra when the latter was in the United States. He was then music director of the United States marine corps, 1880-92, and since 1892 director of Sousa's band. Composed: Washington Post; Stars and Stripes Forever; Hands Across the Sea; The Bride-Elect; El Capitan; Three Quotations; At the King's Court; Looking Upward; The Chariot Race; and the operas: The Smugglers; Desire; The Queen of Hearts; El Capitan; The Free Lance, etc. Author: The Fifth String. Died, 1932.

Southey, Robert, English poet and writer, was born, 1774, at Bristol, England. He was educated at Oxford, but left without a degree in 1794, and during the next two years traveled in Spain and Portugal. In 1804 he settled at Greta Hall, in Cumberland, where he spent the remainder of his life, happy in his family relations and his unremitting daily round of congenial, though continuous, toil. In 1813, on the death of Pye, he succeeded him as poet-laureate. His chief poetical works are Madoc; Thalaba; The Curse of Kehama; and Don Roderick. Of all his writings his Life of Nelson seems most likely to survive as a classic. He died, 1843.

Spargo, John, socialist author, was born at Stithians Cornwall, England, 1876. He publicly opposed the Boer war; came to the United States, 1901, and has been active as socialistic lecturer, writer and worker; and was one of the founders of the Prospect House social settlement, Yonkers, N. Y.

Sparks, Edwin Erle, American educator, historian, president of Pennsylvania State College, 1908-1920, was born in Licking county, Ohio, 1860. He graduated from the Ohio State University, 1884, Ph.D., LL.D. He was a member of the American historical association; Illinois historical association and councilor of the American institution of civics. Author: The Men Who Made the Nation; Formative Incidents in American Diplomacy; Foundations of National Development, etc. Died in 1924.

Sparks, Jared, American historian, was born at Willington, Conn., 1789. He graduated at Harvard in 1815; settled as a Unitarian minister at Baltimore, and finally became editor of the North American Review. He was ten years a professor at Harvard, and for four years president. His writings include Life of John Ledyard; Life of Gouverneur Morris. He died at Cambridge, Mass., 1866.

Spencer, Herbert, English philosopher, was born at Derby, 1820. He was educated by his father, a teacher of mathematics, and his uncle, a clergyman; was apprenticed as a civil engineer, and worked several years on railways. In 1842 he contributed several professional papers to the Civil Engineer and Architect's Journal, besides a series of letters, on the Proper Sphere of Government, to The Nonconformist. In 1848 he became sub-editor of The Economist and published Social Statistics, 1850.

About the year 1859 he projected his scheme of philosophy, based on the principle of evolution in its relation to life, mind, society and morals. This extensive scheme was latterly completely expounded in the following works: First Principles; Principles of Biology; Principles of Psychology; a revised form of a work published in 1855; Principles of Sociology; and Principles of Ethics.

Portions of this great work are known under separate titles, as Data of Ethics; Ceremonial Institutions; Political Institutions; Ecclesiastical Institutions, etc. His other works include Education; Essays, Scientific, Political and Speculative; Classification of the Sciences; The Study of Sociology; Man versus the State; Facts and Comments; and an Autobiography. He published also an elaborate Descriptive Sociology compiled by other writers, but classified and arranged by himself. He died in 1903.

References.—Spencer's Autobiography; Hudson's Herbert Spencer; Collier's Epitome of the Synthetic Philosophy; and Macpherson's Herbert Spencer—the Man and His Work.

Spenser, Edmund, English poet, was born in London, about 1552. He was of humble origin, studied at Pembroke College, Cambridge, and was brought under the notice of Queen Elizabeth by the earl of Leicester. In 1579 he published The Shepherd's Calendar, sounding the note of the Elizabethan outburst. Through the influence of Leicester he was then appointed chief secretary to Lord Grey de Wilton, the lord-lieutenant of Ireland; and Queen Elizabeth conferred on him an estate at Kilcolman, near Cork. It was while he was at Kilcolman that he wrote The Faërie Queene, his greatest work. The first part was published in 1589-90, the second part about six years later; and on the publication of the first part the queen conferred on the poet a pension of fifty pounds a year. In 1598 a rebellion broke out; the castle of Kilcolman was burned, an infant child of the poet perished in the flames, and Spenser returned to London, impoverished and broken-hearted, to die within three months after his arrival. He was buried near Chaucer in Westminster abbey.

Speyer (spīr), James, American banker, was born in New York, 1861. He was one of the founders and ex-president of the Provident loan society; now senior member Speyer & Co., New York; trustee, Central Savings bank; and director numerous corporations.

Spinoza, (spi-no'za), Benedict, celebrated philosopher, was born at Amsterdam, 1632. He was the son of a Portuguese Jew, and was early remarkable for an ardent love of truth, and a keen and logical intellect. His first serious studies were the Bible and the Talmud. He made no secret of the doubts which grew up in his mind, and was exposed to much persecution on account of them.

He was at last excommunicated, and being driven from Amsterdam, lived for a time near Leyden, and afterward at The Hague. He devoted himself wholly to philosophy, earning such a livehood as contented him by the trade of polishing glasses for optical instruments. His character was most estimable and endeared him to his personal friends.

His system of philosophy has been made odious by the vulgar accusation of atheism, which is the very reverse of the truth. To his thought God is the only being, the only substance, infinite, eternal—before whom all things else have but a phenomenal existence. And his aim was to build up, on the knowledge of God as a foundation, a system of morals by a rigorously mathematical method. With more reason, Spinoza has been called the father of modern Pantheism. Spinoza has of late been more fairly judged, and both his merits and errors impartially discussed. His influence on the mind of Goethe was overpowering.

His works are: Renati Des Cartes Principiorum Philosophiae, pars Prima et Secunda more Geometrico Demonstratae; Cogitata Metaphysica; Tractatus Theologico—Politicus, Ethica (perhaps the most important of his treatises); Tractatus Politicus; De Intellectus Emendatione; and Epistolae. The last four form his Opera Posthuma. The works written in defence and refutation of the system of Spinoza are very numerous. Died, 1677.

References.—Translations of the Works by Elwes, and of the Ethica and De Intell. Emend, by Hale White; expositions by Caird; Martineau, Pollock, Joachim, and of his ethico-political doctrine by Duff. See also Fullerton's The Philosophy of Spinoza and Fullerton's On Spinozistic Immortality.

Spohr (shpōr), Ludwig, German composer and violinist, was born at Brunswick, 1784. In 1804 he became music director at the court of Saxe-Gotha, and held afterward for several years the office of music director of a theater in Vienna. In 1823 he became chapelmaster at the court of Hesse-Cassel. He wrote The Violin School, a standard book of instruction. Died, 1859.

Spooner, John Coit, American lawyer ex-United States senator, was born at Lawrenceburg, Ind., 1843, and removed to Madison, Wis., 1859. He graduated at the University of Wisconsin, 1864; LL.D., Wisconsin, etc. He served as captain and brevet major 50th Wisconsin infantry. He was admitted to the bar, 1867; was regent of the University of Wisconsin, 1882-85; member of the Wisconsin assembly, 1872; United States senator, 1885-91, and 1897-1907. Died, 1919.

Spreckles, Rudolph, civic reformer, banker, sugar king, was born in San Francisco, 1872. At 22 became president Hawaii Sugar Co. Organized and financed San Francisco graft prosecution in 1906. President, United Bank & Trust Co. of California and of other financial corporations.

Spurgeon, Charles Haddon, 1834-1892, was born at Kelvedon. When twenty years of age he became pastor of the New Park Street Chapel, London. His followers built for him the great London Tabernacle in 1861, wherein he continued to preach to thousands, until 1891.

Squair, John, Canadian educator, professor of French, University of Toronto, was born at Bowmanville, Ontario, 1850. He graduated from the University of Toronto, 1883, and has been fellow ,lecturer, associate professor and professor of French in University College, Toronto; Emeritus, 1916; president of the higher education section of the Dominion educational association. He is joint author with W. H. Fraser of French Grammar; joint author with J. H. Cameron of Exercises in French Prose. Died, 1928.

Stael (stäl), Madame de, or Anne Louise Germaine de Stael-Holstein, celebrated French writer, was born in Paris, 1766. In 1788 she published Letters on the Works and Character of Rousseau; and in 1793, having been compelled by the revolution to leave France, she published a defense of Marie Antoinette, then upon trial. In Italy she gathered the materials for her novel of Corinne and in Germany she gathered the materials for her celebrated work entitled De l' Allemagne, a description of the habits, literature and political tendencies of the German people, which was printed in Paris in 1810, but by the order of Bonaparte was immediately suppressed. Soon afterward she visited England, where she wrote her Ten Years of Exile, an impassioned denunciation of Bonaparte and his arbitrary rule. After the fall of the empire she returned to Paris, but never again interferred in politics. Died, 1817.

Stalin, Joseph V. (Born 1879——). Real name, Iosiph Dzhugashvili, all powerful communist dictator of Russia, son of a cobbler in Gori. Expelled for radicalism from Theological Seminary at Tiflis. Led life of mountain brigand. As member of Russian Social Democratic Party aided in overthrow of Kerensky Gov't, 1917. Sec.-Gen. of Communist Party. Showed peasantry favoritism rather than city inhabitants. Later ruled as absolute Dictator of Russia, secluded behind the walls of Kremlin, a symbol of greatness and cruelty. Had two sons and one daughter.

Standish, Miles, early New England colonist, was born in Lancashire, England, about 1584. He served in the army in the Netherlands and sailed with the pilgrims in the Mayflower in 1620. On reaching Massachusetts he was chosen captain by the Pilgrims and commanded expeditions against the Indians. Died, 1656.

Stanford, Leland, American capitalist and philanthropist, was born at Watervliet, N. Y., 1824. He was one of the organizers of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, and, entering political life, was republican governor of California, 1861-63; and from 1885 to 1893 United States senator from California. Out of his large fortune he gave property to the value of $20,000,000 to found, in memory of a deceased son, a University at Palo Alto, to be known as the Leland Stanford Junior University. He died at Palo Alto, California, 1893.

Stanley, Arthur Penrhyn, English scholar and divine, was born at Alderley, England, 1815. He graduated at Oxford. From 1856 to 1863 he was professor of ecclesiastical history at Oxford, canon of Christ church, and chaplain to the bishop of London. In 1864 he succeeded Archbishop Trench as dean of Westminster. Stanley was one of the most accomplished and liberal theologians of his age, and may be regarded as the leader of the "broad church" party. His principal writings are: The Unity of Evangelical and Apostolical Teaching; Lectures on the Eastern Church; Lectures on the Jewish Church; Historical Memorials of Westminster Abbey, etc. Died, 1881.

Stanley, Sir Henry Morton, African explorer, was born near Denbigh, Wales, in 1840. He reached Zanzibar early in 1871; there organized a large expedition, and found Livingstone, November 10, 1871. In 1874 he set out on a second African expedition for the New York Herald and London Daily Telegraph. He reached Victoria Nyanza in February, 1875; was the first to circumnavigate Victoria lake, and discovered the Shimeeyu river; and reached England again in February, 1878. Near the close of 1886 Stanley, under the auspices of the Egyptian government and of English societies and individuals, undertook an expedition for the relief of Emin Pasha. He wrote How I Found Livingstone; Through the Dark Continent; Congo and the Founding of Its Free State; and In Darkest Africa. He was made a D.C.L. by Oxford University in 1890. He was a member of parliament, 1895-1900, and was knighted, 1899. Died, 1904.

Stanton, Edwin McMasters, American statesman, was born in Steubenville, Ohio, in 1814. He practiced law with success in his native town until 1847, when he settled in Pittsburg, Pa., and there became leader of the bar. In 1857 he took up his abode in Washington, in 1860 was made attorney-general of the United States, and, in 1862, secretary of war; he was suspended by President Johnson, who appointed General Grant in his place ad interim. In May he definitely retired from the secretaryship. In December, 1869, he was appointed an associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, and died during the same month.

Stanton, Elizabeth Cady, reformer and suffragist, was born at Johnstown, N. Y., 1815. She signed the call for the first woman's rights convention, at Seneca Falls, 1848, and became president of the national woman's suffrage association there formed, retaining the office until 1893; was the author of A History of Woman Suffrage. Died, 1902.

Stark, John, American soldier, was born at Londonderry, N. H., 1728. At Bunker Hill he was colonel of a regiment in which he had enlisted. On August 16, 1777, he fought the battle of Bennington, which brought him the thanks of congress and the rank of general; he cut off Burgoyne's retreat from Saratoga, and, after serving in Rhode Island and New Jersey, had charge, in 1781, of the northern department, with headquarters at Saratoga. He died, 1822.

Starr, Frederick, anthropologist, was born at Auburn, N. Y., 1858; graduated from Lafayette College, 1882; Ph.D., 1885; Sc.D., 1907; professor of biological sciences, Coe College, 1884-5; in charge of ethnology, American Museum of Natural History, 1889-91; assistant professor anthropology, 1892-5. Associate professor and curator anthropology section, Walker Museum, University of Chicago, 1895-1923. Has done extensive anthropological work in Japan, Africa, Mexico and other parts of the world. Author: On the Hills; Some First Steps in Human Progress; American Indians; Indians of Southern Mexico; Strange Peoples; Readings From Modern Mexican Authors; The Truth About the Congo. Died, 1932.

Stead, William Thomas, English journalist and writer, was born at Embleton, England, 1849, and educated at Wakefield. He was editor of the Northern Echo at Darlington, 1871-80; assistant editor of the Pall Mall Gazette until 1889, and editor from 1883 to 1889. In 1890 he founded the English Review of Reviews, of which he was editor. Author: Her Majesty the Queen; Satan's Invisible World; A Study of Despairing Democracy; The Conference at The Hague; The Americanization of the World, etc. Died on Titanic, 1912.

Stedman, Edmund Clarence, American poet and critic, was born in Hartford, Conn., in 1833. He graduated at Yale, 1853; L.H.D., Columbia; LL.D., Yale. He was editor of the Norwich Tribune, 1852-53; Winsted Herald, 1854-55; on staff of New York Tribune, 1859-61; war correspondent for the New York World, 1861-63; and was a member of the New York stock exchange, 1869-1900. Author: Poems Lyric and Idyllic; The Nature and Elements of Poetry, etc. Editor: A Victorian Anthology; An American Anthology co-editor, History of New York Stock Exchange, etc. Died in New York in 1908.

Steele, Sir Richard, British man of letters, was born in Dublin, 1672. He was educated at the Charterhouse with Addison, and at Oxford. In 1709 he founded the Tatler, a periodical published thrice a week, succeeded by The Spectator, a daily literary journal of a higher tone and character. He was then elected to parliament, was expelled for libel, but afterward re-instated. Died, 1729.

Stefansson, Vilhjalmur, Canadian explorer, was born at Arnes, Manitoba, in 1879, of Icelandic parentage. He studied at the universities of North Dakota and Iowa, and later at Harvard, where he became instructor in anthropology. In 1904 and 1905 he made archeological expeditions into Iceland. In 1903 and 1907 he studied the Esquimo of northern Alaska, and from 1908 to 1912 he explored the Arctic shores of Canada. Since that date, he has conducted various expeditions into northern Canada and Alaska, crossing moving ice fields and discovering new lands. Besides many scientific articles and anthropological reports, he has published My Life With the Esquimo and The Friendly Arctic.

Stein (shtīn), Heinrich Friedrich Carl, Baron von, Prussian statesman, was born at Nassau, 1757. As Superintendent of the Prussian excise he abolished the last relics of serfdom, did away with the privileges of caste, created peasant proprietors, extirpated monopolies and hindrances to free trade, promoted municipal government. Napoleon insisted upon his dismissal, and Stein withdrew, 1808, to Austria, but not before issuing his Political Testament. From the battle of Leipzig to the congress of Vienna he was the ruling spirit of the opposition to the emperor. He died in 1831.

Steinmetz (shtīn'mets), Charles Proteus, electrician, General Electric Company, was born in Breslau, Germany, 1865, and educated at Breslau, Berlin, Zürich, and in Switzerland. He was the consulting engineer for the General Electric Company, and a leading authority in mathematics and engineering. Died, 1923.

Stelwagon, Henry Weightman, American physician, was born at Philadelphia, 1853. He graduated at Andalusia College, Pennsylvania, 1872; was dermatologist to Philadelphia hospital since 1888, to Northern dispensary since 1882; Howard hospital since 1885. Author: Essentials of Diseases of the Skin; Treatise on Diseases of the Skin. Died, 1919.

Stephen, Sir James Fitzjames, British jurist, was born at Kensington, England, 1829. He graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge, 1852; was admitted to the bar in 1854; professor of common law at the Inns of Court, 1875-79; and judge of the high court of justice, 1879-91. On his retirement he was created a baronet. Died, 1894.

Stephen, Sir Leslie, English man of letters, was born at Kensington, 1832. He was educated at Eton, King's College, London, and at Trinity Hall, Cambridge, where he was fellow and tutor. He was editor of the Cornhill Magazine, 1871-82, and of the first twenty-six volumes of the Dictionary of National Biography. His works include: History of English Thought in the Eighteenth Century; Johnson; Pope; Swift; The Science of Ethics; Life of Henry Fawcett; Studies of a Biographer. Died, 1904.

Stephens, Alexander Hamilton, American statesman, was born in Georgia in 1812. He graduated at the University of Georgia, 1832. Was admitted to the bar in 1834 and sat in Congress, 1843-59. In 1860 he opposed the secession of his state, but in the Confederate States of America. After the collapse of the latter, Stephens suffered a brief imprisonment at Fort Warren, and in 1866, after being reëlected United States senator, was not allowed to take his seat. He was, however, member of the house of representatives, 1873-

82, and governor of Georgia, 1882-83. In 1869he published A History of the War of Secession. Died, 1883.

Stephens, Henry Morse, British historical writer and educator, was born at Edinburgh, Scotland, 1857. He graduated at Balliol College, Oxford, 1880; M.A., 1892. Lecturer on Indian history, Cambridge, England, 1892-94; and professor of history and director of University extension at University of California beginning 1902. Died, 1919. Author: History of the French Revolution; Albuquerque; Revolutionary Europe; Colonial Civil Service, etc.

Stephenson, George, the founder of the steam railway system of Great Britain, and perfecter of the locomotive engine, was born in Northumberland, 1781. At the age of 14, he joined his father in his work as fireman in a colliery, where, by a close attention to all he saw and a constant study of every piece of mechanism that came in his way, he acquired a large amount of sound practical knowledge; while by mending boots, clothes and cleaning clocks he was enabled to add a trifle to his weekly earnings.

In 1812 he was appointed engineer to the colliery, at a salary of $500 a year. Soon after this he built his first traveling engine to draw the wagons along the tramway, which, though clumsy and weak in power, was immensely superior to any engine then in use. The following year he constructed a second, as superior to his first as that had been to all others before it.

From this time improvement followed on improvement in rapid succession, not only in the form of the locomotive, but in the rails and in every department to which steam was applicable, till, from mere tramways, the whole beautiful system of railway locomotion, with all its complications of stations, signals, tenders, and carriages, was at last completed by the opening of the Liverpool and Manchester railway in 1830.

From that time the name of Stephenson became one of the most popular among men of science in Europe. In 1845 he retired from all railway undertakings and devoted his time to his collieries and other sources of business and, after having been instrumental in establishing all the foreign and home lines, he died in 1848, leaving his fortune and his fame to his only son, Robert.

References.—Smiles' Lives of the Engineers, and his Life of George Stephenson; Allen's Biographies of Working Men; Lewis' Heroes of Science.

Stepniak (styep-nyäk'), pseudonym of Sergius Michaelevitch Kravtchinski, Russian revolutionary leader and writer, born, 1841. Among his works were: Underground Russia; Russia Under the Tzars; Nihilism as It Is; King Stork and King Log. He was run over by a train in a London suburb, and killed, 1895.

Sternberg, George Miller, American physician, surgeon-general of the United States, 1893-1902, was born at Hartwick seminary, Otsego county, N. Y., 1838. He graduated at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, 1860; LL. D., Michigan, 1894; and was a member of many medical societies and president, 1898, of the American Medical Association. Died, 1915. Author: Photo-Micrographs, and How to Make Them; Bacteria; and many government reports, etc.

Sterne, Laurence, British novelist, was born at Clonmel, Ireland, 1713. He studied at Cambridge and became a clergyman. In 1759 he wrote the first two volumes of the Life and Opinions of Tristram Shandy. The rest of the work, which reached nine volumes, was written at Coxwold. The Sentimental Journey Through France and Italy, published in 1768, was the result of a tour through those countries in 1765. Died, 1768.

Steuart, William Mott, statistician, was born at Corpus Christi, Texas, 1861; graduated, LL.B., LL.B.,Columbian(now George Washington) university 1884, LL.M., 1885. Admitted to bar, 1884; practiced in D. C., Md., and Detroit; became connected with Census of Manufactures, 1880, chief of division, 1890 and 1900, chief statistician for manufactures, since 1902-17, assistant director of the census, 1919-21, and director since 1921, Bureau of Census. Supervised the canvass and preparation of reports of various censuses.

Steuben, Frederic William Augustus, Baron, general in the American revolutionary army, was born at Magdeburg, Prussia, 1730. He came to America in 1778 and offered his services to Washington, who gladly accepted them during the dark days of Valley Forge. He was appointed inspector-general; remodeled the army; took part in the siege of Yorktown. Congress in 1790 voted him $2,400 yearly and a township of land near Utica, N. Y., where he died, 1794.

Stevens, John F., American civil engineer, was born at West Gardiner, Maine, 1853. He was assistant engineer Spokane Falls and Northern Railway, 1889; assistant chief engineer, second vice-president, 1904-05, Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company; chief engineer of Panama Canal, 1905-07; chairman of isthmian canal commission, 1907; and vice-president of New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, in charge of operation, beginning 1907.

Stevens, Thaddeus, American statesman, was born at Peacham, Vt., 1792. He graduated in 1814 at Dartmouth College. He served in congress, 1849-53 and 1859-68, and meanwhile rose to a prominent position at the bar. He took an active part in the unsuccessful impeachment of President Johnson. Died at Washington, 1868.

Stevenson, Adlai Ewing, American lawyer and politician, was born in Kentucky, 1835. He was educated at Centre College, Kentucky; admitted to the bar of Illinois in 1859. Member of congress, 1875-77 and 1879-81. He was vice-president of the United States, 1893-97. After his term as vice-president he was appointed, 1897, a member of the commission to Europe to try to secure international bimetallism. Died, 1914.

Stevenson, Robert, Scottish engineer, was born at Glasgow, 1772. In 1796 he became engineer and inspector of lighthouses, and, during his forty-seven years' tenure of that office planned and constructed twenty-three lighthouses. He built the Britannia tubular bridge over Menai strait, Victoria tubular bridge near Montreal, etc. Died, 1850.

Stevenson, Robert Louis Balfour, Scottish novelist and essayist, born at Edinburgh, 1850. He was educated at Edinburgh University, and in 1875 was admitted to the bar; but soon abandoned law for the profession of letters. In 1878 appeared his first book, An Inland Voyage, quickly followed by Travels With a Donkey, Virginibus Puerisque, Familiar Studies, and Treasure Island. As a writer of adventure and romance, he established himself permanently in the public favor with Kidnapped, The Master of Ballantrae, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, etc. His versatility in letters was further revealed in his charming, A Child's Garden of Verse, Ballads, Memories and Portraits, and A Footnote to History. In 1890 failing health induced him to make his home in the island of Samoa, where he died and was buried, 1894.

Stewart, Alexander Turney, American merchant and capitalist, was born at Lisburn near Belfast, Ireland, 1800. He settled in New York in 1823. He was a leader in the building of street railways and other municipal improvements. Died, 1876.

Stewart, Balfour, British physicist, was born at Edinburgh, 1828. He became director of Kew observatory, 1859, and professor of physics at Owens College, Manchester, 1870. He made his first reputation by his work on Radiant Heat in 1858. With Professor Tait, he published The Unseen Universe in 1875. He died, 1887.

Stewart, Dugald, eminent Scottish philosopher and writer, was born, in 1753, at Edinburgh. In 1780 he began to receive pupils into his house, and many young noblemen, who afterward became celebrated, received their knowledge under his roof. In 1792 he published the first volume of the Philosophy of the Human Mind. Among his other works are: Outlines of Moral Philosophy; Philosophical Essays. He died, 1828.

Stimson, Henry Lewis, American lawyer and statesman, was born in New York City, 1867. He was educated at Yale and at Harvard and entered the practice of law. He was secretary of war under Taft. He represented the President in Nicaragua in 1927. Governor-general of the Philippines1927-8. In 1929 he became secretary of state under Hoover. Author: American Policy in Nicaragua.

Still, Andrew Taylor, osteopath: founder of new school of therapeutics. Born, Aug. 6, 1828; died, Dec. 12, 1917.

Stirling, James Hutchison, Scottish philosophical writer, was born at Glasgow, 1820, and was educated at the University of Glasgow, and in France and Germany; LL.D., Edinburgh and Glasgow. He was the first appointed Gifford lecturer at the University of Edinburgh, 1888-90. Author: The Secret of Hegel; The Community of Property; Thomas Carlyle's Counsels; Darwinianism; What Is Thought? etc. Died, 1909.

Stockton, Francis Richard, American novelist, was born at Philadelphia, 1834. He was an engraver and journalist, became assistant editor of St. Nicholas, and first attracted notice by his stories for children. He is now best known as author of Rudder Grange; The Lady, or the Tiger; The Squirrel Inn; The Hundredth Man; Personally Conducted, etc. He died at Washington, D. C., 1902.

Stoddard, Richard Henry, American poet, critic, and man of letters, was born at Hingham, Mass., 1825. His chief published volumes embrace; The Book of the East; Poems; The Lion's Cub and Other Verse; The King's Bell. He also edited The Bric-à-Brac, and the Sans Souci series. Died in New York, 1903.

Stokes, George Gabriel, British mathematician and natural philosopher, was born at Skreen, Ireland, 1819. He graduated at Cambridge in 1841; and was elected in 1849 to fill the Lucasian chair of mathematics at Cambridge. In 1854 he was appointed secretary to the Royal Society, of which he became president in 1885. To mathematicians and natural philosophers he is known by a number of admirable papers in the Cambridge Philosophical Transactions. He was made baronet, 1889. Died at Cambridge, 1903.

Stolypin (sto-lï'pin), Peter Arkadievitch, Russian prime minister, was born in 1863. He graduated at the University of St. Petersburg, in 1884. He served as marshal of the district nobility; was president of the arbitration board; justice of the peace. He was appointed vice-governor of Grodno in 1902. When Goremykin resigned in 1906, Stolypin succeeded him as premier, and was thanked by the czar for his services and appointed a member of the council of the empire, January, 1907. He suppressed the second duma. Assassinated, 1911.

Stone, Lucy Blackwell, American reformer and advocate of woman's rights, was born at West Brookfield, Mass., 1818. She graduated at Oberlin College in 1847. She aided in organizing, in 1850, the first national woman's rights convention, at Worcester, Mass., and was always zealous in that cause. She died at Dorchester, Mass., 1893.

Stone, Melville Elijah, American journalist, general manager of the associated press, was born at Hudson, Ill., 1848; was editor of several Chicago dailies, 1871-74; and established, with a partner, the Chicago Daily News, in 1875. Stone's health failing in 1888, he sold out his entire interest and spent three years in Europe; was general manager of the associated press, 1893-1921; counselor, 1921 until his death in 1929.

Stone, William Joel, lawyer, United States senator, was born in Madison county, Kentucky, 1848. He graduated at the University of Missouri, and was admitted to bar, 1869; governor of Missouri, 1893-97; member and vice-chairman of the democratic national committee, 1896-1904; and was elected United States senator for terms 1903-09 and 1909-15. Died, 1918.

Storey, Moorfield, American lawyer, was born at Roxbury, Mass., 1845. He graduated at Harvard, 1866; studied at the Harvard Law School; and was admitted to the bar, 1869; overseer of Harvard College, 1877-78 and 1892-1910; and president of the American bar association, 1896. Author: Life of Charles Sumner; Politics as a Duty and as a Career; The American Legislature; A Year's Legislation; The Government of Cities. Died, 1929.

Story, Emma Eames, American operatic prima donna, was born in Shanghai, China, 1867, of American parentage. Her childhood was spent in Boston, where she studied music, and sang in choirs and concerts. She subsequently studied in Paris, and mader her début at the Paris grand opera house, 1889. She has sung in regular opera seasons in London and the United States. She was made an officer of the French academy and received an English jubilee medal. Has lived in Paris since 1923.

Story, Joseph, distinguished American jurist and legal writer, was born at Marblehead, Mass., in 1779. He graduated at Harvard College in 1798; was an associate justice of the United States supreme court, 1811-45. He was professor of law at Harvard, 1829-45, and attained unusual eminence as a law lecturer and writer. Died, 1845.

Stowe, Harriet Elizabeth Beecher, was born at Litchfield, Conn., 1811. She married Professor Calvin Ellis Stowe in 1836. In 1851 she commenced in The National Era, an antislavery paper at Washington, D. C., a serial tale entitled Uncle Tom's Cabin. In 1856 she published Dred, a Tale of the Great Dismal Swamp, followed in 1859 by The Minister's Wooing, a story of New England life in the eighteenth century. In 1868-70 she was joint editor of Hearth and Home. Died, 1896.

Strabo (strā'bō), noted Greek geographer, was born at Amasia, in Pontus, about 63 B. C. He does not appear to have followed any professional calling, but to have spent his life in travel and study. He died about 21 A. D.

Stradivari (strä'dē-vä'rē) or Stradivarius, Antonio, celebrated Italian violin maker, was born at Cremona, Italy, in 1644. His instruments are known for their finish and fine tone. He was the first to finish them neatly on the inside. They are carefully preserved by those possessing them, and bring great prices, ranging from $1,000 to $15,000. He died at Cremona, 1737.

Strafford, Thomas Wentworth, Earl of, English statesman, was born in London, 1593. In 1622 he felt compelled to side with the king, and strove to put down with a firm hand all opposition to the royal authority. After the meeting of the long parliament he was impeached for high treason, and as a result was bchcaded on Tower hill, 1641.

Strathcona (strath-kō'na), Baron, Donald Alexander Smith, high commissioner for Canada, 1896-1914 was born in Scotland, 1820. He was educated in Scotland; Hon. LL.D., Cambridge. He was special commissioner during first rebellion in Red River settlements, 1869-70; member of parliament for Selkirk in Dominion house of commons, 1871-72, 1874, and 1878; for Montreal West, 1877-96. He was governor of the Hudson Bay Company, director of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway. He was also chancellor of McGill University, and was lord rector of Aberdeen University, 1899. He was raised to the peerage in 1897. Died, 1914.

Straus (strous), Oscar Solomon, American merchant, diplomat and publicist, was born at Otterberg, Germany, 1850. Graduated at Columbia University, 1871; LL.B. He practiced law, 1872-

81; entered the mercantile life as a member of L. Straus and Sons, importers of pottery and glassware; was United States minister to Turkey, 1887-89, 1898-1901; appointed, 1902, by president Roosevelt, a member of the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague; and was secretary of commerce and labor, 1906-09. Author: The Origin of Republican Form of Government in the United States; United States Doctrine of Citizenship; Our Diplomacy with Reference to our Foreign Service, etc. Died, 1926.

Strauss, Johann, Austrian composer and conductor, was born at Vienna, 1825. In 1872 he conducted an orchestra of 1,000 performers at the Boston peace jubilee; he was for a time also musical director to the emperor Joseph at Vienna. His most famous waltz pieces are Wiener Blut, Künstlerleben, and An der schönen blauen Donau. Of his operettas, the following are best known: Cagliostro; La Tsigane; Die Fledermaus; Eine Nacht in Venedig. Died, 1899.

Strauss, Richard, German composer, conductor at the royal opera house, Berlin, was born, 1864, at Munich. From 1889 to 1894 he was chapelmaster, with Eduard Lassen, at Weimar, later conductor at the Munich opera house; and since 1898 conductor of the royal opera, Berlin. Works: Salome; Tod und Verklarung; Don Juan; Till Eulenspiegel; Don Quixote, etc. He was made chevalier of the legion of honor, 1907.

Strong, Charles Augustus, American psychologist, educator, was born at Haverhill, Mass., 1862. He graduated at Harvard, 1885; lecturer in psychology, 1895-1903, and professor of psychology, 1903-1910, Columbia University. Author: Why the Mind Has a Body, etc.

Stuart, Gilbert Charles, American portrait painter, was born at Narragansett, R. I., 1755. In 1778 he made his way to London, where his talent was recognized by Benjamin West, president of the Royal Academy, who took him into his family, and whose full length portrait he painted for the national gallery. In 1792, in the fullness of his powers and fame, he returned to America and painted portraits of Washington, Jefferson and many of the distinguished men of the period. Died at Boston, Mass., 1828.

Stuart, James Ewell Brown, confederate cavalry general, was born in Patrick county, Virginia, 1833. When the Civil War broke out, he held a captaincy in the Union army, but resigned this to enter the confederate service. He was mortally wounded at Ashland, and died, 1864, at Richmond, Va.

Stubbs, William, English historian, was born Knaresborough, England, 1825. In 1866 he was appointed professor of modern history at Oxford, changed to the see of Oxford in 1889. He edited a large number of ancient histories and chronicles. His historical works include Constitutional History of England; The Early Plantagenets. Died, 1901.

Stuyvesant (stī've-sant), Peter, director-general of the New Netherlands, 1647-64, and last Dutch governor of New York, was born in Holland, 1592. Forced to surrender the city of New York to the English, 1664. He died in 1682.

Suchet (sü'shē'), Louis Gabriel, duke of Albufera, celebrated French marshal, was born in 1770 at Lyons. In 1808 he was appointed to the command of the French forces in the southeast of Spain, and this command he retained until the termination of the war. When Napoleon returned from Elba, he intrusted Suchet with the defense of the departments bordering on the frontier of Savoy. Died, 1826.

Sudermann (zōō'dĕr-mān), Herman, German dramatist and novelist, was born in Matziken, Prussia, 1857. He published a series of tales of which Frau Sorge, Der Katzensteg, and Es War are the most impressive. The drama Sodom's Ende was produced in 1890, and was followed by Die Heimath. In 1906 Das Blümerbott was produced in Berlin, and Rosen at Vienna in 1907. Other plays are Es Leben das Leben, Stein unter Steinen, Die Raschoffs, etc. Died, 1928.

Sue (su), Marie-Joseph Eugene, French novelist, was born in Paris, 1804. In 1850 he was elected to the legislative assembly, as one of the deputies for the department of Seine. His writings extend over many volumes. His reputation as a writer rests mainly on The Wandering Jew and The Mysteries of Paris. He died in Savoy, in exile, 1857.

Sulla, Lucius Cornelius, Roman general and dictator, was born, 138 B. C. After holding the dictatorship for about two years, he resigned his office in 79 B. C., and retired to an estate he possessed at Puteoli, where he died in the following year.

Sullivan, Sir Arthur Seymour, English composer, was born in London, 1842. He studied in London and at Leipzig, and in 1862 composed incidental music for The Tempest; Pirates of Penzance; Patience; Iolanthe; The Mikado; The Yeomen of the Guard; The Gondoliers, etc. He also wrote cantatas, overtures, oratorios, church music and ballads. He became a member of the legion of honor, 1878, and was knighted in 1883. Died, 1900.

Sully, James, English educator and philosophical writer, Grote professor of philosophy of mind and logic, University College, London, was born at Bridgewater, 1842. Wrote on psychology and pessimism. Died, 1923. Author Sensation and Intuition; Pessimism; Illusions; Outlines of Psychology; Children's Ways; An Essay on Laughter, etc.

Sully, Maximilien de Bethune, Duke of, French soldier and statesman, noted minister of Henry IV., of France, was born at Rosny, near Nantes, 1560. In 1601 he was sent on a confidential mission to Queen Elizabeth of England. He was created duke of Sully in 1606, and was made marshal of France in 1634. He died at Villebon, near Charters, 1641.

Sully, Thomas, American painter, was born in Lincolnshire, England, in 1783. As a portrait painter he enjoyed a great reputation, Jefferson, Lafayette, Madison, Jackson, and many other of the most illustrious personages of the time being among his sitters. Died, 1872.

Sumner, Charles (1811-74), American statesman, was born in Boston and educated at Harvard. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1834. He entered the U. S. Senate in 1851, retaining his seat until his death. He was prominent in debate, especially on the repeal of the Missouri Compromise and on the contest in Kansas. His speech on "The Crime Against Kansas" incensed Preston S. Brooks of South Carolina, who assaulted Sumner at his desk. Author: White Slavery in the Barbary States; Orations and Speeches, etc.

Sumner, William Graham (1840-1910), American educator, was born in Paterson, N. J. He was educated at Yale. He was professor of political and social science at Yale, from 1872 to his death. Author: A History of American Currency; Robert Morris, etc.

Sunday, William ("Billy") Ashley, American evangelist, was born in Iowa in 1863. He was educated in the public schools. He was a successful baseball player in the National League, 1883-90. He was assistant secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Chicago, 1891-95. Successful evangelist since 1896. Ordained Presbyterian minister 1903. Died, 1935.

Sutherland, George, lawyer, United States senator, was born in Buckinghamshire, England, 1862, attended the law department of the University of Michigan, 1882-3, and was admitted to the bar, 1883, was a member of congress, Utah, 1901-03; and was elected to the United States senate for the terms, 1905-11, 1911-17; appointed associate justice of Supreme Court of U. S., 1922.

Suvaroff (sōō-vä'rŏf), Prince Alexel, celebrated Russian field marshal, was born in 1729, at Suskoi, in Finland. In the war against the Turks, from 1787 to 1790, he gained the battle of Rymnik, took Ismail by storm, and obtained other important advantages. When Russia joined the continental coalition, in 1799, he was placed at the head of the combined army in Italy, and, after several sanguinary battles, succeeded in wresting that country from the French. Died, 1800.

Swain, Joseph, American educator, president of Swarthmore College, 1902-1921, was born at Pendleton, Ind., 1857. He graduated at Indiana University, 1883; A.M., LL.D.; professor of mathematics in Leland Stanford Jr. University 1891-93; and president of Indiana University, 1893-1902. Emeritus president, Swarthmore College, 1921. Member of the national council of education; and of religious education. Died, 1927.

Sweatman, Arthur, archbishop of Toronto, and primate of Canada since 1907, was born in 1834. He was graduated at Christ's College, Cambridge; rector of Grace church, Brantford, Ontario, 1872-76; secretary of the diocesan synod, 1872-79; secretary to Canadian house of bishops, 1873-79; archdeacon of Brant and rector of Woodstock, Ontario, 1876-79; and bishop of Toronto, 1897 1907; primate of all Canada 1907 until he died 1909.

Swedenborg (swē'den-borg), Emanuel, Swedish philosopher and mystic, the founder of the New church, was born in 1688, at Stockholm. In 1743 he claimed a divine commission to disclose the internal or spiritual sense of scripture by the correspondence existing between natural and spiritual things, and thereby to make known its true doctrines. He also stated that for the purpose of his mission he was intromitted as to his soul into heaven, hell, and the intermediate state between them. Of these he treats in Heaven and Its Wonders, The Last Judgment, and The Earth in the Universe. Died, 1772.

Sweet, Henry, English philologist, was born in London, 1845. Author: and Editor Student's Dictionary of Anglo-Saxon, Primer of Spoken English, History of English Sounds, Phonetics, and The Practical Study of Language. Died, 1912.

Swift, Charles Henry (1872——), packer, educated Chicago Business School, Vice-President Director, Swift & Company, Director, Libby, McNeil & Libby, etc. During World War was made Commanding Major U. S. R., 1917, and served actively in the Ordnance Department at Washington.

Swift, Jonathan, British satirist, was born in Dublin, of English parents, 1667. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and then removed to London, and was admitted into the house of Sir William Temple. Before 1700 he had written the most powerful satirical work of the eighteenth century, the Tale of a Tub, in 1704. He then wrote papers for the London Examiner, The Conduct of the Allies, and innumerable pasquinades against the whigs, and became a formidable power in the state. His Drapier Letters, 1724, compelled the government to abandon a scheme for supplying Ireland with copper coinage. The triumphant author made his last visit to England in 1726, and published his Gulliver's Travels, the most popular of all his works. Died, 1745.

Swinburne, Algernon Charles, English poet and prose writer, was born in London, 1837. He was educated at Balliol College, Oxford. His first productions were the plays, Queen Mother and Rosamond, which were followed by two tragedies; Poems and Ballads; A Song of Italy; essay on William Blake; and Songs Before Sunrise. His subsequent works include Bothwell, a Tragedy; Songs of Two Nations; Century of Roundels; A Study of Victor Hugo; Studies in Prose and Poetry; The Duke of Gardia, etc. Died, 1909.

Sybel (zē'bel), Heinrich von, German historian, born at Düsseldorf, 1817. He studied at Berlin under Ranke; became professor of history at Bonn, 1844; and in 1875 was made director of the state archives at Berlin. Then came his great work, Geschichte der Revolutionszeit, 1789-95, a history of the French revolution based upon official documentary evidence. He died at Marburg, 1895.

Symonds (si'munz), John Addington, an English man of letters, was born at Bristol, England, 1840. He was graduated at Oxford. His chief writings are an Introduction to the Study of Dante; Studies of the Greek Poets; Sketches in Italy and Greece; The Renaissance in Italy; Italian Byways; Shakespeare's Predecessors in the English Drama. The Renaissance in Italy is his chief work. He died at Rome, 1893.

Synge, John Millington, Irish dramatist, born near Dublin in 1871. His efforts to become a literary critic in Paris were halted by William Butler Yeats, who persuaded him to return to Ireland and study his native folk-lore. For the Abbey theatre in Dublin he wrote The Playboy of the Western World—one of the finest comedies of a hundred years— Riders to the Sea, The Tinker's Wedding, and The Well of the Saints. Died, 1909.

Tacitus (tas'-i-tus), Gaius Cornelius (55-120 A. D.) Roman historian, orator and author, was appointed consul of Rome and became an initimate friend of Pliny. His works are Life of Agricola, Germania.

Taft, Lorado, sculptor, born in Elmwood, Ill., 1860, a graduate of University of Illinois, studied at Ecole des Beaux Arts, Paris, L.H.D., Northwestern University, Instructor in Chicago Art Institute, professional lecturer on art, University of Chicago; non-resident professor of art, University of Illinois since 1909. Author: The History of American Sculpture; Recent Tendencies in Sculpture. D., 1936.

Taft, William Howard, twenty-seventh president of the United States, born at Cincinnati, Ohio, 1857; graduated at Yale, 1878; law school, Cincinnati College, 1880; solicitor general of the United States, 1890-92; first civil governor of the Philippines, 1901-04; secretary of war, 1904-08; president of the United States, 1909-13; Kent professor of law, Yale, 1913-21. Chief Justice U. S. Supreme Court, 1921-1930. Died, 1930.

Tagore, Sir Rabindranath, Hindu poet, philosopher and educator, was born at Calcutta, 1860. Completed education in Europe. Later founded a university of Bengal. His poems in Bengali and their English versions possess remarkable charm and spiritual beauty. Winner of the Nobel prize for literature in 1913. Knighted by King George in 1915. Author: Crescent Moon; The Fugitive, etc.

Taine, Hippolyte Adolphe, French historian and critic, was born at Vouziers, France, 1828. One of his first essays was crowned by the French academy. Among his most important works is his History of English Literature, a clear and valuable criticism, written in brilliant style; 1878 was elected to membership, French Academy. Died 1893.

Tait, Peter Guthrie, British mathematician and physicist, was born in 1831. He was educated at Edinburgh University, and St. Peter's College, Cambridge; was elected professor of natural philosophy at Edinburgh, 1860. He resigned his chair early in 1901, and died the same year.

Takahira (tä'kä-hē'rä), Kogoro, Japanese diplomat, was born in Japan, 1854. He was educated in Tokyo, and entered the foreign office as student attache, 1876; acting consul-general, 1888-89 consul-general at New York, 1892; envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Italy, 1894-95 and 1906-07, to Austria and Switzerland, 1896-99; and envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States, 1900-06, and 1907-09. Made by Imperial nomination a member of House of Peers, 1917. Died, 1926.

Talleyrand-Perigord (tä'le'rän'pā'rē'gōr'), Charles Maurice, Prince de, was born in Paris, 1754. As bishop of Auntun he was a member of the States-general which was convoked in 1789. The progress of the revolution led to his retirement to England and afterward to America; but on the fall of Robespierre he returned to Paris, and, through the influence of Madame de Staël with Barras, was appointed foreign minister. In return for his services he was made grand chamberlain, and prince of Bénévento. After the fall of Napoleon he became for a time prime minister under Louis XVIII., but ceased to hold this position subsequent to the battle of Waterloo. Died, 1838.

Talmadge, Norma (1898——), motion picture actress, stars in emotional, humorous and dramatic parts. Played since sixteen years old, successively with the Vitagraph, Triangle and Select companies. Noted for The Isle of Conquest, The Moth.

Talmage, Thomas De Witt (1832-1902), American Presbyterian minister and orator, edited for several years The Christian at Work and Christian Herald. Traveled extensively, especially through Palestine. Pastor First Presbyterian Church, Washington.

Tamerlane, or Timur (tē-mōōr'), oriental conqueror, was born at Sebz, near Samarkand, about 1336. His whole career was one of conquest, though he was frequently interrupted by revolts in his own dominions, and in the provinces he had brought under his rule. He was preparing for the conquest of China, but died on his march to that country, 1405.

Taney (tô'ni), Roger Brooke, American jurist, was born in Calvert county, Md., 1777. He was graduated at Dickinson College; he succeeded John Marshall as chief-justice of the United States supreme court in 1836. His most famous decision was that in the Dred Scott case, in 1857. He died at Washington, D. C., 1864.

Tarbell, Ida Minerva, American author and editor, was born in Erie county, Pa., 1857. She was graduated from Allegheny College; editor on staff, and associate editor of McClure's Magazine, 1894-1906, and associate editor of the American Magazine beginning 1906. Author: Early Life of Abraham Lincoln, with J. McCan Davis; History of the Standard Oil Company.

Tarkington, Newton Booth, American novelist, was born in Indianapolis, Ind., 1869. He was graduated at Princeton, 1893; A.M., 1899. Author: The Gentleman From Indiana; Monsieur Beaucaire; The Two Vanrevels; The Conquest of Canaan; His Own People, etc.

Tarr, Ralph Stockman, American educator, was born at Gloucester, Mass., 1864. He was graduated at Lawrence scientific school, Harvard, 1891; assistant professor of geology at Harvard, 1892-97; professor of physical geography, Cornell University. Author: Economic Geology of United States; Elementary Physical Geography; New Physical Geography. Died, 1912.

Taschereau (tăsh'rō'), Sir Henri Elzear, Canadian jurist, chief-justice of the supreme court of Canada, 1902-06, was born in 1836. He was admitted to the Quebec bar, 1857; was appointed a judge of the Quebec superior court, 1871; judge of the supreme court of Canada, 1878. Died, 1911.

Tasso (tăs'sō), Torquato, Italian poet, was born in Sorrento, 1544. In 1565 he entered the service of cardinal Luigi d'Este, and was invited to the court of the latter's brother, Alfonso, duke of Ferrara. While there he wrote his pastoral drama, Aminta, and in 1575 finished his great epic, Jerusalem Delivered, describing the first crusade. In 1594 Pope Clement VIII. summoned him to Rome to receive a laurel crown, but he died soon after his arrival, 1595.

Taylor, Charles, H., American journalist, editor and manager of the Boston Daily Globe beginning 1873, was born in Boston, Mass., 1846; member of the Massachusetts legislature, 1872. He served during the Civil War in the 38th Massachusetts regiment, was wounded at Port Hudson, La., 1863; and brigadier-general of Governor Russell's staff, 1891-93. He long held a prominent place among American journalists and publicists. Died, 1921.

Taylor, Hannis, American lawyer, diplomat, was born in New Bern, N. C., 1851. He was educated at the University of North Carolina; LL.D.; professor of constitutional and international law, George Washington University, 1892-98, and was special counsel for the government of the United States before the Spanish treaty claims commission and before the Alaskan boundary commission. Died, 1922.

Taylor, James Bayard, American author and traveler, was born at Kennett Square, Pa., 1825. In 1862-63 he was connected with the embassy at St. Petersburg, and in 1874 he was in Iceland and Egypt. For several years he resided in Germany. He was appointed United States minister to Berlin in 1878, where he died the same year. He was an industrious worker and wrote many volumes. Some of his best travesties are in his Echo Club. Among the finest of his poems are Bedouin Song, The Quaker Widow and The Old Pennsylvania Farmer. His masterpiece is the translation of Goethe's Faust.

Taylor, James Monroe, American educator, professor of ethics and president of Vassar College beginning 1886, was born in Brooklyn, 1848. He was graduated at the University of Rochester, 1868; D.D.; LL.D. Author: Psychology; New World and Old Gospel, etc. Died, 1916.

Taylor, Jeremy, English divine, was born in Cambridge, England, 1613. He was graduated at Cambridge. He soon afterward became chaplain to Charles I., was rector of Uppingham, 1638-42. He removed to Ireland in 1657, and, after the restoration, was made bishop of Down and Connor. His chief works are: Holy Living; Holy Dying. Died, 1667.

Taylor, Robert Love, lawyer, United States senator, was born in Happy Valley, Tenn., 1850; was governor, 1887-91; practiced law at Chattanooga, 1891-96; again governor, 1897-99; and United States senator, 1907-12. Died, 1912.

Taylor, Zachary, American general, and twelfth president of the United States, was born in Orange county, Va., 1784. After defeating the Seminoles at Okechobee, in 1837, he was given the chief command in Florida in the following year. In 1846 he was intrusted with the command of the army which entered Mexico. There he won the battles of Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma, and Buena Vista, and brought the campaign to a successful conclusion in 1847. In the following year he was nominated as whig candidate for the presidency, elected, and inaugurated in 1849. Died, 1850.

Tecumseh (tē-kum'se), famous Shawnee chief, was born on the Scioto river, Ohio, about 1775. In the war of 1812 he became an ally of the English, obtained the rank of brigadier-general in their service, and commanded the right wing in the battle of the Thames, in 1813, where he fell mortally wounded.

Tell, William, Swiss patriot, was born at Bürglen, near Altdorf, toward the close of the thirteenth century. His renown rests upon his resistance to the Austrians in 1307 and afterward. The story of Tell has been the subject of numerous poems and dramas. The most notable is the Wilhelm Tell of Schiller.

Temple, Sir William, English diplomat and writer, was born in London, 1628. He studied at Cambridge. His great diplomatic success was the triple alliance, in 1668, of England, Holland, and Sweden, against France. In 1677 he helped to bring about the marriage of the prince of Orange with the princess Mary. He twice refused the secretaryship of state offered him by Charles II., and gave the remainder of his days, after 1681, to letters and gardening. Died, 1699.

Teniers (te-nērs'), David, the Younger, celebrated Flemish painter, was born at Antwerp, 1610. He was the most popular of all the Flemish painters. He died at Brussels, 1690.

Tennyson, Alfred, English poet, was born in Somersby, Lincolnshire, England, 1809, of which parish his father was rector. He was educated at Louth grammar school and at Cambridge University. At Cambridge he gained the chancellor's medal by a poem in blank verse entitled Timbuctoo; but his literary career properly dates from 1830, in which year a volume appeared of Poems, Chiefly Lyrical. The publication, in 1842, of Poems, by Alfred Tennyson, in two volumes, raised him to the position of supremacy, which he continued to occupy until his death. In 1847 appeared The Princess, a Medley, and in 1850 In Memoriam. On the death of Wordsworth, in 1850, Tennyson succeeded him as poet laureate, in which capacity he issued, in 1852, his Ode on the Death of the Duke of Wellington. In 1855 appeared Maud, and other Poems. The Idylls of the King at once took rank as one of the noblest poems in the language. It was followed in 1864 by a volume containing Enoch Arden; Aylmer's Field; Tithonus, and a few other poems. He lived for the most part a retired life. In 1884 he was made an hereditary peer, with the title of Baron Tennyson. Died, 1892.

Terence (ter'ens) or Terentius, Publius, Latin comic writer, is believed to have been a native of Carthage, and to have been born about 185 B. C. By birth or purchase he became the slave of the Roman senator P. Terentius Lucanus, who educated him highly, and finally manumitted him. Six comedies are extant under the name of Terence, which are, perhaps, all he produced. He died about 159 B. C.

Terhune (tēr-hūn'), Mary Virginia, "Marion Harland," was born in Amelia county, Va., 1831. In 1854 she published Alone, which at once created a sensation; and in 1855 she produced The Hidden Path. In 1857 her Moss-Side appeared, and this was followed in rapid succession by Nemesis; Husks; Husbands and Homes; Sunnybank and Christmas Holly. Died, 1922.

Terry, Ellen Alicia (Mrs. James Carew), English actress, was born at Coventry, England, 1848, and made her first appearance on the stage with Charles Kean's Shakespearean revivals, in 1858; reappeared on the stage in 1867 for the first time with Henry Irving. In 1864 she married the noted painter, G. F. Watts, and in 1868 E. A. Wardell. In 1878 she was again associated with Irving, with whom she continued throughout the greater part of his subsequent career. She produced Ibsen's The Vikings in 1903, and Shakespearean plays with her own company at the Imperial theater. Died, 1928.

Tesla (tes'lă), Nikola, American electrical inventor, was born in Smiljan, Austria-Hungary, 1857. He came to the United States in 1884, and for several years was employed at Edison's laboratory, near Orange, N. J. He invented many methods and appliances for the use of electricity, among them the production of efficient light from lamps without filaments, and the production and transmission of power and intelligence without wires. In 1898 he announced the discovery of, and in 1900 patented, a method of transmitting electrical energy without wires. Chiefly engaged since 1903 in development of system of telegraphy and telephony.

Tetrazzini (Tet-trah-tzee'nee), Luisa, was first brought to public notice by the management of the Tivoli Opera House, in San Francisco. Her first concert tour, through twenty of the largest cities, was a series of ovations. She met with an almost unparalleled reception during her engagements at the Manhattan and Metropolitan Opera Houses in New York. Her voice is a soprano of most remarkable beauty, purity and range. Her colorature work is extremely brilliant. She now lives in Italy.

Thackeray, William Makepeace, eminent English novelist, was born at Calcutta, India, 1811. His first profession was that of an artist; but he soon abandoned art for literature. He afterward contributed largely to Punch. In 1846-48 Vanity Fair appeared, and Thackeray's reputation was at once established. In 1849 Pendennis appeared; in 1852, The History of Henry Esmond; in 1855, The Newcomes. In 1851 he delivered and published his Lectures on the English Humorists of the Eighteenth Century and in 1856 his Lectures on the Four Georges. Died, 1863.

Thales (thā'lēz), early Greek philosopher, founder of the Ionic, or physical school of philosophy, and one of the seven wise men, was a native of Miletus, in Asia Minor, and flourished during the first half of the sixth century B. C. He is regarded by some as the first Greek that speculated on the constitution of the universe.

Themistocles (thē-mis'tō-klēz), Athenian statesman, was born at Athens, about 514 B. C., fought at Salamis, and devoted the succeeding years to the upbuilding of the Athenian navy. In 481 B. C. he was chief archon, and added greatly to the naval power of Athens. He later rebuilt the walls and fortified the Piræus. Being in danger of arrest on a charge of treason, in concert with Pausanias, he fled to Asia. He lived securely in Magnesia until his death, 449 B. C.

Theocritus (thē-ok'ri-tus), celebrated Greek poet, flourished in the time of Ptolemy Philadelphus, 285 to 247 B.C. The compositions of Theocritus bear the name of Idyls, of which there are thirty extant, though the genuineness of some of them is doubtful.

Theodoric (thē-od'ō-rik) the Great, founder of the monarchy of the Ostro, or East Goths, son of Theodemir, the Ostrogothic king of Pannonia, was born about 454. He was the most powerful of the Gothic kings, with an empire embracing Italy, Sicily, and Dalmatia, besides German possessions. As a ruler he proved himself as wise as he was strong; became in after years one of the great heroes of German legend, and figures in the Nibelungenlied. Died, 526.

Thiers (tyâr), Louis Adolphe, French statesman and historian, and president of the French republic, was born in Marseilles, 1797. Between the years 1823-27 appeared his History of the French Revolution, a work which stamped him as a historian of the first order. In 1871 he succeeded in effecting peace although practically on the terms dictated by Germany, and, in the same year, was elected president of the new republic. In 1873 after an adverse vote of the legislative body, he resigned, and was succeeded by Marshal MacMahon. Died, 1877.

Thomas, Ambroise, French composer, was born at Metz, 1811. He studied at the Paris conservatoire, 1828-32. His first success in opera was with La Double Echelle, in 1837, followed by Mina, Betty, Le Caïd, Le Songe d'une Nuit d'Eté, Le Carnaval de Venise. He became a member of the French institute in 1851, professor of composition, 1852, director of the conservatoire, 1871, and received the grand cross of the legion of honor, 1880. Died, 1896.

Thomas, Augustus, American playwright, was born at St. Louis, Mo., 1859. He was educated in the public schools there; studied law two years. Author: Alabama; Arizona; The Man Upstairs; The Earl of Pawtucket; Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots; The Embassy Ball; The Witching Hour. Died 1934.

Thomas, a Becket. See Becket, Thomas a.

Thomas, George Henry, American general, was born in Southampton county, Va., 1816. He was graduated at West Point. He began his career in the Civil War as cavalry colonel in the Shenandoah valley. In 1861 he was appointed brigadier-general of volunteers, and at Chickamauga rendered the victory a barren one for the confederates. In October, 1863, he was given the command of the army of the Cumberland, and in November captured Mission Ridge; in December he won the battle of Nashville, and received the thanks of congress. Died, 1870.

Thomas a Kempis. See Kempis, Thomas a.

Thomas, Martha Carey, American educator, was born in Baltimore in 1857. She graduated at Cornell University, 1877. She studied at Johns Hopkins and at Leipzig and received the Ph.D. degree there in 1883. She was professor of English and dean at Bryn Mawr College, 1885-95; president, 1897-1922; since, president emeritus. Author: Sir Gawaine and the Green Knight; Education of Women; The College, etc.

Thompson, Ernest Seton. See Seton, Ernest Thompson.

Thompson, Launt, American sculptor, was born in Ireland, 1833, but was brought up in Albany, N. Y. A statue of General Winfield Scott, a colossal statue of Napoleon, and a statue of the first president of Yale, on the college grounds, are some of his larger works. He died at Middletown, N. Y., 1894.

Thompson, William Oxley, American educator, president of Ohio State University, was born at Cambridge, Ohio, 1855. He was graduated from Muskingum College, 1878; LL.D. He was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry, 1882; was president of Miami University, 1891-99, and was president of Ohio State University, 1899-1925, president emeritus, 1925.

Thomson, Elihu, American electrician, was born in Manchester, England, 1853. He was graduated from Central high school, Philadelphia, 1870; Ph.D., Tufts College. He is the inventor of electric welding, which bears his name, and many other important devices in electric lighting, power, etc.

Thomson, James, British poet, was born in Roxburgshire, Scotland, 1700. He studied six years at Edinburgh. His fame rests upon his poems, The Seasons, the first of which, Winter, appeared in 1726, followed by Summer, Spring, and Autumn. He died near Richmond, England, 1748.

Thomson, Joseph John, English physicist, professor of experimental physics at Cambridge University, England, 1884-1918, was born near Manchester, 1856. In 1899 he accomplished the important achievement of dividing the hydrogen atom.

Thomson, Sir William. See Kelvin, Lord.

Thoreau (thō'rō, thō-rō'), Henry David, American naturalist, friend of Emerson, and a member of the transcendental school of New England, was born at Concord, Mass., 1817. He was graduated at Harvard College in 1837, and became a surveyor; lived the simplest of lives in the study of nature, and in writing. He gave an account of his experiences in perhaps his finest book, Walden, published in 1854. Others were Cape Cod, The Maine Woods, A Yankee in Canada. Died, 1862.

Thorpe, Thomas Edward, English chemist, director of the government laboratories, London, was born near Manchester, 1845. He was president of tae society of chemical industry, 1895. Author: Chemical Problems; Inorganic Chemistry; Quantitative Analysis; Qualitative Analysis; Joseph Priestley. Died, 1925.

Thorwaldsen (tōr'wōld-sen), Albert Bertel, Danish sculptor, was born at Copenhagen, 1770. He studied at the academy of Copenhagen, where he gained the first gold medal in sculpture, and was sent by that body to Rome in 1796. His masterpieces include the Entry of Alexander Into Babylon; Cupid and Psyche; the Dying Lion at Lucerne, and busts of Byron and the Danish poet, Oehlenschlager. Died, 1814.

Thucydides (thū-sid'i-dēz), great Greek historian, was born at Athens, about 471 B. C. He belonged to a noble Athenian family, and was himself a person of great influence and wealth. During exile he wrote his History of the Peloponnesian War. Among the Romans, Sallust is believed to have taken Thucydides for his model. He died about 401 B. C.

Thurman, Allen Granberry, American statesman, was born at Lynchburg, Va., 1813. When six years old his family moved to Ohio, where he became a lawyer and was chosen a representative in the 29th congress. He served as United States senator, 1869-81, and was one of the ablest and most prominent members of that body. Died 1895.

Thwing, Charles Franklin, university president, was born at New Sharon, Me., 1853; graduated from Harvard, 1876; graduate Andover Theological Seminary, 1879; S.T.D., Chicago Theological Seminary, 1889; LL.D., Marietta, 1894, Illinois College, 1894, Waynesburg College, 1901, Washington and Jefferson, 1902. Ordained Congregational ministry, 1879; president Western Reserve University and Adelbert College, 1890-1921; Associate editor Bibliotheca Sacra beginning 1884. Author: American Colleges—Their Students and Work; Within College Walls; The American College in American Life; The Best Life; College Administration; The Youth's Dream of Life; God in His World; The Choice of a College; College Training and the Business Man; A History of Higher Education in America, etc.

Ticknor, George, American author, was born at Boston, 1791. He was graduated at Dartmouth; in 1819 became professor of French and Spanish in Harvard College. His History of Spanish Literature was published in 1849, and at once took high rank, and was translated into Spanish, German and French. He was one of the founders of the Boston public library. Died, 1871.

Tiffany, Charles Louis, American merchant, was born at Killingly, Conn., 1812. In 1837 he established a stationery and fancy goods store next door to A. T. Stewart's establishment. In 1847 Tiffany began the manufacture of gold jewelry; in 1850 made immense purchases of diamonds in Europe, selling them in the United States at tremendous profit. The firm later established branches in several European centers. Died, 1902.

Tiffany, Louis Comfort, American artist, was born in New York, 1848. He studied art under George Inness and Samuel Coleman, New York, and Léon Bailly, Paris; devoted himself chiefly to oriental scenes in oil and water colors. Discovered the formulas for making decorative glass known as "Tiffany Favrile glass."

Tilden, Samuel Jones, American statesman, was born at New Lebanon, N. Y., 1814. He was educated at Yale and New York University, and admitted to the bar in 1841. By 1868 he attacked and destroyed the "Tweed Ring" and in 1876 was Democratic candidate for president, resulting in the famous contest before the Electoral Commission. He died in 1886, leaving a great part of his large fortune to found a free library in New York City.

Tilly, Johann Tserklaes, Count of, Belgian general, one of the great leaders of the Thirty Years' war, was born near Gembleaux, Belgium, 1559. He reorganized the Bavarian Army, and, devoted to the Catholic cause, was given command of the Catholic army at the outbreak of the Thirty Years' war. Tilly was mortally wounded in the battle of Lech, 1632.

Tintoretto (tēn'tō-ret'tō), Venetian historical painter, was born in 1518. His real name was Jacopo Robusti. He rose to high reputation and was employed by the Venetian government to paint a picture of the victory gained over the Turks in 1571. Most of his finest compositions are at Venice. He died at Venice, 1594.

Tischendorf (tish'en-dōrf), Lobegott Friedrich Konstantin von, German biblical scholar, was born at Lengenfeld in Saxony, 1815. His labors in search of the best and most ancient manuscripts of the new testament, especially those in 1844, 1853 and 1859, resulted in the discovery of the fourth century Sinaitic Codex at the monastery on Mount Sinai; count of the Russian empire, LL.D., D.C.L., etc. He died in Leipzig, 1874.

Tissot (tē'sō'), James Joseph Jacques, French genre painter, was born at Nantes, France, 1836. He was educated at the Ecole des Beaux Arts, in Paris, and under Lamothe and Flandrin. He made his first appearance in the Paris salon in 1859, with a number of fine water colors. He then turned his attention to his series of religious subjects illustrating the Life of Christ. Died, 1902.

Titchener (tich'en-ēr), Edward Bradfrod, American educator, professor of psychology at Cornell 1895-1910, was born at Chichester, England, 1867. He was graduated at Brasenose College, Oxford, 1890; Ph.D., D.Sc.; LL.D.; assistant professor of psychology, Cornell, 1892-95; professor of music, 1892-95; Sage professor psychology, in the Graduate School, 1910. American editor of Mind; associate editor of American Journal of Psychology, etc. Author: An Outline of Psychology; A Primer of Psychology. Died, 1927.

Titian (tish'i-an), or Tiziano Vecellio (tit-si-ä'no ve-chel'li-ō), great Italian painter, and head of the Venetian school, was born at Pieve de Cadore, in the Carnic Alps, in 1477. He studied under Giovanni Bellini of Venice, and in 1507 was associated with the painter Giorgione in executing certain frescoes.

In 1511 he was invited to Padua, where he executed three remarkable frescoes, still to be seen. In 1512 he completed the unfinished pictures of Giovanni Bellini in the Sala del Gran Consiglio at Venice, and the senate was so pleased that it gave him an important office. To this period are attributed his pictures of the Tribute Money and Sacred and Profane Love.

In 1514 he painted a portrait of Ariosto at Ferrara, and after his return to Venice, in 1516, he painted an Assumption of the Virgin, considered one of the finest pictures in the world. About 1528 he produced his magnificent picture, The Death of St. Peter the Martyr—"a picture," says Algarotti, "in which the great masters admitted they could not find fault"; picture was unfortunately destroyed by fire in 1867.

In 1530 the Emperor Charles V. invited him to Bologna to paint his portrait and execute various other commissions. In 1532 he again painted the emperor's portrait, and he is said to have accompanied Charles to Madrid, where he received several honors. He remained, it is said, three years in Spain, in which country many of his master-pieces, such as The Sleeping Venus, Christ in the Garden, St. Margaret and the Dragon, are still to be found. In 1537 he painted an Annunciation, and in 1541 he produced The Descent of the Holy Ghost on the Apostles, The Sacrifice of Abraham, and David and Goliath. In 1543 he painted his picture of The Virgin and San Tiziano; and in 1545 he visited Rome, where he painted the famous group of Pope Paul III. the Cardinal Farnese, and Duke Ottavio Farnese. He was patronized as warmly by Philip II. as by his father Charles V.

Of Titian's private life but little is known. He died of the plague in 1576, aged ninety-nine, having painted to the last with almost undiminished powers.

Titian excelled as much in landscape as in figure-painting, was equally great in sacred and profane subjects, in ideal heads and in portraits, in frescoes and in oils; and though others may have surpassed him in single points, none equaled him in general mastery. As a colorist he is almost unrivalled, and his pictures often reach the perfection of sensuous beauty.

References.—Crowe and Cavalcaselle's Life and Times of Titian; Claude Phillips' The Early Work of Titian and The Latter Work of Titian; Morelli's Italian Painters; Ruskin's Modern Painters.

Tittmann, Otto Hilgard, American scientist, was born at Belleville, Ill., 1850. He entered the United States coast and geodetic survey in 1867. United States delegate to international geodetic conference, Berlin, 1895; and superintendent, 1909-1915; United States Coast and geodetic survey. He was appointed to represent the United States in the demarkation of the boundary between Alaska and Canada in 1899, and was United States-Alaska boundary commissioner, 1904.

Tocqueville (tok'vil), Alexis Charles Henri Clerel de, French statesman and writer, was born at Verneuil, 1805. He studied at Metz and at Paris, was admitted to the bar in 1825. He became successively a member of the academy of moral sciences and of the French academy. After 1848 he was the most formidable opponent of the socialists and extreme republicans, and as strenuously opposed Louis Napoleon. He became vice-president of the assembly in 1849, and from June to October was minister of foreign affairs. He wrote Democracy in America. Died, 1859.

Todd, David P., astronomer, was born at Lake Ridge, N. Y., 1855; graduated from Amherst, 1875; Ph.D., Washington and Jefferson College, 1888; chief assistant on United States nautical almanac, 1878-81; professor astronomy and navigation and director of observations, Amherst College, 1881-1920. Astronomer in charge Lick observatory observations, transit of Venus, 1882; professor astronomy and higher mathematics, Smith College, 1882-7; astronomer in charge American eclipse expedition to Japan, 1887; chief United States scientific expedition to West Africa, 1889-90; chief Amherst eclipse expedition to Japan, 1896, to Tripoli, Barbary, 1900, to the Dutch E. Indies, 1901, and to Tripoli, 1905; chief Mars expedition to the Andes, 1907; professor, emeritus (Carnegie Foundation), 1920. Author: A New Astronomy; Stars and Telescopes; Lessons in Astronomy; etc. Designed and erected new observatories at Smith College, Northampton, 1886-7, and at Amherst College, 1903-5.

Togo (tō'gō), Admiral Count Heihachiro, Japanese admiral, was born at Kogoshima, 1847. He first came into prominence as commander of the Naniwa, which sank the transport Kowshing and forced on the war with China. He was then a rear-admiral and third in command of the fleet. At the close of January, 1904, he was selected to command the entire Japanese fleet in the hostilities against Russia. The battle of the sea of Japan was fought May 27-28, 1905, when of the Baltic fleet twenty ships were sunk, six captured, two demolished and six disarmed and interned. Togo was made count in 1907. Admiral 1912. Died 1935

Tolstoi (tol-stoi'), Count Lyoff Nikolayevitch, Russian author and social reformer, was born at Yasnaia Poliana in 1828. Studied at the University or Kazan; entered the army when twenty-three, and served in the Caucasus and at Sebastopol. Leaving the army soon after the close of the Crimean war, he devoted himself to literature. His War and Peace, a tale of the invasion of Russia by Napoleon, in 1812, is regarded as his masterpiece; but his Anna Karenina, which appeared in 1876, is better appreciated. He made "Resist not evil" the keystone of the Christian faith, and insisted that the literal interpretation of the Sermon on the Mount is the only rule of the Christian life. In 1892 he deposited his Memoirs and Diaries with the curator of the Rumyanzoff museum on the condition that they should not be published until ten years after his death. He was excommunicated by the holy synod in 1901, and the same authority enjoined all true believers to refrain from celebrating his eightieth birthday in 1908. Died, 1910.

Toombs, Robert, American politician, was born in Wilkes county, Ga., 1810. From 1853 to 1861 he was a member of the United States senate. In 1861 he became secretary of state under the confederate government, but resigned to accept the commission of brigadier-general in the confederate army. After the war he lived abroad until 1867, and on his return to the South refused to take the oath of allegiance to the United States government. He died in 1885.

Toothaker, Charles Robinson, curator, was born at Philadelphia, 1873; graduate Central Manual Training High School, Philadelphia, 1890; special course in zoölogy under E. D. Cope; other special courses. Mineralogist, in employ of A. E. Foote, Philadelphia, 1890-7; assistant curator, 1898-1904, curator since 1904, Philadelphia museum; lecturer on commercial geography; special instructor in commercial geography, Temple University, 1907-8. Consul for Republic of Colombia in Philadelphia. Author: Commercial Raw Materials, etc.

Toronto, Archbishop of. See Sweatman, Arthur.

Torricelli (tor'rē-chel'lē), Evangelista, Italian physicist and mathematician, was born probably at Piancaldoli, in the Romagna, 1608. He is celebrated as the inventor of the barometer, and for his improvements in lenses for telescopes. He died at Florence, 1647.

Torstensson (tōr'sten-son), Lennard, count of Ortala, Swedish general, was born at the castle of Torstena, Sweden, 1603. He accompanied Adolphus to Germany in 1630, and in 1641 was appointed to the command of the Swedish army in Germany. Died, 1651.

Totleben (tat-lye-ben), or Todleben, Franz Eduard Ivanovitch, Russian general and military engineer, was born 1818. Until he was severely wounded in 1855, he conducted with skill and energy the defense of Sebastopol. During the Turkish war of 1877-78 he was called to besiege Plevna, which he took. He died in 1884 and was buried at Sebastopol. He wrote an admirable account of the defense of Sebastopol.

Tourgee (toor-zhā'), Albion Winegar, American author, was born at Williamsfield, Ohio, 1838. Moved to North Carolina, where he was prominent in the reconstruction of the state, drawing up the constitution, and aiding in the revision of the laws. For some years prior to his death in 1905 he was United States consul at Bordeaux, France, and Halifax, Canada.

Toussaint L'Ouverture (tōō'saN' lōō-ver'tür), Francois Dominique, Haitian general, was born in 1743, son of African slaves, in San Domingo. In 1796 he was appointed by the French directory chief of the army of San Domingo. When Bonaparte sought to restore slavery in San Domingo in 1801, Toussaint resisted, but was forced to surrender, and was sent to France, where he died in prison in 1803.

Tower, Charlemagne, American capitalist and diplomat, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1848. He was graduated at Harvard in 1872; LL.D. He lived in Duluth, Minn., 1882-87; was president of Duluth and Iron Range Railroad and managing director of Minneapolis Iron Company. He was United States minister to Austria-Hungary, 1897; ambassador to Russia, 1899-1902; and ambassador to Germany, 1902-08. Author: The Marquis de La Fayette in the American Revolution. Died, 1923.

Trajan (trā'jan), Marcus Ulpius Crinitus, Roman emperor, surnamed Optimus, was born at Italica, in Spain, about 52 A. D. On the death of Nerva, 98 A. D., Trajan was invested with the imperial purple. In his civil capacity, he ruled for the welfare of his people; in his military character, he sustained the glory of Rome. The column which bears his name was raised in the Roman capital to commemorate his victories. Died 117 A. D.

Tree, Herbert Beerbohm, English actor and manager, was born in London, 1853. His first success was as the timid curate in The Private Secretary. He managed the Comedy theater in 1887, and produced The Red Lamp; and in the autumn of the same year assumed charge of the Haymarket theater. In 1897 he opened his new theater, His Majesty's, in the Haymarket. Here he produced the greatest of his successes: Herod; Twelfth Night; The Merry Wives of Windsor; King Richard II.; Colonel Newcome, etc. In 1907 he produced several of Shakespeare's plays in Berlin, and was received by the emperor. Died, 1917.

Trench, Richard Chenevix, British prelate and writer, was born at Dublin, 1807. He was graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge, 1829. During 1835-46 he published six volumes of poetry, re-issued in 1865. In 1845 he became rector of Itchenstoke; in 1847 professor of theology in King's College, London; and in 1863 archbishop of Dublin, an office which he resigned in 1884. His principal works are: Notes on the Parables; English Past and Present; Life and Genius of Calderon; Select Glossary of English Words; and Lectures on Mediæval Church History. He died in 1886, and was buried in Westminster abbey.

Trent, William Peterfield, American educator and critic, professor of English literature at Columbia University beginning 1900, was born at Richmond, Va., 1862. He was graduated at the University of Virginia, A.M.; LL.D. He was professor of English, 1888-1900, and dean of the academic department, 1894-1900, University of the South, and editor of the Sewanee Review, 1892-1900. Author: English Culture in Virginia; Robert E. Lee; The Progress of the United States in the Century; A History of American Literature, 1607-1865; Greatness in Literature; Daniel Defoe, etc.

Tripler, Charles E., physicist, inventor, made special study of physical sciences and phenomena in his own physical laboratory. His greatest achievement was the manufacture of liquid air, at a temperature 300° (F.) below zero. Died, 1906.

Trollope, Anthony, English novelist, was born in London, 1815. He was educated at Winchester school. He produced a long series of novels, among which are: Barchester Towers; Doctor Thorne; The Bertrams; The Claverings; Castle Richmond; and The Golden Lion of Granpere. Besides these he published several volumes of travel. He also wrote the Life of Cicero, one of Cæsar, and sketches of Thackeray. Died, 1882.

Tromp, Martin Harpertzoon, Dutch admiral, was born at Briel, 1597. In 1652 he was worsted by an English fleet under Blake. In November he again encountered Blake in the strait of Dover, this time successfully. In June another terrific battle took place off the North Foreland, the Dutch being defeated. In the final battle with Monk, July 31, 1653, off the coast of Holland, the Dutch lost thirty men-of-war, but their greatest loss was the heroic admiral. He was buried at Delft.

Trotsky, Leon, Russian communist leader, was born of Jewish parentage at Odessa, in 1877. He was twice deported to Siberia for revolutionary activities, but escaped each time, and continued his socialistic campaigns in Germany, France, Switzerland, and finally in the United States, where he assisted in the publication of Novy Mir, a Russian socialistic paper in New York City. In 1917 he returned to Russia, where, in conjunction with the more moderate Lenin, he was prominent in organizing the Bolshevist party. Later, Trotsky came to represent the extreme wing of the Soviet government. He signed the treaty of Brest-Litovsk, and became commander in Chief of the red army, but was later brought into eclipse by factional struggles.

Troubetzkoy (trōō-bets'koi), Princess. See Rives, Amelia.

Trowbridge, John Townsend, American novelist, poet, and editor, was born at Ogden, N. Y., 1827. He removed to Boston, and there contributed to magazines and journals and took actively to authorship. His chief works are: Neighbor Jackwood; The Silver Medal series; The Tide Mill series; and Start in Life series. Died, 1916.

Trumbull, John, American painter, was born at Lebanon, Conn., 1756. He was graduated at Harvard College, and studied art at Boston. His first American historical pictures were Battle of Bunker Hill, and the Death of Montgomery. He painted portraits of Washington and other revolutionary characters. He died at New York, 1843.

Tschaikowsky (chī-kôf'skē), Petr Ilich, musical composer, was born in the Ural mining region, 1840. In 1866 he became teacher of harmony at the Moscow conservatory. He visited America in 1891, and died at St. Petersburg in 1893. His best work is found in his Manfred, Roméo et Juliette, The Tempest, Francesca da Rimini, and his remarkable symphonies. Died, 1893.

Tunney, Gene, boxer and sportsman, was born in New York in 1898. At the age of 19 he enlisted in the marines and was shortly afterwards sent to France, where he stayed until the end of the war. In 1926, by defeating "Jack" Dempsey, he became world champion heavy-weight boxer.

Tupper, Sir Charles, Canadian statesman, was born in Amherst, Nova Scotia, 1821. He studied medicine at Edinburgh University; practiced his profession in his native town; and was prime minister of Nova Scotia, 1864-67. In 1884 he was appointed high commissioner for Canada in London. In 1895 he represented Canada at the international railway conference in London. In 1896 he was prime minister of Canada. Died, 1915.

Turenne (tü'ren'), Henri de la Tour d'Auvergne, Vicomte de, French general, was born in 1611. After his conquest of Roussillon, in 1642, he was made a marshal of France and given chief command on the Rhine. In the civil wars in France, the two greatest generals of the period, Condé and Turenne, were on opposite sides, and Turenne, with inferior forces was uniformly victorious, finally driving Condé from France. Louis XIV. made him marshal-general of France, and only his Protestantism prevented his being appointed constable. He was killed at the battle of Sasbach, while viewing the preparations for the attack, 1675.

Turgenieff (tōōr-gen'yef), Ivan Sergyevitch, Russian novelist, was born in Orel, Russia, 1818. On account of his liberal ideas he was banished for a period from Russia, but was finally allowed to return. Among his best known novels are: Fathers and Sons; Liza; Smoke; Dimitri Rudin; Journal of a Useless Man. Died, 1883.

Turgot (tür'gō'), Anne Robert Jacques, French statesman and economist, was born in Paris, 1727. He was educated for the church, and was prior of the Sorbonne in 1749. Under Louis XVI. he was put in charge of the finances of the country, and, if his plans had been received with favor by the nobility and statesmen, France might have been spared the horrors of the revolution. Among his writings are, Reflections Upon the Formation and Distribution of Riches, and a work on Usury. He died at Paris in 1781.

Turner, Joseph Mallord William, British landscape painter, was born in London, 1775. In 1799 he was elected an associate of the Royal academy, and three years afterward attained the full dignity of academician. To the exhibitions of the Royal Academy he contributed in all 259 pictures. In 1808 he commenced the publication of his famous Liber Studiorum, a series of engravings from original designs. Among his finest paintings are: Dido Building Carthage; The Sun Rising in a Mist; The Slave Ship, etc. Died, 1851.

Twain, Mark. See Clemens, Samuel Langhorne.

Tycho Brahe. See Brahe.

Tyler, John, tenth president of the United States, was born at Greenway, Va., 1790. He was graduated at William and Mary College, 1807; studied law, and was admitted to the bar. In 1825 and again in 1827 he was chosen governor of Virginia; and in 1833 was elected United States senator. From this time he acted with the whig party, being an active partisan of Henry Clay, and in 1840 was elected by that party vice-president of the United States, with Harrison as president. The death of President Harrison, a month after his inauguration, made Tyler president in 1841. The annexation of Texas in 1845, and the passing of a protective tariff law in 1842, were among the important acts of Tyler's administration. He afterward joined the confederate cause, and was a member of the confederate congress at his death, which occurred at Richmond, Va., 1862.

Tyndale, William, English divine, was born in Gloucestershire, about 1484. He studied at both Oxford and Cambridge. Having become impressed with the importance of giving to the English people the Bible in their own language, he devoted himself to that work in private for many years; until, in 1523, finding it no longer safe to prosecute his labors in his own country, he sailed for Hamburg and from that port proceeded to Wittenberg. There he completed his version of the new testament, which was published at Antwerp, 1526. He then undertook a translation of the old testament, in which he was assisted by Miles Coverdale. Executed by Henry VIII. for heresy, 1536.

Tyndall, John, British physicist, was born in County Carlow, Ireland, 1820. He published lectures on Light, Sound, and Heat, a Mode of Motion, are well known; he also wrote on glaciers, the physics of crystals and many essays on other subjects. He was, however, best known as a popular exponent of physical science. Died, 1893.

Uhland (ōō'länt), Johann Ludwig, German poet, was born at Tübingen, 1787, and studied at the University of his native city. He began to publish ballads and other lyrics in various periodicals, collected under the title of Gedichte, in 1815. It is on these and his songs, such as Der gute Kamerad and Das Schloss am Meer, that his fame rests. He died at Tübingen, 1862.

Ulfilas (ul'fi-làs), translator of the Bible into Gothic, was born about 311. He was made bishop in 341. Familiar with Latin, Greek and Gothic, and accustomed to write in each of them, he rendered the whole Bible, with the exception of Kings, into Gothic. Died, 381.

Ulrich, Edward Oscar (1857—), is perhaps the most eminent palaeontologist in America. He has assisted on many textbooks, geological journals. Geologist, U. S. Geological Survey since 1897; associate in paleontology U. S. National Museum since 1914.

Untermyer, Samuel, American lawyer, was born in Lynchburg, Va., 1858. He was educated at the college of the City of New York, and was admitted to the bar, 1879. He has since practiced in New York; member of the law firm of Guggenheimer, Untermyer and Marshall.

Urban VIII., Pope, 1623-44, the successor of Gregory XV., whose family name was Maffeo Barberini, was born at Florence in 1568. He was the founder of the celebrated College of the Propaganda and to him Rome is indebted for many public works, including large and important additions to the vatican library. He died in 1644 and was succeeded by Innocent X.

Usher (ush'ĕr), James, Irish prelate, theologian and scholar, was born 1580. In 1607 he was chosen to the chair of divinity in the University of Dublin, a post which he held for thirteen years. In 1623 he was constituted privy councilor of Ireland, and two years later was raised to the highest ecclesiastical dignity in the kingdom, the archbishopric of Armagh. Died, 1656.

Valentino, Rudolph, actor, was born in Castellaneta, Italy, in 1895. He came to the United States in 1913, and began his career as a dancer. He subsequently entered musical comedy, and finally moving pictures, scoring triumphs in The Four Horsemen, Camille, The Sheik, Blood and Sand, Monsieur Beaucaire, The Eagle's Feather. Died, 1926.

Van Alstyne, Mrs. Frances Jane. See Crosby, Fannie.

Van Buren, Martin, American statesman, eighth president of the United States, was born in Kinderhook, N. Y., 1782. In 1821 Van Buren entered the United States senate, and was reëlected in 1827. In 1830 he took office as secretary of state in President Jackson's cabinet, resigning the same in April of the following year; and in 1836 became the successful democratic candidate for the presidency. During his tenure of office occurred the financial crisis of 1837, and the suspension of specie payments by the banks. Died, 1862.

Vanderbilt, Cornelius, American capitalist, was born near Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y., 1794. He early engaged in steamboat transportation between Staten Island and New York. In 1864 he withdrew his capital from shipping and invested it in railroads. In 1861 he presented the steamship Vanderbilt to the U. S. government to be used for the capture of confederate privateers, and in 1872 founded Vanderbilt University at Nashville, Tenn. which he gave about $1,000,000. Died, 1877.

Vanderbilt, George Washington, capitalist, was born at New Dorp, Staten Island, N. Y., 1862; presented New York College for the training of teachers, its site on Morningside Heights, adjoining site selected for Columbia College; and presented American fine arts society of New York the room in their building known as the Vanderbilt gallery. Died, 1914.

Vanderbilt, William Kissam, capitalist, was born in Staten Island, 1849. He received an academic education, and studied several years in Geneva, Switzerland. He subsequently learned railroading and became second vice-president of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, 1877-83; was chairman of the board of directors of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway, beginning 1883; and officer or director in numerous railway and financial corporations. Died, 1920.

Vanderlip, Frank Arthur, banker, president of the National City Bank, New York, beginning 1908, was born in Aurora, Ill., 1864. He studied at the University of Illinois and University of Chicago; assistant secretary of the treasury, 1897-1901; and vice-president of National City Bank, New York, 1901-08; is trustee of Carnegie foundation; member of council of New York University. Author: Chicago Street Railways; The American Commercial Invasion of Europe, etc.

Vanderlyn, John, American painter, was born at Kingston, N. Y., 1775. He studied painting under Gilbert Stuart. The Landing of Columbus, placed in the rotunda of the national capitol and engraved on the five dollar note, was designed by Vanderlyn. He died at Kingston, N. Y., 1852.

Van Devanter, Willis, jurist, associate justice, United States Supreme court, was born at Marion, Ind., 1859; was educated at Indiana Asbury (now DePauw) University, 1875-8; LL.B., Cincinnati law school, 1881. Practiced law at Marion, 1881-4, Cheyenne, Wyoming, from 1884; commissioner to revise Wyoming Statutes, 1886; city attorney, 1887-8; member Territorial Legislature (chairman judiciary committee), 1888; chief justice Supreme Court of Wyoming, 1889-90; assistant attorney-general of United States (assigned to Dept. Interior), 1897-1903; United States circuit judge, 8th Judicial Circuit, 1903-10; associate justice United States Supreme court since 1910. Professor equity pleading and practice, 1898-1903, equity jurisprudence, 1902-3, Columbian (now George Washington) University.

Van Dyck, or Vandyke, Sir Anthony, Flemish painter, was born in Antwerp, 1599. In 1632 he became court painter to Charles I. of England. His Christ on the Cross at Antwerp is his greatest historical work, and his full-length picture of Charles I. on Horseback, now at Warwick castle, his best example of portraiture. Died, 1641.

Van Dyke, Henry Jackson, American educator and writer, was born in Germantown, Pa., in 1852. He was graduated at Princeton University in 1873, at the Princeton Theological Seminary in 1877; pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York, 1883-1900. Professor of English literature, Princeton, 1900-13 and 1917-23; minister to Holland, 1913-17. Author: The Reality of Religion; The Gospel for an Age of Doubt; The First Christmas Tree; The Builders, and Other Poems; Ships and Havens; Fisherman's Luck; The Poetry of the Psalms; The Friendly Year; The Blue Flower; The Open Door; The Spirit of Christmas. Died, 1933.

Van Dyke, John Charles, author, educator, art critic, was born in New Brunswick, N. J., 1856. L.H.D., Rutgers, 1899. He was admitted to the New York bar, 1877, but turned attention to literature, and beginning 1878 became librarian of the Sage library, New Brunswick, N. J., professor of history of art, Rutgers College, beginning 1889. Editor: The Studio, 1883-84; Art Review, 1887-88. Author: Books and How to Use Them; Modern French Masters; Nature for Its Own Sake; The Desert; The Meaning of Pictures; Studies in Pictures, etc.

Vane, Sir Henry, English statesman, colonial governor of Massachusetts, was born in 1612; in 1635 came to America to join the Puritans in Massachusetts. The next year he was chosen governor. In 1640 he was elected to parliament and was knighted. He was always opposed to Cromwell, and, after the latter's death, was the leader of the republican party. On the restoration of the king, Charles II., Vane was arrested, tried on a charge of high treason and condemned to die, 1662.

Van Hise (van-hīz'), Charles Richard, American educator, geologist, was born in Fulton, Wis., 1857. He graduated at the University of Wisconsin, 1879; Ph.D., LL.D.; professor mineralogy, 1888-90; professor geology, 1892-1903; president beginning 1903 of the University of Wisconsin. He was a member of many scientific societies. Author: Principles of North American Pre-Cambrian Geology; A Treatise on Metamorphism. Died, 1918.

Van Horne, Sir William Cornelius, Canadian railway official, was born in Will county, Illinois, 1843. Southern Minnesota, general manager, 1874-77, continuing as president to 1879; Chicago and Alton, general superintendent, 1877-79; Canadian Pacific, general manager, 1882-84, vice-president and general manager, 1884-88, president, 1888-99; and was chairman of the board of the Canadian Pacific railway company beginning 1899. Died, 1915.

Vasari (vä-zä'rē), Giorgio, Italian art historian, painter and architect, was born at Arezzo, 1511. His greatest service to art is his world-renowned Lives, by which we gain our chief knowledge of the artists of the Italian renaissance.

Vassar, Matthew, American philanthropist and founder of Vassar College, was born in Norfolk county, England, 1792. Four years later he accompanied his father to America and amassed a fortune. In 1861 he donated $400,000 to the institution in Poughkeepsie that became known as Vassar College. On his death, in 1868, he provided in his will for a further donation of $400,000 to Vassar.

Vauban (vō'bäN'), Sebastien le Prestre de, French marshal, one of the greatest of military engineers, was born in 1633, at Saint Leger de Foucheret, in Burgundy. He died in 1707. Vauban wrote various works, principally on fortification.

Veblen, Thorstein, educator, author, was graduated at Carleton College, 1880; Ph.D., Yale, 1884. Taught at various universities and later at school for social research, New York. Author: The Theory of the Leisure Class and The Theory of Business Enterprise. Died, 1929.

Vedder (ved'ėr), Elihu, American painter, was born at New York, 1836. He studied at Paris and in Italy, and made Rome his ultimate residence. His subjects are mostly ideal. He has illustrated Edward FitzGerald's Omar Khayyám, etc. Died, 1922.

Vega Carpio (vä'gō kär'pyō), Lope Felix de, noted Spanish dramatist, was born at Madrid, 1562. The mere list of Lope's works presents a picture of unparalleled mental activity. His first work of length was a poem, the Angelica. Then followed Arcadia, a story, and Dragontea, an expression of exultation, in ten cantos, over the death of the dragon. The more notable of his miscellaneous works are: the Rimas; Peregrino en su Patria, a romance; Jerusalem Conquistada, an epic in competition with Tasso; a collection of lighter verse, with the Gatomaquia, a mock-heroic; and Dorotea, in form a prose drama, the story of his own early love adventures. Died, 1635.

Velasquez, (vā-lä'kath), Diego Rodriguez de Silva y, greatest of Spanish painters and one of the greatest of all painters, was born in Seville. 1599. He studied under Herrera, then under Pacheco, whose daughter he married and at whose house he met Cervantes and other notables.

In 1623 Olivares, the great minister, invited him to Madrid, and persuaded the king to sit for his portrait. Velasquez then became the favorite of Philip IV.; was elected court painter, and held various offices at court. In his own country his influence was not wide; but he has become the dominating influence of schools of French, English and American artists of to-day.

In 1623 Charles I. of England, then Prince of Wales, sat to him. In 1630, by the advice of Rubens, he visited Italy, and in Venice he studied Tintoretto. In 1648 he again went to Italy, commissioned by Philip to buy pictures in order to form a Spanish academy. While in Rome he painted the magnificent portrait of Innocent X. On his return he was made marshal of the court. It was in fulfilment of this office during the conference at Irun, on the "Island of Pheasants," that he caught the fever from which he died, 1660.

A superb colorist, an admirable draughtsman, intensely truthful in his statements, synthetic in the approach to and handling of his subject, he selected the salient characteristics of the person or scene, and eliminated all non-essentials; he had a keen sense of the unity of impression, emphasized by a carefully realized harmony of color. His best works are to be found in Madrid; but fine examples are to be seen of him in Rome, the Louvre, and the National Gallery, London. His Venus With a Mirror was bought by the National Gallery in 1906 for $225,000. His most famous pictures are: The Water Carrier; Expulsion of the Moriscos; Surrender of Breda; Maids of Honor; The Topers; Forge of Vulcan; and Portrait of Philip IV.

References.—Stevenson's Velasquez; Stirling-Maxwell's Velasquez and His Works; Curtis' Velasquez and Murillo; Bernete's Velasquez; and Hinde's Days with Velasquez.

Vendome (vāN'dōm'), Louis Joseph, Duc de, French general, was born at Paris, 1654, and saw his first service in the Dutch campaign of 1672. In 1702 he fought an undecided battle with Prince Eugene at Luzzara, then burst into the Tyrol, returning to Italy to check the united Savoyards and Austrians. The defeat at Oudenarde, 1708, cost him his command, but in 1710 he was sent to Spain to aid Philip V. His appearance turned the tide of diaster; he brought the king back to Madrid, and defeated the English at Brihuega. He died at Tinaroz, in Valencia, 1712.

Verdi (vär'dē), Giuseppe, Italian operatic composer, was born in 1813, at Rancola, in the duchy of Parma. He was a member of the Italian parliament in 1860 and senator in 1875. He was a member of many artistic societies and was decorated by the rulers of Russia and Egypt. His works comprise a long list of popular favorites, including Ernani, Rigoletto, Il Trovatore, La Traviata, Aida, Othello, etc. He died at Milan, 1901.

Verestchagin (vye-re-shchä'gin), Vassili, Russian painter, was born in 1842, at Tcherepovetz, in Novgorod. In 1884 he made a journey to India, Syria and Palestine; and produced a series of pictures of the life of Christ. He painted gigantic pictures of the execution of mutinous sepoys by English soldiers and of nihilists by the Russian authorities. He was blown up on Makaroff's flagship off Port Arthur, 1904.

Vergil, or Virgil, full name, Publius Vergilius Maro, the most distinguished epic, didactic and pastoral poet of ancient Rome, was born at Andes (probably Pietola), a little village near Mantua, 70 B. C. His father possessed a farm there, which he cultivated himself, and Vergil received a good education.

He appears to have gone to Rome about 41 or 40 B. C., when his estate was lost at the time of the agrarian division. It was restored to him, however, on application to Augustus, who henceforward became his patron. He also enjoyed the patronage of Mæcenas, and was intimate with Horace. His health was delicate, and his retiring nature led him to reside for the most part outside Rome, either at Tarentum or Naples.

His Eclogues, a series of bucolic, or pastoral poems, were written about 41-39 B. C. His Georgics, a poem on agriculture, was completed in B. C. 31. The Aeneid, an epic in twelve books on the fortunes of Æneas, was probably begun about B. C. 29. It occupied the author many years and never received his finishing touches.

In B. C. 20 Vergil appears to have engaged in a tour in Greece. But Augustus, having arrived at Athens on his return from the East, Virgil determined to accompany him home, At Megara, however, he fell sick, and he died at Brundusium, B. C. 19.

His poems exhibit a remarkable command of language, and great taste and skill in the management of all the materials of poetry. He is unrivalled in beauty of vertification. He was amiable and modest, free from envy and jealousy, and of irreproachable character. Mediæval legends represent him as a benevolent enchanter, in which character many stories were current regarding him in Italy.

References.—Translations have been made into English verse by Dryden, Palmer (Bucolics), Bowen (Bucolocs and Æneid), Conington (Æneid), Morris (Æneid), and into English prose by Conington and Mackail. See also Nettleship's Introduction to the Study of Vergil and Ancient Lives of Vergil; Sellar's Roman Poets of the Augustan Age; Tunison's Master Vergil; Boissier's The Country of Horace and Vergil; and Leland's Legends of Vergil.

Verne (vern), Jules, French author, was born at Nantes, 1828. He studied law, but turned to literature, producing his Cinq semaines en ballon in 1863. Among his works are: Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea; Around the World in Eighty Days; From the Earth to the Moon. Died, 1905.

Vernet (ver'ne'), Emile Jean Horace, French battle painter, was born in Paris, 1789. He studied under Moreau and Vincent, and achieved a success hitherto unequaled as a painter of battles. In 1842 he was made commander of the legion of honor, and declined the rank of baron. He died in 1863.

Veronese (vā'rō-nā'sā), Paolo. See Cagliari, Paolo.

Verrazano (ver'rät-sä'nō), Giovanni da, Florentine navigator, was born at Florence, Italy, about 1480, and died, probably, about 1527—being executed as a pirate, it is said, in New Castile. It was on a second voyage to the new world, in 1527, that it is alleged he was captured by Spaniards and hanged as a corsair.

Vesalius (vē-sā'li-us), Andreas, Belgain anatomist and physician, was born in Brussels in 1514. He died in 1564, in Zante, where he had been wrecked on his return from Jerusalem. His great work was De Corporis Humani Fabrica.

Vespasian (ves-pā'zhi-an), Titus Flavius Vespasianus, Roman emperor from 70 to 79, was born 9 A. D. In the reign of Claudius he was appointed to a military command in Britain, when he conquered the Isle of Wight. After the death of Vitellius he was proclaimed emperor by the soldiers; and the widsom, moderation, and firmness of his reign showed the propriety of the choice. The most important events of the reign were the destructure of Jerusalem by Titus, A. D. 70, and the conquest of North Wales and the island of Anglesea by Agricola. Died, 79.

Vespucci (ves-pōōt'chē), Amerigo, Italian navigator, was born at Florence, 1451. In 1497 he embarked at Cadiz in one of a fleet of five ships commanded by Alonso de Hojeda, and after thirty-seven days' sailing reached America, coasted along the continent for several hundred leagues, and returned to Spain the same year. In 1506 he was recalled to the court of Spain, and two years afterward was appointed chief pilot, which office he retained until his death in 1512.

Vlaud (vyō), Louis Marie Julien, "Pierre Loti," French writer, was born at Rochefort, 1850. He traveled extensively and produced, in 1879, his first work of importance, Aziyadé, a series of pictures of life on the Bosphorus. This was followed by Le Mariage de Loti; Le Livre de la Pitie et de la Mort; Fantôme d'Orient; L'Inde sans les Anglais; Madame Prune, etc. Died, 1922.

Victor Emmanuel II., first king of modern Italy, was born at Turin, 1820. With the help of the French, the battles of Solferino and Magenta were fought against Austria, but the peace of Villafranca between Austria and France left Italy still distant from its hoped for unity. But Tuscany, Modena, Parma, and the Romagna voted for annexation to Sardinia, and the Prussian alliance in 1866 gave Venice to Italy. The French withdrew from Rome, and on December 31, 1870, Victor Emmanuel entered Rome and became king of a united Italy. He reigned eight years, dying at Rome, 1878.

Victoria, Alexandrina, queen of Great Britain and Ireland, empress of India, born in 1819, died in 1901; she succeeded to the throne in 1837. In 1840 she married Albert, prince of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, who died in 1861, and by whom she had nine children. She assumed title of empress of India in 1877. The chief events of her reign were the establishment of the penny post; the repeal of the corn laws; the annexation of the Punjaub; the Crimean war; the Indian mutiny, followed by the assumption of sovereignty over India; the second and third reform bills; wars in Afghanistan, China, South Africa and Egypt; and the Fenian and home rule agitations in Ireland. Queen Victoria was strictly impartial in the party politics of her reign, and was remarkable for her wisdom, knowledge of foreign affairs, unselfishness and uprightness of character. Died, 1901.

Vigny (vēn'yē'). Alfred Victor, Comte de, French poet and novelist, was born at Loches, France, 1799. In 1822 he published anonymously a small volume of verse. After 1830 he published chiefly works in prose, including Stello; Grandeur et Servitude Militaire; and a drama, Chatterton. In 1845 he was elected to the academy. He died in 1863.

Villa, Francisco, revolutionist, born at Las Nieves, Mexico, 1877. A goatherd, of no education; later turned bandit and outlaw. Joined with Madero in revolution gainst Diaz in 1910. Served successively under Huerta and Carranza. Later led a new revolt. Remained, throughout the Mexican crisis the irrepressible and incorrigible leader of the malcontents among the lower classes. Died, 1925.

Vincent de Paul (vaN'sāN' dē pōl'), Saint, French philanthropist and ecclesiastic reformer, was born in Landes in 1576. He established a foundling hospital at Paris in 1638; organized the congregation of the Missions and instituted the order of Sisters of Charity. Died in 1660, and was canonized by Pope Clement XII. in 1737.

Vincent, John Heyl, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church and chancellor of the Chautauqua system, was born in Tuscaloosa, Ala., in 1832. S.T.D., Ohio Wesleyan and Harvard; LL.D. He was one of the founders, in 1874, of the Chautauqua assembly; founder, 1878, of the Chautauqua literary and scientific circle, and was its chancellor; in 1900 was made resident bishop in charge of European work of Methodist Episcopal church. Author: The Modern Sunday School; Studies in Young Life; Little Footprints in Bible Lands; Our Own Church; Outline History of England; Outline History of Greece; Family Worship for Every Day in the Year, etc. Died, 1920.

Vinci (dā ven'che) Leonardo da, Italian painter, was born at the village of Vinci, near Florence, 1452. He was the head of the Umbrian Lombard School of painting. Was educated in Florence, where he studied painting under Verrocchio. His unfinished Adoration of the Kings and his Medusa's Head belong to his Florentine period. In 1482 he settled in Milan and to his Milanese period are ascribed his most celebrated productions—the two versions of Our Lady of the Rocks, and The Last Supper. He also founded an academy of arts, for which he wrote Notes for a Treatise on Painting.

Owing to the French occupation of Milan, in 1499, Leonardo returned to Florence and was commissioned, with Michelangelo, to decorate the council hall of the Signoria—paintings subsequently destroyed. The famous Mona Lisa, was painted in 1504. For ten years (1506-16) he spent his time between Florence, Rome and Milan, and painted his St. Anne and St. John the Baptist. Thereafter he accompanied Francis I. to France, and died 1519 in the Chateau de Cloux, Amboise, 1519.

A man of extraordinary physical beauty and of physical strength, his endless invention, his curiosity in science and his ceaseless quest after the ideal and the marvelous are reasons for the small number of pictures finished by him. Of these, the Last Supper is practically destroyed through his experimentation with oil methods. But he created a symbolical type of ideal female beauty, subtle, enigmatic, with the mysterious smile that has haunted and perplexed his students of succeeding generations.

References.—Brown's The Life of Leonardo da Vinci; Rio's Léonard de Vinci et son Ecole; Heaton and Black's Léonardo da Vinci and His Works; Houssaye's Histoire de Léonard de Vinci; Richter's Literary Works of Leonardo da Vinci.

Vinogradoff (vē'nō-grä'dôf), Paul, Russian educator and writer, professor of jurisprudence, Oxford University, beginning 1903, was born at Kostroma, Russia, 1854. He resigned his chair in consequence of a conflict with bureaucratic authorities and settled in England, where he resumed his interrupted studies in English social and legal history. He was elected Corpus professor of jurisprudence in 1903. Author: Villainage in England; Inquiries in the Social History of England; English Society in the Eleventh Century, etc. Died, 1925.

Virchow (fēr'kō), Rudolf, German pathologist, was born in Prussia, 1821. He was a member of the Prussian diet, 1862-1902; of the German Reichstag, 1880-93; became leader of the liberal opposition in the Prussian diet. In 1878 he retired from public life. His master work was Cellular Pathology, which laid the foundation of that branch of science. Died, 1902.

Virgil. See Vergil.

Vittoria Colonna. See Colonna.

Vladimir (vlä-dyē'mēr) the Great, Russian emperor, who reigned from 980 to 1015. He added largely to the kingdom by conquest, but is best known for the introduction of Christianity into the empire. He died in 1015.

Volta (vōl'tä), Alessandro, Italian physicist, was born at Como, 1745. He invented the voltaic arc, electrophore, electroscope, and condenser; discovered several new properties in electricity; and was for thirty years professor of natural philosophy at Pavia. Died, 1827.

Voltaire (vōltar'), the assumed name of Francois Marie Arouet, French poet, historian and philosopher, and the most celebrated writer of the eighteenth century, was born at Chatenay, near Paris, 1694; died there, 1778. His father was Francois Arouet, a notary, and he was destined for the legal profession, but abandoned the law for letters.

In 1718 a tragedy named Oedipe was brought out by him, and was a great success. It is said that this play was finished, and that two cantos of his epic the Henriade were written in the Bastille, where he was confined from May, 1717, to April, 1718, for writing certain satirical verses on the regent. It was about this time that he adopted the name of Voltaire. In 1726 he was again imprisoned in the Bastille for sending a challenge to the Chevalier Rohan, by whom he had been grossly insulted. He was liberated within a month, and went to England on the invitation of Lord Bolingbroke. Here he resided till 1729 and acquired some knowledge of English literature. His Henriade was completed and published by subscription in England.

After his return to France he lived chiefly at Paris till 1734. During this period he raised himself from very moderate circumstances to a condition of affluence by successful monetary speculations. From 1734 to 1749 he resided with the Marchioness de Chatelet at Cirey, in Lorraine. She died in 1749, and Voltaire then accepted the oft repeated invitations of Frederick the Great to come and live at his court at Potsdam. Here he was received with great honor, but a series of disagreements with the king ended in Voltaire's retirement from the Prussian court in 1753. He then resided for a short time at Strasburg, Colmar, and Lyons, removing at the end of 1754 to Geneva. For almost the whole of the remainder of his life he lived in Switzerland, or close to its borders.

In 1760 or 1761 he fixed his residence with his niece, Madame Denis, at Ferney, where he received a constant succession of distinguished visitors, and maintained a correspondence which included in its range most of the crowned heads of Europe. In 1778 he went to Paris, where he was received with enthusiasm by all classes. But the excitement of the occasion hastened his death.

His works embrace almost every branch of literature; poetry, the drama, romance, history, philosophy, and even science. Hatred of fanaticism and superstitution was his chief characteristic, and nearly all his works are strongly animated by a spirit of hostility to the religion of his age. He upheld theism, however, with as much zeal as he denounced Christianity and priestcraft.

Voltaire's literary fame chiefly rests on his philosophical novels: Zadig. Candide, L'Ingénu, etc; his histories: Siecle de Louis XIV., Histoire de Charles XII; his correspondence, and more than all, perhaps, on his poetical epistles, satires, and occasional light poems, which all exhibit wit, gaiety, vivacity and grace. Several of his tragedies, such as Zaire, Alzire, Merope and Mahomet, had great success in their day, but are not assigned a high place in French literature. His comedies, the best of which is L'Enfant Prodigue, were less successful. His Henriade, an epic poem, had great success, and exercised a powerful influence when it first appeared, but is not highly esteemed now.

References.—The best Lives are those by Desnoiresterres, James Parton and Tallentyre. See also Morley's Voltaire; biographies by Hamley, Espinasse, and Lounsbury's Shakespeare and Voltaire.

Wade, Benjamin Franklin, American statesman, was born at Springfield, Mass., 1800. He studied law in Ohio, becoming United States senator in 1851, 1857 and 1863. He opposed all the measures proposed as compromises between the North and the South, and was influential in getting the homestead bill through congress. After the death of President Lincoln, Wade was acting vice-president of the United States. Died at Jefferson, Ohio, 1878.

Wadlin, Horace Greeley, librarian of Boston public library, was born at Wakefield, Mass., 1851; Litt.D.; began practice as an architect in Boston, 1875. He was a member of the Massachusetts house of representatives, 1884-88; supervisor of United States census, 1895-1900. Author: Annual Statistics of Manufactures of Massachusetts, 1886-1901; The Decennial Census of Massachusetts for 1895, etc. Died, 1925.

Wagner, Wilhelm Richard, the most celebrated of modern composers, was born at Leipzig 1813, died at Venice, 1883. He received his education at Leipzig and Dresden. From 1834 he filled various musical engagements at Magdeburg, Riga and Königsberg. In 1839-41 he went to Paris and London, and composed his operas Rienzi and the Flying Dutchman. The brilliant success of these operas secured him the conductorship at the royal opera of Dresden in 1843.

He joined the insurrectionary movement of 1848-49, and was compelled to exile himself. Until his return to Germany in 1864 he spent most of his time in Switzerland, Italy, Paris and London. His Tännhauser and Lohengrin appeared in 1845 and 1850, respectively. The king of Bavaria, Louis II., became an enthusiastic and liberal patron of Wagner, and the theater at Baireuth, especially built for Wagner, was chiefly supported from the king's purse. Here his famous tetralogy Der Ring des Nibelungen, consisting of Das Rheingold, Die Walkure, Siegfried, and Götterdämmerung, was first performed in 1876 before an unusually brilliant and appreciative audience.

About a year before his death he produced his last creation, Parsifal. In 1870 he had married, as second wife, Cosima von Bülow, a daughter of the Abbé Liszt. Wagner labored to reform dramatic music according to the ideas of Gluck and Weber and gave his creations a national character by selecting his subjects from old German heroic legends. His theory was that in a perfect musical drama the three arts, poetry, music and dramatic representation, should be welded together into one well balanced whole. This theory he demonstrated with consummate ability and unsurpassed magnificence. His particular views on music are embodied in a well-known work entitled Oper und Drama.

References.—Perhaps the best Life is Julien's. See also the Lives, in German, by Glasenapp, Pohl, Tapert, and Wolzogen; Krehbiel's Studies in Wagnerian Drama; Newman's A Study of Wagner; Praeger's Wagner as I Knew Him; and Hueffer's Richard Wagner and the Music of the Future.

Wainwright, Richard, American naval officer, was born at Washington, D. C., 1849. He was graduated from the Naval academy in 1868; was executive officer on the battleship Maine, when destroyed in Havana harbor, February 15, 1898. After this he did good service at the battle of Santiago as commander of the gunboat Gloucester; was superintendent of the naval academy, 1900-02; became a captain in 1903. Died, 1926.

Waite, Morrison Remick, American jurist, chief-justice of the supreme court of the United States, 1874-88, was born at Lyme, Conn., 1816. He was graduated from Yale, 1837; studied law and practiced in Ohio. He was nominated by President Grant chief-justice of the United States supreme court, 1874, and served until his death in 1888.

Waldersee (vȧl'dĕr-zā'), Count Alfred von, German general, was born in Potsdam, Prussia, 1832, and entered the German army in 1850, and was chief of the general staff in the Franco-Prussian war; succeeded Moltke as chief of staff in 1888. In 1900 he was created field-marshal, and was appointed to the chief command in China of the allied armies engaged in suppressing the Boxer disturbances. Died, 1904.

Waldstein, Charles, See Walston, Charles.

Walker, Francis Amasa, American political economist, was born at Boston, Mass., 1840. He was graduated from Amherst in 1860, took part in the Civil War, and in 1865 rose to the brevet rank of brigadier-general. From 1873 to 1881 he was professor of political economy in the Sheffield scientific school at Yale and in 1881 became president of the Massachusetts institute of technology at Boston. Author: The Indian Question; The Wages Question; Money; Bimetallism; and History of the Second Army Corps. Died, 1897.

Wallace, Alfred Russel, English naturalist and traveler, was born in Monmouthshire, England, 1822. He visited South America and the Malay archipelago, published the results of his observations on his return. Among his other works are: Contributions to the Theory of Natural Selection; Geographical Distribution of Animals, etc. Died, 1913.

Wallace, Henry Cantwell, born Rock Island, Ill., 1866. Graduate Iowa State College of Agriculture, 1892. Farmer and breeder of live stock. Editor and publisher. Secretary of Agriculture in Harding Cabinet. Died, 1924.

Wallace, John Findley, American civil engineer, was born at Fall River, Mass., 1852. He was educated at Monmouth College, C. E.; chief engineer of the Panama canal, 1904; isthmian canal commissioner, 1905; president of Electric Properties company beginning 1906. He was chairman of the board of directors of Westinghouse company. Died, 1921.

Wallace, Lewis, American general, diplomat, and author, was born at Brookville, Ind., 1827; entered the Union service during the Civil War; became a brigadier-general in 1861, and served throughout the war. He was governor of New Mexico, 1878-81, and from 1881 to 1885 was United States minister to Turkey. Author: Ben Hur, etc. Died, 1905.

Wallace, Sir William, Scottish patriot, was born about 1272. He headed the rising of 1297 against the English. The next year, however, he was defeated by Edward I. at Falkirk. After being imprisoned in France he was declared an outlaw, in 1304, was captured the next year, sent to London and hanged.

Wallenstein (vȧl'en-shtin), Albrecht Wenzel Eusebius, duke of Friedland, celebrated German general, was born in Bohemia, 1583. At the head of a formidable army, raised by him for the service of the emperor, and paid from his own resources and from unlimited plunder, he, for several years, distinguished himself by his successes in Moravia, Bohemia and northern Germany. Died, 1634.

Walpole, Horace, English author, was born in 1717, and in 1791 succeeded to the title of earl of Orford. In 1747 he purchased the famous estate of Strawberry Hill, Twickenham. In this house he collected works of art and curiosities of every description, and likewise established a private printing-press, at which several of his own works and some others were printed. He wrote: Anecdotes of Painting in England; The Castle of Otranto; and subsequently, Reminiscences of the Courts of George I. and II. He is now remembered chiefly for his Letters. Died, 1797.

Walpole, Sir Robert, English statesman, was born at Houghton, England, 1676. He was graduated from Cambridge, and entered parliament in 1701. He was secretary of war, 1708; treasurer of the navy, 1709; chancellor of the exchequer, 1715-17; and prime minister, 1721-42. He was one of the first to urge the establishment of a sinking fund for the purpose of reducing the national debt. He was an enemy of war, and a strong supporter of the Protestant succession. On his retirement in 1742 he was created earl of Orford. Died, 1745.

Walston (formerly Waldstein), Charles, American archæologist, was born in New York, 1856. He was educated at Columbia College and at Heidelberg. Slade professor of fine arts at Cambridge University, 1895-1901 and 1904-11, and professor, 1895-97, American school of classical studies, Athens, Greece. Author: Excavations at the Hereion of Argos; The Surface of Things; The Jewish Question; The Argive Heræum, etc. Died, 1927.

Walter, Thomas Ustick, American architect, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1804. In 1848 his design for the extension of the capitol at Washington, D. C., was adopted. While in Washington he also designed the extensions of the patent office, treasury and post-office buildings, the dome of the capitol, and the government hospital for the insane. He died in Philadelphia, Pa., 1887.

Walton, Izaak, English writer, was born at Stafford, England, 1593. He is chiefly remembered as the author of The Compleat Angler, or The Contemplative Man's Recreation, which was published in 1655. He was a linendraper in the city of London, first in Cornhill, and afterward in Fleet street. He was also the author of a Life of Dr. Donne; Life of Richard Hooker; Life of George Herbert. Died, 1683.

Wanamaker, John, American merchant, was born at Philadelphia, Pa., 1838. He was educated in the public schools until 1852; established, 1861, with Nathan Brown, clothing house of Wanamaker and Brown, Philadelphia; established, 1876, department store in Philadelphia, and a similar business in New York in 1896, in succession to the business of A. T. Stewart, now among the largest in the country; was postmaster-general of the United States, 1889-93. Died, 1922.

"Ward, Artemus." See Browne, Charles Farrar.

Ward, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps. See Phelps-Ward, Elizabeth Stuart.

Ward, Mrs. Humphry (Mary Augusta Arnold), English novelist, and writer, was born at Hobart, in Tasmania, 1851, daughter, Thomas Arnold, second son of Dr. Arnold of Rugby. She began early to contribute to Macmillan's Magazine. The translation of Amiel's Journal Intime, prepared the way for the spiritual romance of Robert Elsmere, in 1888. After that she published : The History of David Grieve; Marcella; The Marriage of William Ashe; Fenwick's Career; etc. Died, 1920.

Ward, John Quincy Adams, American sculptor, was born at Urbana, Ohio, 1830. From 1861 he made his home in New York. His Indian Hunter, A Private of the Seventh Regiment, and Shakespeare are in Central park, New York; his colossal statue of Washington is on the steps of the sub-treasury building in Wall street. Died, 1910.

Warfield, David, American actor, was born at San Francisco, 1866. He went to New York in 1890; played in Casino theater and Weber and Field's music hall, 1895-98; was starred by David Belasco in The Auctioneer, The Music Master, A Grand Army Man.

Warner, Charles Dudley, American author, was born at Plainfield, Mass., 1829. He was graduated at Hamilton College, 1851. In 1884 he became coëditor of Harper's Magazine, in which his papers on the South, Mexico, and the great West appeared. In 1873 he wrote with "Mark Twain" The Gilded Age. His other works include: My Summer in a Garden, etc. Died, 1900.

Warren, Francis Emroy, United States senator, was born in Hinsdale, Mass., 1844; enlisted in 1862 in the 49th Massachusetts regiment of infantry, and served as private and non-commissioned officer; early in 1838 he moved to Wyoming; was appointed governor of Wyoming by President Arthur in 1885. He was elected to the United States senate in 1890, and had been regularly reelected since 1894. Died, 1929.

Warren, Henry White, senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, was born at Williamsburg, Mass., 1831; graduated from Wesleyan University, Conn., 1853; D.D., Dickinson; LL.D., Ohio Wesleyan. Ordained M. E. ministry, 1855; pastor Worcester, Mass., 1855-7, Boston, 1857-61, Lynn, 1861-3, Westfield, 1863-5, Cambridge, 1865-8, Charlestown, 1868-71, Philadelphia, 1871-4, Brooklyn, 1874-7, Philadelphia, 1877-80; elected bishop 1880. Member Massachusetts House of Representatives, 1863. Author of Sights and Insights; Studies of the Stars; Recreation in Astronomy; The Bible in the World's Education; Among the Forces, etc. Died, 1912.

Warren, Joseph, American soldier, was born at Roxbury, Mass., 1741. He was graduated at Harvard in 1759, and became a physician in Boston, 1764. In 1774 he was a member and president of the Massachusetts congress, and chairman of the committee of public safety. He had much to do with the success at Lexington, and in 1775 was commissioned major-general; he went to Bunker Hill as a volunteer, refusing to take the chief command offered to him by both Prescott and Putnam. As he was leaving the field he was killed by a ball in the forehead, 1775.

Warren, Samuel, English novelist, was born in Denbigshire, 1807. He was recorder of Hull, 1854-74; conservative member of parliament for Midhurst, 1856-59. He is chiefly remembered by his Passage From the Diary of a Late Physician, and Ten Thousand a Year. Died, 1877.

Warwick, Richard Neville, Earl of, surnamed the "king-maker," was born about 1428. After joining the Yorkists in the commencement of the calamitous war of the Roses, and taking King Henry VI., prisoner, Warwick, following his victory of Towton, placed Edward, duke of York, on the throne, as Edward IV. He was killed in the battle of Barnet, 1471.

Washington, Booker Taliaferro, principal of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute beginning 1881, was born near Hale's Ford, Va., about 1859, the son of a mulatto slave and a white man. He was graduated from Hampton Institute, Virginia, 1875; A.M., Harvard, 1896; LL.D., Dartmouth, 1901. He was a teacher at Hampton institute until elected by the state authorities head of Tuskegee Institute. Author: Sowing and Reaping; Up From Slavery; Future of the American Negro; Character Building; Story of My Life and Work; Working With Hands; Tuskegee and Its People, etc. Died, 1915.

Washington, George, hero of American independence and first president of the United States, was born in Westmoreland county, Virginia, 1732; died at Mount Vernon, 1799. He was the great-grandson of John Washington, an Englishman, who emigrated in 1657; and the son of Augustine Washington, a substantial farmer, being the eldest of a second family.

His education was limited to the elementary subjects, but he acquired a fair knowledge of mathematics and surveying, chiefly by self-study, and when his widowed mother prevailed upon him to abandon the idea of entering the British navy, he adopted surveying as a profession.

His military career commenced at the age of nineteen, when he was appointed adjutant-general of Virginia militia; and before long he showed in operations against the French that he united in an eminent degree the qualities belonging to a successful commander, though in 1754, when in command of his regiment, he had to capitulate to a superior French force. In 1755 he accompanied General Braddock as a volunteer, and was almost the only officer who returned safe from the disastrous expedition. In 1758 he took an important part in the expedition that captured Fort Du Quesne, where, Pittsburg now stands.

In the meantime extensive estates and plantations at Mount Vernon had come into his possession through the death of his half-brother. To these possessions he added largely by marrying, in 1759, Mrs. Martha Custis, a wealthy young widow. He also sat for some years in the Virginia assembly.

Shortly after the outbreak of the war of independence, Washington was elected commander-in-chief of the American forces and hastened to the camp. His career henceforth is part of American history. He was compelled by superior forces at times to retreat, and reduced to the most desperate straits by disaffection, lack of men and supplies, and even cabals against his authority; but by his mildness, calm courage, prudence, firmness and perseverance he brought the war, with the aid of powerful allies, to a successful termination. After the independence of the thirteen colonies was achieved, he retired from the army to Mount Vernon, which he had, during the eight years of war, but once visited. He refused to accept pay, but kept a minute account of his personal expenses, which were reimbursed by Congress.

In 1784 he crossed the Alleghenies to see his lands in West Virginia, and planned the James river and Potomac canals. The shares voted him by the state he gave to endow Washington college, at Lexington, Virginia, and for a university. The early federation of states having failed to give an efficient government, Washington proposed conventions for commercial purposes, which led to the convention of 1787, of which he was a member. This body formed the present federal constitution, considered by him as the only alternative to anarchy and civil war.

Under this constitution he was chosen president, and inaugurated at New York, April 30, 1789. At the second presidential election in 1792 he desired to retire, but yielded to the solicitations of the people, and served for four years longer. In 1796 he positively declined a reelection, and on March 4, 1797, returned to Mount Vernon for the quiet of home life. In 1798, when war was threatened with France, the illustrious chief yielded to the demands of his country, and accepted the post of commanding general of the United States forces, with the rank of lieutenant-general, but a treaty of peace rendered his services unnecessary, and he again returned to his Mt. Vernon home.

On December 12, 1799, he was exposed in the saddle for several hours to cold and snow, and attacked with acute laryngitis, sunk rapidly, and died December 14. His last words were characteristic. He said: "I die hard, but I am not afraid to go." After some instructions to his secretary about his burial he became easier, felt his own pulse, and died without a struggle. He was mourned by the whole nation, and amply deserved the immortal epitaph: "First in peace, first in war, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

References.—The most important biographies of Washington are those of Marshall, Ramsay, Irving and Lodge. Editions of his collected writings have been issued by Sparks, and W. G. Ford. See also Guizot's Character and Influence of Washington; and Parker's Historic Americans.

Watson, John. See Maclaren, Ian.

Watson, Thomas E., American lawyer and politician, was born in Georgia, 1856. He was a member of the Georgia legislature, 1882-83; member of congress, 1891-93; began the publication of Tom Watson's Magazine, in New York, 1905. U. S. Senator, 1921. Author: The Story of France. Died, 1923.

Watson, William, English poet, was born at Burley-in-Whartedale, 1858; honorary LL.D., Aberdeen, 1904. His early poems were published in the Liverpool Argus in 1875, and his first book, The Prince's Quest, appeared in 1880. Since then have appeared: Epigrams of Art, Life, and Nature; Odes, and Other Poems; The Purple East; Ode on the Coronation of King Edward VII.; etc. Died, 1935.

Watt, James, Scotch engineer and, generally accredited inventor of the steam engine, was born at Greenock, 1736; and died at his seat of Heathfield, Staffordshire, 1819. His father was a merchant and magistrate of Greenock and James received a good education there. Having determined to adopt the trade of mathematical-instrument maker, he went to London in 1754, for instruction, but ill-health compelled him to return after a year's apprenticeship. Shortly after he endeavored to establish himself in Glasgow, was appointed in 1757 mathematical-instrument maker to the university and resided within its walls till 1763.

From this time till 1774 he acted as a civil engineer—made surveys for canals and harbors, and some of his plans were afterward carried out. It was during this period that he gave shape to his chief improvements on the steam engine. In order to produce the improved machine he associated himself (1775) in business with Mathew Boulton—the firm of Boulton and Watt having their engine works at Soho, Birmingham. He retired from business in 1800.

Watt was a fellow of the Royal societies of London and Edinburgh and member of the national institute of France. He was twice married, and was survived by one son, who carried on the establishment at Soho, in partnership with a son of Mr. Boulton's. Besides improving the steam engine, Watt invented or improved a variety of mechanical appliances, including a letter-copying press. Was an ardent student of chemistry, and it was long maintained on his behalf that he discovered the composition of water. He was a man of high mental powers generally and possessed a wide and varied knowledge of literature and science.

References.—Smiles' Lives of Boulton and Watt; Muirhead's Mechanical Inventions of James Watt; Thurston's The Growth of the Steam Engine; and Pemberton's James Watt.

Watterson, Henry, American journalist and orator, was born at Washington, D. C., 1840. He served with distinction in the confederate army as chief of scouts under General Joseph E. Johnston. He subsequently settled at Louisville, Ky., where he founded and edited the Courier-Journal, which he made one of the foremost democrat newspapers. At Chicago, in 1893, he delivered the dedicatory oration at the opening of the World's Columbian exposition. He published a History of the Spanish-American War; Oddities of Southern Life and Character; Abraham Lincoln, etc. Died, 1921.

Watts, George Frederick, English artist, sculptor, portrait painter, and delineator of historical subjects, was born at London, 1820. He first exhibited at the Royal academy in 1837, and gained a reputation for the size, artistic excellence and beauty of coloring of his pictures. His chief exhibits included: Caractacus; Cymbeline; Fata Morgana; Life's Allusions; Sir Galahad. Died, 1904.

Watts, Isaac, English hymn writer and theologian, was born at Southampton, England, 1674. His theological works were numerous, and his treatise on Logic had a considerable reputation. His reputation has been chiefly perpetuated by his well known hymns. Died, 1748.

Wayne, Anthony, famous general in the war of the revolution, was born in Pennsylvania, 1745. Led the attack at Germantown; captured supplies for the distressed at Valley Forge; achieved a brilliant victory in the storming of Stony Point, 1779. His courage and skill saved Lafayette in Virginia, 1780. By his dash and audacity he acquired the sobriquet of "Mad Anthony." He became major-general and commander-in-chief in 1792. Died, 1796.

Weber (vā'bĕr), Karl Maria von, German composer, was born at Eutin near Lübeck, 1786, of a famed musical family. His first great production was Der Freischütz, which established his fame, and was followed by Oberon, his masterpiece; Das Waldmädchen, etc. Died, 1826.

Webster, Daniel, great American statesmen and orator, was born at Salisbury, New Hampshire, 1782. Daniel was the second son of Ebenezer Webster, a small farmer and justice of the county court. He entered Dartmouth College in 1797, and taught school in winter to pay his expenses. He graduated in 1801, and in 1804, went to Boston, and entered the law office of Mr. Gore. In 1805 he was admitted to the Boston bar, passed one year in the practice of his profession at Boscawen and, on the death of his father, established himself at Portsmouth, N. H., and married in 1808.

Having engaged in politics as a member of the federalist party, he was elected to congress, where he immediately took rank with the foremost men of the country. He took his seat in the special session of May, 1813, and on June 10, delivered his maiden speech on the repeal of the Berlin and Milan decrees. This, and his mastery of the question of currency and finance, secured him a high position. At the close of the session, however, Webster removed to Boston, where, during a period of seven years, he devoted himself exclusively to the practice of his profession, and occupied a preeminent position as a counsellor and advocate.

In 1822, he was a member of the Massachusetts constitutional convention; and on December 22, 1822, he pronounced at Plymouth, on the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims, the first of that remarkable series of discourses, or orations, which put him in the first rank among American orators. In 1825, he delivered an oration at the laying of the corner stone of the Bunker Hill monument; in 1843, one on its completion. In 1826, he pronounced the eulogy of John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, two fathers and presidents of the American republic, who died on the same semi-century anniversary of the declaration of independence; and in 1851, a patriotic discourse on the laying of the corner stone for the extension of the capitol at Washington.

In 1822 he was elected to Congress from Boston and distinguished himself by his speeches on the holy alliance and the Greek revolution and his labors in the revision of the criminal laws of the United States. In 1826 he was chosen United States senator; and in 1830 rose to the height of his forensic renown in a speech of two days, in the debate with Mr. Hayne, of South Carolina, on the right of "nullification." Webster and Clay were the leaders of the opposition during the administrations of Jackson and Van Buren.

In 1841 he became secretary of state under President Harrison; remained in the administration of President Tyler until 1843; and was a third time secretary of state in 1850, in the cabinet of Mr. Fillmore. On various occasions Webster had been an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency. He aspired again to that position in 1852, but his advocacy of compromises on the slavery question had given offense to the abolitionists, and the choice of the convention assembled at Baltimore fell upon General Scott. The great orator died a few months after, October 24, 1852.

Webster's figure was commanding; his countenance was remarkable even in repose, but when animated by the excitement of debate, it "spake no less audibly than his words." His gestures were vehement, without being undignified; and his voice was unrivalled in power, in clearness and in modulated variety of tone.

References.—The Writings and Speeches of Daniel Webster have been published in 18 volumes and his Works in 6 volumes. See also Curtis' Life of Daniel Webster; Harvey's Reminiscences of Daniel Webster; Lodge's Daniel Webster; McMaster's Daniel Webster; Wheeler's Daniel Webster, the Expounder of the Constitution.

Webster, John, English dramatist, was born about 1580. He collaborated with a number of writers of the period, and then produced the tragedy of The White Devil, one of his two great masterpieces, about 1610; and about 1616 his famous Duchess of Malfy. He died about 1625.

Webster, Noah, author and philologist, was born at Hartford, Conn., 1758, and was educated at Yale College; admitted to the bar in 1781. While employed in teaching at Goshen, N. Y., he prepared his Grammatical Institutes of the English Language. In 1807 he published A Philosophical and Practical Grammar of the English Language, and commenced his American Dictionary of the English Language; but finding difficulties in etymology, he devoted ten years to its study, and prepared a Synopsis of Words in Twenty Languages; then began his dictionary anew, and in seven years completed it. Died in New Haven, Conn., 1843.

Weed, Thurlow, American journalist, was born at Cairo, N. Y., 1797. He served as a volunteer in the war of 1812. In 1865 he moved to New York city and became editor of the New York Times, and afterward of the Commercial Advertiser. In 1861-62 he was sent to Europe on a special mission by President Lincoln. Died at New York in 1882.

Weeks, John Wingate, born Lancaster, N. H., 1860. Graduate U. S. Naval Academy, 1881. Member 59th to 62nd Congresses. U. S. Senator, 1915-1919. Member Society of the Cincinnati. Secretary of War in Harding Cabinet. Died, 1926.

Weismann (vīs'mān), August, German biologist, was born at Frankfort, 1834. He contended that natural selection was the dominant factor in evolution. He published, besides the Romanes lectures of 1894, The Evolution Theory and works on kindred problems. Died, 1914.

Welch, William Henry, American physician and pathologist, professor of pathology at Johns Hopkins, was born at Norfolk, Conn., 1850. He was graduated from Yale in 1870; M.D.; LL.D.; professor of pathology, Johns Hopkins, 1884-1916; director, School of Hygiene and Public Health beginning 1916, and pathologist to the Johns Hopkins hospital, 1889-1916. Author of General Pathology of Fever.

Wellington, Arthur Wellesley, Duke of, celebrated British general, was born at Dangan Castle, Ireland, 1769; entered the army as ensign in 1787, and became lieutenant-colonel in 1793. He was then appointed commander of the British forces on the continent of Europe, and from Vienna joined the army at Brussels. The battles of Ligny and Quatre Bras were succeeded on June 18, 1815, by the great battle of Waterloo. In 1827 he succeeded the duke of York as commander-in-chief of the British army, and from 1828 to 1830 was prime minister. Died, at Walmer Castle, in 1852.

Wells, Carolyn, author, was born at Rahway, N. J., daughter of William E. Wells; and has been engaged in literary work beginning 1895. Author: At the Sign of the Sphinx; The Gordon Elopement; Marjorie's Vacation; Rainy Day Diversions, etc.

Wells, David Ames, American economist, was born at Springfield, Mass., 1828. He was graduated from Williams College. Among his published works are text-books on Science of Common Things; Recent Economic Changes; The Principles of Taxation; Our Merchant Marine. Died at Norwich, Conn., 1898.

Wells, Herbert George, English novelist, was born at Bromley, Kent, 1866. He was graduated at the Royal college of science, 1888. Author: The Time Machine; The Stolen Bacillus and Other Stories; The Invisible Man; The Food of the Gods; In the Days of the Comet; The War in the Air, etc.

Wendell, Barrett, American educator, writer, and critic, professor of English at Harvard, was born at Boston, 1855. He was graduated at Harvard, 1877; professor beginning 1898, and lecturer at the Sorbonne and other French Universities, 1904-05. Author: English Composition; Life of Cotton Mather; Stilligeri and Other Essays Concerning America; The Temper of the Seventeenth Century in English Literature; History of Literature in America; The France of To-day, etc. Died, 1921.

Wenley, Robert Mark, American educator, head of philosophical department, University of Michigan, since 1896, was born at Edinburgh, Scotland, 1861. He was graduated at the University of Glasgow, M.A., 1884; Ph.D., Sc.D., LL.D. Author: Socrates and Christ; Aspects of Pessimism; co-editor Dictionary of Philosophy, etc. Joint editor: The Psychological Review. Died, 1929.

Werner (ver'nĕr), Abraham Gottlob, German mineralogist and geologist, was born at Wehrau, in upper Lusatia, 1750. In 1792 he was appointed councilor of mines in Saxony, and his lectures soon extended his reputation throughout Europe. In his mineralogical system minerals were distinguished and arranged chiefly according to their external characters. He died at Dresden in 1817.

Wesley, Charles, English hymn writer, was born at Epworth, England, 1708, and was associated with his brother John in the whole Methodist movement. He is the author of a great number of hymns, many of which are among the best and most admired in the English language. He died in 1788.

Wesley, John, English divine, who, with Whitefield, founded Methodism, was born at Epworth, 1703. In 1730, while at Oxford University, he and his brother, with a few other students, formed themselves into a society for the purpose of mutual edification in religious exercises. So singular an association excited considerable notice, and, among other names bestowed upon the members, that of Methodists was applied to them. Wesley with some others, chiefly Moravians, came to Georgia in 1735, but the strictness of discipline which he attempted to introduce proved very distasteful to the colonists. After a residence of less than two years in America he returned to England, preaching to open air meetings, and gathered many followers. He built spacious meeting houses in London, Bristol and other places.

For some time he was associated with George Whitefield; but, differences arising on account of the doctrine of election, which was zealously espoused and preached by the latter, they separated, and the Methodists were denominated according to their respective leaders.

Wesley was indefatigable in his labors, and was almost continually engaged in traveling over England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland. No man ever labored more zealously or continuously in the cause which he had undertaken. Every moment of his life was devoted to the organization of the great sect of Methodists, and he preserved his influence over it to the last. His preaching was extemporaneous, but not vehement. He dwelt much upon practical religion, though he taught his followers to seek inspiration of the Holy Spirit, and to aspire to a state of sinless perfection. Died in London, 1791.

References.—Perhaps Wesley's best single treatises were his Notes on the Old and New Testaments, and his Doctrine of Original Sin. His complete Works, with a Life by T. Beecham, and preface by J. J. Jackson, has been published in 15 volumes. Lives of John Wesley have been written by Southey, Tyerman, Wedgwood, Telford, Overton, Snell and Winchester. See also Wesley and his Century, by Dr. Fitchett.

West, Benjamin, American painter, was born at Springfield, Pa., 1738. He began to paint at seven years of age, worked in Philadelphia and New York, studied in Italy, 1760-63, and settled in England in the latter year. Among his best paintings are: The Death of Wolfe; Christ Healing the Sick; Death on the Pale Horse, etc. Died in London in 1820.

Westcott, Brooke Foss, English prelate, writer and biblical scholar, was born near Birmingham in 1825; regius professor of divinity at Cambridge and in 1890 was appointed bishop of Durham. His writings embrace: History of the Canon of the New Testament; The Gospel of Life; Social Aspects of Christianity; Characteristics of the Gospel Miracles; The New Testament in the Original Greek. Died, 1901.

Westinghouse, George, American inventor and manufacturer, was born in New York in 1846. In 1868 invented and successfully introduced the Westinghouse air-brake, which he later greatly improved. He was the pioneer in introducing alternating current machinery in America; built the great generators at Niagara Falls and those for elevated railway and rapid transit system in New York. Died, 1914.

Weygand, M. General, French strategist; shared with Foch the glory of defending the Lorraine front. After the war he was ordered to Poland and by his distinctive strategy saved Poland from the incursions of Russia.

Wheatstone, Sir Charles, English physicist and electrician, was born at Gloucester, England, 1802. Invented the telegraph thermometer and barometer; secured first patent for an electric telegraph; and an apparatus for conveying instructions to engineers and steersmen on board large steam-vessels. He is well known for the Wheatstone bridge. Died, 1875.

Wheeler, Benjamin Ide, American educator and philologist, president of the University of California, 1899-1919, was born at Randolph, Mass., 1854. He was graduated at Brown University, 1875; Ph.D., LL.D., Harvard, 1900; professor of Greek, 1888, at Cornell. Now president emeritus and professor comparative philology, University of California. Author: The Greek Noun-Accent; Analogy in Language; Organization of Higher Education in the United States. Died, 1927.

Wheeler, Joseph, American general was born in Augusta, Ga., 1836. He was graduated at the United States military academy in 1859; served in the cavalry until the outbreak of the Civil War, when he entered the confederate army, in which he was later commissioned major-general and senior commander of cavalry; was made major-general of volunteers during the Spanish-American war in 1898; appointed brigadier-general in the United States army, 1900, and was retired in September. Died, 1906.

Whistler, James Abbott McNeill, noted American painter, was born in Lowell, Mass., 1834. He entered the United States military academy, but was dismissed; studied drawing and painting in Paris, France, and in 1863 settled in London, England. He gained celebrity as an etcher. His paintings include many portraits, among which are: The White Girl; Portrait of My Mother; Nocturne in Blue and Gold. Died, 1903.

White, Andrew Dickson, American diplomatist and educator, was born in Homer, N. Y., 1832. He was graduated at Yale in 1853. He was appointed by President Hayes, minister to Berlin, 1879-81; by President Harrison, minister to St. Petersburg, and continued under President Cleveland, 1892-94; appointed member of the Venezuelan commission, 1896-97; ambassador to Berlin under President McKinley, 1897-1902; and was president of the American delegation to the international peace congress at The Hague in 1899. He wrote Warfare of Science With Theology; Studies in General History, etc. Died, 1918.

White, Edward Douglas, American jurist, was born in the parish of Lafourche, La., 1845. He was educated at Mount St. Mary's College, Maryland, and at the Jesuit College in New Orleans. During the Civil War he served in the confederate army. United States senator in 1891-94; he was appointed associate justice of the United States supreme court in 1894 and chief justice, 1910. Died, 1921.

White, Henry, diplomat, was born at Baltimore, 1850. He was educated by private tutors and schools. He has represented the United States in England, Austria, Italy, Morocco, France, Argentina and Chile. Died, 1927.

White, Horace, American journalist, was born in Colebrook, N. H., 1834. He was graduated at Beloit College, Wis., 1853; from 1883 to 1903 was connected with the New York Evening Post, as president of the company, editorial writer and editor-in-chief. Author: Money and Banking Illustrated by American History; The Roman History of Appian, etc. Died, 1916.

White, Richard Grant, American author and critic, was born in New York City, 1821. He was educated at the college of the City of New York. The result of his studies and writings on music and art was a volume on Christian Art. His other works include: National Hymns; Poetry of the Civil War; Life of Shakespeare; Studies in Shakespeare, etc. Died, 1885.

White, Stewart Edward, author, was born in Grand Rapids, Mich., 1873; Ph.B., University of Michigan, 1895. He is a frequent contributor to magazines, and author of The Westerners; The Blazed Trail; The Forest; Blazed Trail Stories; The Pass; Camp and Trail.

White, William Allen, American journalist and author, owner and editor of the Emporia Daily and Weekly Gazette, was born 1868. Author: The Real Issue, and Other Stories; Stratagems and Spoils; A Certain Rich Man, etc.

Whitefield, George (1714-1770), born in Gloucester, and educated at Oxford, was one of the founders of Methodism. He made several visits to America, a number of which lasted two or three years.

Whitlock, Brand, lawyer, diplomat, born in Urbana, Ohio, 1869, began his career as a newspaper reporter, then as a clerk. Studied law and was admitted to the bar, 1894. Twice elected Mayor of Toledo on the Independent ticket, he secured many reforms. In 1913 was appointed U. S. Minister to Belgium, where he made a strenuous but futile intercession for Edith Cavell. Ambassador, 1919-1922. Brown University conferred a degree of LL.D. upon him in 1916, and the Ohio Wesleyan in 1917.

Whitman, Walt (1819-1892), American poet, was born at Westhills, L. I. A printer by trade, he wrote for newspapers and magazines, and later became editor of the Brooklyn Eagle. He wrote Democratic Vistas; Two Rivulets; and Specimen Days and Collect.

Whitney, Eli, American inventor, was born in Westborough, Mass., 1765. In 1792 he was graduated at Yale; invented the cotton gin, 1796, but owing to litigation growing out of the claims of fraudulent imitators, and despairing of obtaining his rights in the South, Whitney went to New Haven, Conn., 1798, near which city he became engaged in the manufacture of firearms. He died at New Haven, 1825.

Whitney, Josiah Dwight, American geologist was born at Northampton, Mass., 1819. He was graduated at Yale in 1839; in 1865 was made professor at Harvard. He wrote extensively on geological topics, and died in 1896.

Whitney, William Dwight, American philologist, was born at Northampton, Mass., 1827. In 1854 he became professor of Sanskrit at Yale, and in 1870 also of comparative philology. He waged war with Max Müller on fundamental questions of the science of language. Among his works were: Material and Form in Language, Life and Growth of Language; Mixture in Language, etc. He was editor-in-chief of the Century Dictionary. Died at New Haven, 1894.

Whittier, John Greenleaf, American poet, was born of Quaker parents at Haverhill, Mass., 1807. In his younger days he worked on his father's farm and learned the shoemaking trade. He carried on the farm himself for five years, and in 1835-36 was a member of the legislature of Massachusetts and always remained an ardent abolitionist. Among the numerous volumes of poetry which he published from time to time are: Molly Pitcher; The Voices of Freedom; The Chapel of the Hermits; Snow Bound; In War-Time; Hazel Blossoms; The King's Missive; Poems of Nature, etc. He is best known for his poems, Barbara Frietchie, The Barefoot Boy, Maud Muller, and The Pipes at Lucknow. Died, 1892.

Wickersham, George Woodward, American lawyer, attorney-general of the United States, 1909-13, was born in Pittsburg, Pa., 1858. He was graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, 1880; member firm Strong and Cadwalader, 1887-1909; attorney general of United States, 1909-13, in the cabinet of President Taft; member firm Cadwalader, Wickersham and Taft. Died, 1936.

Wieland (vē'lant), Christoph Martin, noted German poet, was born at Oberholzheim, near Biberach, 1733. His views on the subject of love are most fully and worthily expounded in the didactic poem Musarion, a work of singular grace and harmony of treatment. At Weimar in 1772 he wrote The Choice of Hercules. Died, 1813.

Wiggin, Kate Douglas, American author, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1857. She was graduated at Abbott Academy, Andover, Mass., 1878, and married Samuel Wiggin in 1880 and George C. Riggs in 1895. Author: The Birds' Christmas Carol; The Story of Patsy; Polly Oliver's Problem; The Village Watch Tower; The Diary of a Goose Girl; Rebecca; The Affair at the Inn. Died, 1923.

Wilberforce, William, English statesman and philanthropist, was born at Hull, England, 1759. He was educated at St. John's College, Cambridge. He entered parliament as the representative of his native town. In 1789 he first proposed in the house of commons the abolition of the slave trade, and, with the aid of Charles James Fox, this measure was carried in 1806. Died 1833 and was buried in Westminster abbey.

Wilcox, Ella Wheeler, American poet and writer, was born near Madison, Wis., 1855, and was educated at the State University in that city. For many years she was on the staff of the New York American. Died, 1919.

Wilde, Oscar Fingall O'Flahertie Wills, Irish author and dramatist, was born at Dublin, Ireland, 1856. Educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and at Oxford. While yet in college he became a leading exponent of the aesthetic movement, and in 1882 he toured the U. S., lecturing on this subject. By 1890 had become widely known as writer and dramatist. His chief prose work, The Picture of Dorian Gray, and a volume of essays, Intentions. Among his plays are: Duchess of Padua; Lady Windermere's Fan; A Woman of No Importance; The Ideal Husband; and Importance of Being in Earnest. His play Salome was produced by Bernhardt in Paris in 1894. Other books include Ballad of Reading Gaol and De Profundis, the former written while he was serving a prison sentence after conviction for immoral practices. Died, 1900.

Wiley, Harvey Washington, chemist, writer, was born at Kent, Ind., 1844. Graduated from Hanover College, 1867; M.D., Indiana Medical College; D.Sc. Lafayette College, 1912. Professor of Chemistry Purdue University and State Chemist of Indiana, 1874-83. Chief Chemist, United States Department of Agriculture, 1883-1912. Professor of Agricultural Chemistry, George Washington University, 1899-1912. Commissioned in 1906 to frame regulations for pure food in New York. Contributing editor to Good Housekeeping, 1912-1930. Author Principles and Practice of Agricultural Chemistry; Foods and Their Adulterations and History of a Crime Against the Food and Drugs Act. He died in 1930.

Wilhelmina (vil'hel-mē'nä), Helene Pauline Marie, queen of the Netherlands, was born at The Hague, Holland, 1880. She succeeded to the throne of the Netherlands on the death of her father in 1890, though she only attained legal age in 1898, when she was inaugurated as queen. In 1901 she married Prince Henry, youngest son of the late grand duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

Willard, Emma C., American educator, born at Berlin, Conn., 1787. In 1808 she married Dr. John Willard. In 1830 she traveled in Europe and by her efforts a school for the training of native women teachers was founded in Greece. Among her books are: History of the United States; Universal History in Perspective. Died, 1870.

Willard, Frances Elizabeth, temperance reformer, was born at Churchville, N. Y., 1839. After some years spent in teaching, she became professor of æsthetics in the Northwestern University, and was made dean of the Woman's College in 1871. She began her active temperance work, in 1874, as secretary of the National Woman's Christian temperance union; in 1879 was made president of that organization, and held the office until her death. She died in New York, 1898.

Willcox, Walter Francis, American educator and statistician, was born in Reading, Mass., 1861. He was graduated at Amherst, 1884; Ph.D., LL.D.; is now professor of political economy and statistics, Cornell; statistical expert for war department upon censuses of Cuba and Porto Rico, 1899-1900. Author: The Divorce Problem—a Study in Statistics, and numerous census bulletins.

William I., commonly called the Conqueror, was born in Normandy, 1027. He laid claim to the sovereignty of England on the death of Edward the Confessor. In 1066 he landed at Pevensey, in Sussex; defeated Harold II. at the battle of Hastings; and was crowned king of England in Westminster abbey on the Christmas day following. The Channel islands, being part of Williams' duchy of Normandy, became attached to England on his accession. He died at the abbey of St. Gervais, 1087.

William III., king of England, 1689-1702 was born at The Hague, 1650. In 1678, being then stadtholder of Holland, he went to England and married Mary, youngest daughter of the duke of York, afterward James II. In 1688 he landed with a Dutch army at Torbay, in Devonshire, and was soon after invited by a convention parliament to accept the throne, which James had vacated. In 1690 he defeated James at the battle of the Boyne. He died at Kensington palace in 1702.

William IV., king of Great Britain and Ireland, third son of George III., was born in 1765. By the death of the Duke of York, 1827, he became heir-presumptive to the throne, to which he succeeded on the death of his brother, George IV., in June, 1830. The great event of the reign of William IV., was the passing of the reform bill. He died in 1837, and was succeeded by his niece, Queen Victoria.

William I. Friedrich Ludwig Wilhelm, king of Prussia and emperor of Germany, was born in 1797, second son of Frederick William III. of Prussia. In 1857, the king having become incapacitated for business, William was commissioned to act as regent, a commission which was renewed from time to time until his permanent installation, in 1858. In 1861 he ascended the throne, and became the head of the North German confederation in 1867. He found in Bismarck an able minister who could rule without a parliamentary majority. At Ems, in July, 1870, the memorable interviews, between William and the French ambassador, Benedetti, took place, which resulted in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71. William commanded at the decisive battles of Gravelottee and at Sedan. In 1871 he was proclaimed emperor of Germany in the palace of the French kings at Versailles. Died, 1888.

William II., Friedrich Wilhelm Viktor Albrecht, king of Prussia and emperor of Germany, was born in 1859, eldest son of Frederick III. and Victoria, princess royal of England. He succeeded his father in 1888. He showed his versatility as yachtsman, poet, composer, painter and war lord. His strong initiative in political matters led to the dismissal of Bismarck in 1890. His manner of prosecuting the great war of 1914-18 brought the downfall of the Hohenzollern dynasty. He was forced to abdicate Nov. 9, 1918, and took refuge in Holland.

William I., Frederik Willem, first king of the Netherlands, grand duke of Luxemburg, was born in 1772. In 1815 he was declared king, as William I., under a limited constitution. The Belgians having established their independence with the aid of France in 1830-32, he was obliged to acknowledge it in 1839. Died, 1843.

William I, called the Silent, prince of Orange, was born in Dillenburg, 1533. In 1576 the five provinces which had belonged to Spain, joined the states-general at Ghent, and formed a league under William. William formed in 1579 a league among Holland, Zealand, Utrecht, Friesland, Gelderland, Gronigen and Overyssel, which was the foundation of the Dutch republic. Two years later the united provinces declared themselves independent. William twice refused to rule the new country. He was assassinated at Delft, 1584.

Williams, George Fred, American lawyer, was born in Dedham, Mass., 1852. He was graduated at Dartmouth College, 1872. He edited Williams' Citations of Massachusetts Cases and volumes 10 to 17 Annual Digest of the United States. He was a member of the Massachusetts legislature in 1889, member of congress, 1891-93; minister to Greece, 1913-14. Resigned.

Williams, John Sharp, American legislator and publicist, was born in Memphis, Tenn., 1854. He studied law at the University of Virginia and in Memphis, Tenn., and was admitted to the Tennessee bar, 1877. He was temporary chairman of the St. Louis convention, 1904; member of congress, 1893-1903; United States senator from Mississippi, 1893-1923. Died, 1932.

Williams, Roger, English colonist and founder of Rhode Island, was born probably in London, about 1604. He emigrated to New England in 1631. On account of his religious opinions he was ordered to leave the colony in 1635, and in 1636 founded Providence. He was the first president of the colony established by himself; and the uniform justice and kindness with which he treated the native Indians is frequently referred to in the records of his time. Died, 1683.

Williston, Samuel, lawyer, and legal educator, was born at Cambridge, Mass., 1861; graduated from Harvard, 1882; LL.B., 1888; LL.D., 1910. Began practice at Boston, in 1888; assistant professor of law, 1890-5, professor, 1895-1903, Weld professor 1903-1919 and Dane professor since 1919; acting dean, 1909, Harvard Law School. Lecturer, Law School, University of Chicago, 1902-3, University of California, 1909. Author: The Law of Sales. Editor: Parsons on Contracts, eighth edition; Cases on Contracts; Cases on Sales; Stephen on Pleading; Cases on Bankruptcy; Wald's Pollock on Contracts, etc.

Wilson, Henry, American statesman, was born of poor parents in Farmington, N. H., 1812. He was elected to the Massachusetts legislature by the whig party in 1840, and largely contributed to the formation of the free-soil party in 1843. In 1855 he succeeded Edward Everett as United States senator, and became one of the leaders of the republican party. In 1872 he was elected vice-president of the United States. Died, 1875.

Wilson, Thomas Woodrow, twenty-eighth president of the United States, educator, publicist, historian, was born in Staunton, Va., Dec. 28, 1856, son of Rev. Joseph R. and Jessie (Woodrow) Wilson. He was graduated from Princeton University, 1879; from the University of Virginia Law School, 1882; and Ph.D., Johns Hopkins, 1886. He received the degree of LL.D. from Tulane, Johns Hopkins, Harvard, University of Pennsylvania and other universities, and that of Litt.D. from Yale. On June 24, 1885, he married Helen Louise Axson of Savannah, Ga., and had three daughters, Margaret, Jessie and Eleanor. During 1882-83 he practiced law at Atlanta, Ga.; 1885-88, was professor of history and political economy at Bryn Mawr College, Pa.; 1888-90, professor of same subject at Wesleyan University, Conn.; 1890-1902, professor of Jurisprudence and politics, and 1902-10, president of Princeton University. During the latter year he was elected governor of New Jersey, for the term 1911-14, and, after a notable contest, was nominated as the Democratic candidate for president of the United States, at Baltimore, on July 2, 1912. At the succeeding presidential election, he was elected president over William H. Taft, republican, and Theodore Roosevelt, progressive, by the largest electoral plurality ever accorded any presidential candidate. He was inaugurated March 4, 1913, and shortly following called congress in special session to consider tariff and other reforms. Mrs. Wilson died August 6, 1914. On December 18, 1915, he was married to Edith Bolling Galt. Renominated for president at convention of his party held in St. Louis, June, 1916. There followed one of the most strenuous campaigns in the history of this country. At the November election, 1916, he was re-elected over Charles E. Hughes, Republican nominee, by an electoral vote of 276 to 255. Author of Congressional Government, The State, George Washington, History of the American People, The New Freedom, When a Man Comes to Himself. Died, 1924.

Wilson, William Bauchop, secretary of labor, 1913-1921, farmer, was born at Blantyre, Scotland, April 2, 1862; came to this country with his parents in 1870 and settled at Arnot, Tioga County, Pa. In 1871, he began working in the coal mines; in 1873, became member of the Mine Workers' Union; has taken an active part in trade-union affairs from early manhood; was international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, 1900 until 1908. He was a member of Congress, 1907-13.

Winsor (win'zĕr), Justin, American historian and librarian, was born at Boston, Mass., 1831. He studied at Harvard and Heidelberg, was superintendent of the Boston library, 1858-77, passing then to the librarianship of Harvard. His chief publications embrace: The Readers' Handbook of the American Revolution; Narrative and Critical History of America. Died at Cambridge, Mass., 1897.

Winthrop, John, governor of Massachusetts colony, was born at Gorton, Suffolk, England, 1588; was chosen governor by the Massachusett Bay company in 1629. The next year he came over, bringing with him 900 emigrants. His Journal is one of the most important sources of early American history. He died at Boston, 1649.

Wirt, William, American lawyer, was born at Bladensburg, Md., 1772. He was admitted to the bar in 1792, and settled to practice in Virginia; and in 1817 became attorney-general of the United States. Died, 1834.

Wise, Stephen Samuel, Jewish Rabbi, was born in Buda Pest, Hungary, in 1872. He was educated at Columbia University, receiving a Ph.D. degree in 1901. He was pastor of synagogues in New York and Portland, Oregon, from 1893 to 1907, when he established and became rabbi of the Free Synagogue of New York. He is one of the leaders in the Zionist movement, and has been a prominent figure in charitable associations, in the liberalization of dogma and in the promotion of international peace. He is head of an institution for training social and religious workers in New York City.

Wiseman, Nicholas Patrick Stephen, English cardinal and Roman Catholic archbishop of Westminster, was born at Seville, Spain, 1802. He was subsequently appointed vice-rector of the English College, and professor of oriental languages in the University of the Sapienza. In 1828 he published his Horæ Syriacæ; was named president of St. Mary's College of Oscott. In 1850 he was named archbishop of the see of Westminster and at the same time created cardinal. He wrote Influence of Words on Thought and Civilization; The Real Presence, etc. He died in London, 1865.

Wister, Owen, American author, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 1860. He was graduated from Harvard, 1882; from Harvard Law School, 1888; was admitted to the Philadelphia bar, 1889. He engaged in literary work, 1891. Author: The Dragon of Wantley: His Tail; U. S. Grant, a Biography; The Virginian; Philosophy 4; and much prose and verse in magazines.

Witte (vit'ĕ), Count Sergei Yulievitch, Russian statesman, of German origin, was born at Tiflis, 1849. He was educated at Odessa. He was called to St. Petersburg for employment there in 1879, and appointed in 1886 director of the Russian southwest railways. In 1903 he was removed from the ministry of finance and made president of the committee of ministers. He was one of the Russian plenipotentiaries in the negotiations for peace with Japan in 1905, and was afterward made a count and appointed president of the new ministry. Died, 1915.

Wolfe, Charles, British clergyman and poet, was born at Dublin, 1791. In 1814 he took his B.A. at Dublin. His Burial of Sir John Moore, in 1817, won for itself a secure place in the heart of the British nation. Died, 1823.

Wolfe, James, English general, was born at Westerham, in Kent, England, 1727. In the effort to drive the French out of Canada, Pitt, in 1759, gave the charge of the invading army to Wolfe, who had been made major-general. The story of his attack on Quebec, how he scaled the cliffs with his army by night, and died in the moment of victory is well known. He died in 1759.

Wolseley (wŏŏlz'li), Garnet Joseph, Viscount, English field-marshal, was born in County Dublin, Ireland, 1833; was governor of Natal. He commanded the Egyptian expedition, 1882; Gordon relief expedition, 1884; and while commanding in Ireland was made field-marshal in 1894, and commander-in-chief, 1895. He retired in 1906. Died, 1913.

Wolsey (wŏŏl'zi), Thomas, English statesman and cardinal, was born at Ipswich, about 1475. On the accession of Henry VIII. he became the king's almoner, and obtained several other preferments. In 1515 he was consecrated archbishop of York; at about the same time was appointed lord chancellor and prime minister and cardinal. From this time he was one of the foremost men in Europe, and, as his revenues were immense, his pride and ostentation were carried to the greatest height. In 1530 he was arrested on a charge of high treason, and was ordered to be conveyed to London for trial. He reached Leicester abbey and died there a few days afterward, in 1530.

Wood, Leonard, army officer, was born at Winchester, N. H., 1860. He was graduated from the Harvard Medical School, 1884; LL.D., Harvard. He became assistant surgeon in the United States army in 1886, captain in 1891; major-general, December 7, 1898; brigadier-general, United States regular army, 1901; major-general, 1903; commander of Philippines division, 1906-08; governor general Philippine Islands beginning 1921 and until his death in 1927.

Woodberry, George Edward, American author and critic, was born at Beverly, Mass., 1855. He was graduated at Harvard in 1877. He was professor of English at Nebraska University, 1877-78, 1880-82, and professor of comparative literature, Columbia, 1891-1904. Author: History of Wood Engraving; Edgar Allen Poe; Nathaniel Hawthorne; America in Literature; Ralph Waldo Emerson; The Appreciation of Literature; Great Writers. Died, 1930.

Woodhull, John Francis, University professor, was born at Westport, N. Y., 1857; graduated from Yale, 1880; Ph.D., Columbia, 1899; professor natural science, N. Y. State Normal School, 1887; professor physical science, Teachers' College (Columbia); became professor emeritus, 1922. Author: Simple Experiments for the School Room; First Course in Science; Chemical Experiments, a Laboratory Manual; Physical Experiments, Physics, a Text-book; Simple Experiments in Chemistry, etc.

Woodward, Calvin Milton, educator, was born at Fitchburg, Mass., 1837; graduated from Harvard, 1830; Ph.D., 1883, LL.D., 1905, Washington University; LL.D., University of Wisconsin, 1908. Professor descriptive geometry, 1870-1, dean School of Engraving, 1871-96, dean School of Engraving and Architecture, 1901-10; professor mathematics and applied mechanics beginning 1871, Washington University. Originator and director after organization, 1879, of St. Louis Manual training school. Author: The Manual Training School; Manual Training in Education, etc. Died, 1914.

Woodward, Robert Simpson, American physicist and educator, was born at Rochester, Mich., 1849. He was graduated at the University of Michigan, C.E., Ph. D.; LL.D.; Sc.D.; assistant United States coast and geodetic survey in 1890-93; professor of mechanics and mathematical physics, 1893-1905, and dean of the school of pure science, 1895-1905, Columbia, and director of the Carnegie Institution of Washington beginning 1905. Died, 1924.

Woolley, Mary E., American educator, president of Mt. Holyoke College beginning 1900, was born at South Norwalk, Conn., 1863. She was graduated at Wheaton seminary, 1884; Litt.D., L.H.D., Amherst, 1900. She was head of the department of biblical history and literature of Wellesley College, 1895-1900.

Woolman, John, American Quaker preacher, was born at Northampton, N. J., 1720. He was a famer's son, and was for some time a tailor. He spoke and wrote against slavery and published The Journal of the Life and Travels of John Woolman in the Service of the Gospel. He died at York on a visit to England, 1772.

Woolsey, Theodore Dwight, American scholar, was born at New York city, 1801. He was graduated at Yale in 1820, studied at Princeton and for three years in Germany; from 1846 to 1871 was the president of Yale. He was an authority on questions of international law. Died, 1889.

Among his works are: Introduction to the Study of International Law; Divorce and Divorce Legislation, etc.

Woolworth, Frank W.—American business man, was born in 1852. He was educated in the public schools and in business college. He began his career in 1879 with a five-cent store in Utica, N. Y. It was not a success, and the same year he removed to Lancaster, Pa. and opened a five- and ten-cent store. This store flourished and Woolworth opened another in Harrisburg. From this start the Woolworth chain of five- and ten-cent stores grew until today they are numbered by hundreds. They are located in the United States, Canada and England. The Woolworth Building in New York City was erected in 1911, and was for many years the highest office building in the world. Died in 1919.

Worcester (wo͝os'tẽr), Joseph Emerson, American lexicographer, was born at Bedford, N. H., 1784. He taught at Salem, Mass., and then turned to authorship. His works were gazetteers, manuals of geography and history, etc. He abridged Webster's Dictionary in 1829; printed his own English Dictionary in 1830, and quarto Dictionary of the English Language, 1860. Died, 1865.

Wordsworth, William, celebrated English poet, was born at Cockermouth, Cumberland, 1770, and died, 1850. In 1787 he was sent to St. John's college, Cambridge. He left the university after taking his degree, but without having otherwise distinguished himself, and lived aimlessly in London and elsewhere.

He crossed to France in 1791, and exhibited vehement sympathy with the revolution, remaining in France for nearly a year. After his return, disregarding all entreaties to enter upon a professional career, he published his Evening Walk and Descriptive Sketches (1793). Two years afterwards he received a legacy of 900 pounds from Raisley Calvert, a friend, whom he had nursed in his last illness. With this sum and the consecrated helpfulness of his sister Dorothy, he contrived to keep house for eight years, while he gave himself to poetic effort as his high "office upon earth."

For the first two years the brother and sister lived at Racedown in Dorset, where the poet, among other experiments, began his tragedy of The Borderers. In this retreat they were visited by Coleridge, who had already recognized an original poetic genius in the author of Descriptive Sketches. Coleridge was at this time living at Nether Stowey, in Somerset, and during this visit he induced the Wordsworths to go into residence at Alfoxden, in his immediate neighborhood. Here the two poets held daily intercourse, and after a year they published Lyrical Ballads in literary copartnership. Although this volume was received with almost complete public indifference, yet Wordsworth felt that he had found his mission, and after a winter spent in Germany, he and his sister settled at Grasmere, in 1799, where he proposed to write a great philosophical poem on man, nature and society.

Thenceforth his life was marked by few incidents. Those worth noting are his marriage, in 1802, with his cousin, Mary Hutchinson; a removal from Grasmere to Allan Bank in 1808; his appointment in 1813 to an inspectorship of stamps, and his removal to Rydal Mount; several journeys into Scotland and to the continent; his acceptance of a D.C.L. degree, conferred upon him in 1839 by the University of Oxford; and his accession in 1843 to the laureateship on the death of Southey.

Wordsworth's great philosophic poem, which, in his own phrase, was to be the Gothic cathedral of his labor, received only a fragmentary accomplishment in The Prelude, The Excursion and The Recluse. Yet enough was achieved in his smaller poems to justify his own conception of himself as a "dedicated spirit," and to set him apart among the greatest of England's poets.

References.—The principal Lives are those of Christopher Wordsworth; F. W. H. Myers, J. M. Sutherland, Elizabeth Wordsworth and Professor Knight. See also Knight's English Lake District: and Through the Wordsworth Country; Stopford Brooke's Theology in the English Poets; Hudson's Studies in Wordsworth; Masson's Wordsworth, Shelley, etc. J. R. Tutin's Wordsworth Dictionary of Persons and Places; and Raleigh's Wordsworth.

Wrangel, Lieut. Gen. Baron Peter, Russian military leader and mining engineer, born at St. Petersburg of a noble family in 1879. He was educated at a mining institute in St. Petersburg. As an anti-Bolshevist leader, he rose to distinction in 1914. Later became commander-in-chief in the Crimea, but was finally defeated by the overwhelming Bolshevist army in November, 1920. He went to Yugoslavia. In 1926 he went to Belgium as a mining engineer, and died there in 1928.

Wren, Sir Christopher, noted English architect, born in 1632. He was educated at Oxford being, a student of mathematics and astronomy. He became a professor of astronomy in 1660. Through scientific work for the dean at Saint Paul's Cathedral, Wren became deeply interested in architecture. When the cathedral was burned, in 1666, the eager student of architecture was chosen as the architect of the new cathedral, which became his greatest work. For many years thereafter he designed important buildings in London. He built also Royal Exchange, Temple Bar, Buckingham Palace, Greenwich Hospital, Marlborough House, the towers at the west front of Westminster Abbey, etc. In 1672 he was knighted. Died, 1723.

Wright, Sir Almroth Edward, English physician and bacteriologist, was born at Middleton Tyas, Yorks., in 1861. He was trained at Dublin University, and at the universities of Leipzig, Strasbourg and Marburg. In 1877 he was demonstrator of pathology at Cambridge. In 1889 he became lecturer in physiology at Sydney, Australia. From 1892 to 1902 he was professor at the Army Medical School at Netly; then professor of experimental pathology in the University of London. He gained great prominence through his researches in parasitic diseases. He perfected a method of typhoid inoculation, and made extensive studies of other toxins. He was consulting physician to the army in France from 1914 to 1919. His published works include System of Anti-Typhoid Inoculation, Principles of Microscopy, Studies in Immigration and The Unexpurgated Case Against Woman Suffrage.

Wright, Harold Bell, author; born Rome, N. Y., May 14, 1872. He was a student for two years in the preparatory department, Hiram College, Ohio. Author: The Shepherd of the Hills; The Calling of Dan Matthews; Their Yesterdays; The Eyes of the World; When a Man's a Man, etc.

Wright, Orville, American aëronaut and inventor, was born at Dayton, Ohio, 1871. With his brother Wilbur he was the first to fly with a heavier-than-air machine, 1903, and with his brother was the inventor of the system of controls used in flying machines today. He has made flights at home and abroad. He was present, Dec. 17, 1928, when a memorial tablet was unveiled at Kitty Hawk, N. C., commemorating the first flight twenty-five years previously.

Wright, Wilbur, aëronaut, brother of Orville, was born near Millville, Ind., 1867. From 1903, with his brother Orville, he devoted his time to the heavier-than-air flying machine. Died, 1912.

Wright, Silas, American lawyer and political leader, born in 1795 at Amherst, Mass. He graduated at Middlebury College and took up the practice of law in upper New York. He was elected to the New York legislature and later to the United States Congress, first as a representative and later as a senator. He was governor of the state of New York, 1844-46. Died, 1847.

Wundt (vo͝ont), Wilhelm Max, German physiologist and psychologist, was born at Neckarau in Baden, Germany, 1832. He studied at Tübingen, Heidelberg and Berlin; in 1875 became professor of physiology at Leipzig. He became distinguished in the field of experimental psychology, and wrote on the nerves and the senses, the relations of physiology and psychology, etc. Died, 1920.

Wu Ting-Fang (wo͞o'ting'fäng'), Chinese diplomat, was born in Hsin-hui district, Kwangtung, China. He was appointed by the imperial government codirector in the railway bureau, constructing railways in north China; assisted in negotiating, at Peking, the Chino-Japanese treaty of commerce and navigation, ratified in 1896; was minister of China to the United States, Spain, and Peru, 1897-1902. He was made LL.D., by U. of Pa., 1900. Died, 1922.

Wyant, Alexander H., American landscape painter, born in Port Washington, Ohio, in 1836. He studied under George Inness, American, and later he continued his studies in Europe. After his return from abroad, Wyant lived in New York City. He was made a National Academician in 1869. His work is faithfully realistic, and refined in its delineation. Some of his paintings are in the Metropolitan Museum, New York. They include Looking Toward the Sea, Silent Valley and A View in County Kerry. He died in 1892.

Wycliffe (wik'lif), John, English religious reformer, was born at Wycliffe, near Richmond, in Yorkshire, about 1320. He is frequently called "the morning star of the reformation." His last years were spent as rector of Lutterworth, in Leicestershire, where, a short time before his death, in 1384, he completed his translation of the Bible. He also wrote a large number of tracts in exposition or defense of the doctrines he preached.

Wylie (wi'li), Elinor Hoyt (Mrs. William Rose Benêt), American poet, novelist and editor, was born in 1887 at Rosemont, Pa. She was educated in private schools. After 1919 her residence was in New York City. She wrote literary reviews and was for a time an associate editor on Vanity Fair. She is best known as a poet. Her books of poetry include Nets to Catch the Wind, Black Amour, Trivial Breath and Angels and Earthly Creatures. Four of her popular novels are Jennifer Lorn, The Venetian Glass Nephew, The Orphan Angel and Mr. Hazard. She died in 1928.

Wythe, George, American political leader, born in the colony of Virginia and educated at home. He was admitted to the bar, became a member of the House of Burgesses, and drew up a rigorous petition protesting against the English Stamp Act. He was a member of the Continental Congress and a signer of the Declaration of Independence. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention and of the Virginia Convention which ratified the Constitution. He became a judge and was for a time a professor of law in William and Mary College. He published his Decisions. He died in 1806.

Xantippe, wife of the Greek philosopher, Socrates. Although it has been disputed, she is commonly reputed to have been of a quarrelsome, nagging disposition, and the name has become symbolical for that type of a woman.

Xavier (zav'i-ẽr), Francisco de, Jesuit missionary styled usually the "apostle of the Indies," was born in 1506, of a noble family, in the north of Spain. He visited Malacca, the Banda Islands, Amboyna, the Moluccas and Ceylon, where he converted the king of Kandy. The mission he next founded in Japan flourished for a hundred years. He died, 1552, soon after reaching the island of Sanchian near Canton. His body was ultimately buried in Goa. He was canonized in 1622.

Xenophon (zẽn'ō-fŏn), Greek historian, philosopher and military commander, born at Athens, about 434 B. C. He was a pupil and friend of Socrates; joined the expedition of Cyrus against his brother, Artaxerxes, and on its failure conducted the ten thousand Greeks. His principal works are the Anabasis, an account of the expedition of Cyrus and his own conduct of the retreat; the Memorabilia, and account of the life and teaching and a defense of his master Socrates. He died about 355 B. C.

Xerxes (zûrk'zēz), king of Persia, son of Darius I., whom he succeeded on the throne in 485 B. C., was born about 519 B. C. In 481 B. C., he attempted to subdue Greece both by sea and land; checked for a time at Thermopylae by Leonidas and his five hundred; advanced to Athens to see his fleet destroyed at Salamis by Themistocles; was assassinated in 465 B. C. by Artabanus, the captain of his bodyguard.

Ximenes (zi-mē'nēz), (Jiménez de Cisneros), Spanish cardinal and statesman, was born at Torrelaguna, in Castile, in 1437. His reputation for piety and learning led Queen Isabella to choose him, in 1492, for her confessor. As confessor, Ximenes was the guiding spirit of Spanish affairs. In 1506-07 he was provisional regent of Castile, and was regent of Spain, 1516-17. Died, 1517.

Yale, Elihu, English colonial official, was born at or near Boston, Mass., 1648. When four years old he was taken to England by his father, and never returned to America. Yale College received his name in the charter of 1745. Previously the building and, before that, the school at Saybrook, had been called by the name. He donated many books and about $2,500 in money to the school. He died in England in 1721.

Yamagata (yä'mä-gä'tä), Prince Yamagata Aritomo, Japanese field-marshal, president of the privy council of Japan, was born at Choshu, 1838; commanded first army in the China-Japan war; was prime minister, 1889; became field-marshal, 1898; chief of general staff, 1904; and was created prince, 1907. Died, 1922.

Yancey (yăn'sĭ), William Lowndes, American politician and lawyer, was born in Georgia, 1814; was greatly instrumental in bringing about the Civil War. Died near Montgomery, Ala., 1863.

Yeats, William Butler, Irish poet and dramatist, winner of the Nobel prize in literature for 1923, was born in Dublin, 1865. He attended Erasmus Smith School in Dublin. At twenty-one, he turned from painting to a study of ancient Irish life and became the chief writer of the new school of Irish poetry. Several of his plays were produced at the Abbey Theater. His works include The Countess Kathleen, The Kings' Threshold, Deidre, Reveries over Childhood and Youth, The Pot of Broth, October Blast, and The Tower. The Cutting of the Agate and The Trembling of the Veil are among his best reminiscent and critical works.

Yeats is also a politician and a senator of the Irish Free State.

Yerkes, Charles T., American business man, was born in Philadelphia in 1837. He exerted important control of the street railway systems in Philadelphia and Chicago and later in the London underground railway. He endowed the observatory which bears his name, at Williams Bay, Wis. Died, 1905.

Yonge, Charlotte Mary, English novelist, was born at Otterbourne, England, in 1823. Most of her life was spent at the place of her birth. She wrote on religious and educational subjects and produced many novels which deal with rural life in England. They are filled with much sentiment and romance. For over thirty years she edited The Monthly Packet. Among her novels are The Heir of Redclyffe, The Daisy Chain, The Clever Woman of the Family and The Trial. She died in 1901.

Yoshihito (yō'shē-hē'tō), Harunomia, Emperor of Japan from 1912 to the time of his death, in 1926, was born in Tokio. He received a good education and was able to speak several languages. He ascended the throne as the first liberal constitutional monarch, and his reign was proclaimed the era of Taisho (Righteousness). Due to continued illness, Yoshihito relinquished the throne to his son, Hirohito, in 1921, and the latter ruled as prince regent to the time of his father's death. The rule of Hirohito is called the era of Showa (Light and Peace).

Youmans (yo͞o'mănz), Edward L., American scientist, was born at Coeymans, N. Y., 1821. Although suffering for some years from almost total blindness, he pursued his studies in physics and chemistry with marked zeal and proficiency, his sister conducting experiments for him. In 1872 he established and, until his death, edited the Popular Science Monthly. Died in New York, 1887.

Young, Brigham, founder of Utah, and president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, called "Mormon" Church because of a belief in the Book of Mormon, was born at Whittingham, Vt., 1801. In 1832 he joined the Mormons and was made an elder and began to preach. He was later chosen one of the Twelve Apostles of the Church and after the death of Joseph Smith became president. He led his people from Nauvoo, Ill., to Utah, having been forced out of Illinois by people antagonistic to the Mormon faith, and crossing the plains and the Rocky Mountains under many difficulties and hardships founded Salt Lake City. He was the first Governor of Utah and was succeeded by Alfred Cumming during the administration of President James Buchanan. Died, 1877.

Young, Charles Augustus, American astronomer, born in 1834 at Hanover, N. H. He graduated at Dartmouth College. He was a professor at Western Reserve College, later at Dartmouth and still later at Princeton University. He conducted several astronomical expeditions. He was the first to study the spectrum of the sun's corona. In addition to textbooks, he wrote The Sun, Lessons in Astronomy, etc. Died, 1908.

Young, Edward, English poet, was born at Upham rectory near Bishops, Waltham, 1683. He was educated at All Souls, Oxford, and in 1730 became rector of Welwyn, in Hertfordshire. His chief poetical work is Night Thoughts. He also wrote Love of Fame, The Universal Passion; and the dramas, Busiris, The Revenge, etc. Died, 1765.

Young, Ella Flagg, American educator, was born at Buffalo, N. Y., 1845, daughter of Theodore Flagg. She was graduated at the Chicago Normal school and received the degree of Ph. D. at the University of Chicago. She was professor of education, University of Chicago, 1899-1905; principal of the Chicago Normal school, 1905-08; and superintendent of the Chicago public schools, 1908. Died, 1918.

Young, Francis Brett, English poet and novelist, was born in 1884. He was educated for medicine at Epsom College and at the University of Birmingham. He practiced medicine and served in a medical unit in the World War. Entering later the field of letters, he lectured extensively, coming in 1926 and in 1928 to the United States. His Portrait of Clare (1917) won the James Tail Black Memorial Award, and was published in America as Love is Enough. His other books include Marching in Tanga, The Crescent Moon, Poems, Sea Horses and Black Roses.

Young, Mahonri M., American sculptor, born in 1877 at Salt Lake City. He studied his art in Salt Lake City and later in New York and in Paris. His work is simple and dignified and of exquisite craftsmanship. His small figures are notable and include laborers and cowboys which were his especial study. Among his productions are Man With Pick, A Laborer, Rolling His Own and the bird monument in Temple Square, Salt Lake City.

Young, Owen D., American lawyer and administrator, member Dawes reparation commission to Germany, was born at Van Hornesville, New York, in 1874. He was educated at St. Lawrence University and Boston University Law School, and until 1913 was connected with the law firm of Tyler and Young in Boston. In 1918 he was chosen chairman of the board of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, N. Y., and when the Radio Corporation of America was organized, he became chairman of the international trusteeship for the control of radio patents. He was a member of the first committee of experts on reparation in 1924. His business sagacity has led to his appointment as director in many important enterprises.

Younghusband, Sir Francis Edward, English soldier, explorer and writer, was born at Murree, India, 1863. He traveled in Manchuria, 1886; from Peking to India through Chinese Turkestan, 1887; on the Pamirs and in Hunza, 1889; and was British commissioner to Tibet, 1903-04. In the latter year he headed the expedition which forced its way into Lhassa, sacred city of Tibet. Author: Heart of a Continent.

Ysaÿe (ē-zä'yĕ), Eugene, Belgian violinist, was born in 1858 at Liege. He received his musical education in Brussels and Paris. He was professor and head of the department of violin at the Conservatory in Brussels, 1886-97. He has composed many pieces for the violin, including the well-known Poème Elégiaque. He organized the famous Ysaÿe quartet. He was conductor of the Cincinnati orchestra for a time during the World War. He toured Europe and in the United States. Died, 1931.

Yuan Shih-K'ai (yōō-än'shē-kī'), Chinese political leader, born in Honan province in 1859. His diplomatic career began with service in Korea, and later in Chihli. He supported the empress dowager and the conservative Manchu party. He became governor of Shantung. Then he was made viceroy of Chihli. Upon the overthrow of the monarchy, Yuan was made provisional president in 1912, and the following year was elected president for five years. In 1915 he had himself proclaimed emperor, but when this aroused a storm of protest he again became head of the republic. He died in 1916.

Zaghlul Pasha (zăg'lōōl-pä-shä'), Saad, Egyptian Nationalist leader, was born about 1860 of fellahin stock. He was educated in the university of El Azhar at Cairo. He was an editor, lawyer, judge and held the office of Minister of Education and of Minister of Justice. He opposed British rule in Egypt, and after the World War became very active in the cause of Egyptian independence. He was made prime minister in 1924 but was forced to resign. Later he became President of the new Chamber of Deputies. Until his death, in 1927, he was the recognized leader of the Nationalists in Egypt.

Zahm (tsäm), John Augustine, American scientist and provincial of order of Holy Cross in United States beginning 1897, was born at New Lexington, Ohio, 1851; was president of the board of trustees, Notre Dame University. He was a member of numerous scientific societies and lectured widely on scientific and allied topics. Author: Evolution and Dogma; Scientific Theory and Catholic Doctrine; Science and the Church, etc. Died in 1921.

Zamenhoff (zä'mĕn-hôf), Lazarus L., Russian oculist and linguist, was born in 1859. He received his education at the universities in Moscow and in Warsaw. He practised as an oculist in Warsaw, and worked for the adoption of an international language. In 1887 he published his treatise on Esperanto, which attracted worldwide attention. He died in 1917.

Zangwill (săng'wĭl), Israel, British man of letters, was born in London, 1864. He received the degree of B. A. from London University; wrote many novels, essays, poems and plays; lectured in Great Britain and Ireland, Jerusalem, Holland and the United States, and was president of the international Jewish territorial organization, or Zionist movement. Author: The Premier and the Painter: Merely Mary Ann; The Master; They That Walk in Darkness; Plaster Saints; The Forcing House, etc. Died, 1926.

Zeeman, Pieter, Dutch physicist, born in Zeeland in 1865. He studied at Leyden. He became professor of physics at Amsterdam in 1900 and director of the Physical Institute at Amsterdam in 1908. His greatest work was in splitting up the spectral lines in a magnetic field, the so-called "Zeeman effect." He was awarded the Nobel prize in 1902.

Zeisler (zīs'lĕr) Fannie, American pianist, born in Austria, 1866, came to America in 1868 and lived in Chicago. Displaying great musical talent as a child, she returned to Vienna to pursue her musical education. She has appeared as a concert artist in the leading cities of Europe and America. She was a great pianist. Died, 1927.

Zeiss (tsīs), Carl, German optician and technician, was born at Weimar in 1816. In the university he pursued the study of medicine. In 1864 he founded at Jena the optical works which has become famous and which still bears his name. He died in 1888.

Zeno, founder of the stoic philosophy, was born at Citium, in Cyprus, the date of his birth and death both being uncertain. He flourished in the early part of the third century B. C., and was a contemporary of Epicurus. The Athenians honored Zeno's memory with a golden crown and a public burial, and his countrymen erected a monumental pillar in his honor. He died about 264 B. C.

Zeno, Greek philosopher of Elea, in Italy, was born about 490 B. C. He was a favorite disciple of Parmenides, visited Athens, and the illustrious Pericles was one of his pupils. He devoted his great powers of argumentation to enforce the doctrines first broached by Xenophanes, and more systematically developed by Parmenides.

Zenobia (zē-nō'bĭ-ä), Septimia, queen of Palmyra, 267-272 A. D., succeeded her husband Odenathus. Aurelian marched against her with a large army, and after defeating her in several battles besieged her in Palmyra. She attempted to escape by flight, but was captured and brought to Rome to adorn the triumph of her conqueror. She was a woman of great courage, high spirit and remarkable beauty.

Zeppelin (tsĕp'ĕ-lēn), von, Ferdinand, Count, German general and aëronaut, was born in 1838. He was educated at the polytechnic school in Stuttgart and at the University of Tübingen, also at the military school at Ludwigsburg. He went to the United States and fought with the Union army during the Civil War. He fought in the German army against France. Always interested in the problems of flying, von Zeppelin began to experiment with dirigible balloons, and in 1892 manufactured his first ship. He continued the construction of his airships, which have been named "Zeppelins" after him, at his factory in Friedrichshafen. He died in 1917.

Zeuxis (zūk'sĭs), a Greek painter, who flourished in the latter half of the fifth century B. C., was a native of Heraclea, and later lived in Ephesus. He studied and excelled the works of Apollodorus. He was noted for his skill in expression and coloring. Among his great paintings were Pan, Alcmena, Helena and Penelope. He is said to have painted a bunch of grapes so realistically that birds swooped down to it to eat.

Ziegfeld, Florenz, Jr., theatrical producer, born in Chicago, 1869. He entered the theatrical business in Chicago in 1892, but is most famous for his productions of Ziegfeld's Follies. Among his other most noted productions are: Papa's Wife; The French Maid; The Little Duchess; The Parisian Model; Miss Innocence; The Pink Lady; Sally; Kid Boots; Show Boat. Married Billie Burke. Died, 1932.

Zimbalist (zĭm'bä-lĭst), Efrem, Russian violinist and composer, was born at Rostow-on-Don in 1889. He studied first under his father who was an orchestra conductor. Later he studied under Leopold Auer. He made his début in Berlin in 1907. He has toured Europe and America. In 1914 he married the dramatic soprano singer, Alma Gluck.

Zinzendorf (tsĭn'tsĕn-dôrf), Nikolaus Ludwig, Count von, religious leader, was born at Dresden, 1700. He accidentally met a wandering carpenter named Christian David, a member of the old sect of Moravian brethren, who described the persecutions to which the sect was exposed; and Zinzendorf invited him and his friends to settle on his estate. They accepted the proposal, and the colony received the name of "Herrnhut." In 1737, at the request of King Frederick William I. of Prussia, he was ordained bishop of the Moravians. In 1741 he went to America and founded the celebrated Moravian colony at Bethlehem, Pa. Died, 1760.

Ziska (zĭs'kä), Ján, leader of the Hussites, was born at Treeznoy, Bohemia, about 1360. He was an adherent of the Hussite doctrine. Died, 1424.

Zola (zō'lä; Fr. zō-lä'), Émile, French novelist, was born at Paris, 1840. He was educated at the Lycée Saint-Louis. His first important work of fiction was Les Mystères de Marseille. Soon after this he formed, with Flaubert, Daudet and the Goncourts, the naturalistic school of fiction. The fruit in part of this was the series known as Les Rougon-Macquart Family. His latest work, written in exile, occasioned by his courageous advocacy of the famous Dreyfus case, was entitled Fécondité. He was a knight of the French legion of honor. Died, 1902.

Zorn (tsôrn), Anders, Swedish painter, etcher and sculptor, was born in 1860. He studied in Stockholm and later in London. He traveled widely, but did most of his work at his birthplace, Mora. His earliest work was in water colors, followed by oil paintings and etchings. His fame rests chiefly on his portraits, among which are his Dance at Dalecarlia, Baking in Mora, Midsummer Dance and Watering the Horse. His painting represents the matured impressionistic group. Zorn excelled also in sculpture, and his work includes the Faun and Nymph and the Broken Pitcher. He died in 1920.

Zoroaster, (zō-rō-ăs'tẽr), (Old Persian Zarathustra, later Per. Zerdusht), was one of the great religious teachers of the East, the founder of the Persian religion, now known as Zoroastrianism. He has been represented by eminent authorities as purely mythical, but it seems more reasonable to believe that he was a real historical personage. If this view be accepted, he was probably a native of the east of Persia, but there is great uncertainty as to the time in which he appeared as a religious teacher. He is supposed by some to have been a contemporary of Moses, by others his date is assigned to the tenth century before Christ.

The legends about Zoroaster are exceedingly numerous. He is said to have begun to laugh the day he was born; that he lived for twenty years in the wilderness and subsisted upon a single huge cheese which never grew stale; that as he came down from meditation on a mountain, fire from heaven broke out without injuring him; that in response to his expressed wish, he was killed by a bolt of thunder.

His doctrines are to be found in the Parsee scriptures, called the Zend-Avesta, and the Gothâs, which is the oldest part of that work; these are declared to contain his authentic utterances. The fundamental idea of his doctrine was the existence, since the beginning, of a spirit of good, Ahuro Mazdao (Ormuzd), and a spirit of evil, Angro Mainyush (Ahriman). These two are in perpetual conflict, and the soul of man is the great object of the war. Ormuzd created man free, so that if he allows himself to fall under the sway of Ahriman he is held to be justly punishable. When he dies his good and evil deeds will be weighed against each other, and accordingly as the balance is struck he will be sent to heaven or to hell. If they are exactly equal, the soul passes into an intermediate state, and remains there until the day of judgment. Ormuzd is to triumph ultimately, and then there will be one undivided kingdom of God in heaven and on earth.

The religion of Zoroaster, when it became that of Persia, was expounded by a widely spread priesthood, and these provided for it a ritual and ceremonial. Minutely elaborated laws for the purification of soul and body were laid down. They included a prohibition of the burning or the burying of the dead bodies of believers, which, by the Parsees in Bombay and elsewhere, are still left to be devoured by vultures. Zoroastrianism prophesied the coming of a Savior (Saoshyant).

References.—Jackson's Zoroaster, the Prophet of Ancient Iran; Windischmann's Zoroastrische Studien and Die Iranische Religion; Max Müller's series of translations of books of the orient, especially the Zend-Avesta

Zurbarán, de (dā thōōr'bä-rän') Francisco, Spanish painter, born in Estremadura, 1598. He pursued his art studies in Seville, and became an intensely realistic painter of Spanish character. He became painter to the King of Spain in 1633. He painted remarkable portraits of religious men and is ranked among Spanish artists next to Velásquez and Murillo. Among the best paintings of Zurburan are St. Francis of Assisi, A Franciscan, Immaculate Conception, Crucifixion and a series of scenes from the Life of Saint Buenaventura. Died, 1662.

Zuloaga (soō'lō-ä'gä), Ignacio, Spanish painter, was born in the Basque region in 1870. He studied in Rome and Paris, later returning to his native Spain where he has painted a wide variety of typical Spanish subjects including bull fights, gypsies, beggars, water carriers and fruit venders. His work is strong and full of life and intensity. His paintings may be seen in the galleries of the leading cities of Europe and in America.

Zwingli (tsvĭng'lē), Ulrich, Swiss protestant reformer and patriot, was born at Wildhaus, 1484. In 1519 he was appointed to the cathedral at Zürich, having previously opposed the sale of indulgences by Sansom. Attempts were made to prohibit his preaching, but the reformation grew at Zürich. In 1529 Zwingli met Luther and Melanchthon at Marburg, but two years later he fell in the battle of Kappel in the war with Berne. Died, 1531.

· Book · IX ·

MULTIPLEX DICTIONARY

GENERAL DICTIONARY, INCLUDING DEFINITIONS, PRONUNCIATION, SYNONYMS AND ANTONYMS OF WORDS, AND INCLUDING MISPRONOUNCED WORDS, PERSONAL NAMES, LATINIZED WORDS, DERIVATIONS, PHONETIC SPELLING AND GEOGRAPHICAL NAMES. Page 633

CURRENT GLOSSARY, INCLUDING NEW WORDS AND NEW MEANINGS. . . . . Page 787

Copyright, 1920, by The Educators Association

BIRDS

1 Blue-and-Red Macaw.
2 Incomparable Bird of Paradise.
3 Golden Bird of Paradise.
4 Resplendent Trogon.
5 King Bird of Paradise.
6 Fire Weaver.
7 Paradise Flycatcher.
8 Broad-Shafted Whidah Bird.
9 Marsh Hawk.
10 Bald Eagle.
11 Barred Owl.
12 Golden Pheasant.

BOOK IX

MULTIPLEX DICTIONARY

Giving the definition, pronunciation, synonyms and antonyms of the words occurring in our common speech. Containing also the following valuable features: Proper syllabication, parts of speech, capitalization, words most often mispronounced, and a copious vocabulary of geographical, personal and curious names, with their pronunciation, origin and meaning. The cognates in other languages of personal names are also given.

KEY TO THE VOWEL SOUNDS

ä, as in farm, father; à, as in ask, fast; a, as in at, fat; ā, as in day, fate; â, as in care, fare; a, as in final; e, as in met, set; ē, as in me, see; ēr, as in her, ermine; i, as in pin, sin; ī, as in pine, line; o, as in not, got; ō, as in note, old; ô, as in for, fought; ŏ, as in sole, only; ō, as in fog, orange; ŏ, sound cannot be exactly represented in English. The English sound of u in burn and burnt is perhaps the nearest equivalent to ò; oo, as in cook, look; o͞o, as in coon, moon; u, as in cup, duck; ū, as in use, amuse; ů, as in fur, urge; ů sound cannot be exactly represented in English. The English sound of u in luke and duke resembles the original sound of ů. The letter N represents the nasal tone of the preceding vowel, as in encore (äN-kōr').

ABBREVIATIONS

Arab., Arabic or Arabian; A.-S., Anglo-Saxon; Boh., Bohemian; Eng., English; Fr., French; Gael., Gaelic; Ger., German; Gr., Greek; Heb., Hebrew; Hind., Hindustani; Hung., Hungarian; Ind., Indian; It., Italian; Lat., Latin; M. H. G., Middle High German; N. H. G., North High German; Nor., Norwegian; O. E., Old English; O. F. or O. Fr., Old French; O. G., Old German; O. H. G., Old High German; Pers., Persian; Port., Portuguese; Russ., Russian; Sp., Spanish; Sw., Swedish; Teut., Teutonic; Turk., Turkish.

NOTE.—Groups of synonyms are indicated thus: Syn. ABANDON; the word in brackets following the groups refers to the key word of related groups: words in brackets following definitions refer to the key words of the respective groups of synonyms. The key word is the first word in each group of synonyms. Words often mispronounced are marked thus: ★Aaron; ★abdomen.

A a (ā or à), indef. art. (contraction of an) one; any; used before words beginning with a consonant or the sound of h.

★Aaron (âr'un or ā'run). From the Hebrew 'Aharon, perhaps the same as hārōn, "a mountaineer"; Arab., Haroon or Harun; Fr., Aaron; Ger., Aaron or Aron; It., Aronne; Lat., Aaron; Port., Aarao; Sp., Aron.

ab-a-ca (ab'ä-kä), n. manila hemp.

ab-a-cist (ab'ä-sist), n. a calculator; accountant.

a-back (ä-bak'), adv. backward; pressed back against the mast; said of sails; taken by surprise.

ab-a-cus (ab'ä-kus), n. a contrivance of beads or balls strung upon rods used for arithmetical computation.

a-ban-don (ä-ban'dun), v. t. to give up; desert or forsake utterly: n. unrestraint.

Syn. ABANDON, abdicate, desert, forego, forsake, give up, leave, quit, relinquish, renounce, resign, surrender. A sinking ship is abandoned; a king abdicates his throne; a soldier deserts; we forego pleasures; a reformed man forsakes his evil ways; the miner relinquishes his claim; the monk renounces the world; his very name is resigned to oblivion. [See leave.]

Ant. ADOPT, claim, keep, maintain, pursue, support, vindicate.

a-ban-doned (ä-ban'dund), adj. given up entirely; shamelessly profligate.

Syn. ABANDONED, depraved, dissolute, forsaken, hardened, profligate, reprobate, unprincipled, vicious, vile. We speak of depraved beings; dissolute men; the forsaken child; the hardened criminal; the profligate son; the reprobate gamester; the unprincipled politician; the vicious classes of our large cities; the vile wretches that plot crime. [See corrupt, profligate, addicted.]

Ant. CARED FOR, controlled, holy, virtuous.

a-ban-don-ment (ä-ban'dun-ment), n. the act of abandoning; the state of being abandoned.

a-base (ä-bās'), v. t. to humble or degrade; dishonor.

Syn. ABASE, bring low, debase, degrade, disgrace, dishonor, humble, mortify, reduce, shame. These words are usually applied to persons only. Debase and reduce, however, have other applications. The penitent man humbles himself; the vicious man disgraces himself; metal may be debased; weight may be reduced. [See dishonor.]

Ant. ADVANCE, dignify, honor, raise.

a-base-ment (ä-bās'ment), n. the act of abasing or humiliating.

a-bash (ä-bash'), v. t. to put to confusion; to make ashamed by consciousness of guilt or error.

Syn. ABASH, confuse, confound. To abash is to abase thoroughly in spirit; it expresses more than confound, and confound more than confuse. A haughty man is abashed when he is humbled; a modest person is confused in the presence of superiors; the ways of Providence confound us. [See embarrass.]

Ant. ANIMATE, embolden, reassure.

a-bat-a-ble (ä-bāt'ä-bl), adj. that may be abated.

a-bate (ä-bāt'), v. t. to lessen; suppress: v. i. to decrease; moderate; subside.

Syn. ABATE, decline, decrease, diminish, lessen, recede, sink, slacken, subside, wane. With the exception of decrease these words are used in a transitive and an intransitive sense. A commotion subsides; storms abate; evils may lessen; sorrow diminishes. [See abridge.]

Ant. ANIMATE, augment, foment, rage.

a-bate-ment (ä-bāt'ment), n. the act of abating; the state of being abated; diminution. [DEDUCTION.]

a-bat-toir (ä-bät-twär'), n. a public slaughterhouse.

abb (ab), n. the yarn of the warp in weaving.

ab-ba-cy (ab'bä-si), n. the office and jurisdiction of an abbot.

ab-bé (ab-bā'), n. an ecclesiastic devoted to literature.

ab-bess (ab'bes), n. the lady superior of a convent or nunnery.

ab-bey (ab'bi), n. [pl. abbeys (-biz)], an establishment for religious devotees of either sex.

ab-bot (ab'but), n. the superior or head of an abbey.

ab-bre-vi-ate (ab-brē'vi-āt), v. t. to shorten, as by contraction of a word or the omission of words in a sentence; reduce a quantity to its lowest terms.

Syn. ABBREVIATE, contract, reduce, shorten. A long word is abbreviated; a stream in time of drought is contracted; the course of study is shortened; the size of the army is reduced. [See abridge.]

Ant. AMPLIFY, enlarge, lengthen.

ab-bre-vi-a-tion (ab-brē-vi-ā'shun), n. shortening or abbreviating; as, M. D. for doctor of medicine.

ab-di-cant (ab'di-kant), adj. renouncing; abdicating: n. one who renounces or abdicates.

ab-di-cate (ab'di-kāt), v. t. to renounce; relinquish the crown in favor of a successor. [ABANDON.]

ab-di-ca-tion (ab-di-kā'shun), n. the act of relinquishment or resignation.

★ab-do-men (ab-dō'men, not ab'dō-men), n. the belly; the cavity containing the digestive apparatus or viscera.

ab-dom-i-nal (ab-dom'i-nal), adj. pertaining to the abdomen.

ab-duct (ab-dukt'), v. t. to carry off by stealth or force; kidnap.

Syn. ABDUCT, abstract, carry off, deprive, kidnap, seize. Money may be unlawfully abstracted; the child was abducted or kidnaped; criminals are deprived of liberty; we seize opportunities. [See abstract.]

Ant. RESTORATION, restitution, replacement.

ab-duc-tion (ab-duk'shun), n. the act of abducting or kidnaping.

ab-duc-tor (ab-duk'tĕr), n. one who, or that which, abducts; a muscle moving certain parts.

a-beam (ä-bēm'), adv. at right angles to the keel of a ship.

a-bed (ä-bed'), adv. in bed; to bed.

Abel (ā'bl). From the Hebrew Hebhel, which St. Jerome translates "vanity" or "vapor." Gesenius renders the name "breath," and says the son of Adam was probably so called from the shortness of his life. Arab., Habeel or Habīl; Fr., Abel; Lat., Abel.

★Aberdeen (ab-ĕr-dēn', not ab'ĕr-dēn). The ancient orthography of this name was Aberdon, from aber, the mouth, and Don, the name of the river upon whose banks the city is built.

★ab-er-rant (ab-ĕr'rant), adj. departing from the usual path, type, or standard.

ab-er-ra-tion (ab-ĕr-rā'shun), n. the act of departing from the usual path, type, or standard; mental derangement; the unequal refraction of rays of light from a lens so that they do not converge to a single point.

a-bet (ä-bet'), v. t. to encourage; to aid or assist in the performance of an act, usually criminal.

Syn. ABET, advocate, aid, assist, back, connive at, countenance, egg on, foment, second, set on, support, sustain. The bad official abets crime and sanctions law-breaking; advocates less restraint, backs gamblers, foments trouble, supports questionable policies, and aids his faction.

Ant. DETER, disapprove, frustrate, forbid.

a-bet-ment (ä-bet'ment), n. the act of abetting or instigating to action or crime.

a-bet-ter or abettor (ä-bet'tĕr), n. one who aids or abets in the commission of a crime. [ACCOMPLICE, ACCESSORY.]

a-bey-ance (ä-bā'ans), n. state of being held, kept back, or held over; a state of suspension.

ab-hor (ab-hôr'), v. t. to hate, loathe, execrate, abominate; be strongly averse to.

Syn. ABHOR, abominate, detest, loathe. These terms equally denote a sentiment of aversion. We abhor what is base and ungenerous; we detest hypocrisy; we abominate profanation and open impiety; we loathe food when we are sick. [See hate.]

Ant. ADMIRE, crave, esteem, love.

ab-hor-rence (ab-hor'rens), n. detestation; extreme hatred. [ANTIPATHY, ABOMINATION.]

a-bide (ä-bīd'), v. t. to await, endure, tolerate: v. i. to dwell, reside, continue.

Syn. ABIDE, sojourn, dwell, live, reside, inhabit. Abide is to make a partial stay. Sojourn signifies to pass the day—that is, a certain portion of one's time—in a place. Dwell implies a stay in a place by way of residence, which is expressed in common discourse by the word live. Reside conveys the full idea of a settlement. Inhabit signifies to have or occupy for a permanency. The length of stay implied in these terms is marked by a certain gradation. Abide denotes the shortest stay; to sojourn is of longer continuance; dwell comprehends the idea of perpetuity in a given place, but reside and inhabit are partial and local. [See permanent.]

Ant. AVOID, depart, move, reject, resist.

ab-i-gail (ab'i-gāl), n. a waiting-maid, so called from Abigail, "thine handmaid."

a-bil-i-ty (ä-bil'i-ti), n. power to perform; skill to achieve; capability for carrying out; capacity to devise, receive, retain, or make use of.

Syn. ABILITY, capacity, capability, efficiency, faculty, talent. Ability comprehends the power of doing in general, without specifying the quality or degree; capacity is a particular kind of ability. Ability respects action, capacity respects thought. Ability always supposes something able to be done; it may vary in degree and quality with times, persons, and circumstances. Faculty is a gift of nature directed to a certain end, and following a certain rule. Talent imitates but does not originate. [See power, acquirement.]

Ant. FEEBLENESS, incapability, inefficiency.

ab-ject (ab'jekt), adj. worthless; mean; low; despicable; in a sunken or degraded condition.

ab-jec-tion (ab-jek'shun), n. the act of being cast down; cast away; degradation.

ab-ju-ra-tion (ab-jū-rā'shun), n. an oath of renunciation, as of allegiance; the act of renouncing.
ab-jure (ab-jūr'), v. t to renounce upon oath; forswear allegiance to; repudiate or recant.
ab-la-tive (ab'lă-tiv), n. one of the cases of Latin nouns, expressing chiefly separation and instrumentality.
a-blaze (ă-blāz'), adv. or adj. on fire; well alight; in a blaze; eager; inflamed with desire; resplendent.
a-ble (ā'bl), adj. possessed of power, means, or ability; qualified, competent.
a-ble-bod-ied (-bod'id) adj. possessed of physical strength; capable or efficient for duty.
a-bloom (ă-blōōm'), adv. and adj. in bloom.
ab-lu-ent (ab'lū-ent), adj. cleansing: n. that which cleanses; a substance which purifies the blood.
ab-lu-tion (ab-lū'shun), n. a washing or cleansing of the body by water; moral purification.
ab-lu-tion-a-ry (ab-lū'shun-ă-ri), adj. pertaining to cleansing. [reject.
ab-ne-gate (ab'nē-gāt), v. t. to refuse or deny; to ab-nor-mal (ab-nôr'mal), adj. irregular; deformed; unnatural; departing from a type or standard.
ab-nor-mal-i-ty (ab-nôr-mal'i-ti), n. [pl. abnormalities (-tiz)], the state or condition of being abnormal or irregular.
a-board (ă-bōrd'), adv. on or within a vessel: prep. into a ship.
a-bode (ă-bōd'), n. a place of continued residence.
a-bol-ish (ă-bol'ish), v. t. do away with; put an end to.

Syn. ABOLISH, abrogate, annul, cancel, countermand, do away with, end, make void, nullify, quash, repeal, revoke, vacate. This group conveys the idea of extinction. Anything which is entirely done away with, so that it is as if it had never been, may be said to be abolished. The law was abolished, or it may have been abrogated; a contract may be annulled; obligations are canceled; orders are countermanded; the day is ended; legislation is nullified; an indictment is quashed; a legislative act is repealed; an edict is revoked; an order of court is vacated. [See abate, destroy, abandon.]

Ant. AUTHORIZE, continue, promote, restore, revive, sustain.

ab-o-li-tion (ab-ō-lish'un), n. the act of abolishing; the state of being abolished.
Abolitionists. A term denoting the antislavery party in the United States, which appeared soon after the founding of The Liberator by William Lloyd Garrison in 1831.
a-bom-i-na-ble (ă-bom'i-nă-bl), adj. hateful; odious; offensive; unclean.
a-bom-i-nate (ă-bom'i-nāt), v. t. to abhor; regard with feelings of disgust or hatred. [ABHOR.]
a-bom-i-na-tion (ă-bom-i-nā'shun), n. excessive hatred; the act of abominating.

Syn. ABOMINATION, abhorrence, abuse, annoyance, aversion, crime, curse, detestation, disgust, evil, execration, hatred, horror, iniquity, nuisance, offense, plague, shame. Abomination signifies something very much disliked, or that deserves to be. Appetizing food may be an object of aversion and disgust to the sick vile food would be an abomination; abomination is used of such crimes as are especially brutal, shameful, or revolting; theft is an offense; infanticide is an abomination. [See antipathy.] ab-o-rig-i-nal (ab-ō-rij'i-nal), adj. original; primitive; existing from the beginning.

★ab-o-rig-i-nes (ab-ō-rij'i-nēz), n. pl. the first or primitive inhabitants of a country.
a-bor-tion (ă-bôr'shun), n. untimely birth; miscarriage.
a-bor-tive (ă-bôr'tiv), adj. born imperfect; arrested in development; without issue or result. a-bound (ă-bound'), v. i. to have in plenty or abundance.
a-bout (ă-bout'), adv. around; on every side; circuitously; near to; intending: prep. concerned in.
a-bove (ă-buv'), adv. overhead; in heaven; before; besides: prep. superior; in excess of.
a-bove-board (ă-buv'bōrd), adj. and adv. in open sight; without trickery.
ab-rade (ab-rād'), v. t. to wear or rub away; to remove as by friction or abrasion; to corrode.
ab-ra-sion (ab-rā'zhun), n. the act of wearing or rubbing away; a chafe.
a-breast (ă-brest'), adv. side by side; in line with; opposite to; at the same level.
a-bridge (ă-brij'), v. t. to curtail, shorten, condense, epitomize a-bridg-ment (ă-brij'ment), n. the state of being contracted or curtailed; an epitome.

Syn. ABRIDGMENT, compendium, epitome, digest, summary, abstract. The first four terms are applied to a distinct work, the two latter to parts of a work An abridgment is the reduction of a work into a smaller compass. A compendium is a general and concise view of any science, as geography or astronomy. An epitome is a compressed view of all the substantial parts of a thing, or, in other words, the whole of any matter brought into a small compass. A digest is any materials digested in order. A summary comprehends the heads and subdivisions of a work. An abstract includes a brief but comprehensive view of any particular proceeding. It is necessary to make abstracts of deeds or judicial proceedings.

a-broad (ă-brawd'), adv. widely; expansively; beyond the limits of house or country; wide of the mark ab-ro-gate (ab'rō-gāt), v. t. to abolish, annul, or repeal by authority. [ABOLISH.] ab-rupt (ab-rupt'), adj. broken; terminating suddenly; steep; precipitous; rough; unceremonious.
Ab-sa-lom (ab'să-lom). From the Heb. Abshalom, signifying "father of peace"; from abh, "father," and shalom. Fr., Absalon.
ab-scess (ab'ses), n. [pl. abscesses (-ez)], a collection of morbid matter or pus in the tissues of the body.
ab-scis-sion (ab-sizh'un), n. the act of severance; the breaking off in a sentence.
ab-scond (ab-skond'), v. i. to flee or retire in haste from the place of one's residence or post of duty.
ab-sence (ab'sens), n. the state of being absent; the period of being absent.
ab-sent (ab'sent), adj. not present; away; wanting; regardless; abstracted. [ABSTRACTED.]
ab-sent (ab-sent'), v. t. to retire or keep away from.
ab-sen-tee (ab-sen-tē'), n. one who is absent or absents himself purposely from home or duty.
★ab-sinthe (Eng. ab'sinth, Fr. ab-sant'), n. a bitter aromatic liquor compounded of brandy and wormwood.
ab-so-lute (ab'sō-lūt), adj. free as to condition; perfect in itself; unlimited in power.

Syn. ABSOLUTE, despotic, arbitrary, tyrannical. Absolute power is independent of and superior to all other power; an absolute monarch is uncontrolled, not only by men, but things. When this absolute power is assigned to any one according to the constitution of a government, it is despotic. Despotic power is something less than absolute power; a prince is absolute of himself; he is despotic by the consent of others. With arbitrariness is associated the idea of caprice and selfishness. With tyranny is associated the idea of oppression and injustice.

Ant. ACCOUNTABLE, dependent, limited, submissive, yielding.

ab-so-lu-tion (ab-sō-lū'shun), n. the act of absolving from the consequences of sin.
ab-so-lu-tism (ab'sō-lū-tizm), n. the state of being absolute.
ab-so-lu-tist (ab'sō-lū-tist), n. a supporter or advocate of despotic or absolute government.
ab-solve (ab-solv'), v. t. to release or set free; clear of crime or guilt; to forgive or remit.

Syn. ABSOLVE, acquit, clear, discharge, exculpate, exempt, exonerate, forgive, free, liberate, pardon, release, set free. To absolve is to set free from any bond. One may be absolved from a promise by a breach of faith on the part of one to whom the promise was made. To absolve from sins is formally to remit their condemnation and penalty, regarded as a bond upon the soul. To acquit of sin or crime is to free from the accusation of it; the innocent are rightfully acquitted; the guilty may be mercifully absolved. [See forgive.] ab-sorb (ab-sôrb'), v. t. to drink in; imbibe; suck or swallow up; engross or engage wholly.

Ant. ACCUSE, blame, condemn, impeach, to hold guilty.

Syn. ABSORB, consume, drink in, drink up, engross, exhaust, imbibe, suck up, swallow, swallow up, take in, take up. Wood absorbs moisture, iron absorbs heat; fuel is consumed in the fire, food in the body. A great talker engrosses the conversation. A credulous person swallows the most preposterous statements. [See abstracted.] ab-sorb-ent (ab-sôrb'ent), adj. absorbing: n. that which has the capacity for absorbing.

Ant. CAST OUT, disgorge, emit, radiate, vomit.

ab-sorp-tion (ab-sôrp'shun), n. the act or process of absorbing.
ab-stain (ab-stān'), v. t. to forbear; refrain; hold aloof; keep away from.
★ab-ste-mi-ous (ab-stē'mi-us, not ab-stem'i-us), adj. moderate and sparing in the use of food and drink.
ab-ster-gent (ab-stēr'jent), adj. possessing cleansing or purging properties: n. that which cleanses or purges.
ab-sti-nence (ab'sti-nens), n. the act or practice of abstaining: self-denial. [indulgence.
ab-sti-nent (ab'sti-nent), adj. refraining from over-ab-stract (ab-strakt'), v. t. to take or draw away; separate; purloin or steal; epitomize.

Syn. ABSTRACT, separate, distinguish. We abstract what we wish to regard particularly and individually; we separate what we wish not to be united; we distinguish what we wish not to confound. The mind performs the office of abstraction for itself; separating and distinguishing are exerted on external objects. Arrangement, place, time, and circumstances serve to separate; the ideas formed of things, the outward marks attached to them, the qualities attributed to them, serve to distinguish. [See abduct.]

Ant. ADD, append, combine, restore.

ab-stract (ab'strakt), n. an epitome; a summary, or abstract, comprising the essence or principal parts of a larger work: adj. considered or conceived apart from its concrete or material nature. [ABRIDGMENT.]
ab-stract-ed (ab-strakt'ed), p. adj. separated; disjoined; refined; abstruse; mentally absent.

Syn. ABSTRACTED, absent, absent-minded, absorbed, inattentive, indifferent, listless, oblivious, preoccupied, thoughtless. Absorbed, abstracted, and preoccupied refer to the cause, in mental action, absent or absent-minded to the effect; a man absorbed in one thing will appear absent in others; one preoccupied may seem listless and thoughtless, but the really listless and thoughtless have not mental energy to be preoccupied; an absent-minded man is oblivious of ordinary matters; a preoccupied one is intensely busy in thought. [See abstract.]

Ant. ALERT, prompt, thoughtful, wide-awake.

ab-strac-tion (ab-strak'shun), n. the act of separating or drawing away. [ner.
★ab-stract-ly (ab'strakt-li), adv. in an abstract man-ab-stra-hent (ab'strā-hent), adj. abstract.
★ab-struse (ab-strūs', not ab-strōōs'), adj. obscure; hidden. [OBSCURE, MYSTERIOUS.]
ab-surd (ab-sērd'), adj. contrary to reason or sense.

Syn. ABSURD, anomalous, chimerical, erroneous, false, foolish, inconclusive, incorrect, irrational, ludicrous, monstrous, nonsensical, paradoxical, preposterous, ridiculous, senseless, stupid, unreasonable, wild. Anything is absurd which is contrary to the first principles of reasoning; anything paradoxical appears at first thought contradictory or absurd, while it may be really true; irrational is that which is clearly contrary to sound reason, foolish when contrary to practical good sense, silly when petty and contemptible in its folly, erroneous when containing error that vitiates the result, unreasonable when there seems a perverse bias or an intent to go wrong. Monstrous and preposterous refer to what is overwhelmingly absurd. The ridiculous or the nonsensical is worthy only to be laughed at. [See incongruous, irrational.] ab-surd-i-ty (ab-sērd'i-ti), n. [pl. absurdities (-tiz)], the state of being absurd; that which is absurd.

Ant. DEMONSTRABLE, established, logical, sagacious, sound, true, wise.

a-bun-dance (ă-bun'dans), n. in great plenty; an overflowing quantity; affluence.
a-bun-dant (ă-bun'dant), adj. plentiful; fully sufficient; abounding.
a-buse (ă-būz'), v. t. to use ill; treat rudely or wrongfully; to defile or violate.

Syn. ABUSE, aggrieve, damage, defame, defile, disparage, harm, impose on or upon, injure, malign, maltreat, misuse, molest, oppress, persecute, pervert, prostitute, rail at, ravish, reproach, revile, ruin, slander, victimize, vilify, violate, vituperate, wrong. Everything is abused which receives any sort of injury; it is disused if not used at all, misused if turned to a wrong use. It is possible to abuse a man without harming him, as when the criminal vituperates the judge; or to harm a man without abusing him, as when the witness tells the truth about the criminal. Defame, malign, rail at, revile, slander, vilify, and vituperate are used always in a bad sense. One may be justly reproached. To impose on or to victimize any one is to injure him by abusing his confidence. To persecute is to ill-treat for opinion's sake; to oppress is generally for political or pecuniary motives. A dissolute youth misemploys his time, misuses his money and opportunities, harms his associates, perverts his talents, wrongs his parents, ruins himself. [See abomination.]

Ant. APPLAUD, cherish, consider, favor, praise, protect, respect, uphold.

a-buse (ă-būs'), n. ill-treatment; the excessive or injudicious use of anything; insult; violation.
a-bu-sive (ă-bū'siv), adj. practicing or containing abuse.
a-but (ă-but'), v. i. [p. t. and p. p. abutted, p. pr. abutting], to border upon (used with on, upon, against). [ADJACENT.] a-but-ment (ă-but'ment), n. that which borders, or abuts, upon something else.
a-buzz (ă-buz'), adv. filled with buzzing sounds.
a-bysm (ă-bizm'), n. an abyss; a gulf.
a-bys-mal (ă-biz'mal), adj. pertaining to an abyss; bottomless.
a-byss (ă-bis'), n. a bottomless gulf; that which is unfathomable; hell.
★Ab-ys-sin-i-a (ab-is-sin'i-ă). A country of Africa, named from the rivers Abai and Hawash, or, according to Bruce, from habesch, "mixed."
ac-a-dem-ic (ak-ă-dem'ik) or academical ('i-kal), adj. belonging or appertaining to a college or university ac-a-de-mi-cian (ak-ă-dē-mish'an), n. a member of an academy or society for promoting the arts, sciences, and literature.
a-cad-e-my (ă-kad'ē-mi), n. a private school or seminary for the teaching of the higher branches of education.
★A-ca-di-a (ă-kā'di-ă) or Acadie (ă-kā-dē'). The name originally given to Nova Scotia, but now only the poetical designation.
a-can-thus (ă-kan'thus), n. a plant having sharp-toothed leaves; ornamentation used in the capitals of the Corinthian and Composite orders.
ac-cede (ak-sēd'), v. i. to come or attain to; to agree or yield to. [AGREE.]
ac-cel-er-ate (ak-sel'ēr-āt), v. t. to hasten; to cause to move or progress faster. [HASTEN.]
ac-cel-er-a-tion (ak-sel-ēr-ā'shun), n. the act of accelerating; the state of being accelerated.
ac-cent (ak'sent), n. the stress laid by the voice upon a particular syllable or word, so as to render it more prominent than the rest; the emphasis placed upon certain notes of a bar of music: v. t. to express the accent, or note the vocal division of a word by stress or modulation of the voice.

ac-cen-tu-al (ak-sen'tū-al), adj. belonging to accent; rhythmical.

ac-cen-tu-ate (ak-sen'tū-āt), v. t. to speak, pronounce or mark with an accent.

ac-cept (ak-sept'), v. t. to take or receive with approbation; entertain; agree to.

ac-cept-a-ble (ak-sept'a-bl), adj. to be accepted; pleasing; agreeable.

Syn. ACCEPTABLE, grateful, welcome. Acceptable signifies worthy to be accepted. Grateful, pleasing, signifies altogether pleasing; it is that which recommends itself. The acceptable is a relative good; the grateful is positive; the former depends upon our external condition, the latter on our feelings and taste; welcome signifies come well or in season for us. It refers to whatever happens according to our wishes. It is a grateful task to be the bearer of welcome intelligence to our friends.

ac-cept-ance (ak-sept'ans), n. the act of accepting; the fact of being accepted.

ac-cep-ta-tion (ak-sep-tā'shun), n. the act of accepting, or state of being accepted or acceptable.

★ac-cess (ak-ses' or ak'ses), n. admittance or approach to a person or place; means of approach or admission.

ac-cess-i-ble (ak-ses'i-bl), adj. capable of being approached; easy of access; attainable.

ac-ces-sion (ak-sesh'un), n. a coming to, as by succession or by right; entrance or attainment.

ac-ces-so-ry (ak-ses'ō-ri),adj. aiding;contributing to some result or effect: n. [pl. accessories (-riz)], one who aids in the commission of a felony.

Syn. ACCESSORY, abetter or abettor, accomplice, ally, assistant, associate, attendant, coadjutor, colleague, companion, confederate, follower, henchman, partner, retainer. In law, an abettor is always present, either actively or constructively, at the commission of the crime; an accessory never. An accomplice is usually a principal; an accessory never. If present, though only to stand outside and keep watch against surprise, one is an abettor, and not an accessory. An accessory implies a principal, and can not be convicted until after the conviction of the principal; the accomplice or abettor can be convicted as a principal. Members of Congress from the same state are colleagues; an associate is a person of equal or nearly equal rank; an assistant to a physician is a medical student who shares in the treatment and care of patients; his attendant is one who rolls bandages; follower, henchman, retainer, are persons especially devoted to a chief; partner denotes almost exclusively a business connection. [See auxiliary.]

Ant. ANTAGONIST, commander, foe, leader, opponent, principal, rival.

ac-ci-dent (ak'si-dent), n. an event which is unexpected, or the cause of which was unforeseen.

Syn. ACCIDENT, adventure, calamity, casualty, chance, disaster, fortuity, hap, hazard, incident, misadventure, misfortune, mishap, possibility. An adventure is that which may turn out ill, a misadventure that which does turn out ill; a slight disturbing accident is a mishap; an accident is that which happens without any one's direct intention; a chance that which happens without any known cause; an incident is subordinate to the main purpose, or design; the slaughter of men is an incident of battle; unexpected defeat, the fortune of war. Since the unintended is often the undesirable, accident tends to signify some calamity or disaster, unless the contrary is expressed, as when we say a fortunate or happy accident. [See event.]

Ant. APPOINTMENT, calculation, decree, fate, foreordination, law, plan, preparation.

ac-ci-den-tal (ak-si-den'tal), adj. happening by chance or unexpectedly; fortuitous; nonessential: n. that which happens unexpectedly.

ac-claim (ak-klām'), v. i. to shout applause: n. a shout of joy or praise; acclamation.

ac-cla-ma-tion (ak-klā-mā'shun), n. a shout of applause, or other demonstration of hearty approval.

★ac-cli-mate (ak-klī'māt, not ak'klim-āt), v. t. to accustom a person to a foreign climate.

ac-cli-ma-tion (ak-kli-mā'shun), n. the process of acclimatizing.

ac-com-mo-date (ak-kom'mō-dāt), v. t. to adapt or make fit or suitable; adjust, settle.

ac-com-mo-da-tion (ak-kom-mō-dā'shun), n. the act of accommodating; or the state of being accommodated.

ac-com-mo-da-tive (ak-kom'mō-dā-tiv), adj. disposed or tending to accommodate.

★ac-com-pa-ni-ment (ak-kum'pa-ni-ment, not ak-kump'nim-ent), n. something which is added to or attends the original or principal thing.

ac-com-pa-nist (ak-kum'pa-nist), n. one who plays an accompaniment.

ac-com-pa-ny (ak-kum'pa-ni), v. t. to keep company with; escort; join in movement or action.

ac-com-plice (ak-kom'plis), n. an associate or companion in crime. [ACCESSORY.]

ac-com-plish (ak-kom'plish), v. t. to bring to completion, or to an issue; fulfill.

Syn. ACCOMPLISH, achieve, effect, execute. To accomplish an object signifies more than simply to effect a purpose, both as to the thing aimed at and the means employed in bringing it about. Extraordinary means are requisite for accomplishing, and ordinary means for effecting. To accomplish is properly said of that which a person sets before himself; but to effect, execute, and achieve do not relate to the views of a person acting, but to the thing brought about. What is executed is complicated in its nature, as to execute a design or project; what is achieved is grand, as to achieve an enterprise.

Ant. CEASE, fail, leave, neglect, rest.

ac-com-plish-ment (ak-kom'plish-ment), n. the completion of an act or undertaking; fulfillment. [QUALIFICATION.]

ac-cord (ak-kôrd'), v. t. and v. i. to be in agreement with; reconcile; agree; give; grant; concede.

ac-cord-ant (ak-kôrd'ant), n. the state of being in harmony or accord. [CONSONANT.]

ac-cord-ing (ak-kôrd'ing), p. adj. agreeing, harmonious: adv. in accordance (with) or agreeably (to).

ac-cor-di-on (ak-kôr'di-un), n. a small wind instrument, having keys and metallic reeds.

ac-cost (ak-kost'), v. t. to draw near, or come face to face with; speak to; salute: n. the act of accosting; manner. [ADDRESS.]

★ac-couche-ment (ak-kōōsh'măn), n. delivery in childbed; parturition; a lying-in.

ac-count (ak-kount'), v. t. to reckon or hold to be; compute; count: v. i. to assign an explanation: n. reckoning; a financial statement or memorandum.

ac-count-a-ble (ak-kount'a-bl), adj. answerable; responsible; liable to be called to account.

ac-count-an-cy (ak-kount'an-si), n. the art or practice of an accountant.

ac-count-ant (ak-kount'ant), n. one skilled in the keeping or examination of accounts.

★ac-cou-ter (ak-kōō'tẽr, not ak-kow'tẽr), v. t. to dress; equip; to array in military dress.

ac-cred-it (ak-kred'it), v. t. to give credit to; have confidence in; authorize.

ac-crete (ak-krēt'), v. i. to adhere; be added: v. t. to cause to grow or unite.

ac-cre-tion (ak-krē'shun), n. increase by natural growth; the addition of external parts.

ac-cre-tive (ak-krē'tiv), adj. adding to or increasing by growth.

★ac-crue (ak-krū', not ak'krōō), v. i. to come to happen or result to naturally as an increment, as of profit or loss.

ac-cru-er (ak-krū'ẽr), n. the act of accretion.

ac-cu-mu-late (ak-kū'mū-lāt), v. t. to collect or bring together; amass; heap up. [HEAP.]

ac-cu-mu-la-tion (ak-kū-mū-lā'shun), n. the act of accumulating or amassing.

ac-cu-mu-la-tive (ak-kū'mū-lā-tiv), adj tending to accumulate.

ac-cu-mu-la-tive judg-ment (juj'ment), a second judgment which takes effect against a person after the first sentence has expired.

ac-cu-mu-la-tor (ak-kū'mū-lā-tẽr), n. one who, or that which, accumulates; an apparatus for equalizing pressure.

ac-cu-ra-cy (ak'kū-rā-si), n. the quality of being accurate; exactness or correctness.

★ac-cu-rate (ak'kū-rāt, not ak'kẽr-it), adj. in exact conformity with the truth. [CORRECT.]

ac-curs-ed (ak-kẽrs'ed) or ac-curst (ak-kẽrst'), p. adj. under or subject to a curse.

ac-cu-sa-tion (ak-kū-zā'shun), n. a charge or imputation of wrongdoing. [COMPLAINT.]

ac-cu-sa-tive (ak-kū'za-tiv), adj. accusing: n. the objective case.

ac-cuse (ak-kūz'), v. t. to charge with guilt or blame.

Syn. ACCUSE, charge, impeach, arraign. The idea of asserting something to the prejudice of another is common to these terms; but accuse is said of acts, charge of moral qualities constituting the character; we accuse a person of murder; we charge him with dishonesty. High officials are impeached; criminals are arraigned.

ac-cus-er (ak-kūz'ẽr), n. one who accuses; one who formally charges an offense against another.

ac-cus-tom (ak-kus'tum), v. t. to habituate or familiarize by custom or use. [ADDICTED.]

ace (ās), n. [pl. aces (-ez)], a unit; in playing cards or dice, a card or die marked with a single pip.

A-ceph-a-la (a-sef'a-la), n. pl. a term applied to all bivalves, as the oyster, having no distinct head.

ace-point (ās'point), the single mark of the ace card and of the die marked with one spot.

a-cer-bi-ty (a-sẽr'bi-ti), n. [pl. acerbities (-tiz)], sourness; sharpness. [ACRIMONY.]

★ac-et-an-i-lide (as-et-an'i-lid or -līd), n. a pungent white powder, formed by the action of acetyl chloride on aniline.

ac-e-tate (as'ē-tāt), n. a salt of acetic acid.

★a-ce-tic acid (a-sē'tik or a-set'ik as'id), a clear liquid, with a strong acid taste and peculiar sharp smell.

a-cet-i-fy (a-set'i-fī), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. acetified, p. pr. acetifying], to turn into vinegar; make acetose.

ac-e-tin (as'ē-tin), n. a combination of acetic acid with glycerine.

ac-e-tone (as'ē-tōn), n. a clear volatile liquid, composed of carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen.

ac-e-tose (as'ē-tōs) or a-ce-tous (a-sē'tus), adj. of the nature of vinegar; sour; causing acetification.

★a-cet-y-lene (a-set'i-lēn), n. a brilliant illuminating gas.

ache (āk), n. pain, more or less continuous; v. i. to suffer, or be in, pain.

a-chiev-a-ble (a-chēv'a-bl), adj. possible to achieve; capable of being performed.

a-chieve (a-chēv'), v. t. to perform, carry out, accomplish. [ACCOMPLISH.]

a-chieve-ment (a-chēv'ment), n. the act of achieving; accomplishment.

ach-ing (āk'ing), p. adj. enduring or causing pain; painful: adv. with aching; painfully. [ation.

ach-ro-mat-ic (ak-rō-mat'ik), adj. free from colora-chro-ma-tize (a-krō'ma-tīz), v. t. to deprive of the power of transmitting color; to render achromatic.

ac-id (as'id), adj. sour and sharp or biting to the taste, as vinegar: n. anything sour.

a-cid-i-fi-ca-tion (a-sid-i-fi-kā'shun), n. the process of acidifying.

a-cid-i-fy (a-sid'i-fī), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. acidified, p. pr. acidifying], to make acid.

a-cid-i-ty (a-sid'i-ti), n. the quality of being acid or sour.

a-cid-u-late (a-sid'ū-lāt), v. t. to render slightly acid.

★ac-i-er-age (as'i-ẽr-āj), n. the term given to the process of electrically depositing iron on an engraved copper plate.

ac-i-form (as'i-fôrm), adj. needle-shaped.

ac-i-na-ceous (as-i-nā'shus), adj. consisting of, or full of, kernels, as the grape, mulberry, etc.

ac-knowl-edge (ak-nol'ej), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. acknowledged, p. pr. acknowledging], to admit or own to be true.

ac-knowl-edg-ment (ak-nol'ej-ment), n. the act of acknowledging; the admission or recognition of a truth.

ac-me (ak'mē), n. the highest point; the utmost reach; the crisis of a disease.

ac-ne (ak'nē), n. a pustular eruption of the body.

a-cock (a-kok'), adv. in a cocked or turned up manner.

a-col-o-gy (a-kol'ō-ji), n. the science of remedies.

★ac-o-lyte (ak'ō-līt), or acolyth (ak'ō-lith or -lith), n. the highest of the minor orders in the Roman Catholic church.

ac-o-nite (ak'ō-nīt), n. the plant wolfsbane or monkshood; the drug prepared from the plant.

a-con-i-tine (a-kon'i-tin or -tēn), n. the narcotic drug prepared from the roots and leaves of several species of aconite.

★a-corn (ā'kẽrn), n. the fruit of the oak.

a-cou-me-ter (a-kou'mē-tẽr or a-kōō'mē-tẽr) n. an instrument to test the power of hearing.

★a-cous-tic (a-kous'tik or a-kōōs'tik), adj. belonging to the science of sound: n. a remedy for deafness.

a-cous-tics (a-kous'tiks or a-kōōs'tiks), n. pl. the science of sound.

ac-quaint (ak-kwānt'), v. t. to familiarize or make one's self conversant with; furnish information.

ac-quaint-ance (ak-kwānt'ans), n. the state of being acquainted with a person or subject.

Syn. ACQUAINTANCE, association, companionship, experience, familiarity, fellowship, friendship, intimacy, knowledge. Acquaintance between persons supposes that each knows the other; there may be association in business without intimacy or friendship. Friendship includes acquaintance with some degree of intimacy, and ordinarily companionship; fellowship involves not merely acquaintance and companionship, but sympathy as well. [See love.]

Ant. IGNORANCE, ignoring, unfamiliarity.

ac-quaint-ed (ak-kwānt'ed), p. adj. having personal knowledge; familiar with; well known. [KNOW.]

ac-qui-esce (ak-kwi-es'), v. i. to agree; comply passively; assent (followed usually by in). [AGREE.]

ac-qui-es-cence (ak-kwi-es'ens), n. the act of submitting; silent assent.

ac-quire (ak-kwīr'), v. t. to gain or obtain possession of.

ac-quire-ment (ak-kwīr'ment), n. the act of acquiring; that which is acquired.

ac-qui-si-tion (ak-kwi-zish'un), n. the act of acquiring.

ac-quit (ak-kwit'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. acquitted, p. pr. acquitting], to release; set free. [ABSOLVE.]

ac-quit-tal (ak-kwit'tal), n. the act of releasing or acquitting; the state of being acquitted.

ac-quit-tance (ak-kwit'tans), n. a discharge or release from debt or other liability.

a-cre (ā'kẽr), n. a superficial measure of land containing 4,840 square yards.

ac-rid (ak'rid), adj. sharp or biting to the taste; pungent; irritating; stinging.

ac-ri-mo-ni-ous (ak-ri-mō'ni-us), adj. bitter; caustic; stinging.

ac-ri-mo-ny (ak'ri-mō-ni), n. sharpness of temper.

Syn. ACRIMONY, acerbity, asperity, bitterness, malignity, severity, sharpness, unkindness, virulence. Acrimony in speech or temper springs from settled character or deeply rooted feeling of aversion or unkindness. One might speak with momentary asperity to a child, but not with acrimony; acerbity is sharpness, with a touch of bitterness; asperity denotes distinct irritation or vexation; in speech asperity is often manifested by the tone of voice; malignity is the extreme of settled ill-intent; virulence is an envenomed hostility. Virulence makes language seem as if exuding poison. Virulence is outspoken; malignity may be covered with smooth and courteous phrase. We say intense virulence, deep malignity. Severity carries ordinarily the implication, true or false, of justice. [See anger; enmity.]

Ant. Amiability, gentleness, mildness.

ac-ro-bat (ak'rō-bat), n. a performer on the tight-rope; one who practices tumbling.

ac-ro-lith (ak'rō-lith), n. a sculptured figure, the head and extremities of which are of stone and the rest of wood.

★a-crop-o-lis (ȧ-krop'ō-lis), n. the highest part or citadel of a Grecian city.

a-cross (ȧ-krôs'), adv. and prep. from side to side.

a-cros-tic (ȧ-kros'tik), n. a composition, usually in verse, in which the first or last letters of the lines, or other letters taken in order, form a motto, phrase, name, or word.

act (akt), n. an action; process of doing; a decree, edict, or enactment; the judgment of a court.

ac-tin-i-um (ak-tin'i-um), n. a recently discovered radio-active element.

ac-tin-oid (ak'tin-oid), adj. having the form of rays; resembling a starfish.

ac-tion (ak'shun), n. the state of being active, as opposed to rest; the effect of one body upon another (used in sing.).

Syn. ACTION, gesture, gesticulation, posture, attitude. All these terms are applied to the state of the body; the three former indicating a state of motion; the two latter a state of rest. Action respects the movements of the body in general; gesture is an action indicative of some particular state of mind; gesticulation is a species of artificial gesture. Raising the arm is an action; bowing is a gesture. Actions may be ungraceful; gestures indecent. Posture and attitude both imply a mode of placing the body, but the posture is either natural or assumed; the attitude is always assumed or represented. We assume a sitting posture or an attitude of prayer.

ac-tion-a-ble (ak'shun-ȧ-bl), adj. giving grounds for an action at law.

ac-tive (ak'tiv), adj. endowed with or exercising the power or quality of action; constantly active.

Syn. ACTIVE, agile, alert, brisk, bustling, busy, diligent, energetic, expeditious, industrious, lively, mobile, nimble, officious, prompt, quick, ready, sprightly, spry, supple, vigorous. Both quickness and constancy of action are implied in active; in the former sense it is allied with agile, alert, brisk, etc.; in the latter with busy, diligent, industrious. The restless are active from inability to keep quiet; their activity may be without purpose, or out of all proportion to the purpose contemplated. The officious are undesirably active in the affairs of others.

Ant. Dull, idle, inert, lazy, slow, sluggish, stupid.

ac-tor (ak'tĕr), n. one who acts or performs; a stage-player.

ac-tress (ak'tres), n. a female actor.

ac-tu-al (ak'tū-al), adj. real; existing; present.

ac-tu-al-i-ty (ak-tū-al'i-ti), n. [pl. actualities (-tiz)], the state of being real or actual.

ac-tu-a-ry (ak'tū-ā-ri), n. [pl. actuaries (-riz)], a registrar or clerk of a court.

ac-tu-ate (ak'tū-āt), v. t. to move or incite to action.

a-cu-le-ate (ȧ-kū'lē-āt), adj. having sharp points; prickly.

★a-cu-men (ȧ-kū'men, not ȧk'ū-men), n. quickness of perception; penetration; discrimination.

a-cu-mi-nate (ȧ-kū'mi-nāt), adj. ending in a sharp point.

a-cute (ȧ-kūt'), adj. sharp-pointed; intellectually sharp; quick of perception; severe, as pain.

Syn. ACUTE, keen, shrewd. In the natural sense, a fitness to pierce is predominant in the word acute, and that of cutting, or a fitness for cutting, in the word keen. The shrewd man exposes follies. Arguments may be acute, reproaches keen, and replies or retorts shrewd. A shrewd understanding is rather quicker in discovering new truths than in distinguishing truth from falsehood. [See sharp.]

Ada (ā'dȧ). According to some, this name has been corrupted from Adama, feminine of Adam. Others derive it from the name Ead, which is from A.-S. ead, "happy"; or from the name Eadith. Littleton gives Eada (Saxon), Auda, Ada, and Idonea, which he translates, "fit," "meet," "proper"; also "pious," "honest," "rich."

ad-age (ad'āj), n. an ancient proverb or pithy saying.

Adam (ad'am). From the Hebrew Adham, signifying "man"; literally, "earthy," "red earth." Rudolph, however, says the name in Ethiopic means "to be fair," "beautiful." Arab., Adam; Danish, Adam; Dutch, Adam; Fr., Adam; Ger., Adam; It., Adamo; Lat., Adamus; Port., Adão (ȧ-down'); Sp., Adan.

ad-a-mant (ad'ȧ-mant), n. a substance of extreme hardness: the diamond: adj. formed of adamant.

★ad-a-man-tine (ad-ȧ-man'tin, not ad-ȧ-man'tēn), adj. made of adamant; impenetrable.

a-dapt (ȧ-dapt'), v. t. to make to correspond; fit by alteration or adaptation.

a-dapt-a-bil-i-ty (ȧ-dapt-ȧ-bil'i-ti), n. the quality of being adaptable.

ad-ap-ta-tion (ad-ap-tā'shun), n. the act of adjusting or adapting; the state of being adapted.

add (ad), v. t. to join, unite, sum up; increase; affix.

Syn. ADD, adjoin, affix, amplify, annex, append, attach, augment, cast up, enlarge, extend, increase, join on, make up, subjoin, sum up. To add is to increase by adjoining or uniting; to augment is to increase by any means; but we rather enlarge a house, a farm, or an empire; extend influence or dominion; augment riches, power or influence; attach or annex a building; affix a seal or a signature; a speaker or writer may amplify a subject, or may append or subjoin certain remarks; we add up and make up an account.

Ant. Deduct, diminish, lessen, remove.

ad-den-dum (ad-den'dum), n. [pl. addenda ('dȧ)], an appendix.

ad-der (ad'ĕr), n. the popular name for the viper.

ad-dict (ad-dikt'), v. t. to devote or give one's self up to: adj. addicted, devoted or abandoned to.

Syn. ADDICTED, abandoned, accustomed, attached, devoted, disposed, given, habituated, inclined, prone, wedded. Abandoned, relates to one who has surrendered to wickedness; addicted may be used in a good, but more frequently is used in a bad sense, as, addicted to study, addicted to drink; devoted is used chiefly in the good sense, as, a mother's devoted affection; one may be accustomed to labor, attached to his profession, devoted to his religion, given to study or to gluttony, inclined to luxury, one may become habituated to poverty, wedded to science or to art. Prone is used only in a bad sense, as, our hearts are prone to evil.

Ant. Averse, disinclined, unaccustomed.

ad-di-tion (ad-dish'un), n. the act or process of adding together; increase; the result of addition.

ad-dle (ad'l), adj. rotten; v. t. to make corrupt or putrid, as eggs: v. i. to become addled.

ad-dle-head-ed (ad-l-hed'ed), or ad-dle-pa-ted (ad-l-pā'ted), adj. stupid; weak-brained; muddled.

★ad-dress (ad-dres', not ad'dres), v. t. to straighten; to bring into line; to arrange, redress, as wrongs, etc.; n. a speech, delivered or written.

Syn. ADDRESS, accost, apostrophize, appeal, approach, court, greet, hail, salute, speak to, woo. Address is slightly more formal than accost or greet; one may address another at considerable length or in writing, he accosts orally and briefly; to accost is to speak first, to friend or stranger; greet is not so distinctly limited, since one may return another's greeting; greet and hail may imply but a passing word; greeting may be altogether silent; to hail is to greet in a loud-voiced and commonly hearty and joyous way; to salute is to greet with special token of respect, as a soldier his commander; to apostrophize is to solemnly address some person or personified attribute; a poet may apostrophize virtue, beauty, love, or even the deity; to appeal is strictly to call for some form of help or support. [See direction.]

Ant. Avoid, ignore, overlook, shun.

ad-duce (ad-dūs'), v. t. to bring forward or cite in proof or substantiation. [ALLEGE.]

ad-du-ci-ble (ad-dū'si-bl), adj. capable of being adduced.

★Adela (ad'ē-lȧ). A female name Latinized from Old German edel, "noble," "noble descent or lineage."

Adelaide (ad'ē-lād). From the Old German male name Adalheid (in Middle High German Adalhait, North High German Adelheid), signifying "a noble person."

ad-e-noid (ad'ē-noid), n. a tumor affecting a gland.

★a-dept (ȧ-dept', not ȧd'ept), adj. well skilled.

ad-e-qua-cy (ad'ē-kwȧ-si), n. sufficiency for a particular purpose.

ad-e-quate (ad'ē-kwāt), adj. equal to requirement or occasion; fully sufficient. [PROPORTIONATE.]

ad-here (ad-hēr'), v. i. to stick fast; become firmly attached to.

ad-her-ence (ad-hēr'ens), n. the act or state of adhering.

ad-her-ent (ad-hēr'ent), adj. adhering; sticking. [FOLLOWER.]

ad-he-sion (ad-hē'zhun), n. the state or act of adhering.

★a-dieu (ȧ-dū', French ȧd-yō'), n. [pl. adieus, adieux (ȧ-dūz')], good wishes at parting. [FAREWELL.]

Adirondack (ad-i-ron'dak). Mountains in New York and village in Warren county of the same state. Indian word compounded from doran, "a people who eat bark," and dak, "trees," with the French article la prefixed.

ad-it (ad'it), n. an entrance or passage; an entrance to a mine more or less horizontal.

ad-ja-cent (ad-jā'sent), adj. near; close to.

Syn. ADJACENT, abutting, adjoining, attached, beside, bordering, close, contiguous, near, neighboring, next, nigh. Adjacent farms may not be connected; if adjoining, they meet at the boundary line; contiguous may be used for either adjacent or adjoining; abutting refers to the end of one building or estate; buildings may be adjacent or adjoining that are not attached; near is a relative word, places being called near upon the railroad which would elsewhere be deemed remote; neighboring always implies proximity; next views some object as the nearest of several or many.

ad-jec-ti-val (ad-jek-tī'val), adj. of the nature of an adjective.

ad-jec-tive (ad'jek-tiv), n. a word used with a substantive or noun to express a quality or attribute of the thing named. [EPITHET.]

ad-join (ad-join'), v. t. to unite or join: v. i. to lie next to. [ADJACENT, ADD.]

ad-journ (ad-jĕrn'), v. t. to put off to another day.

ad-journ-ment (ad-jĕrn'ment), n. the act of adjourning; the postponement of a meeting.

ad-judge (ad-juj'), v. t. to determine in a controversy.

ad-ju-di-cate (ad-jū'di-kāt), v. t. to try and determine a case, as a court.

ad-ju-di-ca-tion (ad-jū'di-kā'shun), n. the act of determining judicially; a judicial sentence.

ad-ju-di-ca-tor (ad-jū'di-kā-tĕr), n. one who adjudicates.

ad-junct (ad'jungkt), n. something added to another thing, but not an essential part of it.

ad-ju-ra-tion (ad-jū-rā'shun), n. the solemn charging on oath.

ad-jure (ad-jūr'), v. t. to command on oath under pain of a penalty; to charge solemnly.

ad-just (ad-just'), v. t. to fit, or make exact; to make correspondent; to make accurate.

ad-just-ment (ad-just'ment), n. the act of adjusting.

ad-ju-tan-cy (ad'jū-tan-si), n. the office of an adjutant.

ad-ju-tant (ad'jū-tant), n. a regimental staff officer who assists the commanding officer.

ad-ju-tant gen-er-al (jen'ĕr-al), [pl. adjutants general], the chief staff officer of an army.

ad-meas-ure (ad-mezh'ūr), v. t. to measure dimensions; apportion.

ad-min-is-ter (ad-min'is-tĕr), v. t. to manage as chief agent or minister, as a king or president.

ad-min-is-tra-tion (ad-min-is-trā'shun), n. the act of administering, as government, justice, or medicine. [GOVERNMENT.]

ad-min-is-tra-tive (ad-min'is-trā-tiv), adj. pertaining to administration.

★ad-min-is-tra-tor (ad-min-is-trā'tĕr), n. one who administers affairs.

ad-min-is-tra-trix (ad-min-is-trā'triks), n. a female administrator.

★ad-mi-ra-ble (ad'mi-rȧ-bl, not ad-mi'rȧ-bl), adj. worthy of admiration; excellent.

ad-mi-ral (ad'mi-ral), n. the chief commander of a fleet.

Ad-mi-ral-ty (ad'mi-ral-ti), n. [pl. admiralities (-tiz)], the department of the English government having authority over naval affairs.

ad-mi-ra-tion (ad-mi-rā'shun), n. wonder excited by beauty or excellence.

ad-mire (ad-mīr'), v. t. to regard with strong approval.

Syn. ADMIRE, adore, applaud, approve, delight in, enjoy, esteem, extol, honor, love, respect, revere, venerate, wonder. Admire expresses a delight and approval, in which the element of wonder unconsciously mingles; we admire beauty in nature and art, delight in the innocent happiness of children, enjoy books or society; approve what is excellent, applaud heroic deeds; esteem the good, love our friends; honor and respect noble character, revere and venerate it in the aged; extol the goodness and adore the majesty of God.

Ant. Abhor, despise, dislike, execrate, hate, ridicule, scorn.

ad-mis-si-ble (ad-mis'i-bl), adj. worthy of being admitted.

ad-mis-sion (ad-mish'un), n. the power or permission to enter.

ad-mit (ad-mit'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. admitted, p. pr. admitting], to permit to enter.

Syn. ADMIT, allow, permit, suffer, tolerate. We admit by simply not refusing or preventing; we allow by positively granting or complying with; we admit that which concerns ourselves, or is done toward ourselves; we allow that which is for the convenience of others, or what they wish to do; what is suffered may be burdensome to the sufferer, if not morally wrong; what is tolerated is bad in itself, and suffered only because it cannot be prevented; no earthly power can permit that which divine law prohibits. [See consent.] ad-mit-tance (ad-mit'tans), n. the power or permission to enter.

ad-mix (ad-miks'), v. t. to mix with something else.

ad-mix-ture (ad-miks'tūr), n. a compound of substances mixed together.

ad-mon-ish (ad-mon'ish), v. t. to reprove gently; warn; instruct.

ad-mo-ni-tion (ad-mō-nish'un), n. friendly reproof or warning.

ad-mon-i-to-ry (ad-mon'i-tō-ri), adj. conveying reproof or warning.

ad-nate (ad'nāt), adj. with organic cohesion of unlike parts.

a-do (ȧ-dōō'), n. bustle; trouble.

★a-do-be (ȧ-dō'bā) n. unburnt brick dried in the sun, used for building in Central America and Mexico.

ad-o-les-cence (ad-ō-les'ens), n. the period of life between puberty and maturity; youth.

ad-o-les-cent (ad-ō-les'ent), adj. growing to maturity.

Adolphus (ȧ-dol'fus). The same as the Old German name Atalphus, which Wachter renders "helper of happiness," from od, "happiness," and hulf, "help" or "helper." It is commonly defined as "noble wolf." Danish, Adolf; Dutch, Adolf; Fr., Adolphe; Ger., Adolf or Adolph; It., Adolfo; Lat., Adolphus; Sp., Adolfo; Sw., Adolf.

a-dopt (ȧ-dopt'), v. t. to choose or take to one's self, as a child, an opinion, or a course of action.

a-dop-tion (ȧ-dop'shun), n. the act of adopting; the state of being adopted.

a-dor-a-ble (ȧ-dōr'ȧ-bl), adj. worthy of worship.
ad-o-ra-tion (ad-ō-rā'shun), n. act of worship.
a-dore (ȧ-dōr'), v. t. to pay divine honors to; honor highly; love intensely. [ADMIRE.] a-dorn (ȧ-dôrn'), v. t. to beautify; dignify; ornament; embellish. [tion.
a-dorn-ment (ȧ-dôrn'ment), n. ornament; decoraad-re-nal-in (ad-rē'nal-in), n. a hemostatic astringent principle of the suprarenal gland; the most powerful astringent known.
★Adrian (ā'dri-an) or Hadrian (hā'dri-an). From the German name Adrias, so called from the capital of the Prætutii, on the coast of the Adriatic, where the family of the Emperor Adrian, according to his own account, had its rise. Danish, Adrian; Dutch, Adriaan; Fr., Adrien; It., Adriano; Lat., Adrianus; Port., Adriano; Sp., Adrian.
a-drift (ȧ-drift'), adj. and adv. floating at random.
a-droit (ȧ-droit'), adj. exhibiting skill; dexterous. [CLEVER.] ad-u-la-tion (ad-ū-lā'shun), n. interested praise; flattery.
★a-dult (ȧ-dult', not ad'ult), adj. grown up to full age, size, and strength. [admixture.
a-dul-ter-ate (ȧ-dul'tẽr-āt), v. t. to corrupt by baser a-dul-ter-a-tion (ȧ-dul'tẽr-ā'shun), n. the debasing by admixture; deterioration.
a-dul-ter-y (ȧ-dul'tẽr-i), n. [pl. adulteries (-iz)], violation of the marriage bed.
ad-um-brate (ad-um'brāt), v. t. to shadow forth.
ad-vance (ad-vȧns'), v. i. to go forward: v. t. to further; to make a payment of beforehand: n. a moving forward. [ALLEGE.] ad-vance-ment (ad-vȧns'ment), n. furtherance; progress; promotion.
ad-van-tage (ad-vȧn'tāj), n. a state of advance or forwardness; a benefit.
ad-van-ta-geous (ad-vȧn-tā'jus), adj. of advantage; beneficial.
ad-vent (ad'vent), n. a coming or arrival.
Advent, n. the period including the four Sundays before Christmas.
ad-ven-ti-tious (ad-ven-tish'us), adj. happening by chance; casual; fortuitous.
ad-ven-tu-al (ad-ven'tū-al), adj. relating to the season of Advent.
★ad-ven-ture (ad-ven'tūr), n. an event the issue of which is determined by chance. [ACCIDENT.]
ad-ven-ture-some (ad-ven'tūr-sum), or adventurous (ad-ven'tūr-us), adj. inclined to incur risk. [ENTERPRISING, FOOLHARDY.] ad-verb (ad'vẽrb), n. a word used to modify the sense of a verb or adjective.
ad-ver-bi-al (ad-vẽr'bi-al), adj. of the nature of an adverb.
ad-ver-sa-ry (ad'vẽr-sā-ri), n. [pl. adversaries (-riz)], an opponent.
★ad-verse (ad'vẽrs), adj. opposed to. [verse.
ad-ver-si-ty (ad-vẽr'si-ti), n. a state of things ad-ad-vert (ad-vẽrt'), v. i. to turn one's attention to; refer.
ad-vert-ence (ad-vẽrt'ens), n. attention.
ad-vert-en-cy (ad-vẽrt'en-si), n. the habit of being attentive.
ad-vert-ent (ad-vẽrt'ent), adj. attentive.
★ad-ver-tise (ad-vẽr-tīz'), v. t. to turn the attention of others to. [ANNOUNCE.]
★ad-ver-tise-ment (ad-vẽr'tiz-ment or ad-vẽr-tīz'-ment), n. a notice in a public print.
ad-vice (ad-vis'), n. an opinion given for the practical direction of conduct. [INFORMATION.]
ad-vis-a-bil-i-ty (ad-vīz-ȧ-bil'i-ti), n. the quality of being advisable.
ad-vis-a-ble (ad-vīz'ȧ-bl), adj. fit to be advised.
ad-vise (ad-vīz'), v. t. to offer an opinion to; counsel.
ad-vised (ad-vīzd'), p. adj. acting with caution.
ad-vis-ed-ly (ad-vīz'ed-li), adv. with advice.
ad-vi-so-ry (ad-vī'zō-ri), adj. having power to advise.
ad-vo-ca-cy (ad'vō-kȧ-si), n. the act of pleading for.
ad-vo-cate (ad'vō-kāt), n. one called to the aid of another. [ABET.] [supporter.
ad-vo-ca-tor (ad'vō-kā-tẽr), n. an advocate; a ad-y-na-mi-a (ad-i-nā'mi-ȧ), n. great debility; physical weakness.
adz or adze (adz), n. a cutting tool having a curved blade at right angles to the handle. adz-plane, a tool for molding and rabbeting.
æ-o-li-an harp (ē-ō'li-an hȧrp), a stringed instrument, the wires of which are set in motion by air. [tion.
★æ-on or eon (ē'on), n. a period of immense dura-
★a-ër-ate (ȧ'ẽr-āt, not ā-rē'āt), v. i. to combine or charge with carbonic-acid gas, or with air.
a-ër-a-ted bread (ȧ'ẽr-ā-ted bred), bread raised by charging the dough with carbonic-acid gas.
a-ër-a-tion (ā-ẽr-ā'shun), n. the act of aërating.
★a-ē-ri-al (ā-ē'ri-al), adj. belonging to the air.
ae-rie (ē'ri), n. an eagle's nest; a brood of eagles or hawks.
★a-ër-i-fi-ca-tion (ā-ẽr-i-fi-kā'shun), n. the state of being made aëriform.
a-ër-i-form (ȧ'ẽr-i-fôrm), adj. having the form of air; gaseous.
a-ër-i-fy (ȧ'ẽr-i-fī), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. aërified, p. pr. aërifying], to infuse or combine with air.
a-ër-o-cyst (ȧ'ẽr-ō-sist), n. one of the air bladders of algæ.
a-ër-o-drome (ȧ'ẽr-ō-drōm), n. a mechanism for gliding on the air; a place for testing flying machines.
a-ër-o-dy-nam-ics (ā-ẽr-ō-di-nam'iks), n. the science which treats of air in motion.
a-ër-o-gram (ȧ'ẽr-ō-gram), n. a wireless telegraph message.
a-ër-o-lite (ȧ'ẽr-ō-līt), n. a meteorite.
★a-ër-om-e-ter (ā-ẽr-om'ẽ-tẽr), n. an instrument for weighing the air.
a-ër-o-mo-tor (ā-ẽr-ō-mō'tẽr), n. a flying machine driven through the air by a motor; a motor designed for use on an aëroplane.
★a-ër-o-naut (ȧ'ẽr-ō-nawt), n. an aërial navigator.
a-ër-o-phone (ȧ'ẽr-ō-fōn), n. an instrument invented by Edison for increasing the intensity of sound.
a-ër-o-phyte (ȧ'ẽr-ō-fīt), n. an air plant; a parasitical plant.
a-ër-o-plane (ȧ'ẽr-ō-plān), n. a flying machine, kept afloat by the force of its motor and the air.
a-ër-o-stat (ȧ'ẽr-ō-stat), n. a balloon; a flying machine.
a-ër-o-stat-ics (ā-ẽr-ō-stat'iks), n. the science which treats of the equilibrium of bodies sustained in air.
æs-the-si-om-e-ter (es-thē-si-om'ẽ-tẽr), n. an instrument for determining sensibility of touch.
æs-thet-ic or esthetic (es-thet'ik), adj. pertaining to æsthetics.
æs-thet-ics or esthetics (es-thet'iks), n. the science or theory of the beautiful.
a-far (ȧ-fȧr'), adv. at, to, or from, a distance.
af-fa-ble (af'fȧ-bl), adj. easy to be addressed; courteous.
af-fair (af-fȧr'), n. that which is done, or is to be done; business.
af-fect (af-fekt'), v. t. to produce an effect upon. [MOVING.]
af-fec-ta-tion (af-fek-tā'shun), n. the assuming a manner which is not one's own. [PRETENSE.]
af-fec-tion (af-fek'shun), n. having the feelings affected; inclination; attachment; fondness. [LOVE.]
af-fec-tion-ate (af-fek'shun-āt), adj. having affection; kind.
★af-fer-ent (af'fẽr-ent, not af-fẽr'ent), adj. conveying inward or to a part.
af-fi-ance (af-fī'ȧns), n. trust; a marriage-contract: v. t. to betroth. af-fi-da-vit (af-fi-dā'vit), n. a sworn statement in writing. [TESTIMONY.]
af-fil-i-ate (af-fil'i-āt), v. t. to assign a child to its father; v. i. to be intimately connected or associated (followed by with).
af-fin-i-ty (af-fin'i-ti), n. [pl. affinities (-tiz)], nearness of kin.
af-firm (af-fẽrm'), v. t. to confirm, as a judgment: v. i. to assert strongly. [ALLEGE.]
af-fir-ma-tion (af-fẽr-mā'shun), n. an averment. [TESTIMONY.]
af-firm-a-tive (af-fẽrm'ȧ-tiv), n. that which affirms: adj. affirming or asserting. af-fix (af-fix'), v. t. to fix to; attach; n. a letter or syllable added to end of a word. [ADD.] af-fla-tus (af-flā'tus), n. a breath or blast of wind; inspiration.
af-flict (af-flikt'), v. t. to cause prolonged pain to body or mind; to distress.
af-flic-tion (af-flik'shun), n. prolonged pain of body or mind; state of distress.
Syn. AFFLICTION, grief, sorrow. Affliction lies deeper in the soul than grief. It is too deep to be vehement. Continued sickness of our friends will cause affliction; the failure of our favorite schemes will occasion grief; our own mistake will cause sorrow. [See grief.] af-flu-ence (af'flū-ens), n. an abundant supply, as of thoughts, words, riches; wealth.
★af-flu-ent (af'flū-ent, not af-flōō'ent), n. a tributary stream: adj. abundant.
af-flux (af'fluks), n. an increase; an influx.
af-ford (af-fôrd'), v. t. to supply; produce; yield; be capable of bearing the expense of.
af-fray (af-frā'), n. the fighting of two or more persons in a public place. [FEUD.]
af-fright (af-frīt'), v. t. to frighten; terrify; alarm; confuse.
af-front (af-frunt'), v. t. to offend; to insult.
af-ghan (af'gan, not af'kan), n. a crocheted or knitted soft wool blanket or carriage robe.
Afghan, adj. pertaining to Afghanistan: n. a native of Afghanistan.
a-field (ȧ-fēld'), adv. to, in, or on, the field; astray.
a-flame (ȧ-flām'), adj. and adv. in flames; ablaze.
a-float (ȧ-flōt'), adj. and adv. floating; in circulation.
a-foot (ȧ-foot'), adv. on foot; astir.
a-fraid (ȧ-frād'), adj. frightened.
a-fresh (ȧ-fresh'), adv. again; anew.
Af-ri-can (af-ri'kan), adj. pertaining to Africa.
aft (ȧft), adj. and adv. toward the stern.
af-ter (ȧf'tẽr), adj. next, subsequent, later: prep. behind in place: adv. behind; subsequent in time or place.
af-ter-clap (-klap), n. an untoward event happening after an affair is supposed to be at an end.
af-ter damp (damp), the carbonic-acid gas found in coal mines after an explosion of fire damp.
af-ter-math (-mȧth), n. a second mowing; rowen.
af-ter-noon (-nōōn'), n. the part of the day between noon and evening.
af-ter-ward (-wẽrd), or afterwards (-wẽrdz), adv. at a later time; subsequently.
a-gain (ȧ-gen'), adv. a second time; in return; further; anew.
★a-gainst (ȧ-genst', not ȧ-gānst'), prep. opposite to; in opposition to; contrary to one's inclinations.
★a-gape (ȧ-gāp' or ȧ-gāp'), adj. and adv. gaping; with the mouth wide open.
ag-ate (ag'ȧt), n. a precious stone, a variety of chalcedony; Scotch pebble.
age (āj), n. a particular period of time in life or in history; time. [TIME.]
aged (ā'jed), old. [ELDERLY.]
a-gen-cy (ā'jen-si), n. that which makes action.
a-gent (ā'jent), n. one who acts, especially for another; an active power or cause. [MINISTER.]
ag-glom-er-ate (ag-glom'ẽr-āt), v. t. to gather into a heap; accumulate.
ag-glom-er-a-tion (ag-glom-ẽr-ā'shun), n. a heap.
ag-glu-ti-nate (ag-glū ti-nāt), v. t. to glue together: adj. glued together.
ag-glu-ti-na-tion (ag-glū-ti-nā'shun), n. the act or condition of being united or joined together.
★ag-gran-dize (ag'gran-dīz), v. t. to make great or greater in power.
ag-gran-dize-ment (ag-gran'dīz-ment), n. exaltation; advancement.
ag-gra-vate (ag'grȧ-vāt), v. t. to add to a load; intensify.
Syn. AGGRAVATE, irritate, provoke, exasperate, tantalize. The crime of robbery is aggravated by any circumstances of cruelty; whatever comes across the feelings irritates; whatever awakens anger provokes; whatever heightens this anger extraordinarily exasperates; whatever raises hopes in order to frustrate them tantalizes.
ag-gra-va-tion (ag-grȧ-vā'shun), n. the act of making worse.
ag-gre-gate (ag'grē-gāt), v. t. to collect or bring together; gather into a mass or body; accumulate. adj. formed into a mass or total.
ag-gre-ga-tion (ag'grē-gā'shun), n. a collection of particulars.
ag-gres-sion (ag-gresh'un), n. unprovoked attack.
ag-gres-sive (ag-gres'iv), adj. unjustly attacking.
ag-gres-sor (ag-gres'ẽr), n. one who attacks.
ag-grieve (ag-grēv'), v. t. to bear heavily upon oppress. [ABUSE.]
a-ghast (ȧ-gȧst'), adj. struck with sudden astonishment, or terror.
ag-ile (aj'il), adj. easily moving about; active in body; nimble. [ACTIVE.] ag-i-tate (aj'i-tāt), v. t. to stir violently.
ag-i-ta-tion (aj-i-tā'shun), n. the act of agitating; excitement; discussion.
ag-i-ta-tor (aj'i-tā-tẽr), n. one who starts or keeps up a political or other agitation.
a-glow (ȧ-glō'), adj. and adv. in a glow; glowing.
Agnes (ag-nes or ag'nez). From the Greek agnos, "chaste." Danish, Agnes or Agnete; Dutch, Agnes; Fr., Agnes; Ger., Agnes; It., Agnese; Lat., Agnes.
★ag-nos-tic (ag-nos'tik), n. one who denies that man possesses any knowledge of the ultimate nature of things.
a-go (ȧ-gō'), adv. in past time; since (as, "long ago," "some time ago").
a-gog (ȧ-gog'), adj. and adv. in agitation or expectation; eager.
a-go-ing (ȧ-gō'ing), adv. on the going; in motion.
ag-o-nis-tics (ag-ō-nis'tiks), n. the science of athletic combats.
ag-o-nize (ag'ō-nīz), v. i. to suffer anguish; make convulsive efforts.
ag-o-ny (ag'ō-ni), n. [pl. agonies (-niz)], extreme pain; anguish. [DISTRESS.]
Agra (ā'grȧ) or Akberabad. A city of India, founded by Akber. Name derived from ȧbad, a dwelling or town, generally connected with the name of its founder; hence, "town of Akber."
a-gra-ri-an (ȧ-grā'ri-an), adj. relating to land, or to land tenure.
a-gra-ri-an-ism (ȧ-grā'ri-an-izm), n. the principle of a uniform division of land.
a-gree (ȧ-grē'), v. i. to harmonize physically, mentally, or morally: to accord.
Syn. AGREE, accede, consent, comply, acquiesce. To agree is the general term, meaning to fall in with. We accede by becoming a party to a thing; those who accede are on equal terms; one objects to that to which one does not accede; we consent to a thing by authorizing it; we comply with a thing by allowing it; those who consent or comply are not on equal terms with those in whose favor the consent is given or compliance made; consenting is an act of authority, complying an act of good-nature or weakness; to acquiesce is quietly to admit.
a-gree-a-bil-i-ty (ȧ-grē-ȧ-bil'i-ti), n. agreeableness.
a-gree-a-ble (ȧ-grē'ȧ-bl), adj. pleasing to the mind or senses. [CONFORMABLE, PLEASANT.]
a-gree-ment (ȧ-grē'ment), n. harmony of opinions or feelings.
ag-ri-cul-ture (ag'ri-kul-tūr), n. the science and art of cultivating fields by the plow.
a-grin (ȧ-grin'), adj. and adv. in the act or state of grinning.
a-ground (ȧ-ground'), adj. and adv. on the ground; the situation of a ship whose bottom touches the ground.
a-gue (ā'gū), n. an intermittent fever; the cold fit of an intermittent fever.
ah (ȧ), interj. an exclamation expressive of sudden emotion.
a-head (ȧ-hed'), adv. in the front; forward.
a-heap (ȧ-hēp'), adv. in a heap.
a-hem (ȧ-hem'), interj. an exclamation to call attention.

a-hoy' (ə-hoi'), interj. a term used in hailing a vessel.
a-hull (ə-hul'), adv. with sails furled and helm lashed alee.
aid (ād), v. t. to assist; support: n. help; assistance. [HELP, ABET.] ★aid-de-camp (ād'du-kăn), n. [pl. aids-de-camp (ādz)], an officer who assists a general.
★al-gret (ăl'gret) or algrette (ăl-gret'), n. the small white heron; a plume arranged in imitation of the feathers of the heron.
all (ăl), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. ailed, p. pr. ailing], to give or cause pain: v. i. to feel pain; be afflicted with pain.
★Ailean or Alleen (ā-lēn'). An Irish female name. Some translate it "light." If so, it may be a form of Helen; but it is more probably from the Erse ail, "noble," "beautiful"; or from aille, "handsome," "fair"; or corrupted from ailgean, "noble offspring."
★ail-ment (āl'ment, not āl'munt), n. a slight disorder of the body; sickness.
aim (ām), v. i. [p. t. and p. p. aimed, p. pr. aiming], to endeavor after; direct at something; seek. [ENDEAVOR.]
air (ār), v. t. to expose to the air; dry, as clothes; to exhibit ostentatiously: n. the fluid which we breathe. [PRETENSE.] air gas (gas), an illuminating gas made from air.
air gun (gun), a gun discharged by the elastic force of compressed air.
air-i-ness (ār'i-nes), n. the state of being airy; gayety.
air-ing (ār'ing), n. a walk, ride, or drive in the open air. [See line.
air line (līn), a straight line. Also called a air plant (plant), a plant which derives its nourishment from the air.
air pump (pump), a machine for exhausting the air from a receiver. [steering apparatus.
air-ship (ār'ship), n. a balloon with motor and air-y (ār'i), adj. exposed to, or composed of, air; breezy; unsubstantial; gay.
★aisle (īl), n. wing of a building; passage in a church.
★Aix-la-Chapelle (āks-lä-shä-pel') or Aachen (ä'ken). A city of Rhine province, Prussia, Germany, celebrated for its mineral springs, and for the chapel erected over the tomb of Charlemagne.
a-jar (ə-jär'), adj. and adv. slightly turned or opened, as a door; out of harmony.
a-jog (ə-jog'), adv. on the jog; jogging.
a-kim-bo (ə-kim'bō), adv. with the hands on the hips and the elbows turned outward.
a-kin (ə-kin'), adj. and adv. of kin; related by blood; allied by nature.
Akron (ak'ron). City in Summit county, Ohio, which occupies the highest ground in the northern part of the state, and several other places named for the same reason.
Alabama (al-ə-bā'mə) State of the Union and a river of that state, named from an Indian tribe. There are several explanations of the meaning of the word. Gatchet gives "burnt clearing." Others say it means "Here we rest." Haines, in his American Indian, gives "thicket clearers."
al-a-bas-ter (al'ə-bas-tẽr), n. a white, marble-like mineral; a box made of alabaster.
a-lack (ə-lak'), interj. an exclamation expressive of blame, sorrow, or surprise.
a-lac-ri-ty (ə-lak'ri-ti), n. eager readiness; joyous activity; briskness.
★Alameda (ä-lä-mā'dä). County and city in California; town in Bernalillo county, New Mexico; and post office in Clarke county, Alabama, named from the cottonwood trees growing in the vicinity. A Spanish word, meaning "grove of poplar trees."
★Alamo (ä'lä-mō). Post office in Contra Costa county, California, and many other places named from the old fort in Texas, which was so called from a grove of cottonwood trees.
al-a-mode (al-ə-mōd'), adv. in the fashion: adj. fashionable: n. a thin, light, glossy, black silk.
Alan (al'an). Some derive this name from Old French alan, allan, "a hunting dog," originally from the country of the Alani or Alauni, a warlike people of European Sarmatia.
★Alaric (al'ar-ik, not al-ar'ik). From the Gothic, alareiks, "noble ruler." Danish, Alarik; Fr., Alaric; Ger., Alarich; It., Alarico; Lat., Alaricus; Sp., Alarico.
a-larm (ə-lärm'), v. t. to arouse to a sense of danger; strike with apprehension of danger.
a-las (ə-lăs'), interj. an exclamation expressive of unhappiness.
Alaska (ə-las'kə). Territory of the United States An Indian word, meaning "great country." It was encountered by Russian explorers as Al-ay-es-ka the name having since changed through Aliaska, Alaksa, Alashka, to its present form.
Albany (awl'bə-ni). County and city in New York, named in honor of the duke of York (from his second title, Albany), afterward James II. of England; Albany, derived from his Scotch title, originally the same as Albyn, the Celtic name of Scotland.
al-ba-tross (al-bə-tros), n. a sea bird allied to the petrel, inhabiting the Pacific and Southern oceans.
al-be-it (awl-bē'it), conj. although; even though; notwithstanding.
Albemarle (al'bē-märl) sound, N. C. After the duke of Abermarle.
al-bum (al'bum), n. a blank book in which to insert autographs, photographs, stamps, etc.
★al-bu-men (al-bū'men, not al'bū-men), n. the white of an egg.
al-bu-men-ize (al-bū'men-īz), v. t. in photography, to coat (paper) with an albuminous solution.
★al-bu-min (al-bū'min), n. a variant of albumen.
★Albuquerque (Sp. äl-bōō-kĕr'kā), New Mexico. Named by the Spaniards, from Albuquerque, a town in Spain, near the frontier of Portugal, which took its name from Alphonso d'Albuquerque.
★Alcazar (al-kä'zär). From the Arabic, al qaer, "the castle." The palace of the Moorish kings, and, later, of Spanish royalty at Seville.
al-che-mist (al'kē-mist), n. one who studies or practices alchemy.
al-che-my (al'kē-mi), n. the professed art of transmuting the baser metals into gold. [wine.
al-co-hol (al'kō-hol), n. pure or rectified spirits of al-co-hol-ism (al'kō-hol-izm), n. a diseased condition produced by alcohol.
★Al-co-ran (al'kō-ran or al-kō-răn'), n. the Koran: the Mohammedan bible.
al-cove (al-kōv'), n. a recess in a room or a garden; a bower.
al-der (awl'dẽr), n. a genus of plants growing in moist land and related to the birch.
al-der-man (awl'dẽr-man), n. [pl. aldermen (-men)], in cities and boroughs a magistrate next in dignity to the mayor.
ale (āl), n. a liquor made from an infusion of malt by fermentation.
a-lee (ə-lē'), adv. and adj. on the lee or sheltered side of the ship; the opposite of aweather.
a-lert (ə-lẽrt'), adj. on the watch; active: n. an alarm; a sudden attack. [ACTIVE.] ★Aleutian (ə-lū'shi-an, not ə-lū'shan). Islands in the Pacific Ocean. A derivation of the Russian word aleaut, meaning "bald rock," later appearing in the name applied to the river Olutora on the coast of Kamchatka, the people near the mouth of the stream being called Olutorsky.
Alexander. From the Greek name Alexandros, "helper of men." Dutch, Alexander; Fr., Alexandre; Ger., Alexander; It., Alessandro; Lat., Alexander; Sp., Alejandro or Alexandro.
Alexandria. An Egyptian city named after Alexander the Great.
al-ex-an-drine (al-eks-an'drin), n. a kind of heroic verse of six iambic feet, or twelve syllables.
★Alexis (a-leks'is). From the Greek name Alexis, "help," "defense;" Fr., Alexis; Russ., Alexei.
Alfred. This name is usually translated "all peace." Neidinger derives the first syllable of the Anglo-Saxon name Alfred, Aelfred, from the word alp, alf, elf, "strong," "powerful." The name is rather from alf-rad, "help in counsel." Danish Alfred; Dutch, Alfred; Fr., Alfred; Ger., Alfred; It., Alfredo; Lat., Alfredus; Sp., Alfredo.
★al-gæ (al'jē), n. pl. one of the great divisions of cryptogamic plants, including seaweeds and kindred fresh-water plants.
★al-ge-bra (al'jē-brə, not al'jē-brā), n. the science of calculation by general symbols.
★al-ge-bra-ic (al-jē-brā'ik) or al-ge-bra-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. occurring in or dealing with algebra.
★Algernon (al'jẽr-nun). From als (aux) gernons; was originally given in the twelfth century to those who, contrary to the fashion of the time, wore their whiskers. Roquefort renders the Old French, gernon, grenon, guernon, ghernon, "poil de la barbe, moustache"; from Med. L. granus, greno; the latter is no doubt from L. crinis, "hair of the head."
Algiers (al-jērz'). From the Arabic, al jezair, "the peninsula." Seaport of northern Africa.
★Alhambra (al-ham'brə). From the Arabic, al-hamra'u, "red." A great citadel and palace founded in the thirteenth century above the city of Granada, Spain, by the Moorish kings.
★a-li-as (ā'li-əs, not al'i-as), adv. otherwise (named): n. [pl. aliases (-ez)], an assumed name.
al-i-bi (a'li-bī), n. the plea of having been elsewhere when the alleged act was committed.
Alice (al'is). From the Teutonic, meaning "noble" or "noble cheer." Danish, Else; Dutch, Elsie; Fr., Alice; Lat., Alicia; Sw., Elsa.
★al-ien (āl'yen, not ā'li-en), adj. belonging to another: n. a foreign-born resident of a country.
al-ien-ate (āl'yen-āt), v. t. to estrange, as the affections; transfer to another, as property.
al-ien-a-tion (āl-yen-ā'shun), n. estrangement.
a-light (ə-līt'), v. i. to dismount; to descend and settle; to come upon accidentally.
a-lign (ə-līn'), same as aline.
a-lign-ment (ə-līn'ment), same as alinement.
a-like (ə-lik'), adj. like one another. [EQUAL.] ★al-i-ment (al'i-ment, not ā'lim-ent), n. food; the necessaries of life generally.
al-i-men-tal (al-i-men'tal), adj. having the quality of nourishing.
al-i-men-ta-ry (al-i-men'tə-ri), adj. pertaining to food; nutritious.
al-i-men-ta-ry ca-nal (kə-nal'), the great duct which conveys food to the stomach and carries off solid excreta.
al-i-men-ta-tion (al-i-men-tā'shun), n. the act of giving nourishment.
al-i-mon-y (al'i-mŏn-i), n. means of living; an allowance made by decree of court to a wife out of her husband's estate on separation.
a-line (ə-līn), v. t. to lay out or adjust by a line; v. i. to form or fall into a line.
Allson (al'i-son). A Scottish female name, which in old parish registers is spelled Alisone. It is of French origin, and the same as Alizon. Roquefort gives Alizon, Aleite, Aileze, Aileye, Auly, as female diminutives of Alexis.
a-live (ə-līv'), adj. having life; in a state of action; sprightly; sensitive; thronged.
al-ka-hest (al'kə-hest), n. the pretended universal solvent of the alchemists.
al-ka-li (al'kə-lī or -li), n. [pl. alkalis or alkalies], one of a class of caustic bases, as soda, potash, etc.
★al-ka-line (al'kə-lin or -līn), adj. pertaining to, or having the properties of, an alkali.
al-ka-loid (al'kə-loid), n. a body or substance containing alkaline properties.
al-ka-net (al'kə-net), n. a plant the root of which yields the rich red dye of commerce.
all (awl), adj. the whole quantity of, as substance, duration, extent, amount, or degree.
Al-lah (ăl'lä), n. the Arabic name for the supreme being, in use among the Mohammedans.
al-lay (al-lā'), v. t. to quiet or calm; assuage; appease.
Syn. ALLAY, appease, assuage, mitigate, soothe. All these terms indicate a lessening of something painful. In a physical sense an irritating pain is allayed; a wounded part is soothed by affording ease and comfort. Extreme heat or thirst is allayed; extreme hunger is appeased; a punishment or sentence is mitigated. In a moral sense one allays what is fervid and vehement; one soothes what is distressed or irritated; one appeases what is tumultuous and boisterous; one mitigates the pain of others, or what is rigorous and severe; one assuages grief or affliction.
★Allee Verte (ăl-lā' vẽrt). A double avenue of limes beginning at the western end of the Boulevard d'Anvers in Brussels and extending along the bank of the Willebroeck canal.
al-le-ga-tion (al-lē-gā'shun), n. the act of alleging.
al-lege (al-lej'), v. t. to produce or adduce as argument.
Syn. ALLEGE, adduce, advance, affirm, assert, asseverate, assign, aver, cite, claim, declare, introduce, maintain, offer, plead, produce, say, state. To allege is to state as true or capable of proof, without proving; to adduce is to bring forth the evidence of what has been alleged; to produce is to bring forward, as, for instance, papers or persons; adduce is not used of persons; of them we say introduce or produce; when an alleged criminal is brought to trial, the counsel advance a theory, adduce evidence in its support, produce documents and witnesses, cite precedents, assign reasons, introduce suggestions, offer pleas. The accused may assert his innocence.
★Alleghany (al'ē-gā-ni), Allegheny, Allegany. County, city, and river in Pennsylvania, counties in Maryland, New York, North Carolina, West Virginia, and mountains in eastern United States. An Indian word, the origin of which is in dispute.
★al-le-giance (al-lē'jans or al-lē'ji-ans), n. the tie or obligation of a subject to his sovereign or government.
al-le-gor-ic (al-lē-gor'ik) or al-le-gor-i-cal (''i-kal), adj. pertaining to, consisting of, or in the nature of, allegory; figurative.
al-le-go-ry (al'lē-gō-ri), n. [pl. allegories (-riz)], a figurative manner of treating a subject by the use of other terms analogous in properties or circumstances. [FICTION.]
Allen. According to some, this is the same name as Allan and Alan. Lower shows that it is found written Allayne. It is a probable corruption of the name Alwine.
Allentown. City in Lehigh county, Pennsylvania, and borough in Monmouth county, New Jersey, named for William Allen of Pennsylvania, at one time chief justice of the province.
al-le-vi-ate (al-lē'vi-āt), v. t. to lighten; lessen; make easier; mitigate.
al-ley (al'li), n. [pl. alleys ('liz)], a passage; a way (generally narrow); a lane.
All-hal-lows (awl-hal'lōz), n. pl. All Saints' day, celebrated on the first of November.
al-li-ance (al-lī'ans), n. the state of being allied.
al-li-ga-tion (al-li-gā'shun), n. a rule for ascertaining the value or price of a compound.
al-li-ga-tor (al'li-gā-tẽr), n. the American crocodile.
al-lit-er-a-tion (al-lit-ẽr-ā'shun), n. the repetition of the same initial letter in closely succeeding words.
al-lit-er-a-tive (al-lit'ẽr-ā-tiv), adj. pertaining to, or characterized by, alliteration.
al-lo-cate (al'lō-kāt), v. t. to assign or allot; distribute.
al-lo-cu-tion (al-lō-kū'shun), n. an address of a formal nature.
★al-lo-path (al'lō-path) or al-lop-a-thist (al-lop'ə-thist, not al'lō-path-ist), n. one who favors or practices allopathy.
★al-lop-a-thy (al-lop'ə-thi), n. a method of treating disease by inducing an action opposite to the disease it is sought to cure.
al-lot (al-lot'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. allotted, p. pr. allotting], to distribute or divide, as by lot.
al-lot-ro-py (al-lot'rō-pi), n. the capability shown by certain chemical elements to assume different forms.
al-low (al-low'), v. t. to grant, yield; admit; deduct. [CONSENT, ADMIT.] al-low-ance (al-low'ans), n. the act of allowing: admission; concession.
al-loy (al-loi'), v. t. to combine; to form a compound; n. a compound or fusion of two or more metals.

all one (awl wun), adj. and n. in effect the same; quite the same.
all-round (-round), adj. versatile.
all sorts (sôrts), remnants of various liquors blended together.
All Souls' day (sôlz dā), the day, celebrated second of November by the Roman Catholic church, in honor of the departed.
all-spice (awl'spīs), n. the fruit or berry of the pimento.
all told (awl tōld), adv. all counted.
al-lude (al-lūd'), v. t. to compare: v. i. refer or make an allusion indirectly (with to).
Syn. ALLUDE, hint, refer, suggest. To allude is not so direct as to refer, but it is more clear and positive than either hint or suggest. We allude to a circumstance by introducing something collaterally allied to it; we refer to an event by expressly introducing it into our discourse; we hint at a person's intentions by darkly insinuating what may possibly happen; we suggest an idea by some poetical expression relative to it. Ant. ALLEGE, assert, prove.
al-lure (al-lūr'), v. t. to tempt by the offer of something good, real, or apparent; entice. [ATTRACT, PERSUADE.] al-lu-sion (al-lū'zhun), n. a casual reference; a comparison or reference by symbol or metaphor.
al-lu-vi-um (al-lū'vi-um), n. [pl. alluvia (-ȧ)], a deposit of mingled sand and clay.
al-ly (al-lī'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. allied, p. pr. allying], to unite. [ACCESSORY.]
Alma (al'mȧ). At the time of the war between England and Russia this name was introduced in the west of England, so christened after the battle of the Alma.
Almack's (awl'maks). This well-known place of assembly in King street, St. James', London, was built by one MacCall, a tavern-keeper, in 1759.
al-ma-nac (awl'mȧ-nak), n. a yearbook or calendar giving the order of the days of the week and month, and astronomical data.
al-might-y (awl-mīt'i), adj. possessing all power; omnipotent.
★alm-ond (ä'mund, not al'mund), n. the kernel of the fruit of the almond-tree.
al-mon-er (al'mun-ėr), n. one who dispenses or distributes alms or charity.
al-mon-ry (al'mun-ri), n. [pl. almonries (-riz)], the residence of the almoner.
al-most (awl'mōst), adv. nearly; very nearly.
alms (ämz), n. sing. [used sometimes as n. pl.], the act of relieving by charitable aid.
alms-house ('hous), n. a house endowed by private or public charity and appropriated to the use of the poor.
al-oes (al'ōz), n. a drug, the inspissated juice of several species of aloe.
a-loft (ȧ-lôft'), adv. on high; far above the earth.
a-lone (ȧ-lōn'), adj. and adv. without or apart from another.
a-long (ȧ-lông'), prep. and adv. by the length of; lengthwise.
a-long-shore-man (-shōr-man), n. [pl. -men], a laborer employed at docks.
a-long-side ('sīd), adv. by the side; side by side.
Alonzo (ȧ-lon'zō) or Alonso. See Alphonso.
a-loof (ȧ-lōōf'), adv. at a moderate distance but within sight.
a-loud (ȧ-loud'), adv. with raised voice; loudly.
★al-pac-a (al-pak'ȧ, not al-ȧ-pak'ȧ), n. a mammal, closely allied to the llama.
al-pen-glow (al'pen-glō), n. a peculiar purple glow on the snow on the Alps seen just before sunrise and after sunset.
al-pen-horn (-hôrn), n. a long and nearly straight horn used by the mountaineers of the Alps.
al-pen-stock (-stok), n. a stout staff, furnished with an iron spike, used by mountain climbers.
al-pha-bet (al'fȧ-bet), n. the letters of a language.
Alphonso (al-fon'sō, al-fon'zō), or Alonzo. From the Teutonic, meaning "battle eager." Danish, Alfons; Fr., Alphonse; It., Alfonso; Lat., Alphonsus; Port., Affonso; Sp., Alfonso or Alonso.
Alps. The word alp, or alb, is Celtic, and signifies "white." Its application to the white tops of the mountains of the Alps is a natural one.
al-read-y (awl-red'i), adj. quite ready; fully prepared.
al-so (awl'sō), adv. and conj. wholly so; in addition to.
★Altai (äl-tī', not al'ti). A mountain, or range, in central Asia, rich in the precious metals; Al-tai (for Altagh) is the Tartaric form of the name. Hence the name Altaic which is applied to languages of the Mongol-Turkic class.
al-tar (awl'tėr), n. a raised place for the offering of sacrifices or burning of incense.
al-ter (awl'tėr), v. t. to effect some change in.
al-ter-a-tion (awl-tėr-ā'shun), n. the act of altering or changing.
al-ter-a-tive (awl'tėr-ȧ-tiv), adj. producing change.
al-ter-cate (awl'tėr-kāt), v. i. to contend in words.
al-ter-ca-tion (awl-tėr-kā'shun), n. the act of wrangling. [DIFFERENCE.]
★al-ter-nate (al'tėr-nāt or al-tėr'nāt), v. t. to perform by turns: v. i. to take place by turns (followed by with): adj. (al-tėr'nāt), succeeding each other by turns. [SUCCESSIVE.] al-ter-na-tion (al-tėr-nā'shun), n. the act of alternating, or state of being alternate.
★al-ter-na-tive (al-tėr'nȧ-tiv), adj. giving the choice of two things.
Syn. ALTERNATIVE, choice, election, option, pick, preference, resource. A choice may be among many things; an alternative is a choice between two things; option is the right or privilege of choosing; choice may be either the right to choose, the act of choosing, or the thing chosen. Ability and readiness to meet difficult situations indicate resources. Pick and election imply objects placed before one, with freedom and power to choose, as, there were horses of several colors from which I could take my pick. A choice, pick, election, or preference is that which suits one best; an alternative is that to which one is restricted; a resource, that to which one is glad to betake him.
Ant. COMPULSION, necessity. al-though (awl-thō'), conj. granting that; though; even if; notwithstanding.
al-ti-tude (al'ti-tūd), n. space extended upward; height.
al-ti-tu-di-nal (al-ti-tū'di-nal), adj. of or pertaining to height.
al-to (al'tō), adj. high: n. the contralto.
al-to-geth-er (awl-tōō-geth'ėr), adv. wholly.
Altoona (al-tōō'nȧ). City in Blair county, Pennsylvania, so named because of its high situation in the Alleghany mountains, and town in Polk county, Iowa, situated on the highest point between the Des Moines and Mississippi rivers. A derivative of the Latin word altus, "high."
★al-tru-ism (al'trōō-izm), n. the principles inculcated by Comte, and involving the sacrifice of self in the interests of others: opposed to egoism.
al-tru-ist (al'trōō-ist), n. one who advocates or practices altruism.
al-um (al'um), n. a double sulphate formed of aluminium and some other element.
a-lu-mi-na (ȧ-lū'mi-nȧ), n. the single oxide of aluminium, the most abundant of the earths.
★al-u-min-i-um (al-ū-min'i-um) or a-lu-mi-num (ȧ-lū'mi-num), n. a bluish-white, light metal.
a-lum-na (ȧ-lum'nȧ), n. [pl. alumnæ ('nē)], a female graduate or pupil of a university or college.
a-lum-nus (ȧ-lum'nus), n. [pl. alumni (-nī)], the graduate of a school, college, or university.
Alvin (al'vin). Means "winning all." Dutch, Alewijn; Fr., Aluin; Ger., Alwin; It., Alvino; Lat., Alwinus; Sp., Aluino.
al-ways (awl'wāz), adv. constantly.
★Amadeus (am-ȧ-dē'us). Translated a "lover of God." Fr., Amadée; Ger., Amadeus; It., Amedeo; Lat., Amadeus; Sp., Amadeo.
a-main (ȧ-mān'), adv. with force or violence; suddenly; at once.
a-mal-gam (ȧ-mal'gȧm), n. any metallic mixture or alloy of which mercury is the chief constituent.
a-mal-ga-mate (ȧ-mal'gȧ-māt), v. t. to alloy mercury with another metal.
a-mal-ga-ma-tion (ȧ-mal-gȧ-mā'shun), n. the act or process of compounding mercury with another metal.
Amanda (ȧ-man'dȧ). A feminine name from the Latin amanda, "to be loved"; i. e., "worthy of being loved." It is also found as a masculine name in the parish registers of Nottingham, England.
a-man-u-en-sis (ȧ-man-ū-en'sis), n. [pl. amanuenses ('sēz)], one who is employed to write at the dictation or direction of another; a secretary.
am-a-ranth (am'ȧ-ranth), n. an imaginary flower said by poets to be unfading.
a-mass (ȧ-mȧs'), v. t. to collect into a heap. [HEAP.] ★am-a-teur (am'ȧ-tūr, Fr. ȧ-mȧ-tōr'), n. one who cultivates an art or pursues a study from love or attachment, without reference to gain or emolument.
am-a-tive (am'ȧ-tiv), adj. amorous; full of love.
am-a-to-ri-al (am-ȧ-tō'ri-al), adj. pertaining to love; amatory.
am-a-to-ry (am'ȧ-tō-ri), adj. relating to, or expressive of, love.
am-au-ro-sis (am-aw-rō'sis), n. loss or decay of sight a-maze (ȧ-māz'), v. t. to confound or stun with fear.
am-bas-sa-dor (am-bas'ȧ-dėr), n. an accredited representative of a sovereign or state at the court of another.
Syn. AMBASSADOR, envoy, plenipotentiary, deputy. Ambassadors, envoys, and plenipotentiaries speak and act in the name of their sovereigns. An ambassador is invested with the highest authority, acting in all cases as the representative; the envoy appears simply as an authorized minister acting for another, but not always representing him; the plenipotentiary is a species of envoy used on the occasion of concluding peace or making treaties; deputies are not deputed by sovereigns, although they may be deputed to sovereigns; they have no power to act or speak but in the name of some subordinate community or particular body. The functions of the three first belong to the minister, those of the latter to the agent.
am-ber (am'bėr), n. a yellowish fossil resin found on the shores of the Baltic.
★am-ber-gris (am'bėr-grēs, not am'bėr-gris), n. a morbid secretion from the intestines of the sperm-whale, usually found floating in tropical seas.
am-bi-dex-trous (am-bi-deks'trus), adj. able to use both hands alike; unusually clever.
am-bi-ent (am'bi-ent), adj. surrounding; investing.
am-bi-gu-i-ty (am-bi-gū'i-ti), n. [pl. ambiguities (-tiz)], double or dubious signification.
am-big-u-ous (am-big'ū-us), adj. doubtful. [EQUIVOCAL, OBSCURE.] am-bi-tion (am-bish'un), n. a seeking for preferment.
am-bi-tious (am-bish'us), adj. having ambition.
am-ble (am'bl), v. i. to move with a peculiar pace, as a horse, by lifting the two feet on one side together.
am-bly-o-pi-a (am-bli-ō'pi-ȧ) or amblyopy (am'bli-ō-pi), n. dimness of vision.
Ambrose (am'brōz). From the Latin name Ambrosius, meaning "immortal," "divine," "godlike." Danish, Ambrosius; Dutch, Ambrosius; Fr., Ambroise; Ger., Ambrosius or Ambros; It., Ambrogio; Sp., Ambrosio.
am-bro-sia (am-brō'zhȧ or 'zhi-ȧ), n. anything exquisitely pleasing to taste or smell. [delicious.
am-bro-sial (am-brō'zhal or 'zhi-al), adj. divinely am-bu-lance (am'bū-lans), n. a field hospital; a vehicle for the sick or wounded.
am-bu-la-tion (am-bū-lā'shun), n. the act of walking about.
am-bus-cade (am-bus-kād'), n. a strategic disposition of troops in ambush. [surprise.
am-bush (am'boosh), n. a lying in wait to attack by ★a-meer (ȧ-mēr'), n. a prince; governor.
Amelia (ȧ-mē'li-ȧ). From Aemylia, name of a noble family in Rome; also the name of a vestal who rekindled the fire of Vesta, which had been extinguished, by putting her veil over it. The name means "gentle," "engaging," "courteous." Danish, Amalie; Fr., Amélie; Ger., Amalie; Sp., Amelia.
★a-mel-io-rate (ȧ-mēl'yō-rāt, not ȧ-mē'li-ō-rāt), v. t. to make better.
a-mel-io-ra-tion (ȧ-mēl-yō-rā'shun), n. the making or growing better.
a-men (ā-men' or ȧ-men'), adv. verily: interj. so be it.
a-me-na-bil-i-ty (ȧ-mē-nȧ-bil'i-ti) or amenableness (ȧ-mē'nȧ-bl-nes), n. tractableness; responsibility.
★a-me-na-ble (ȧ-mē'nȧ-bl, not ȧ-men'ȧ-bl), adj. easy to lead.
a-mend (ȧ-mend'), v. t. to free from fault.
Syn. AMEND, correct, emend, improve, mend, better. Amend, emend, and correct are all applied to works of the understanding, with this distinction, that amend signifies to remove faults or defects generally, either by adding, taking away, or altering, as to amend a law; to emend is to remove particular faults in any literary work by the alteration of letters or single words; to correct is to remove gross faults; mend is employed in respect to any work in the sense of putting that right which either is or has become faulty; to improve is said either of persons or things which are made better; as to improve the mind, morals, etc.; to better is mostly applied to the outward condition on familiar occasions.
a-mend-ment (ȧ-mend'ment), n. the removal of faults; the alteration of a bill.
a-mends (ȧ-mendz'), n. pl. compensation for loss. [COMPENSATION.] a-men-i-ty (ȧ-men'i-ti), n. [pl. amenities (-tiz)], pleasantness, as of climate or demeanor; geniality.
a-merce (ȧ-mėrs'), v. t. to punish by arbitrary fine.
America. From Amerigo Vespucci, sometimes spelled Vespucius, who landed on the western continent south of the equator in 1497. His name was given to this country by a German geographer, Martin Waldseemüller, who published an account of the four voyages of Vespucci at Frankfort, Germany, in 1507.
A-mer-i-can (ȧ-mer'i-kan), adj. belonging to, or characteristic of, America.
A-mer-i-can-ism (ȧ-mer'i-kan-izm), n. a form of expression peculiar to the United States.
am-e-thyst (am'ē-thist), n. a violet-purple variety of quartz or rock crystal.
Amherst (am'ėrst). County in Virginia, and town in Hillsboro county, New Hampshire, and Hampshire county, Massachusetts.
a-mi-a-bil-i-ty (ā-mi-ȧ-bil'i-ti), n. amiableness.
a-mi-a-ble (ā'mi-ȧ-bl), adj. friendly.
am-i-ca-ble (am'i-kȧ-bl), adj. friendly; peaceable.
a-mid (ȧ-mid') or amidst (-midst'), prep. in the middle of; among.
a-miss (ȧ-mis'), adj. wrong; faulty: adv. wrongly.
am-i-ty (am'i-ti), n. friendly relations; friendship.
am-mo-ni-a (am-mō'ni-ȧ), n. a transparent, pungent, volatile gas.
am-mu-ni-tion (am-mū-nish'un), n. powder, balls, etc., used in charging firearms of all kinds.
am-ne-si-a (am-nē'si-ȧ), n. loss of memory.
am-nes-ty (am'nes-ti), n. an act of oblivion for political offenses; a general pardon.
★a-mœ-ba (ȧ-mē'bȧ), n. [pl. amœbas ('bȧz), amœbæ ('bē)], a genus of microscopic organisms.
★a-mong (ȧ-mung') or amongst (-mungst'), prep. and adv. mixed with; surrounded by; amidst.
am-o-rous (am'ō-rus), adj. fond of the opposite sex; loving.
a-mor-phous (ȧ-môr'fus), adj. formless.
a-mor-tize (ȧ-môr'tiz), v. t. to sell and convey to a corporation having perpetual succession.
Amos (ā'mus). From the Hebrew, signifying a "burden." Fr., Amos.
a-mount (ȧ-mount'), v. i. to mount up to; be equivalent or equal to.
am-phib-i-ous (am-fib'i-us), adj. having the power of living both on land and in water.
am-phi-brach (am'fi-brak), n. a foot of three syllables, the middle long, the first and last short.

am-phi-the-a-ter, -tre (am-fi-thē'ā-tĕr), n. a double theater; a theater with seats all around the arena; a circus.
am-ple (am'pl), adj. full; large; abundant.
am-pli-fi-ca-tion (am-pli-fi-kā'shun), n. the act of amplifying. am-pli-fy (am'pli-fī), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. amplified, p. pr. amplifying], to make large. [ADD.] am-pu-tate (am'pū-tāt), v. t. to lop off in pruning.
am-pu-ta-tion (am-pū-tā'shun), n. the operation of cutting off a limb.
a-muck (ā-muk'), adj. or adv. (used only in the phrase, to run amuck), running about armed, in a state of frenzy.
am-u-let (am'ū-let), n. a charm worn to protect against evil; a talisman.
a-muse (ā-mūz'), v. t. to occupy the attention of pleasantly.
Amy (ā'mi). Some derive this name from the French aimée, "beloved"; others from amie, "a friend." It is found Latinized both Amata and Amicia. Danish, Amalie; Fr., Aimée; It., Amata.
Anabella. A feminine name formed from Hannibal.
★an-ach-ro-nism (an-ak'rō-nizm), n. an error in the order of time.
an-a-con-da (an-ā-kon'dā), n. the specific name of a large South American boa.
★a-næ-mi-a or anemia (ā-nē'mi-ā), n. deficiency or low condition of the blood.
★an-æs-the-si-a or anesthesia (an-es-thē'si-ā or 'zhi-ā), n. a condition of insensibility to pain.
an-æs-thet-ic. See anesthetic. [relief.
an-a-glyph (an'ā-glif), n. a work of art carved in an-a-glyp-to-graph (an-ā-glip'tō-grāf), n. an instrument by which a medallion engraving of any object in relief can be made.
★an-a-gram (an'ā-gram), n. a word or a sentence constructed out of another by the transposition of the letters contained in the second.
a-nal (ā'nal), adj. relating to the anus.
an-a-lect (an'ā-lekt), n. [pl. analects (-lekts) or analecta (-lek'tā)], a passage or extract from a published work.
an-al-ge-si-a (an-al-jē'si-ā), n. insensibility to pain in any part of the body.
a-nal-o-gism (ā-nal'ō-jizm), n. a reasoning from the cause to the effect.
★a-nal-o-gous (ā-nal'ō-gus), adj. possessing points of analogy.
an-a-logue (an'ā-log), n. an object which bears analogy to something else.
★a-nal-o-gy (ā-nal'ō-ji), n. [pl. analogies (-jiz)], agreement, resemblance, or correspondence in relations between different objects.
a-nal-y-sis (ā-nal'i-sis), n. [pl. analyses (-sēz)], the resolution of a compound into its constituent parts.
an-a-lyt-ic (an-ā-lit'ik), or an-a-lyt-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. relating to, or characterized by, the method of analysis.
an-a-lyze (an'ā-līz), v. t. to separate or resolve.
an-a-pest or anapæst (an'ā-pest), n. a foot comprising two short syllables and one long syllable.
an-a-plas-ty (an'ā-plas-ti), n. the repairing of wounds by the transplantation of adjacent healthy tissue.
★an-arch-ist (an'ärk-ist), n. one who supports or promotes a scheme for anarchy.
★an-arch-y (an'ärk-i), n. nonexistence or incapability of governmental rule.
a-nath-e-ma (ā-nath'ē-mā), n. [pl. anathemas (-māz)], the curse accompanying excommunication.
a-nath-e-ma-tize (ā-nath'ē-mā-tiz), v. t. to pronounce a decree of excommunication against.
an-a-tom-i-cal (an-ā-tom'i-kal), adj. relating to, or according to, the laws of anatomy.
a-nat-o-mism (ā-nat'ō-mizm), n. anatomical analysis or structure.
★a-nat-o-mist (ā-nat'ō-mist), n. one possessing a knowledge of anatomy derived from dissection.
a-nat-o-my (ā-nat'ō-mi), n. [pl. anatomies (-miz)], separation by dissection of the various parts of a body.
an-ces-tor (an'ses-tĕr), n. a forefather or progenitor. [FOREFATHER.]
an-ces-try (an'ses-tri), n. the line of one's descent traced from a period more or less remote.
★an-chor (ang'kĕr), n. an iron implement of varying form, used to secure a floating vessel to the bottom.
an-chor-age (ang'kĕr-āj), n. a suitable or customary place for the anchoring of vessels.
an-chor-et (ang'kōr-et) or anchorite (-it), n. one who voluntarily secludes himself from society and lives a solitary life.
an-chor ice (ang'kĕr īs), ground ice.
★an-cho-vy (an-chō'vi, not an'chō-vi), n. [pl. anchovies ('viz)], a diminutive fish abounding in the Mediterranean.
★an-cient (ān'shent), adj. of or pertaining to the early history of the world; of past times or remote ages. [ANTIQUE, OBSOLETE.] an-cil-la-ry (an'sil-lā-ri), adj. attended upon; accessory; subservient.
★Andalusia (an-dā-lōō'shi-ā). Now a captaincy-general in southern Spain, comprising the modern provinces Almeria, Jaen, Granada, Cordova, Malaga, Seville, Cadiz, and Huelva.
★Andes (an'dēz) Properly Cordilleras de los Andes, "the chain of the Andes," is a name of uncertain meaning Garcilasso de la Vega says that it was derived from the Anti tribe near Cuzco. It has also been referred to a Peruvian word anta, "copper." Another proposed etymology is from anta, a "tapir," of which the Portuguese plural would be antas, so that the Cordilleras de los Antas would mean the "mountains of the tapirs."
and-i-rons (and'i-ürnz), n. pl. metal standards used for open fires, to support the logs; firedogs.
Andrew. From the Greek Andreas, meaning "manly," "brave," "courageous." Danish, Andreas; Dutch, Andries; Fr., André; Ger., Andreas; It., Andrea; Lat., Andreas; Port., Andre; Sp., Andres. an-drog-y-nous (an-droj'i-nus), adj. combining both sexes.
★Androscoggin (an-dros-kog'gin). River in Maine and New Hampshire, and county in Maine.
an-ec-dote (an'ek-dōt), n. a brief narrative of an entertaining character.
an-e-lec-tric (an-ē-lek'trik), adj. without the properties of electricity.
an-e-lec-trode (an-ē-lek'trōd), n. the positive pole of a galvanic battery.
a-ne-mi-a. See anæmia.
★a-nem-o-ne (ā-nem'ō-nē), n. [pl. anemones (-nēz)], the windflower or wood anemone.
an-e-roid (an'ē-roid), n. a barometer shaped like a watch.
an-es-the-si-a. See anæsthesia.
an-es-thet-ic or anæsthetic (an-es-thet'ik), adj. pertaining to loss of the sense of feeling.
an-es-the-tize (an-es'thē-tiz), v. t. to bring under the influence of an anæsthetic.
an-eu-rism (an'ū-rizm), n. a local swelling or dilatation of an artery.
a-new (ā-nū'), adv. afresh; over again.
an-gel (ān'jel), n. a messenger of God.
Angela (an'jē-là). A feminine name of Italian origin, derived from angelo, "an angel."
an-gel-ic (an-jel'ik) or an-gel-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. belonging to or resembling an angel.
Angelica (an-jel'i-kà). Translated ngelic. Fr., Angelique; Ger., Angelica; It., Angelica.
★Angelo, Sant' (sän-tän'jē-lō), Castle of. The remodeled mausoleum of Hadrian in Rome.
an-ger (ang'gĕr), n. excessive emotion or passion aroused by a sense of injury or wrong; wrath.
Syn. ANGER, resentment, wrath, ire, indignation, rage, fury. Anger is a sudden sentiment of displeasure; resentment is a continued anger; wrath is a heightened sentiment of anger which is poetically expressed by the word ire; indignation is a sentiment awakened by the unworthy and atrocious conduct of others; rage is a vehement ebullition of anger; and fury is an excess of rage. [See displeasure.]
Ant. CHARITY, forbearance, leniency, love, peace, self-control.
an-gi-ol-o-gy (an-ji-ol'ō-ji), n. that branch of anatomy which treats of the blood vessels and lymphatics.
an-gle (ang'gl), n. the inclosed space near the point where two lines meet.
an-gle (ang'gl), v. i. to fish with a hook and line.
an-gler (ang'glĕr), n. one who fishes with rod and line.
★an-gli-can (ang'gli-kan), adj. pertaining to England as a nation.
★an-gli-cism (ang'gli-sizm), n. a principle or mannerism peculiar to England. [English.
an-gli-cize (ang'gli-siz), v. t. to make or to render into ★An-glo - A-mer-i-can (ang-glō-ā-mer'i-kan), adj. pertaining to England and the United States conjointly.
An-glo - Sax-on (-saks'un), adj. pertaining to the Saxon settlers in England prior to the Conquest, or to their language.
an-go-ra (an-gō'rà), n. cloth made from angora wool.
an-go-ra cat (kat), a cat of the domestic kind with long, handsome hair.
an-go-ra wool (wool), the coat of the angora goat.
an-gos-tu-ra bark (ang-gos-tōō'rà bärk), a bitter aromatic bark.
an-gry (ang'gri), adj. inflamed with anger; provoked.
an-guish (ang'gwish), n. intense pain or grief. [DISTRESS, ANXIETY.] an-gu-lar (ang'gu-lĕr), adj. possessing an angle or angles.
an-gus-tate (an-gus'tāt), adj. narrow at the base and expanded at the top.
an-hy-drous (an-hī'drus), adj. without water.
an-i-line (an'i-lin), n. a base used in the formation of many rich dyes obtained from coal tar.
★an-i-mad-ver-sion (an-i-mad-vĕr'shun), n. reproof; censure.
an-i-mad-vert (an-i-mad-vĕrt'), v. i. to criticise; to censure.
an-i-mal (an'i-mal), n. an organized living body, sentient, mobile, and locomotive.
an-i-mal-ism (an'i-mal-izm), n. the state of being animal.
an-i-mal mag-net-ism (an'i-mal mag'net-izm), magnetism inherent in animals.
an-i-mate (an'i-māt), v. t. to impart life to; to inspire with energy or action. [EAGER.] an-i-ma-tion (an-i-mā'shun), n. the act of giving life or spirit.
an-i-mos-i-ty (an-i-mos'i-ti), n. hostility; hatred; active enmity. [ENMITY, FEUD.]
an-i-mus (an'i-mus), n. a hostile spirit or purpose.
an-ise (an'is), n. the common name for a plant (indigenous in Egypt) yielding the aniseed of commerce.
an-kle (ang'kl), n. the joint or articulation connecting the foot with the leg.
an-klet (ang'klet), n. an ornament or support for the ankle.
an-ky-lo-sis (ang'ki-lō-sis), n. the joining or consolidation of parts formerly or normally separate by means of bony growth.
Anna or Anne. Same origin as Hannah. Dan., Anna; Dutch, Anna; Fr., Anne; Ger., Anne; It., Anna; Lat., Anna. an-nal-ist (an'nal-ist), n. a compiler of annals.
an-nals (an'nalz), n. pl. a description, history, or chronicle issued from time to time.
an-neal (an-nēl'), v. t. to heat or fix by heat.
an-nex (an-neks'), v. t. to add or affix at the end. n. (an-neks' or an'neks), that which is added; an addition. [ADD.] an-nex-a-tion (an-neks-ā'shun), n. the act of annexing.
an-ni-hi-late (an-ni'hi-lāt), v. t. to reduce to nothing.
an-ni-hi-la-tion (an-nī-hi-lā'shun), n. the act of annihilating.
an-ni-ver-sa-ry (an-ni-vĕr'sā-ri), n [pl. anniversaries (-riz)], the recurrence in each year of the date of an event.
an-no-tate (an'nō-tāt), v. t. to mark or note.
an-no-ta-tion (an-nō-tā'shun), n. the act of noting or commenting upon.
an-nounce (an-nouns'), v. t. to proclaim or make known formally or in a public manner.
Syn. ANNOUNCE, advertise, circulate, communicate, declare, enunciate, give notice, give out, herald, make known, notify, proclaim, promulgate, propound, publish, report, reveal, say, spread abroad, state, tell. We announce that which has occurred or which is to occur; advertise our business; communicate our intentions; enunciate our views; notify an individual, give notice to the public; declare war; proclaim peace; propound a question or an argument, promulgate views; report an interview; reveal a secret; herald the coming of some great event; publish books or magazines. [See speak.]
Ant. BURY, conceal, suppress, withhold.
an-nounce-ment (an-nouns'ment), n. the act of announcing.
an-noy (an-noi'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. annoyed (-noid'), p. pr. annoying], to vex or trouble by repeated acts; harass or discompose by petty injury or opposition. [INCONVENIENCE.]
an-noy-ance (an-noi'ans), n. the act of annoying or causing vexation. [ABOMINATION.] an-nu-al (an'ū-al), adj. once in twelve months; yearly; of or belonging to a year.
an-nu-i-tant (an-nū'i-tant), n. one who is in receipt of, or is entitled to receive, an annuity.
an-nu-i-ty (an-nū'i-ti), n. [pl. annuities (-tiz)], the payment of a sum of money by periodical or yearly installments.
an-nul (an-nul'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. annulled, p. pr. annulling], to make void, abolish, or obliterate. [ABOLISH.] an-nu-lar (an'ū-lĕr), adj. ring-like.
an-nu-let (an'ū-let), n. a little ring.
an-nul-ment (an-nul'ment), n. the act of reducing to nothing.
an-nun-ci-a-tion (an-nun-si-ā'shun), n. the act of annunciating.
★Annunciation, n. the church festival (Lady-day, March 25) commemorating the intimation of the Incarnation made by the angel Gabriel to the Virgin Mary.
an-nun-ci-a-tor (an-nun'shi-ā-tĕr), n. a signaling apparatus; an indicator.
an-ode (an'ōd), n. the path of the electric current from the positive to the negative pole.
an-o-dyne (an'ō-dīn), adj. assuaging pain: n. a drug which relieves pain.
a-noint (ā-noint'), v. t. to pour oil upon, in a religious ceremony.
★a-nom-a-lous (ā-nom'ā-lus), adj. deviating from the common order; abnormal. [ABSURD.] a-nom-a-ly (ā-nom'ā-li), n. deviation from the natural order.
a-non (ā-non'), adv. soon; straightway; again.
an-o-nym-i-ty (an-ō-nim'i-ti), n. the state of being anonymous.
a-non-y-mous (ā-non'i-mus), adj. bearing no author's name; nameless.
an-oth-er (an-uth'ĕr), adj. and pron. one more; not the same.
Anselm (an'selm). From the Teutonic, meaning "divine helmet," hence "a defender." Dutch, Anselmus; Fr., Anselme; Ger., Anselm; It., Anselmo; Lat., Anselmus; Sp., Anselmo. an-swer (an'sĕr), v. t. to swear in opposition to; to reply to a charge.
Syn. ANSWER, reply, rejoinder, response. An answer is given to a question; a reply is made to an assertion; a rejoinder is made to a reply; a response is made in accordance with the words of another. We answer either for the purpose of affirmation, information or contradiction; we always reply, or rejoin, in order to explain or confute; responses are made by way of assent or confirmation.
Ant. CHARGE, question. an-swer-a-ble (an'sĕr-ā-bl), adj. liable to give answer; responsible. [CORRESPOND.] ant (ānt), n. a small social insect of the hymenoptera.

ant-ac-id (ant-as'id), adj. counteracting acidity.
ar-tag-o-nism (an-tag'ō-nizm), n. the active opposition of two opponents or opposing forces. [ANTIPATHY.] an-tag-o-nist (an-tag'ō-nist), n. a competitor.
an-tag-o-nize (an-tag'ō-nīz), v. t. to oppose; hinder.
★ant-arc-tic (ant-ārk'tik, not ant-är'tik), adj. opposite to arctic; pertaining to the south polar regions; southern.
Antarctic Ocean. Denotes the ocean anti, "against" or "opposite to" the Arctic Ocean.
ant-bear (ánt'-bâr), n. the name sometimes given (from its likeness to a bear) to the great ant-eater of South America.
ant-eat-er (ánt'-ēt-ẽr), n. the name applied to a group of quadrupeds which feed upon ants.
an-te-cede (an-tē-sēd'), v. t. to precede or go before in time or space.
an-te-ced-ence (an-tē-sēd'ens), or antecedency ('en-si), n. precedence.
★an-te-ced-ent (an-tē-sēd'ent), adj. preceding: n. the substantive or noun to which a relative or other pronoun refers; pl. the previous events of a person's life.
an-te-cham-ber (an'tē-chām-bẽr), n. an apartment next the principal room.
an-te-date (an'tē-dāt), v. t. to carry back to an earlier period.
an-te-di-lu-vi-an (an-tē-di-lū'vi-an), adj. of or pertaining to the world before the flood.
an-te-lope (an'tē-lōp), n. the name given to numerous species of deer-like ruminants, intermediate between the deer and the goat.
an-te-me-rid-i-an (an-tē-mē-rid'i-an), adj. preceding noon.
ant-e-met-ic (ant-ē-met'ik), adj. allaying vomiting.
an-ten-na (an-ten'nà), n. [pl. antennæ ('nē)], the jointed horns or feelers upon the heads of insects and crustacea.
★an-te-pe-nult (an-tē-pē'nult) or antepenultima (an-tē-pē-nult'i-mà), n. the last syllable but two of a word.
an-te-pran-di-al (an-tē-pran'di-al), adj. before dinner.
an-te-ri-or (an-tē'ri-ẽr), adj. more to the front; former.
an-te-room (an'tē-rōōm), n. a room before, or forming an entrance to, another.
ant-hel-ion (ant-hēl'yun or -hē'li-on), n. [pl. anthelia ('yà or 'li-à)], a halo or a colored ring or rings, opposite the sun, formed around the shadow of the head of the observer, as projected on a cloud or moist surface.
an-them (an'them), n. a composition from the Scriptures or liturgy set to sacred music.
an-ther (an'thẽr), n. the summit of the stamen of a flower, containing the pollen or fertilizing dust.
an-tho-log-ic-al (an-thō-loj'i-kal), adj. pertaining to anthology.
an-thol-o-gist (an-thol'ō-jist), n. one who compiles an anthology.
★an-thol-o-gy (an-thol'ō-ji), n. a collection of choice poems.
an-thra-cite (an'thrà-sīt), n. a nonbituminous coal which burns without smoke.
an-thrax (an'thraks), n. [pl. anthraces ('thrà-sēz)], a carbuncle, or malignant boil.
★An-thro-poid-e-a (an-thro-poid'ē-à), n. pl. a sub-order of primate mammals, including man, the apes, and monkeys.
an-thro-po-log-ic-al (an-thrō-pō-loj'i-kal), adj. pertaining to anthropology.
★an-thro-pol-o-gist (an-thrō-pol'ō-jist), n. a student of anthropology.
an-thro-pol-o-gy (an-thrō-pol'ō-ji), n. the science of man.
an-thro-pom-e-try (an-thrō-pom'ē-tri), n. the measurement of the human body.
★an-thro-po-mor-phism (an-thrō-pō-mōr'fizm), n. the ascription of a human form and attributes to the deity.
an-tic (an'tik), adj. grotesque: n. a clown.
An-ti-christ (an'ti-krīst), n. an opponent of Christ, especially the great personal opponent expected to appear before the end of the world.
an-tic-i-pant (an-tis'i-pant), adj. that which operates beforehand.
an-tic-i-pate (an-tis'i-pāt), v. t. to take beforehand; use in advance; look for as certain.
Syn. ANTICIPATE, apprehend, expect, forecast, foretaste, hope, look forward to. Anticipate is allied with prevent and expect; as, a boy expects to grow to manhood. We hope for that which we desire and expect; apprehend what we both expect and fear; anticipate that which we expect both with confidence and pleasure. [See abide, prevent.]
Ant. DESPAIR OF, doubt, fear, remember. an-tic-i-pa-tion (an-tis-i-pā'shun), n. the act of taking beforehand; expectation.
an-tic-i-pa-tive (an-tis'i-pā-tiv), or anticipatory (-pā-tō-ri), adj. taking beforehand; anticipating.
an-ti-cli-max (an-ti-klī'maks), n. a ludicrous descent in thought and expression; bathos.
an-ti-cy-clone (an-ti-sī'klōn), n. a meteorological condition in which the ordinary features of a cyclone are reversed.
an-ti-do-tal (an'ti-dō-tal), adj. of the nature or quality of an antidote.
an-ti-dote (an'ti-dōt), n. a substance which acts medicinally as a counteractive to the effects of poison or disease.
an-ti-fat (an'ti-fat), adj. available for preventing or reducing fatness.
an-ti-mo-ni-al (an-ti-mō'ni-al), adj. pertaining to antimony.
an-ti-mo-nite (an'ti-mō-nīt), n. native sulphide of antimony.
an-ti-mo-ny (an'ti-mō-ni), n. a white lustrous metal.
an-ti-no-mi-an-ism (an-ti-nō'mi-an-izm), n. the tenets of the Antinomian sect.
an-tin-o-my (an-tin'ō-mi), n. [pl. antinomies (-miz)], the opposition of one law or part of a law to another.
★an-tip-a-thy (an-tip'à-thi), n. [pl. antipathies (-thiz)], natural aversion.
Syn. ANTIPATHY, abhorrence, antagonism, aversion, detestation, disgust, dislike, distaste, hatred, hostility, opposition, repugnance, repulsion. Antipathy is an instinctive recoil from connection or association with a person or thing; antagonism results from the necessity of circumstances; opposition springs from conflicting views or interests; abhorrence and detestation may result from religious and moral training; distaste and disgust may be acquired; aversion is a deep and permanent dislike; a natural antipathy may give rise to opposition which may result in hatred and hostility. [See acrimony, anger, enmity, hate.]
Ant. AFFINITY, agreement, congeniality, harmony, sympathy.
★an-ti-phlo-gis-tic (an-ti-flō-jis'tik), adj. efficacious in counteracting fever or inflammation.
an-ti-phon (an'ti-fon), or antiphone (-fōn), n. a chant or hymn rendered alternately by two choirs.
an-tiph-o-nal (an-tif'ō-nal), adj. characterized by antiphony or responsive singing.
an-tiph-o-na-ry (an-tif'ō-nā-ri), n. [pl. antiphonaries (-riz)], a book of responses used in the services.
an-tiph-o-ny (an-tif'ō-ni), n. [pl. antiphonies (-niz)], the alternate or responsive rendering of psalms or chants by a dual choir.
an-tiph-ra-sis (an-tif'rà-sis), n. the employment of a word, or words, in a sense contrary to its, or their, true meaning.
★an-ti-pode (an'ti-pōd), n. [pl. antipodes (an'ti-pōdz)], one who resides on the opposite side of the earth.
★an-tip-o-des (an-tip'ō-dēz), n. pl. two portions of the earth's surface which are exactly opposite to each other; the direct opposite of a person or thing.
★an-ti-py-rine (an-ti-pī'rin), n. a drug, obtained from coal tar, employed for the relief of neuralgia.
an-ti-qua-ri-an (an-ti-kwā'ri-an), adj. pertaining to antiquaries or to antiquity: n. an antiquary.
an-ti-qua-ri-an-ism (an-ti-kwā'ri-an-izm), n. the attachment to what is old or antiquated.
an-ti-qua-ry (an'ti-kwā-ri), n. one who is attached to ancient things and is learned in their history.
an-ti-qua-ted (an'ti-kwā-ted), p. adj. grown old. [ANTIQUE, OBSOLETE.] ★an-tique (an-tēk'), adj. of or belonging to a former age; ancient.
Syn. ANTIQUE, ancient, antiquated, old-fashioned, quaint, superannuated. Antique refers to ancient, antiquated to discarded style. We speak of antique architecture, and antiquated customs; an old-fashioned fireplace; a quaint gambrel-roofed house; a superannuated person, incapacitated by reason of age.
Ant. FASHIONABLE, modern, new, stylish.
an-tiq-ui-ty (an-tik'wi-ti), n. [pl. antiquities (-tiz)], great age; ancientness; early ages.
an-ti-scor-bu-tic (an-ti-skôr-bū'tik), adj. and n. counteracting or a remedy for scurvy.
an-ti-Sem-it-ism (an-ti-sem'it-izm), n. antagonism to the Jewish race.
an-ti-sep-sis (an-ti-sep'sis), n. the exclusion of bacteria from wounds, etc., by the use of antiseptics.
an-ti-sep-tic (an-ti-sep'tik), adj. destructive to the germs of disease or putrefaction. [slavery.
an-ti-sla-ver-y (an-ti-slā'vẽr-i), adj. opposed to an-tis-tro-phe (an-tis'trō-fē), n. in the ancient Greek chorus, the alternating part immediately following the strophe.
★an-tith-e-sis (an-tith'ē-sis), n. [pl. antitheses (-sēz)], opposition; contrast.
an-ti-thet-ic (an-ti-thet'ik), or an-ti-thet-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. pertaining to antithesis.
★an-ti-tox-in (an-ti-toks'in), n. a serum used hypodermically as a preventive of, or cure for, diphtheria.
an-ti-trade (an'ti-trād), n. a tropical wind blowing steadily in an opposite direction to the trade wind. [type.
an-ti-type (an'ti-tīp), n. that prefigured by the an-ti-zy-mot-ic (an-ti-zi-mot'ik), adj. preventing fermentation.
ant-ler (ant'lẽr), n. an individual branch of a stag's horn.
ant-li-on (ánt'-li-un), n. a neuropterous insect whose larva constructs a pitfall for ants and other insects.
Antony (an'tō-nē), Anthony. From Latin Antonius, meaning "inestimable." According to Littleton, the Antonian family were descended from Antius, son of Hercules. Danish, Anton; Dutch, Anton, Antoon, or Antonius; Fr., Antoine; Ger., Anton; It., Antonio; Port., Antonio; Sp., Antonio; Sw., Anton.
★an-to-nym (an'tō-nim), n. a word opposed to another in meaning.
an-trum (an'trum), n. a sinus or cavity in a body.
★Antwerp (ant'wẽrp). From andoverpum, "at the wharf"; werf, a dam or wharf; literally, "what is thrown up"—werfen. A seaport of Belgium.
a-nus (ā'nus), n. the terminal portion of the rectum.
an-vil (an'vil), n. an iron block used for the hammering and shaping of metals.
anx-i-e-ty (ang-zī'ē-ti), n. [pl. anxieties (-tiz)], a condition of mental uneasiness arising from fear or solicitude.
Syn. ANXIETY, anguish, apprehension, care, concern, disturbance, dread, fear, foreboding, fretfulness, fretting, misgiving, perplexity, solicitude, trouble, worry. Anxiety is a choking disquiet, akin to anguish; anxiety is mental; anguish may be mental or physical; anxiety refers to some future event, always suggesting hopeful possibility, and thus differing from apprehension, fear, dread, foreboding, terror, all of which may be full of despair. Worry is more petty, restless, and manifest anxiety, communicated to all around. Solicitude is a milder anxiety. Fretting or fretfulness is weak complaint. Perplexity often involves anxiety, but may be quite free from it. [See distress.]
Ant. APATHY, assurance, calmness, confidence, ease, tranquillity.
anx-ious (angk'shus), adj. deeply concerned; very solicitous; apprehensive. [EAGER.] an-y (en'i), adj. and pron. one, indeterminately, unlimited; some, an indefinite number, quantity.
★a-or-ta (ā-ôr'tà), n. [pl. aortæ (-tē)], the chief artery or main trunk of the arterial system. [speedily.
a-pace (à-pās'), adv. quickly; at a quick pace;
a-pa-che (à-pà'chà), n. one of a band of lawless persons who frequent the streets, as of Paris, at night and prey upon the pedestrians; a nocturnal prowler.
★Apalachee (ap-à-lach'ē) bay, Fla. Variously spelled Apahlahche, Apeolatei, Palazy, Palatcy; the prefix is supposed to be Spanish, and the word in full is said to mean "the men."
★Apalachicola (ap-à-lach-i-kō'là) river, Fla. From an Indian town Apalatichiokli, "those on the other side."
a-part (à-pärt'), adv. separately; aside; asunder.
a-part-ment (à-pärt'ment), n. pl. a set or suite of two or more rooms of a house set apart as lodgings. [LODGINGS.]
ap-a-thet-ic (ap-à-thet'ik), or ap-a-thet-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. devoid of feeling or emotion.
ap-a-thy (ap'à-thi), n. [pl. apathies (-thiz)], lack of feeling; want of passion or emotion. [STUPIDITY.]
ap-a-tite (ap'à-tīt), n. a crystalline phosphate of lime.
ape (āp), n. a tailless monkey having teeth the same in number and appearance as man.
a-peak (à-pēk'), adv. nearly vertical in position.
★Ap-en-nines (ap'en-ninz). Now used as the name of the central mountain chain of Italy. The Roman term Mons Apenninus originally denoted the Maritime Alps near Genoa, the Mons Peninus signifying the Dauphiny Alps, more especially the part near the Great St. Bernard.
★a-pe-ri-ent (à-pē'ri-ent), adj. gently laxative.
a-pe-ri-od-ic (à-pē-ri-od'ik), adj. without periodicity ap-er-ture (ap'ẽr-tūr), n. an opening; a perforation.
a-pex (ā'peks), n. [pl. apexes (-ez) and apice. (ap'i-sēz)], the point, tip, or summit of anything.
a-pha-gi-a (à-fā'ji-à), n. inability to swallow.
★a-pha-si-a (à-fā'zhi-à, not à-fā'si-à), n. loss of the power of speech.
a-phe-li-on (à-fē'lyun or à-fē'li-on), n. [pl. aphelia ('yà or 'li-à)], that point in the orbit of a planet or a comet which is farthest from the sun.
A-phis (ā'fis), n. [pl. Aphides (af'i-dēz)], the genus of plant suckers to which the aphides belong; a member of the genus.
★aph-o-rism (af'ō-rizm), n. a concise and pithy statement of a rule or precept; a maxim.
a-pi-a-ry (ā'pi-à-ri), n. [pl. apiaries (-riz)], a place where bees are kept; a beehouse.
a-piece (à-pēs'), adv. to or for each; each; severally.
a-plomb (à-plŏn'), n. self-possession; assurance.
A-poc-a-lypse (à-pok'à-lips), n. the last book of the New Testament.
a-poc-ry-pha (à-pok'ri-fà), n. pl. used as a sing. with pl. apocryphas (-fàz), certain writings received by some Christians as an authentic part of the holy Scriptures, but rejected by others.
a-poc-ry-phal (à-pok'ri-fal), adj. of doubtful authority.
ap-od (ap'od), n. an animal without feet.
a-pod-o-sis (à-pod'ō-sis), n. the latter portion, or consequent clause, of a conditional sentence.
ap-o-gee (ap'ō-jē), n. that point in the orbit of a planet which is most distant from the earth.
a-pol-o-get-ic (à-pol-ō-jet'ik), or a-pol-o-get-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. in the way of defense or apology.
a-pol-o-get-ics (à-pol-ō-jet'iks), n. the defense and vindication of the principles and laws of the Christian belief.
a-pol-o-gize (à-pol'ō-jīz), v. i. to make an apology or excuse.
Syn. APOLOGIZE, defend, justify, exculpate, excuse, plead. We apologize for an error by acknowledging ourselves guilty of it; we defend ourselves against a charge by proving its fallacy; we justify our conduct against any imputation by proving that it was blameless; we exculpate ourselves from all blame by proving that we took no part in the transaction. Excuse and plea are not grounded on any idea of innocence; a plea is frequently an idle or unfounded excuse, a frivolous attempt to lessen displeasure; we excuse ourselves for a neglect by alleging indisposition.

★ap-o-logue (ap'ō-log, not ap'ō-lōg), n. a moral fable; a fiction or allegory. [FICTION.]

a-pol-o-gy (a-pol'ō-ji), n. [pl. apologies (-jiz)], a vindication or excuse.

ap-o-phthegm. See apothegm.

ap-o-plec-tic (ap-ō-plek'tik), or ap-o-plec-ti-cal ('ti-kal), adj. pertaining to, or of the nature of, apoplexy; afflicted with apoplexy.

ap-o-plex-y (ap'ō-pleks-i), n. the sudden loss of consciousness and motive power.

a-port (a-pōrt'), adv. on or toward the port or left side of a ship.

a-pos-ta-sy (a-pos'ta-si), n. [pl. apostasies (-siz)], the forsaking or abandonment of what one has hitherto professed or adhered to.

a-pos-tate (a-pos'tāt), n. one who has forsaken or apostatized his faith or party.

a-pos-ta-tize (a-pos'ta-tiz), v. i. to abandon one's faith, church, or party.

★a-pos-tle (a-pos'l), n. one charged with a high mission; one of the twelve persons specially selected by Christ to propagate his gospel.

a-pos-tles' creed (krēd), the shortest of the three creeds, so named as containing a summary of apostolical doctrine.

ap-os-tol-ic (ap-os-tol'ik) or ap-os-tol-ic-al ('i-kal), adj. of or pertaining to an apostle or apostles, and their age, doctrine, or practice; papal.

ap-os-tol-i-cal suc-ces-sion (suk-sesh'un), the regular and uninterrupted transmission of ministerial authority by bishops from the apostles.

a-pos-tro-phe (a-pos'trō-fē), n. a breaking off in a speech to address directly a person or persons who may or may not be present.

a-pos-tro-phize (a-pos'trō-fiz), v. t. to address by apostrophe; omit a letter or letters; mark an omission by the sign (').

a-poth-e-ca-ry (a-poth'ē-kā-ri), n. [pl. apothecaries (-riz)], one who prepares and dispenses medicines and drugs for profit.

a-poth-e-ca-ries' weight (wāt), the weight used for dispensing drugs, and comprising the pound (12 oz.), the ounce (8 drams), the dram (3 scruples), the scruple (20 grains), and the grain.

ap-o-thegm (ap'ō-them), n. a pithy saying, embodying a wholesome truth or precept.

★ap-o-the-o-sis (ap-ō-thē'ō-sis not ap-ō-thē-ō'sis), n. [pl. apotheoses (-sēz)], deification.

★Ap-pa-la-chi-an (ap-pa-lā'chi-an, not ap-pā-lā'chi-an) mountains. From the Apalachicola river, or the ancient town called Apalache, found by De Soto in Florida.

ap-pall (ap-pawl'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. appalled, p. pr. appalling], to fright. [DISMAY.]

★ap-pa-ra-tus (ap-pa-rā'tus, not ap-pā-rā'tus), n. sing. and pl. an outfit of tools, utensils, or instruments adapted to the accomplishment of any branch of work.

ap-par-el (ap-par'el), n. clothing; vesture; garb, v. t. [p. t. and p. p. appareled, p. pr. appareling], to clothe or adorn.

ap-par-ent (ap-pâr'ent), adj. open to view; capable of being readily perceived or understood.

Syn. APPARENT, visible, clear, plain, obvious, evident, manifest. That which is simply an object of sight is visible: that which presents itself to our view in any form, real or otherwise, is apparent: the stars themselves are visible to us, but their size is apparent: what is clear is to be seen in all its parts and in its proper colors; what is plain is seen by a plain understanding; what is obvious presents itself readily to the mind of every one; what is evident is seen forcibly, and leaves no hesitation in the mind. Manifest is a greater degree of the evident: it strikes on the understanding and forces conviction.

ap-pa-ri-tion (ap-pa-rish'un), n. a visible object; a ghost or specter.

ap-peal (ap-pēl'), v. t. to transfer or refer to a superior court or judge; to address another person. [ADDRESS.]

ap-pear (ap-pēr'), v. i. to be or become visible; come before: seem. [SEEM, LOOK.]

ap-pear-ance (ap-pēr'ans), n. the act of becoming visible; the object seen.

ap-pease (ap-pēz'), v. t. to allay; assuage; quiet; satisfy; pacify. [ALLAY.]

★ap-pel-lant (ap-pel'lant), n. one who appeals to a higher court.

★ap-pel-late (ap-pel'lāt), adj. pertaining to appeals.

ap-pel-la-tion (ap-pel-lā'shun), n. the name, title, or designation by which a person or thing is called or known.

ap-pel-la-tive (ap-pel'la-tiv), adj. serving to distinguish, as a name or denomination of a group or class; common, as a noun.

ap-pend (ap-pend'), v. t. to attach, hang, or suspend. [ADD.]

ap-pen-dage (ap-pen'dāj), n. something appended or attached as a part of.

★ap-pen-di-ci-tis (ap-pen-di-si'tis), n. inflammation of the vermiform appendix.

ap-pen-dix (ap-pen'diks), n. [pl. appendixes (-ez) and appendices ('di-sēz)], that which is added as supplemental.

ap-per-tain (ap-pēr-tān'), v. i. to belong or pertain to.

ap-pe-tite (ap'pē-tīt), n. the desire for gratification of some want, craving, or passion.

ap-pe-ti-zer (ap'pē-ti-zēr), n. something that excites or whets the appetite.

Appian way. The Via Appia of ancient Rome, most famous of Roman highways. It ran from Rome to Brundisium (Brindisi), and is probably the first great Roman road which was formally undertaken as a public work.

ap-plaud (ap-plawd'), v. t. to praise. [ADMIRE.]

ap-plause (ap-plawz'), n. the expression of approval by clapping.

ap-ple (ap'pl), n. the round, fleshy fruit of the apple tree.

ap-pli-ance (ap-plī'ans), n. the act of applying.

ap-pli-ca-ble (ap'pli-kā-bl), adj. capable of being applied.

ap-pli-cant (ap'pli-kant), n. one who applies.

ap-pli-ca-tion (ap-pli-kā'shun), n. the act of applying, putting to, or on.

★ap-pli-qué (a-plē-kā'), n. a method of ornamentation in dress or upholstery.

ap-ply (ap-plī'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. applied, p. pr. applying], to place one to another; lay on; put into practice.

ap-point (ap-point'), v. t. to fix; settle; found; make fast. [CONSTITUTE.]

ap-point-ment (ap-point'ment), n. the act of appointing; the assigning to an office or trust.

★Appomattox (ap-pō-mat'oks). River and county in Virginia.

ap-por-tion (ap-pōr'shun), v. t. to assign by equal or proportionate division.

ap-por-tion-ment (ap-pōr'shun-ment), n. the act of apportioning.

★ap-po-site (ap'pō-zit), adj. proper; fit, pertinent.

ap-po-si-tion (ap-pō-zish'un), n. the act of adding to; the placing of a second noun in the same case in juxtaposition to the first, which it characterizes or explains.

ap-prais-al (ap-prāz'al), n. the act of appraising.

ap-praise (ap-prāz'), v. t. to set a price upon; value.

ap-pre-ci-a-ble (ap-prē'shi-a-bl), adj. capable of being appreciated.

ap-pre-ci-ate (ap-prē'shi-āt), v. t. to value; estimate.

ap-pre-ci-a-tion (ap-prē-shi-ā'shun), n. the just valuation of worth or merit.

ap-pre-ci-a-tive (ap-prē'shi-a-tiv), adj. exhibiting appreciation.

ap-pre-hend (ap-prē-hend'), v. t. to take or lay hold of; seize: v. i. to form a conception.

Syn. APPREHEND, conceive, suppose, imagine. To apprehend is simply to take an idea into the mind; thus we may apprehend any object that we hear or see; to conceive is to form an idea in the mind, as to conceive the idea of doing anything, to conceive a design. What one supposes may admit of a doubt, it is frequently only conjectural; what one imagines may be altogether improbable or impossible, or may be too improbable to admit of being believed. [ANTICIPATE.]

ap-pre-hen-sion (ap-prē-hen'shun), n. the act of seizure or laying hold of; arrest; anticipation of evil. [ANXIETY.]

ap-pre-hen-sive (up-prē-hen'siv). adj. suspicious; perceptive.

ap-pren-tice (ap-pren'tis), n. one bound or articled to learn some trade or craft.

ap-prize (ap-priz'), v. t. to give notice to; inform.

ap-proach (ap-prōch'), v. i. to draw or grow near: n. the act of drawing near. [ADDRESS.]

ap-pro-bate (ap'prō-bāt), v. t. to express approval of; license or sanction.

ap-pro-ba-tion (ap-prō-bā'shun), n. the act of approving: commendation. [ASSENT.]

ap-pro-pri-a-ble (ap-prō'pri-a-bl), adj. capable of appropriation.

ap-pro-pri-ate (ap-prō'pri-āt), v. t. to take to one's self, in exclusion of others.

ap-pro-pri-a-tion (ap-prō-pri-ā'shun), n. the act of assigning to one's self.

ap-prov-al (ap-prōō'al), n. approbation; sanction.

ap-prove (ap-prōōv'), v. t. to prove, test, or demonstrate; be pleased or satisfied with. [ADMIRE.]

★ap-prox-i-mate (ap-proks'i-māt), v. t. to bring or carry near; cause to approach.

ap-prox-i-mate-ly (ap-proks'i-māt-li), adv. very nearly, but not absolutely.

ap-prox-i-ma-tion (ap-proks-i-mā'shun), n. the act of approximating.

ap-pulse (ap-puls'), or appulsion (-pul'shun), n. a coming toward.

ap-pur-te-nance (ap-pûr'tē-nans), n. that which belongs or relates to something else.

★a-pri-cot (ā'pri-kot, not ap'ri-kot) n. the fruit of a tree allied to the plum.

A-pril (ā'pril). From aperio, "I open," this being the month in which the buds shoot forth.

April fool, one who is imposed upon or deceived in a jocular manner on April 1st, or All Fools' day.

a-pron (ā'pērn), n. a portion of cloth, leather, or other material, worn as a protective or ornamental covering to the front of the person.

apse (aps), n. [pl. apses ('ez)], a polygonal or semi-circular recess terminating the choir or other portion of a church.

apt (apt), adj. suitable; pertinent; appropriate. [FIT, READY.]

ap-ti-tude (ap'ti-tūd), n. capacity for anything.

★a-qua (ā'kwa), n. a term used in pharmacy in the abbreviated form of aq., and denoting water.

★a-qua am-mo-ni-æ (am-mō'ni-ē), water containing an infusion of ammonia gas.

★a-qua for-tis (fôr'tis), (strong water) impure nitric acid.

★a-qua-ma-rine (ā-kwa-ma-rēn'), n. a pale bluish-green variety of beryl.

★a-qua re-gi-a (ā'kwa rē'ji-a), (royal water) a mixture of nitric and hydrochloric acids, capable of dissolving gold.

★a-qua-ri-um (a-kwā'ri-um, not ā-kwā'ri-um), n. [pl. aquariums (-umz) and aquaria (-a)], a tank or globe for the keeping and cultivation of aquatic plants and animals.

a-quat-ic (a-kwat'ik), adj. pertaining to water.

a-qua-tint (ā'kwa-tint), n. a species of etching resembling a water-color drawing in india ink or in sepia.

★a-qua vi-tæ (ā'kwa vi'tē), (water of life) unrectified alcohol; brandy and other ardent spirits.

★aq-ue-duct (ak'wē-dukt, not ak'wē-duk), n. a structure in the form of a conduit or artificial channel for conducting water from a source.

★a-que-ous (ā'kwē-us, not ak'wē-us), adj. of the nature of, or abounding in, water.

aq-ui-line (ak'wi-lin or -lin) adj. belonging to, or resembling, an eagle.

★Ar-ab (ar'ab), n. a native of Arabia; a desert dweller.

Arabella (ar-a-bel'la. Corrupted from the old name, Orragel, Oraglee, meaning a "fair altar." Dutch, Arabella; Fr., Arabelle; Ger., Arabelle; It., Arabella; Lat., Arabella.

ar-a-besque (ar-a-besk'), n. the style of Arabic decorative art which consists of the painting, inlaying, or carving in low relief of figures of plants, fruits, flowers, and foliage, variously combined or fantastically grouped.

Arabia (a-rā'bi-a). The country of the Arabs, "men of the desert."

★Ar-a-bic nu-mer-als (ar'a-bik nū'mēr-alz), the figures 0, 1, 2, 3, etc., of Indian origin, used by the Arabs, and introduced into Europe in the twelfth century.

ar-a-ble (ar'a-bl), adj. fit for the plow.

ar-bi-ter (ār'bi-tēr), n. an umpire or judge.

ar-bit-ra-ment (ār-bit'rā-ment), n. the decision of arbitrators.

ar-bi-tra-ri-ly (ār-bi-trā'ri-li), adv. in a capricious manner.

ar-bi-tra-ry (ār'bi-trā-ri), adj. depending on the will of the arbiter; imperious. [ABSOLUTE.]

ar-bi-trate (ār'bi-trāt), v. i. and v. t. to act as arbiter; to settle, as a dispute.

ar-bi-tra-tion (ār-bi-trā'shun), n. the settlement of a dispute by an umpire.

ar-bi-tra-tor (ār'bi-trā-tēr), n. an umpire.

ar-bor (ar'bēr), n. a bower; a shaded nook or walk.

Ar-bor day (ar'bēr dā). A day legally set apart in certain states for planting trees.

★ar-bo-re-tum (ār-bō-rē'tum), n. [pl. arboreta (-ta) and arboretums (-tumz)], a place in which rare trees are cultivated and exhibited.

ar-bor-i-cul-ture (ār-bor-i-kul'tūr), n. the cultivation of trees.

★ar-bor vi-tæ (ār'bēr vi'tē), an evergreen tree extensively cultivated in gardens, etc.

arc (ārk), n. a curved line or any part of a curve forming the segment of a circle.

ar-cade (ār-kād'), n. an arched gallery, or promenade, lined with shops.

ar-ca-di-an (ār-kā'di-an), adj. rurally simple.

ar-ca-num (ār-kā'num), n. [pl. arcana ('na)], a secret; a mystery.

★Arc de Triomphe de l'Etoile (ārk du trē-ōnf' du lā-twāl'). Meaning, "triumphal arch of the star." The largest triumphal arch in existence, at the head of the Champs Elysées, Paris.

arch (ārch), n. a structure of brick or masonry, the component wedge-shaped parts of which follow a curved line; any curvature having the form of an arch.

ar-chæ-o-log-ic (ār-kē-ō-loj'ik) or ar-chæ-o-log-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. pertaining to the study of antiquities.

★ar-chæ-ol-o-gist or archeologist (ār-kē-ol'ō-jist), n. one versed in the study of ancient things; an antiquary.

ar-chæ-ol-o-gy or archeology (ār-kē-ol'ō-ji, n. the science of antiquities.

ar-cha-ic (ār-kā'ik) or ar-cha-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. old-fashioned; antiquated. [OBSOLETE.] [use.

ar-cha-ism (ār-kā-izm), n. antiquity of style or arch-an-gel (ārk-ān'jel), n. an angel of the highest order.

Archangel. City of Russia, named in honor of the archangel Michael.

★arch-bish-op (ārch-bish'up, not arch'bish-up), n. a chief bishop, one who supervises the bishops in his province.

arch-dea-con (ārch-dē'kn), n. a dignitary ranking next below a bishop.

arch-duch-ess (ārch-duch'ss), n. the wife of an archduke; a daughter of the emperor of Austria.

arch-duch-y (ārch-duch'i), n. [pl. archduchies ('iz)], the territory or rank of an archduke.

arch-duke (ārch-dūk'), n. a prince of the imperial house of Austria.

arch-en-e-my (ärch-en'ē-mi), n. a principal enemy.
arch-er (ärch'ẽr), n. a bowman.
arch-er-y (ärch'ẽr-i), n. the art or skill of one who uses the bow and arrow.
★ar-che-type (är'kē-tīp, not är'chē-tīp), n. the original type or pattern upon or after which a thing is made.
Archibald (är'chi-bâld). From the Old German name Ercheneals, Erchanpald; from erchanbald, "bold in work or activity." Fr., Archambaud; Lat., Archibaldus. [arched work.
arch-ing (ärch'ing), adj. curving like an arch: n.
★ar-chi-pe-lag-ic (är-ki-pē-laj'ik), adj. pertaining to a collection of islands with the sea dividing them.
★ar-chi-pel-a-go (är-ki-pel'ȧ-gō, not är-chi-pel'ȧ-gō), n. [pl. archipelagoes or -gos (-gōz)], any sea or body of salt water interspersed with numerous islands.
★ar-chi-tect (är'ki-tekt, not är'chi-tekt), n. one versed in the art of building and the various styles of architecture.
★ar-chi-tec-tu-ral (är-ki-tek'tū-ral), adj. pertaining to the art of building.
★ar-chi-tec-ture (är'ki-tek-tūr), n. the science or art of building.
★ar-chi-trave (är'ki-trāv, not är'chi-trāv), n. the lowest division of an entablature, or that part which rests immediately on the column.
ar-chive (är'kīv), n. [pl. archives ('kīvz)], a record preserved as evidence: pl. the place where public or state records are kept.
arch-ly (ärch'li), adv. roguishly; waggishly; coyly.
arch-ness ('nes), n. shyness; coyness.
Arch of Constantine (kon'stan-tin). An arch in Rome built 312 A. D., in honor of Constantine's triumph over Maxentius.
Arch of Septimius Severus. An arch in the Roman forum, dedicated 203 A. D., in commemoration of victories over the Parthians.
Arch of Titus. An arch in Rome, built in commemoration of the taking of Jerusalem.
Arch of Trajan. Arch over the Appian way at Benevento, Italy, dedicated 114 A. D., and one of the finest of ancient arches.
arc lamp (ärk lamp), a lamp having a luminous bridge or arc.
arc light (līt), a light produced by a current of electricity passing between two carbon points.
★arc-tic (ärk'tik, not är'tik). The word arctic is derived from the Greek name for the constellation of the Bear, Arctos, and means "near Arctos"; i. e., "in the extreme north."
arc-tic cir-cle (sẽr'kl), an imaginary circle parallel to the equator and distant 23° 28′ from the north pole.
ar-dent (är'dent), adj. hot; burning; fiery; warm. [HOT, EAGER.] ar-dor (är'dẽr), n. heat in a physical sense; warmth of affection or passion. [FERVOR, ZEAL.]
ar-du-ous (är'dū-us), adj. steep; hard to climb; difficult.
★a-re-a (ā're-ȧ, not ā-rē'ȧ), n. [pl. areas (-ȧz)], any plane surface having bounds, whether natural or artificial, as the floor of a hall, etc.
a-re-na (ȧ-rē'nȧ), n. [pl. arenas ('nȧz)], the central inclosed space of a Roman amphitheater.
★Areopagus (ar-ē-op'ȧ-gus). From the Greek Areios pagos, "Martial hill"; i. e., "hill of Mars." A low, rocky hill at Athens continuing westward in line with the Acropolis, from which it is separated by a depression of ground.
ar-gand lamp (är'gand lamp), a lamp having a hollow circular wick to permit the passage of air inside and outside the flame.
ar-gent (är'jent), n. the silver of a coat of arms.
Argentina (är-jen-tē'nȧ). Now the Argentine Republic, South America.
ar-gil (är'jil), n. potter's clay or earth.
ar-gol (är'gol), n. crude tartar, from which cream of tartar is prepared.
ar-gon (är'gun), n. an element associated with nitrogen, and forming one of the constituents of the air.
★ar-go-naut (är'gō-nawt), n. a cephalopod commonly known as the paper nautilus.
★ar-go-sy (är'gō-si), n. [pl. argosies (-siz)], a large, richly freighted merchant vessel.
ar-gue (är'gū), v. i. to show or offer reasons in support of, or in opposition to, a proposition.
ar-gu-ment (är'gū-ment), n. that which is advanced in support or proof with a view to persuade.
ar-gu-men-ta-tion (är-gū-men-tā'shun), n. the act of arguing.
★ar-gu-men-ta-tive (är-gū-men'tȧ-tiv), adj. consisting of, or exhibiting, a process of reasoning.
ar-gus-eyed (är'gus-īd), adj. watchful; vigilant.
★a-ri-a (ä'ri-ȧ or ā'ri-ȧ), n. an air; a melody or tune for single voice with accompaniment.
★A-ri-an (ā'ri-an), adj. pertaining to the doctrines of the Arian sect.
ar-id (ar'id), adj. dry; parched up; barren.
a-rid-i-ty (ȧ-rid'i-ti), or aridness (ar'id-nes), n. the state of being dry.
a-right (ȧ-rīt'), adv. rightly; in a right way or form.
a-rise (ȧ-rīz'), v. i. [p. t. arose, p. p. arisen, p. pr. arising], to mount up or ascend; to come into view.
ar-is-toc-ra-cy (ar-is-tok'rȧ-si), n. [pl. aristocracies (-siz)], the nobility or chief persons in a state.
a-ris-to-crat (ȧ-ris'tō-krat or ar'is-tō-krat), n. a personage of rank and noble birth; a person who possesses traits supposed to characterize the nobility.
ar-is-to-crat-ic (ar-is-tō-krat'ik) or aristocratical ('i-kal), adj. pertaining to, or consisting in, a government of the nobles.
a-rith-me-tic (ȧ-rith'mē-tik), n. the science of numbers.
ar-ith-met-i-cal (ar-ith-met'i-kal), adj. of or pertaining to arithmetic.
Arizona (ar-i-zō'nȧ). Generally accepted that the name is derived from an Indian word meaning "arid zone or desert"; but Mowry claims that the name is Aztec, from arizuma, signifying "silver bearing." State of the Union.
ark (ärk), n. the repository of the Covenant, or tables of the Law, in the Jewish tabernacle; the vessel in which Noah and his family were preserved during the deluge.
★Arkansas (är'kan-saw, not är-kan'zas). River, state, county, and town in said state, and city in Cowley county, Kansas. Marquette and other French explorers wrote the word Alkansas and Akamsca, from the Indian tribe.
★Arles (ärlz, Fr., ärl). A city in the department of Bouches-du-Rhone, France, situated on the left bank of the eastern arm of the Rhone near its mouth.
Arlington house. A mansion on the heights opposite Washington, District of Columbia, in the midst of the national cemetery.
arm (ärm), n. the limb of the human body which extends from the shoulder to the hand; the branch of a tree, an inlet of the sea, etc.
arm (ärm), n. a weapon; a branch of the military service: v. t. to furnish or equip with weapons of offense or defense.
ar-ma-da (är-mä'dȧ), n. a fleet of armed vessels.
ar-ma-ment (är'mȧ-ment), n. a body of forces equipped for war, either military or naval.
ar-ma-ture (är'mȧ-tūr), n. armor; that which serves as a means of defense; a piece of soft iron connecting the poles of a magnet.
arm-chair (ärm'chār), n. a chair furnished with supports for the elbows.
ar-mis-tice (är'mis-tis), n. a temporary cessation of hostilities; a truce.
arm-let (ärm'let), n. a bracelet, or piece of armor for the arm.
ar-mor (är'mẽr), n. defensive arms; protective covering for the body in battle.
ar-mor-clad (-klad), adj. iron-clad, as a war vessel protected by steel plating.
ar-mor-er (är'mẽr-ẽr), n. formerly a maker of arms or armor.
ar-mo-ri-al (är-mō'ri-al), adj. pertaining to armor or to the arms or escutcheon of a family.
ar-mo-ry (är'mō-ri), n. [pl -ries, (-riz)], a place for arms or the assembly of soldiers.
ar-mo-zeen or armozine (är-mō-zēn'), n. a thick plain silk, generally black, used for clerical robes.
arm-pit (ärm'pit), n. the cavity beneath the shoulder.
arms (ärmz), n. pl. weapons of offense or defense; the military service.
ar-my (är'mi), n. [pl. armies ('miz)], a body of men trained and equipped for war.
ar-ni-ca (är'ni-kȧ), n. a genus of perennial herbs; from the roots or flowers of a species of this herb a valuable external remedy for bruises is made.
Arnold. Bailey says the name in Saxon, Arnhold, signifies "faithful to his honor"; Lower says the surname Arnulfe is the same as Arnold, in mediæval records sometimes Latinized Ernulphus, which might be translated both "help in war" and "helping lord," all doubtless from ern-walt, "powerful lord." Fr., Arnaud; Ger., Arnold; It., Arnaldo; Lat., Arnoldus or Arnaldus.
★a-ro-ma (ȧ-rō'mȧ), n. [pl. aromas ('mȧz)], perfume; fragrance.
★ar-o-mat-ic (ar-ō-mat'ik) or ar-o-mat-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. giving out aroma.
★Aroostook (ȧ-rōō'stook). River and county in Maine. An Indian word meaning "good river," or "clear of obstruction."
a-round (ȧ-round'), adv. in a circle; on every side; roundabout.
a-rou-sal (ȧ-rou'zal), n. the act of awakening.
a-rouse (ȧ-rouz'), v. t. to excite or stir to action.
ar-raign (ar-rān'), v. t. to summon as a prisoner at the bar of a court to answer to a charge. [ACCUSE.]
ar-raign-ment (ar-rān'ment), n. an accusation.
ar-range (ar-rānj'), v. t. to put in proper order or sequence; classify. [DISPOSE.] ar-range-ment (ar-rānj'ment), n. the act of putting in proper form or order; that which is ordered or disposed.
ar-rant (ar'rant), adj. notorious; unmitigated.
ar-ras (ar'ras), n. tapestry.
ar-ray (ar-rā'), n. order; the grouping or arrangement of a body of men as drawn up for battle: v. t. [p. t. and p. p. -ed, p. pr. -ing], to place or dispose in order; marshal; deck or dress.
ar-rear (ar-rēr'), n. the state of being behind-hand.
ar-rear-age (ar-rēr'āj), n. the state or condition of being in arrears.
ar-rest (ar-rest'), v. t. to stop or stay; check or hinder the action or motion of; seize, take, or apprehend by legal authority. [OBSTRUCT.] ar-ri-val (ar-rī'val), n. the act of coming to a place.
ar-rive (ar-rīv'), v. i. to come to or reach.
ar-ro-gance (ar'rō-gans), n. an undue degree of self-importance; an exorbitant claim to dignity. [HAUGHTINESS, PRIDE.]
ar-ro-gant (ar'rō-gant), adj. making exorbitant claims to dignity or estimation.
ar-ro-gate (ar'rō-gāt), v. t. to assume or lay claim to unduly, or with presumptuous pride.
ar-row (ar'rō), n. a slender, pointed missile weapon, usually feathered and barbed, made to be shot from a bow. [arrow.
ar-row-head (-hed), n. the head or barb of an ar-se-nal (är'sē-nal), n. a magazine for the storage of arms and military stores.
ar-se-nic (är'sē-nik), n. an element of steel-gray color and brilliant luster, and exceedingly brittle.
ar-se-ni-ous (är-sē'ni-us), adj. pertaining to or containing arsenic.
ar-son (är'sn), n. the malicious firing of any building, agricultural produce, ship, etc.
art (ärt), n. the employment of means to the accomplishment of some end; the skillful adaptation and application to some purpose or use of knowledge acquired from nature. [BUSINESS.]
ar-te-ri-al (är-tē'ri-al), adj. pertaining to an artery or the arteries: contained in an artery.
ar-te-ri-al-ize (är-tē'ri-al-īz), v. t. to convert venous blood into arterial blood.
ar-ter-y (är'tẽr-i), n. [pl. arteries (-iz)], one of a system of tubes or vessels which convey the blood from the heart to all parts of the body.
ar-te-sian well (är-tē'zhan wel), a well formed by boring, often to great depth.
art-ful (ärt'ful), adj. cunning; crafty.
★Ar-tha-bas-ka lake, Me. Indian word, meaning "swampy."
Arthur. Armstrong derives this name from Gael. ard, "an eminent person"; literally, "high," "lofty," "exalted," "noble," "eminent," "excellent," "proud"; others derive it from arth, "a bear." Fr., Arthur or Artus; It., Arturo; Lat., Arthurus.
ar-ti-choke (är'ti-chōk), n. a plant with thistle-like foliage, and bearing large terminal flower-heads.
ar-ti-cle (är'ti-kl), n. a distinct portion or member; a single clause, item, or particular, as in a formal agreement or treaty; a concise statement; a prose composition, complete, in itself, in a newspaper.
★ar-tic-u-late (är-tik'ū-lāt), v. t. to joint; unite by means of a joint; to form words; utter in distinct syllables. [UTTER, SPEAK.]
ar-tic-u-la-tion (är-tik-ū-lā'shun), n. the act of jointing; the act of speaking distinctly.
★ar-ti-fice (är'ti-fis), n. an artful or crafty device, an ingenious expedient.
★ar-ti-fi-cial (är-ti-fish'al), adj. made or contrived by art; produced by human skill or labor.
★ar-ti-fi-ci-al-i-ty (-fish-i-al'i-ti) or ar-ti-fi-cial-ness (-fish'al-nes), n. the quality of being unreal or unnatural.
ar-ti-fi-cial-ly (-fish'al-li), adv. by human skill or contrivance.
ar-til-ler-y (är-til'lẽr-i), n. cannon; great guns; ordnance of all kinds. [trade.
ar-ti-san (är'ti-zan), n. one skilled in any art or ar-tist (är'tist), n. one skilled in any branch of high art.
ar-tis-tic (är-tis'tik) or ar-tis-tic-al ('ti-kal), adj. pertaining to art or to artists; characterized by æsthetic feeling.
art-less (ärt'les), adj. lacking art; unskillful.
Ar-yan (är'yan), n. the race of mankind from which the white people of Europe and southern Asia have descended.
as (as), n. [pl. asses (as'ez)], a Roman weight equivalent to the libra or pound.
as-a-fet-i-da or as-a-fœt-i-da (as-ȧ-fet'i-dȧ), n. a fetid sap obtained from the roots of several large umbelliferous plants.
★A-sa-ka-sa (ä-sä-kä'sä) pagoda. A picturesque Buddhist tower in Tokio, Japan.
★as-bes-tos (as-bes'tos) or asbestus ('tus), n. a fibrous variety of hornblende, possessing the property of being incombustible.
as-cend (as-send'), v. i. to take an upward direction; mount; go up; rise.
as-cend-ant (as-send'ant) or ascendent ('ent), adj. rising; superior; predominant; above the horizon.
as-cend-en-cy (as-send'en-si) or ascendancy ('an-si), n. a governing or controlling power or influence; domination.
as-cen-sion (as-sen'shun), n. the act of moving upward; a rising.
As-cen-sion day (dā), a movable feast to commemorate Christ's ascension into heaven.
Ascension island. Was so named because discovered by the Portuguese on Ascension day, 1501. An island in the Atlantic belonging to Great Britain.
as-cent (as-sent'), n. the act of rising; an upward movement.
as-cer-tain (as-sẽr-tān'), v. t. to make certain.
★as-cet-ic (as-set'ik), adj. exceedingly rigid in the exercise of religious duties and mortification of worldly desires.
as-cribe (as-krib'), v. t. to attribute, impute, or refer; assign.
as-crip-tion (as-krip'shun), n. the act of attributing or imputing.
a-sep-tic (ȧ-sep'tik), adv. free from the germs of disease or putrefaction.
a-sex-u-al (ȧ-seks'ū-al), adj. not sexual; produced by other than sexual processes.
ash (ash), n. the name popularly applied to trees of the genus Fraxinus.

ash (ash), n. [pl. ashes ('ez)], the residue of plant or animal substance remaining after subjection to red heat [BODY.]

a-shamed (ȧ-shāmd'), p. adj. affected or touched by shame.

ash-en (ash'n), adj. pertaining to the ash-tree; made of ash; of the color of ashes; pale.

Ashley river, S. C. From Sir Anthony Ashley Cooper. Indian name of the stream Kiawah.

Asia (ā'shi-ȧ). From the Sanskrit ushas, signifying "land of the dawn."

Asia Minor. Lesser Asia.

ask (ȧsk), v. t. to request; seek to obtain by words.

Syn. ASK, inquire, interrogate, question. We perform all these actions in order to get information; but we ask for general purposes of convenience; we inquire from motives of curiosity; we question and interrogate from motives of discretion. Indifferent people ask of each other whatever they wish to know; learners inquire the reasons for things which are new to them; masters question their servants, or parents their children, when they wish to ascertain the real state of any case; magistrates interrogate criminals when the latter are brought before them.

a-skance (ȧ-skans') or a-skant (ȧ-skant'), adv. sideways; obliquely; awry.

a-skew (ȧ-skū'), adv. obliquely; awry.

asp (ȧsp), n. a small venomous snake of Egypt.

as-par-a-gus (as-par'ȧ-gus), n. a plant having tender edible shoots.

as-pect (as'pekt), n. visual or mental appearance; look; mien; air; outlook or prospect.

as-pen (as'pen), n. a species of poplar whose leaves have the property of trembling in the slightest breeze.

as-per-i-ty (as-per'i-ti), n. [pl. asperities (-tiz)], roughness of surface; bitterness of taste or temper. [ACRIMONY.]

as-per-sion (as-pēr'shun), n. a sprinkling, as of dust or water; slander.

★as-phalt (as-falt', not as'falt), n. a compact, brittle variety of native bitumen, employed for the purpose of paving, roofing and cementing.

as-pho-del (as'fō-del), n. the name of several plants of the lilaceous genus Asphodelus.

★as-phyx-i-a (as-fiks'i-ȧ) or as-phyx-y (ȧs-fiks'i), n. the condition of lifelessness occasioned by suspension or interruption of respiration.

as-phyx-i-ate (as-fiks'i-āt), v. t. to suffocate.

★as-pir-ant (as-pir'ant), adj. aspiring; ambitious: n. one who seeks to attain.

as-pi-rate (as'pi-rāt), v. t. to pronounce with a full breathing; to prefix the sound of the letter h.

as-pi-ra-tion (as-pi-rā'shun), n. the act of aspirating; an aspirated sound; a breath; ambition.

as-pire (as-pir'), v. i. to seek after or desire with longing.

ass (ȧs), n. a quadruped of the genus Equus, allied to the horse.

as-sa-fœt-i-da. See asafetida.

as-sail (as-sāl'), v. t. to fall upon or attack with vehemence.

★as-sail-ant (as-sāl'ant), adj. assaulting; attacking.

as-sas-sin (as-sas'sin), n. one who slays treacherously or by covert assault.

as-sas-si-nate (as-sas'si-nāt), v. t. to kill, or attempt to kill, by secret or treacherous means.

as-sault (as-sawlt'), n. an attack with violence by physical means; an onslaught.

as-say (as-sā'), n. the act or process of determining by analysis the quantity or proportion of any one or more metals in a metallic compound.

★as-say-er (as-sā'ēr), n. one who assays.

as-sem-blage (as-sem'blāj), n. the act of assembling.

as-sem-ble (as-sem'bl). v. t. to collect or gather together in one place or body.

as-sem-bly (as-sem'bli), n. [pl. assemblies (-bliz)], a collection or company of persons brought together in one place.

as-sem-bly-man (-man), n. a member of a legislative assembly.

as-sent (as-sent'), v. i. to admit as true; concede.

Syn. ASSENT, consent, approbation, concurrence. Assent respects matters of judgment; consent respects matters of conduct. We assent to what we admit to be true; we consent to what we allow to be done. Approbation is a species of assent, concurrence of consent. To approve is not merely to assent to a thing as right, but to determine upon it positively to be so; concurrence is properly the consent of many. Assent is given by equals or inferiors; consent by superiors; approbation by equals or superiors; concurrence by equals.

as-sert (as-sērt'), v. t. to maintain; declare positively, or with assurance.

Syn. ASSERT, maintain, vindicate. We assert anything to be true; we maintain it by adducing proofs, facts, or arguments; we vindicate our own conduct or that of another when it is called in question. [See allege.]

Ant. DENY, imply, insinuate, suppose.

as-ser-tion (as-sēr'shun), n. the act of asserting.

as-sert-ive (as-sērt'iv), adj. positive; dogmatical.

as-sess (as-ses'), v. t. to fix or determine, as damages.

as-sess-or (as-ses'sēr), n. one appointed to assess property or persons for taxation.

★as-sets (as'sets), n. pl. the property or effects of an insolvent debtor; the entire property of a trader or company of traders.

as-sev-er-ate (as-sev'ēr-āt), v. t. to affirm or aver positively, or with solemnity. [ALLEGE.]

as-sib-i-late (as-sib'i-lāt), v. t. to pronounce with a hissing sound; to alter to a sibilant.

as-si-du-i-ty (as-si-dū'i-ti), n. [pl. assiduities (-tiz)], close application or unremitting attention to.

as-sid-u-ous (as-sid'ū-us), adj. constant in application.

as-sign (as-sīn'), v. t. to appoint, mark out, apportion, make over; fix; designate for a specific purpose. [ALLEGE, COMMIT.]

as-sig-na-tion (as-sig-nā'shun), n. the act of assigning; an appointment to meet.

★as-sign-ee (as-si-nē', not as-si'nē), n. one to whom an assignment of anything is made.

as-sign-ment (as-sīn'ment), n. a setting apart, allotment, or appointment.

as-sign-or (as-si-nōr'), n. one who assigns or transfers an interest.

as-sim-i-late (as-sim'i-lāt), v. t. to bring to conformity or agreement with something else.

as-sist (as-sist'), v. t. to help; aid; give support to. [HELP, ABET.]

as-sist-ance (as-sist'ans), n. help; furtherance.

as-sist-ant (as-sist'ant), adj. helping; lending aid. [ACCESSORY.]

★as-size (as-sīz'), n. [pl. assizes (-si'zez)], a court or session of justice for the trial by jury of civil or criminal cases.

as-so-ci-ate (as-sō'shi-āt), v. t. to unite; join with; connect; accompany, as a companion: n. a companion; a confederate; an ally. [ACCESSORY.]

as-so-ci-a-tion (as-sō-si-ā'shun), n. the act of associating or state of being associated; union. [ACQUAINTANCE, CLASS.]

★as-so-nance (as'sō-nans), n. resemblance of sound.

★as-so-nant (as'sō-nant), adj. having resemblance of sound.

as-sort (as-sôrt'), v. t. to divide or separate into lots according to arrangement.

as-sort-ment (as-sôrt'ment), n. the act of assorting.

★as-suage (as-swāj'), v. t. to soften; mitigate. [ALLAY.]

as-sume (as-sūm'), v. t. to take to; to take in or into; take upon one's self; arrogate.

as-sump-tion (as-sump'shun), n. the act of assuming. [PRETENSE, PRIDE.]

as-sur-ance (ȧ-shūr'ans), n. the act of assuring.

as-sure (ȧ-shūr'), v. t. to make sure or certain; to inspire confidence by declaration or promise.

as-sured (ȧ-shūrd'), p. adj. made certain; guaranteed; self-possessed; insured: n. a person insured.

as-sur-ed-ly (-li), adv. certainly; with assurance.

As-syr-i-an (as-sir'i-an), adj. pertaining to Assyria or to its inhabitants.

as-ter (as'tēr), n. a genus of flowering plants with rosette-shaped flowers; any plant of the genus aster.

as-te-ri-al (as-tē'ri-al), adj. connected with, or related to, the stars.

as-ter-isk (as'tēr-isk), n. the mark () used in printing as a reference to a marginal passage or footnote appended to the text, or to indicate letters or words omitted ( * *).

a-stern (ȧ-stērn'), adj. and adv. at or toward the hinder part of a ship.

as-ter-oid (as'tēr-oid), adj. star-like; star-shaped.

asth-ma (as'mȧ, az'mȧ or ast'mȧ), n. respiratory disease, chronically recurrent and attended by difficulty of breathing.

a-stig-ma-tism (ȧ-stig'mȧ-tizm), or a-stig-mism ('mizm), n. a defect in the structure of the eye.

a-stir (ȧ-stēr'), adv. or adj. on the move; active.

as-ton-ish (as-ton'ish), v. t. to strike with sudden wonder.

as-ton-ish-ment (as-ton'ish-ment), n. the state of being astonished.

as-tound (as-tound'), v. t. to strike with amazement.

★as-tra-khan (as'trȧ-kan), n. the skins of young lambs with curly wool, obtained from Astrakhan.

as-tral (as'tral), adj. pertaining to the stars; starry.

a-stray (ȧ-strā'), adv. out of the right way.

a-stride (ȧ-strīd'), adv. with the legs wide apart.

as-trin-gent (as-trin'jent), adj. binding; contracting, opposed to laxative.

as-tro-labe (as'trō-lāb), n. an instrument formerly employed for taking the altitude of the sun or stars.

as-trol-o-ger (as-trol'ō-jēr), n. one who professes to forecast events by means of the stars.

as-trol-o-gy (as-trol'ō-ji), n. predestination by the stars.

as-tron-o-mer (as-tron'ō-mer), n. one who studies, or is versed in, astronomy.

as-tro-nom-ic (as-trō-n.om'ik) or as-tro-nom-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. pertaining to astronomy, or according to astronomical laws.

as-tron-o-my (as-tron'ō-mi), n. the study of the heavenly bodies.

as-tro-pho-tog-ra-phy (as-trō-fō-tog'rȧ-fi), n. photography applied to the delineation of the heavenly bodies.

as-tro-phys-i-cal (as-trō-fiz'i-kal), adj. pertaining to the physical structure of the stars.

as-tute (as-tūt'), adj. shrewd; keenly penetrating; sagacious; cunning; crafty.

a-sun-der (ȧ-sun'dēr), adv. apart; separately.

a-sy-lum (ȧ-sī'lum), n. [pl. asylums ('lumz)], an institution for the care or relief of the aged, destitute, or afflicted.

★as-ym-met-ri-cal (as-im-met'ri-kal), adj. not symmetrical.

at-a-vism (at'ȧ-vizm), n. the reversion, or tendency to revert, to the ancestral type of a species.

★a-tax-i-a (ȧ-taks'i-ȧ), or a-tax-y ('i), n. irregularities in the functions of the body.

a-the-ism (ā'thē-izm), n. disbelief in the existence of God.

a-the-ist (ā'thē-ist), n. one who disbelieves or denies the existence of God.

ath-e-ne-um, ath-e-næ-um (ath-e-nē'um), n. [pl. atheneums ('umz) and athenæa ('ȧ)], an institution, club, or building devoted to study.

Athens (ath'enz). A name of doubtful etymology; cannot be separated from that of Athene, the tutelary goddess of the city. Athens is either the city of Athene, as the Athenians believed, or Athene may be the goddess of Athens, or both names may be independent formations from the same root. The capital of Greece.

a-thirst (ȧ-thērst'), adj. in want of drink.

ath-lete (ath'lēt), n. a competitor for a prize in public games; one possessed of great physical strength.

ath-let-ic (ath-let'ik), adj. pertaining to athletes, or their performances.

ath-let-ics (ath-let'iks), n. pl. any system of athletic training by gymnastic exercises or outdoor sports.

Athol (ath'ol). Town in Worcester county, Massachusetts, said to have been named for James Murray, second duke of Athol.

a-thwart (ȧ-thwart'), prep. across; from side to side.

Atlanta (at-lan'tȧ), Ga. Originally, Marthasville. Atlanta was suggested by the late Edgar Thomson of Philadelphia, owing to its geographical position, immediately on the dividing ridge, separating the gulf and Atlantic waters.

Atlantic Ocean. Was known to the Greeks by the name of Atlantikos pelagos, from the Isle of Atlantes.

at-las (at'las), n. [pl. atlases (-ez)], a collection of maps in a volume.

at-mol-o-gy (at-mol'ō-ji), n. the science of aqueous vapor.

at-mom-e-ter (at-mom'ē-tēr), n. an instrument for measuring the rate and amount of evaporation from a moist surface.

at-mos-phere (at'mos-fēr), n. the aëriform fluid surrounding the earth, composed of a mechanical mixture of 79 parts by volume of nitrogen with 21 parts of oxygen, and a trace of carbonic acid and argon.

at-mos-pher-ic (at-mos-fēr'ik), or at-mos-pher-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. pertaining to, or resembling, the atmosphere.

at-mos-pher-ic pres-sure (presh'ēr), the pressure exerted in every direction upon a body by the atmosphere; equivalent to 14⅞ lbs. on the sq. in.

a-toll (ȧ-tol'), n. a coral island having the form of an outer ring of coral surrounding a basin or lagoon.

at-om (at'um), n. an ultimate indivisible particle of matter.

a-tom-ic (a-tom'ik) or a-tom-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. pertaining to, or consisting of, atoms.

at-om-i-zer (at'um-i-zēr), n. an instrument constructed to reduce a liquid to spray.

a-tone (ȧ-tōn'), v. i. [p. t. and p. p. atoned, p. pr. atoning], to make reparation or amends.

a-tone-ment (ȧ-tōn'ment), n. reparation or satisfaction; the recompense for sin typified by the sufferings and death of Christ.

a-tro-cious (ȧ-trō'shus), adj. wicked in the highest degree; extremely criminal or cruel. [HEINOUS.]

a-troc-i-ty (ȧ-tros'i-ti), n. [pl. atrocities (-tiz)], enormous wickedness.

★at-ro-phy (at'rō-fi), n. a wasting, or diminution in bulk, of the body: v. i. [p. t. and p. p. atrophied, p. pr. atrophying], to waste away; to dwindle.

at-tach (at-tach'), v. t. to fasten, or fix, to or on. [ADD, ADJACENT, ADDICTED.]

at-tach-ment (at-tach'ment), n. the act of attaching. [LOVE.]

at-tack (at-tak'), v. t. to assault; fall upon with force; assail with intent to overcome or to damage: n. the act of attacking in any sense of the word. [IMPUGN.]

at-tain (at-tān'), v. t. to achieve; gain; compass.

at-tain-der (at-tān'dēr), n. the act of attainting, or the state of being attainted.

at-tain-ment (at-tān'ment), n. the act of attaining.

at-taint (at-tānt'), v. t. to taint; corrupt.

at-tempt (at-tempt'), v. t. to make an effort to accomplish; try; endeavor to perform.

at-tend (at-tend'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. attended, p. pr. attending], to wait upon; accompany or be present with.

at-ten-dance (at-ten'dans), n. the act of attending; waiting on; presence.

at-ten-dant (at-ten'dant), n. one who attends in service of another. [ACCESSORY.]

at-ten-tion (at-ten'shun), n. the act of applying the mind to anything; consideration or regard for any person or thing. [HEED.]

at-ten-tive (at-ten'tiv), adj. heedful.

at-ten-u-ate (at-ten'ū-āt), v. t. to make thin or slender; weaken or reduce; thin out by dilution; rarefy.

at-test (at-test'), v. t. to bear witness to; certify as being genuine or true.

at-tic (at'tik), n. an uppermost room in a house immediately beneath the roof; a garret.
At-tic (at'tik), adj. pertaining to Attica, in Greece; classical; elegant.
★at-tire (at-tīr'), v. t. to dress; clothe; array; adorn: n. dress; clothes; habit. at-ti-tude (at'ti-tūd), n. bodily position or posture. [ACTION.] ★at-tor-ney (at-tĕr'ni), n. one legally qualified to act for another in the transaction of business.
at-tract (at-trakt'), v. t. to draw to or toward.
Syn. ATTRACT, allure, invite, engage. That is attractive which draws the thoughts toward itself; that is alluring which awakens desires; that is inviting which offers persuasion; that is engaging which takes possession of the mind.
at-trac-tion (at-trak'shun), n. the power or act of attracting. [LOVE.]
at-tract-ive (at-trakt'iv), adj. having the power or tendency to attract. [PLEASANT.] at-trib-u-ta-ble (at-trib'ū-tā-bl), adj. capable of being attributed.
at-trib-ute (at-trib'ūt), v. t. to ascribe, impute, assign.
at-tri-tion (at-trish'un), n. the act of wearing by rubbing.
at-tune (at-tūn'), v. t. to put in tune.
Aubrey (aw'bri). A name derived from the Old German name Amalric, signifying "powerful without a blot," or "rich in chastity." Amalric has been corrupted to Alberic, whence Aubrey. au-burn (aw'bĕrn), adj. reddish-brown.
auc-tion (awk'shun), n. a public sale of property or effects.
auc-tion-eer (awk-shun-ēr'), n. one licensed to sell property or goods by public auction.
au-da-cious (aw-dā'shus), adj. bold; daring; spirited.
au-dac-i-ty (aw-das'i-ti), n. [pl. audacities (-tiz)], boldness; daring; spirit.
au-di-ble (aw'di-bl), adj. capable of being heard.
au-di-bly (-bli), adv. so as to be heard.
★au-di-ence (aw'di-ens), n. the act of hearing; admittance to a hearing or formal interview.
au-dit (aw'dit), n. official examination and verification of claims or accounts.
au-di-tor (aw'di-tĕr) n. a person appointed to examine and verify accounts and claims.
au-di-to-ri-um (aw-di-tō'ri-um), n. [pl. auditoriums (-umz) and auditoria (-ȧ)], the space in a theater or other public building assigned to the audience.
au-di-to-ry (aw'di-tō-ri), adj. pertaining to hearing, or to the sense or organs of hearing.
Audrey or Audrie (aw'dri). A feminine name corrupted from Etheldreda.
au-ger (aw'gĕr), n. a tool for boring holes.
aught (awt), n. anything; any part.
★aug-ment (awg-ment'), v. t. to increase; to enlarge in size or extent. [ADD.]
★aug-men-ta-tion (awg-men-tā'shun), n. increase; the increase in time-value of the notes of a theme; the period of increase in a fever before the crisis is reached au-gur (aw'gĕr), n. one who officially predicted events by the observation and interpretation of natural signs or omens.
Syn. AUGUR, presage, forebode, betoken, portend. Augur signifies either to serve or make use of as an augury; to forebode, and presage, is to form a conclusion in one's own mind; to betoken or portend is to serve as a sign. Persons or things augur; persons only forebode or presage; things only betoken or portend. Auguring is a calculation of some future event, in which the imagination seems to be as much concerned as the understanding; presaging is rather a conclusion or deduction of what may be from what is; it lies in the understanding more than in the imagination; foreboding lies altogether in the imagination. Things are said to betoken which present natural signs; those are said to portend which present extraordinary or supernatural signs.
au-gust (aw-gust'), adj. grand; invested with grandeur and dignity.
August. Named by Augustus Cæsar after himself. Before this the month was known in Rome as Sextilis. In Gallia, however, and in other remote parts of the empire, the ancient name for this month was Eaust, or Aust; i. e., "harvest."
Augusta (aw-gus'tȧ). The feminine form of Augustus, meaning "venerable." Danish, Auguste; Dutch, Auguste; Fr., Auguste; Ger., Auguste or Augusta; It., Augusta; Lat. Augusta.
Augusta, Me. Given in 1737, after the name of the English Princess Augusta Charlotte, eldest granddaughter of George II. The Indian name of the locality was Cushnoc.
Augustin. See Augustine.
Augustine (ô-gus'tin, ô'gus-tin). From the Latin augustus, "venerable." Dutch, Augustinus, or Augustijn; Fr., Augustin; It., Augustino; Lat., Augustinus; Port., Agostinho; Sp., Augustin.
auk (awk), n. the name given to the members of a family of arctic diving birds.
aunt (ănt), n. the sister of one's father or mother.
au-re-ate (aw'rē-āt), adj. golden; gilded.
Aurelia (aw-rē'li-ȧ). A feminine name derived from that of Aurelia, mother of Cæsar, formed from Aurelius, name of a Roman emperor.
au-re-o-la (aw-rē'ō-lȧ) or au-re-ole (aw'rē-ōl), n. a halo, radiance, or luminous cloud encircling the figures of Christ, the Virgin, and the saints.
★au-ri-cle (aw'ri-kl), n. the external ear.
au-ric-u-lar (aw-rik'ū-lĕr), adj. pertaining to the ear or to the sense of hearing.
au-ri-form (aw'ri-fôrm), adj. ear-shaped.
★au-ro-ra (aw-rō'rȧ), n. [pl. auroras ('rȧz) and auroræ ('rē)], the rising light of the morning; the dawn or dayspring.
Aurora. A feminine name from Latin aurora, "the dawn."
★au-ro-ra bo-re-a-lis (bō-rē-ā'lis), the northern lights.
au-rous (aw'rus), adj. pertaining to gold.
aus-cul-ta-tion (aws-kul-tā'shun), n. a method of detecting chest disease by observing the sounds arising in the part.
aus-pice (aws'pis), n. [pl. auspices ('pi-sez)], an omen drawn from birds.
aus-pi-cious (aws-pish'us), adj. having promise of success or happiness.
aus-tere (aws-tēr'), adj. sour; harsh; rough to the taste; severe.
aus-ter-i-ty (aws-ter'i-ti), n. severity of manner or life.
★Austerlitz (aws'tĕr-lits). The east town of the river Littawa in Austro-Hungary; ost, "the east."
Austin. Corrupted from Augustin.
Austin. County and city in Travis county, Texas, and town in Lonoke county, Arkansas, named for Stephen Fuller Austin, the first man to establish a permanent American colony in Texas (1844).
Australasia (aws-tral-ā'shi-ȧ). Meaning, "southern Asia," derived from the Latin australis, "southern."
Australia (aws-trā'li-ȧ). Meaning, "the south." The first indication of Australia on any map is in a small map of the world which forms the vignette to a Dutch work, Journael vande Nassauche Vloot, under Admiral v'Hermitte, in 1623-4-5-6. The place indicated is to the west of Cape Carpentaria of the present map, and is marked "Land eendracht." Austria (aws'tri-ȧ). From the German, österreich, "the eastern empire," in contradistinction to the western empire, founded by Charlemagne.
au-then-tic (aw-then'tik), or au-then-ti-cal ('ti-kal), adj. genuine; original; duly authorized; true.
au-then-ti-cate (aw-then'ti-kāt), v. t. to make authentic.
au-then-tic-i-ty (aw-then-tis'i-ti), n. the quality of being authentic.
au-thor (aw'thĕr), n. the beginner or prime mover of anything. [WRITER.]
au-thor-i-ta-tive (aw-thor'i-tā-tiv), adj. having due authority.
au-thor-i-ty (aw-thor'i-ti), n. [pl. authorities (-tiz)], power or right to act or command; dominion.
au-thor-ize (aw'thĕr-īz), v. t. to vest with authority. [COMMISSION.]
au-to (aw'tō), n. an abbreviation in common use for automobile.
★au-to-bi-o-graph-ic (aw-tō-bī-ō-graf'ik) or au-to-bi-o-graph-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. pertaining to autobiography.
★au-to-bi-og-ra-phy (aw-tō-bī-og'rȧ-fi), n. [pl. autobiographies (-fiz)], a biography, account, or character sketch of a person written by himself.
au-toc-ra-cy (aw-tok'rȧ-si), n. [pl. autocracies (-siz)], absolute, uncontrolled authority.
au-to-crat (aw'tō-krat), n. an absolute prince or sovereign.
au-to-crat-ic (aw-tō-krat'ik) or au-to-crat-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. pertaining to autocracy; absolute.
au-to-graph (aw'tō-grȧf), n. a person's own handwriting; an original manuscript or signature.
au-tog-ra-phy (aw-tog'rȧ-fi), n. the science or study of autographs.
au-to-hyp-no-sis (aw-tō-hip-nō'sis), n. the state or condition of self-hypnotism.
au-to-mat-ic (aw-tō-mat'ik) or au-to-mat-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. having the power of self-motion or self-action.
au-tom-a-ton (aw-tom'ȧ-ton), n. [pl. automatons (-tonz), and automata (-tȧ)], that which possesses the power of spontaneous movement without consciousness.
★au-to-mo-bile (aw-tō-mō'bil, Fr. aw-tō-mō-bēl'), n. a vehicle moved by a source of power within itself; a motor-carriage.
au-to-mo-bil-ist (aw-tō-mō'bil-ist), n. one who uses and controls an automobile; a chauffeur.
au-to-nom-ic (aw-tō-nom'ik), or au-ton-o-mous (-ton'ō-mus), adj. pertaining to autonomy.
au-ton-o-my (aw-ton'ō-mi), n. [pl. autonomies (-miz)], the power or right of self-government; the state of political independence.
★au-top-sy (aw'top-si), n. a post-mortem examination.
au-to-sug-gest-i-bil-i-ty (aw-tō-sug-jest-i-bil'i-ti), n. the state or quality of being autosuggestive; ability to hypnotize one's self.
au-to-sug-gest-ive (aw-tō-sug-jest'iv), adj. fitted or tending to stimulate thought of itself; pertaining to, or characteristic of, autosuggestion.
au-to-tox-ic (aw-tō-toks'ik), adj. self-poisoning.
au-to-truck (aw'tō-truk), n. a self-moving truck; motor-truck.
au-to-type (aw'tō-tīp), n. a facsimile.
au-to-ty-pog-ra-phy (aw-tō-ti-pog'rȧ-fi), n. a kind of nature printing.
au-tumn (aw'tum), n. the season between summer and winter.
au-tum-nal (aw-tum'nal), adj. belonging or peculiar to autumn.
★aux-il-i-a-ry (awgs-il'yȧ-ri), adj. helping; aiding; assisting; subsidiary.
a-vail (ȧ-vāl'), v. t. to be of use, value, or service.
a-vail-a-bil-i-ty (ȧ-vāl'ȧ-bil-i-ti), n. the state or quality of being available.
av-a-lanche (av'ȧ-lanch), n. the sudden descent of a mass of compact snow or ice from the higher parts of a mountain.
av-a-rice (av'ȧ-ris), n. an inordinate or insatiable desire of gain.
av-a-ri-cious (av-ȧ-rish'us), adj. impelled by avarice.
av-a-tar (av-ȧ-tär'), or av-a-ta-ra (-tä'rȧ), n. the descent of a deity to earth in an incarnate form.
a-vaunt (ȧ-vawnt' or ȧ-vänt'), interj. begone!
a-venge (ȧ-venj'), v. t. to exact punishment or satisfaction for wrong or injury done to one's self or another.
Syn. AVENGE, punish, retaliate, revenge, vindicate, visit. To avenge is to visit punishment, in order to vindicate the righteous; to revenge is to inflict harm or suffering upon another through personal anger and resentment; avenge is unselfish; revenge is selfish; to retaliate may be necessary for self-defense.
★Aventine (av'en-tin) hill. One of the seven hills of ancient Rome.
av-e-nue (av'e-nū), n. a way or means of approach to a place; a passageway; drive.
a-ver (ȧ-vĕr'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. averred, p. pr. averring], to affirm positively. [ALLEGE.] av-er-age (av'ĕr-āj), v. t. to find the mean, as of unequal sums or quantities.
a-verse (ȧ-vĕrs'), adj. unwilling; unfavorable.
a-ver-sion (ȧ-vĕr'shun), n. opposition or repugnance of mind. [ANTIPATHY, ABOMINATION.]
a-vert (ȧ-vĕrt'), v. t. to turn aside or away.
A-ves-ta (ȧ-ves'tȧ), n. the sacred writings attributed to Zoroaster.
★a-vi-a-ry (ā'vi-ā-ri), n. [pl. aviaries (-riz)], a house, large cage, or inclosure for the keeping of birds.
★a-vi-a-tion (ā'vi-ā-shun), n. the art of flying.
★a-vi-a-tor (ā'vi-ā-tĕr), n. one who operates an aëroplane.
a-vid-i-ty (ȧ-vid'i-ti), n. greediness; eagerness.
av-o-ca-tion (av-ō-kā'shun), n. a subordinate or occasional occupation.
a-void (ȧ-void'), v. t. to keep away; to shun.
a-void-ance (ȧ-void'ans), n. the act of annulling or making void.
★av-oir-du-pois (av-ĕr-dū-poiz'), n. a system of weights in which one pound contains 16 ounces.
a-vouch (ȧ-vouch'), v. t. to affirm openly; maintain.
a-vow (ȧ-vou'), v. t. to declare openly; acknowledge.
a-vow-al (ȧ-vou'al), n. an open declaration.
a-wait (ȧ-wāt'), v. t. to wait for; look for or expect.
a-wake (ȧ-wāk'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. awoke, awaked, p. pr. awaking], to arouse from sleep: adj. not sleeping; roused from sleep or inactivity.
a-wak-en (ȧ-wāk'en), v. t. to rouse from sleep.
Syn. AWAKEN, excite, provoke, rouse, stir up. We awaken by a simple effort; we excite by repeated efforts or forcible means; we provoke by words, looks, or actions. The tender feelings are awakened; affections, or the passions in general, are excited; the angry passions are commonly provoked; we are roused from an extraordinary state by extraordinary means; we are stirred up from an ordinary to an extraordinary state.
a-ward (ȧ-ward'), v. t. to adjudge; assign by judicial sentence, or arbitration.
a-ware (ȧ-wâr'), adj. on guard; watchful; apprised.
a-way (ȧ-wā'), adj. absent; at a distance; out of.
awe (aw), n. reverential fear; the feeling or emotion inspired by the contemplation of something sublime.
aw-ful (aw'ful), adj. inspiring or impressing with profound fear.
aw-ful-ly (-li), adv. in an awful manner.
awk. See auk.
awk-ward (awk'wĕrd), adj. wanting dexterity; unskillful.
awl (awl), n. a pointed instrument for piercing.
awn (awn), n. the beard or bristle-like appendage of the outer glume of wheat.
awn-ing (awn'ing), n. a covering of canvas or other cloth stretched upon a frame and used as a shelter.
a-wry (ȧ-ri'), adj. or adv. turned or twisted toward one side.
ax or axe (aks), n. a tool or instrument of steel, used for the hewing of timber and chopping of wood.
ax-il (ak'sil), n. the angle formed by the upper side of an organ or branch with the stem or trunk to which it is attached.
ax-ile (ak'sil), adj. pertaining to the axis.
★ax-i-om (aks'i-um), n. an indisputable self-evident truth.
ax-i-o-mat-ic (aks-i-ō-mat'ik) or ax-i-o-mat-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. pertaining to, or of the nature of, an axiom.
ax-is (aks'is), n. [pl. axes ('ēz)], the straight line, real or imaginary, passing through a body, upon or around which such body revolves, or is supposed to revolve.
ax-le (aks'l), n. the spindle which is inserted in the hub of a wheel, and on which the wheel revolves.
ax-le box (boks), a bushing in the hub of a wheel through which the axle passes.

ax-le tree (aks'l trē), a bar connecting the opposite wheels of a carriage.
aye (ā), adv. always; forever; continually.
aye or ay (ā or ī), adv. or interj. yes; yea; even so.
Ayr-shire (âr'shir), n. a fine breed of cattle from the country of Ayr, Scotland.
a-za-le-a (ā-zā'lē-ā), n. [pl. azaleas (-āz)], a genus of plants belonging to the rhododendron tribe, and remarkable for their flowers.
★Aztec (az'tek). Village in San Juan county, New Mexico, named for one of the native tribes of Mexico. The word is said to mean "place of the heron." Other interpretations give "white" or "shallow land where vapors arise." Humboldt gives "land of flamingoes." The word azcalt means "ant," but Bushmann says that this word has no connection with the name of the tribe.
az-ure (azh'ûr or ā'zhûr), adj. like the blue of the sky; cerulean: n. the clear blue of the sky.

B

baa (bâ), v. i. to cry, as a sheep; bleat: n. the cry or bleating of a sheep.
★Baalbec (bāl'bek or bāl-bek'), Baalbek, Baalbak. An ancient city of Syria, situated on the slope of Anti-Libanus, thirty-four miles northwest of Damascus. It is the Greek Heliopolis, "city of the sun," famous for its ruins.
bab-ble (bab'bl), v. i. to utter indistinct or imperfect sounds; prattle; talk childishly.
babe (bāb), n. [pl. babes (bābz)], an infant or young child of either sex.
ba-boon (bà-bōōn'), n. the popular name of a large division of monkeys which inhabit Africa and Arabia.
ba-by (bā'bi), n. [pl. babies ('biz)], an infant of either sex; a small child.
baby farm (bā'bi fârm), a place where young children are put out for nursing.
ba-by-ish (bā'bi-ish), adj. childish.
Bab-y-lo-ni-an (bab-i-lō'ni-an), adj. pertaining to Babylonia; magnificent; luxurious. Also Babylonish.
★bac-ca-lau-re-ate (bak-à-law'rē-āt), n. the degree of bachelor of arts, science, etc.: adj. pertaining to the degree of bachelor.
★bac-ca-rat (bak-kà-rà'), n. a French card game played between a banker and an unlimited number of bettors with one or more packs of cards.
bac-cha-nal (bak'kà-nal) or bac-cha-na-li-an (bak-kà-nā'li-an), adj. indulging in or characterized by drunken revelry.
bach-e-lor (bach'ē-lēr), n. one who has taken the lowest university degree in any faculty; an unmarried man.
bach-e-lor's but-tons (bach'ē-lērz but'unz), the name popularly given to several flowering plants whose blossoms somewhat resemble buttons.
★bac-il-la-ry (bas'il-là-ri), adj. consisting of bacilli.
★ba-cil-lus (bà-sil'lus), n. [pl. bacilli ('li)], a genus of microscopic vegetable organisms with rod-like, jointed bodies or filaments in constant movement, present in many ferments, active in all stages of putrefaction, and associated with the earliest stages of malignant or zymotic disease.
back or bac (bak), n. a flat-bottomed ferryboat.
back (bak), n. the hinder part of the body in man, or in other animals the upper portion; the whole region of the spine, extending from the base of the neck to the buttocks; the dorsal region of a fish: v. t. to furnish with a back or backing; get upon the back of or mount; second or support; bet. [ABET.]
back-bite (bak'bīt), v. t. [p. t. backbit, p. p. backbit and backbitten, p. pr. backbiting], to slander or speak evil of in absence.
back-bone (bak'bōn), n. the bone of the back; the vertebral column of animals.
backer (bak'ĕr), n. one who sustains or abets another.
back-gam-mon (bak'gam-un), n. a game played by two persons upon a table or board made for the purpose.
back-ground (bak'ground), n. ground in the rear; the distant portion of a landscape.
back-hand (bak'hand), n. writing which slopes backward or to the left.
back-hand-ed (bak'hand-ed), adj. with the hand turned backward; unfair; indirect.
back-ing (bak'ing), n. something placed behind to support or strengthen.
★back-slide (bak-slīd'), v. i. [p. t. backslid, backslided, p. p. backslid, backslidden, backslided, p. pr. backsliding], to slide back; apostatize.
back-stair (bak'stâr) or back-stairs ('stârz), n. stairs in the back part of a house.
back-ward (bak'wĕrd), adj. directed to the back or rear; unwilling; reluctant.
back-ward or back-wards ('wĕrdz), adv. with the back foremost; toward the back.
back-wa-ter (bak'waw-tĕr), n. water caused to flow backward by obstruction of its course.
back-woods (bak'woodz), n. pl. forests or partially cleared land situated far from the centers of population.
ba-con (bā'kn), n. hog's flesh salted or pickled and dried, usually in smoke.
★bac-te-ri-a (bak-tē'ri-à), n. pl. of bacterium.
bac-te-ri-o-log-ic-al (bak-tē-ri-ō-loj'i-kal), adj. of or pertaining to bacteriology.
bac-te-ri-ol-o-gist (bak-tē-ri-ol'ō-jist), n. a student of bacteriology.
★bac-te-ri-ol-o-gy (bak-tē-ri-ol'ō-ji), n. the scientific investigation or study of bacteria.
★bac-te-ri-um (bak-tē'ri-um), n. [pl. bacteria (-à)], a microscopic vegetable organism varying in form.
bad (bad), adj. [compar. worse, superl. worst], the opposite of good; evil; ill; wicked; depraved.
badge (baj), n. a mark, sign, or token, or cognizance to denote occupation, allegiance.
badg-er (baj'ĕr), n. a plantigrade carnivorous mammal, of nocturnal habits: v. t. to worry or annoy.
★bad-i-nage (bad'i-nāj or bà-dē-nàzh'), n. light or playful raillery or banter.
bad-ly (bad'li), adv. wickedly; grievously; unskillfully; defectively; ill.
Baffin land. In the Arctic Ocean, named for the famous arctic navigator who discovered it.
baf-fle (baf'l), v. t. to elude or circumvent by artifice.
bag (bag), n. a sack; a pouch; a wallet; a receptacle for holding anything: v. t. to inclose in a bag.
★bag-a-telle (bag-à-tel'), n. a game played on a nine-holed board, baized and cushioned.
bag-gage (bag'gāj), n. the tents, clothing, utensils, etc., of an army; the trunks, bags, and other impedimenta or baggage of a traveler.
bag-ging (bag'ging), n. the act of putting into bags; coarse cloth or other material used for bags.
bag-gy (bag'gi), adj. having a loose or flabby appearance.
★bagn-io (ban'yō, not bag'ni-ō), n. a bath-house; a brothel.
bag-pipe (bag'pip), n. a Scottish musical instrument, of shrill tone, consisting of a leathern wind bag from which air is forced by the performer's elbow into pipes.
bail (bāl), v. t. to set free or liberate from arrest on security for reappearance.
bail (bāl), v. t. to free from water by dipping; to lade out with a bucket or other utensil.
bai-liff (bā'lif), n. a sheriff's officer who serves processes.
bait (bāt), v. t. to harass or provoke, as by the setting on of dogs.
baize (bāz), n. a coarse woolen stuff, with a nap on one side.
bake (bāk), v. t. to cook or prepare food by subjection to dry heat in a closed place.
bak-er (bāk'ĕr), n. one whose business is to make bread, biscuit, etc.
bak-er-y (bāk'ĕr-i), n. [pl. bakeries (-iz)], a place used for bread-making; a baker's shop.
bak-ing (bāk-ing), n. the quantity of anything baked at the same time; a batch.
bal-ance (bal'ans) n. an instrument for determining the weight of bodies; a pair of scales; a steel-yard: v. t. to weigh; compare; bring to a state of equipoise; keep in equilibrium; poise; equal or make equal; counterbalance; adjust or settle. [POISE.]
bal-an-cer (bal'an-sĕr), n. one who, or that which, keeps anything in equilibrium.
bal-co-nied (bal'kō-nid), adj. having a projecting exterior platform or interior gallery.
bal-co-ny (bal'kō-ni), n. [pl. balconies (-niz)], a platform or gallery projecting from the wall of a building, inclosed by a balustrade or parapet.
bald (bawld), adj. without the natural or usual covering on the head or summit.
bal-der-dash (bawl'dĕr-dash), n. a nonsensical jumble of words; silly talk or writing; a worthless mixture.
bald-head (bawld'hed), n. a man bald on the head.
bal-dric or bal-drick (bawl'drik), n. a broad belt, often richly ornamented, worn around the waist, or over one shoulder and across the breast.
Baldwin. From the Teutonic, probably meaning a "bold winner," or "powerful warrior"; by other authorities, "prince friend"; Danish, Balduin; Dutch, Boudewijn; Fr., Baudouin; Ger., Balduin; It. Baldovino; Lat., Balduinus.
bale (bāl), n. a large bundle or package of goods: v. t. to make up into a bale or bales.
bale (bāl), n. woe; calamity; mischief.
★Balearic (bal-ē-ar'ik) islands. From the Greek ballein, "to throw"; so called because their inhabitants were skillful in the use of the sling. A group of islands in the Mediterranean.
bale-fire (bāl'fīr), n. a beacon or signal fire; a bonfire; a funeral pyre.
bale-ful (bāl'ful), adj. replete with deadly or malign influence.
balk or baulk (bawk), n. a strip or ridge of land left unplowed; a thick, heavy piece of timber; v. t. to thwart, check, or disappoint.
★Balkan (bawl-kan'). From bāla, "high," "high ridge"; also called Mount Hæmus, meaning "the snowy mount"; hima, "snow"; balkh, "high town." A mountain system in southeastern Europe.
ball (bawl), n. a round body; any mass resembling a sphere; a dance. [for singing.
bal-lad (bal'lad), n. a short narrative poem, adapted bal-last (bal'last), n. weighty material carried by a ship to insure stability.
ball-bearing (bawl'bâr-ing), n. a bearing containing loose balls of metal to reduce friction.
bal-let (bal'là or bal'let), n. a theatrical representation in which a story is told, and actions, characters, and passions represented by gestures, accompanied by music and dancing.
bal-loon (bal-lōōn'), n. a large bag of prepared silk or other material, which, when inflated by hydrogen gas or heated air, ascends and floats in the atmosphere.
bal-loon jib (bal-lōōn' jib), a triangular sail used by yachts in a slight breeze.
bal-lot (bal'lot), n. a ball, ticket, or paper by which a vote is registered.
★Ballston Spa (bawl'stun spā). Village in Saratoga county, New York. Named for Rev. Eliphalet Ball, an early settler, the "spa" being added in reference to the medicinal springs resembling the celebrated watering places in Belgium.
balm (bām), n. the oily aromatic exudation of certain trees or shrubs, used for healing or soothing.
balm of gil-e-ad (or gil'ē-ad), the name of various kinds of fragrant resins.
balm-y (bām'i), adj. having the qualities of balm.
★bal-sam (bawl'sam), n. an oily, aromatic, resinous substance obtained from certain trees or shrubs, and used medicinally or in perfumery.
★Balthasar (bāl'thà-zār). The Greek form of Belshazzar, "king protector"; Fr., Balthazar or Balthasar; It., Baldassare; Lat., Balthasar; Sp., Baltasar.
Baltic Sea. Denotes, in accordance with the Swedish balt, "a strait," "a sea full of balts, or straits." An arm of the Atlantic.
★Baltimore (bawl'ti-mōr). County and city in Maryland, and town in Windsor county, Vermont, named for the proprietor of a large tract of land in Maryland, Cecil Calvert, Lord Baltimore, who settled the province in 1635.
bal-us-ter (bal'us-tĕr), n. a small column or pilaster to support the rail of a parapet or balustrade.
bal-us-trade (bal'us-trād), n. a series of small columns or pilasters, surmounted by a top rail or coping, serving as a parapet or protective railing.
bam-boo (bam-bōō'), n. the name of certain tropical grasses having thick-jointed stems of exceeding hardness, and attaining to a height of from 20 to 120 ft.
bam-boo-zle (bam-bōō'zl), v. t. to hoax.
ban (ban), n. in feudal times a public proclamation; excommunication; curse. [BANISH.] ★ba-na-na (bà-nà'nà, not ban-an'à), n. a tropical herbaceous plant.
Banbury (ban'bĕr-i). A town in Oxfordshire, England, situated on the Cherwell twenty-two miles north of Oxford.
band (band), n. that which binds together; that which connects; body of soldiers; a company of musicians forming an orchestra.
band-age (band'āj), n. a roller of cotton or other material used in dressing and binding up wounds.
ban-da-la (ban-dā'là), n. manila white rope.
ban-dan-na or ban-dan-a (ban-dan'à), n. a large silk or cotton handkerchief.
band-box (band'boks), n. a light box of pasteboard, etc., for holding bonnets.
ban-deau (ban-dō'), n. [pl. bandeaux (-dōz')], a ribbon worn over the forehead.
band-ed (band'ed), p. adj. allied; confederated; having bands.
ban-dit (ban'dit), n. [pl. bandits ('dits) and banditti (-dit'ti)], an outlaw; a brigand.
ban-do-leer (ban-dō-lēr'), n. a broad leather belt, worn over the shoulder and across the breast, for holding ammunition.
band-saw (band'saw), n. an endless steel saw running on pulleys.
ban-dy (ban'di), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. bandied, p. pr. bandying], to throw or beat to and fro, as a ball in play; toss from one to another.
ban-dy (ban'di), n. a kind of cart or buggy used in India, drawn by oxen. [destruction.
bane (bān), n. that which causes death, ruin, or bane-ful (bān'ful), adj. poisonous; pernicious.
bang (bang), v. t. to beat, as with a club or cudgel; thump; handle roughly; produce a loud sound by or from (as to bang the door).
bang (bang), n. [pl. bangs], hair cut straight across the forehead so as to form a fringe.
★Bangor (ban'gôr), Me. Named by Rev. Seth Noble, from a well-known psalm tune of that name. Previously the section was known as Sunbury; the Indian name, Con, or Kenduskeag.
ban-ian or ban-yan (ban'yan or ban-yan') n. a Hindu trader or merchant; a Bengali native who manages money affairs for Europeans; a loose gown for men, like that worn by the Hindus.
banian tree (trē), the Indian fig tree, which spreads over a large area by sending down shoots from its branches; these take root and become new trunks.
ban-ish (ban'ish), v. t. to condemn to exile.
Syn. BANISH, ban, discharge, dislodge, dismiss, drive out, eject, evict, exile, expatriate, expel, ostracize, oust. One may be banished, exiled, or expatriated from a country; but expatriated or exiled only from his own; one may expatriate or exile himself; he is banished by others: one may banish disturbing thoughts; care may banish sleep; to expel is to drive out with violence or rudeness.
Ant. HONOR, retain, sustain.
ban-ish-ment (ban'ish-ment), n. the act of expelling or driving away.
ban-is-ter or bannister (ban'is-tĕr), n. corrupt forms of baluster.
ban-jo (ban'jō), n. a musical instrument, of from five to nine strings, having a neck like a guitar, and a circular body covered in front with tightly stretched parchment.

bank (bangk), n. a heap, mound, or ridge of earth; a steep acclivity; an elevation; an establishment for the custody, loan, exchange, or issue of money.
bank-er (bangk'ẽr), n. one who keeps a bank; a vessel employed in the cod-fishery on the banks of Newfoundland; the stone bench on which masons cut and square their work; a ditcher.
bank-rupt (bangk'rupt), n. a person legally declared to be unable to discharge his liabilities.
bank-rupt-cy (bangk'rupt-si), n. the state of being legally insolvent. [INSOLVENCY.] Banks land. So called in compliment to Sir Joseph Banks, the eminent naturalist and president of the Royal Society of Great Britain. ban-ner (ban'nẽr), n. an ensign, standard, or flag of a country, state, or order.
ban-nock (ban'nuk), n. a thick cake made of oatmeal.
banns (banz), n. pl. the proclamation in church of an intended marriage.
★ban-quet (bang'kwet, not ban'kwet), n. a sumptuous entertainment or feast.
ban-tam (ban'tam), n. a diminutive breed of domestic fowl.
ban-ter (ban'tẽr), v. t. to rail at good-humoredly.
bap-tism (bap'tizm), n. the application of water by an authorized administrator, in the name of the Holy Trinity, to a person, by sprinkling, affusion, or immersion, constituting the sacrament or rite by which he is initiated into the visible church of Christ.
bap-tis-mal (bap-tiz'mal), adj. pertaining to the ceremonial application of water.
Bap-tist (bap'tist). From the Greek, meaning a "baptizer"; Fr., Baptiste; Ger., Baptist; It., Battista; Lat., Baptista; Port., Baptista; Sp., Bautista. n. one of a Christian denomination who baptize adult believers only, and who maintain the necessity for immersion.
bap-tis-ter-y (bap'tis-tẽr-i) or bap-tis-try (-tri), n. [pl. baptisteries (-iz), -tries (-triz)], a building or portion of a building in which the rite of baptism is administered.
bap-tize (bap-tiz'), v. t. to administer the rite of baptism.
bar (bär), n. a piece of wood, metal, or other solid matter; a bank of sand, gravel, etc., obstructing navigation at the entrance to a harbor or mouth of a river; the railing inclosing the space occupied by counsel in courts of justice; the place in court where prisoners are stationed for trial or sentence; the members of the legal profession collectively: v. t. [p. t. and p. p. barred, p. pr. barring], to fasten with a bar; to hinder; obstruct; exclude. [OBSTRUCT.] barb (bärb), n. the sharp point projecting backward from the extremity of an arrow, fish-hook, etc.
★Barbados (bär-bā'dōz). From the Latin barba, "a beard," in allusion to the beardlike streamers of moss always hanging from the branches of the trees. An island of British West Indies.
Barbara (bär'bà-rà). From the Greek, meaning "foreign, strange"; Dutch, Barbara; Fr., Barbe; Ger., Barbara; It., Barbara; Lat., Barbara.
bar-ba-ri-an (bär'bā'ri-an), n. a foreigner; a man in a rude, savage state.
bar-bar-ic (bär-bar'ik), adj. pertaining to or characteristic of savage or uncivilized people.
bar-ba-rism (bär'bà-rizm), n. an offense against purity of style or language; an uncivilized state or condition.
bar-bar-i-ty (bär-bar'i-ti), n. [pl. barbarities (-tiz)], the state of being uncivilized; savageness; cruelty.
bar-ba-rous (bär'bà-rus), adj. uncivilized. [CRUEL.]
★Barbary (bär'bà-ri). The land of the Berbers.
bar-be-cue (bär'bẽ-kū), n. a social or political entertainment at which animals are roasted whole, with appropriate surroundings.
bar-ber (bär'bẽr), n. one whose occupation is to shave the beard and cut and dress the hair.
★Barberini (bär-bā-rē'nē) palace. A palace in Rome, near the Quirinal, begun by Urban VIII., whose name was Carlo Barberini, and finished in 1640.
★Barcelona (bär-sē-lō'nà). Named from Hamilcar Barca, who founded it. A seaport of Spain.
bard (bärd), n. a poet and singer.
bard or barde (bärd), n. one of the ornaments and housings of a horse.
bare (bär), adj. naked; with the head uncovered.
Syn. BARE, scanty, destitute. Bare respects what serves for ourselves; scanty that which is provided by others. A subsistence is bare; a supply is scanty; destitute is said generally of whatever one wants. One is destitute of friends, of resources, or of comforts.
Ant. CLOTHED, covered.
bare-faced (bär'fāst), adj. with the face uncovered. [GLARING.] ★bar-gain (bär'gen, not bär'gun), n. an agreement between two or more parties with reference to the sale or transfer of property. [BUY.] barge (bärj), n. a flat-bottomed vessel.
Bar Harbor. A village in Hancock county, Mount Desert Island, Me., so named from a sandy bar.
Baring (bā'ring, bär'ing) island. Discovered by Captain Penny, received the name of Sir Francis Baring, first lord of the British admiralty. bar-i-tone. See barytone.
★ba-ri-um (bā'ri-um), n. one of the elementary metals.
bark (bärk), v. i. to utter a sharp, short sound, as the cry of a dog; to cough: n. the sound or cry emitted by dogs.
bark, n. the exterior layer or rind of woody stems or trunks; Peruvian bark.
bark or barque (bärk), n. a three-masted vessel having the fore and main mast square-rigged, and the mizzenmast fore-and-aft rigged.
bar-kan-tine or bar-ken-tine (bär'kàn-tēn), n. a three-masted vessel having the foremast square-rigged, and the main and mizzen mast fore-and-aft or schooner rigged.
bark-ing (bärk'ing), n. a sharp sound like that of a dog; coughing: n. the process of stripping bark from trees; the process of tanning leather and of dyeing with bark.
bar-ley (bär'li), n. the grain grown and used chiefly or malting.
bar-ley-corn (bär'li-kôrn), n. a grain of barley.
barm (bärm), n. the foam rising upon beer or other malt liquors when fermenting.
barm-y (bärm'i), adj. containing or consisting of yeast; frothy.
barn (bärn), n. a covered building for the storage of grain or other farm produce; a stable for cattle or horses.
Barnabas (bär'na-bas) or Barnaby (bär'na-bi). From the Hebrew Bar Nebah, which some translate "son of exhortation," or "son of consolation." It rather means "son of prophecy," from bar-nebuah. Danish, Barnabas; Dutch, Barnabas; Fr., Barnabe; Ger., Barnabas; It., Barnaba; Lat., Barnabas; Sp., Bernabe.
bar-na-cle (bär'na-kl), n. a cirriped crustacean, found adhering in groups or clusters to rocks or to the bottoms of ships, etc.
★ba-rom-e-ter (bà-rom'ẽ-tẽr), n. an instrument for measuring the weight or pressure of the atmosphere.
bar-on (bar'un), n. the title of an English peer of the lowest rank, next below a viscount; formerly the title of the judges of the court of exchequer.
ba-ro-ni-al (ba-rō'ni-al), adj. pertaining to a baron or a barony.
bar-o-scope (bar'ō-skōp), n. an instrument for indicating variations in the pressure of the atmosphere without actual measurement of its weight.
★ba-rouche (bà-rōōsh'), n. a roomy four-wheeled carriage with a folding or falling top.
bar-rack (bar'rak), n. a large building, or series of buildings, for the lodgment of soldiers.
bar-ra-try (bar'rà-tri), n. the practice of vexatiously inciting and encouraging to lawsuits or litigation; the committal by a ship's master, officer, or mariner, of an act of fraud, or breach of duty, whereby the owners, freighters, or insurers of the vessel are defrauded or injured.
★bar-rel (bar'rel, not bar'rul), n. a vessel or cask.
bar-rel, v. t. [p. t. and p. p. barreled, p. pr. barreling], to put or pack in a barrel.
bar-ren (bar'ren), adj. incapable of producing its kind.
bar-ri-cade (bar-ri-kād'), n. a fortification constructed in haste of such materials as are nearest to hand. [OBSTRUCT.] bar-ri-er (bar'ri-ẽr), n. anything which hinders or obstructs; an obstacle to progress.
bar-ris-ter (bar'ris-tẽr), n. a member of the legal profession qualified to plead at the bar.
bar-row (bar'rō), n. a frame covered with boards, and furnished with handles at both ends, or with a pair of wheels and handles or shafts at one end; a hand-barrow.
Barrow island. In Arctic Ocean, discovered by Captain Penny, in 1850, named for John Barrow, son of Sir John Barrow, the eminent British statesman.
Barrow's strait. In Arctic Ocean, so called by Captain Penny, in compliment to John Barrow.
bar-ter (bär'tẽr), v. i. to traffic or trade by exchanging one commodity for another. [CHANGE.]
★Bartholomew (bär-thol'ō-mū). From the Hebrew Bartolomai, which, according to some, means "son of Ptolemy," but it translates rather "son of Tolmai." Danish, Bartholomæus; Dutch, Bartholomeus; Fr., Barthelemi; Ger., Bartholomaus; It., Bartolommeo; Lat., Bartholomæus; Port., Bartholomeu; Russ., Varfolomei; Sp., Bartolome; Sw., Bartholomaus.
ba-ry-ta (bà-ri'tà), n. the oxide of barium.
★bar-y-tone or bar-i-tone (bar'i-tōn), adj. intermediate between bass and tenor, as a male voice or instrument.
ba-salt (bà-sawlt' or bas'awlt), n. an igneous rock of greenish black color.
base (bās), adj. worthless; spurious; of mean spirit.
base, n. the part of a thing on which it rests; a foundation or groundwork; that which combines with an acid to form a salt.
base-ball (bās'bawl), n. a game of ball played by nine on a side; ball used in playing baseball.
base-man (bās'man), n. [pl. basemen ('men)], a player in baseball placed at the first, second, and third bases respectively.
base-ment (bās'ment), n. the lowest part of a structure; the lowest story of a building.
bash-ful (bash'ful), adj. easily disconcerted; modest to excess; diffident; shy. [MODEST.] ★Basil (bā'sil, not bā'zil). From the Greek, basileios, meaning "kingly." Danish, Basilius; Dutch, Basilius; Fr., Basile; Ger., Basilius; It., Basilio; Lat., Basilius; Russ., Vasilii; Sw., Basilius.
★ba-sil-i-ca (bà-zil'i-kà, not bā-sil'i-kà), n. [pl. basilicas (-kàz)], in ancient Rome, a public hall of rectangular shape used for judicial assemblies; a magnificent church, chapel, or cathedral.
bas-i-lisk (baz'i-lisk), n. a fabulous creature, variously conceived as a kind of serpent; a crested lizard.
ba-sin (bā'sn), n. a circular vessel for holding water or other liquid.
ba-sis (bā'sis), n. [pl. bases ('sēz)], a foundation; the groundwork or fundamental principle of anything. [FOUNDATION.]
bask (bàsk), v. i. to lie in warmth; be exposed to genial heat.
bas-ket (bàs'ket), n. a vessel made of rushes, or other flexible material.
basque (bàsk), n. a kind of a woman's jacket with a short skirt.
Basque, adj. of or pertaining to the Basque race or language.
★Basque provinces. The provinces of Vizcaya, Guipuzcoa, and Alava, in Spain, united to Castile in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. From bassoco, "a mountaineer"; or, according to Humboldt, from basoa, "a forest."
bas-re-lief (bä-rē-lēf'), n. low relief.
bass (bàs), n. the American lime tree.
bass (bās), adj. low; deep; grave: n. the lowest part in the harmony of a musical composition.
bass or basse (bàs), n. the name of various edible fishes allied to the perch.
★bas-soon (bas-sōōn'), n. an instrument of the reed kind.
bast (bast), n. the tough inner fibrous bark of various trees, especially of the lime.
bas-tard (bas'tẽrd), n. a child begotten and born out of wedlock.
bas-tar-dy (bas'tẽr-di), n. the state of being illegitimate, or born out of lawful wedlock.
baste (bāst), v. t. to beat with a stick; to drip or pour melted fat or butter on meat while roasting.
★Bastille (bàs-tēl'), The. An old castle in Paris used as a state prison, demolished by the populace in 1789.
bas-ti-na-do (bas-ti-nā'dō), n. an oriental mode of punishment, consisting in beating an offender upon the soles of his feet with a stick or rod.
★bas-tion (bas'chun), n. an earthwork faced with brick or stone, projecting from the angles of a rampart.
bat (bat), n. a heavy stick or club; the flattened club used in cricket or similar games; a batsman.
bat (bat), n. an insectivorous mammal furnished with wings formed by a membrane stretched between the elongated fingers, legs, and tail.
batch (bach), n. a quantity of anything produced at one operation; a group or collection of similar things.
bate (bāt), v. t. to lessen or reduce; deduct.
bath (bàth), n. [pl. baths (bàthz)], the act of washing or immersing the body in water; a medium through which heat is applied to a body.
Bath, Me. Name adopted February 17, 1781, from Bath, England.
bathe (bāth), v. t. to subject to a bath.
ba-thos (bā'thos), n. a ludicrous descent from the elevated to the commonplace in writing or speech.
Baths of Caracalla (kar-à-kal'à). Baths in ancient Rome, begun by Severus, 206 A. D. Named for the Emperor "Caracalla," a nickname for Marcus Aurelius Antoninus.
ba-thym-e-try (bà-thim'ẽ-tri), n. the art of sounding or of measuring sea depths.
ba-tiste (bà-tēst'), n. a kind of cambric.
★bat-on (bat'un, Fr. bà-tōN'), n. a staff or truncheon used as a weapon, or as a mark or badge of office.
★Baton Rouge (bat'un rōōzh, Fr. bà-tōN' rōōzh). City in East Baton Rouge parish, Louisiana. It is a French name, meaning "red staff" or "stick," given because of a tall cypress tree which stood upon the spot where it was first settled. Still another theory ascribes the name to the fact that a massacre by the Indians took place upon the spot upon the arrival of the first settlers.
bat-tal-ion (bat-tal'yun), n. a body of infantry usually forming a division of a regiment.
bat-ten (bat'tn), v. t. to make fat by plenteous living; fertilize or enrich: v. i. to grow or become fat.
bat-ten, n. a strip of wood used to fasten the edges of a tarpaulin to the deck of a ship: v. t. to fasten or form with battens.
bat-ter (bat'tẽr), v. t. to strike with heavy, repeated blows, so as to bruise.
bat-ter, n. a mixture of several ingredients, as flour, eggs, etc., beaten together.
bat-ter-y (bat'tẽr-i), n. [pl. batteries (-iz)], the act of battering or beating; a body of cannon, with its complement of officers, men, and equipments.
bat-tle (bat'tl), n. a fight or encounter between opposing forces; a combat.
bat-tle-ment (bat'tl-ment), n. an indented parapet, consisting of alternate solids and openings.
bau-ble (baw'bl), n. a trifling piece of finery; anything showy or gay.
Bavaria (bà-vā'ri-à). The country of the Boarii, a tribe related to the Boii.
bawd-ry (bawd'ri), n. obscenity; lewdness.

bawl (bawl), v. i. to cry out with a loud, full, and sustained sound. [CALL.] bay (bā), v. i. to bark as a dog, with a deep sound, as hounds in the chase.
bay (bā), adj. red or reddish, approaching to chestnut (applied to horses): n. a horse of such color.
bay (bā), n. a recess in the shore of a sea or lake; the expanse of water between two capes or headlands.
★Bayeux (bä-yō'). Named from the Bajoccas, a Celtic tribe, the name meaning "great conquerors."
Bayeux tapestry. A strip of linen 231 feet long and twenty inches wide, preserved in the Library at Bayeux, France, embroidered with episodes of the Norman conquest of England from the visit of Harold to the Norman court until his death at Senlac, each with its title in Latin.
bay-o-net (bā'ō-net), n. a short, dagger-like instrument constructed to fix onto the barrel of a rifle.
★bay-ou (bī'o͞o or bī'ō), n. [pl. bayous ('o͞oz)], in the southern United States, an inlet from a gulf, lake or river.
★Bayreuth (bī'rŭth. Ger. bī'roit), Baireuth. A former German burggraviate and principality, now in the northern part of Bavaria.
Bayreuth festival. A musical festival held at Bayreuth.
bay win-dow (bā' win'dō), the window or windows forming a bay or recess in a room, and extending outward from the wall, usually of a rectangular, semicircular, or polygonal shape.
ba-zaar or ba-zar (bȧ-zär'), n. in the east, a market-place or exchange.
bdel-lium (del'yum), n. an aromatic gum resin brought from Africa.
beach (bēch), n. [pl. beaches ('ez)], the portion of the shore of the sea or of a lake which is washed by the waves; the strand.
bea-con (bē'kn), n. a signal of warning or guidance, on sea or land.
Beacon hill. An eminence in Boston, Mass., which has become famous in history. The old beacon, shown in all the early plans of the town, which gave the name to Beacon hill, was erected in 1634-1635, to alarm the country in case of invasion. It stood near the present statehouse, the exact spot being the southeast corner of the reservoir formerly standing on Temple street.
Beacon street. A street in Boston, Mass.
bead (bēd), n. a little perforated ball of any suitable material, intended to be strung with others.
bea-dle (bē'dl), n. a messenger or crier of a court.
bea-gle (bē'gl), n. a small hound, formerly used for hunting hares.
beak (bēk), n. the bill of a bird; the horny jaws or mandibles of other animals.
beak-er (bēk'ėr), n. a large drinking cup or vessel with a wide mouth.
beam (bēm), n. a long piece of timber or iron used horizontally or vertically in the framework of a building.
beam-y (bēm'i), adj. emitting rays of light resembling a beam.
bean (bēn), n. the smooth, kidney-shaped seed of many leguminous plants.
bear (bâr), v. t. [p. t. bore, bare, p. p. borne, p. pr. bearing], to support, hold up; carry or convey; suffer or endure; be answerable for; possess, wear: v. i. to be fruitful; to bear.
Syn. BEAR, yield. Bear conveys the idea of creating within itself; yield, that of giving from itself. Animals bear their young; inanimate objects yield their produce.
Ant. BARREN.
bear n. a plantigrade carnivorous mammal, belonging to the genus Ursus, the three best known species of which are the brown or black bear of Europe, the grizzly bear of North America, and the polar bear of the arctic regions.
beard (bērd), n. the hair that grows on the chin.
bear-ing (bâr'ing), n. the act of enduring with patience; carriage; behavior; mutual relation of the parts of a whole.
bear-ish (bâr'ish), adj. resembling a bear in qualities; rude; surly.
beast (bēst), n. any four-footed animal.
beat (bēt), v. t. [p. t. beat, p. p. beaten, beat, p. pr. beating], to strike with repeated blows; thrash; knock; pound or break; flatten or spread by blows; n. a recurring stroke; a pulsation; a throb; a footfall.
Syn. BEAT, defeat, overpower, rout, overthrow. A general is beaten in important engagements; he is defeated and may be routed in partial attacks; he is overpowered by numbers, and overthrown in set engagements.
beat-en work (wėrk), metal shaped by being beaten on an anvil.
be-a-tif-ic (bē-ȧ-tif'ik), adj. having power to bless or render perfectly happy; blissful.
be-at-i-fi-ca-tion (bē-at-i-fi-kā'shun), n. the act of blessing or the state of being blessed.
be-at-i-fy (bē-at'i-fi), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. beatified, p. pr. beatifying], to make happy.
be-at-i-tude (bē-at'i-tūd), n. felicity of the highest kind; consummate bliss.
Beatrice (bē'ȧ-tris, Fr. bā-ȧ-trēs'), Beatrix (bē'ȧ-triks). Feminine names formed from Latin beatus, "blessed, happy." Danish, Beatrix; Dutch, Beatrix; Fr., Beatrice; Ger., Beatrix, or Beatrice; It., Beatrice; Lat., Beatrix; Sp., Beatriz; Sw., Beatrix.
beau (bō), n. [pl. beaus or beaux (bōz)], a ladies' man or suitor.
★Beaufort (bū'fȯrt), S. C. In honor of Henry, duke of Beaufort.
beau-te-ous (bū'tē-us), adj. possessing beauty.
beau-ti-ful (bū'ti-ful), adj. possessing qualities which charm and delight the senses; lovely.
beau-ti-fy (bū'ti-fī), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. beautified, p. pr. beautifying], to make or render beautiful.
beau-ty (bū'ti), n. [pl. beauties (-tiz)], assemblage of graces or properties which command the approbation of the senses.
bea-ver (bē'vėr), n. a rodent quadruped of amphibious habits, and valued for its fur.
bea-ver, n. that portion of armor which served to protect the lower part of the face, and could be raised or depressed.
be-calm (bē-käm'), v. t. to make calm or still.
beck (bek), n. a nod, or other significant gesture.
beck-et (bek'et), n. a contrivance in ships to confine small spars or loose ropes, etc.
beck-on (bek'n), v. i. to make a signal to another by a motion of the head or hand.
be-cloud. See cloud.
be-come (bē-kum'), v. i. [p. t. became, p. p. become, p. pr. becoming], to pass from one state to another; come or grow to be.
be-com-ing (bē-kum'ing), p. adj. fit; suitable; seemly; proper; appropriate; befitting.
★becque-rel rays (bek-rel' rāz), radio-active energy manifested by radium.
bed (bed), n. an article of domestic furniture upon or within which one rests or sleeps; a layer or stratum of rock; a mass or heap of anything esembling a bed: v. t. [p. t. and p. p. bedded, p. pr. bedding], to furnish with a bed; plant, as flowers.
bed-bug (bed'bug), n. a flat-bodied, reddish-colored insect infesting furniture, etc.
bed-ding (bed'ding), n. a bed and its furniture.
be-dev-il (bē-dev'l), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. bedeviled, p. pr. bedeviling], to throw into disorder or confusion.
be-dev-il-ment (bē-dev'l-ment), n. the state of being vexatiously and bewilderingly disordered.
be-dew (bē-dū'), v. t. to moisten with dew.
be-diz-en (bē-diz'n and -di'zn), v. t. to deck or adorn.
bed-lam (bed'lam), n. a madhouse.
bed-lam-ite (bed'lam-īt), n. a madman.
★Bed-ou-in (bed'oo-ēn or bed'oo-in, not bed'win), n. a nomadic Arab or tent-dweller of Arabia, Syria, and northern Africa: adj. nomad.
bed-pan (bed'pan), n. a warming pan.
bed-rid (bed'rid) or bedridden ('rid-n), adj. confined to bed by age or infirmity.
bee (bē), n. a hymenopterous insect of the genus Apis; the hive or honey-bee kept in hives for the sake of its honey and wax.
beech (bēch), n. [pl. beeches ('ez)], a tree of the genus Fagus.
beech-en (bēch'en), adj. pertaining to, or made of the wood or bark of the beech.
beef (bēf), n. the flesh of an ox, bull, or cow, when killed.
bee-hive (bē'hīv), n. a box or other covering for a swarm of bees.
bee line (bē' līn), the straight course pursued by a bee returning laden to the hive; hence the most direct way from one point to another.
beer (bēr), n. a fermented alcoholic liquor made from any farinaceous grain, but generally from malted barley.
beet (bēt), n. a biennial plant, cultivated for its edible, succulent root.
bee-tle (bē'tl), n. a heavy wooden mallet employed for driving wedges; any insect belonging to the order of Coleoptera, having four wings.
bee-tle (bē'tl), v. i. to be prominent, jut out, overhang, as a cliff.
bee-tling (bē'tling), adj. standing out; overhanging.
be-fall or be-fal (be-fawl'), v. t. [p. t. befell, p. p. befallen, p. pr. befalling], to happen or occur to.
be-fit (bē-fit'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. befitted, p. pr. befitting], to suit; to be suitable; to become.
be-fore (bē-fōr'), prep. in front of; preceding in space, time, or rank; in presence or sight of.
be-fore-hand (bē-fōr'hand), adv. in advance.
be-friend (bē-frend'), v. t. to act as a friend to; aid or shield; assist.
beg (beg), v. t. and v. i. [p. t. and p. p. begged, p. pr. begging], to ask or supplicate in charity.
Syn. BEG, beseech, solicit, entreat, supplicate, implore, crave. To beg denotes a state of want; to beseech, entreat, and solicit, a state of urgent necessity; supplicate, and implore, a state of abject distress; crave, the lowest state of physical want. One begs with importunity; beseeches with earnestness; entreats by the force of reasoning and strong representation; one solicits by virtue of one's interest; supplicates by an humble address; implores by every mark of dejection and humiliation.
be-get (be-get'), v. t. [p. t. begot, begat, p. p. begotten, begot, p. pr. begetting], to procreate, as a father or sire.
beg-gar (beg'gėr), n. one who entreats or supplicates with humility; one who makes it his business to beg or ask for alms.
beg-gar-ly (beg'gėr-li), adj. like, or in the condition of, a beggar; poor; mean; contemptible.
beg-gar-y (beg'gėr-i), n. the state of a beggar; extreme poverty; beggars collectively.
be-gin (bē-gin'), v. i. [p. t. began, p. p. begun, p. pr. beginning], to commence existence.
be-gin-ner (be-gin'nėr), n. one who begins or originates.
be-gin-ning (be-gin'ning), n. the first cause; origin; the initial stage of anything.
be-gone (be-gōn), interj. go away; depart.
★be-go-ni-a (bē-gō'ni-ȧ), n. a genus of tropical plants, cultivated for their ornamental leaves. be-grudge. See grudge.
be-guile (bē-gīl'), v. t. to impose upon or delude by guile; deceive.
be-guile-ment (be-gīl'ment), n. the act of beguiling; the state of being beguiled. be-gum (bē'gum), n. in the East Indies, a princess or lady of high rank.
be-half (bē-hâf'), n. advantage; favor; support; defense; stead.
be-have (bē-hāv'), v. t. to conduct, comport, demean, or acquit.
be-hav-ior (bē-hāv'yėr), n. manner of behaving.
be-head (bē-hed'), v. t. to cut off the head of.
be-hest (bē-hest'), n. a command; precept.
be-hind (bē-hīnd'), prep. at the back of; in the rear of; remaining after; inferior to.
be-hind-hand (bē-hīnd'hand), adv. or adj. in a state of backwardness; late; in arrear.
be-hold (bē-hōld'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. beheld, p. pr. beholding], to fix the eyes upon; have in sight.
be-hold-en (bē-hōld'n), p. adj. indebted; obliged, bound in gratitude.
be-hoof (bē-hōōf'), n. advantage; interest; profit; use; behalf.
be-hoove or be-hove (bē-hōōv'), v. t. to be meet, necessary, or fit for.
★Behring (bē'ring, Dan. bā'ring) strait, Alaska. Named by Captain Cook, in memory of Ivan Ivanovitch or Vitus Behring (who wrote it Bering or Bereng; Behring, a German corruption), a Russian navigator, its discoverer, in 1728. be-ing (bē'ing), n. existence, as opposed to nonexistence.
be-la-bor (bē-lā'bėr), v. t. to beat soundly.
be-late (bē-lāt'), v. t. to make late, or retard.
be-lay (bē-lā'), v. t. to make fast, as with a rope.
belch (belch), v. t. to eject with force or violence.
be-lea-guer (bē-lē'gėr), v. t. to besiege; surround with an army so as to preclude escape.
bel-fry (bel'fri), n. a bell tower.
Belgium (bel'ji-um). Literally, the land of the Belgæ. A kingdom of Europe.
Bel-gra-vi-an (bel-grā'vi-an), adj. belonging to Belgravia, a fashionable quarter of London.
be-lie (bē-li'), v. t. to calumniate; slander by lies.
be-lief (bē-lēf'), n. assent to anything proposed or declared, and its acceptance as fact.
be-liev-a-ble (bē-lēv'ȧ-bl), adj. capable of being accepted as truth; credible.
be-lieve (bē-lēv'), v. t. to accept as true, upon the ground of authority. [THINK.] be-liev-er (bē-lēv'ėr), n. one who accepts as truth something not actually demonstrated.
be-like (bē-lik'), adv. probably.
Belinda (bē-lin'dȧ). A feminine name. It may be from Italian Bella Linda, or corrupted from bellino, a diminutive of bello, "beautiful."
be-lit-tle (bē-lit'tl), v. t. to lower or depreciate.
bell (bel), v. i. to bellow, as deer in rutting time.
bell (bel), n. a hollow metallic vessel, usually cup-shaped, and giving forth a clear, ringing sound when struck.
Bella (bel'lȧ). An abbreviation of both Isabella and Arabella.
★bel-la-don-na (bel-lȧ-don'nȧ), n. the deadly nightshade, a poisonous plant used as medicine.
belle (bel), n. a young and handsome lady.
★Belle Isle (bel īl'). French for "beautiful island."
belles-let-tres (bel-let'tėr), n. pl. polite or elegant literature; light literature.
★Bellevue (bel-vū'). A noted castle near Cassel in Germany.
bel-li-cose (bel'li-kōs), adj. pugnacious.
bel-lig-er-ence (bel-lij'ėr-ens), or bel-lig-er-en-cy (-en-si), n. the act or state of warfare.
bel-lig-er-ent (bel-lij'ėr-ent), n. a power recognized as carrying on war; a person engaged in fighting.
bel-low (bel'lō), v. i. to utter a full resonant sound, as a bull; bawl or vociferate. [CALL.] bel-lows (bel'lōz), n. sing. and pl. an instrument for producing a current of air.
bell-weth-er (bel'weth-ėr), n. a wether or sheep which leads the flock with a bell on his neck.
bel-ly (bel'li), n. [pl. bellies ('liz)], that part of the human body which extends from the breast to the thighs, and contains the bowels.
be-long (bē-lông'), v. i. to be the property (of); go along with; be a part (of); be appendant (to).
be-long-ing (bē-lông'ing), n. that which belongs to one (generally used in the pl.) ★Beloochistan (bel-o͞o-chis-tän') or Baluchistan. From the Persian, meaning "the country of the Belooches, or Baluches," a people of Asia.
be-low (bē-lō'), prep. under in place; beneath; not so high; inferior to in rank or excellence.
belt (belt), n. a girdle or band used to encircle the waist; anything resembling a belt.

belt-ed cruis-er (belt'd krōō'zĕr), a quick-sailing ship, having a broad band of armor plating.
belt-ing (belt'ing), n. belts collectively.
★Belvedere (bel-vē-dēr' or bel'vē-dēr). A portion of the Vatican palace at Rome. The word is from the Italian, meaning "fair view."
be-mire (bē-mīr'), v. t. to soil by passing through mire.
be-moan (bē-mōn'), v. t. to lament; bewail.
bench (bench), n. [pl. benches ('ez)], a long seat; the seat where judges sit in court.
bend (bend), v. t. to curve or make crooked; move or deflect out of a straight line. [TURN, LEAN.] bend-er (bend'ĕr), n. one who, or that which, bends.
be-neath (bē-nēth'), prep. lower in place, with reference to something above.
ben-e-dict (ben'ē-dikt), n. a newly married man.
Benedict or Bennet (ben'net). From the Latin Benedictus, "blessed"; Danish, Benedict; Dutch, Benedictus; Fr., Benoit; Ger., Benedict; It., Benedetto; Sp., Benito, or Benedicto; Sw., Bengt.
ben-e-dic-tion (ben-ē-dik'shun), n. the act of blessing; a blessing or expression of kind wishes.
ben-e-fac-tion (ben-ē-fak'shun), n. the act of conferring a benefit.
ben-e-fac-tor (ben-ē-fak'tĕr), n. one who confers a benefit.
ben-e-fice (ben'ē-fis), n. an ecclesiastical living; the revenue to maintain it. [LIVING.] be-nef-i-cence (bē-nef'i-sens), n. active goodness.
be-nef-i-cent (bē-nef'i-sent), adj. characterized by benevolence.

Syn. BENEFICENT, bountiful or bounteous, generous, liberal, munificent. The sincere well-wisher to fellow-creatures is beneficent according to his means; he is bountiful in providing for the comfort and happiness of others; he is munificent in dispensing favors; he is generous in imparting his property; he is liberal in all he does. Beneficence and bounty are characteristics of the deity as well as of his creatures.

ben-e-fi-cial (ben-ē-fish'al), adj. contributing to a valuable end.
ben-e-fi-ci-a-ry (ben-ē-fish'i-ā'ri), adj. holding office under another, connected with the receipt of benefits or profits.
ben-e-fit (ben'ē-fit), n. an act of kindness; a favor conferred.
be-nev-o-lence (bē-nev'ō-lens), n. the disposition to do good; philanthropy. [MERCY.]
be-nev-o-lent (bē-nev'ō-lent), adj. kind; charitable; philanthropic. [HUMANE.] ben-gal light (ben-gawl' lit), a firework, used also for signaling at sea, giving a steady bright blue light.
be-night (bē-nīt'), v. t. to enshroud in darkness.
★be-nign (bē-nīn'), adj. of kind or gentle disposition.
★be-nig-nant (bē-nig'nant, not bē-ni'nant), adj. kind; gracious. [HUMANE.] be-nig-ni-ty (bē-nig'ni-ti), n. [pl. benignities (-tiz)], kindness of nature; graciousness. [MERCY.]
ben-i-son (ben'i-zn), n. a blessing.
Benjamin. From the Hebrew, Binyamiyn, which, according to the Samaritan Pentateuch, means "son of days"; i. e., "son of old age." Fuerstius translates it "lucky son." The name means, literally, "son of the right hand"; figuratively, "son of good fortune." Danish, Benjamin; Fr., Benjamin; Ger., Benjamin; It., Beniamino; Lat., Benjaminus.
Bennet. See Benedict.
Bennett. This occurs frequently as a feminine name in the registers of Kent, England.
Bennington. Town in Hillsboro county, New Hampshire, and county, township, and town in Vermont, named for Governor Benning Wentworth of New Hampshire, who gave grants for the original town, in 1748.
bent (bent), adj. curved; crooked; strongly inclined.
ben-zene (ben'zēn), n. a volatile, highly inflammable liquid, obtained commercially by distillation from coal tar.
ben-zine (ben-zēn'), n. a liquid compounded of the volatile hydrocarbons of petroleum, and obtained by distillation.
★ben-zoin or benzoine (ben-zoin'), n. the resinous juice of gum benjamin.
be-queath (bē-kwēth'), v. t. to give or leave by will. [DEVISE.] be-quest (bē-kwest'), n. the act of leaving by will.
be-reave (bē-rēv'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. bereaved, bereft, p. pr. bereaving], to deprive; make destitute.
be-reave-ment (be-rēv'ment), n. the act of bereaving; the state of being bereaved.
★Berenice (ber-ē-nī'sē) or Bernice (bĕr'nīs). From the Latin, "bringing victory." Ger., Berenike; It., Berenice.
Beriah (bē-ri'ä). The Hebrew B'riyah, Simonis translates "in calamitate," i. e., "born in calamity"; Jones, "a calamity in his house"; and Tregelles, "gift."
Berkshire (bĕrk'shir). This is derived from barruc, "a polled or pollard oak," and scyre, "a shire"; from the shiremotes of that county being anciently held in the shade of a large polled oak tree.
Berkshire. County in Massachusetts, named for Berkshire, England.
Berlin (bĕr'lin, Ger. ber-lēn'). The capital of Prussia. The meaning of the name has been much discussed; it is probably Wendish, from berle, "uncultivated ground."
Ber-mu-da grass (bĕr-mū'dä grȧs'), a valuable variety of pasture grass.
Bermudas (bĕr-mū'dȧs). Named for the discoverer, Juan Bermudez, in 1522. One of a group of islands in the North Atlantic.
★Berne (bern, Ger. bĕrn). A Swiss canton which takes its name from its chief town, which grew up around a castle built in 1192, by Duke Berchtold V. of Zahringen. The name Berne appears in 1224 on a seal of the town. Not improbably, Berchtold gave the place the name of Berne in memory of Dietrich of Berne (Verona), a favorite hero of Alemannic poetry.
ber-ret-ta (bĕr-ret'tä), n. a red ecclesiastical cap.
ber-ry (bĕr'ri), n. [pl. berries ('riz)], any small pulpy or succulent fruit, as the strawberry, etc.
berth (bĕrth), n. ample or adequate sea room; a station which a ship occupies at anchorage or port; a room in a vessel set apart for officers or seamen.
ber-tha (bĕr'thä), n. a kind of lady's cape.
Bertha. From the Old German name, Berta, "bright or famous"; Dutch, Bertha; Fr., Berthe; Ger., Bertha; It., Berta; Lat., Bertha; Sw., Bertha.
Bertram (bĕr'tram). The Old German name, from brecht-ram, "renowned for strength." Fr., Bertrand; Ger., Bertram.
★Berwick (Eng. ber'ik, U. S. bĕr'wick). This is a contraction of Aberwick, the meaning of which is a town (wick) at the mouth (aber) of a river.
ber-yl (ber'il), n. a mineral of varying colors, commonly green or greenish-blue.
be-seech (bē-sēch'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. besought, p. pr. beseeching], to entreat; supplicate. [BEG.] be-seem (bē-sēm'), v. i. and v. t. to be suitable or seemly.
be-set (be-set'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. beset, p. pr. besetting], to set or stud.
be-set-ting (bē-set'ting), adj. habitually attacking or coming upon.
be-shrew (bē-shrōō'), v. t. to wish a curse to; execrate. be-side (bē-sīd'), prep. at the side of; near. [ADJACENT.] be-sides (bē-sīdz'), adv. more than that; in addition.
be-siege (bē-sēj'), v. t. to encompass with armed forces.
be-slob-ber (bē-slob'bĕr), v. t. to smear with anything running from the mouth.
be-smirch (bē-smĕrch'), v. t. to soil; discolor.
be-som (bē'zum), n. a brush of twigs for sweeping.
be-sot (bē-sot'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. besotted, p. pr. besotting], to bestialize, as with drink.
be-span-gle (bē-spang'gl), v. t. to adorn with spangles.
be-speak (bē-spēk'), v. t. [p. t. bespoke, p. pr. bespeaking], to speak for beforehand.
bes-se-mer steel (bes'sē-mĕr stēl), steel made by forcing atmospheric air into cast iron while in a molten state.
Bessie. Corrupted from Elizabeth.
best (best), adj. having the highest degree of goodness or excellence; of the first quality or standing; most desirable, suitable, advantageous.
be-stead (bē-sted'), v. t. to profit; to accommodate.
★bes-tial (bes'chal), adj. belonging to a beast; animal.
bes-tial-i-ty (bes-chal'i-ti), n. the qualities or nature of a beast.
bes-tial-ly (bes'chal-li), adv. in a beast-like manner.
be-stir (bē-stĕr'), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. bestirred, p. pr. bestirring], to put into brisk or vigorous action.
best man (best' man), the groomsman or principal attendant on a bridegroom.
be-stow (bē-stō'), v. t. to give. [GIVE, CONFER.]
be-stow-ment (bē-stō'ment) or be-stow-al ('al), n. the act of giving or conferring; that which is given.
bet (bet), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. bet and betted, p. pr. betting], to stake or pledge on the event of a future contingency.
be-take (bē-tāk'), v. t. [p. t. betook, p. p. betaken, p. pr. betaking], to have recourse to; repair.
beth-el (beth'el), n. a hallowed spot.
be-think (bē-think'), v. t. and v. i. [p. t. and p. p. bethought, p. pr. bethinking], to call to mind.
be-tide (bē-tīd'), v. t. to happen to; befall.
be-times (bē-tīmz'), adv. in good season or time.
be-to-ken (bē-tō'kn), v. t. to indicate by signs. [AUGUR.] bet-o-ny (bet'ō-ni), n. a common name for a woodland plant, with purple flowers.
be-tray (bē-trā'), v. t. to deliver into the hands of an enemy by treachery; violate by fraud or unfaithfulness.
be-tray-al (bē-trā'al), n. the act of betraying.
★be-troth (bē-trōth' or bē-trōth'), v. t. to contract to give any one in marriage.
★be-troth-al (bē-trōth'al or bē-trō'thal) or be-trothment ('ment), n. the act of engaging to marry.
bet-ter (bet'tĕr), adj. having good qualities in a greater degree than another; preferable or more suitable: adv. [used as compar. of well], in a superior or more excellent manner; more correctly or thoroughly. [AMEND.] bet-ting (bet'ting), n. the act of making bets.
be-tween (bē-twēn'), prep. in the space or interval which separates.
be-twixt (bē-twikst'), prep. between, in the space which separates.
bev-el (bev'el), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. beveled ('eld), p. pr. beveling], to cut to a bevel angle: v. i. to slant or incline off to a bevel angle: adj. sloping.
bev-er-age (bev'ĕr-āj), n. drink of any description.
bev-y (bev'i), n. a flock of birds; a company.
be-wail (bē-wāl'), v. t. to mourn or weep aloud for.
be-ware (bē-wâr'), v. i. to be on one's guard.
be-wil-der (bē-wil'dĕr), v. t. to lead into perplexity or confusion; puzzle.
be-wil-der-ment (bē-wil'dĕr-ment), n. the state of being greatly puzzled or perplexed.
be-witch (bē-wich'), v. t. to cast a spell over; subject to witchcraft.
★bey (bā), n. a governor of a province or district in the Turkish dominions.
be-yond (bē-yond'), prep. on the farther side of; before; past; out of reach of; later than.
bez-el (bez'el), n. the part of a finger ring which surrounds and holds fast the stone.
bi-an-nu-al (bī-an'ū-al), adj. occurring twice a year; semiannual.
★bi-as (bī'ȧs), n. [pl. biases (-ez)], a cut oblique to the texture of the fabric; oblique; slanting; prejudice; a leaning of the mind. [PREJUDICE.]
bi-au-ric-u-late (bī-aw-rik'ū-lāt), adj. having two auricles, as the heart of the higher vertebrates. bib (bib), n. a piece of cloth placed under an infant's chin to protect its clothes.
Bi-ble (bī'bl), n. the writings of the Old and New Testament.
Bib-li-cal (bib'li-kal), adj. of or pertaining to the Bible; scriptural.
bib-li-og-ra-pher (bib-li-og'rȧ-fĕr), n. one who is versed in bibliography bib-li-og-ra-phy (bib-li-og'rȧ-fi), n. the science or description of books.
bib-li-ol-o-gy (bib-li-ol'ō-ji), n. an account of books; biblical literature; bibliography.
bib-li-o-ma-ni-a (bib-li-ō-mā'ni-ȧ), n. a mania for acquiring rare and curious books.
bib-li-o-ma-ni-ac (bib-li-ō-mā'ni-ak), n. one who has a mania for acquiring books.
★bib-li-o-phile (bib'li-ō-fil), n. a lover of books.
bib-li-o-the-ca (bib-li-ō-thē'kȧ), n. a library.
★Bibliothèque Nationale (bē-blē-ō-tāk' nȧs-yôN-nȧl'). That is, "national library," the great French library, the largest in the world.
bib-u-lous (bib'ū-lus), adj. readily absorbing or imbibing fluids.
bi-cam-er-al (bi-kam'ĕr-al), adj. pertaining to or consisting of two legislative chambers.
bi-cen-te-na-ry (bi-sen'tē-nā-ri), n. the two hundredth anniversary of an event.
bi-ceps (bī'seps), n. the large flexor muscle of the arm and thigh.
bi-cip-i-tal (bi-sip'i-tal, or bicipitous (-tus), adj. having two heads.
bick-er (bik'ĕr), v. i. to engage in petty altercation.
bi-con-cave (bi-kon'kāv), adj. hollow on both sides.
bi-cus-pid (bi-kus'pid) or bicuspidate (-āt), adj. having two points or prominences.
★bi-cy-cle (bī'si-kl, not bi'si-kl), n. a vehicle for human propulsion, the machine being propelled by the feet by means of treadles attached to cranks or levers.
bid (bid), v. t. [p. t. bade (bad) or bid, p. p. bidden, bid, p. pr. bidding], to make an offer of; propose as a price; offer for; invite; request; ask.
bid-ding (bid'ding), n. an order; command; proclamation; the act of offering a price at auction.
bid-dy (bid'di), n. a fowl or chicken.
bide (bīd), v. i. [p. t. and p. p. bided, p. pr. biding], inhabit; reside: v. t. to endure; suffer; wait for.
bi-en-ni-al (bi-en'ni-al), adj. happening once in two years; continuing or existing for two years.
bi-en-ni-al-ly (-li), adv. once in two years.
bier (bēr), n. a frame or carriage on which a corpse is placed, or conveyed to the grave.
bi-fur-ca-tion (bī-fĕr-kā'shun), n. a forking or division into two branches.
big (big), adj. [compar. bigger, superl. biggest], of great bulk or magnitude; grown up; pregnant. [GREAT.] big-a-mist (big'ȧ-mist), n. one guilty of bigamy.
big-a-mous (big'ȧ-mus), adj. pertaining to and involving bigamy.
big-a-my (big'ȧ-mi), n. the offense of contracting a second marriage during the existence of a former marriage.
bight (bīt), n. a loop or bend of a rope; an open bay of the sea.
big-ot (big'ot), n. one who is unreasonably and blindly attached to a particular creed.
big-ot-ed (big'ot-ed), adj. characterized by bigotry.
big-ot-ry (big'ot-ri), n. [pl. bigotries (-riz)], the state or condition of a narrow-minded, intolerant person.
Big Sandy river, Ky. From its extensive sand bars, came the Indian names Tatteroi, Chatteroi, and Chatterwha. Known to the Miamis as Wepepoconecepewe, and to the Delawares as Sikeacepe, "Salt river."
★bi-jou (bē-zhōō'), n. [pl. bijoux (-zhōōz)], a jewel; any small and elegantly finished article.
bi-lat-er-al (bi-lat'ĕr-al), adj. pertaining to, or having, two sides.
bi-lat-er-al-ly (-li), adv. in a two-sided manner; on both sides.
bil-ber-ry (bil'bĕr-ri), n. [pl. bilberries (-riz)], the berry from a shrub of the whortleberry family.
bile (bīl), n. a yellowish-green bitter fluid secreted by the liver from the blood; ill-humor.
bilge (bilj), n. the bulging part of a cask; the broadest part of a ship's bottom.
bilge wa-ter (bilj' waw-tĕr), water which accumulates in the bilge of a ship.

bilge ways (bilj' wāz), the timbers supporting the cradle of a vessel, which upholds it.
bil-ia-ry (bil'yā-ri), adj. pertaining to the bile; conveying the bile.
bil-ious (bil'yus), adj. pertaining to the bile.
bil-ious-ness (-nes), n. the state of being bilious, having bile in excess.
bilk (bilk), v. t. to spoil the score of an opponent at cribbage; deceive or defraud.
bill (bil), n. the beak of a bird: v. i. to join bills, as doves; caress; v. t. to enter or publish in a bill or poster.
bill, n. a kind of hatchet with a blade hook-shaped toward the point.
bill, n. an account for goods sold, services rendered, or work done.
bill bro-ker (bil' brō-kẽr), one who negotiates the discount of bills of exchange.
bil-let (bil'let), n. a small paper in writing; a note or short letter.
bil-let, n. a small stick or log of wood, as for fuel.
bill-hook (bil'hook), n. a small kind of hatchet with a hooked point.
bil-liards (bil'yẽrdz), n. a game played on a rectangular, cloth-covered slate table, 12 ft. x 6 ft. in size, with ivory balls and a cue.
bil-lings-gate (bil'lingz-gāt), n. coarse or profane language; virulent abuse.
bil-lion (bil'yun), n. in the United States one thousand millions (1,000,000,000); in England a million millions (1,000,000,000,000).
bill of en-try (en'tri), a written account of goods entered at the custom-house.
bill of ex-change (eks-chānj'), a written order from one person or house (the drawer) to another (the acceptor) to pay to the person designated a certain sum.
bill of health (helth), a certificate given to the master of a vessel, specifying the state of the health of a ship's company or passengers at the time of her clearing a port.
bill of lad-ing (lād'ing), a document specifying the goods shipped on board a vessel, and signed by the master of such ship, acknowledging the receipt of the goods, and undertaking their safe conveyal to the consignee.
bill of mor-tal-i-ty (môr-tal'i-ti), the official return of the deaths (also births) occurring in a particular district within a certain period.
bill of sale (sāl), a formal instrument for the transfer of goods and chattels.
bil-lon (bil'lon, Fr. bē-yôN'), n. an alloy of gold and silver.
bil-lot (bil'lot), n. bullion in the mass or bar.
bil-low (bil'lō), n. a great wave of the sea. [WAVE.]
bil-ly goat (bil'li gōt), a male goat.
★bi-me-tal-lic (bī-mē-tal'lik), adj. pertaining to two metals.
★bi-met-al-lism (bī-met'al-lizm), n. the legalized adoption of two metals in the currency of a country.
bi-month-ly (bī-munth'li), adj. occurring once in two months.
bin (bin), n. a receptacle for any commodity.
bind (bīnd), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. bound, p. pr. binding], to confine or make fast with a cord or band; confine or restrain by physical force; unite by bonds of affection, loyalty, or duty: v. i. to tie up; confine by ligature or band.
bind-ing (bīnd'ing), n. the act of making fast; a bandage.
bin-na-cle (bin'nȧ-kl), n. a turret-shaped box containing a ship's compass.
★Binnenhof (bin'nen-hōf). Originally, the palace of Count William of Holland, at the Hague.
bin-o-cle (bin'ō-kl or bī'no-kl), n. a field or opera glass with two eye tubes.
★bin-oc-u-lar (bin-ok'ū-lẽr or bī-nok'), adj. having two eyes; pertaining to, or suited to, the use of both eyes.
★bi-no-mi-al (bī-nō'mī-al), n. an expression or quantity consisting of two terms connected by the sign plus (+) or minus (−).
bi-no-mi-al the-o-rem (thē'ō-rem), the celebrated theorem of Sir Isaac Newton, which expresses the law of formation of any power of a binomial.
★bi-o-gen-e-sis (bī-ō-jen'ē-sis) or bi-og-e-ny (-oj'ē-ni), n. the doctrine that living organisms can proceed only from, or be generated by, living parents or germs; the science of life development.
★bi-o-graph (bī'ō-grȧf), n. a device for projecting seemingly animated pictures upon a screen.
bi-og-ra-pher (bī-og'rȧ-fẽr), n. one who writes the history of a particular person's life.
★bi-og-ra-phy (bī-og'rȧ-fi), n. [pl. biographies (-fiz)], the history of the life of a particular person.
bi-o-log-ic (bī-ō-loj'ik) or bi-o-log-i-cal ('i-kal), adj. pertaining to the science of life.
bi-o-log-i-cal-ly (-li), adv. in accordance with the principles of biology.
bi-ol-o-gist (bī-ol'ō-jist), n. one who studies, or is skilled in, the science of living forms.
★bi-ol-o-gy (bī-ol'ō-ji, not bī-ol'ō-jī), n. the science of life in different forms.
bi-par-tite (bī-pär'tīt), adj. divided into two parts.
bi-par-ti-tion (bī-pär-tish'un), n. the act of dividing into two parts; the state of being so divided.
bi-ped (bī'ped), adj. having two feet: n. a two-footed animal.
bi-plane (bī'plān), n. a form of aëroplane consisting of two planes arranged one above the other; distinguished from monoplane and triplane.
birch (bẽrch), n. [pl. birches ('ez)], a tree or shrub belonging to the genus Betula.
birch-en (bẽrch'en), adj. pertaining to, or consisting of, birch.
bird (bẽrd), n. a warm-blooded feathered vertebrate, furnished with wings.
bird-lime (bẽrd'līm), n. a viscous substance prepared from holly bark, and used for entangling small birds in bird snaring.
bird's-eye (bẽrdz'i), adj. seen from above, or at a glance, as by a flying bird; hence general, not minute or detailed.
bi-ret-ta (bi-ret'tȧ), n. a head-dress for men, of different shapes and colors.
★Birmingham (bẽr'ming-am). Probably a patronymic from the Boerings; ham, a home or family residence; literally "a place of shelter," from heiman, "to cover." Hence, originally, "Boering's home."
birth (bẽrth), n. the act of coming into life; the fact of being born.
birth rate (rāt), the increase of population as shown by the percentage of births registered.
birth right ('rīt), any right or privilege to which a person is entitled by birth Biscay (bis'kā). Takes its name from the Spanish province of Biscaya or Viscaya, meaning the land of the Basques or Vasks. bis-cuit (bis'kit), n. a kind of unraised bread, shaped in flat cakes and baked hard and dry.
bi-sect (bī-sekt'), v. t. to cut or divide into two equal parts.
★bi-sex-u-al (bī-seks'ū-al), adj. combining the organs of both sexes in one individual; hermaphrodite.
bish-op (bish'up), n. one of the highest orders of the Episcopal church; below the rank of an archbishop, but above that of a priest.
bish-op-ric (bish'up-rik), n. the office, dignity, or jurisdiction of a bishop; a diocese.
bish-op's staff (bish'ups stȧf), a crosier.
★bisk or bisque (bisk), n. soup or broth composed of several kinds of meat or fish boiled together.
★Bismarck (biz'märk). City in St. Francois county, Missouri, city in Burleigh county, North Dakota (capital of state), and many other places, named for Prince Otto von Bismarck of Germany.
bis-muth (biz'muth), n. one of the elements.
★bi-son (bī'son), n. the aurochs, or European bison, still preserved in Lithuania; the American bison, which is now nearly extinct.
★bisque (bisk), n. an unglazed white porcelain, used for statuettes, etc.
bi-sul-phate (bī-sul'fāt), n. a salt of sulphuric acid.
bi-sul-phite (bī-sul'fīt), n. a salt of sulphurous acid, half the hydrogen of which is replaced by the base.
bit (bit), n. a tool for boring; the metal mouthpiece of a bridle; the part of a key which enters the lock and acts on the bolts and tumblers.
bitch (bich), n. the female of the dog, or of other canine animals.
bite (bīt), v. t. [p. t. bit, p. p. bitten, bit, p. pr. biting], to seize, grip, cut, or crush with the teeth; sting, as an insect; cause smarting pain to: n. the act of seizing with the teeth; a wound made by the teeth, or by a sting.
bit-ing-ly ('ing-li), adv. in a sarcastic manner.
bitt (bit), n. a post of wood or iron to which cables are made fast.
bit-ter (bit'tẽr), adj. having a sharp taste; acrid. [ACRIMONY, FEUD.] bit-tern (bit'tẽrn), n. a wading bird of the heron family.
bit-ters (bit'tẽrz), n. pl. liquor in which herbs or roots are steeped.
bi tu-men (bi-tū'men), n. mineral pitch.
bi-valve (bī'valv), adj. having two valves or shells united by a ligament.
★biv-ouac (biv'wak or biv'oo-ak), n. an encampment of soldiers in the open air, without tents.
bi-week-ly (bi-wēk'li), adj. occurring or appearing every two weeks; fortnightly.
★bi-zarre (bē-zär'), adj. odd in manner or appearance.
blab (blab), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. blabbed, p. pr. blabbing], to tell thoughtlessly: v. i. to talk indiscreetly.
black (blak), adj. destitute of light; of the darkest hue; opposed to white; enveloped in darkness.
black art, necromancy, magic.
black-ball (blak'bawl), v. t. to reject or exclude (as a candidate) by placing black balls in the ballot box.
black-ber-ry (blak'ber-ri), n. the fruit of several species of bramble.
black-bird (blak'bẽrd), n. an English song bird, a species of thrush.
black cur-rant (blak' kur'rent), the well-known garden bush, and its fruit.
black-en (blak'n), v. i. to grow black or dark: v. t. to make black; defame; asperse.
black fri-ar (blak' fri-ẽr), a friar of the Dominican order.
black-guard (blag'gärd, not blak'gärd), n. a man of low character, black-guard-ism (blag'gärd-izm), n. the conduct or language of a blackguard.
black hole (blak' hōl), a dungeon or dark cell in a prison; a place of confinement for soldiers. black-ing (blak'ing), n. a preparation for imparting a shining black polish to boots.
black-jack (blak'-jak), n. a large leathern vessel or drinking cup of old times.
black-leg (blak'leg), n. one who endeavors to obtain money by cheating at races or cards.
black let-ter (blak' let-tẽr), the old English or Gothic letter employed in the early manuscripts and the first printed books.
black-list (blak'list), n. a list of persons who are deemed to be deserving of punishment.
black-mail (blak'māl), n. a tax anciently paid in money, corn, or cattle, in the north of England, and in Scotland, to the agents of robbers, to secure protection from pillage; hence extortion by means of intimidation.
Black Sea. An inland sea of southeastern Europe, probably so named because it abounds with black rocks. Another explanation is that it is so called from its frequent storms and fogs.
black-smith (blak'smith), n. a smith who works in iron and makes iron utensils, horseshoes, etc.
Blackstone river, R. I. In memory of William Blackstone, an Episcopal minister, the first white settler of Rhode Island. Indian name of stream Kehetuck, "great river," changed afterward to Pawtucket, meaning "the forks," from Pochatuck, "a branch."
black-thorn (blak'thôrn), n. the sloe; a stick cut from the stem of the sloe.
blad-der (blad'dẽr), n. a thin, elastic, membranous bag in animals, in which a fluid is collected.
blade (blād), n. the leaf of a grass; the young stalk or spire of a grass; the broad, expanded part of a leaf; the cutting part of an instrument.
★Blaise (blāz). In France the name of the saint is found written Blaise, and in Germany Blaes. In Latin it occurs as Blasius and Blatius. It seems to be the same as the Roman name Blæsus, which Statius renders "lisper." Danish, Blasius; Dutch, Blasius; Fr., Blaise; Ger., Blasius; It., Biagio; Lat., Blasius; Sp., Blas; Sw., Blasius.
blam-a-ble (blām'ȧ-bl), adj. worthy of being blamed.
blame (blām), v. t. to censure; reproach: n. an imputation of a fault; censure.
Syn. BLAME, censure, condemn, reprove, reproach, upbraid. To blame is simply to ascribe a fault to; to censure is to express disapprobation; the former is less personal than the latter. The thing more than the person is blamed; the person more than the thing is censured. A person may be blamed for his good nature, and censured for his negligence; reprove is even more personal than censure. A reproof passes from one individual to another, or to a certain number of individuals; reproaching and upbraiding are as much the acts of individuals as reproving, but the former denote the expression of personal feelings, and may be just or unjust; the latter is presumed to be divested of all personal feeling. [See condemn.] Ant. APPROVE, commend, praise. [lustrous.
blanch (blänch), v. t. to take the color out; make ★blanc-mange (blȧ-mänzh') n. a white jelly.
bland (bland), adj. mild; soft; gentle.
blan-dish-ment (blan'dish-ment), n. winning expressions or actions; artful caresses.
blank (blangk), adj. confounded; confused; dejected; empty; free from writing or printing; without result; absolute; complete.
blan-ket (blang'ket), n. a soft, loosely woven woolen cloth for a bed or as a covering.
blank verse (vẽrs), unrhymed verse.
blare (blär), v. i. to bellow; to give forth a loud sound like a trumpet.
blar-ney (blär'ni), n. soft, wheedling speech; flattery: v. t. [p. t. and p. p. blarneyed, p. pr. blarneying], to influence or talk over by soft words.
blar-ney stone, n. a stone in the wall of Blarney castle, Cork, Ireland.
bla-sé (blä-zā'), adj. exhausted by excess of pleasure.
★blas-pheme (blas-fēm' not blas'fēm), v. t. to speak irreverently of God or sacred things; mock; revile.
blas-phe-mous (blas'fē-mus), adj. uttering, containing, or exhibiting blasphemy; profane.
blas-phe-my (blas'fē-mi), n. [pl. blasphemies (-miz)], impious, profane, or mocking speech concerning God or sacred things.
blast (blȧst), n. a violent or sudden gust of wind; a forcible stream of air from an orifice; any sudden pernicious influence upon plants or animals. [BREEZE.]
blaze (blāz), n. a body of flame; brilliant sunlight; a sudden bursting out; active display; a white mark cut on a tree to serve as a guide.
bla-zon (blā'zn), n. a coat of arms; a description of armorial bearings; ostentatious display.
bleach (blēch), v. t. to make white by removing color.
bleak (blēk), adj. exposed to wind and cold; desolate; unsheltered; cheerless; piercing.
blear (blēr), adj. sore or dim from a watery discharge (said of the eyes).
bleat (blēt), v. i. to cry as, or like, a sheep: n. a cry, as of a sheep.
bleed (blēd), v. i. [p. t. and p. p. bled, p. pr bleeding], to emit or lose blood; to shed one's blood.
blem-ish (blem'ish), v. t. to injure; stain; mar; tarnish, defame: n. any defect or deformity.
Syn. BLEMISH, stain, spot, speck, flaw, defect, fault. Whatever takes off from the seemliness of appearance is a blemish. In works of art the slightest dimness of color, or want of proportion, is a blemish. A stain or spot sufficiently characterizes itself, as that which is superfluous and out of its place; a speck is a small spot, and a flaw, which is confined to hard substances, mostly consists of a faulty indenture on the outer surface. A blemish tarnishes; a stain spoils; a spot, speck, or flaw disfigures; defect consists in the want of some specific property in an object; fault conveys the idea not only of something wrong, but also of its relation to the author. There is a blemish in fine china; a defect in the springs of a clock; and a fault in the contrivance.

blench (blench), v. i. to start back: flinch; quail.

blend (blend), v. t. to mix together, so that the things mixed cannot be separated or individually distinguished. [MIX.]

blende (blend), n. native sulphide of zinc.

★Blenheim (blen'im, not blen'him) palace. A mansion at Woodstock, Oxfordshire, England, built by Vanbrugh at national cost, 1705-16, for the first duke of Marlborough.

bless (bles), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. blessed and blest, p. pr blessing], to consecrate. [HOLY.] bless-ed-ness (bles'ed-nes), n. the state of being blessed; happiness; heavenly joys.

bless-ing (bles'ing), n. an invocation of happiness on another; a benediction. [MERCY.]

blight (blīt), n. a disease in plants, which causes them to wither partly or wholly.

blind (blīnd), adj. destitute of the sense of sight; without light, morally or intellectually; not discriminating; inconsiderate; hidden.

blind-fold (blīnd'fōld), adj. having the eyes covered so as to be unable to see.

blind-ness ('nes), n. want of sight: want of discernment; ignorance; heedlessness.

blink (blingk), v. i. to wink with or as with the eye; twinkle; to get a glimpse; glimmer: v. t. to evade or shut one's eyes to; shirk.

blink-er (blingk'ẽr), n. one who blinks; a leather flap placed one on each side of a horse's bridle to prevent him from seeing any object except in front.

bliss (blis), n. the highest degree of happiness.

blis-ter (blis'tẽr), n. a vesicle or pustule on the skin containing watery matter or serum.

blithe (blīth), adj. gay; joyous; glad; mirthful; sprightly.

bliz-zard (bliz'zẽrd), n. a furious gale of wind, usually accompanied with fine, blinding snow.

bloat (blōt), v. t. to cure or dry in smoke.

bloat v. t. to cause to swell; make turgid or swollen.

block (blok) n. any unshaped solid mass of matter, as of wood, stone, etc.: v. t. to obstruct so as to hinder the passage of persons or things; stop up; obstruct.

block-ade (blok-ād') n. the shutting up of a place, as a port, by hostile ships or troops.

block-age (blok'āj), n. an obstruction.

block-head (blok'hed), n. a stupid fellow.

block-house (blok'hous), n. an edifice constructed of heavy timber, and furnished with loopholes for musketry.

block sys-tem (blok' sis-tem), a system of working railway traffic by which the line is divided into short sections, no train being allowed to leave a section until the next section is signaled clear.

blond or blonde (blond), adj. of a fair color; light colored.

blood (blud), n. the fluid which circulates in the arteries and veins of an animal.

blood-ed, adj. of the best stock or breed.

blood-hound (blud'hound), n. a breed of large dogs remarkable for their acuteness of smell.

blood-i-ly (blud'i-li), adv. in a bloody manner; relentlessly; cruelly.

blood-i-ness (-nes), n. the state of being bloody; disposition to shed blood.

blood-stone (blud'stōn), n. a dark green variety of quartz spotted with red jasper.

blood-y (blud'i), adj. pertaining to, containing, or resembling blood; blood-stained; cruel; murderous.

bloom (blōōm), n. a blossom; the flower of a plant; the blossoming of flowers; a state or period of health and growth, promising higher perfection, or exhibiting freshness and beauty.

bloom-er (blōōm'ẽr), n. a costume for women sought to be introduced by a Mrs. Bloomer, of New York, in 1849-50, and consisting of a short skirt, loose trousers, fastened round the ankle.

blos-som (blos'sum), n. the flower of a plant; the state of flowering; bloom.

blot (blot), n. a spot or stain; an obliteration or erasure; a blemish; disgrace: v. t. [p. t. and p. p. blotted, p. pr. blotting], to spot or stain; mar.

Syn. BLOT OUT, expunge, rase or erase, efface, cancel, obliterate. Letters are blotted out, so that they cannot be seen again; they are expunged, so as to signify that they cannot stand for anything; they are erased, so that the space may be reoccupied with writing; efface does not designate either the manner or the object; inscriptions on stone may be effaced by rubbing them off so as not to be visible; cancel is principally confined to written or printed characters; they are canceled by striking through them with the pen; letters are obliterated which are in any way made illegible.

Ant. APPROVE, enforce, record, write.

blotch (bloch), n. a large, irregular spot; a clumsy daub; an eruption, or pustule.

★blouse (blouz, Fr. blooz), n. a light, loose overgarment.

blow (blō), n. a mass of blossoms; the state or condition of flowering: v. i. [p. t. blew, p. p. blown, p. pr. blowing], to blossom; flower.

blow (blō), n. a stroke with the hand or with a weapon; a knock.

blow v. i. [p. t. blew, p. p. blown, p. pr. blowing], to form or make a current of air; pant; breathe quickly: n. a blowing; a blast; a gale of wind, an egg deposited by a fly; the spouting of a whale.

blow-fly (blō'flī), n. any species of fly which deposits its eggs upon animal food products.

blow-pipe (blō'pīp), n. a long tube of cane or reed used by South American Indians and the Dyaks of Borneo to discharge arrows by force of the breath; a tube through which a current of air or gas is driven upon a flame.

blow-y (blō'i), adj. windy; breezy.

blub-ber (blub'bẽr), v. i. to weep violently, or so as to disfigure the face.

blu-cher (blū'kẽr). n a strong half boot.

bludg-eon (bluj'un), n. a short, heavy stick, sometimes loaded, used as a weapon.

blue (blū). adj. of the color of the clear sky: azure; low-spirited; dismal; severe.

blue-bell ('bel), n. the wild hyacinth; the harebell of Scotland.

blue-blood ('blud), n. aristocratic lineage.

blue-b ok ('book), n. a governmental official report, etc.; so called from the blue paper covers.

Blue Grotto. A celebrated cavern on the shore of Capri, an island of Italy.

blue-jacket (blū'jak-et), n. a sailor.

blue-stock-ing (blū'stok-ing), n. a woman of literary tastes or occupation.

bluff (bluf), adj. having a broad, flattened front; rising steeply or boldly; n. a high, steep bank; a cliff or headland with a broad, steep face: v. t. to deceive, or gain an advantage over.

blu-ing (blū'ing), n. the process of imparting a blue tint; the indigo, etc., used by washerwomen.

blu-ish (blū'ish), adj somewhat blue.

blun-der (blun'dẽr), v. i. to make a gross mistake. [ERROR.]

blun-der-buss (blun'dẽr-bus), n. a short gun or firearm with a large bore, now obsolete.

blun-der-ing-ly (blun'dẽr-ing-li), adv. in a blundering manner.

blunt (blunt), adj. having a thick or rounded edge or point; not sharp; dull in understanding; abrupt.

blur (blẽr), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. blurred, p. pr. blurring], to dim; sully; stain; blemish.

blurt (blẽrt), v. t. to speak inadvertently; divulge unadvisedly (usually with out).

blush (blush), v. i. to become red in the face, as from shame or confusion.

blus-ter (blus'tẽr), v. i. to be windy and boisterous, as the weather.

blus-ter-ous (blus'tẽr-us), blus-trous ('trus), or blus-ter-y ('tẽr-i), adj. noisy; tumultuous; rough.

★bo-a (bō'ȧ), n. [pl. boas ('ȧz)], a huge serpent of South America; a long fur tippet.

bo-a con-stric-tor (bō'ȧ kon-strik'tẽr), a reptile remarkable for its length, and power of destroying its prey by constriction.

boar (bōr), n. the male of swine; the wild hog, or wild boar.

board (bōrd), n. a piece of timber sawed thin, and of considerable length and breadth compared with the thickness; a table for food; provision; entertainment.

board-ing (bōrd'ing), n. light timber collectively; a covering of boards; the act of supplying, or state of being supplied with, food and lodging.

boar-ish (bōr'ish), adj. swinish; brutal; cruel.

boast (bōst), v. i. to brag; to speak of one's self or belongings in assertive and bombastic terms. [GLORY.]

boast, v. t. to dress (stone) with a broad chisel and mallet.

boast-ful (bōst'fūl), adj. given to boasting.

boat (bōt) n. a small open vessel usually moved by oars, but often by a sail.

★boat-swain (bōt'swān or bō'sn), n. a petty officer of a ship who has charge of the rigging, etc.

bob (bob), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. bobbed, p. pr. bobbing], to impart a short jerking motion to; to cut short: v. i. to have a short jerking motion; move or play to and fro, or up and down.

bob-bin (bob'bin), n. one of the pins or small cylinders of wood used to carry and steady the threads in pillow lace making.

★bob-o-link (bob'ō-lingk), n. an American song bird.

bob-stay (bob'stā), n. one of two or more ropes or chains to hold the bowsprit down.

bob-tail (bob'tāl), n. a short tail, or a tail cut short; the rabble (rag, tag and bobtail).

bode (bōd), v. t. to portend; be an omen of: v. i. to augur; presage.

bod-ice (bod'is), n. a close-fitting waist.

bod-i-ly (bod'i-li), adj. not mental; corporeal. [PHYSICAL.]

bod-kin (bod'kin), n. a pointed instrument for piercing holes.

★Bodleian (bod'lē-an) library. A library of Oxford University, England, which was originally established in 1445, and reëstablished by Sir Thomas Bodley in 1597-1602.

bod-y (bod'i), n. [pl. bodies ('iz)], the material organized substance of an animal, as distinguished from the soul, spirit, or vital principle.

Syn. BODY, ashes, carcass, clay, corpse, dust, form, frame, remains, system, trunk. Body denotes the structure considered as a whole; form looks upon it as a thing of shape and outline; frame regards it as supported by its framework; system views it as an assemblage of many related and harmonious organs. Body, form, frame, and system may be either dead or living, clay and dust are sometimes figuratively so used, corpse and remains are used only of the dead, carcass applies only to the body of an animal.

Ant. MIND, soul, spirit.

bod-y col-or (bod'i kul'ẽr), a pigment possessing body or consistence.

★Bœ-o-tian (bē-ō'shan), adj. pertaining to Bœotia, in central Greece.

★Boer (bōor, not bōr). Applied to Dutch inhabitants of the country districts of the Cape of Good Hope, is the German name for farmers and agriculturists.

bog (bog), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. bogged, p. pr. bogging], to sink or submerge in a bog or quagmire: v. i. to sink or stick in a bog.

bo-gus (bō'gus), adj. counterfeit, spurious.

bo-gy or bo-gey (bō'gi), n. [pl. bogies, bogeys ('giz)], a hobgoblin; a specter.

bo-hea (bō-hē'), n. a kind of black tea.

Bohemia (bō-hē'mi-ȧ). Once the country of the Boii, expelled in the time of Augustus by the Marcomanni. Now part of Austria-Hungary.

bo-he-mi-an (bō-hē'mi-an), n. a person who disregards social conventionalities.

boil (boil), v. i. to be in a state of ebullition through the action of heat.

boil, n. an inflamed and painful suppurating tumor.

boil-er (boil'ẽr), n. one who boils, a vessel in which anything is boiled.

★Bois de Boulogne (bwȧ du bōō-lōn'yu). A park in Paris reached by the Champs Élysées, the avenue of the Grande Armée, or the avenue of the Bois de Boulogne.

★Bois de Vincennes (bwȧ du van-sen'). A public park in Paris larger than the Bois de Boulogne.

★Boise (boi'zā), Idaho. From the river on which it was located, the latter having been named by the French Rivière Boisé, "woody river."

bois-ter-ous (bois'tẽr-us), adj. violent; rough; stormy; turbulent; noisy. [VIOLENT.]

★Bokhara (bō-kȧ'rȧ). The treasury of sciences, or "town of learning"; the chief town in a state of the same name in central Asia.

bold (bōld), adj. courageous; venturesome; planned or executed with courage and spirit.

Syn. BOLD, fearless, intrepid, undaunted. Boldness is a positive characteristic of the spirit; fearlessness is a negative state of the mind, that is, simply an absence of fear. A person may be bold through fearlessness, but he may be fearless without being bold; he may be fearless where there is no apprehension of danger or no cause for apprehension, but he is bold only when he is conscious or apprehensive of danger, and prepared to encounter it. A man is intrepid who has no fear where the most fearless might tremble; he is undaunted whose spirit is unabated by that which would make the stoutest heart yield.

Ant. COWARDLY; dastardly, fearful.

bole (bōl), n. the trunk or stem of a tree.

Bolivia (bō-liv'i-ȧ, Sp. bō-lē'vē-ȧ). A republic of South America. So named in memory of Gen. Simon Bolivar.

★boll (bōl), n. the pod or capsule of a plant, as of flax: v. i. to form a boll or seed vessel, go to seed.

★Bologna (bō-lōn'yȧ, not bō-lō'nȧ), Italy. Named from the Boii, anciently Felsina, later Bononia.

bol-ster (bōl'stẽr), n. a long pillow or cushion used to support the head.

bolt (bōlt), n. a short, thick arrow with a blunt head; a thunderbolt; a discharge of lightning; a stout metallic pin or rod used for holding objects together; a sliding catch for securing a door.

bolt (bōlt), v. t. to sift or separate the coarser from the finer particles.

bomb (bom or bum), n. a hollow iron ball or shell filled with an explosive material, fired from a mortar and usually exploded by a fuse.

bom-bard (bom-bārd'), v. t. to attack with cannon.

bom-bard-ment (bom-bārd'ment), n. a continuous attack with shot and shell.

★bom-bast (bom'bȧst or bum'bȧst), n. originally cotton or other soft material used for stuffing garments.

★Bombay (bom-bā'). Named after an Indian goddess Bombe, but translated by the Portuguese into Bom bahia, "good bay." A seaport of India.

★bom-ba-zine (bum-bȧ-zēn' or bom-), n. a twilled fabric, of which the warp is silk, the weft worsted.

bo-nan-za (bō-nan'zȧ), n. a rich vein of ore; hence, anything which is a mine of wealth.

★bon-bon (bôn'bôn), n. a sugar-plum; any confection of sugar; a Christmas cracker.

bond (bond), n. anything that binds, fastens, or confines; a ligament: pl. fetters; imprisonment; captivity; nence, a cause of union; duty; obligation; an instrument under seal by which a person binds himself, his heirs, etc.

bone (bōn), n. the ossified tissue forming the skeleton of most vertebrate animals, one of the parts or pieces of an animal skeleton.

bone-black (bōn'blak), n. animal charcoal.

bon-fire (bon'fīr), n. any large fire made in the open.

★Boniface (bon'i-fās). From the Latin Bonifacius, name of several popes; this, in turn, from benefacio, "to do good," hence, a "well-doer." Danish, Bonifacius; Dutch, Bonifacius; Fr., Boniface; Ger., Bonifaz or Bonifacius; It., Bonifacio; Lat., Bonifacius; Sw., Bonifacius.

bon-net (bon'nĕt), n. a soft woolen cap worn by men in Scotland; a woman's head covering, varying according to fashion.
★bon-ny (bon'nĭ), adj. handsome; beautiful; pretty; gay; blithe. [Written also bonnie.] bo-nus (bō'nus), n. [pl. bonuses (-ez)], a sum given or paid, over and above what is required or actually payable.
boo (bōō), interj. an expression of aversion or contempt: n. hooting.
boo-by (bōō'bi), n. a dunce; a stupid fellow.
boo-dle (bōō'dl), n. money paid for votes, or undue political influence.
book (book), n. a collection of sheets of paper and other material, blank, written, or printed, bound together.
book-ing of-fice (book'ing of'fis), in England, an office where passenger tickets are sold. [study.
book-ish (book'ish), adj. given to reading; fond of book-keep-ing (book'kēp-ing), n. the art of recording pecuniary or business transactions in a regular and systematic manner.
book-let (book'let), n. a little book.
book-mak-er (book'māk-ẽr), n. one who writes and publishes books; a compiler.
book-worm (book'wẽrm), n. the larva or grub of various species of insects which infest and injure books; a person closely addicted to study.
boom (bōōm), n. a long pole or spar run out to extend the foot of certain sails; a strong chain, cable, or line of spars bound together, extended across a river or harbor to exclude an enemy's ships.
★boom-er-ang (bōōm'ẽr-ang), n. a missile weapon used by the Australian aborigines, consisting of a piece of flat, curved wood, which, when thrown by the hand in a certain manner, describes a series of curves, and finally returns to the thrower.
boon (bōōn), n. a benefit; a gift; a privilege; a favor: adj. convivial.
boor (bōōr), n. a rustic; a peasant.
boor-ish (bōōr'ish), adj. like a boor; clownish.
boose. See booze.
boost (bōōst), v. t. to lift by pushing from behind.
boot (bōōt), n. that which is thrown in as an inducement to a bargain.
boot, v. t. to profit; to advantage.
boot, n. a leather covering for the feet and the lower part of the leg.
booth (bōōth), n. a temporary structure.
boot-less (bōōt'les), adv. without advantage.
boots (bōōts), n. the servant in a hotel who cleans the boots of the guests. [war.
boo-ty (bōō'tĭ), n. [pl. booties ('tĭz)], spoil taken in Syn. BOOTY, spoil, prey. Booty and spoil are used as military terms in attacks on an enemy, prey in cases of particular violence. The soldier gets his booty; the combatant his spoils; the carnivorous animal his prey. Booty respects what is of personal service to the captor; spoils whatever serves to designate his triumph; prey includes whatever gratifies the appetite and is to be consumed.
booze (bōōz), n. liquor: v. i. to drink deeply.
bo-rac-ic (bō-ras'ĭk), adj. pertaining to, or produced from, borax.
bo-rac-ic ac-id (as'id), a compound of boron with oxygen and hydrogen.
bo-rax (bō'raks), n. a salt compounded of boracic acid and soda.
bor-deaux (bôr-dō'), n. red and white wines produced in the district of Bordeaux, France.
Bordeaux. Literally means "the margin of the water."
bor-der (bôr'dẽr), n. the outer part or edge of anything; a margin; brink; boundary; frontier. [ADJACENT.] bore (bôr), v. t. to pierce or drill a hole in; form by piercing or drilling; to force (as a passage) with effort; weary by tedious repetition.
bore, n. a tidal wave which breaks in the estuaries of some rivers.
bore-dom (bôr'dum), n. ennui; the realm of bores; bores collectively.
★Borghese (bôr-gā'zē) palace. A famous Roman palace, seat of the Borghese family, and noted for its art collections.
★Borgne (bôrn'y) lake, La. French word, meaning "blind of one eye," or "one-eyed." Application has never been explained.
bo-ride (bō'rid), n. a compound of boron with a metallic base.
★Borneo (bôr'nē-ō). Comes from the Malay Brunei, once the name of the largest city on the island, and changed by the Portuguese to Borneo. Largest of the East Indian islands bor-nite (bôr'nit), n. a valuable ore of copper.
★bo-ro-glyc-er-ide (bō-rō-glis'ẽr-id or -id), n. an antiseptic containing boric acid, glycerine, etc.
bo-ron (bō'ron), n. a nonmetallic element occurring abundantly in borax.
bor-ough (bur'ō), n. a corporate town.
bor-row (bor'rō), v. t. to obtain (a thing) on loan.
bort (bôrt), n. imperfect or inferior diamonds.
★bos-cage or bos-kage (bos'kāj), n. ground covered with trees and shrubs; woods; thickets; a wooded landscape.
bosh (bosh), n. absurd or empty talk.
bos-ket (bos'ket), n. a grove; a thicket.
bos-ky (bos'kĭ), adj. woody; bushy.
★Bosnia (boz'nĭ-ȧ, not bos'nĭ-ȧ). The country of southeastern Europe traversed by the river Bosna.
bos-om (booz um), n. the breast; clothing covering the breast; the affections or passions.
★Bosporus (bos'pō-rus). A Greek term, composed of bous, "a cow," and poros, "a ford," alluding to the legend that, after Io was transformed into a cow, she forded this strait.
boss (bos), n. [pl. bosses ('ez)], a protuberant part; a stud or knob.
boss (bos), n. a master, superintendent; foreman.
★Boston (bôs'tun, not bos'tẽn nor bôs'ton). City in Massachusetts. By some authorities the name is said to have been given in honor of John Cotton, vicar of St. Bodolph's church in Boston, Lincolnshire, England, and one of the first clergymen in the American Boston. Others say it was named before the arrival of John Cotton, in honor of three prominent colonists from Boston, England.
bo-tan-ic (bō-tan'ĭk), or bo-tan-i-cal ('ĭ-kal), adj. skilled in a knowledge of plants.
★bot-a-nist (bot'ȧ-nist), n. one who studies or is skilled in a knowledge of plants.
bot-a-nize (bot'ȧ-nīz), v. i. to seek after plants for the purpose of studying them.
★bot-a-ny (bot'ȧ-nĭ), n. the science of plants.
Botany bay. So called by Captain Cook from the great variety of plants which he found growing on its shores when exploring it in the year 1770.
botch (boch), v. t. to mend or patch in a clumsy manner.
both (bōth), adj. and pron. the one and the other; the two.
both-er (both'ẽr), v. t. to annoy; tease; worry.
both-er-a-tion (both-ẽr-ā'shun), n. the act of bothering, or state of being bothered.
both-er-some (both'ẽr-sum), adj. troublesome.
bot-tle (bot'tl), n. a hollow vessel, usually with a narrow neck, made of glass or earthenware, for holding liquids.
bot-tle-hold-er (bot'l-hōld'ẽr), n. one who waits upon a pugilist in a prize fight.
bot-tom (bot'tum), n. the deepest part of anything; the base; foundation; root; the ground under any body of water; the buttocks.
bot-tom lands (bot'tum lands), rich, flat alluvial soil on the river banks of the western states.
bot-tom-ry (bot'tum-rĭ), n. the act of borrowing money on the security of a ship.
★bou-doir (bōō'dwôr, Fr. bōō-dwär'), n. a small room, elegantly furnished, for a lady's private use.
bough (bou), n. an arm or branch of a tree.
★bou-illon (bōō'yȯN or bōōl-yȯN'), n. a clear soup produced from boiling meat.
boul-der (bōl'dẽr), n. a large stone worn or rounded by the action of water.
★bou-le-vard (bōō'lē-vär or bōō'lē-värd), n. a broad street in or around a city.
bounce (bouns), v. t. to cause to bound; to eject summarily; to bully: v. i. to strike against anything so as to rebound.
bound (bound), n. a limit; confine; extent; boundary: pl. territory within certain boundaries: v. t. to limit.
Syn. BOUND, limit, confine, circumscribe, restrict. Bound applies to the natural or political divisions of the earth; countries are bounded by mountains and seas; limit applies to any artificial boundary, as landmarks in fields serve to show the limits of one man's ground from another. To confine is to bring the limits close together, to part off one space absolutely from another; in this manner we confine a garden by means of walls. To circumscribe is literally to surround; in this manner a circle may circumscribe a square; to restrict is to exercise a strong degree of control; a person is restricted by his physician to a certain portion of food in a day.
Ant. BROADEN, enlarge, extend.
bound (bound), v. i. to jump or spring suddenly or in succession; leap; rebound.
bound (bound), adj. ready to go; destined.
bound-a-ry (bound'ȧ-rĭ), n. [pl. boundaries (-rĭz)], the extent or limit of anything.
bound-less (bound'les), adj. without bound.
Syn. BOUNDLESS, unbounded, unlimited, infinite. The ocean is a boundless object so long as no bounds to it have been discovered; desires are often unbounded which ought always to be bounded; power is sometimes unlimited which would be better limited; nothing is infinite but that Being from whom all finite beings proceed.
Ant. FINITE, limited, restricted.
boun-te-ous (boun'tē-us), adj. giving freely; liberal in gifts; munificent. [BENEFICENT.]
boun-ti-ful (boun'tĭ-ful), adj. liberal in bestowing gifts or favors; generous; ample. [BENEFICENT.]
boun-ty (boun'tĭ), n. [pl. bounties (t'iz)], liberality in bestowing gifts or favors; generosity.
★bou-quet (bōō-kā', not bō-kā'), n. a nosegay; a perfume or aroma characteristic of some wines.
★bour-geois (bōōr-zhwä'), n. a French citizen of the mercantile class; a shopkeeper.
★bour-geoi-sie (bōōr-zhwä-zē'), n. the French middle class.
bourn (bōrn), n. a stream; a rivulet.
★bourse (bōōrs), n. a stock exchange for the transaction of business.
bout (bout), n. a turn or bend; a going and returning.
bo-vine (bō'vin), adj. of or pertaining to cows or oxen.
bow (bou), n. the forepart or prow of a ship.
bow (bou), v. t. to bend; make curved or crooked; bend or incline, as the head or body in token of respect.
bow (bō), n. a weapon for discharging arrows; anything curved.
bow-el (bou'el), n. one of the intestines of an animal.
bow-er (bou'ẽr), n. a shelter constructed of boughs or twining plants; an arbor.
bow-er (bou'ẽr), n. an anchor carried at the bow of a ship.
bow-er-y (bou'ẽr-ĭ), adj. like a bower; shady.
bow-er-y (bou'ẽr-ĭ), n. [pl. boweries (-iz)], a country retreat; farm or plantation with its buildings.
bowl (bōl), n. a circular, hollow vessel for holding liquids.
bowl (bōl), n. a ball of wood used in the games of bowls, and skittles.
bowse (bouz), v. t. to pull or haul hard.
★bow-sprit (bō'sprit), n. a large boom or spar running out from the stem of a ship.
bow-string (bō'string), n. string of a bow; string used by the Turks for strangling offenders.
box (boks), n. an evergreen shrub or small tree, yielding a hard, close-grained wood.
box (boks), n. [pl. boxes ('ez)], a case for holding anything: v. t. to inclose in a box; confine.
box (boks), n. a blow on the head with the fist, or on the ear with the open hand.
box-ing glove (boks'ing gluv), a padded glove.
box met-al (boks' met-al), an antifriction alloy used for journal boxes, shafting, etc.
boy (boi), n. a male child; a young lad.
★boy-cott (boi'kot), v. t. to combine against a person so as to ostracize.
boy-hood (boi'hood), n. the state of being a boy.
boy-ish (boi'ish), adj. pertaining to a boy or boyhood; childish; puerile.
brace (brās), n. that which holds anything tightly or supports it firmly; a prop; a bandage; a pair; a rope reeved through a block at the end of a yard, by which the yard is swung from the deck; v. t. to bind or tie closely; strain up; strengthen; furnish with supports.
brace-let (brās'let), n. an ornamental band or ring for the wrist.
brack-en (brak'en), n. the brake or fern.
brack-et (brak'et), n. a supporting piece projecting from a wall; one of the inclosing marks in printing: v. t. to furnish with or inclose within brackets.
brack-ish (brak'ish), adj. saltish.
bract (brackt), n. a modified leaf growing from the flower stem.
brad (brad), n. a slender nail, having a projection on one side: v. t. [p. t. and p. p. bradded, p. pr. bradding], to nail or secure with brads.
brag (brag), v. i. [p. t. and p. p. bragged, p. pr. bragging], to boast; speak vainglioriously.
brag-ga-do-cio (brag-ȧ-dō'shō), n. a boaster; a braggart; empty boasting.
brag-gart (brag'gẽrt), n. a boaster: adj. boastful.
brag-ger (brag'gẽr), n. one who brags.
brah-ma (brä'mȧ), n. a useful variety of large domestic fowl.
Brahman or Brahmin (brä'man or brä'mĭn), n. [pl. Brahmans or Brahmins ('manz or 'mĭnz)], a member of the Hindu priestly caste.
★Brahmanism or Brahminism (brä'man-izm or brä'mĭn-izm), n. the religion or doctrines of the Brahmans.
★Brahmapootra or Bramaputra (brä-mȧ-pōō'trȧ). River of India, the name being of Sanskrit origin, meaning "the offspring of Brahma," or "Brahma's son."
braid (brād), v. t. to weave or intertwine; plait: n. a plaited band.
brain (brān), n. the soft, whitish, convoluted mass occupying the cranium of a vertebrate; the understanding.
★brain storm (stôrm), a state of cerebral excitement.
brain wave (wāv), a telepathic vibration by which it is supposed a thought is conveyed from one mind to another.
brain-y (brān'ĭ), adj. possessed of brains; acute.
★braise (brāz), v. t. to stew (as meat) in a covered vessel.
brait (brāt), n. a rough diamond.
brake (brāk), n. an instrument or machine to break flax; an extended handle, by which a number of men can unite in working a pump; a mechanical device for checking the motion of a vehicle or machine.
brake (brāk), n. a place overgrown with bracken, brushwood, etc.; the common fern.
bram-ble (bram'bl), n. the English blackberry; any prickly bush or shrub.
bram-bly (bram'blĭ), adj. full of brambles.
bran (bran), n. the husks of wheat, rye, etc., separated from the flour by bolting.
branch (bränch), n. [pl. branches ('ez)], a shoot or limb from a main bough; an offshoot; any member or part of a body or system; a department.
brand (brand), n. a burning piece of wood; any form of trade-mark; hence, quality or kind: v. t. to mark by burning with a hot iron.
bran-dish (bran'dish), v. t. to move, wave, or shake, as a raised weapon.
bran-dy (bran'dĭ), n. [pl. brandies ('dĭz)], an ardent alcoholic liquor distilled from wine or the husks of grapes.
Brandywine river, Pa. Called by the first settlers, the Swedes, Fish-kiln, "Fish creek." Its present name is ascribed by tradition to the loss of a Dutch vessel laden with brandy, or brand-wijn. A celebrated battle was fought there, which accounts for the name being given to eight places in the country.

brash (brash), adj. brittle, as wood. [Colloq., U. S.] brash (brash), n. broken, loose, and angular fragments of rock underlying alluvial deposits.

brass (brăs), n. [pl. brasses ('ez)], an alloy of copper and zinc.

brass-y (brăs'i), adj. pertaining to, or resembling, brass; impudent; brazen.

brat (brat), n. a child (used contemptuously).

brat-tish-ing (brat'ish-ing), n. ornamental openwork; cresting.

★bra-va-do (brā-vā'dō), n. [pl. bravadoes ('dōz)], arrogant menace; defiance.

brave (brāv), adj. bold; courageous; intrepid; making a fine show: n. an Indian warrior.

Syn. BRAVE, gallant. Gallantry is extraordinary bravery or bravery on extraordinary occasions; the brave man goes willingly where he is commanded; the gallant man leads on with vigor to the attack. Bravery is common to vast numbers and whole nations; gallantry is peculiar to individuals or particular bodies.

Ant. FEAR, cringe, shrink, tremble.

brav-er-y (brāv'ĕr-i), n. the quality of being brave.

Syn. BRAVERY, courage, valor. Bravery lies in the blood; courage lies in the mind; the latter depends on the reason, the former on the physical temperament; the first is a species of instinct, the second a virtue; a man is brave in proportion as he is without thought; he has courage in proportion as he reasons or reflects. Valor is a higher quality than either bravery or courage, and seems to partake of the characteristics of both; it combines the fire of bravery with the determination and firmness of courage. [See courage.]

Ant. FEAR, pusillanimity, cowardice.

bra-vo (brä'vō), interj. well done! good! n. a cheer.

bra-vu-ra (brä-vōō'rä), n. an air of florid, brilliant style, adapted to display the skill of the performer, or the range and flexibility of a singer's voice.

brawl (brawl), v. i. to quarrel noisily and outrageously. [FEUD.]

brawn (brawn), n. full, strong muscles; boar's flesh, especially when collared and otherwise prepared.

brawn-y (brawn'i), adj. muscular; tough.

bray (brā), v. t. [p. t. and p. p. brayed, p. pr. braying], to pound or beat fine or small.

braze (brāz), v. t. to solder with brass; cover or ornament with brass.

bra-zen (brā'zn), adj. made of brass; pertaining to brass.

bra-zier (brā'zhĕr), n. an open pan for burning charcoal.

★Brazil (brä-zil', Port. bra-zēl'). Named, on account of the color of its dye-woods, from braza, "a live coal." A republic of South America.

bra-zil nut (brä-zil' nut), n. the seed of a tree of tropical America.

★Brazos (brä'zōs) river, Tex. As named by the Spaniards Brazos de Dios, "arm of God." The Spaniards established a mission on its banks, and, the guard having been called away, the Indians descended on the mission, completely destroying it. When the soldiery returned, their loss was quickly discovered, and, searching for a solution, they found in the river many of the dead bodies of the depredators, still floating in its eddies; as they could discern no marks of violence, they pronounced it a retributive miracle done by the "arm of God."

breach (brēch), n. the act of breaking; the violation of a law, contract, or any other engagement.

Syn. BREACH, break, gap, chasm. A breach and a gap are the consequence of a violent removal, which destroys the connection; a break and a chasm may arise from the absence of that which would form a connection. A breach in a wall is made by means of cannon; gaps in fences are commonly the effect of some violent effort to pass through; a break is made in a page of printing by leaving off in the middle of a line; a chasm is left in writing when any words in the sentence are omitted. [See break.] bread (bred), n. food made from ground grain; food in general.

bread-fruit ('frōōt), n. the fruit of a tree growing in the Pacific islands.

bread-stuff ('stuf), n. grain, flour, or meal from which bread is made.

breadth (bredth), n. the measure of any surface from side to side.

break (brāk), v. t. [p. t. broke, p. p. broken, p. pr. breaking], to separate with violence; interrupt: n. a breach; rupture; an interruption.

